Alex McNeil was born in Washington, D.C., in 1948. Having earned his bachelor's degree in history at Yale, he graduated cum laude from Boston College Law School in 1973. He is employed by the Massachusetts Appeals Court as the administrative assistant to the Chief Justice. Since the publication of the first edition of Total Television in 1980, he has taught, lectured and written about various aspects of broadcasting. He served as a special consultant to Boston's Museum of Afro-American History on the history of blacks in television and as a special consultant to AP Radio on television and popular music. In 1988 he landed a day's work as an extra on "The Kennedys of Massachusetts," a miniseries telecast on ABC in 1990. His second television appearance was as a contestant on Jeopardy! in 1995. He lists as his hobbies record collecting and, of course, television watching, for which he long ago developed the interest that led him to write Total Television. He is also a member of the Shakespeare Oxford Society.

INTRODUCTION

This is a book for the TV fan—particularly for the person who, like me, is fascinated by the parade of television series that passes each year and who enjoys watching the shows come and go as much as watching the shows themselves. More than half of the population alive today have never known life without television. We've woken up with Dave Garroway and Captain Kangaroo and gone to bed with Jack Paar and Johnny Carson. In between we've laughed at Lucy and Archie and Uncle Miltie, wept with Kunta Kinte, and screamed at Elvis and the Beatles. We've seen a young President buried, a war in living color, an Eagle land on the moon, and a baby trapped in a well. We've seen a lot.

For the past twenty-seven years I have collected information on more than 5,400 series, network and syndicated, prime time and daytime. The series are listed alphabetically in Part I, which takes up most of this book. More detailed information on the scope of that part may be found in the explanatory notes preceding Part I.

To give a fuller picture of television programming, other material is also included:

Part II is a chronological list of special programs and broadcasts (the list is entirely subjective).

Part III is a set of charts showing the prime-time fall schedules for the major commercial networks.

Part IV is a list of Emmy and Peabody Award winners.

Part V is a list of the top-rated series for each season.

Finally, there is an index of people who are mentioned in this book. Information has been gathered from many sources: from watching the series themselves, from the networks, and from a number of periodicals and books. Among the most useful periodicals were: TV Guide, which assumed its present format in April 1953; Variety, which covers the television industry and reviews almost every new series; The New York Times; and the New York Herald Tribune, which ceased publication in 1966.

Though I have tried to insure that the information included here is accurate and up to date, I am sure that I have not been completely successful and I would appreciate any additions, corrections, comments, or suggestions.

Finally, I offer my very special thanks to several people who have helped me a lot: David and Jane Otte, Kathryn Court and Caroline White at Penguin Books, Jamie Canning at ABC, and Barbara Abseck at CBS. Extra credit goes to my wife, Jill McNeil, who has tolerated this pastime for twenty-six years, and to my children, Joanna and Jeffrey McNeil, who have patiently explained some of the intricacies of Saturday morning television to their father.

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION

In this edition all of the sections have been updated through late 1995. In Part I, about six hundred new entries have been added. Additionally, many entries appearing in the 1991 edition have been extensively revised, and a number of corrections have been made. I extend my thanks to everyone who wrote in with corrections and useful comments.

The growth of cable television has been a major development during the past decade. It would be impossible, however, to chronicle in a single volume all television series which have originated on the networks, in domestic syndication, and on cable. Although the primary focus of this book remains on network and "over-the-air" broadcasting, I have included in this edition a number of series which originated on cable services. Of particular interest have been those like The Paper Chase and SCTV Network, which moved from network to cable, and those like Remote Control and It's Garry Shandling's Show, which moved from cable to over-the-air.

★★★ PART I

ON AND OFF

Explanatory notes: It is difficult, if not impossible, to define a "series." Included here are open-ended, regularly scheduled programs, regardless of their duration; thus, Turn-On, a 1969 show which was canceled after only one showing, is included, while Project 20, the overall title for a large number of irregularly scheduled news and cultural documentaries on NBC, is not included (significant Project 20 specials are noted in Part II of this book, however). A show like Hallmark Hall of Fame falls somewhere in between—it was regularly scheduled during its first seasons and is now seen a few times a year on an irregular basis; such a show is included in this part.

Also included are closed-end, multiple-episode programs, commonly known as "miniseries," such as Roots, America, and The Six Wives of Henry VIII. These programs have been included if the program contained four or more episodes or segments as originally telecast and if the episodes or segments were scheduled at regular intervals.

Shows which were broadcast during or after the fall of 1948 are included. Though network broadcasting existed prior to that time, the fall of 1948 was chosen as a starting date for several reasons: there was a tremendous growth in the number of broadcasting stations and the number of television sets during that year; television's first big stars—Milton Berle, Ed Sullivan, and Arthur Godfrey—all came to the medium during the 1948–1949 season; seven-days-a-week, four-network broadcasting began in New York in August 1948; and broadcasting took on a true national character during the 1948–1949 season, as coaxial cables linking the East with the Midwest in January 1949 made simultaneous broadcasting to different areas of the country a reality.

Series are listed alphabetically, by the titles by which they were most commonly known rather than by their exact titles. Thus, The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet is listed under Ozzie and Harriet, and The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis is listed under Dobie Gillis.

Following the title appears the broadcast network or cable service affiliation (if any). The networks are:

ABC—the American Broadcasting Company, which numbered only fourteen affiliates in 1953, when a new corporate structure was established, but which had become equally competitive with the other networks by the 1970s

CBS—the Columbia Broadcasting System (now simply CBS, Inc.), founded in 1927, and which (with NBC) was one of the two major networks during television's early years

DUMONT—a small network established by Allen B. DuMont Laboratories in 1946; with few primary affiliates, the network never made money and perished in 1955

FOX—the Fox Broadcasting Company, organized in 1986 and financially successful by the end of the decade, becoming the first viable fourth network since the demise of DuMont three decades earlier

NBC—the National Broadcasting Company, a subsidiary of RCA; founded in 1926, it became the first network to begin regular television broadcasting (April 1939), and together with CBS was a major network from the outset

NET—National Educational Television; in a sense, NET was less a true network than a distributor of programs to individual educational stations throughout the country; it was not until late 1966 that simultaneous broadcasting began on educational outlets

PBS—Public Broadcasting Service, the successor to NET; established in 1969, it distributes programs (both by simultaneous transmission and by physical delivery) to educational stations

UPN—the United Paramount Network, which began prime-time broadcasting on a limited basis in January 1995
WB—the WB Television Network, owned by Warner Bros., which also began broadcasting in prime time on a limited basis in 1995

The principal cable services listed in this book include:

A&E—The Arts & Entertainment Cable Network, established in February 1984
CINEMAX—A companion service of HBO, established in August 1980
CNN—The Cable News Network, established in June 1980
COM—Comedy Central, which resulted from the merger of two comedy cable networks in 1991
DISC—The Discovery Channel, launched in June 1985
DISNEY—The Disney Channel, begun in April 1983
E!—Entertainment Television, begun in 1990
FAM—The Family Channel; formerly known as the Christian Broadcasting Network, it was established as a cable service in April 1977
HBO—Established in 1972 as Home Box Office
LIFETIME—Established in February 1984 with the merger of two other services, Cable Health Network and Daytime
MTV—Music Television, begun in August 1981
NICK—Nickelodeon, launched in April 1979
SHOWTIME—Premiered in July 1976
TBS—An Atlanta-based station carried on many local cable outlets; though its call letters are WTBS, it is also known as Superstation TBS
TNN—The Nashville Network, which began telecasting in 1983
TNT—Turner Network Television, established in 1988
USA—USA Network, which emerged from the Madison Square Garden Sports Network in April 1980

Not all series are carried by a network or cable system, however. Many are offered directly to individual stations or jointly owned groups of stations; that method of distribution is known as syndication, and the word "syndicated" appears following the title of series so distributed.

[Special note: a few programs are listed in Part II of this book, "Special Occasions," with the notation "PPV," which stands for "Pay Per View." This is not a separate cable network, but rather an ad hoc system of syndication whereby viewers who desire to watch such a program pay their cable operator separately for it.]

The network, cable, or syndication affiliation applies only to first-run episodes or segments of a series. If a series was rerun on another network, or if its reruns were offered in syndication, no such affiliation is indicated. It should be noted that virtually all successful network programs are eventually offered in syndication (as reruns) following the completion of their original network runs.

Following the network, cable, or syndication affiliation, the running dates are listed. For network or cable series, the dates are those of the original network or cable run. If a series returned to a network in reruns (as did I Love Lucy, both in prime time and in daytime), or if a series ran simultaneously in first runs and in reruns (as did Gunsmoke, reruns of which were shown under the title Marshal Dillon for several seasons on CBS), the dates of the reruns are not included. Dates listed are those for the New York City affiliates of the networks, unless otherwise indicated (generally speaking, most CBS and NBC series were carried at the same time by all affiliates, as have been most ABC series since the early 1960s; several ABC series of the 1940s and 1950s, and most DuMont series, were not broadcast simultaneously by most network affiliates). Exact dates for some NET series are not included, as most NET programs were distributed by mail or messenger, at least until late 1966. Similarly, exact dates for syndicated series are not given, for individual stations which broadcast a syndicated series may air it whenever they choose; unless otherwise noted, the dates listed for a syndicated series are the dates when it was in production. A few syndicated series, notably Fernwood 2-Night and America 2Night, were offered to most stations for broadcast on the same dates; in those instances, exact dates are indicated.

Following the dates is a description of the series and a list of its cast. The cast includes players who were "regulars"; that is, those who appeared often enough to be considered regular performers. The list is intended to be reasonably complete, but for certain series (especially serials) it is impossible to include every performer who appeared on more than one episode. If a cast member left a series while it was still in production, the dates of his or her participation (where known) are noted. Notable guest appearances are also included where appropriate.

Certain kinds of shows are not contained here: series which consist entirely of motion pictures (such as NBC's Saturday Night at the Movies or The ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week); motion picture shorts or serials subsequently distributed to television stations (such as the Our Gang or Little Rascals comedies, The Three Stooges or Renfrew of the Mounted); shows which consisted entirely of reruns of other series (such as Royal Playhouse, which consisted of Fireside Theatre reruns); shows which consisted entirely of unsold pilot films (such shows occasionally surfaced on network TV during the summer, under a title such as Comedy Spot); irregularly scheduled sports broadcasts; nonnetwork shows of less than ten minutes' length; and regionally and locally televised programs.

Lastly, it should be noted that series are listed alphabetically by the first word; thus, for example, All in the Family precedes Allen Ludden's Gallery. A series whose title begins with a single letter will be found at the beginning of that letter; thus, *M*A*S*H, The M & M Candy Carnival, M-G-M Parade, M Squad* and M.V.P. all appear at the beginning of the "M" listings. Series beginning with Dr. or Mr. are listed as though the first words were spelled out in full, and hyphenated words are deemed to be one word for purposes of alphabetizing.

ABC AFTERNOON PLAYBREAK ABC

31 OCTOBER 1973–14 AUGUST 1975 Irregularly scheduled ninety-minute dramatic specials for the afternoon-viewing audience. Presentations included: "The Things I Never Said," with Diana Hyland and Joseph Campanella (31 October 1973); "The Last Bride of Salem," with Bradford Dillman (who won an Emmy for his performance) and Lois Nettleton (8 May 1974); "Heart in Hiding," with Kay Lenz (Emmy) and Clu Gulager (14 November 1974); "Oh! Baby, Baby, Baby. . ." with Bert Convy and Judy Carne (5 December 1974); and "The Girl Who Couldn't Lose," with Julie Kavner and Jack Carter (13 February 1975; Emmys for outstanding daytime drama and for director Mort Lachman).

ABC AFTERSCHOOL SPECIALS ABC

4 OCTOBER 1972– Sixty-minute specials, both dramatic and documentary, for young people. Broadcast on occasional weekday afternoons. Presentations included: "Last of the Curlews," an ecology-oriented cartoon from Hanna-Barbera studios (4 October 1972); "Rookie of the Year," an Emmy award winner starring Jodie Foster (3 October 1973); "Cyrano," a Hanna-Barbera cartoon with the voices of José Ferrer (recreating his 1950 film role), Joan Van Ark, and Kurt Kasznar (6 March 1974); "Winning and Losing," a documentary about the 1974 South Dakota Senate race (6 November 1974); "Santiago's America," with Ruben Figueroa, filmed in Spanish Harlem (19 February 1975); "The Secret Life of T. K. Dearing," with Jodie Foster (23 April 1975); and "Me & Dad's New Wife," with Kristy McNichol (18 February 1976); "Mighty Moose and the Quarterback Kid," with Brandon Cruz and Dave Madden (1 December 1976); "My Mom's Having a Baby," with Dr. Lendon Smith and Shane Sinutko (16 February 1977); "Schoolboy Father," with Rob Lowe (14 October 1980); "Stoned," with Scott Baio (12 November 1980); "The Woman Who Willed a Miracle," with Cloris Leachman and Leif Green (9 February 1983); "I Want to Go Home," with Lindsay Crouse, Seth Greene and Maddie Corman (13 February 1985); "Just a Regular Kid: An AIDS Story," with Christian Hoff (9 September 1987); "Taking a Stand," with Timothy Collins (19 January 1989); "All That Glitters," with Marc Price (25 January 1990); "It's Only Rock & Roll," with Carole King and Davy Jones (21 March 1991); "Shades of a Single Protein," a look at race, moderated by Oprah Winfrey (28 January 1993); "Love Hurts," with Holly Shaw (16 September 1993); "I Hate the Way I Look," moderated by Oprah Winfrey (21 March 1994); "Boys Will Be Boys," with Ami Dolenz, David Lipper, and Joan Van Ark (15 September 1994); and "Bonnie Raitt Has Something to Talk About," in which singer Raitt was interviewed by Whoopi Goldberg (16 March 1995).

ABC ALBUM (PLYMOUTH PLAYHOUSE) ABC

12 APRIL 1953–5 JULY 1953 Thirteen-week half-hour dramatic anthology series, seen on Sunday evenings. Presentations included: "Justice," with Paul Douglas and Lee Grant (12 April, the pilot for the series of the same title); "Jamie," with Brandon DeWilde and Ernest Truex (26 April, the pilot for that series); Charles Dickens's "A Tale of Two Cities," with Wendell Corey, Wanda Hendrix, and Judith Evelyn (3 May and 10 May); and Daphne du Maurier's "The Split Second," with Geraldine Fitzgerald (7 June).

THE ABC COMEDY HOUR ABC

12 JANUARY 1972–5 APRIL 1972 Seven segments of this thirteen-week comedy-variety series brought together a group of highly talented impressionists calling themselves The Kopykats: Rich Little, Frank Gorshin, George Kirby, Marilyn Michaels, Charlie Callas, Joe Baker, and Fred Travalena (last four segments). Those segments were later syndicated under the title The Kopykats. Guest hosts included Steve Lawrence (19 January), Orson Welles with Ron Moody (26 January), Ed Sullivan with Will Jordan (9 February), Raymond Burr (23 February), Robert Young (8 March), Debbie Reynolds (22 March), and Tony Curtis (5 April). The other six segments of the series included two Alan King specials, a Friars Club roast of Sammy Davis, Jr., and a revival of "Hellzapoppin" with Jack Cassidy and Ronnie Schell.

THE ABC MONDAY MYSTERY MOVIE ABC

6 FEBRUARY 1989–22 MAY 1989 This was the umbrella title for the three two-hour mystery series introduced by ABC early in 1989: Columbo, Gideon Oliver and B. L. Stryker (see individual titles for details). In August 1989 the series returned as The ABC Saturday Mystery Movie.

ABC MONDAY SPORTSNITE ABC

1 JUNE 1987–31 AUGUST 1987 Al Trautwig hosted this sports wrap-up, which was telecast after ABC News Nightline on Monday evenings. The show, which sometimes featured celebrity guests, took an irreverent look at the sporting news of the preceding week.

ABC NEWS ABC

12 OCTOBER 1953– For many years ABC ran a distant third to CBS and NBC in news and public affairs programming. Although the network offered an evening newscast as early as 1948, few affiliates chose to carry it. In the fall of 1952 a new, more ambitious effort was attempted (see All-Star News), but by January of 1953 that series was seen only once a week. It was not until the fall of 1953 that Monday-through-Friday newscasts were resumed, with John Daly as the anchorman (except on Tuesdays during the 1953–1954 season, when Taylor Grant filled in). Daly, who had been a CBS radio correspondent from 1937 to 1949, had been with ABC for four years before being named vice president in charge of news, special events, and public affairs. For the remainder of the 1950s Daly was the virtual personification of ABC News. The network scrapped the evening broadcasts during the 1957–1958 season, but returned in the fall of 1958 with a new idea—early-evening and late-evening newscasts. Don Goddard handled the early broadcast, while John Daly anchored the late one, which, though unsuccessful, is significant in that it was network television's first regularly scheduled late-night newscast.

Daly left ABC News late in 1960 (his last broadcast was on 16 December; he would continue to host What's My Line? on CBS for another six years), and was succeeded as head of ABC News by James C. Hagerty, who had been President Eisenhower's press secretary. Following Daly's departure the parade of anchormen and -women, most of them refugees from other networks, got under way; from 1961 to 1984 ABC put at least ten people behind its anchor desks, while CBS relied on just three and NBC five. ABC first employed John Cameron Swayze, who had anchored NBC's Camel News Caravan from 1948 to 1956, then Bill Shadel. On 26 March 1962, Ron Cochran, formerly of CBS, came aboard and remained until 29 January 1965 (in 1962 ABC hired reporter Mal Goode, becoming the first TV network to a hire a black reporter full-time). On 1 February 1965, Peter Jennings, a twenty-six-year-old Canadian, took over. It was during Jennings's tenure that ABC's evening newscasts expanded to thirty minutes nightly; again, ABC was the third network to lengthen its early-evening newscast. Jennings departed on 29 December 1967, and, as 1968 began, Bob Young was at the anchor desk.

Young lasted only until 24 May; Frank Reynolds succeeded him on 27 May. Reynolds, who had previously worked at ABC's Chicago affiliate, was the lone anchorman for a year, until he was joined by Howard K. Smith on 26 May 1969. Smith, a former CBS Washington correspondent, had been with ABC for seven years. ABC now seemed committed to the dual anchor concept popularized by Chet Huntley and David Brinkley at NBC. After Reynolds departed on 4 December 1970, he was succeeded the following Monday by Harry Reasoner, another CBS alumnus. The Smith-Reasoner team stayed together until 12 September 1975, after which Reasoner remained behind the desk while Smith did commentary and analysis.

In a bold move consummated in the spring of 1976, ABC lured NBC's Barbara Walters away from the Today show. A multiyear, multimillion-dollar contract, the opportunity to produce several specials, and the distinction of being television's first anchorwoman were offers that Walters could not refuse. She joined Reasoner at ABC's anchor desk on 4 October 1976; though the ratings for ABC's evening newscast rose slightly, the network remained third in the news race. When ABC Sports chief Roone Arledge became head of ABC News and Sports in 1977, Reasoner's future was rumored to be in doubt.

Under Arledge's aegis major changes were made in the summer of 1978. Reasoner was released from his contract and returned to CBS News. ABC elected to deemphasize the anchor concept, at least temporarily, and in July of 1978 ABC World News Tonight was introduced. The new format featured not one desk, but four, staffed by Frank Reynolds in Washington, Peter Jennings in London, Max Robinson in Chicago, and Barbara Walters in New York; Howard K. Smith continued to provide commentary. Barbara Walters soon left her New York anchor desk to concentrate almost exclusively on interviewing newsmakers and celebrities; most of these interviews have been put together as network specials. In March 1980 the network, which had attempted a late-night newscast in 1958, successfully reintroduced the concept (see ABC News Nightline).

On 20 April 1983 Frank Reynolds, seriously ill with hepatitis and cancer, gave his last broadcast; he died three months later. In September 1983 Peter Jennings, who had relocated to New York, was named sole anchor of ABC World News Tonight. (Max Robinson's future at ABC had been cloudy after he accused the network of alleged racism in a 1981 speech; he died of AIDS in 1988). Under Jennings's stewardship, ABC World News Tonight gradually climbed to the top spot by late 1989 in the three-network evening news race. Although the ratings of all three network newscasts declined during the 1990s, ABC managed to hold on to the top spot without serious opposition from CBS or NBC.

ABC NEWS NIGHTLINE ABC

24 MARCH 1980– The most successful of the networks' late-night newscasts began in the aftermath of the seizure of the American embassy in Iran early in November 1979. Shortly after the embassy takeover, ABC began televising a nightly update on the situation, from 11:30 to 11:45 P.M. Titled The Iran Crisis: America Held Hostage, the program was originally hosted by Frank Reynolds, one of the anchormen on the network's regular early-evening newscast, ABC World News Tonight. On 29 November 1979, ABC diplomatic correspondent Ted Koppel filled in for Reynolds and soon became the program's regular host.

The ratings of The Iran Crisis (which ran against the first fifteen minutes of the Tonight show on NBC) were significantly higher than expected and led ABC news executives to believe that a regular late-evening newscast could attract an audience. Thus emerged ABC News Nightline on 24 March 1980; with Koppel at anchor, Nightline was scheduled from 11:30 to 11:50 P.M. Mondays through Thursdays; on 5 January 1981 it was lengthened to thirty minutes, and on 3 April 1981 it expanded to include Friday nights. With the Iranian crisis showing no sign of imminent resolution, Nightline shifted its focus to other matters. Most programs were devoted to a single topic, and the show was widely praised for its in-depth analysis of issues.

The success of Nightline prompted CBS and NBC also to inaugurate late-night newscasts (see CBS News Nightwatch and NBC News Overnight) and led ABC to introduce follow-ups to Nightline; both of these experiments, The Last Word and One on One, were unsuccessful. On 25 April 1983 Nightline was expanded to an hour; multiple topics were often covered on these longer telecasts. One of the more noteworthy presentations was "The Crisis Game" (22–25 November 1983), in which a war game was simulated; former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie appeared as the president. Nightline returned to a half-hour format on 20 February 1984.

Among the series's many notable programs have been those from South Africa during the week of 18 March 1985 (one of which featured foreign minister R. F. Botha and Bishop Desmond Tutu appearing together), one from Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam (29 April 1985), an April 1987 interview with Los Angeles Dodgers executive Al Campanis that cost him his job for his remarks that black ballplayers lacked "some of the necessities" to become successful managers, an April 1988 roundtable discussion commemorating the twentieth anniversary of Martin Luther King's death, the "town meeting" in Israel featuring Jews and Palestinians (26 April 1988), and a November 1988 interview with Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis (perhaps best remembered for Koppel's remark to an obviously weary Dukakis, "You just don't get it, do you, Governor?"). The series celebrated its tenth anniversary with a prime-time retrospective special on 24 April 1990. Its regular starting time was moved from 11:30 to 11:35 P.M. beginning in April 1993, in order to give local stations more time to sell commercials during their 11 P.M. newscasts.

ABC ROCKS ABC

22 JUNE 1984–2 AUGUST 1985 This half-hour pastiche of music videos was ABC's attempt to compete with NBC's Friday Night Videos. The attempt met with only limited success, as had Fridays, ABC's previous effort at cloning an NBC late-night program.

THE ABC SATURDAY MYSTERY MOVIE ABC

19 AUGUST 1989–4 AUGUST 1990 This was the umbrella title for four two-hour mystery series. Two of them—Columbo and B. L. Stryker—had been part of the lineup on the network's spring 1989 series, The ABC Monday Mystery Movie; the other two—Kojak and Christine Cromwell—were new to ABC: see individual titles for details.

ABC SCOPE ABC

11 NOVEMBER 1964–27 JANUARY 1968 A news analysis program hosted by Howard K. Smith. The series focused mainly on the war in Vietnam.

ABC SHOWCASE ABC

22 JUNE 1950–26 JULY 1950 Allyn Edwards hosted this prime-time grab-bag of audience participation games and short comedy and dramatic sketches.

ABC SPORTS REVIEW ABC

21 AUGUST 1948–26 APRIL 1949 One of the network's first sports programs, ABC Sports Review was a fifteen-minute roundup of the week's sports news, hosted by Joe Hasel.

ABC STAGE 67 ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1966–11 MAY 1967 Among the few high points of this sixty-minute dramatic anthology series were appearances by John Gielgud in "The Love Song of Barney Kempinski" (14 September); Olivia de Havilland in "Noon Wine" (23 November, her first TV dramatic appearance); and Ingrid Bergman in "The Human Voice" (4 May). Hubbell Robinson was the executive producer of the series.

THE ABC WEEKEND SPECIAL ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1977– Weekend daytime series for children which presented some first-run dramas and some reruns of shows originally aired on The ABC Afterschool Specials.

ABC WORLD NEWS NOW ABC

5 JANUARY 1992– ABC inagurated its overnight news service early in 1992. The broadcast was originally coanchored by Lisa McRee and Aaron Brown. By mid-1993 Thalia Assuras and Brian Rooney were the coanchors; Boyd Matson succeeded Rooney in late 1993, and Kevin Newman became Assuras's coanchor in late 1994. See also ABC World News This Morning.

ABC WORLD NEWS THIS MORNING ABC

5 JULY 1982– ABC inaugurated its early-morning news service with this series, scheduled weekdays at 6:00 A.M. Steve Bell and Kathleen Sullivan were the original coanchors of the broadcast. After Kathleen Sullivan left in May 1985, Jeanne Meserve coanchored with Bell. Jed Duvall took over as sole anchor early in 1987; Edie Magnus became his coanchor in June of that year, and the team stayed together until late 1988. In early 1989 Forrest Sawyer (who had earlier coanchored CBS's early-morning newscast) and Paula Zahn were teamed up; Mike Schneider succeeded Sawyer in September 1989. When Zahn left for CBS This Morning in February 1990, Schneider remained as sole anchor. After Schneider's departure in early 1993, the anchors of ABC's overnight news service, ABC World News Now, served as the anchors of the early morning newscast as well.

ABC'S WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT ABC

1 JANUARY 1973–5 SEPTEMBER 1975 The umbrella title for ABC's late-night programming after it became clear that The Dick Cavett Show would never overtake NBC's Tonight show. During 1973 The Dick Cavett Show, which had been shown nightly for three years, was cut back to one week per month. Jack Paar was lured back to network television, and thus Jack Paar Tonite occupied another week each month. The remaining evenings consisted of made-for-TV movies, variety programs, and a rock-music series produced by Dick Clark called In Concert (usually broadcast Fridays).

ABC'S WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS ABC

29 APRIL 1961– The brainchild of Roone Arledge, this durable "athletic anthology" series has captured the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat in virtually every known sporting event from every corner of the globe. Host Jim McKay (formerly host of The Verdict Is Yours) was with the series from the beginning, and served as its anchor for many seasons. Principal commentators over the years have included Howard Cosell, Frank Gifford, Bill Flemming, Chris Schenkel, Keith Jackson, Bud Palmer, Bob Beattie, and Warner Wolf. The premiere telecast presented the Drake Relays from Des Moines and the Penn Relays from Philadelphia. The series celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with a two-hour prime-time special on 26 April 1986, featuring clips from past shows and a special appearance by former Yugoslavian ski jumper Vinko Bogataj, whose spectacular fall epitomized "the agony of defeat" in the show's opening sequence. Gifford succeeded McKay as anchor in the late 1980s. In January 1994 Julie Moran was named anchor, and served in that capacity until mid-1995, when she left to become the weekend coanchor of Entertainment Tonight.

A.D. NBC

31 MARCH 1985–4 APRIL 1985 The arrival of Christianity in ancient Rome was depicted in this twelve-hour, five-night miniseries. Featured were Denis Quilley as Peter; James Mason as Tiberius; Amanda Pays as Sarah, a Jewish slave; John McEnery as Caligula; Philip Sayer as Saul; Neil Dickson as Valerius, a Roman soldier; John Houseman as Gamaliel; Richard Kiley as Claudius; Anthony Andrews as Nero; Ava Gardner as Agrippina; and Jennifer O'Neill as Messalina, Claudius's wife.

A.E.S. HUDSON STREET ABC

23 MARCH 1978–20 APRIL 1978 Created by the crew responsible for Barney Miller, A.E.S. Hudson Street was a half-hour hospital sitcom which bore more than a superficial resemblance to Barney Miller. Set in the Emergency Service section of a large New York hospital, it starred Gregory Sierra (a Barney Miller alumnus) as Dr. Tony Menzies, chief resident. Also featured were Stefan Gierasch as Mr. Karbo, the administrator; Rosana Soto as Rosa, a nurse pregnant with her eighth child; Allan Miller as Dr. Glick, a psychiatrist; Susan Peretz as Foshko, a paramedic; Ralph Manza as Stanky, an ambulance driver; Ray Stewart as Newton, a gay nurse; and Bill Cort as Dr. Jerry Mackler, an intern. Danny Arnold, Tony Sheehan, and Chris Hayward created the series. See also Stat.

AG-U.S.A. (AG-DAY) SYNDICATED

1974– Half-hour series on agricultural topics, hosted first by John Stearns, later by Al Pell.

6 MARCH 1984–17 APRIL 1984 Norman Lear, whose sitcoms had changed the face of television in the 1970s, teamed with Rick Mitz to create this short-flight series about a Mexican-American stand-up comic whose growing success generated problems with his family at home in East Los Angeles. The large cast featured Paul Rodriguez as Pablo (Paul) Rivera, the comic; Joe Santos as his father, Domingo, a gardener; Katy Jurado as his mother, Rosa Maria; Alma Cuervo as his sister Sylvia, who worked at a K-Mart; Martha Velez as his sister Lucia, a maid; Bert Rosario as his brother, Manuel, a bricklayer; Arnaldo Santana as Hector del Gato, Lucia's husband; Maria Richwine as Carmen, Manuel's wife; Edie Marie Rubio as Linda, Manuel and Carmen's daughter; Antonio Torres as Nicholas, Manuel and Carmen's son; Martha Gonzales as Susana del Gato, Hector and Sylvia's daughter; Mario Lopez as their son Tomas; Michelle Smith as their daughter Elena; Beto Lovato as their son Mario; Claudia Gonzales as their daughter Anna Maria; and Hector Elizondo as Paul's agent, Jose Sanchez, who called himself Jose Shapiro.

A.M. AMERICA ABC

6 JANUARY 1975–31 OCTOBER 1975 ABC's entry into early-morning programming. Bill Beutel was the host of the two-hour Monday-to-Friday show which, like NBC's Today, combined news, interviews, and features. Stephanie Edwards served as cohost until May. Peter Jennings read the news. Semiregular contributors included columnist Jack Anderson, naturalist Roger Caras, former senator Sam Ervin, former mayor John Lindsay, Boston physician Dr. Timothy Johnson, civil rights activist Reverend Jesse Jackson, and Ralph Story (who also served as West Coast cohost). The show failed to catch on and was replaced by Good Morning, America.

A.M. WEATHER PBS

1979– A comprehensive fifteen-minute national weather forecast, broadcast by satellite from the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting. Dale Bryan, Barry Richwein, and Carl Weiss were the original meteorologists.

THE A TEAM NBC

23 JANUARY 1983–30 DECEMBER 1986; 31 MAY 1987–14 JUNE 1987 Introduced in midyear, this tongue-in-cheek adventure show proved to be NBC's most popular series of the 1982–1983 season (indeed, it was the only NBC series to crack Nielsen's Top Twenty). The A Team consisted of four Vietnam veterans whose services were available to anyone who could afford them. The A Team also tried to stay a step ahead of the U.S. Army, which suspected the vets of misappropriating the proceeds of a raid on the Bank of Hanoi. Featured were George Peppard as the leader, Colonel John "Hannibal" Smith; Mr. T as B. A. Barracus, strongman and ace mechanic (born Laurence Tureaud, T changed his name legally, bedecked himself with jewelry, and adopted a Mandinkan haircut before breaking into showbiz); Dirk Benedict as Templeton "Face" Peck, a skilled imposter; Dwight Schultz as H.M. "Howlin' Mad" Murdock, a slightly deranged pilot; Melinda Culea (1983) as Amy Amanda Allen, the reporter who joined them in the premiere; and William Lucking (1983) as Colonel Lynch, the commander of the Fort Bragg military prison who grimly pursued the team. In the fall of 1983 the pursuit-by-the-army story line was deemphasized, and Melinda Culea left the show; Marla Heasley was selected as her replacement, Tawnia Baker. Heasley left at the end of the 1983–1984 season. Lance LeGault was occasionally seen as the Team's new pursuer, Colonel Decker, between 1984 and 1986. In the fall of 1986 three new regulars were added: Robert Vaughn as General Stockwell, who finally succeeded in capturing the Team and forced them to become government agents; Judy Ledford as Carla, Stockwell's secretary; and Eddie Velez as Dishpan Frankie Santana, the newest member of the Team. A total of 128 episodes were produced. Stephen J. Cannell and Frank Lupo created the series, and were its executive producers. Mike Post and Pete Carpenter provided the music. See also Mister T.

AARON'S WAY NBC

9 MARCH 1988–25 MAY 1988 This hour family drama told the unlikely story of an Amish family who moved to California's wine country following the death of their son there. Featured were Merlin Olsen as Aaron Miller, the patriarch; Belinda Montgomery as his wife, Sarah Miller; Samantha Mathis as their daughter Roseanne; Scott Curtis as their son, Frank; Erin Chase as their daughter Martha; Kathleen York as Susannah Lo Verde, who, as the series began, was pregnant with the late son's child; Jessica Walter as Susannah's divorced mother, Connie Lo Verde; and Christopher Gartin as Connie's teenage son, Mickey. Twelve episodes were shown. William Blinn and Jerry Thorpe were executive producers.

THE ABBOTT AND COSTELLO SHOW SYNDICATED

1952 One of America's most popular comedy teams, Bud Abbott (the irascible straight man) and Lou Costello (the fat funny man) made fifty-two half-hour films for television. The shows incorporated many of their best burlesque routines. Their supporting cast included Sid Fields (as their cigar-chomping landlord), Hillary Brooke (as Lou's girlfriend, who lived across the hall in the rooming house), Bobby Barber, Joe Besser (as Lou's pal Stinky), Gordon Jones (as Mike the Cop), Joe Kirk (Costello's real-life brother-in-law, as Mr. Bacigalupe), Joan Shawlee, and Milt Bronson. Besser, Brooke, Kirk, and Shawlee appeared only in the first twenty-six episodes. Alex Gottlieb, the series's original producer, was succeeded by Pat Costello, Lou's brother. Jean Yarborough directed. After the TV series Abbott and Costello made two or three more motion pictures before splitting up. Costello died in 1959.

THE ABBOTT AND COSTELLO SHOW SYNDICATED

1966 Hanna-Barbera Productions produced an animated cartoon series based on the characters of Bud Abbott and Lou Costello; it was one of the first cartoon series based on real people. Abbott supplied his own voice, and Stan Irwin provided Costello's.

ABE BURROWS' ALMANAC CBS

4 JANUARY 1950–29 MARCH 1950 A half hour of comedy and conversation on Wednesday nights, hosted by humorist Abe Burrows. Abe's guests on the premiere included songwriters Adolph Green and Betty Comden.

ABOUT FACES ABC

4 JANUARY 1960–30 JUNE 1961 A daytime game show hosted by Ben Alexander which, like Place the Face, featured pairs of contestants whose paths had crossed previously; the first contestant to recall their association won a prize.

ABSOLUTELY FABULOUS COM

24 JULY 1994– Made in England, this politically incorrect sitcom quickly acquired a cult following in the U.S. after its introduction on the Comedy Central cable network. It starred Jennifer Saunders (who created and wrote the show's eighteen episodes) as Edina Monsoon, a public relations executive, and Joanna Lumley as her fashion editor pal, Patsy Stone. The two chain-smoking, booze-guzzling ladies sloshed their way through life, careening from one trendy fixation to the next. Also featured were Julia Sawalha as Edina's levelheaded daughter, Saffron, June Whitfield as her mother, and Jane Horrocks as her assistant, Bubble. The American rights to the series were obtained by Roseanne, although at least two other AbFab-inspired series managed to hit the air in 1995: see Cybill and High Society.

ACADEMY THEATER NBC

25 JULY 1949–12 SEPTEMBER 1949 A summer replacement for Tele-Theatre, Academy Theater was a Monday-night dramatic anthology series.

ACAPULCO NBC

27 FEBRUARY 1961–24 APRIL 1961 An attempt to salvage the Klondike series by moving its stars down the Pacific Coast and ahead a century. The two Klondike costars, Ralph Taeger (now Patrick Malone) and James Coburn (now Gregg Miles), were cast as adventurer beach bums. Also featured were Allison Hayes as Chloe, a nightclub entertainer, and Telly Savalas as Carver, a lawyer. Like most midseason format changes (e.g., Headmaster/The New Andy Griffith Show; The John Forsythe Show), this one was unsuccessful.

ACAPULCO H.E.A.T. SYNDICATED

1993–1994 Hour adventures series about a group of special agents who comprised the H.E.A.T.—the Hemisphere Emergency Action Team—which operated out of an Acapulco hotel. The cast included Catherine Oxenberg as Ashley Hunter-Coddington; Alison Armitage as former cat burglar Marie Claire "Cat" Pascal; Brendan Kelly as Michael Savage; Spencer Rochfort as Brett Richards; Holly Floria as Krissie Valentine; Michael Worth as Tommy Chase; Randy Vasquez as Marcos Guettierez; Graham Heywood as Arthur Small; Fabio as Claudio, the hotel owner; and John Vernon as the boss, Mr. Smith, who communicated with the team via a video screen. The series was filmed on location at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

ACCENT CBS

26 FEBRUARY 1961–6 SEPTEMBER 1962 This wide-ranging documentary and cultural series was seen on Sundays for most of its run. It was hosted by James Fleming (spring 1961), Winston Burdett (summer 1961), John Ciardi (fall 1961–1962). During the summer of 1962 it was telecast in prime time on Thursdays as Accent on an American Summer. The premiere telecast, a tribute to poet Robert Frost, featured an appearance by President John F. Kennedy.

ACCIDENTAL FAMILY NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1967–5 JANUARY 1968 Situation comedy about a Las Vegas comic, recently widowed, who owned a farm in California where dwelt a divorcée and her young daughter, who agreed to care for the comic's young son while he was on the job. With Jerry Van Dyke as comic Jerry Webster; Lois Nettleton as divorcée Susannah Kramer; Ben Blue as Susannah's uncle, Ben McGrath, the handyman; Teddy Quinn as Jerry's son Sandy; Susan Benjamin as Susannah's daughter Tracy; and Larry D. Mann as Jerry's manager, Marty.

ACCUSED ABC

3 DECEMBER 1958–30 SEPTEMBER 1959 A midseason replacement consisting of half-hour courtroom dramas, broadcast on Wednesdays. With Edgar Allan Jones, Jr. (a law professor in real life) as the presiding judge.

ACE CRAWFORD, PRIVATE EYE CBS

15 MARCH 1983–12 APRIL 1983 Another unsuccessful sitcom for Tim Conway, who this time starred as bumbling gumshoe Ace Crawford (Conway had previously played a bumbling ensign on McHale's Navy, a bumbling Texas Ranger on Rango, and a bumbling pilot on The Tim Conway Show). Also featured were Joe Regalbuto as Toomey, Crawford's accountant and part-time assistant (Toomey also provided the voiceover narration on the show); Billy Barty as Inch, the bartender at Crawford's favorite nightspot; Bill Henderson as Mello, the club's blind pianist; and Shera Danese as Ace's girlfriend Luana, the singer at the club.

ACROBAT RANCH ABC

19 AUGUST 1950–12 MAY 1951 One of the first network children's shows to be aired on Saturday mornings, Acrobat Ranch was an audience participation show in which kids competed in games and stunts. Broadcast live from Chicago, the half-hour show was hosted by Jack Stillwell and featured Billy and Valerie Alberts.

ACROSS THE BOARD ABC

1 JUNE 1959–9 OCTOBER 1959 A crossword game show, hosted daily by Ted Brown.

ACROSS THE SEVEN SEAS SYNDICATED

1962 Travelogue, hosted by Jack Douglas.

ACT IT OUT NBC

20 FEBRUARY 1949–7 AUGUST 1949 Bill Cullen hosted this early game show on which a group of actors acted out a scene; a telephone call was then placed to a home viewer, who could win a prize if he or she could describe, in a single word, the nature of the scene performed.

ACTION AUTOGRAPHS ABC

24 APRIL 1949–8 JANUARY 1950 This series of interviews with celebrities and human-interest films was hosted first by Jack Brand, later by Ed Prentiss.

ACTION IN THE AFTERNOON CBS

2 FEBRUARY 1953–29 JANUARY 1954 Television's only live western was broadcast on weekday afternoons from suburban Philadelphia, though the action was set in the town of Huberle, Montana. Jack Valentine starred in the half-hour show which also featured Mary Elaine Watts and Barry Cassell. Blake Ritter was the narrator. For most of its run, the show employed a team of four writers, each of whom wrote for a week at a time. One of the crew, Hugh Best, later recalled that the program's prime ingredient was "violence—that's what it was all about—drowning, stoning, trampling, hanging, burning, impaling, and so on. It was an aptly titled show."

ACTORS HOTEL ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1951–13 MAY 1952 A situation comedy set at a boardinghouse, with William Edmunds as Carlo Corelli and Alan Dale as Uncle Antonio.

ACTORS' STUDIO ABC/CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1948–26 OCTOBER 1949 (ABC); 1 NOVEMBER 1949–31 JANUARY 1950 (CBS) One of television's earliest dramatic anthology series, Actors' Studio was broadcast live from New York. Twenty-four-year-old Marlon Brando made an extremely rare TV appearance on 9 January 1949, when he starred in "I'm No Hero." Other notable guest appearances on the half-hour show included those by Jessica Tandy ("Portrait of a Madonna," 26 September 1948); Jocelyn Brando (Marlon's sister, who starred in "The Thousand Dollar Bill" on 17 October 1948, and "A Day in Town" on 2 January 1949); Kim Hunter ("Ropes," 7 November 1948; "The Return to Kansas City," 1 November 1949); Tom Ewell ("Ropes" and "A Reputation," 7 April 1949); and Henry Jones ("The Timid Guy," 24 January 1950). See also The Play's the Thing.

ADAM SMITH'S MONEY WORLD (ADAM SMITH) PBS

1984– Half-hour weekly series which explored the top economic story of the week. The host was George J. W. Goodman, who had long used the pseudonym Adam Smith (the name of an eighteenth-century economist) in his writings. The title was shortened to Adam Smith in 1991.

THE ADAMS CHRONICLES PBS

20 JANUARY 1976–13 APRIL 1976 Thirteen-part hour-long dramatic series depicting the lives of the Massachusetts Adams family from 1750 to 1900; the Adams Papers—journals and other writings of the principals—were the primary source for the screenplays, which were written by nine veteran playwrights. The cast included George Grizzard as John Adams; Kathryn Walker and Leora Dana as Abigail Adams; W. B. Brydon as Samuel Adams; David Birney and William Daniels as John Quincy Adams; David Hooks as George Washington; Robert Symonds as Ben Franklin; Curt Dawson as John Hancock; John Houseman as Jeremiah Gridley; Peter Brandon as Henry Adams; John Beal as Charles Francis Adams; Nicholas Pryor as John Quincy Adams II; Charles Siebert as Charles Francis Adams II; and Charles Tenney as Brooks Adams. Executive producer: Jac Venza for WNET, New York.

ADAM'S RIB ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1973–28 DECEMBER 1973 A short-lived version of the 1949 Spencer Tracy–Katharine Hepburn movie comedy about two newlyweds, both lawyers. With Ken Howard as Adam Bonner, an assistant district attorney; Blythe Danner as Amanda Bonner, an associate at Kipple, Kipple & Smith; Ron Rifkin as Roy Mendelsohn, another assistant D.A.; Edward Winter as lawyer Kip Kipple; Dena Dietrich as Amanda's secretary, Grace Peterson. Most of the episodes dealt with women's rights; one hour-long special episode, adapted directly from the movie, pitted Adam and Amanda against each other in the courtroom: he prosecuting a woman who shot her wayward husband, she defending her.

ADAM-12 NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1968–26 AUGUST 1975 Jack Webb developed this successful series about two Los Angeles police officers; their patrol car identification was Adam-12. Like Webb's own Dragnet series, this one stressed authenticity, even in such details as police radio broadcasts. Typically, the officers responded to several calls during each half-hour episode, rather than dealing with just one crime (that technique would later be used to advantage in Webb's Emergency!). Starring television veteran Martin Milner as veteran officer Pete Malloy and Kent McCord (né Kent McWhirter when he was featured as one of Rick Nelson's frat pals on Ozzie and Harriet) as his rookie partner, Jim Reed. With William Boyett as Sergeant MacDonald, their commanding officer; Gary Crosby as Officer Wells; and Fred Stromsoe as Officer Woods. Created by Jack Webb and Robert A. Cinader; produced by Tom Williams. Milner and McCord were reunited in a 1989 TV-movie, "Nashville Beat," the first original film broadcast on The Nashville Network. In 1990 a new version of the series appeared in syndication: see The New Adam 12.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1964–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 A situation comedy based on the bizarre cartoon characters created by Charles Addams. For television, Addams provided his motley characters with names (they'd never had any in his cartoons), and the producers made it clear that they were basically a nuclear family. With Carolyn Jones as Morticia Addams, the macabre matriarch; John Astin as her husband, lawyer Gomez Addams; Ken Weatherwax as son Pugsley; Lisa Loring as daughter Wednesday; Jackie Coogan (sans hair and eyebrows) as Morticia's kindly Uncle Fester; six-foot-nine Ted Cassidy as the laconic Lurch, their butler, and as Thing, the hand that popped out of a box for various errands; Blossom Rock as Grandmama, Gomez's mom; Felix Silla as the amorphous Cousin Itt. Produced by David Levy and Nat Perrin. In retrospect ABC's The Addams Family seems a bit better than CBS's The Munsters, another 1964 sitcom about a family of eccentrics, although both shows lasted only two seasons. Excessive gimmickry probably helped kill them both off. Most of the cast was reassembled for a TV-movie sequel, "Halloween with the Addams Family," broadcast 30 October 1977 on NBC. Two popular theatrical films were produced in the mid-1990s, starring Raul Julia and Angelica Houston as Gomez and Morticia.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY NBC/ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–30 AUGUST 1975 (NBC); 12 SEPTEMBER 1992–7 JANUARY 1995 (ABC) Two animated versions of the 1964 series were shown on Saturday mornings. The voices of Ted Cassidy and Jackie Coogan from the original cast were used in the first, which was aired in the 1970s. Produced by Hanna-Barbera studios, the animation was actually done in England. The second season consisted entirely of reruns. The popularity of the motion picture inspired the second animated version, which aired on ABC from 1992 to 1995.

ADDERLY CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1986–3 AUGUST 1988 One of several series made in Canada for CBS's late-night schedule, this one starred Winston Rekert as V. H. Adderly, a spy assigned to his agency's "Miscellaneous Affairs" bureau after an injury to his left hand. Oddly enough, the low-priority assignments given to Adderly always turned out to be major cases. Also on hand were Jonathan Welsh as his officious boss, Melville Greenspan; Dixie Seatle as Greenspan's secretary, Mona Ellerbee; and Ken Pogue as Major Clack. Elliott Baker created the series.

ADLAI STEVENSON REPORTS ABC

1 OCTOBER 1961–26 MAY 1963 One of the few television programs "starring" a top government official (Meet the Veep was another), this Sunday-afternoon series focused on international issues and on the United Nations in particular; Adlai Stevenson was the United States representative to the UN at the time. Arnold Michaelis, who coproduced the Peabody Award–winning series with Stanley A. Frankel, served as host.

THE AD-LIBBERS CBS

3 AUGUST 1951–1 SEPTEMBER 1951 A five-week summer replacement for Mama, on which a celebrity panel ad-libbed to suggestions supplied by home viewers. Hosted by Peter Donald, the celebrity panel included Jack Lemmon and Cynthia Stone, who would later star together in Heavens to Betsy.

THE ADMIRAL BROADWAY REVUE NBC and DUMONT

28 JANUARY 1949–3 JUNE 1949 A Friday-night variety hour, The Admiral Broadway Revue held the exceedingly rare distinction of having been broadcast on two networks simultaneously. More importantly, it was the start of the television career of a twenty-seven-year-old comedian named Sid Caesar. The show was produced by Max Liebman, who had previously worked with Caesar and who would later produce Caesar's Your Show of Shows. Other regulars on The Admiral Broadway Revue included Imogene Coca, Mary McCarty, Marge and Gower Champion, Bobby Van, and Tom Avera. Charles Sanford conducted the orchestra. The format of the show was similar to that of Your Show of Shows, relying heavily on monologues and satires of movies and plays. Its sponsor, Admiral, was a major manufacturer of television sets. See also Your Show of Shows.

ADVENTURE CBS
10 MAY 1953–8 JULY 1956 An educational series for children produced by CBS in conjunction with the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It was hosted first by Mike Wallace, later by Charles Collingwood. Produced by Perry Wolff.

ADVENTURE PBS
1987–1991 Hour series of independently produced documentaries on modern-day explorers and globetrotters. The series premiered with an account of Dodge Morgan's solo sail around the world, and later took viewers on such adventures as a walk across Antarctica, the search for the yeti, and a recreation of Captain Bligh's voyage after being thrown off H. M. S. Bounty.

ADVENTURE AT SCOTT ISLAND
See HARBOURMASTER

ADVENTURE CALLS SYNDICATED
1966 Richard Simmons (better known as TV's Sergeant Preston) hosted this nonfiction series about modern-day adventurers.

ADVENTURE THEATRE NBC
16 JUNE 1956–1 SEPTEMBER 1956 A summer replacement for Your Hit Parade, it consisted of half-hour dramas filmed in England. Hosted by Paul Douglas, the series was rerun the following summer.

THE ADVENTURER SYNDICATED
1972 In this half-hour series filmed in Europe, Gene Barry starred as Steve Bradley, an international movie star who moonlights as a spy. With Barry Morse as Parminter, Bradley's contact man.

THE ADVENTURERS SYNDICATED
1966 European import about two journalists, with Edward Meeks and Yves Renier.

ADVENTURES IN JAZZ CBS
22 JANUARY 1949–24 JUNE 1949 Prime-time jazz music program, hosted by Fred Robbins. Robert L. Bach was the producer, Ralph Levy the director.

ADVENTURES IN PARADISE ABC
5 OCTOBER 1959–1 APRIL 1962 Handsome Gardner McKay, a virtual unknown (he'd done the syndicated Boots and Saddles), sailed to stardom as Adam Troy in this 20th Century-Fox adventure hour set in the South Pacific and based very loosely on James Michener's book. Troy was captain of the Tiki, an 85-foot schooner which plied the warm waters of the South Pacific. Assisting him from time to time were James Holden as Clay Baker, Troy's first mate for the first two seasons (Baker got a job at the Bali Maki Hotel as the third season began); Guy Stockwell (1961–1962) as Chris Parker, the new first mate; Linda Lawson (1959–1960) as Renée, owner of Renée's Bar in Tahiti; Weaver Levy (1959–1960) as Oliver Kee; Henry Slate (1959–1960) as Bulldog Lovey; George Tobias (1959–1961) as Penrose; Sondi Sodsai, Miss Thailand of 1960 (1960–1961), as Sondi; Marcel Hillaire (1960–1962) as Inspector Bouchard; and Lani Kai (1960–1962) as Kelly. Barbara Steele, who starred in several European horror films during the 1960s, made a rare American TV appearance on one episode, "Daughter of Illusion," broadcast 12 December 1960. The first network show set in the South Pacific, Adventures in Paradise was one of the few successful series set outside the United States. Its success seems to have done little for Gardner McKay, however, whose television appearances since 1962 have been infrequent; McKay has since turned his talents to writing.

THE ADVENTURES OF BLACK BEAUTY SYNDICATED
1972 Anna Sewell's classic book was the basis for a story made into a limited series of half-hour programs, produced in Great Britain. With Judi Bowker as Vicky Gordon; Roderick Shaw as her brother Kevin; William Lucas as their father James Gordon; and Tom Maidea as Albert.

THE ADVENTURES OF BRISCO COUNTY, JR. FOX
27 AUGUST 1993—28 AUGUST 1994 Bruce Campbell played the title role in this lighthearted hour western. Brisco was a Harvard-educated bounty hunter tracking down the bad guys who had killed his dad, Brisco County, Sr. Also on hand were Christian Clemenson as Brisco's sometime sidekick, attorney Socrates Poole; Julius Carry as fellow bounty hunter Lord Bowler; John Astin as the wacky inventor, Professor Wickwire; Kelly Rutherford as comely saloon girl Dixie Cousins; Billy Drago as villain John Bly; and John Pyper-Ferguson as Pete Hutter. Although the series was critically hailed, it never found a sizable audience in its usual Friday night slot.

THE ADVENTURES OF CHAMPION CBS
30 SEPTEMBER 1955–3 FEBRUARY 1956 This half-hour children's western was produced by Gene Autry's Flying A Productions, and its central character was Champion, Autry's horse. The human parts were played by Barry Curtis as twelve-year-old Ricky North and Jim Bannon as Uncle Sandy; a German shepherd named Rebel was also featured. The series, which was scheduled opposite ABC's Rin Tin Tin, was replaced in midseason by another kids' horse opera, My Friend Flicka.

THE ADVENTURES OF FALCON SYNDICATED
1955 A television version of the espionage series which began on radio in 1945. Charles McGraw starred as Mike Waring, an American agent whose code name was The Falcon.

THE ADVENTURES OF MARK & BRIAN NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1991–17 NOVEMBER 1991 Another of the many series which was slotted in a "black hole" in NBC's schedule—Sundays at 7, opposite CBS's perennial powerhouse 60 Minutes—this one gave well-known Los Angeles deejays Mark Thompson and Brian Phelps the opportunity to live out some of their fantasies, such as firefighting, broadcasting a pro football game, arranging someone else's wedding, or performing onstage with the Temptations. After eleven weeks on TV, Mark and Brian were back on radio.

THE ADVENTURES OF RAGGEDY ANN AND ANDY CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1988–1 SEPTEMBER 1990; 3 AUGUST 1991–7 SEPTEMBER 1991 Seventy years after their literary creation, Raggedy Ann and her pals came to Saturday-morning television in cartoon form. Joining Ann were Raggedy Andy, Raggedy Cat, Raggedy Dog, The Camel with Wrinkled Knees, Kracklin the Wizard, and others, who left Marcella's bedroom to go on various adventures. Reruns were hastily inserted in the summer of 1991 following the sudden cancellation of Pee-Wee's Playhouse.

THE ADVOCATES PBS

5 OCTOBER 1969–23 MAY 1974; 26 JANUARY 1978–9 SEPTEMBER 1979 One of PBS's most popular public affairs programs, The Advocates was essentially a series of debates (usually live) on topical issues. Each week two speakers, espousing opposite points of view, presented their respective "cases" for or against the proposition at issue and could call "witnesses" to "testify" on their behalf. On many shows during the early 1970s the two sides were taken by Howard Miller, a law professor of liberal bent, and William Rusher, a conservative associated with the National Review. Michael Dukakis, who was elected governor of Massachusetts in 1974 and would run for president in 1988, frequently moderated the series in its first years. The show was the brainchild of Roger Fisher, a professor of international law at Harvard, and was seen locally in Boston before going network in 1969. It was produced by both KCET, Los Angeles, and WGBH, Boston. Early in 1978 the show returned on a biweekly basis with Marilyn Berger as moderator.

AFRICAN PATROL SYNDICATED
1959 John Bentley starred as Inspector Paul Derek of the African Patrol, a modern-day police force, in this adventure series filmed on location in Kenya.

THE AFRICANS PBS
7 OCTOBER 1986–2 DECEMBER 1986 A nine-part exploration of African cultures and institutions, hosted by Kenyan-born political scientist Ali A. Mazrui.

AFTER HOURS SYNDICATED
1989–1990 A fast-paced half-hour daily magazine show, intended for late-night access time slots. Heidi Bohay (late of Hotel) and John Majhor were the principal correspondents.

AfterMASH CBS
26 SEPTEMBER 1983–18 DECEMBER 1984 Described in the credits as "a continuation of *M*A*S*H,*" this half-hour sitcom followed three members of the *M*A*S*H* crew—Colonel Potter, Corporal Klinger, and Father Mulcahy—as they returned to the United States after the Korean War. All three joined the staff of General John J. Pershing Veterans Memorial Hospital (better known as General General) in River Bend, Missouri. Repeating their *M*A*S*H* roles were: Harry Morgan as Colonel Sherman Potter, who became chief of staff; Jamie Farr as Max Klinger, who quit the army but signed on as Potter's administrative assistant; and William Christopher as Father Francis Mulcahy, who became the hospital chaplain. Other regulars included Rosalind Chao (who had appeared in the last episodes of *M*A*S*H*) as Max's Korean wife, Soon-Lee Klinger, doing her best to adjust to the American life-style; Barbara Townsend (1983–1984) and Anne Pitoniak (fall 1984) as Sherman's wife, Mildred Potter; Jay O. Sanders (to January 1984) as Dr. Gene Pfeiffer, a surgical resident; John Chappell as Mike D'Angelo, General General's glory-hunting administrator; Brandis Kemp as Mike's assistant (and Klinger's nemesis), officious Alma Cox; Wendy Schaal as Alma's secretary, Bonnie Hornback; and David Ackroyd (January 1984– ) as Dr. Boyer. AfterMASH got off to an excellent start in the fall of 1983; it was the first series premiere since Laverne and Shirley to top the ratings in its first week. The series ranked fifteenth overall in the 1983–1984 ratings race, and was renewed. Second-season ratings proved disappointing, however, and the show was one of the first casualties of the 1984–1985 season.

AGAINST ALL ODDS NBC
19 APRIL 1992–19 JULY 1992 Lindsay Wagner and Everett McGill cohosted this reality-based prime-time series, which documented persons, and occasionally animals, who had triumphed over adversity.

AGAINST THE GRAIN NBC
1 OCTOBER 1993–12 NOVEMBER 1993; 17 DECEMBER 1993–24 DECEMBER 1993; 15 JULY 1994 Sumpter, Texas—a town where people took their high school football seriously—was the backdrop for this hour continuing drama. The cast included John Terry as Ed Clemons, the former star quarterback who was named coach of the Mustangs when his predecessor suddenly departed; Donna Bullock as his wife, Maggie Clemons; Ben Affleck as their sixteen-year-old son, Joe Willie; Robyn Lively as their college age daughter, Jill; Vanessa Lee Evigan as their eleven-year-old daughter, Jenny; Stephen Tobolowsky as auto dealer and Booster Club head Niles Hardeman; Jeanine Jackson as his wife, Mindy Hardeman; Michael Cudlitz as their son, Bud; Derek McGrath as Abel; and Wayne Knight as Froggy Wilson.

AGAINST THE LAW FOX

23 SEPTEMBER 1990–12 APRIL 1991 Hour crime show, filmed on location in Boston, starring Michael O'Keefe as maverick attorney Simon MacHeath, who left a stodgy firm to set up his own practice. With Elizabeth Ruscio as his secretary, Elizabeth Verhagen; Suzzanne Douglas as his assistant, Yvette; M. C. Gainey as "Miggsy" Meigs, who lived on a fishing boat and was MacHeath's occasional leg man; and Barbara Williams as Phoebe, Simon's ex-wife.

AN AGE OF KINGS SYNDICATED

1961 A limited series of William Shakespeare's historical plays (e.g., Richard II, Richard III, Henry IV, Henry V, and Henry VI), which were produced in England and performed by the BBC Repertory Company. Introductions for the American telecasts were presented by Dr. Frank Baxter. The series won a Peabody Award in 1962.

AGRONSKY & CO. SYNDICATED

1976–1988 Veteran newsman Martin Agronsky hosted this weekly news program after anchoring Martin Agronsky: Evening Edition. The series was aired on the Post-Newsweek commercial stations as well as on many PBS outlets. See also Inside Washington.

AIR POWER CBS

11 NOVEMBER 1956–5 MAY 1957 CBS's answer to NBC's successful documentary series Victory at Sea, Air Power was a twenty-six-week series of documentaries about aviation. Because producers Perry Wolff and Jim Faichney were able to obtain rare German and captured Japanese film, there was emphasis on aerial warfare during World War II. Walter Cronkite was the principal narrator; Winston Churchill and Michael Redgrave served as guest narrators for the "Battle of Britain" segment. The series was rerun in 1958 as a summer replacement for The Twentieth Century.

AIR TIME '57 ABC

27 DECEMBER 1956–4 APRIL 1957 Half-hour Thursday-night musical series hosted by Vaughn Monroe. Sponsored by the United States Air Force Reserve.

AIRFLYTE THEATRE (NASH AIRFLYTE THEATRE) CBS

21 SEPTEMBER 1950–15 MARCH 1951 Undistinguished half-hour dramatic anthology series, seen on Thursdays. Typical episodes included: "A Double-Eyed Deceiver," with Van Heflin (21 September); "Waltz Dream," with Kitty Carlisle (4 January); and "Peggy," with Joan Bennett (8 February). William Gaxton was the host.

AIRWOLF CBS/USA

22 JANUARY 1984–23 JULY 1986 (CBS); 29 SEPTEMBER 1986–2 OCTOBER 1988 (USA) One of two 1984 dramatic series about helicopters (see also Blue Thunder), this one starred Jan-Michael Vincent as Stringfellow Hawke, a cello-playing loner who was persuaded by the government to leave his mountain home and recapture the Airwolf, a superhelicopter that had been spirited to Libya by its demented designer; Hawke succeeded in his mission, but refused to turn Airwolf back to the government, forcing the latter to keep its promise to find the whereabouts of Hawke's brother, missing in action in Vietnam. Also featured were Alex Cord as Michael Archangel, the government liaison, and Ernest Borgnine as Hawke's old pal and copilot, Dominic Santini. The Airwolf, which Hawke took out of hiding occasionally to perform a mission for the government, carried an array of fourteen weapons systems and could fly at the speed of sound. Occasionally featured was Deborah Pratt as Marella, an agent of The Firm, the government agency that enlisted Hawke's services (Pratt was married to series creator Donald Bellisario). In the fall of 1984 Jean Bruce Scott joined the cast as helicopter pilot Caitlin O'Shanessy.

The USA Cable Network acquired the series in 1986 and introduced new episodes, with an entirely new cast, beginning in January 1987. Stringfellow Hawke and Dominic Santini had been killed off; replacing them were Barry Van Dyke as Stringfellow's long-lost brother, St. John Hawke, and Michele Scarabelli as Dominic's niece, Jo Santini. Other new regulars included Anthony Sherwood as Jason Locke, the new government liaison, and Geraint Wyn Davies as Major Mike Rivers.

THE AL PEARCE SHOW CBS

Daytime: 11 FEBRUARY 1952–9 MAY 1952; 30 JUNE 1952–26 SEPTEMBER 1952; Nighttime: 3 JULY 1952–4 SEPTEMBER 1952 Comedian Al Pearce's first television show was a forty-five-minute daytime variety series, which was broadcast live from Hollywood. His second daytime series and his prime-time half-hour show, which replaced The Burns and Allen Show for the summer, both originated from New York. Pearce's best-remembered character is probably Elmer Blurt, the bumbling door-to-door salesman.

ALADDIN CBS/SYNDICATED

17 SEPTEMBER 1994– (CBS); 1994– (SYNDICATED) Based on the popular Disney animated feature film, this cartoon series featured Aladdin, The Genie, Princess Jasmine, the monkey Abu, and the parrot Iago. It could be seen on CBS's Saturday morning schedule and in first-run syndication on weekdays, where it was part of the two-hour Disney Afternoon cartoon block.

THE ALAN BURKE SHOW SYNDICATED

1966 Talk show with the accent on the sensational, presided over by the acerbic Alan Burke. Burke and Joe Pyne were probably the best-known practitioners of this peculiar talk show subcategory, which relied more on a steady flow of crackpots (who were of course subject to vicious personal attack by the host) for its guests than on showbiz personalities. See also The Joe Pyne Show. Two decades later the confrontational cudgel was again taken up in the talk show format: see The Morton Downey, Jr., Show. Burke surfaced in 1988 on an episode of Wiseguy, playing a controversial talk show host who was murdered.

THE ALAN YOUNG SHOW CBS

6 APRIL 1950–27 MARCH 1952; 15 FEBRUARY 1953–21 JUNE 1953 One of television's earliest stars, comedian and mime Alan Young first hosted a Thursday-night variety show that featured Polly Bergen. Early in 1953 he returned in a Sunday-night slot, which he shared biweekly with Ken Murray. This effort was a situation comedy which featured Mabel Paige. After doing a British variety series in 1958, Young resurfaced in 1961 with Mister Ed. When Mister Ed folded in 1965, Young left show business to become active in the Christian Science church; he returned to television in the late 1980s: see Coming of Age and Ducktales.

THE ALASKANS ABC

4 OCTOBER 1959–25 SEPTEMBER 1960 One of the many Warner Brothers adventure series, this was set in Alaska during the Gold Rush of 1898 (as the theme song went, "Got the fever, got the fever—gold fever!"). With Roger Moore as Silky Harris; Dorothy Provine as Rocky Shaw; and Jeff York (he'd played Mike Fink on the Davy Crockett episodes of Disneyland) as Reno McKee.

THE ALCOA HOUR/ALCOA THEATRE NBC

14 OCTOBER 1955–19 SEPTEMBER 1960 This dramatic anthology series alternated with Goodyear Theatre during its five-season run. Four Star Films produced both series. The Alcoa Hour, the first of several dramatic series sponsored by the aluminum company, was shown on Sunday nights during the 1955–1956 and 1956–1957 seasons. In 1957 a thirty-minute format was adopted, and Alcoa Theatre was seen on Mondays for the next three seasons. Among the major stars who appeared were Laurence Harvey (in his first major TV role, "The Small Servant," 30 October 1955), Charles Boyer (three appearances), Jack Lemmon (four), David Niven (four), Jane Powell (two), and Robert Ryan (four).

ALCOA PREMIERE ABC

10 OCTOBER 1961–12 SEPTEMBER 1963 Dramatic anthology series hosted by Fred Astaire. Most segments were one hour, although there were some half-hour shows. Episodes included: "People Need People," with Arthur Kennedy and Lee Marvin (10 October 1961); "The Jail," with John Gavin (his first major TV role, 6 February 1962); and "The Voice of Charlie Pont," with Diana Hyland and Robert Redford (25 October 1962; Redford's only Emmy nomination was for this performance).

THE ALDRICH FAMILY NBC

2 OCTOBER 1949–29 MAY 1953 A favorite on radio since the late 1930s, The Aldrich Family was NBC's first successful television sitcom. Five actors played typical American teenager Henry Aldrich on TV: Bob Casey (1949–1950), Richard Tyler (1950–1951), Henry Girard (1951–1952), Kenneth Nelson (spring 1952), and Bobby Ellis (1952–1953). Also featured were House Jameson (the only member of the original radio cast to make the transition to TV) as his father, Sam; Lois Wilson (1949–1950), Nancy Carroll (1950–1951), Lois Wilson (again), and Barbara Robbins (1951–1953) as his mother, Alice ("Henry! Henry Aldrich!"); Charita Bauer (1949–1950), Mary Malone (1950–1952), and June Dayton (1952–1953) as his sister, Mary; Jackie Kelk (1949–1951), Robert Barry (1951–1952), and Jackie Grimes (1952–1953) as his best friend, Homer Brown; and Loretta Leversee (1952–1953) as his girlfriend, Eleanor. Paul Newman, in one of his earliest TV roles, also appeared occasionally during the 1952–1953 season. The series was created and written by Clifford Goldsmith (the characters first appeared in his play, What A Life!), produced and directed by Roger Kay.

ALF NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1986–18 JUNE 1990 NBC had tried a sitcom with a talking orangutan three years earlier; Mr. Smith was a bomb. Three years later it introduced a sitcom with a talking alien; ALF became a hit. ALF—an acronym for Alien Life Form—was a wisecracking, fur-covered, diminutive 229-year-old from the planet Melmac (where he was known as Gordon Shumway) who, like filmdom's E. T., crashed into a suburban garage and was taken in by a suburban family. Always trying to gobble up his hosts' pet cat, ALF settled into a life of domesticity, commenting wryly on American culture. The human roles were played by Max Wright as Willie Tanner; Anne Schedeen as his wife, Kate; Andrea Elson as their daughter, Lynn; Benji Gregory as their son, Brian; and John LaMotta and Liz Sheridan as next-door neighbors Trevor and Raquel Ochmonek. Josh Blake was seen during the 1988–1989 season as the Tanners' cousin, Jake; at the end of the season the Tanner family celebrated a new arrival, baby Eric (played by J. R. and Charles Nickerson). Occasionally featured during the 1989–1990 season was Jm J. Bullock as Willie's brother, Neal. Paul Fusco, who created the series with Tom Patchett, provided ALF's voice. The show's producers attempted to keep secret the means by which ALF moved, but it was revealed that a midget, Michu Meszaros, donned the ALF costume for walking scenes; stationary scenes were performed by a puppet.

In the last first-run show of the 1989–1990 season (24 March), which was taped before the producers knew of the series's fate for the next season, ALF was invited to join two of his Melmackian cohorts, Skip and Rhonda, and to colonize another planet (Melmac having been destroyed). On his way to rendezvous with their spacecraft, after an emotional farewell to the Tanner clan, ALF was captured by a federal military investigative unit.

The series spawned not one, but two, Saturday morning cartoon series, ALF and ALF Tales. See below.

ALF NBC
26 SEPTEMBER 1987–25 AUGUST 1990
ALF TALES NBC
16 SEPTEMBER 1989–25 AUGUST 1990 After one season in prime time, ALF came to NBC's Saturday morning lineup in cartoon form. The animated series focused on the earlier years of ALF's life on his home planet, Melmac; known there as Gordon Shumway, he was a 193-year-old high school graduate who lived at home with his folks, Flo and Bob, his brother, Curtis, and his kid sister, Augie. In the fall of 1988 the series expanded to an hour and added a new segment, "ALF Tales," which featured spoofs of fairy tales, movies, and other works. In the fall of 1989 ALF Tales became a separate series.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS/THE ALFRED HITCHCOCK HOUR CBS/NBC
2 OCTOBER 1955–25 SEPTEMBER 1960 (CBS); 27 SEPTEMBER 1960–18 SEPTEMBER 1962 (NBC); 20 SEPTEMBER 1962–18 SEPTEMBER 1964 (CBS); 5 OCTOBER 1964–6 SEPTEMBER 1965 (NBC) Alfred Hitchcock, who had been directing films for three decades by 1955, entered television that fall as host of a half-hour anthology series of mysteries and melodramas. At the beginning of each episode Hitchcock's silhouette was seen filling the famous line drawing of his profile. The camera would then pan to Hitchcock himself, who would introduce the evening's story with a few well-chosen witty remarks; the set on which he appeared either bore a connection to the plot or was a spoof of a popular commercial. The opening remarks (which were filmed in French and German as well as English) typically ended with a barb at the sponsor; all were written by James Allardice. After the inevitable commercial, the episode ran. Suspense and surprise endings were the trademarks of the series. Hitchcock reappeared at the end of each show, sometimes to tie up loose ends, sometimes to assure viewers that the killer had been apprehended ("a necessary gesture to morality," as Hitchcock told TV Guide). In 1962 the show returned to CBS, expanded to one hour, and was retitled The Alfred Hitchcock Hour. Although Hitchcock hosted every episode, he directed only twenty of the several hundred shows. Between 1957 and 1959 several episodes were directed by Robert Altman, who went on to direct such notable films as *M*A*S*H* and Nashville. Among the many stars who made multiple appearances over the ten-year run of the series were Barbara Baxley (six appearances), Barbara Bel Geddes (four), Pat Collinge (six), Mildred Dunnock (four), Robert H. Harris (eight), Paul Hartman (five), Robert Horton (five), Henry Jones (four), Brian Keith (five), Hugh Marlowe (four), Ralph Meeker (four), Gary Merrill (seven), Claude Rains (four), Gena Rowlands (four), Phyllis Thaxter (eight), Cara Williams (four), and Dick York (five). Other notable guest appearances included those by Cloris Leachman ("Premonition," 9 October 1955), Joanne Woodward ("Momentum," 24 May 1956), Steve McQueen ("Human Interest Story," 24 May 1959; Peter Lorre ("Man from the South," 3 January 1960), Michael J. Pollard ("Anniversary Gift," 1 November 1959, his first major TV role), Dick Van Dyke ("Craig's Will," 6 March 1960), Judy Canova ("Party Line," 29 May 1960, her first TV dramatic appearance), Robert Redford ("The Right Kind of Medicine," 19

December 1961; "A Piece of the Action," 20 September 1962), Katharine Ross ("The Dividing Wall," 6 December 1963), and Peter Fonda ("The Return of Verge Likens," 5 October 1964). One episode, "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," included in the syndicated package of reruns, was never shown on network television. It featured Brandon De Wilde as a retarded youngster who, after watching a magician, accidentally sawed someone in half; the network felt that Hitchcock's concluding remarks were insufficient to "save" the show.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS NBC/USA

29 SEPTEMBER 1985–20 JULY 1986 (NBC); 1987–1988 (USA) Surely Alfred Hitchcock would have been morbidly pleased to know that, five years after his death, he would return to television. On this half-hour mystery anthology series colorized versions of Hitchcock's introductions and conclusions from his old series were now wrapped around new stories, some of which were remakes of original Hitchcock shows. The show was given the go-ahead following the 5 May 1985 telecast on NBC of a two-hour telefilm which presented four updated classic Hitchcock episodes (together with a colorized Hitchcock): "Incident in a Small Jail," with Ned Beatty; "The Man from the South," with John Huston, Tippi Hedren (star of Hitchcock's The Birds), and Melanie Griffith (Hedren's daughter); "Bang! You're Dead," with Bianca Rose and Billy Mumy (who had played the lead in the original telecast); and "An Unlocked Window," with Annette O'Toole. New episodes were produced for the USA Cable Network during the 1987–1988 season; reruns were shown on USA through September 1991.

ALIAS SMITH AND JONES ABC

21 JANUARY 1971–13 JANUARY 1973 A breezy western featuring two outlaws who tried to earn amnesty for themselves by assuming new identities and going straight for a year ("Only you and me and the governor'll know!"). With Peter Duel (he'd spelled his last name Deuel on Love on a Rooftop) as Hannibal Heyes, alias Joshua Smith; Ben Murphy as Kid Curry, alias Thaddeus Jones. On 30 December 1971, Duel shot and killed himself after watching the show at his home. He was replaced by Roger Davis on 3 February 1972.

ALICE CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1976–10 NOVEMBER 1982; 9 JANUARY 1983–19 MARCH 1985; 18 JUNE–2 JULY 1985 Based on the 1975 movie Alice Doesn't Live Here Any More, this half-hour sitcom proved to be one of the most durable programs of its time. Set in Phoenix, it starred Linda Lavin as Alice Hyatt, a recently widowed woman who settled there with her twelve-year-old son. Hoping to become a singer, she took a "temporary" job as a waitress at a diner. Also featured were Vic Tayback (repeating his film role) as her boss, crusty Mel Sharples, owner of Mel's Diner; Philip McKeon as Alice's son, Tommy Hyatt; Beth Howland as Vera Gorman, a mousy, scatterbrained waitress; and Marvin Kaplan (1978–1985) as one of Mel's regular customers, Henry Beesmyer, a telephone lineman. Polly Holliday (1976–1980) was featured as Florence Jean "Flo" Castleberry, a brassy, man-hungry waitress, but in the spring of 1980 she left to star in a spinoff (see Flo), and Diane Ladd joined the cast; ironically, Ladd had played Flo in the movie, but on TV she appeared as Belle Dupree, another brassy blonde Southerner hired by Mel to wait on tables. By the time Ladd left the series in the spring of 1981, Celia Weston had been added as the new new waitress, Jolene Hunnicutt. Dave Madden also began to appear regularly as Earl Hicks, Alice's sometime boyfriend and young Tommy's basketball coach. In the fall of 1982 Martha Raye, who had guest-starred previously, became a regular as Mel's mother, Carrie. In the fall of 1983 Vera met and married Elliot Novak (played by Charles Levin), a cop who had cited her for jaywalking. For the series's final season (1984–1985), Michael Durrell joined the cast as Alice's new beau, Nicholas Stone. In Alice's 202nd–and final–episode, Mel sold the diner as Alice, after waitressing "temporarily" for nine years, finally found a gig as a singer.

THE ALICE PEARCE SHOW ABC

28 JANUARY 1949–11 MARCH 1949 Alice Pearce, who would later become famous as Gladys Kravitz, the suspicious neighbor on Bewitched, broke into television with her own fifteen-minute musical show, broadcast 9:45 on Friday evenings. Accompanied by pianist and songwriter Mark Lawrence, she sang such novelty numbers as "I'm in Love with a Coaxial Cable." (The coaxial cable, of course, was the principal means by which television signals were then transmitted from city to city.)

ALIEN NATION FOX

18 SEPTEMBER 1989–17 SEPTEMBER 1990 Based on the 1988 motion picture, this hour cop show was set in Los Angeles in 1995, where a cop was teamed up with a new partner: a refugee from another galaxy, one of 300,000 newly arrived aliens trying to assimilate themselves into American society while coping with the prejudice they encountered; the allegory to contemporary race relations was obvious. Though the aliens were of human form, they were easy to spot because of their bald heads and mottled, elongated skulls; they also required three for sex, and found sour milk intoxicating. The cast included Gary Graham as the human cop, Matthew Sikes; Eric Pierpoint as his new partner, George Francisco; Michele Scarabelli as George's wife, Susan; Lauren Woodland as their daughter, Emily; Sean Six as their son, Buck; and Terri Treas as Matthew's alien neighbor Cathy, a biochemist with whom he became involved. Fox reran the series during the summer of 1991, and broadcast a TV-movie featuring many of the series regulars, "Alien Nation: Dark Horizon," on 25 October 1994.

ALIVE FROM OFF-CENTER PBS

1 JULY 1985– The umbrella title for a wide-ranging series of performances, veering toward the avant-garde. The series is broadcast during the summer. It was retitled Alive TV in 1992.

ALKALI IKE CBS

17 APRIL 1950–11 MAY 1950 A fifteen-minute puppet show with a western theme, Alkali Ike was seen after the evening news once or twice a week. Ventriloquist Al Robinson was assisted by Beverly Fite and the Slim Jackson Quartet. Barry Wood produced the series.

ALL ABOARD CBS

19 OCTOBER 1952–11 JANUARY 1953 Fifteen-minute interview show hosted by Skeets Minton.

ALL ABOUT FACES SYNDICATED

1971 Richard Hayes hosted this lackluster game show, similar in format to Gene Rayburn's The Amateur's Guide to Love and similar in title to Ben Alexander's About Faces. On this one, celebrity pairs were shown brief film sequences and tried to predict their outcome.

ALL AROUND THE TOWN CBS

18 JUNE 1951–7 AUGUST 1952 Hosted by Mike Wallace and Buff Cobb (his then wife), this half-hour series examined goings-on in New York City. Originally seen three afternoons a week, the show moved to prime time in November 1951.

ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL PBS/A&E

1979 (PBS); 4 FEBRUARY 1988–7 APRIL 1988 (A&E); 11 JUNE 1989–27 AUGUST 1989 (A&E) This series was based on James Herriot's delightful tale of his life as a veterinarian in Yorkshire. Christopher Timothy portrayed Herriot on the series, which was produced in England by the BBC.

ALL IN THE FAMILY (ARCHIE BUNKER'S PLACE) CBS

12 JANUARY 1971–21 SEPTEMBER 1983 Because of its impact on American audiences and on the style of television comedy, All in the Family is perhaps the single most influential program in the history of broadcasting. In terms of production techniques, the series added nothing new; in some ways it represented a return to the old days of television: one basic set, a small cast, and little reliance on guest stars. I Love Lucy, TV's first smash hit sitcom, was the first to be filmed before a live audience; All in the Family was the first sitcom to be videotaped, and, unlike the vast majority of sitcoms of the 1960s, it was performed before a live audience.

It was in story development and character treatment that All in the Family broke new ground. It was the first situation comedy to deal openly with bigotry, prejudice, and politics. "Hot" issues such as abortion, birth control, mate-swapping, menopause, and homosexuality were handled successfully on the show. "Taboo" words, such as "spic," "hebe," and "spade" were uttered. And throughout it all, audiences laughed. The show's immense popularity with all segments of the population demonstrated that it had broad appeal and indicated that American audiences of the 1970s were sophisticated enough to appreciate well-produced, well-written, and well-acted topical comedy. Studies showed that, by 1973, the face of central character Archie Bunker was the most widely recognized in America; phrases such as "Stifle yourself!" "Dingbat!" and "Meathead!" were part of the American vocabulary.

The men responsible for All in the Family were Norman Lear and his partner Alan "Bud" Yorkin, two motion picture producer-directors with considerable television experience. Lear had been a comedy writer in the early 1950s, then a director, and later a producer ("The TV Guide Awards Show" in 1962, "Henry Fonda and the Family" in 1963, The Andy Williams Show in 1965–1966); Yorkin had directed many shows at NBC (including The Colgate Comedy Hour, The Dinah Shore Show, The Tony Martin Show, Tennessee Ernie Ford, and The George Gobel Show) and directed and produced Fred Astaire's 1958 and 1959 specials. Together or separately during the 1960s they made such films as Come Blow Your Horn (Lear producer, Yorkin director), Never Too Late (Yorkin director), Divorce American Style (Lear producer, Yorkin director), and The Night They Raided Minsky's (Lear producer).

All in the Family was on the drawing board as early as 1968, shortly after Lear learned of a hit series on British television, Till Death Us Do Part. Created by Johnny Speight, it told of a British family of modest means, with bigoted father and live-in son-in-law. Lear bought the American rights to the series, wrote a script, and convinced ABC to finance a pilot. With Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton in the lead roles, a pilot was made; the show was called Those Were the Days. But ABC, unhappy with the concept even after a second pilot, let its option lapse. CBS executives then saw the pilot, and the network grabbed the series. Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers were brought in for the supporting roles as production began. At 9:30 P.M. (EST) on Tuesday, January 12, 1971, the show premiered. It was prefaced by an announcement: "The program you are about to see is All in the Family. It seeks to throw a humorous spotlight on our frailties, prejudices, and concerns. By making them a source of laughter we hope to show—in a mature fashion—just how absurd they are."

Those who watched the premiere (it was fifty-fourth in the weekly Nielsen ratings) apparently liked what they saw and told their friends. By summer, the show was number one. In the fall it was moved to Saturdays at 8 P.M., the slot it occupied for the next four seasons. It was there that America learned to love the people of All in the Family.

Carroll O'Connor, a character actor of much experience but little previous recognition, caught Lear's eye when he appeared in a 1968 film, What Did You Do in the War, Daddy? Lear was certain that O'Connor would be just right for the role of Archie Bunker, a bigoted, right-wing, lower-middle-class, high-school-educated, white Protestant with a tendency to run off at the mouth. Archie lived in Queens (704 Hauser Street) with his wife, daughter, and son-in-law, and until 1976 worked as a loading dock foreman at Prendergast Tool and Die Company. As O'Connor explained his role to TV Guide, "Archie's dilemma is coping with a world that is changing in front of him. . . . But he won't get to the root of the problem because the root of the problem is himself, and he doesn't know it."

Jean Stapleton, also a relatively unheralded character player, was well known to Lear and Yorkin. As Archie's devoted wife, Edith Bunker, she was patient, tolerant, even-tempered, and honest, though perhaps a bit confused at times. Unlike Archie, Edith was able to cope with the changes that life brings.

Two virtual unknowns filled out the main cast. Sally Struthers, with brief TV comedy experience from the Smothers Brothers' 1970 summer show and Tim Conway's 1970 fall series, played the Bunkers' only child, Gloria, who, though liberal in outlook, loved her parents. She worked part-time as a salesclerk to help support her husband, Mike Stivic. Rob Reiner, son of Carl Reiner, one of television's most creative funny people, played Mike, a student with a big appetite and a big mouth. Vocally liberal, he enjoyed baiting Archie. As the series progressed, Mike finally finished college and got a job as an instructor. He and Gloria then moved next door and had a baby; little Joey Stivic (played by Jason Draeger, and later by Cory Miller) was born in January 1976 (a 1976 episode caused some consternation at the network when it showed Archie changing a naked baby boy).

Other principal characters over the seasons included: Michael Evans (to January 1975) as Lionel Jefferson, Mike and Gloria's black friend; Isabel Sanford (who first appeared on 2 March 1971 and became a regular in 1972) as Louise Jefferson, Lionel's mom; Mel Stewart (1972–1974) as Henry Jefferson, Lionel's uncle; and Sherman Hemsley (1974–January 1975) as George Jefferson, Lionel's dad. In January 1975 the Jeffersons, who had become the Bunkers' next-door neighbors, moved out of the neighborhood and into their own series. In 1973 Betty Garrett and Vincent Gardenia joined the cast as Irene and Frank Lorenzo, the Bunkers' other next-door neighbors. Gardenia left after one season, Garrett after three. In the fall of 1976 the Bunkers rented out their now spare bedroom (the kids having moved into the Jeffersons' old house) for the season to Teresa Betancourt (played by Liz Torres), a Puerto Rican hospital worker. In the fall of 1977, a year after his promotion to a dispatcher's job at the plant, Archie quit his job to become his own boss: he bought Kelsey's, his favorite local watering hole, and renamed it Archie's Place. Added to the cast were Jason Wingreen as Harry Snowden, the bartender; Allan Melvin as Archie's neighbor, Barney Hefner; and Danny Dayton as Archie's pal Hank Pivnik.

Both Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers announced their plans to leave the show at the end of the 1977–1978 season; in the season finale viewers learned that Mike Stivic had landed a teaching job at a distant university, forcing the Stivics to move away. As All in the Family's ninth season began in the fall of 1978, Archie and Edith found themselves alone together, but only temporarily, as Danielle Brisebois (who had been in the cast of Annie on Broadway) was introduced as Stephanie Mills, a distant niece of Edith's who was dropped off—indefinitely—at the Bunkers' by her vagabond father.

More changes occurred in the fall of 1979. The show's title was changed to Archie Bunker's Place, as the action shifted from the Bunker household to Archie's bar. O'Connor, Brisebois, Melvin, and Dayton remained as regulars, with Stapleton scheduled to make a number of guest appearances during the season. Martin Balsam joined the cast as Archie's new business partner, Murray Klein; Bill Quinn appeared regularly as the blind Mr. Van Ranseleer, a regular customer; Anne Meara was the new chef, Veronica Rooney; Guerin Barry and Dino Scofield played her nephew Fred, the waiter; and Abraham Alvarez played Jose, the cook.

Jean Stapleton left the show entirely at the end of the 1979–1980 season, and Archie Bunker's producers decided to "kill off" her character, Edith Bunker. The 1980–1981 season began with a deeply moving episode, "Edith's Death," in which Archie finally came to grips with the loss of his wife; Carroll O'Connor won a Peabody Award for this performance. Joining the cast that season were Janet MacLachlan as the black next-door neighbor, Polly Swanson; Mel Bryant as her husband, Ed Swanson; Barbara Meek as Ed's sister, Ellen Canby, who became Archie's housekeeper; Heidi Hagman (daughter of Carroll O'Connor's good friend Larry Hagman of Dallas) as Linda, a waitress; and Joe Rosario as Raoul, the busboy.

Martin Balsam departed in the spring of 1981 after two seasons as Archie's business partner. Denise Miller signed on that fall as Archie's niece, Billie Bunker, daughter of his late brother. Steven Hendrickson also appeared as Archie's young accountant, Roger Abbott, who took an interest in Billie. In the last of the personnel changes, Anne Meara quit the show in 1982, and Barry Gordon was added as Archie's new accountant, Gary Rabinowitz.

In 1983 All in the Family/Archie Bunker's Place left the prime-time airwaves, although its reruns continued to be widely distributed. Its twelve-and-a-half-season run was second only to that of Ozzie and Harriet among television sitcoms.

The show's opening theme song, "Those Were the Days" (which was to have been the program's title), was composed by Lee Adams and Charles Strouse. It was sung by O'Connor and Stapleton until 1980, when an instrumental version was used. The closing theme, "Remembering You," was written by Roger Kellaway; lyrics (not used on the show) were written by Carroll O'Connor. Two series were spun off from All in the Family: Maude (1972–1978; Maude's star, Beatrice Arthur, appeared as Edith's cousin on 11 December 1971) and The Jeffersons (1975–1985). A sequel of sorts appeared in 1982 when Sally Struthers returned as Archie Bunker's daughter in Gloria. The Bunkers' old house was the setting of a 1994 effort, 704 Hauser. Among the other notable series developed by Norman Lear and/or Bud Yorkin were All That Glitters, All's Fair, Good Times, Grady, Hot L Baltimore, Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, One Day at a Time, and Sanford and Son. CBS telecast a ninety-minute retrospective of All in the Family on 16 February 1991. The network aired a few reruns in prime time during the summer of 1991 (following Lear's new series, Sunday Dinner), and again in January 1992.

ALL IS FORGIVEN NBC

20 MARCH 1986–12 JUNE 1986 Bess Armstrong starred in this half-hour sitcom as Paula Winters, who landed a new job on the morning, and got married in the evening, of her "lucky day": March 29th. The job she landed was as producer of a TV soap opera, "All Is Forgiven," and the marriage was to a divorced donut entrepreneur, Matt Russell (played by Terence Knox, late of St. Elsewhere). Also aboard were Shawnee Smith as Matt's 16-year-old daughter, Sonia; David Alan Grier as Oliver Royce, one of the soap's writers; Bill Wiley as Wendell, the director; Judith-Marie Bergan as Cecile Porter-Lindsey, the star; Debi Richter as Sherry Levy; Valerie Landsburg as receptionist Lorraine Elder; and Carol Kane as Nicolette Bingham, the head writer. After two showings on Thursday evenings, All Is Forgiven actually moved to Saturdays on March 29th, Paula's "lucky day," but to little avail; the series faded away quietly after nine showings.

ALL MY CHILDREN ABC

5 JANUARY 1970– Created by veteran serial writer Agnes Nixon (who had worked on Search for Tomorrow, Another World, and One Life to Live, among others), All My Children became TV's top-rated soap opera in 1978–1979; for much of the following decade it ran second to General Hospital. The program is set in Pine Valley, a town not far from New York City. Originally, it centered on two families—the Tylers and the Martins—but most of the Martin clan was written out by the end of the first decade.

Principal players have included: Hugh Franklin as Dr. Charles Tyler, a prominent physician; Ruth Warrick as his status-conscious wife, Phoebe Tyler (Phoebe and Charles were subsequently divorced); James Karen, Paul Dumont, Nicholas Pryor, and Peter White as their son, Lincoln; Diana De Vegh, Joanna Miles, and Judith Barcroft as their daughter, Ann (Ann was committed to a mental institution as the character was written out; she returned to Pine Valley three years later, played by Gwyn Gilliss); Jack Stauffer, Chris Hubbell, Gregory Chase, and Richard Van Vleet as Charles's grandson (by a former marriage), Dr. Chuck Tyler, who had been orphaned as an infant; Rosemary Prinz (1970) as Lincoln's wife, Amy, who left him after the news was spread that she had had an illegitimate child; Susan Lucci as the woman who spread that news, the self-centered Erica Kane, who would later pursue a quest for celebrity and would be married eleven times to eight men in 24 years (Erica became one of daytime TV's most popular characters, and Lucci one of its most popular performers; unfortunately, Lucci had not won an Emmy for her role by 1995, despite having been nominated fifteen times); Larry Keith as Nick Davis, the man with whom Amy had had an affair; Richard Hatch and Nick Benedict as Phillip Brent, son of Amy and Nick; Mary Fickett as Amy's sister, Ruth Brent, who raised young Phillip; Mark Dawson as Ruth's husband, Ted Brent, who was killed in a car crash; Karen Gorney, Stephanie Braxton, Karen Gorney (again), Nancy Frangione, and Mary Lynn Blanks as Tara Martin, Phil's girlfriend, who was abandoned by Phil after he contracted amnesia and left town (Phil returned, thoughtlessly interrupting Tara and Chuck's wedding); Ray MacDonnell as Tara's father, Dr. Joseph Martin, a prominent physician who married Ruth Brent; Deborah Solomon as Sydney Scott, who opened a boutique with Ann Tyler; Charles Frank, Christopher Wines, Robert Perault, James O'Sullivan, Jeffrey Byron, and John Tripp as Jeff Martin, Tara's brother, who was ensnared by Erica Kane (Erica subsequently underwent the first legal abortion on a TV soap opera); Ken Rabat and William Mooney as Joe Martin's brother, lawyer Paul Martin, who married Ann Tyler after her marriage to Nick Davis; Ian Miller Washam and Brian Lima as Phillip Tyler, son of Tara and Phil, who was raised by Tara and Chuck; Tom Rosqui and John Devlin as modeling agent Jason Maxwell, who caused Erica to divorce Jeff Martin and was later murdered; Jacqueline Boslow and Susan Blanchard as nurse Mary Kennicott, Jeff's second wife, who was killed by burglars; Frances Heflin as Erica's mother, Mona Kane, who had murdered Jason Maxwell (Mona later married Charles Tyler after his divorce from Phoebe); Francesca James as Kitty Shea, who married Nick Davis (James later appeared as Kitty's twin sister, Kelly Cole); Eileen Letchworth as Margo Flax, who married Paul Martin after his divorce from Ann; Dan Hamilton as drug dealer Hal Short, Kitty's ex-husband; Paulette Breen and Susan Plantt-Winston as Margo's daughter, Claudette Montgomery; Eileen Herlie as Myrtle Lum (later known as Myrtle Fargate), a woman hired by Phoebe to pose as Kitty's long-lost mother; Paul Gleason as ex-doctor David Thornton, with whom Ruth Martin fell in love; Don Blakely and John Danelle as Dr. Franklin Grant, a black physician; Avis MacArthur and Lisa Wilkinson as his wife, Nancy Grant (Franklin and Nancy were divorced, and remarried; Franklin died in 1983); Pat Dixon as nurse Carolyn Murray, who was wed to Franklin Grant between his two marriages to Nancy; Francesca Poston and Candice Earley as Donna Beck, a prostitute who was rehabilitated by Chuck Tyler and married him (they were later divorced); Christine Thomas, Kate Harrington, and Kay Campbell as Kate Martin, mother of Joe and Paul Martin; Marilyn Chris as Edie Hoffman; Michael Shannon as Bill Hoffman; Maureen Mooney as Stacy Coles; Bruce Gray as Wyatt Coles; Daren Kelly as Danny Kennicott; Elissa Leeds, Harriet Hall, and Julia Barr as Brooke English; Matthew Anton, John E. Dunn, and Michael E. Knight as Tad Gardner, who was adopted by the Martins; Reuben Green as Clay Watson; Dawn Marie Boyle and Tasia Valenza as Dottie Thornton; Matthew Cowles as Billy Clyde Tuggle, a crook; Larry Fleischman and Vasili Bogazianos as Benny Sago; Sandy Gabriel as Edna Thornton Ferguson; William Griffis as Harlan Tucker, who married Mona Kane; John K. Carroll and Steven James as Carl Blair; Mark LaMura as Erica's brother, Mark Dalton, who became addicted to crack cocaine (and later kicked the habit); Kathleen Noone as Ellen Shepherd, who married Mark; Tricia Pursley (also known as Tricia P. Hawkins) as Devon Shepherd; Gil Rogers as Ray Gardner; Richard Shoberg as Tom Cudahy, who married Erica, then married Brooke English; Robin Strasser as Dr. Christina Karras; Paula Trueman as Maggie Flanagan.

Other comings and goings included those of Kathleen Dezina as Estelle LaTour, who married Benny Sago; Jack Magee, Nigel Reed, and Patrick Skelton as Wally McFadden, who married Devon Shepherd; Ross Petty and Warren Burton as Eddie Dorrance; Bob Hover as Adrian Shepherd; Harry Boda as Mel Jacobi; David Pendleton as Dr. Russ Anderson; Fred Porcelli as Freddy; Judith Roberts as Lettie Jean; Linda Gibboney as nurse Sybil Thorne; Louis Edmonds as con artist Lenny Vlasic, better known as Langley Wallingford, who married Phoebe Tyler after her divorce from Charles; James Mitchell as business executive Palmer Cortlandt, who married Donna Beck Tyler; Gillian Spencer as Daisy Cortlandt, Palmer's ex-wife (Daisy was also known as Monique Jonvil); Taylor Miller, Heather Stanford, and Barbara Kearns as Palmer and Daisy's daughter, Nina Cortlandt; Elizabeth Lawrence as Daisy's mother (and Palmer's housekeeper), Myra Murdock; Peter Bergman as Dr. Cliff Warner, who married Nina; Matthew McNamara and Chris Mazura as Bobby Warner, Cliff's son (by nurse Sybil Thorne); Carla Dragoni as Betsy Kennicott; Tracey Fitzpatrick as Suzanne Robbins; Lizabeth MacKay as Leora Sanders; Bill Ferriter as Curt Sanders; Alan Dysert as Sean Cudahy; Paul Falzone as Jim Jefferson; Andrea Moar as Carrie Sanders, who married Chuck Tyler; Carol McCluer and Paige Turco as Melanie Sawyer Cortlandt; William Cain as Hughes; Frances Foster as Bessie; Mike Minor as Brandon Kingsley, a cosmetics executive who employed Erica as a model, and had an affair with her; Tudi Wiggins as Sarah Kingsley, Brandon's wife; Kathy Kamhi and Kathleen Rowe McAllen as Pamela Kingsley, daughter of Brandon and Sarah; Michael Woods and Lee Godart as Kent Bogard, owner of Sensuelle Cosmetics, for whom Erica later modeled (Kent was accidentally shot by Erica); William Blankenship, Robert Milli, and Jack Betts as Lars Bogard, Kent's father; Deborah Goodrich as Connie Wilkes, who posed as Erica's sister, Silver Kane; Dack Rambo as lawyer Steve Jacobi; Dorothy Lyman and Jill Larson as the consummately tacky Opal Gardner, ex-wife of Ray Gardner, who took a job as the Wallingfords' housekeeper and later started a chain of beauty parlors; Kim Delaney as Opal's teenage daughter, Jenny Gardner; Laurence Lau as Greg Nelson, Jenny's boyfriend; Natalie Ross as Enid Nelson, Greg's mother; Marcy Walker and Alice Haining as Jenny's bitchy classmate, Liza Colby; Darnell Williams as Jesse Hubbard, nephew of Franklin Grant; Debbi Morgan and Saundra Quarterman as Angie Baxter, who secretly married Jesse; Lee Chamberlin as Angie's mother, Pat Baxter; Antonio Fargas as Les Baxter, Angie's father; Lynne Thigpen as Flora Baxter, Angie's aunt; Amanda Bearse as Amanda Cousins; Ronald Drake as Jasper Sloane; Jason Kincaid as Sam Brady; Michael Scalera and Michael Brainard as Joey Martin; Bill Timoney as Alfred Vanderpoole; Charles Weldon and Robert Lupone as Zach Johnson; Alan Campbell as Evan; Mel Boudrot as Father Tierney; Portia Nelson as Mrs. Gurney; Brent Barrett as Tony Barclay; Barbara Hooyman as Ethel; Jennifer Bassey as Marian Colby; Joseph Warren as Larry Colby; Peg Murray as Olga Svenson, sister of Lars Bogard; Donna Pescow as child psychologist Lynn Carson, a lesbian; Robert Gentry as Ross Chandler; Steve McNaughton as Gil Barrett; Melissa Leo as Linda Warner; Carmen Thomas as Hillary Wilson; Jennifer Leigh Warren as Karen Smith; and Nicolas Surovy and Hugo Napier as Mike Roy.

Brenner as Allison Sloan; Sean Marquette as young Jamie Martin; Kip Niven as Matt Callaway; James Garde as Justin Carrier; Joyce Van Patten as Helen Marsh; Chris Bruno as Michael Delaney; Cecilia DeWolf as Sophie; Kevin Alexander as Adam Chandler, Jr.; Cheryl Hulteen as Winifred; and Michelle Trachtenberg as Lily Banning.

In an unusual guest appearance, Carol Burnett turned up as a hospital patient, Mrs. Johnson, on 16 March 1976; All My Children is her favorite soap opera. Burnett returned in 1983 as a regular character, Verla Grubbs, the long-lost daughter of Lenny Vlasic/Langley Wallingford. Elizabeth Taylor (who had appeared in General Hospital) also appeared in an uncredited walk-on role, chatting with Verla in a restaurant scene. All My Children was the first daytime serial to go on location for storyline purposes, taping scenes in St. Croix in 1978. Most of the other serials soon followed suit. On 25 April 1977 All My Children expanded to sixty minutes. Like most daytime serials, All My Children has its legion of celebrity viewers. One of them is pro basketball star Charles Barkley, who showed up late for a daytime game in January 1987 because he had been watching the show. The show celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary in January 1995 with a week's worth of special episodes.

ALL THAT GLITTERS SYNDICATED

18 APRIL 1977–15 JULY 1977 The success of Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman prompted Norman Lear to develop a second soap opera which, like Mary Hartman, was shown in most markets in a late-night time slot. The setting of the short-lived effort was the Globatron Corporation, a conglomerate in which all the key positions were held by women and the secretarial slots were filled by men. The cast included: Lois Nettleton as executive Christina Stockwood; Chuck McCann as her stay-at-home spouse, Bert Stockwood; Anita Gillette as Nancy Bankston; Wes Parker as Glen Bankston, an aspiring actor; Barbara Baxley as L. W. Carruthers, the chairwoman of the board; Vanessa Brown as Peggy Horner; Louise Shaffer as Andrea Martin; David Haskell as Michael McFarland; Linda Gray as model Linda Murkland, a transsexual; Jessica Walter as agent Joan Hamlyn; Eileen Brennan as Ma Packer; Marte Boyle Slout as Grace Smith; and Gary Sandy as Dan Kincaid, the secretary with "the cutest little buns in the corporation." Stephanie Stills was the executive producer, Viva Knight the producer.

ALL-AMERICAN GIRL ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1994–22 MARCH 1995; 16 AUGUST 1995–23 AUGUST 1995 One of the few network shows to feature a mostly Asian cast, this half-hour sitcom starred standup comic Margaret Cho as Margaret Kim, a thoroughly westernized Korean-American woman who worked part-time in a department store, attended college and lived at home, where she battled her tradition-bound mother and her middle-of-the-road father. Also featured were Jodi Long as Mom, who was always trying to fix Margaret up with an eligible Korean man; Clyde Kusatsu as Dad, who, together with Mom, owned a bookstore; Amy Hill as Grandma; J. B. Quon as Margaret's little brother, Eric; B. D. Wong as Margaret's older brother, Stuart, a cardiologist; and Maddie Corman and Judy Gold as Margaret's co-workers, Ruthie and Gloria.

ALLEN LUDDEN'S GALLERY SYNDICATED

1969 Allen Ludden was one of a number of game show hosts who took a stab at the talk show format during the late 1960s. After a brief run, Ludden returned to the quizmaster's desk.

ALL'S FAIR CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1976–15 AUGUST 1977 Unlike most of Norman Lear's earlier comedies, All's Fair was set neither in a typical town nor in a typical household. Here, in Washington, D.C., a conservative political columnist, forty-nine, fell in love with a feminist freelance photographer, twenty-three. Their differences in age and outlook provided the tension; the Washington setting provided the topicality. With Richard Crenna (a sitcom veteran who had made only a few TV appearances after 1966) as syndicated columnist Richard Barrington; Bernadette Peters (in her first series role) as photographer Charlotte (Charley) Drake; J. A. Preston as Al Brooks, Barrington's black but equally conservative assistant; Judy Kahan as Ginger Livingston, Charley's roommate (when Charley was not at Richard's), a secretary; Lee Chamberlin as Lucy Daniels, a CBS-TV newswoman and Al's female companion (they got married early in 1977); Jack Dodson as bumbling Senator Wayne Joplin (constituency unspecified), a friend of Barrington's; Michael Keaton as Lanny Wolfe, a presidential joke writer.

ALL-STAR BLITZ ABC

8 April 1985–20 December 1985 Peter Marshall hosted this daytime game show, which was reminiscent of Marshall's earlier series, Hollywood Squares. Here, two contestants faced a panel of four celebrities, and could agree or disagree with the answers provided by the celebs to questions; successful contestants were thus able to view a portion of a mystery phrase hidden behind a grid of six boxes.

ALL-STAR GOLF ABC/NBC

12 October 1957–29 April 1961 (ABC); 4 October 1961–23 March 1963 (NBC) A weekend series of head-to-head golf matches, hosted for most of its run by Jimmy Demaret, and filmed at the Apple Valley Country Club in California.

ALL-STAR NEWS ABC

9 October 1952–30 August 1953 ABC's innovative news show began as a five-nights-a-week effort, with a full hour of news (compared with the fifteen-minute newscasts on NBC and CBS) on four of those evenings. By January of 1953, however, All-Star News had been trimmed to just one hour on Sunday nights. The show relied not on a single anchorman, but rather on live reports from ABC correspondents all over the country. Regular news broadcasts resumed on ABC in the fall of 1953: see ABC News.

ALL-STAR REVUE NBC

8 September 1951–18 April 1953 A variety hour that preceded Your Show of Shows on Saturday nights for two seasons. There were many guest hosts, but those who appeared with regularity included Ezio Pinza, Jimmy Durante, Ed Wynn, Danny Thomas, George Jessel, Tallulah Bankhead (who made five appearances during the second season), and finally, Martha Raye.In the fall of 1953 Martha Raye's monthly replacements for Your Show of Shows were entitled All-Star Revue before the title was changed to The Martha Raye Show in December. See also Four Star Revue.

ALL STAR SECRETS NBC

8 January 1979–10 August 1979 A straightforward daytime game show hosted by Bob Eubanks, All Star Secrets featured three contestants and a panel of five guest celebrities. At the outset of each round the host revealed a "secret" held by one of the celebs; contestants won money by correctly guessing the holder of the secret.

ALMOST ANYTHING GOES ABC

31 July 1975–28 August 1975; 24 January 1976–9 May 1976

ALL-STAR ANYTHING GOES SYNDICATED

1977 A raucous hour game show, Almost Anything Goes was modeled after a British series, It's a Knockout. In the American version teams from three small towns, selected by local civic groups, competed in various zany stunts (such as negotiating obstacle courses, or trying to carry loaves of bread across a greased beam suspended over a pool of water). Each show was shot on location at one of the competing towns. No prizes were awarded to the competitors; civic pride, and the chance to appear on nationwide TV, motivated the participants. Reporting the festivities were Charlie Jones and Lynn Shackleford; the on-the-field correspondents were Dick Whittington (1975) and Regis Philbin (1976). Bob Banner and Beryl Vertue were the executive producers. All-Star Anything Goes, which was introduced a year later, was played similarly, except that the teams were composed of celebrities; the half-hour show was hosted by Bill Boggs. Bill Healy handled the play-by-play, and Judy Abercrombie kept score. See also Junior Almost Anything Goes.

ALMOST GROWN CBS

27 November 1988–27 February 1989 An ambitious failure, Almost Grown tracked, through extensive flashback sequences laced with period rock music, the relationship of its two main characters as it grew from high school romance in the 1960s through living together, marriage, parenthood, and divorce. The cast included Timothy Daly as Norman Long; Eve Gordon as Suzie Long; Raffi DiBlasio as their son, Jackson; Ocean Hellman as their daughter, Anya; Anita Gillette as Suzie's mother, Vi; Richard Schaal as Suzie's father, Dick; Albert Macklin as Suzie's brother, Joey; Rita Taggart as Norman's mother, Joan; and Malcolm Stewart as Dr. Bob Keyes, a plastic surgeon whom Suzie planned to marry after her divorce from Norman.

ALMOST HOME NBC

6 FEBRUARY 1993–3 JULY 1993 A reworked version of the 1991–1992 sitcom The Torkelsons. This time Millicent Torkelson and three of her kids moved from Oklahoma to Seattle, where Millicent became the housekeeper for a widower and his two kids. With Connie Ray as Millicent; Olivia Burnette as her daughter Dorothy Jane; Lee Norris as her son Chuckie Lee; Rachel Duncan as her daughter Mary Sue; Perry King as the widower, Brian Morgan; Brittany Murphy as his daughter, Molly; and Jason Marsden as his son, Gregory.

ALMOST PERFECT CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1995– Half-hour sitcom about two busy single professionals who met at a Los Angeles bar and began a romance. With Nancy Travis as Kim Cooper, the newly promoted executive producer of "Blue Justice," a TV cop show; Kevin Kilner as Mike Ryan, prosecutor in the major crimes unit of the D.A.'s office; Chip Zien as Gary, one of the "Blue Justice" writers, who had expected to get the producer's job; Matthew Letscher as Rob, the junior "Blue Justice" writer; and David Clennon as Neal Luder, the strangest of the writers.

ALOHA PARADISE ABC

25 FEBRUARY 1981–29 APRIL 1981 Set at Paradise Village, an exclusive Hawaiian resort for the romantically inclined, Aloha Paradise resembled a land-based Love Boat. The crew included Debbie Reynolds as Sydney Chase, the general manager; Bill Daily as assistant manager Curtis Shaw; Stephen Shortridge as lifeguard Richard Dean; Pat Klous as social director Fran Linhart; Mokihana as Evelyn, the bartender; and Charles Fleischer as Everett, the gardener. Steve Lawrence sang the title song.

ALUMNI FUN ABC/CBS

20 JANUARY 1963–28 APRIL 1963 (ABC); 12 JANUARY 1964–5 APRIL 1965 (CBS); 10 JANUARY 1965–28 MARCH 1965 (CBS); 23 JANUARY 1966–7 MAY 1966 (CBS) This weekly game show, an earlier version of which had been on radio, featured two teams, each composed of famous alumni from the same college or university. The winning team would return the following week to face a new team of challengers. The show was usually seen on Sunday afternoons, following the completion of the professional football season. John K. M. McCaffery hosted during the first season; Peter Lind Hayes was the host during the other seasons.

ALVIN AND THE CHIPMUNKS (THE CHIPMUNKS) NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1983–7 SEPTEMBER 1991 This Saturday-morning cartoon show was a sequel to The Alvin Show (see also that title). In the new show the three high-voiced chipmunks—Alvin, Simon, and Theodore—attended the Thomas Edison Elementary School, lived at home with David Seville, and made music together as a rock and roll trio. The series was retitled Chipmunks in the fall of 1988, as the male trio was joined by the Chippettes—Brittany, Eleanor, and Jeannette—and a puppy named Lily. In the fall of 1990 the show was retitled Chipmunks Go to the Movies as Alvin and his pals parodied famous motion pictures.

THE ALVIN SHOW CBS

4 OCTOBER 1961–12 SEPTEMBER 1962 ABC introduced prime-time cartoon programs in 1960 with Bugs Bunny and The Flintstones. CBS followed suit in 1961 with this effort, which featured three singing chipmunks (known as The Chipmunks, oddly enough) and their songwriter-manager, David Seville. The Chipmunks had gained real-life fame in 1958 when songwriter Ross Bagdasarian (who used the name David Seville and wrote such hits as "The Witch Doctor") wrote a novelty Christmas number and recorded it for Liberty records. As a gimmick Bagdasarian used three speeded-up vocal tracks and named his high-pitched hitmakers The Chipmunks. The record was a smash. In the song the three characters were named Alvin, Simon, and Theodore. In his book, Rock On, Norm Nite notes that Bagdasarian named them after Liberty executives Al Bennett and Si Warnoker and recording engineer Ted Keep. When the series came to television Bagdasarian continued to supply the main characters' voices; an additional segment featured the adventures of inventor Clyde Crashcup, with voice supplied by Shepard Menken. Though the series fared poorly on prime time (it was opposite Wagon Train), it lasted three seasons (1962–1965) on Saturday mornings. The series returned, in reruns, to NBC's Saturday morning schedule in March of 1979. See also Alvin and the Chipmunks.

AMANDA'S ABC

10 FEBRUARY 1983–24 MARCH 1983 An uninspired adaptation of the British sitcom Fawlty Towers, with Beatrice Arthur as Amanda Cartwright, proprietor of Amanda's-by-the-Sea, a quaint coastal inn; Fred McCarren as Marty, her son; Simone Griffeth as Arlene, Marty's wife; Tony Rosato as Aldo, the bellhop; Rick Hurst as Earl, the cook; and Michael Constantine as Amanda's main competitor, Krinsky, the owner of Casa Krinsky.

THE AMATEUR HOUR

See TED MACK'S ORIGINAL AMATEUR HOUR

THE AMATEUR'S GUIDE TO LOVE CBS

27 MARCH 1972–23 JUNE 1972 Gene Rayburn hosted this daytime game show which involved a panel of three celebrities, two studio contestants, and a videotaped sequence. First, the celebs ("The Guidebook Panel") watched part of the videotaped sequence, in which the contestants became involved in a sexy or amorous situation. The tape was stopped prior to its conclusion and the Guidebook Panel voted on how the contestants should have reacted to the situation. The tape was then resumed; if the contestants reacted as the panel predicted, they won money. The show's credits carried the following disclaimer: "Studio interviews are discussed with panel and guests in advance."

THE AMAZING CHAN AND THE CHAN CLAN CBS

9 SEPTEMBER 1972–22 SEPTEMBER 1974 Charlie Chan's second television incarnation was in cartoon form, produced by Hanna-Barbera, shown on Saturdays during the first season and Sundays during the second. The inscrutable detective was assisted by his ten children. The voice of Charlie was supplied by Keye Luke, who had played number-one son (to Warner Oland's Charlie) in the Chan films of the 1930s. See also Charlie Chan.

AMAZING GRACE NBC

1 APRIL 1995–22 APRIL 1995 Patty Duke starred in this hour dramatic series as a newly ordained minister whose name was not Grace, but rather Hannah Miller (presumably no relation to the Hannah Miller of the ABC sitcom Anything But Love). A divorcée, Hannah had been a nurse and had become addicted to pills; after a near-death experience she decided to leave nursing for the ministry, though she continued to serve as the chaplain at her old hospital. Also featured were Marguerite Moreau as her teenage daughter, Jenny; Justin Garms as her preteen son, Brian; Joe Spano as Detective Dominick Corso, a tough cop with whom Hannah tangled; Lorraine Toussaint as Yvonne, a nurse and former coworker of Hannah's; Robin Gammell as Arthur Sutherland, president of the church board which had selected Hannah (despite Sutherland's reservations); Gavin Harrison as Linc, a laconic teen whom Jenny met in a park; and Dan Lauria as Hannah's friend, lawyer Harry Kramer. The series was NBC's lowest-rated program of the 1994–1995 season.

THE AMAZING LIVE SEA MONKEYS CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1992–4 SEPTEMBER 1993 Howie Mandel created, and starred in, this half-hour Saturday morning series. Mandel played a wacky professor who enlarged a trio of sea monkeys—Aquarius, Bill, and Dave—to human size, and helped guide them through life on dry land.

THE AMAZING MR. MALONE ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1951–10 MARCH 1952 A short-lived television version of the radio series that premiered in 1948. Lee Tracy starred as John J. Malone, a Chicago criminal defense lawyer.

THE AMAZING POLGAR CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1949–28 OCTOBER 1949 This ten-minute show, seen Fridays after the evening news, was probably television's first show to deal with hypnotism. Each week Dr. Franz Polgar demonstrated his hypnotic prowess upon selected members of the studio audience. Chuck Lewin produced the series.

THE AMAZING SPIDER-MAN CBS

5 APRIL 1978–3 MAY 1978 Like The Incredible Hulk and Wonder Woman, The Amazing Spider-Man was an hour adventure series based on a comic book character. The series starred Nicholas Hammond as Peter Parker, a reporter for the New York Bugle who, as the result of a mysterious spider bite, could transform himself into Spider-Man; Spider-Man's arachnid powers include the ability to walk along walls and ceilings, and to cast ropelike lines between buildings. Also featured were Robert F. Simon as his boss, Mr. Jameson; Chip Fields as Rita, another newspaper employee; and Michael Pataki as Captain Barbera of the New York Police Department. Charles Fries and Dan Goodman were the executive producers of the series, a single episode of which was introduced in the fall of 1977. After a five-week trial run in the spring of 1978, it was seen on an irregular basis, and a new character was added: Ellen Bry as Julie, a photographer.

AMAZING STORIES NBC

29 SEPTEMBER 1985–15 MAY 1987 To entice filmmaker Steven Spielberg into television series production, NBC offered a two-season, forty-four-episode commitment (with lavish license fees per program) and full creative control to Spielberg. Unfortunately, the resulting half-hour anthology series neither measured up to expectations nor found a large audience; the anthology format itself had fallen out of favor years earlier, and efforts to revive it (including two other 1985 efforts, the remakes of Alfred Hitchcock Presents and The Twilight Zone) had failed. Nevertheless, there were a few interesting presentations on Amazing Stories, such as "Mummy, Daddy," with Bronson Pinchot (27 October 1985), "The Amazing Falsworth," with Gregory Hines (5 November 1985), and "Mr. Magic," with Sid Caesar (17 November 1985). Some stories were directed by Spielberg himself, while others were directed by such notables as Clint Eastwood and Martin Scorsese.

THE AMAZING TALES OF HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN SYNDICATED

1954 A series for children, based on the writings of the Danish fabulist. Hosted by George and Gene Bernard.

THE AMAZING THREE SYNDICATED

1967 Cartoon series in which three intergalactic beings were sent to Earth to determine whether it should be destroyed. Upon their arrival they assumed the identities of a rabbit, a duck, and a horse and befriended young Kenny Carter.

THE AMAZING WORLD OF KRESKIN SYNDICATED

1971 Demonstrations of apparent mind-reading and ESP by the amazing Kreskin, a self-described "mentalist" and frequent talk show guest. Like Dunninger, the leading TV mentalist of the 1950s, Kreskin used just one name and never divulged his secrets.

AMEN NBC

27 SEPTEMBER 1986–25 AUGUST 1990; 1 DECEMBER 1990–27 JULY 1991 One year after the demise of The Jeffersons, Sherman Hemsley returned to television to star in another hit sitcom. Here he played Ernest Frye, a lawyer and the scheming deacon of the First Community Church of Philadelphia. Clifton Davis costarred as Reuben Gregory, the church's newly hired minister (in real life, Davis had actually left show business to study divinity, and had become an ordained minister). Also featured were Anna Maria Horsford as Thelma, Ernest's daughter, who had her eyes on Reuben (they were finally married in February 1990); Barbara Montgomery (1986–1990) and Roz Ryan as sisters Casietta and Amelia Hetebrink, faithful churchgoers and members of its governing board; and Jester Hairston as elderly Rolly Forbes, also a board member. Franklyn Seales was seen occasionally during the first two seasons as choir director Lorenzo Hollingsworth; Rosetta LeNoire was seen during the 1987–1988 season as Rolly's wife, Leola. Elsa Raven appeared during the 1988–1989 season as Inga, the Fryes' housekeeper. Bumper Robinson joined the cast in 1990 as Clarence, a neighborhood teenager. Frye became a judge for Amen's final season, and soul singers James Brown and Lloyd Price appeared on the last first-run episode (11 May 1991).

AMERICA NBC/PBS

14 NOVEMBER 1972–15 MAY 1973 (NBC); 17 SEPTEMBER 1974–18 MARCH 1975 (PBS) Alistair Cooke's highly acclaimed "personal history" of the United States was produced by Michael Gill for BBC and Time-Life Films. It was originally telecast as thirteen hours, each focusing on a given topic, on alternate Tuesdays. In 1974, it was presented on PBS as a series of twenty-six half hours, with new introductions and conclusions by host Cooke.

AMERICA SYNDICATED

1985–1986 A one-hour daily magazine show, hosted by Sarah Purcell, McLean Stevenson, and Stuart Damon.

AMERICA ALIVE! NBC

24 JULY 1978–4 JANUARY 1979 Broadcast live, this hour daytime magazine show was hosted by Jack Linkletter, who had hosted a similar show eighteen years earlier (see On the Go). Linkletter's traveling cohosts included Pat Mitchell, Bruce Jenner, and Janet Langhart. Other regular contributors included David Sheehan (films), Virginia Graham (gossip and interviews), David Horowitz (consumer affairs), Dick Orkin and Bert Berdis (comedy), and Dr. William H. Masters and Virginia Johnson (sex and health). Woody Fraser was the executive producer.

AMERICA BY DESIGN PBS

28 SEPTEMBER 1987–26 OCTOBER 1987 A five-part look at American architecture, hosted by Spiro Kostof.

AMERICA SPEAKS NBC

2 JULY 1951–24 AUGUST 1951 A summer replacement for The Bert Parks Show, this daytime documentary series examined the American economy.

AMERICA 2NIGHT

See FERNWOOD 2-NIGHT

AMERICA TONIGHT CBS

1 OCTOBER 1990–29 MARCH 1991 CBS's entry into the late-night news market was a half-hour program at 11:30 P.M. Veteran correspondents Charles Kuralt and Lesley Stahl coanchored the show Mondays through Thursdays, while Robert Krulwich and Edie Magnus did the Friday shows. The show became a regular program after a half-dozen late-night specials had been aired during the 1990 Persian Gulf crisis. The series was to have been canceled on 18 January 1991 to make room for CBS's new late-night lineup, but when war erupted in the Persian Gulf the network postponed its plans and kept America Tonight on the air.

AMERICA TONIGHT NBC

1 JUNE 1994–10 AUGUST 1994 Prime-time magazine series, cohosted by Deborah Norville and Dana King.

THE AMERICAN ADVENTURE SYNDICATED

1960 A series of thirteen 15-minute films on American government and patriotism.

AMERICAN ALMANAC NBC

6 AUGUST 1985–30 NOVEMBER 1985 Roger Mudd was the host of this hour newsmagazine series, NBC's umpteenth attempt to establish a successful series in that genre. American Almanac was introduced as a monthly show, with the expectation that it would land a weekly berth on NBC's prime-time schedule sometime in midseason; it never did, and vanished after four outings.

AMERICAN BANDSTAND ABC/SYNDICATED/USA

5 AUGUST 1957–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 (ABC); 1987–1989 (SYNDICATED); 8 APRIL 1989–7 OCTOBER 1989 (USA) ABC's long-running series actually began as a local show in Philadelphia in 1952. Then called Bandstand, it was hosted by Bob Horn. The set resembled a record shop, and the show featured records, film clips of popular singers, and a live audience of local teenagers who danced while the records played. Dick Clark, then a disc jockey on a Philadelphia radio station, took over as sole host in 1956. The show soon attracted network attention, as it was the highest-rated program in its time slot in the Philadelphia area. Sixty-seven ABC affiliates carried the show starting in the summer of 1957; some carried it for the full ninety minutes, others for only thirty or sixty minutes. For the next six years the show was telecast weekday afternoons from the studios of WFIL-TV in Philadelphia. A prime-time version also surfaced for thirteen weeks in the fall of 1957. Clark, who was twenty-six when the show first went network, kept the format simple: The new set contained little but a set of bleachers for the kids to sit on when they weren't dancing, a raised podium for the host, an autograph table for guest stars, and a signboard listing the week's top ten hits.

Kids (and quite a few adults) watched the show to see other kids dance; many of the 200 or so teenagers who filled the studio each day were regulars, and some received considerable fan mail. The show also provided the chance for performers to do their newest hits. Over the years almost every major rock star appeared at least once (two notable exceptions were Elvis Presley and Rick Nelson). On the 1957 Thanksgiving show, for example, two New York teenagers who called themselves Tom and Jerry sang their hit record, "Hey, Schoolgirl." They are better known today as Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel. Because the show was broadcast from Philadelphia during those years, Philadelphia artists showed up frequently: Frankie Avalon, Bobby Rydell, Chubby Checker, Fabian, and James Darren all guested dozens of times.

Clark was a shrewd businessman, and by the end of 1957 he had invested in various music publishing and record distributing ventures. He later put together road shows—the Dick Clark Caravan of Stars toured the country (by bus) many times. Clark's involvement in such activities, though profitable, almost cut short his career as a TV personality, as the "payola" scandal broke in 1959. A Congressional subcommittee investigating "payola"—the payment of money or other favors to get a new record played on radio—called Clark to testify in 1960. By that time, Clark, at network insistence, had divested himself of his interests in music publishing and record distributing outfits. He steadfastly denied ever having received payment to play a song on American Bandstand and also tried to show that certain songs in which he had a financial interest were not played disproportionately often on the show. Clark emerged from the hearings relatively unscathed and, unlike many less fortunate disc jockeys, continued to host his show. Bandstand continued to run weekday afternoons until 30 August 1963, when it was switched to Saturday afternoons. In the spring of 1964 the show moved to Los Angeles, where it remained. There Clark established Dick Clark Productions, successfully promoted many concerts, and also developed such TV series as Where the Action Is and It's Happening. On 30 October 1981 American Bandstand celebrated its thirtieth anniversary a few months early with a prime-time retrospective. On 1 December 1985 "American Bandstand's 33 1/3 Celebration," another prime-time special, aired, again on ABC. A fortieth anniversary prime-time special was aired 13 May 1992 on ABC.

In the fall of 1987 Clark and ABC parted company after thirty years. The network had offered Clark a three-year extension but wanted to trim the series to thirty minutes. Clark preferred to retain the hour format, and he introduced the show in syndication two weeks after its farewell telecast on ABC (for the record, the last performer to appear on the ABC version was Laura Branigan, who sang "Shattered Glass"). After eighteen months in syndication, American Bandstand switched to the USA Cable Network, again in a Saturday afternoon time slot, but with a new host: Dick Clark turned over the microphone to David Hirsch, who, at 26, was the same age as Clark was when the show began its network run in 1957. USA dropped the show after twenty-six weeks.

American Bandstand should be noted not only as one of television's longest-running musical series, but also as the first network series devoted exclusively to rock-and-roll music.

AMERICAN CHRONICLES FOX

8 SEPTEMBER 1990–15 DECEMBER 1990 Twin Peaks collaborators Mark Frost and David Lynch were the executive producers of this arty and offbeat half-hour documentary series which examined facets of American culture. New Orleans at Mardi Gras was the subject of the premiere telecast, while later shows looked at such topics as New York City nightlife, America's obsession with automobiles, and the Miss Texas beauty pageant. Richard Dreyfuss narrated.

AMERICAN CINEMA PBS

23 JANUARY 1995–27 FEBRUARY 1995 A ten-part look at the history of American films, arranged by genre. John Lithgow hosted.

AMERICAN DETECTIVE ABC

2 MAY 1991–20 JULY 1992; 9 NOVEMBER 1993–26 JUNE 1993 One of several reality-based series which followed in the wake of Fox's Cops, this one tracked real-life police officers on and off the job. A real-life cop, Oregon's John Bunnell, became the series's host in January 1992.

AMERICAN DREAM ABC

26 APRIL 1981–10 JUNE 1981 An hour-long dramatic series about a family of six who decide to move into Chicago from suburban Arlington Heights. With Stephen Macht as Danny Novak, who worked at the Marshall Field department store; Karen Carlson as his wife, Donna Novak; Tim Waldrip as their son Casey; Michael Hershewe as their son Todd; Andrea Smith as their daughter, Jenny; John McIntire as Sam, Donna's father; Hans Conried as Berlowitz, the realtor; and Helen Rubio as neighbor Paula Navarro. A fascinating account of this series's creation, development, and ultimate demise may be found in Todd Gitlin's 1984 book, Inside Prime Time.

AMERICAN DREAMER NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1990–22 DECEMBER 1990; 25 MAY 1991–22 JUNE 1991 Robert Urich starred in this half-hour sitcom as Tom Nash, a former TV reporter who now wrote human interest stories for a Chicago newspaper; Nash and his two children had recently settled in a small Wisconsin town after Nash's wife—also a journalist—had been killed in Lebanon while covering a story there. From time to time Nash spoke directly to the camera, as characters from his past or present appeared behind him on a minimally set stage. Other regulars included Carol Kane as Lillian Abernathy, Nash's ditzy assistant; Chay Lentin as his teenage daughter, Rachel; Johnny Galecki as his son, Danny; Margaret Welsh as Holly, proprietor of the town café; and Jeffrey

Tambor as Nash's editor, Joe Baines. Susan Seeger created the series, and, with Gary David Goldberg, was its executive producer.

THE AMERICAN EXPERIENCE PBS

4 OCTOBER 1988– A look at selected events in American history, hosted by David McCullough, utilizing contemporary film footage whenever possible. Among the presentations were "The Great San Francisco Earthquake" (4 October 1988); "Kennedy v. Wallace: A Crisis Up Close" (15 November 1988); "The Great Air Race of 1924" (3 October 1989); "Roots of Resistance: A Story of the Underground Railroad" (16 January 1990); "G-Men: The Rise of J. Edgar Hoover" (18 November 1991); "The Quiz Show Scandal" (6 January 1992), and Ric Burns's six-hour examination of the treatment of American Indians during the nineteenth century, "The Way West" (8 and 9 May 1995). In 1994 the series received three Peabody Awards (the most ever awarded to a series in a single year) for its presentations of "FDR," a four-and-one-half-hour biography, "The Battle of the Bulge," and "Malcolm X: Make It Plain."

AN AMERICAN FAMILY PBS

11 JANUARY 1973–29 MARCH 1973 A controversial documentary series chronicling the lives of the members of the Loud family of Santa Barbara, California, An American Family was shown in twelve hour-long installments. Producer Craig Gilbert and his two assistants spent seven months with the Louds in 1971 and shot some 300 hours of film of the seven Louds—husband Bill, president of American Western Foundries, his wife Pat, and their five children, Lance, Kevin, Grant, Delilah, and Michele. The footage that finally emerged on television was sometimes banal, sometimes boring, and sometimes riveting. In the second episode, viewers saw Pat meeting Lance in New York's Greenwich Village and learning of his involvement in the local homosexual scene. The eighth and ninth episodes concerned the breakup of the Louds' marriage, as Pat decided to file for a divorce, and Bill moved out of the house (the two were divorced in 1972). The Louds themselves criticized the series, maintaining that selective editing of 300 hours into twelve-hour segments had painted a grossly distorted picture of their lives. Producer Gilbert's two assistants, Alan and Susan Raymond, produced a sequel ten years later; "American Family Revisited" was shown on the HBO cable network 9 August 1983. A 1988 news report found Pat selling antiques in England, Bill enduring the breakup of his second marriage, Lance peddling adult postcards in Los Angeles, Grant studying acting, Kevin living in Houston, Michele designing clothes in New York, and Delilah working as a publicist in L.A. Craig Gilbert reflected on his creation: "The series was about a land of plenty that produces mindless people, who talked all the time, but not about the things that were troubling them. . . . In some ways, all American families resemble the Louds."

THE AMERICAN FORUM OF THE AIR NBC

4 FEBRUARY 1950–15 SEPTEMBER 1957 This Sunday-afternoon public affairs program featured debates on topical issues. Theodore Granik, who introduced the series on radio in 1937, moderated until 1953, when Stephen McCormick succeeded him. Toward the end of its run the series alternated with Youth Wants to Know.

THE AMERICAN GIRLS CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1978–10 NOVEMBER 1978 Hour-long dramatic series about two field researchers for The American Report, a television newsmagazine. With Priscilla Barnes as Becky Tomkins, a veteran staffer; Debra Clinger as her new partner, Amy Waddell, a former college reporter who landed the job because she had once obtained an interview with President Nixon; David Spielberg as Francis X. Casey, their producer. Harve Bennett and Harris Katleman were the executive producers. The series was a vain attempt to cash in on the popularity of Charlie's Angels.

AMERICAN GLADIATORS SYNDICATED

1989– Another entry in the genre known as "trashsport," American Gladiators was an hour syndicated entry in which male and female contestants competed in various physical endeavors not directly against one another, but rather against one (or more) of the show's in-house staff of challengers. The contests included jousting (with padded pugil sticks), wall-climbing, stuffing balls into containers, and the like. The show's male challengers bore names like Gemini, Titan, and Nitro, while their female counterparts included Blaze, Gold, and Lace, among others. Mike Adamle cohosted the series, first with Joe Theismann, then with Todd Christensen, Larry Csonka, and Lisa Malosky. A kid's version appeared in 1994: see Gladiators 2000.

AMERICAN GOTHIC CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1995–31 JANUARY 1996 The first TV series set in South Carolina, American Gothic was an hour continuing drama in which the forces of good and evil confronted each other against a backdrop of the supernatural. The goings-on were centered in the small town of Trinity, which was ruled by an utterly evil sheriff. As the series unfolded, the sheriff murdered a teenage girl, imprisoned and killed her father, and then plotted to gain custody of the slain girl's younger brother (the sheriff had apparently killed the child's mother some years earlier). The cast included Gary Cole as Sheriff Lucas Buck; Lucas Black as the young orphan, Caleb Temple; Paige Turco as Caleb's cousin, Gail Emory, a reporter who returned to Trinity to thwart the sheriff's custody attempts, and began to unravel the mystery of her own parents' deaths; Jake Weber as Dr. Matt Crowder, an enemy of the sheriff's; Brenda Bakke as schoolteacher Selena Coombs, who had been corrupted by the sheriff; Nick Searcy as the sheriff's powerless deputy, Ben Healy; and Sarah Paulson as Caleb's sister, murder victim Merlyn Temple, who appeared to Caleb in visions and tried to help him. Shaun Cassidy was one of the co-creators.

AMERICAN INVENTORY NBC

1 JULY 1951–16 JANUARY 1955 Panel discussions and documentary films were the staples of this public affairs program, which was seen Sunday afternoons for most of its run.

AMERICAN JOURNAL SYNDICATED

1993– Half-hour daily investigative report program, anchored by Nancy Glass.

AMERICAN LIFESTYLE SYNDICATED

1972 E. G. Marshall narrated this documentary series, which often presented biographies of famous Americans.

AMERICAN MASTERS PBS

14 JULY 1986– A summertime series of documentary films on American artists, writers, and musicians. Among those who have been profiled are Billie Holiday (4 August 1986), Isaac Bashevis Singer (6 July 1987), Aretha Franklin (22 August 1988), Charlie Parker (17 July 1989), Neil Simon (21 August 1989), Edward R. Murrow (30 July and 6 August 1990), Helen Hayes (1 July 1991), Ray Charles (3 January 1992), D. W. Griffith (24 March 1993), and Tennessee Williams (19 December 1994).

THE AMERICAN PARADE (CROSSROADS) CBS

27 MARCH 1984–5 SEPTEMBER 1984 This prime-time magazine series was first hosted by Charles Kuralt. Humorist Art Buchwald was to have been a regular contributor, but was dropped after the second week. The series itself, which garnered low ratings opposite The A Team on NBC, was taken off the air in May for an extensive overhaul. When it returned in June, retitled Crossroads, Bill Moyers had joined Kuralt as cohost.

AMERICAN PLAYHOUSE PBS

12 JANUARY 1982– Among the noteworthy presentations on this dramatic anthology series were an original teleplay by John Cheever (his first), "The Shady Hill Kidnapping," with George Grizzard and Polly Holliday (12 January 1982); a seven-part biography, "Oppenheimer," starring Sam Waterston as controversial physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer (the first episode was aired 11 May 1982; ironically, the programs were produced in England by the BBC); Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," with Blair Brown, Sada Thompson, Harold Gould, and Rue McClanahan (broadcast live from San Diego's Old Globe Theatre, 18 January 1983); "Family Business," with Milton Berle in a rare dramatic role (1 February 1983); Lanford Wilson's "The Fifth of July," with Richard Thomas and Swoosie Kurtz (10 May 1983); James Baldwin's "Go Tell It on the Mountain," with Paul Winfield, Olivia Cole, Rosalind Cash, and James Bond III (14 January 1985); "Three Sovereigns for Sarah," with Vanessa Redgrave, Kim Hunter, Phyllis Thaxter, and Patrick McGoohan (27 May, 3 and 10 June 1985); Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," with Patrick Day and Samm-Art Williams (10 February 1986, the first of four parts); "Sunday in the Park with George," with Mandy Patinkin (16 June 1986, originally aired on Showtime); "Smooth Talk," with Laura Dern and Treat Williams (9 February 1987); "Story of a Marriage," with Hallie Foote, William Converse-Roberts, and Matthew Broderick (6 April 1987, the first of five parts); Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," with Ken Howard and Glenda Jackson (18 January 1988); "Suspicion," with Jane Curtin and Anthony Andrews (20 April 1988); "The Trial of Bernhard Goetz," with Peter Crombie, Richard Libertini, Andrew Robinson, and Dann Florek (11 May 1988, using excerpts from the trial transcripts); "I Never Sang for My Father," with Daniel J. Travanti and Harold Gould (15 June 1988); "A Raisin in the Sun," with Danny Glover and Esther Rolle (1 February 1989); "Zora Is My Name," with Ruby Dee (14 February 1990); "Into the Woods," with Bernadette Peters, Chip Zien, and Joanna Gleason (20 March 1991); and "Tru," with Robert Morse as Truman Capote (23 November 1992). American Playhouse's most controversial offering was the three-night, six-hour presentation of "Armistead Maupin's Tales of the City" (10–12 January 1994), adapted from Maupin's fictional serialized newspaper stories about life—straight and gay—in San Francisco during the 1970s. Starring Olympia Dukakis, Chloe Webb, Paul Gross, and Marcus D'Amico, it was produced by England's Channel 4, where it was first televised in 1993. American Playhouse offered it to PBS stations in two versions, one uncut and one without the four-letter words and the shots of bare female breasts; both versions, however, retained images of pot smoking and of men kissing men. Although "Tales" was highly praised (and won a Peabody Award that year), plans for a sequel were scuttled when PBS withdrew a commitment to fund it.

In January 1990 American Playhouse became the first national series to use Descriptive Video Service (DVS), in which an audio channel is used to supply additional information about the program for the benefit of the visually impaired.

AMERICAN RELIGIOUS TOWN HALL ABC/SYNDICATED

9 OCTOBER 1955–9 JUNE 1957 (ABC); 1970– (SYNDICATED) Religious and moral topics are debated on this panel show. The ABC version, which was seen Sunday afternoons, was moderated by James A. Pike, rector of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York. The syndicated version, based in Dallas, is moderated by Bishop A. A. Leisky.

AMERICAN SONG NBC

15 APRIL 1948–21 FEBRUARY 1949 A twenty-minute musical series broadcast once or twice a week before the evening newsreel, American Song featured singer Paul Arnold and dancers Nellie Fisher and Ray Harrison.

THE AMERICAN SPORTSMAN ABC

31 JANUARY 1965–24 JUNE 1984 Curt Gowdy hosted this outdoor series, on which celebrities and athletes went hunting and fishing. Executive producer: Roone Arledge. Produced by Curt Gowdy, Neil Cunningham, and Pat Smith. The program surfaced again, in 1989 and in 1990, as one-shot special telecasts.

THE AMERICAN WEEK CBS
4 APRIL 1954–10 OCTOBER 1954 Sunday-afternoon news review with Eric Sevareid.

THE AMERICAN WEST SYNDICATED
1966 Travelogue hosted by Jack Smith.

THE AMERICANS NBC
23 JANUARY 1961–11 SEPTEMBER 1961 The story of two brothers, Virginia farmers, fighting on opposite sides during the Civil War. With Darryl Hickman as Corporal Ben Canfield, fighting for the Union, and Dick Davalos as Corporal Jeff Canfield, fighting for the Confederacy. Robert Redford guest starred in one episode, "The Coward" (8 May). A midseason replacement for Riverboat.

AMERICA'S GREATEST BANDS CBS
25 JUNE 1955–24 SEPTEMBER 1955 Bandleader Paul Whiteman reintroduced the Big Band era of the 1930s on this Saturday-night hour, a summer replacement for The Jackie Gleason Show. Most of the bands which had survived the era guested on the show.

AMERICA'S CENTURY PBS
24 OCTOBER 1989–28 NOVEMBER 1989 A six-part examination of American foreign policy, hosted by Lewis Lapham, editor of Harper's Magazine.

AMERICA'S FUNNIEST HOME VIDEOS ABC
14 JANUARY 1990– This half-hour show zoomed to instant popularity following its midseason premiere as a regular weekly series. The format was disarmingly simple: thirty minutes of home video snippets, culled by the show's production staff from submissions solicited from viewers. Dancing animals, collapsing backyard pools, and tumbling toddlers were all typical fodder for the show. Comedian Bob Saget (who continued to costar in ABC's sitcom Full House) provided the introductions and the occasional voiceovers. At the end of each program, the studio audience was asked to vote for the evening's funniest video, choosing among three entries preselected by the producers; the winning segment won $10,000, and the opportunity for a seasonal grand prize of $100,000.

The idea for the series came to producer Vin DiBona at an international television fair, where he spotted "Fun with Ken and Kaito Chen," a popular segment of a Japanese variety show which employed an analogous format. Curiously, a somewhat similar program had appeared on American television as early as 1963: see Your Funny, Funny Films. See also America's Funniest People. In the fall of 1994 reruns were paired with new programs to fill an hour time slot on Sunday nights.

AMERICA'S FUNNIEST PEOPLE ABC
8 SEPTEMBER 1990–28 AUGUST 1994 This half-hour sequel to ABC's huge hit America's Funniest Home Videos consisted of more of the same—videos of folks telling jokes, doing impressions, or performing stunts. David Coulier (who, like Bob Saget of America's Funniest Home Videos, was also a regular on ABC's sitcom Full House) cohosted the show with Arleen Sorkin for the first two seasons; Tawny Kitaen succeeded Sorkin in the fall of 1992. The pilot for the series was telecast as a special on 13 May 1990.

AMERICA'S HEALTH ABC
20 AUGUST 1951–6 MARCH 1952 A series of public-interest films on health and medicine.

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED FOX

7 FEBRUARY 1988– This half-hour series became one of the most popular and durable shows on the fledgling Fox network. It was first aired on Fox's several owned-and-operated stations, and was offered to all affiliates on 10 April 1988. It presented information on wanted fugitives, and incorporated photographs, interviews, and reenactments of crimes. By 1992 more than 200 persons who had been profiled on the series had been apprehended; a few of those "captured" were already in prison at the time, serving sentences under another name on unrelated charges. John Walsh was the host; the kidnapping and murder of his young son had been the subject of a 1983 TV-movie, "Adam." In 1995 a companion series was introduced. Also hosted by Walsh, America's Most Wanted: Final Justice focused on those persons who had been apprehended after their crimes had been depicted on America's Most Wanted. On 16 July 1989 the series became the first Fox program to rank first in its time slot. The format of America's Most Wanted was not new to television. CBS had carried a similar series more than thirty years earlier: see Wanted.

AMERICA'S TOP 10 SYNDICATED

1980–1990 Announcer/disc jockey Casey Kasem hosted this half-hour musical series, which highlights the week's Top Ten records as appearing on Billboard magazine's pop singles chart. Shadoe Stevens took over from Kasem as host in 1988.

AMERICA'S TOWN MEETING ABC

5 OCTOBER 1948–8 MARCH 1949; 27 JANUARY 1952–6 JULY 1952 Public affairs discussion program which featured guest speakers and audience debate. George V. Denny, who originated the show on radio in 1935, hosted the series in 1948 and 1952, John Daly in 1949.

AMERIKA ABC

15 FEBRUARY 1987–22 FEBRUARY 1987 A heavy-handed, seven-part, fourteen-and-a-half-hour miniseries set in 1997, when the United States has fallen, without bloodshed, under Soviet domination. Featured were Kris Kristofferson as Vietnam veteran Devin Milford; Wendy Hughes as his ex-wife, Marion; Armin Mueller-Stahl as General Samanov; Robert Urich as Peter Bradford, the governor-general of Heartland, the new American government; Cindy Pickett as Amanda, his wife; Sam Neill as Colonel Andrei Denisov; and Mariel Hemingway as Kimberly Ballard.

THE AMES BROTHERS SHOW SYNDICATED

1955 Fifteen-minute musical series starring the Ames Brothers (Joe, Gene, Vic, and Ed), who began recording in 1949. Youngest brother Ed went on to record as a solo artist and later appeared as Mingo in Daniel Boone.

THE AMOS AND ANDY SHOW CBS

28 JUNE 1951–11 JUNE 1953 Amos and Andy, the immensely popular black characters created on radio in 1928 by white dialecticians Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, were brought to television in 1951. CBS is reported to have paid Gosden and Correll $1 million each for the rights to the series. All the television roles were filled by black performers: Tim Moore as George (Kingfish) Stevens, a scheming con man and president of the Mystic Knights of the Sea, a fraternal order; Spencer Williams as Andrew H. Brown, Kingfish's trusting friend and usual mark; Alvin Childress as Amos Jones, a level-headed cabdriver (for the Fresh Air Cab Co.); Ernestine Wade as Sapphire Stevens, the Kingfish's nagging wife; Amanda Randolph as Mama, Sapphire's mother; Johnny Lee as Algonquin J. Calhoun, a fast-talking lawyer; Nick O'Demus as Lightnin', the janitor at the lodge. Jester Hairston was seen occasionally, playing two roles: Leroy, Sapphire's brother, and snooty Henry Van Horne. Theme: "The Perfect Song." Gosden and Correll supervised the production; Charles Barton directed most of the episodes. Many of the scripts were written by Joe Connelly and Bob Mosher, who went on to greater fame as the creators of Leave It to Beaver.

Although the series lasted only two seasons, it was widely syndicated until 1966, when pressure from civil rights groups prompted CBS to withdraw the series from syndication. The basis of their complaints was that the characterizations were stereotyped and only served to reinforce the feelings of prejudice harbored by white Americans. Whether the characterizations presented a more objectionable stereotype than those of Sanford and Son is for the sociologists to debate. Its historical significance should not be overlooked: It was the first television dramatic series with an all-black cast, and the only one until Sanford and Son in 1971. Indeed, it was not until 1965 that a black performer (Bill Cosby) costarred as a regular in a dramatic series, I Spy.

In the fall of 1983, after a seventeen-year hiatus, reruns of Amos and Andy popped up on an independent station in Atlanta. A San Diego attorney, Michael Avery, also produced a documentary about the series, "Amos 'n' Andy, Anatomy of a Controversy"; the program was hosted by George Kirby and featured interviews with surviving cast members and with civil rights leaders, as well as highlights from the series.

AMOS BURKE, SECRET AGENT
See BURKE'S LAW

AMY PRENTISS NBC
1 DECEMBER 1974–6 JULY 1975 One segment of the NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, alternating with McCloud, Columbo, and McMillan and Wife. Jessica Walter starred as widow Amy Prentiss, chief of detectives for the San Francisco police department; Art Metrano costarred as Detective Roy Pena; Steve Sandor as Sergeant Tony Russell; and Gwenn Mitchell as Joan Carter, her secretary. Produced by Cy Chermak for Universal Television.

AND EVERYTHING NICE DUMONT
8 MARCH 1949–9 JANUARY 1950 Maxine Barratt hosted this weekly talk show for women.

AND HERE'S THE SHOW NBC
9 JULY 1955–24 SEPTEMBER 1955 A summer replacement for The George Gobel Show, this half-hour variety series was a showcase for new talent. Hosted by Ransom Sherman, it featured a young comedian named Jonathan Winters, and the Double-Daters: Stephanie Antie, Kay O'Grady, Tommy Knox, and Ted Canterbury.

THE ANDROS TARGETS CBS
31 JANUARY 1977–9 JULY 1977 Hour adventure series about a team of investigative journalists working for the New York Forum, a great metropolitan daily newspaper. With James Sutorius as Mike Andros; Pamela Reed as Sandi Farrell; Roy Poole as Chet Reynolds; and Ted Beniades as Wayne Hillman. Bob Sweeney and Larry Rosen were the executive producers.

ANDY

THE ANDY GRIFFITH SHOW CBS
3 OCTOBER 1960–16 SEPTEMBER 1968 The first, and probably the best, of the rural-oriented comedies brought to TV by James T. Aubrey, then president of CBS-TV. Its success engendered later hits such as The Beverly Hillbillies, Petticoat Junction, and Green Acres, as well as Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C., a spinoff. It starred Andy Griffith, a low-key comedian from North Carolina who had starred in "No Time for Sergeants" on The U.S. Steel Hour and later on Broadway. Here, Griffith played widower Andy Taylor, sheriff of Mayberry, North Carolina. Regulars included Don Knotts (1960–1965) as his cousin Barney Fife, the zealous but inept deputy sheriff; six-year-old Ronny Howard as Opie, Andy's son; Frances Bavier as Andy's aunt, Bee Taylor, who lived in and helped care for Opie. The townspeople included Jim Nabors (1963–1964) as Gomer Pyle, gas pump jockey; Howard McNear as Floyd Lawson, the barber; Paul Hartman as Emmet Clark, a handyman; Jack Dodson as Howard Sprague, the town clerk; Elinor Donahue (1960–1961) as Elly Walker, drugstore salesclerk; Betty Lynn as Thelma Lou, Barney's girlfriend; Aneta Corsaut (1964–1967) as schoolteacher Helen Crump, Andy's girlfriend; Hal Smith as Otis Campbell, the town drunk.

When Nabors left in 1964 for his own series (Gomer Pyle), George Lindsey joined the cast as Goober Pyle, Gomer's cousin. In 1965, Knotts, who won five Emmys for his portrayal of Deputy Fife, left the series; it was explained that Fife became a detective in Raleigh. Replacing him as deputy was Warren Ferguson, played by Jack Burns. By 1968 Griffith, too, had decided to leave the series. During the last season Andy Taylor married Helen Crump. Joining the cast were Ken Berry as farmer and town councilman Sam Jones, and Arlene Golonka as Millie Hutchins. After Griffith's departure the series continued for three more seasons as Mayberry, R.F.D. (see that title). The Andy Griffith Show was syndicated as Andy of Mayberry.

Most of the cast (except for Frances Bavier, who was ill) was reunited in "Return to Mayberry," an NBC TV-movie broadcast 13 April 1986. Directed by Bob Sweeney (who had directed some 100 of the series's 249 episodes), it was one of the better TV sequels. It was also the top-rated TV-movie of the 1985–1986 season. CBS broadcast a retrospective, "The Andy Griffith Show Reunion," on 10 February 1993.

THE ANDY WILLIAMS SHOW NBC/ABC/CBS/SYNDICATED

2 JULY 1957–5 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC); 3 JULY 1958–25 SEPTEMBER 1958 (ABC); 7 JULY 1959–22 SEPTEMBER 1959 (CBS); 27 SEPTEMBER 1962–3 SEPTEMBER 1967 (NBC); 20 SEPTEMBER 1969–17 JULY 1971 (NBC); 1976 (SYNDICATED) Singer Andy Williams began his musical career in his teens as one of the Four Williams Brothers, who sang behind Kay Thompson. The group disbanded in 1952, and in 1954 Williams became a featured vocalist on the Tonight show, joining Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gormé. In 1957 he appeared in the first of several shows that bear his name; The Andy Williams-June Valli Show was a twice-weekly, fifteen-minute series, a summer replacement for The Jonathan Winters Show and The Dinah Shore Show. June Valli, Williams's cohost, had been a winner on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts and had been featured on Your Hit Parade and Stop the Music; she and Williams had appeared together in "Five Stars for Springtime," a 1957 NBC special.

In 1958 Williams's show, titled The Chevy Showroom, was a summer replacement for The Pat Boone Show; Dick Van Dyke and the Bob Hamilton Trio were regulars. In 1959 Williams moved to his third network and his third summer series, a replacement for The Garry Moore Show. In 1962, Williams was finally given a fall series on NBC; the hour show lasted five seasons and featured The New Christy Minstrels and the Osmond Brothers. His third NBC series, which premiered in 1969, featured comics Charlie Callas and Irwin Corey, along with Janos Prohaska (as the Cookie Bear); the hour show lasted another two seasons. In an effort to make this Saturday-night series appealing to younger audiences, Mike Post was hired as musical director; Post had produced Mason Williams's gigantic instrumental hit, "Classical Gas," a year earlier. One of Post's first ideas was to prerecord the band arrangements in a recording studio, rather than record them on stage simultaneously with the actual taping of the program. This innovation, then unheard of, soon became the norm for most television variety shows. Post went on to compose (often in collaboration with Pete Carpenter) the music for many TV series, including Toma, The Rockford Files, The Greatest American Hero, and Hill Street Blues. In 1976 Williams hosted a syndicated series, entitled Andy. The half-hour show featured puppeteer Wayland Flowers; Pierre Cossette was the executive producer.

ANDY'S GANG NBC

20 AUGUST 1955–31 DECEMBER 1960 Andy's Gang was the successor to Smilin' Ed's Gang and was so retitled when gravel-voiced Andy Devine took over as host following the death of Smilin' Ed McConnell. The rest of the gang remained with the show, including Midnight the Cat, Squeaky the Mouse, and the mischievous Froggy the Gremlin ("Plunk your magic twanger, Froggy!"). Filmed sequences were also part of the program; the adventures of Gunga Ram, an Indian boy, were often shown, starring Nino Marcel as Gunga.

ANGEL CBS

6 OCTOBER 1960–20 SEPTEMBER 1961 Domestic sitcom about an American architect married to a Frenchwoman. With Marshall Thompson as Johnny Smith; Annie Farge as Angel Smith; Doris Singleton as neighbor Susie; and Don Keefer as Susie's husband George. Produced by Jess Oppenheimer.

ANGEL FALLS CBS

26 AUGUST 1993–30 SEPTEMBER 1993 A small town in Montana was the setting of this short-lived hour prime-time serial. With Chelsea Field as Rae Dawn Snow, who took over the Red Eye Pool Hall in Angel Falls after her father's death; Jeremy London as Sonny, her son; Brian Kerwin as her old boyfriend, Eli Harrison; Kim Cattrall as Eli's wife, Genna; Peggy Lipton as Hadley Larson; James Brolin as her husband, Luke, the school basketball coach; Jean Simmons as Luke's mother, Irene Larson; Cassidy Rae as Molly Harrison; Robert Rusler as Toby; Marlee Shelton as Brandi; Shirley Knight as Eddie Wren; Shannon Wilcox as Rowena; Grace Zabriskie as Cuema; and William Frankfather as Sheriff Bailey.

ANGEL STREET CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1992–3 OCTOBER 1992 The first casualty of the 1992–1993 season, Angel Street was placed on hiatus after three episodes and never returned. The hour cop show starred Robin Givens and Pamela Gidley as Officers Anita King and Dorothy Paretsky, the only women assigned to a Chicago homicide unit. Also featured were Ron Dean as Detective Kenny Branigan and Joe Guzaldo as Sergeant Ciamacco. Originally to have been titled Polish Hill, its troubles began long before it hit the airwaves. The show had to be extensively reworked after rival producer Barry Levinson claimed that it had borrowed too heavily from the book Homicide, which was the inspiration for his 1993 crime show, Homicide: Life on the Street.

ANGIE ABC

8 FEBRUARY 1979–23 OCTOBER 1980 Half-hour sitcom about a Philadelphia waitress who met and married a wealthy pediatrician. With Donna Pescow as Angie Falco, a waitress at the Liberty Coffee Shop; Robert Hays as Dr. Brad Benson; Sharon Spelman as Joyce Benson, Brad's thrice-divorced and insufferable older sister; Tammy Lauren (spring 1979) as Hillary, Joyce's daughter; Debralee Scott as Marie Falco, Angie's younger sister; Diane Robin as waitress DiDi Malloy; and Doris Roberts as Angie's mother, Theresa Falco, a newsstand operator. Executive producers: Dale McRaven and Bob Ellison for Paramount TV.

ANIMAL CLINIC ABC

19 AUGUST 1950–13 JANUARY 1951 This early Saturday morning series focused on animal care and behavior. Broadcast from Chicago, it was hosted by a veterinarian, Dr. Wesley A. Young, who was assisted by trainer Oscar Franzen and Don Driscoll.

ANIMAL CRACK-UPS ABC

8 AUGUST 1987–1 SEPTEMBER 1990 Alan Thicke hosted this panel show, on which celebrity panelists attempted to answer questions about animals and their behavior. The actual answers were supplied in video footage acquired from the Tokyo Broadcasting System. The series was introduced in prime time in August 1987, but moved to ABC's Saturday-morning lineup on 12 September 1987; early in 1990 it moved briefly to Sunday mornings.

ANIMAL SECRETS NBC

15 OCTOBER 1966–8 APRIL 1967 Half-hour documentary series on animal behavior, hosted by Loren C. Eisley.

ANIMAL WORLD (ANIMAL KINGDOM) NBC/CBS/ABC/SYNDICATED

16 JUNE 1968–1 SEPTEMBER 1968 (NBC); 8 MAY 1969–18 SEPTEMBER 1969 (CBS); 30 APRIL 1970–17 SEPTEMBER 1970 (ABC); 11 JULY 1971–12 SEPTEMBER 1971 (CBS); 1973–1980 (SYNDICATED) Narrated by Bill Burrud, Animal World was a series of half-hour wildlife documentaries which frequently found its way onto network schedules as a summer replacement. From 1973 to 1980 the show was available in syndication. Charles Sutton was the executive producer for Bill Burrud Productions, Inc.

ANIMALS, ANIMALS, ANIMALS ABC
12 SEPTEMBER 1976–8 NOVEMBER 1981 This Sunday-morning show about animals was narrated by Hal Linden, star of Barney Miller.

ANIMANIACS (STEVEN SPIELBERG PRESENTS ANIMANIACS) FOX/WB
13 SEPTEMBER 1993–2 SEPTEMBER 1995 (FOX); 9 SEPTEMBER 1995– (WB) Half-hour cartoon show whose central characters were the Warner Brothers—Yakko and Wakko—and their sister, Dot. The zany trio had escaped from the Warner Bros. lot, and often battled a psychiatrist named Dr. Scratchansniff.

ANN JILLIAN NBC
30 NOVEMBER 1989–20 JANUARY 1990; 5 AUGUST 1990–1 SEPTEMBER 1990 Ann Jillian, star of the sitcom It's a Living and of the 1988 TV-movie that dramatized her battle with breast cancer, briefly headlined in this half-hour sitcom. Jillian played Ann McNeil, a widow who moved from New York City to Marvel, California, with her teenage daughter. Also featured were Lisa Rieffel as her daughter, Lucy; Cynthia Harris as Sheila, owner of the cafe where Ann found work; Amy Lynne as Sheila's assistant, Robin Winkle; Noble Willingham as Ann's neighbor, Duke Sumner; Zachary Rosenkrantz as Duke's grandson, Kaz Sumner; and Chantel Rivera Batisse as stuck-up Melissa Santos, whom Kaz had a crush on. The series ran in prime time during the winter of 1989–1990 and again in August 1990, ending its run with a brief stop on NBC's Saturday-morning schedule.

THE ANN SOTHERN SHOW CBS
6 OCTOBER 1958–25 SEPTEMBER 1961 A new format for Ann Sothern, last seen as Susie, a private secretary. In this sitcom Sothern played Kathleen (Katy) O'Connor, assistant manager of the Bartley House, a New York hotel. The original cast included Ernest Truex as Jason McCauley, the manager; Ann Tyrrell as Olive Smith, Katy's secretary; Jack Mullaney as Johnny Wallace, the bellhop; Jacques Scott as Paul Martine, the desk clerk; and Reta Shaw as Flora McCauley. In March 1959 all the cast members except for Tyrrell were jettisoned, and virtually the entire cast from the old Private Secretary series was brought in: Don Porter as James Devery, the manager; Ken Berry as Woody, the bellhop; Louis Nye (1960–1961) as Dr. Delbert Gray, the hotel dentist; and Jesse White as Oscar Pudney, the newsstand operator.

ANNA AND THE KING CBS
17 SEPTEMBER 1972–31 DECEMBER 1972 Anna Leonowens's true-life adventures in nineteenth-century Siam were the subject of a book, a play, and two films before this television series. Despite lavish sets (including backdrops from the 1956 film, The King and I) and the presence of Yul Brynner (recreating his film role), the show went nowhere. With Yul Brynner as the King of Siam; Samantha Eggar as Anna Owens, the American schoolteacher hired by the King to educate his children; Keye Luke as Kralahome, the King's officious aide; Eric Shea as Louis, Anna's son; Brian Tochi as Prince Chula, the crown prince; and Lisa Lu as Lady Thiang, the King's number-one wife.

ANNIE McGUIRE CBS
26 OCTOBER 1988–28 DECEMBER 1988 Mary Tyler Moore's 1988 sitcom lasted just eight episodes after changing titles (it was to have been called Mary Tyler Moore) and leading men just weeks before the premiere date. Moore played Annie McGuire, a community relations coordinator in New York who had recently remarried. Denis Arndt played her husband (replacing Edward J. Moore), Nick McGuire. Other regulars included Adrien Brody as Nick's fourteen-year-old son, Lenny; Cynthia Marie King as Nick's nine-year-old daughter, Debbie; Bradley Warden as Annie's twelve-year-old son, Lewis; Eileen Heckart as Emma, Annie's ultraliberal mother; and John Randolph as Red, Nick's ultraconservative father.

ANNIE OAKLEY SYNDICATED
1952–1956 Children's western, set in the town of Diablo. With Gail Davis as Annie Oakley, gun-toting rancher; Brad Johnson as Sheriff Lofty Craig; and Jimmy Hawkins as Tagg, Annie's kid brother. Shelley Fabares, later to star in The Donna Reed Show, appeared occasionally. Davis, a skilled rider (her horse was called Target) and a crack shot, did most of her own stunt work. The series, the first western to star a woman, was produced by Gene Autry's Flying A Productions.

THE ANNIVERSARY GAME SYNDICATED
1970 Al Hamel hosted this game show which featured three married couples. Most of the games involved one person attempting to predict whether his or her spouse would successfully perform a stunt.

ANOTHER DAY CBS
8 APRIL 1978–29 APRIL 1978 Domestic sitcom about a married couple, both of whom held down full-time jobs, their two children, and her mother-in-law. With David Groh as Don Gardner, an advertising executive; Joan Hackett as Ginny Gardner, who worked at an insurance company; Hope Summers as Don's live-in mother, Olive Gardner; Lisa Lindgren as their daughter, Kelly; and Al Eisenmann as their son, Mark. Created by James Komack, the half-hour series was produced by Paul Mason. Paul Williams composed and sang the show's theme.

ANOTHER LIFE SYNDICATED
1981–1984 Produced by the Christian Broadcasting Network, this daily half-hour serial dealt, as do other soap operas, with such topics as adultery, divorce, and alcoholism. Unlike the others, however, it conveyed a message: that all crises can be resolved (according to CBN) "through the application of Judeo-Christian principles." The series was set in the town of Kingsley, and its principal players included: Mary Jean Feton as recently widowed Terry Davidson, a nurse; Jeannette Larson and Debbie McLeod as her daughter, Lori; Darrel Campbell as her son, Peter; Matt Williams as Dr. Ben Martin, who married Lori; Edye Byrde as Ione Redlon; Eddie Hailey as her son, reporter Gene Redlon; Kari Page and Elain Graham as Gene's wife, Carla Redlon; Randy Kraft, Jr., as businessman Charles Carpenter; Suzanne Granfield as his wife, Helen Carpenter; Ginger Burgett as their daughter, Miriam; Robert Bendall as Miriam's husband (and later ex-husband), Paul Mason; Tom Urich as Dr. David Phillips, a reformed alcoholic; Dorothy Stinette (formerly of Somerset and The Edge of Night) as his former wife, Kate Phillips, who was murdered; Karen Chapman as their daughter Stacey; Peggy Woody as their daughter Amber; Chris Roland as Russ Weaver; Susan Scannell as Becky Huette, who married Russ; Michael Ryan as Russ's father, mobster Vince Cardello; Nick Benedict (formerly of All My Children) as Vince's murderer, Ronnie Washington; Kelly Gwin as Hugo Lancelot; Chandler Harben (formerly of Love of Life and The Doctors) as Blue Nobles; Paul Gleason and Jim Williams as politician Lee Carothers; Julie Jenny as Babs Farley; Alan Sader as Harold Webster; Nancy Mulvey as Nancy Lawson; Jerry Timm and Michael Hunter as Gil Prescott; Renee Crawford-McCullah as Marianne Prescott; Tom McGowan as Jeff Cummings; Carolyn Lenz as Liz Cummings; Kathryn King and Annamarie Smith as Vicki Lang; Dee Dee Bridgewater as Samantha Marshall; Ray Owens as Mitch Dunbar; Bob Turnbull as Tab Baron; Kim Strong as Dan Myers; Bob Burchette as Alex Greeley; and Rick Warner as John Brewbaker. Robert Aaron was the original executive producer, and Roy Winsor (who created Search for Tomorrow and The Secret Storm) the first story consultant, of the series, which was taped at CBN's Virginia Beach facilities.

ANOTHER WORLD NBC
4 MAY 1964– Another of the successful daytime serials created by Irna Phillips, Another World has made soap opera history: it was the first serial to engender a spinoff (Somerset, which bore little resemblance to the parent; a second spinoff, Texas, premiered in 1980), the first to expand to a full hour (on 6 January 1975; many other soaps followed suit), and the first to expand again to ninety minutes (from 5 March 1979 to 1 August 1980, when it was cut back to an hour to make room for Texas). Another World's story lines have emphasized psychological themes; as Irna Phillips explained in an interview, the serial is supposed to depict the difference between "the world of events we live in and the world of feelings and dreams that we strive for." The series was the number-two-ranked soap opera for most of the 1970s, before slipping to the middle of the daytime pack during the 1980s. Irna Phillips, who created the series with William Bell, left it during the late 1960s; among her successors as head writers have been James Lipton, Agnes Nixon, Robert Cenedella, Harding Lemay, Tom King and Robert Soderberg, L. Virginia Browne, Corinne Jacker, Soderberg and Dorothy Ann Purser, Richard Culliton, Gary Tomlin, Samuel Ratcliffe, Gillian Spencer, Sam Hall, Donna Swajeski, Peggy Sloane, and Carolyn Culliton. Procter and Gamble owns the series.

Another World is set in Bay City. The cast has included: John Beal, Leon Janney, Shepperd Strudwick, and Hugh Marlowe as accountant Jim Matthews, husband of Mary and father of three children; Virginia Dwyer as his wife, Mary Matthews (Mary and Jim were both written out by the end of the 1970s); Susan Trustman and Beverly Penberthy as their elder daughter, Pat Matthews; Joey Trent, Sam Groom, Bob Hover, and David Bailey as their son, Dr. Russ Matthews; Jacqueline Courtney, Susan Harney, Wesley Ann Pfenning, Vana Tribbey, Linda Borgeson, and Jacqueline Courtney (again) as their younger daughter, Alice Matthews; Sara Cunningham, Audra Lindley, Nancy Wickwire, and Irene Dailey as Jim and Mary's sister-in-law, Liz Matthews (in the very first scene on the 1964 premiere, Liz, whose husband had just died, was in tears); Joe Gallison as Liz's son, lawyer Bill Matthews, who drowned in 1968; Liza Chapman as Liz's daughter Janet Matthews; Fran Sharon, Roni Dengel, Lisa Cameron, and Lynn Milgrim as Liz's daughter Susan Matthews; Vera Allen as Grandma Matthews; Nicholas Pryor as Pat's boyfriend, Tom Baxter, who talked Pat into having an abortion and was later killed by her; William Prince as Ken Baxter; Michael Ryan as lawyer John Randolph, who defended Pat and later married her (they were then divorced); Jeanne Beirne, Lora McDonald, Tracey Brown, Loriann Ruger, Jill Turnball, Tiberia Mitri, Ariane Munker, Adrienne Wallace, and Beth Collins as Marianne Randolph, daughter of John and Pat; Gaye Huston and Barbara Rodell as John's daughter from a previous marriage, Lee Randolph, who got into LSD and died in a car crash; Carol Roux as Melinda Palmer, who was accused of murder and was defended by Bill Matthews, who later married her; Antony Ponzini as Melinda's ex-husband, Danny Fargo, a crook; Constance Ford as Ada Davis Downs Hobson (Ford played the role from 1967 until her death in 1993); Jordan Charney as Ada's brother, Sam Lucas; Ann Wedgeworth as Lahoma Vane, who married Sam (Lahoma and Sam later moved to Somerset); Robin Strasser, Margaret Impert, and Victoria Wyndham as Ada's daughter, Rachel Davis, who married Russ Matthews and later divorced him (after Wyndham took over the role, Rachel became one of the series's major characters; Wyndham also played a second role, Justine, in 1994); George Reinholt as Steven Frame, who married Alice Matthews, then Rachel Davis, and then Alice again before his supposed death in a helicopter accident (thought to have been killed, he miraculously reappeared a few years later, played by David Canary; Steven finally died in a car crash on his way to remarry Rachel); Victoria Thompson and Christine Jones as evil Janice Frame, Steven's sister; John Fitzpatrick and Leon Russom as Willis Frame, Steven's brother; Charles Baxter as Fred Douglas, who married Susan Matthews; Robert Milli as Wayne Addison; Val Dufour as District Attorney Walter Curtin, who killed Wayne; Judith Barcroft and Susan Sullivan as Lenore Moore Curtin, Walter's wife, who was indicted for Wayne's murder; Scott Firestone and Dennis McKiernan as Wally Curtin, son of Walter and Lenore; Muriel Williams as Helen Moore, Lenore's mother; Janice Young as Bernice Addison; Seth Holzlein, Aiden McNulty, Tyler Mead, Brad Bedford, Bobby Doran, Tim Holcum, Richard Bekins, Stephen Yates, Laurence Lau, and Russell Todd as James (Jamie) Frame, son of Rachel and Steve; Stephen Bolster as Ted Clark, who became Rachel's second husband; Leonie Norton as nurse

ANSWER YES OR NO NBC

30 APRIL 1950–23 JULY 1950 Playwright Moss Hart hosted this Sunday-night game show on which a celebrity panel tried to predict whether contestants would answer yes or no to getting involved in a hypothetical situation.

ANSWERS FOR AMERICANS ABC

11 NOVEMBER 1953–24 FEBRUARY 1954 Wednesday-evening public affairs show, moderated by Deven Garrity. The panel included General Frank Howley, Professor John K. Norton, and Hardy Burt.

THE ANTAGONISTS CBS

26 MARCH 1991–30 MAY 1991 Hour crime show about a young prosecutor, a young defense attorney, and their on-again, off-again personal relationship. With Lauren Holly as the prosecutor, Kate Ward; David Andrews as the defense lawyer, Jack Scarlett; Matt Roth as Jack's law student assistant, Clark Munsinger; Lisa Jane Persky as Kate's friend and co-worker, Joanie Rutledge; and Brent Jennings as their supervisor, assistant D.A. Marvin Thompson. Nine episodes were televised.

ANYBODY CAN PLAY (ANYONE CAN PLAY) ABC

6 JULY 1958–8 DECEMBER 1958 George Fenneman hosted this nighttime game show on which four contestants sought to identify a hidden object. The show was originally entitled Anybody Can Play and, for reasons unknown, was retitled Anyone Can Play.

ANYONE CAN WIN CBS

14 JULY 1953–1 SEPTEMBER 1953 Al Capp hosted this prime-time game show, which was seen biweekly for most of its short run. On each show four celebrity panelists competed in a question-and-answer segment; three of the celebs were fully visible to viewers, while the fourth wore the mask of a Capp cartoon character, Hairless Joe. Members of the studio audience could back any of the celebrities; those who backed the panelist who correctly answered the most questions split $2,000 among themselves. Periodically through the show, calls were placed to home viewers, who were given the opportunity to identify the masked panelist.

ANYTHING BUT LOVE ABC

7 MARCH 1989–11 APRIL 1989; 15 AUGUST 1989–29 AUGUST 1989; 27 SEPTEMBER 1989–28 MARCH 1990; 18 JULY 1990–5 SEPTEMBER 1990; 6 FEBRUARY 1991–5 JUNE 1991; 7 AUGUST 1991–12 FEBRUARY 1992; 27 MAY 1992–10 JUNE 1992 A witty sitcom, set at the offices of a Chicago magazine. It starred Jamie Lee Curtis as Hannah Miller, a former teacher and aspiring writer who was originally hired as a researcher, and Richard Lewis as Marty Gold, an established writer. Hannah and Marty started out in a purely platonic relationship, but gradually they realized they were attracted to each other, and consummated their relationship in March 1991. In the spring of 1989, the setting was the Chicago Weekly, and the supporting cast included Sandy Faison as Pamela Peyton-Finch; Richard Frank as Jules Kramer; Bruce Kirby as Leo Miller, Hannah's father; Louis Giambalvo as Norman Kiel; and Robin Frates as Debbie. When the show returned in the fall of 1989, most of the supporting cast had been replaced, the magazine was now the Chicago Monthly, and Hannah became a writer. Featured were Ann Magnuson as the new editor, the trendy and hyper Catherine Hughes; Richard Frank as her assistant, now named Jules Bennett; Joseph Maher (1989–1990) as writer Brian Alquist; and Holly Fulger as Robin Dulitski, a school chum of Hannah's who owned the duplex in which Hannah lived. Bruce Weitz joined the cast in 1991, as writer Mike Urbanek, and John Ritter appeared occasionally as dashing photographer Patric Serreau. Wendy Kout created the series, and served as its executive producer and head writer during its spring 1989 run, but left the show due to "creative differences" with Curtis and Lewis. Anything But Love constantly disappeared and reappeared on ABC's schedule during its three-year run, which made it difficult to build a loyal audience. In the spring of 1992 the production company, rather than the network, announced it was halting production.

ANYTHING FOR MONEY SYNDICATED

1984–1985 This game show borrowed an element from Candid Camera, as two contestants watched videos of unsuspecting persons being approached by the show's staffers, who would ask them to do something ridiculous (such as ride a rowboat through a carwash) for money (up to $300 per stunt). The tapes were stopped before the subjects announced their decisions, and the contestants tried to predict whether the subjects would agree to do the stunt. Impressionist Fred Travalena presided over the merriment.

ANYWHERE, U.S.A. ABC

9 NOVEMBER 1952–14 DECEMBER 1952 A lighthearted look at health and nutrition, hosted by Eddie Dowling.

APPLE PIE ABC

23 SEPTEMBER 1978–7 OCTOBER 1978 Half-hour sitcom, set in 1933 in Kansas City, about a woman who put together a "family" by placing classified ads in the newspaper. With Rue McClanahan as Ginger-Nell Hollyhock, a hairdresser; Jack Gilford as the blind and feisty Grandpa; Caitlin O'Heaney as the daughter, Anna Marie; Derrel Maury as the son, Junior; and Dabney Coleman as Eddie Murtaugh, the man of the house. Charlie Hauck produced this short-lived show for Norman Lear's T. A. T. Communications.

APPLE'S WAY CBS

10 FEBRUARY 1974–12 JANUARY 1975 A Los Angeles architect returns to his hometown (Appleton, Iowa) with his family. With Ronny Cox as George Apple; Frances Lee McCain as Barbara Apple; Vincent Van Patten as son Paul; Patti Cohoon as daughter Cathy; Franny Michel (February 1974–September 1974) and Kristy McNichol (September 1974–January 1975) as daughter Patricia; Eric Olson as son Steven; and Malcolm Atterbury as Grandpa (Alden Apple). Created by Earl Hamner, the series was supposed to be a contemporary version of The Waltons. Executive producers: Lee Rich and Earl Hamner.

APPOINTMENT WITH ADVENTURE CBS

3 APRIL 1955–1 APRIL 1956 Half-hour dramatic anthology series.

THE AQUANAUTS CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1960–22 FEBRUARY 1961 Ivan Tors, producer of Sea Hunt, produced this hour-long adventure series which featured not one, but two divers. Originally featured were Keith Larsen as Drake Andrews and Jeremy Slate as Larry Lahr. A sinus operation necessitated Larsen's withdrawal from the show in midseason, and he was replaced by Ron Ely, as Mike Madison, on 25 January. It was explained that Drake Andrews had decided to rejoin the Navy. Charles Thompson was occasionally featured as the Captain. In March the show's format and title were changed (see Malibu Run).

ARA'S SPORTS WORLD SYNDICATED

1976 Sports series hosted by Ara Parseghian, former football coach at Notre Dame.

10 SEPTEMBER 1977–12 NOVEMBER 1977
THE BANG-SHANG LALAPALOOZA SHOW NBC
19 NOVEMBER 1977–28 JANUARY 1978
THE NEW ARCHIES NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1987–3 SEPTEMBER 1988; 5 NOVEMBER 1988–4 FEBRUARY 1989 Bob Montana's cartoon high schoolers were a fixture on Saturday-morning TV for a decade, though the gang—including Archie Andrews, Jughead Jones, Veronica Lodge, Betty Cooper, Reggie Mantle, and all the rest—have been featured in a different format almost every season. The early years of the series emphasized music, and the Archies (as the assemblage of anonymous studio musicians was called) released several records; one, "Sugar, Sugar," was a monster hit. After one season The Archie Show, a half-hour vehicle that introduced the Riverdale revelers to television, gave way to The Archie Comedy Hour. Archie and his pals now shared space with Sabrina, the teenage witch. (In later years, Sabrina would be featured in her own shows, and even later would be reunited with Archie in a joint hour.) In 1970, Archie's Funhouse, back to a half hour, premiered (Sabrina had gone off to her own show with the Groovie Goolies). A year later came Archie's TV Funnies, a half-hour show in which Archie and the crew ran a television station. This was the first format which lasted more than one season. It was replaced by Everything's Archie, which in turn was replaced by The U.S. of Archie in 1974, as the group prepared for the Bicentennial. After a season's absence (1976–1977), Archie returned in 1977 on NBC, in The New Archie Sabrina Hour. Archie and Sabrina parted company again after only a few weeks, as the hour was broken into two half-hour shows, The Bang-Shang Lalapalooza Show (featuring the Archie gang) and Super Witch (featuring Sabrina). Both were dropped in midseason. After a nine-year hiatus, Archie and his pals returned to NBC's Saturday morning lineup as junior high schoolers in The New Archies. A TV-movie surfaced in 1990, marking the first time that the characters had appeared in live-action form. A grown-up Archie and his pals returned for their high school reunion in "Archie, To Riverdale and Back," which aired on NBC 6 May 1990.

ARCHIE BUNKER'S PLACE
See ALL IN THE FAMILY

ARE YOU POSITIVE NBC
6 JULY 1952–24 AUGUST 1952 Bill Stern first hosted this Sunday game show, on which sports personalities tried to guess the identities of other famous athletes from blown-up negatives. Stern was succeeded by Frank Coniff late in July.

ARK II CBS
11 SEPTEMBER 1976–13 NOVEMBER 1977; 16 SEPTEMBER 1978–25 AUGUST 1979 Weekend daytime series for children, set in the twenty-fifth century, in which the Ark II, a traveling repository of scientific knowledge, and its youthful crew attempted to save a civilization ravaged by global war and ecological plunder. Its mission: "To bring the hope of a new future to mankind." With Terry Lester as Jonah, the captain; Jean Marie Hon as Ruth; José Flores as Samuel, and Adam the talking chimp.

THE ARLENE FRANCIS SHOW NBC
12 AUGUST 1957–21 FEBRUARY 1958 The successor to Home, the ambitious magazine of the air hosted by Arlene Francis. This thirty-minute daytime show was a blend of chitchat and features.

ARMCHAIR DETECTIVE CBS
6 JULY 1949–28 SEPTEMBER 1949 John Milton Kennedy hosted this early game show in which studio contestants tried to solve mysteries acted out on stage.

THE ARMED FORCES HOUR NBC/DUMONT
30 OCTOBER 1949–11 JUNE 1950 (NBC); 4 FEBRUARY 1951–6 MAY 1951 (DUMONT) One of the first television series supplied by the United States government, The Armed Forces Hour was produced by the Department of Defense. Broadcast from Washington, it emphasized the process of the unification of the separate service branches. Segments were culled from the estimated 500 million feet of film already on hand. Production of the series (which, despite its title, was only a thirty-minute show) was supervised by Major Robert P. Keim (USAF) and Lieutenant Benjamin S. Greenberg (USNR) of the Public Information Office of the Department of Defense.

ARMSTRONG CIRCLE THEATER (CIRCLE THEATER) NBC/CBS
6 JUNE 1950–25 JUNE 1957 (NBC); 2 OCTOBER 1957–28 AUGUST 1963 (CBS) This high-quality anthology series specialized in dramatizations of actual events, but a few documentaries were also broadcast. It began as a half-hour weekly series and was more commonly known as the Circle Theater. In 1955, a one-hour format was adopted, and the series began a biweekly run, alternating with Playwrights '56 (1955– 1956), The Kaiser Aluminum Hour (1956–1957), and on CBS, The U.S. Steel Hour (1957–1963). John Cameron Swayze hosted the show on NBC, Douglas Edwards, Ron Cochran, and Henry Hamilton on CBS. David Susskind served as executive producer for several seasons. Many stars played their first major television dramatic roles in this series, including John Cassavetes ("Ladder of Lies," 1 February 1955); Robert Duvall ("The Jailbreak," 14 October 1959); Anne Jackson ("Johnny Pickup," 28 August 1951); and Telly Savalas ("House of Cards," 18 February 1959).

ARNIE CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1970–9 SEPTEMBER 1972 The story of a loading dock foreman who is suddenly named Director of Product Improvement at Continental Flange became a run-of-the-mill sitcom that barely lasted two seasons. With Herschel Bernardi as new executive Arnie Nuvo; Sue Ane Langdon as Lillian, his wife; Stephanie Steele as teenage daughter Andrea; Del Russel as teenage son Richard; Roger Bowen as Hamilton Majors, Jr., top banana at Continental Flange; Herb Voland as Neil Oglivie, company VP; Olan Soule as executive Fred Springer; Tom Pedi as Julius, Arnie's pal from the loading dock; and Charles Nelson Reilly (1971–1972) as next-door neighbor Randy Robinson (TV's "Giddyap Gourmet").

AROUND THE TOWN NBC

7 JANUARY 1950–18 FEBRUARY 1950 Not to be confused with CBS's All Around the Town, this Saturday-night series was emceed by Bob Stanton and was broadcast from various locations in New York City.

AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1972–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Saturday-morning cartoon show based loosely on the Jules Verne novel. Produced in Australia.

ARREST AND TRIAL ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1963–6 SEPTEMBER 1964 A ninety-minute crime show, with half the show spent catching the crook and half spent convicting him. With Ben Gazzara as Sergeant Nick Anderson; Chuck Connors as Public Defender John Egan; John Larch as Prosecutor Jerry Miller; Roger Perry as Detective Kirby; Noah Keen as Detective Bone; Joe Higgins as Jake Shakespeare; and Don Galloway as Harris. The concept was revived in 1990 on NBC's Law & Order.

ARRESTING BEHAVIOR ABC

18 AUGUST 1992–9 SEPTEMBER 1992 This half-hour sitcom about a police officer was made to look like a documentary. The cast included Leo Burmester as Officer Bill Ruskin of the Vista Valley police department; Ron Eldard as his partner, Officer Donny Walsh; Chris Mulkey as Donny's divorced brother, Officer Pete Walsh; Lee Garlington as Bill's wife, Connie Ruskin, a dog groomer; Amy Hathaway as their daughter, Rhonda; Eric Balfour as their elder son, Bill Jr.; and Joey Simmrin as their younger son, Seth.

THE ARROW SHOW NBC

17 DECEMBER 1948–19 MAY 1949 Phil Silvers first hosted this Thursday-night half-hour variety show, until he landed a starring role in the Broadway musical High Button Shoes. Hank Ladd succeeded Silvers as host. Rod Erickson produced the series.

THE ARSENIO HALL SHOW SYNDICATED

3 JANUARY 1989–9 SEPTEMBER 1994 In 1989 Arsenio Hall became the first black to host a successful late-night talk show. It was a lifelong dream of Hall's, who admitted that, as a teenager, he had performed monologues and interviewed imaginary guests in his bedroom. Earlier in the decade, Hall had appeared on television as a standup comedian, and had been a regular on such short-lived variety and talk shows as The 1/2 Hour Comedy Hour, Motown Revue, and Thicke of the Night. In mid-1987 Hall took over as the regular host of Fox's The Late Show, following the departure of Joan Rivers. Ratings improved under Hall's tenure, but Fox replaced The Late Show with the ill-fated Wilton North Report. Fox later invited Hall to return, but by that time he was at Paramount, making a film (Coming to America) with his pal Eddie Murphy. Paramount succeeded in signing Hall for this hour series, which became one of the more pleasant surprises of the 1988–1989 season. Televised in a late-night slot in most markets, the show was able to attract a younger audience than The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson, and effectively blunted the impact of CBS's 1989 late-night entry, The Pat Sajak Show. Although his format was similar to other talk shows, Hall succeeded in booking guests—particularly soul and rap music acts—who were rarely seen on other talk shows. Presidential candidate Bill Clinton appeared on the show, and played the saxophone, during the fall 1992 campaign. In June 1990 TV Guide named Hall its first "TV Person of the Year." Hall's show was the principal casualty of the Jay Leno-David Letterman talk show war. When Letterman's Late Show moved into its 11:30 P.M. time slot on CBS in September 1993, Hall's ratings began to slip badly. The last first-run program aired on 27 May 1994. By that time viewers had been treated to the sight of guest Bobcat Goldthwait spray-painting "Paramount sucks" on the set, and of Hall himself telling his bosses to "kiss my black ass."

THE ART FORD SHOW (IN RECORD TIME) NBC

4 AUGUST 1951–15 SEPTEMBER 1951 On this summer replacement for One Man's Family, a celebrity quiz was sandwiched around musical numbers. New York disc jockey Art Ford hosted the series.

THE ART LINKLETTER SHOW NBC

18 FEBRUARY 1963–16 SEPTEMBER 1963 Half-hour prime-time show hosted by Art Linkletter on which celebrity guests attempted to predict the outcome of a situation shown on film, performed either by unsuspecting participants or by the Art Linkletter Players. Some segments involved audience participation. Linkletter was one of the few personalities to have hosted series simultaneously on two networks: Both this series and Linkletter's earlier People Are Funny were seen on NBC, while Art Linkletter's House Party enjoyed a long run on CBS.

ART LINKLETTER'S HOUSE PARTY (THE LINKLETTER SHOW) CBS

1 SEPTEMBER 1952–5 SEPTEMBER 1969 Television's longest-running daytime variety show began on radio in 1944. When the easygoing Linkletter first brought his blend of talk and audience participation to television, it was aired at 2:45 P.M. (EST). By February 1953, it had been moved back to the 2:30 P.M. slot, where it remained for fifteen years. In 1968 the show was retitled The Linkletter Show and given a morning slot. During its first TV season the sound portion was replayed on CBS radio immediately following the telecast. The most memorable feature of the series was the daily interview with four young schoolchildren, who were seated on a raised platform. Their "unrehearsed" remarks were the fodder for a series of books by Linkletter, the first of which was Kids Say the Darndest Things. The format, and part of the title, were revived in 1990; see House Party with Steve Doocy.

THE ARTHUR GODFREY SHOW CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1958–28 APRIL 1959 Born in 1903, Arthur Godfrey began his broadcasting career on radio in 1930 at the CBS affiliate in Washington, D.C. Before long he was working for CBS radio in New York. During those years he developed his easygoing, straightforward, low-key style; his show, a blend of musical numbers and relaxed comedy, was a perennial hit. Godfrey had little discernible talent; though he could pluck the ukulele a bit, he was neither an accomplished singer nor a skilled actor. But he was a shrewd judge of commercial talent, a superb salesman, and a hard worker; these qualities helped make him an effective catalyst on the air.

In 1948 Godfrey entered television as the host of Talent Scouts, a long-running Monday-night showcase for amateur and professional talent. He soon became one of the most popular—and ubiquitous—personalities on television. Early in 1949 he could also be seen on Wednesday nights, hosting Arthur Godfrey and His Friends, an hour-long variety series which lasted eight seasons. For a brief period in 1950 Godfrey hosted a third prime-time series, Arthur Godfrey and His Ukulele, a fifteen-minute show seen after the news on Tuesday evenings. During the entire period the seemingly inexhaustible Godfrey continued to do a daytime radio show.

Beginning in 1952 the hour-long Monday-through-Thursday daytime radio show—Arthur Godfrey Time—was televised. Godfrey was again hosting three television series. Though he maintained that hectic pace for several seasons, Godfrey was often in great pain. A 1931 auto accident left him with injuries from which he never fully recovered: a broken pelvis, two broken kneecaps, one broken hip, and one permanently damaged hip. Godfrey's bouts with pain and depression have been cited as a cause of his mercurial temperament and as a reason for the fact that few of his stage "Friends" remained with the show for long, other than announcer Tony Marvin.

A large number of "Friends" shared the stage with Godfrey over the years: Carmel Quinn, Janette Davis, Bill Lawrence, Julius LaRosa, Marion Marlowe, Frank Parker, LuAnn Simms, Haleloke, The McGuire Sisters (Phyllis, Christine, and Dorothy), The Chordettes, The Mariners (one of the few integrated vocal groups that regularly appeared on TV), Pat Boone, Anita Bryant, and Johnny Nash, to name only a few. Many, like Boone, Nash, and the McGuire Sisters, were discovered on Talent Scouts and later joined the Godfrey troupe (the regulars appeared on both Arthur Godfrey and His Friends and on Arthur Godfrey Time). Several left voluntarily to pursue solo careers; some were quietly fired by the boss. But only one—LaRosa—was fired publicly, in what was one of the most widely publicized incidents in television history.

Julius LaRosa, a kid who could sing, was in the Navy when Godfrey heard him during a visit to Pensacola, Florida. Impressed with LaRosa, Godfrey arranged for him to come to New York in the fall of 1951. After LaRosa's second appearance on the show (Christmas 1951), Godfrey announced to his viewers that when "Julie" left the Navy, he could go to work for Godfrey. By the spring of 1952 LaRosa was a regular, and a popular one. His television exposure helped launch a recording career: His first record, "Anywhere I Wander," released in January 1953, sold 750,000 copies. By the middle of 1953 LaRosa's fan mail outstripped Godfrey's.

Meanwhile, Godfrey was sidelined with a hip operation. When he returned to the show in the fall, he detected an aura of laziness and cockiness among some of his regulars. The first of the last straws came when LaRosa missed a ballet rehearsal (upon his return, Godfrey had ordered ballet lessons for the cast); Godfrey abruptly yanked LaRosa from the next day's broadcast. LaRosa, understandably upset and unable to reach Godfrey directly, deepened his own grave by hiring an agent (Godfrey didn't deal with agents).

On Monday, October 19, 1953, the boom was lowered on an unsuspecting LaRosa. Godfrey brought LaRosa on for the last spot on the morning show. After innocuously asking whether LaRosa thought doing the show "was a pain in the neck," he bade him do his song. At the conclusion of the number, Godfrey announced, "That, folks, was Julie's swan song," and closed the show. LaRosa is reported to have been unaware that he'd just been fired, because he didn't know what "swan song" meant. Later that week, Godfrey also fired his musical director, Archie Bleyer, who was a partner with LaRosa in a record company. Bleyer was replaced by Paul Farber.

At that time Godfrey's popularity was probably at its zenith. In his book CBS: Reflections in a Bloodshot Eye, Robert Metz states that the Godfrey shows generated 12 percent of CBS's television revenues. After the LaRosa incident, however, Godfrey's popularity began to slip. The press had a field day; at a press conference

Godfrey said that LaRosa had shown "a lack of humility," a statement Godfrey later regretted.

Godfrey continued his three shows until 1957, when competition from ABC's Disneyland knocked off Arthur Godfrey and His Friends. Talent Scouts lasted one more season, while Arthur Godfrey Time continued during the day. In the fall of 1958 Godfrey returned with a half-hour Tuesday offering, The Arthur Godfrey Show. In 1959 Godfrey decided to leave television when he learned he had lung cancer. In a tearful farewell to his daytime audience, Godfrey explained that he didn't want viewers to see him waste away. The operation proved successful (a lung was removed), and Godfrey returned briefly in 1960 as cohost of Candid Camera. He died in 1983. THE ARTHUR MURRAY PARTY ABC/DUMONT/CBS/NBC

20 JULY 1950–7 SEPTEMBER 1950 (ABC); 15 OCTOBER 1950–11 MARCH 1951 (DUMONT); 2 APRIL 1951–25 JUNE 1951 (ABC); 19 SEPTEMBER 1951–11 MAY 1952 (ABC); 11 JULY 1952–29 AUGUST 1952 (CBS); 12 OCTOBER 1952–26 APRIL 1953 (DUMONT); 28 JUNE 1953–4 OCTOBER 1953 (CBS); 12 OCTOBER 1953–12 APRIL 1954 (NBC); 15 JUNE 1954–14 SEPTEMBER 1954 (NBC); 28 JUNE 1955–13 SEPTEMBER 1955 (NBC); 5 APRIL 1956–27 SEPTEMBER 1956 (CBS); 9 APRIL 1957–16 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC); 29 SEPTEMBER 1958–6 SEPTEMBER 1960 (NBC) One of the handful of shows broadcast over all four major commercial networks of the 1950s, The Arthur Murray Party most often surfaced as a summer replacement series, sometimes as a half-hour show and sometimes as a full hour. Ballroom dancing was the subject of the show, which was hosted by Kathryn Murray, wife of Arthur Murray, founder of the dancing schools which bear his name. Most shows featured songs, comedy sketches, and dance contests.

AS THE WORLD TURNS CBS

Set in the Midwestern town of Oakdale, ATWT originally contrasted two families, the middle-class Hugheses and the upwardly mobile Lowells. The Lowells were gradually written out, but several members of the Hughes clan have remained in Oakdale. As ATWT premiered in 1956, viewers were introduced to the main characters: Chris and Nancy Hughes and their three children (Don, Penny, and Bob); Jim and Claire Lowell and their daughter, Ellen, best friend of Penny Hughes. Featured were Don MacLaughlin as lawyer Chris Hughes and Helen Wagner as his wife, Nancy (after 25 years, Wagner was written out of the show in 1981, leaving MacLaughlin as the only original cast member; Wagner subsequently returned to the series, and Don MacLaughlin died shortly after the show's thirtieth anniversary telecast in April 1986). Also featured were Hal Studer, Richard Holland, Jim Noble, Peter Brandon, Martin West and Conrad Fowkes as Don Hughes; Rosemary Prinz and Phoebe Dorin as Penny Hughes; Bobby Alford, Ronnie Welch, and Don Hastings (formerly the Video Ranger on Captain Video) as Bob Hughes. Hastings was still on the show in 1995. Santos Ortega, who succeeded William Lee, played Grandpa Hughes until his death in 1976.

As the story began, the Hugheses learned that Chris's law partner, Jim Lowell (played by Les Damon), was having an affair with Chris's sister, Edith Hughes (Ruth Warrick). Jim died in 1957, and Edith later married Dr. George Frye (George Petrie). Jim's widow, Claire Lowell (played by Anne Burr, Gertrude Warner, Nancy Wickwire, Jone Allison, and Barbara Berjer), subsequently married Dr. Doug Cassen (Nat Polen) and was again widowed. Her third marriage—to Dr. Michael Shea—ended in divorce, and Claire herself died in a car crash in 1968.

Wendy Drew and Pat Bruder played the Lowells' daughter, Ellen (Bruder was still going strong in 1995, after 35 years in the role). Ellen had an affair with Dr. Tim Cole (William Redfield), who died of a blood disease in 1964; custody of their child had been awarded to Dr. David Stewart (Henderson Forsythe) and his wife, Betty (Pat Benoit). Ellen was briefly imprisoned for killing the Stewarts' housekeeper, Franny Brennan (Toni Darnay); by the time of her release, Ellen could marry Dr. Stewart, for Betty had died. Ellen and David raised Ellen's son, Dan Stewart (played by Paul O'Keefe, Doug Chapin, Jeff Rowland, John Colenback, John Reilly, and again by John Colenback), David's son by a previous marriage, Paul Stewart (played by Alan Howard, Edmund Gaynes, Steve Mines, Michael Hawkins, Garson DeBramenio, Marco St. John, and Dean Santoro), and a child of their own: Annie (played by Jean Mazza, Barbara Jean Ehrhardt, Ariane Munker, Shelley Spurlock, Martina Deignan, Julie Ridley, Randall Edwards, and Mary Lynn Blanks).

Young Dan Stewart grew up to become a doctor. After learning that Dan had had an affair with an Englishwoman, Elizabeth Talbot (Jane House and Judith McGilligan), Dan's wife Susan (Connie Scott, Diana Walker, Jada Rowland, Leslie Perkins, Judith Barcroft, and Marie Masters) refused to give him a divorce. Elizabeth married Dan's stepbrother, Paul, who died of a brain tumor shortly afterward. Dan finally succeeded in getting a divorce, but his marriage to the now widowed Elizabeth was brief, for she died after a fall down the stairs at home. Dan, despondent, later left Oakdale with his two daughters: Emily (nicknamed Emmy, she was his daughter by Susan and has been played by Jenny Harris, Colleen McDermott, Melanie Smith, and Kelley Menighan) and Betsy (his daughter by Elizabeth and played by Tiberia Mitri, Maurine Trainor, Patricia McGuiness, Suzanne Davidson, Lisa Denton, Meg Ryan, and Jordan Baker, who had previously played FBI agent Brianne Hunt).

Penny Hughes was first widowed in 1959, when her husband Jeff Baker (Mark Rydell) was killed in an auto accident. Sadly, Penny's second husband, a nonpracticing physician named Neil Wade (Michael Lipton), also died in a car crash. Penny eventually moved to England and adopted a Eurasian girl, Amy (played by Irene Yah-Ling Sun).

In 1960, Eileen Fulton joined the series as Lisa Miller, one of soapdom's most hated villainesses. Her first target was Bob Hughes, whom she met at college. Lisa married Bob and bore him a son, Tom. Lisa had an affair with Bruce Elliott (James Pritchett), was divorced from Bob, and left town. When she returned to Oakdale, it was learned that she had married a wealthy oldster and had been widowed. Lisa then married Dr. Michael Shea (former husband of Claire Lowell, and played by Jay Lanin and Roy Shuman) and bore him a son, Chuck (played by Pip Sarser, Willie Rook, and David Perkins). When Michael Shea was found murdered, Tom Hughes, Lisa's son by her first marriage, was implicated but proved to be innocent. Lisa, now widowed, tried unsuccessfully to win back Bob Hughes, her first husband, and later married lawyer Grant Colman, an associate of Chris Hughes (Colman was played by Konrad Matthaei and James Douglas). In 1980 Fulton also portrayed the corpse of her lookalike, Ruth Hadley. In 1983, dissatisfied with the dimensions of the Lisa character, Fulton temporarily left ATWT; she was replaced by Betsy von Furstenburg (Jane Powell filled in for Fulton briefly in 1990). By this time, Lisa had acquired yet another husband, Whit McColl (played by Robert Horton of Wagon Train fame). Lisa then fell for Whit's son, lawyer Brian McColl (played by Robert Burton, Frank Telfer, and Mark Pinter).

Tom Hughes, son of Bob and Lisa, has been played by James Madden, Jerry Schaffer, Frankie Michaels, Richard Thomas, Paul O'Keefe, Peter Link, Peter Galman, C. David Colson, Tom Tammi, Justin Deas, Jason Kincaid, Gregg Marx, and Scott Holmes. Tom was briefly interested in Meredith Halliday (Nina Hart) but married Carol Demming (played by Rita McLaughlin, later known as Rita McLaughlin Walter). After that marriage ended in divorce, Tom wed Natalie Bannon (Judith Chapman and Janet Zarish).

Tom's father, Bob Hughes, kept active after his divorce from Lisa Miller. He married Sandy McGuire (played by Dagne Crane, Jill Andre, Ronnie Carrol, and Barbara Rucker), whom Ellen Lowell had met while in prison. After a second divorce, Bob married Jennifer Ryan (played by Geraldine Court and Gillian Spencer), a widow, in 1972. Jennifer's son by her earlier marriage, Dr. Rick Ryan (Con Roche and Gary Hudson), resented the presence of Bob and was responsible for Jennifer leaving Bob. Jennifer returned when she learned she was pregnant; their daughter was named Franny (played by Kelly Campbell, Maura Gilligan, Tracy O'Neill, Helene Udy, Terri VandenBosch, Julianne Moore [who also played Franny's lookalike half-sister and cousin Sabrina Fullerton], and Mary Ellen Stuart; Claire Beckman later played Sabrina). In the meantime, Jennifer's sister, Kim Reynolds (played by Kathryn Hays and temporarily by Patty McCormack), came to town, had an affair with Bob, married villainous Dr. John Dixon (Larry Bryggman), then married restaurateur Nick Andropolous (Michael Forest) and, later, Bob Hughes.

Others who have appeared over the years have included: William Johnstone as Judge Lowell, Jim Lowell's father and founder of Chris Hughes's law firm; Martin Rudy and Anna Minot as Sandy McGuire's parents, Carl and Martha Wilson; Michael Nader and Max Brown as Kevin Thompson, whom Sandy later married; Jerry Lacy as Simon Gilbey, Meredith Halliday's guardian; Charles Siebert as Wally Matthews, a onetime boyfriend of Lisa's; Dennis Cooney as Jay Stallings, another boyfriend of Lisa's who married Carol Demming after her divorce from Tom Hughes; Joyce Van Patten and Virginia Dwyer as Janice Turner, who fell in love with Don Hughes before marrying Carl Whipple (Rod Colbin); Barbara Rodell as Joyce Colman, ex-wife of Grant Colman who later married Don Hughes; Grace Matthews as Grace Baker, mother of Jeff Baker, Penny's first husband; Hal Hamilton and Charles Baxter as Tom Pope, a lawyer in Chris Hughes's firm; Geoffrey Lumb as lawyer Mitchell Drew; Millette Alexander as nurse Sylvia Hill; George Rose as Dr. Prescott; Ben Hayes as Dr. Bruce Baxter; John Swearingen as Dr. Bill Jenkins; Addison Powell as Dr. Flynn; Joan Anderson as nurse Mary Mitchell; Bernie McInerney as Jerry Butler; Ethel Remey and Dorothy Blackburn as Alma Miller, Lisa's mother; Ed Kemmer as lawyer Dick Martin; Bob Hover and Kelly Wood as Brian and Mary Ellison, adoptive parents of Grant Colman; Stephen Bolster and Anthony Herrera as Mark Galloway (Herrera later returned in another role, as James Stenbeck); Fran Carlon as Julia Burke; Donna Wandrey and Colleen Zenk (also known as Colleen Zenk Pinter) as Barbara Ryan, who married James Stenbeck; Lisa Cameron as Peggy Reagan; Peter Stuart and Curt Dawson as Ron Talbot; Carmine Stipo and Jill Harmon as Tony and Maria Moreno; Michael Lombardo as Lieutenant Joe Fernando; Michael Finn as Richard Taylor; Christopher Hastings as Peter Burton; and Ted Agress as Luke Peters.

Other additions to the cast have included: Clarice Blackburn as Marion Connelly; Keith Charles as Ralph Mitchell; Jon Cypher as Dr. Alexander Keith; Laurel Delmar as Laurie Keaton; Jason Ferguson, Sean Anthony, and Scott DeFreitas as Andrew Dixon; Wayne Hudgins as Beau Spencer; Georgann Johnson as Jane Spencer; Simone Schachter, Jean Mazza (who had previously played Annie Stewart), Glynnis O'Connor, Marcia McClain, Heather Cunningham, Jacqueline Schultz, Vicky Dawson, and Alexandra Neil as Dawn (Dee) Stewart; Judith McConnell as Valerie Conway; Ariane Munker (in her second role) as Melinda Gray; Biff Warren as Mark Lewis; Tommy Baudo and T. R. Hill as Teddy Ellison; Doug Travis as Nick Conway; Leslie Denniston as Karen Peters; Kipp Whitman as Hank Robinson; Rebecca Hollen as Tina Cornell; Rachel Kelly as Kate; Robert Lipton as Dr. Jeff Ward, who married Annie Stewart; and Dennis Romer as Dr. Doug Campbell.

B. King.

ASTRO BOY SYNDICATED

1963 A cartoon series about a robotic youngster, Astro Boy was the first Japanese-produced television series exported to the United States. The character was created in comic book form in 1952 by Osamu Tezuka and was originally known as Tetsuwan Atomu (Mighty Atom). The TV title character was created by a scientist as a robotic replacement of his son, Astor Boynton, who had been killed in a traffic accident. Astro Boy's mission was to prove his ultimate reality to his father by serving humanity. Before his 193-episode run was completed, Astro Boy was joined by a robotic sister, Astro Girl. Billie Lou Watt provided the English-language voice of Astro Boy.

AT EASE ABC

4 MARCH 1983–15 JULY 1983 A pale imitation of You'll Never Get Rich, TV's archetypal service sitcom, At Ease was set at Camp Tar Creek, Texas, home of the 5033rd Personnel Administrative Center. Stationed there were Jimmie Walker as scheming Sergeant Tyrone Valentine; David Naughton as his partner in hijinks, Private Tony Baker; Roger Bowen as befuddled Colonel Clapp, the commanding officer; Richard Jaeckel as zealous Major Hawkins; George Wyner as Hawkins's lackey, "Weasel" Wessel; Jourdan Fremin as Corporal Lola Grey, Clapp's secretary; Joshua Mostel as Private Maxwell; and John Vargas as Private Cardinel. Hy Averback, the veteran producer whose credits included Ensign O'Toole, F Troop, and Mrs. G Goes to College, produced this one with Jim Mulligan.

AT HOME AND HOW ABC

1 JANUARY 1949–27 APRIL 1949 Tips on home improvement were given on this half-hour prime-time show.

THE AT HOME SHOW

AT ISSUE ABC

12 JULY 1953–24 FEBRUARY 1954 Martin Agronsky hosted this fifteen-minute public affairs program on which he interviewed guests.

AT RONA'S NBC

6 MARCH 1989–17 MARCH 1989 Hollywood gossip columnist Rona Barrett was given a two-week tryout in a morning talk-show format. The half-hour program was set in her dining room, with Barrett interviewing celebrity guests over a meal prepared by a Hollywood chef. One segment, in which Barrett quizzed Meredith Baxter Birney about her then troubled marriage, was axed at Birney's insistence.

AT THE MOVIES SYNDICATED

1982–1990 Chicago film critics Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel left PBS's Sneak Previews to cohost this half-hour weekly series. In 1986 the pair left for their third such effort (see Siskel & Ebert & The Movies), and were succeeded by critics Rex Reed and Bill Harris; Harris in turn was succeeded by Dixie Whatley in 1988. The formats of all three programs were similar: Each week the two critics screened clips of recently released films and discussed them. See also Sneak Previews.

THE ATOM ANT SHOW NBC

2 OCTOBER 1965–2 SEPTEMBER 1967

THE ATOM ANT/SECRET SQUIRREL SHOW NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1967–31 AUGUST 1968 A super-powered insect was the star of this Hanna-Barbera cartoon show. In 1967, Ant joined forces with Secret Squirrel, the daring rodent who had had his own show for two seasons. Other cartoon segments included "Precious Pupp" and "The Hillbilly Bears."

ATOM SQUAD NBC

6 JULY 1953–22 JANUARY 1954 Science fiction for the kids. Bob Hastings starred as Steve Elliot, head of the Atom Squad, a top-secret planetary defense organization. Bob Courtleigh played Elliott's assistant. The fifteen-minute show was televised live from Philadelphia weekdays at 5 P.M.

ATTACK OF THE KILLER TOMATOES FOX

8 SEPTEMBER 1990–22 AUGUST 1992 This half-hour Saturday morning cartoon show was derived from the 1980 sci-fi film spoof of the same name and its 1988 sequel, Return of the Killer Tomatoes! It was set in the town of San Zucchini, where a mad scientist, Dr. Putrid T. Gangreen, had discovered a way to excite ordinary tomatoes by a combination of sounds; as a consequence of his experiments, the federal government had since outlawed tomatoes, but Gangreen still had control over a secret stash of the forbidden fruits. Battling the evil scientist were two teenagers, Chad and Tara, and a good tomato, F. T., who masqueraded as a dog. John Astin (who had starred in the film sequel) provided the voice of Gangreen.

AUCTION-AIRE ABC

30 SEPTEMBER 1949–23 JUNE 1950 Home viewers bid labels of the sponsors' products, not cash, to win merchandise on this Friday-night game show. Jack Gregson, a licensed auctioneer, hosted the series, assisted by Charlotte "Rebel" Randall. Variety noted in 1949 that an irate viewer telephoned in a bid of "30,000 labels if you'll take the show off the air." The offer was not accepted, as Auction-Aire stayed on for another eight months.

THE AUTHOR MEETS THE CRITICS NBC/ABC/DUMONT

21 SEPTEMBER 1947–24 JULY 1949 (NBC); 3 OCTOBER 1949–25 SEPTEMBER 1950 (ABC); 10 JANUARY 1952–10 OCTOBER 1954 (DUMONT) This panel show began on radio in 1946 and came to television a year later. Each week two critics discussed a recently published book during the first segment of the show; one of the critics assailed the book, while the other praised it. During the latter segment the author was given the chance to defend the criticisms or acknowledge the kudos. Martin Stone produced the half-hour show; John K. M. McCaffery was the moderator for most of the show's run, though James Michener and Virgilia Peterson appeared as moderators in 1954.

AUTOMAN ABC

15 DECEMBER 1983–2 APRIL 1984 The central character in this hour fantasy/cop show was a computer-generated creature who assisted the police department. The series starred Desi Arnaz, Jr., as Walter Nebicher, a bumbling cop who was assigned to the department's computer room. After programming vast amounts of information into the computer, Nebicher discovered that he had created a humanlike being, which he named Automan. Chuck Wagner costarred as Automan, the creature who inhabited (as he put it) "a world of space and energy, not of substance." Because of the large quantities of energy that it required to function, Automan only emerged from the computer late at night (when the city's energy use was low), when he could put his formidable physical and mental powers to work in helping the Department. Accompanying Automan was "Cursor," a miniature holograph, which could be instructed to create cars, airplanes, or almost anything, on the spot. Also featured were Heather McNair as Roxanne, Walter's girlfriend, who also worked for the police department; Gerald S. O'Loughlin as Walter's gruff commanding officer, Captain Boyd; and Robert Lansing as Lieutenant Jack Curtis.

THE AVENGERS ABC

28 MARCH 1966–15 SEPTEMBER 1969

THE NEW AVENGERS CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1978–23 MARCH 1979 This whimsical British spy series began in 1961 as a more straightforward adventure show: the search by a husband for his wife's killers. The husband was joined in his search by John Steed (Patrick Macnee), an urbane and sophisticated bon vivant. By 1962 the bereaved husband was gone (he never found the killers), having been replaced by Cathy Gale (Honor Blackman—she played Pussy Galore in Goldfinger). By this time Steed and his partner had become government agents.

The early Avengers shows would not be shown in the United States for another twenty-five years, however. American viewers of the mid-sixties saw only the next incarnation of the series, the adventures of Steed and Mrs. Emma Peel. Played by Diana Rigg, Mrs. Peel was not a secret agent, but rather a talented amateur with a thirst for adventure. She was also one of the most liberated women characters on television during the 1960s. It was established that she was the widow of a test pilot, but her relationship with Steed was never really explained. Though hampered by a limited variety of plots, the show was generally well-written and well-acted. More importantly, it embodied a certain element of style all too infrequent on adventure series: Steed, typically in a three-piece suit and bowler, and Mrs. Peel, often in boots and leather, relentlessly pursued an assortment of psychopaths, robots, and human-eating monsters.

Some fifty-one Steed-Peel episodes were filmed; the last twenty-five were in color. Five of the black-and-white episodes were never shown by ABC, as the network considered them too racy for American audiences (all five were included when the reruns went into syndication). For example, in one famous episode, "Honey for the Prince," Mrs. Peel joins the harem of an Arabian potentate and displays her navel in a dance sequence. In "The Forget-Me-Knot" (shown here 20 March 1968), Mrs. Peel learned that her husband had been found alive and decided to rejoin him. Steed then joined forces with agent Tara King. King, played by twenty-year-old Linda Thorson, lacked the appeal of Mrs. Peel, and the Rigg episodes are generally considered to be far superior to the Thorson episodes.

Also appearing was Patrick Newell (1967–1969) as "Mother," Steed's wheelchair-bound boss. Among the many guest stars who appeared were Christopher Lee ("The Cybernauts"), Gordon Jackson ("Castle De'Ath"), Ron Moody ("The Bird Who Knew Too Much"), Donald Sutherland ("The Superlative Seven"), and Peter Cushing ("Return of the Cybernauts"). Produced by Brian Clemens and Albert Fennell.

In the fall of 1978 The New Avengers first appeared on American television. Filmed in England in 1977, the hour series again featured Patrick Macnee as British agent John Steed, along with Joanna Lumley as Purdey and Gareth Hunt as Mike Gambit. It was also produced by Brian Clemens and Albert Fennell.

In the fall of 1990, the Arts & Entertainment cable network reran the Rigg episodes and, finally, provided American viewers with their first glimpses of the Blackman episodes.

AWAY WE GO CBS

3 JUNE 1967–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 A summer replacement hour for The Jackie Gleason Show, featuring George Carlin, Buddy Greco, and the Buddy Rich Band.

B.A.D. CATS ABC

4 JANUARY 1980–8 FEBRUARY 1980 An hour of car chases with the Burglary Auto Detail of the Los Angeles Police Department. With Asher Brauner as Nick Donovan; Steve Hanks as his partner and roommate, Ocee James; Michelle Pfeiffer as their associate, Samantha; LaWanda Page as Ma, owner of a local rib joint; Vic Morrow as Captain Nathan; and Jimmie Walker as Rodney Washington, a good-natured car thief.

B.J. AND THE BEAR NBC

10 FEBRUARY 1979–1 AUGUST 1981 Hour adventure series starring Greg Evigan as B.J. (Billie Joe) McKay, an independent trucker who rode the roads with his simian sidekick, a chimp named The Bear. During the spring of 1979 Claude Akins was occasionally featured as McKay's nemesis, Sheriff Lobo, but in the fall of 1979 Lobo sidled off into his own series (see The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo). Joining the cast were Slim Pickens as Sergeant Beauregard Wiley; Richard Deacon as Sheriff Masters; Conchata Ferrell as Wilhelmina Johnson (better known as The Fox), a state cop sent to check up on Wiley and Masters's operation; Janet Louise Johnson as B.J.'s friend, Tommy; and Joshua Shelley as Bullets, operator of the Country Comfort Truck Stop. All of the regulars except for Evigan and the ape were gone when the show returned in January 1981 for its final season. B.J. had finally settled down in California, where he started his own trucking company, Bear Enterprises, and found a new foe: Captain Rutherford T. Grant (played by Murray Hamilton), the corrupt head of S.C.A.T. (Special Crimes Action Team). Grant owned a piece of a trucking company himself, and ruthlessly sought to eliminate all opposition. Meanwhile, B.J. took on a bevy of female truckers as his employees: twins Candi and Randi Brough as twins Teri and Geri Garrison; Sheila DeWindt as Angie Cartwright; Barbara Horan as Sam; Judy Landers as Stacks; Linda McCullough as Callie Smith; and Sherilyn Wolter as Cindy Grant, Rutherford's daughter. Also featured were Eric Server as Lieutenant Jim Steiger, Grant's aide, and John Dullaghan as Nick the bartender. Executive producers: Glen A. Larson and Michael Sloan for Glen A. Larson Productions in association with Universal TV.

B. L. STRYKER ABC

13 FEBRUARY 1989–4 AUGUST 1990 One segment of the two-hour ABC Monday Mystery Movie (which became The ABC Saturday Mystery Movie in the fall of 1989), with Burt Reynolds as B. L. (Buddy Lee) Stryker, a retired New Orleans cop who moved back to a houseboat in Palm Beach, Florida, where he hoped to relax, but soon found himself called upon to solve crimes; Ossie Davis as his pal Oz Jackson, a former boxer; Michael O. Smith as Chief McGee of the Palm Beach Police Department; Rita Moreno as Kimberly Baskin, B. L.'s ex-wife; Alfie Wise as wealthy computer whiz Oliver Wardell, who owned the houseboat that B. L. lived on, and who frequently assisted B. L.; and Dana Kaminski as aspiring actress Lyynda Lynnox, who was temporarily serving as B. L.'s office manager. Tom Selleck was executive producer, Reynolds the co-executive producer.

BAA BAA BLACK SHEEP (BLACK SHEEP SQUADRON) NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1976–30 AUGUST 1977; 14 DECEMBER 1977–1 SEPTEMBER 1978 Set in the Pacific, this hour-long adventure series was based on the real-life exploits of Marine Corps Major Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, World War II flying ace, who put together a squadron of misfits and castoffs from other service outfits and nicknamed it "The Black Sheep." Featured were Robert Conrad as Major Boyington; Dana Elcar as his commanding officer, Colonel Lard; Simon Oakland as General Moore; James Whitmore, Jr., as Captain Gutterman; Robert Ginty as Lieutenant T. J. Wiley; Dirk Blocker (son of the late Dan Blocker) as Lieutenant Jerry Bragg; W. K. Stratton as Lieutenant Larry Casey; John Larroquette as Lieutenant Bob Anderson; Red West as Sergeant Andy Micklin; Joey Aresco as Hutch; Jeff Mackay as French; and Larry Manetti as Boyle. Baa Baa Black Sheep was canceled by NBC after one season but was revived in December, thanks to the lobbying efforts of Robert Conrad and executive producer Stephen Cannell. When it returned, it was titled Black Sheep Squadron. Several new regulars were added in February of 1978: Jeb Adams (son of the late Nick Adams) as Lieutenant Jeb Pruitt; Denise DuBarry as nurse Samantha Green; Nancy Conrad (daughter of Robert) as Nancy, a nurse; Kathy McCullem as Ellie, a nurse; and Brianne Leary as Susan, also a nurse (the four nurses were temporarily assigned to duty at the Squadron's Solomon Islands headquarters).

BABES FOX

13 SEPTEMBER 1990–10 AUGUST 1991 Half-hour sitcom about three overweight sisters who lived together in a cramped Manhattan apartment. With Wendie Jo Sperber as Charlene Gilbert; Susan Peretz as her older sister, Darlene, who moved in after her marriage collapsed; Lesley Boone as her younger sister, Marlene, who moved in after losing her job; and Rick Overton as Charlene's boyfriend, Ronnie.

BABY BOOM NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1988; 2 NOVEMBER 1988–4 JANUARY 1989; 13 JULY 1989–10 SEPTEMBER 1989 Based on the 1987 motion picture, this half-hour sitcom suffered from erratic scheduling: there was a gap of almost eight weeks between the premiere and the second episode, and, during its brief fall run, it was never telecast for more than three consecutive weeks at a time. Kate Jackson starred in the TV version as J. C. Wiatt, a high-powered single female executive who inherited a baby from a deceased relative. Repeating his film role, Sam Wanamaker co-starred as Wiatt's boss, Fritz Curtis. Also on hand were Susie Essman as Wiatt's secretary, Charlotte; twins Michelle and Kristina Kennedy as the baby, Elizabeth; Daniel Bardol as Wiatt's enthusiastic assistant, Ken Arrenberg; and Robyn Peterson as Arlene. Charles Shyer and Nancy Meyers, who wrote the film version (Shyer also directed it) were executive producers.

THE BABY GAME ABC

1 JANUARY 1968–12 JULY 1968 Daytime game show on which three couples demonstrated their knowledge of infant behavior by predicting the outcome of previously filmed sequences involving youngsters. Hosted by Richard Hayes.

BABY, I'M BACK CBS

30 JANUARY 1978–12 AUGUST 1978 Situation comedy about a black man who returns home to his wife and family in Washington, D.C., after a seven-year absence. With Demond Wilson as Ray Ellis; Denise Nicholas as his wife, Olivia; Tony Holmes as their son, Jordan; Kim Fields as their daughter, Angie; Helen Martin as Olivia's mother, Luzelle Carter; and Ed Hall as Olivia's new suitor, Colonel Wallace Dickey, an Army public relations officer. Lila Garrett and Charlie Fries were the executive producers; Garrett and Mort Lachman created the series. Sandy Krinski and Chet Dowling were the producers.

BABY MAKES FIVE ABC

1 APRIL 1983–29 APRIL 1983 A short-flight sitcom about a couple with three kids who then have twins. With Peter Scolari as accountant Eddie Riddle; Louise Williams as his wife, Jennie Riddle; Andre Gower as their son, Michael; Emily Moultrie as daughter Laura; Brandy Gold as daughter Annie; Priscilla Morrill as Edna, Jennie's mother; and Janis Paige as Blanche, Eddie's mother.

BABY TALK ABC

8 MARCH 1991–12 APRIL 1991; 16 AUGUST 1991; 20 SEPTEMBER 1991– 26 JUNE 1992
Troubled sitcom about a baby whose thoughts were uttered by an adult voice, based on the hit 1989 movie Look Who's Talking. The series was to have premiered in the fall of 1990, with Connie Sellecca starring, but Sellecca quit the show. When it finally debuted in March 1991 it starred Julia Duffy as Maggie Campbell, an accountant and single mom who had moved into a not-quite-finished Manhattan apartment building. Also featured were George Clooney as Joe, the contractor; William Hickey as Fogarty, the painter; Lenny Wolpe as Howard, the electrician; Tom Alan Robbins as Dr. Eliot Fleisher, the pediatrician; twins Paul and Ryan Jessup as Maggie's young son, Mickey; and Tony Danza as the voice of Mickey. When the show returned in the fall of 1991 it sported an entirely new cast, except for the Jessup twins and Danza. Mary Page Keller (late of Duet) played Maggie, who now lived in Brooklyn. Also featured were Scott Baio as James Holbrook, the building handyman, with whom Maggie began a relationship; Francesca P. Roberts as neighbor Anita Craig; Alicia and Cecilia Johnson as Anita's baby daughter, Danielle, whose thoughts were also vocalized; Vernee Watson-Johnson as the voice of Danielle; Polly Bergen as Doris Campbell, Maggie's mom; and Jessica Lundy as Susan, Maggie's office pal. Talking babies had surfaced on TV three decades earlier: see Happy.

BABYLON 5 SYNDICATED

1994– One of several syndicated space shows introduced in the mid-1990s, this one was set in the year 2258 at a remote space station at which ambassadors of various alien races congregated. The cast included Michael O'Hare (spring 1994) as Commander Jeffrey Sinclair; Bruce Boxleitner (fall 1994– ) as Captain John Sheridan; Claudia Christian as Commander Susan Ivanova; Jerry Doyle as security chief Michael Garibaldi; Andrea Thompson as the telepathic Talia Winters; Peter Jurasik as Londo Mollari, the ambassador from Centauri; Stephen Furst as Londo's henchcreature, Vir; Andreas Katsulas as G'Kar, the ambassador from Narn; Mira Furlan as Delenn, the ambassador from Minbari; Bill Mumy as Lennier, an alien from Minbari; and Richard Biggs as Doctor Franklin. J. Michael Straczynski created the series, which was introduced in early 1993 as a syndicated two-hour TV-movie; Straczynski envisioned the series' basic story unfolding over five seasons.

BACHELOR FATHER CBS/NBC/ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1957–7 JUNE 1959 (CBS); 18 JUNE 1959–21 SEPTEMBER 1961 (NBC); 3 OCTOBER 1961–25 SEPTEMBER 1962 (ABC) One of the few situation comedies to have run on all three networks, Bachelor Father told the story of an unmarried Beverly Hills attorney whose carefree bachelor life is disrupted when his newly orphaned thirteen-year-old niece comes to live with him. With John Forsythe as lawyer Bentley Gregg; Noreen Corcoran as niece Kelly Gregg, daughter of Bentley's sister; Sammee Tong as Peter Tong, the butler; Jimmy Boyd (1958–1962) as Kelly's boyfriend, Howard Meachum; Bernadette Withers as Kelly's girlfriend, Ginger (she was Ginger Farrell on CBS, Ginger Loomis on NBC, and Ginger Mitchell on ABC); Whit Bissell (1959–1961) as Ginger's father, Bert Loomis; Alice Backes (1957–1959) as Bentley's secretary, Vicki; Sue Ane Langdon (1959–1961) as Bentley's secretary, Kitty Marsh; Victor Sen Yung as Peter's cousin, Charlie Fong; and Jasper, a neighborhood dog who adopted the Greggs. During its CBS years, Bachelor Father alternated on Sundays with The Jack Benny Program. It was produced at Revue-Universal studios. The pilot for the series, "A New Girl in His Life," was shown on General Electric Theater 26 May 1957. A teenaged Linda Evans (then known as Linda Evanstad) made one of her earliest TV appearances in one episode, "A Crush on Bentley," which was aired 13 October 1960; Evans and Forsythe would be reunited more than two decades later on Dynasty.

See IT'S A GREAT LIFE

BACK THAT FACT ABC
22 OCTOBER 1953–26 NOVEMBER 1953 Comic Joey Adams was the host of this Thursday-night game show, developed by Jack Barry and Dan Enright. Adams interviewed contestants, who were periodically interrupted by an offstage voice (supplied by Carl Caruso) asking them to "back that fact"—to provide proof of any assertion made by them. A contestant who succeeded in providing the documentation won a prize. Contestants were escorted onstage by Hope Lange, who would later star in The Ghost and Mrs. Muir. Double-talk comic Al Kelly was also featured on the half-hour show.

BACK TO THE FUTURE CBS
14 SEPTEMBER 1991–4 SEPTEMBER 1993 Saturday morning cartoon show, based on the motion picture trilogy, about a zany scientist and a young man who traveled through time. Michael J. Fox and Christopher Lloyd, who had starred in the movies, provided the voices of Marty McFly and Emmet "Doc" Brown. Lloyd also appeared in live-action wraparounds between animated segments.

BACKGROUND NBC

With Olivia Cole as Maggie Rogers, hairdresser and maid; Tania Johnson and Leslie Uggams as her daughter, seamstress Lillian Rogers; Louis Gossett, Jr., as Levi, butler and footman; Leslie Nielsen as Ike Hoover, one of their supervisors; Cloris Leachman as Mrs. Jaffray, another of their supervisors; Victor Buono as President Taft; Julie Harris as Nellie Taft; Robert Vaughn as President Wilson; Kim Hunter as Ellen Wilson; Claire Bloom as Edith Galt Wilson; George Kennedy as President Harding; Celeste Holm as Florence Harding; Ed Flanders as President Coolidge; Lee Grant as Grace Coolidge; Larry Gates as President Hoover; Jan Sterling as Lou Hoover; Richard Anderson as President Roosevelt; Eileen Heckart as Eleanor Roosevelt; Harry Morgan as President Truman; Estelle Parsons as Bess Truman; Andrew Duggan as President Eisenhower; and Barbara Barrie as Mamie Eisenhower. Ed Friendly was the executive producer of the nine-hour program for Ed Friendly Productions.

THE BAD NEWS BEARS CBS
24 MARCH 1979–6 OCTOBER 1979; 7 JUNE 1980–28 JUNE 1980 Half-hour sitcom based on the Bad News Bears films, which starred Walter Matthau. The video version featured Jack Warden as Morris Buttermaker, a swimming-pool cleaner who agreed to coach baseball at a school for problem youngsters as an alternative to a prison term; Catherine Hicks as Dr. Emily Rappant, principal of the W. Wendell Weaver School, to which Buttermaker was assigned; J. Brennan Smith as Mike Engelberg, the porcine catcher; Tricia Cast as Amanda Wurlitzer, the star pitcher; Billy Jacoby as Rudi Stein; Corey Feldman as Regi; Sparky Marcus as Ogilvie, the team's manager; Meeno Peluce as Tanner; Shane Butterworth as Lupus; Christoff St. John as Ahmad Abdul Rahim; Gregg Forrest as Kelly; Rad Daly (fall 1979) as Josh; Phillip R. Allen as Roy Turner, coach of the rival Lions. Executive producers: Arthur Silver and Bob Brunner. Producers: John Boni and Norman Stiles. After a shaky start in the fall of 1979, The Bad News Bears left the air in October, returning briefly the following summer.

BAFFLE NBC
26 MARCH 1973–5 OCTOBER 1973
ALL-STAR BAFFLE NBC
8 OCTOBER 1973–29 MARCH 1974 Dick Enberg hosted this daytime game show on which players attempted to guess words and phrases from successive one-letter clues. The format was almost identical to that of PDQ, an earlier game show. Baffle featured two teams, each consisting of a celebrity and a contestant; All-Star Baffle featured teams consisting of two celebrities.

BAGDAD CAFE CBS
30 MARCH 1990–11 MAY 1990; 28 SEPTEMBER 1990–23 NOVEMBER 1990; 27 JULY 1991
Half-hour sitcom based on the offbeat 1988 German film. The TV version featured Whoopi Goldberg as Brenda, the black proprietor of the Bagdad Cafe, a tiny restaurant-motel located in the middle of the California desert, miles from nowhere; Jean Stapleton as Jasmine, a white woman who wandered in (on foot) after her husband left; Monica Calhoun as Debbie, Brenda's sixteen-year-old daughter; Scott Lawrence (spring 1990) as Juney, Brenda's piano-playing son; James Gammon as Rudy, one of the cafe's few regulars and Jasmine's would-be suitor; Sam Whipple (fall 1990) as Rudy's nephew, Dewey Kunkle, the cafe's short-order cook; and Cleavon Little as Sal, Brenda's philandering husband. Whoopi Goldberg abruptly left the show after the first nine episodes of the fall 1990 season, and the show immediately sputtered to a halt.

BAGGY PANTS & THE NITWITS NBC
10 SEPTEMBER 1977–28 OCTOBER 1978 Two segments were presented on this Saturday-morning cartoon show: Baggy Pants, the adventures of a Chaplinesque cat (this segment featured no dialogue) and The Nitwits, the adventures of Tyrone, a secret agent who came out of retirement, and his wife, Gladys (the two characters were based on those created by Arte Johnson and Ruth Buzzi on Laugh-In).

BAILEY'S COMETS CBS
8 SEPTEMBER 1973–31 AUGUST 1975 Children's cartoon show with an unusual format: a teenage roller-skating team competing in a global roller derby. The second season consisted entirely of reruns. Produced by David H. DePatie and Friz Freleng.

THE BAILEYS OF BALBOA CBS
24 SEPTEMBER 1964–1 APRIL 1965 Feeble sitcom about a couple of inept charter-boat operators. With Paul Ford as Sam Bailey, skipper of the Island Princess; Sterling Holloway as first mate Buck Singleton; John Dehner as Commodore Cecil Wyntoon, their nemesis; Judy Carne as Barbara Wyntoon, his daughter; Les Brown, Jr., as Jim Bailey, Sam's son. Clobbered in the ratings race by Peyton Place (ABC) and Hazel (NBC), The Baileys of Balboa was one of three series developed by actor Keefe Brasselle and sold to CBS without a pilot. See also The Cara Williams Show and The Reporter.

BAKER'S DOZEN CBS
17 MARCH 1982–21 APRIL 1982 A New York Police Department anti-crime unit, headed by a woman, was the focus of this half-hour comedy-drama. Featured were Doris Belack as Captain Florence Baker; Ron Silver as Detective Mike Locasale; Cindy Weintraub as Detective Terry Munson, Mike's lover; Alan Weeks as Detective Otis "O.K." Kelly; Sam McMurray as Detective Harve Schondorf; Thomas Quinn as Martin; and John Del Regno as Jeff Diggins, a knowledgeable street source.

BAKERSFIELD P.D. FOX
14 SEPTEMBER 1993–4 JANUARY 1994; 7 JULY 1994–25 AUGUST 1994 Offbeat sitcom about the men of the Bakersfield, California, police department. With Giancarlo

Esposito as Paul Gigante, a half-black, half-Italian cop who left a big city force to work in Bakersfield; Ron Eldard as his partner, Detective Wade Preston; Chris Mulkey as Officer Denny Boyer; Tony Plana as his partner, Officer Luke Ramirez; Jack Hallett as indecisive Captain Stiles; and Brian Doyle-Murray as Sergeant Phil Hampton.

BALANCE YOUR BUDGET CBS

18 OCTOBER 1952–2 MAY 1953 Bert Parks hosted this prime-time game show on which female contestants competed by trying to solve household budget problems; the winning contestant won the right to choose a key which would open a treasure chest. The biweekly series was produced by Peter Arnell and directed by Sherman Marks; Bert Parks was assisted by Lynn Connor.

BALL FOUR CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1976–27 OCTOBER 1976 Situation comedy developed by Jim Bouton, ex-major leaguer and New York sportscaster whose book, Ball Four, provided an inside view of professional baseball. Most of the action on the series seemed to take place in the locker room; perhaps that explains why Ball Four was the first casualty of the 1976–1977 season. Bouton starred as Jim Barton, pitcher for the hapless Washington Americans. With Ben Davidson as Ben (Rhino) Rhinelander, catcher; Jack Somack as manager John (Cappy) Capogrosso; Jack McCutcheon as coach Harold (Pinky) Pinkney; Sam Wright as outfielder Travis; Jaime Tirelli as utility man Orlando Lopez; Marco St. John as pitcher Ray Plunkett; David-James Carroll as rookie Westlake; Lenny Schultz as pitcher Birdman. The "Ball Four" theme was composed and sung by Harry Chapin.

BANACEK NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1972–3 SEPTEMBER 1974 One segment of The NBC Wednesday Movie. Starring George Peppard as Banacek, an independent insurance investigator of Polish descent who works for the Boston Casualty Company on a contingent fee basis. BANYON NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1972–12 JANUARY 1973 Private eye series, set in Los Angeles during the 1930s. With Robert Forster as Miles Banyon; Joan Blondell as Peggy Revere, who ran the secretarial school which supplied Banyon with temporary help; Richard Jaeckel as Lieutenant Pete McNeil; and Julie Gregg as friend and singer Abby Graham. The pilot for the series was telecast 15 March 1971.

BARBAPAPA SYNDICATED

1978 The stars of this Dutch-produced cartoon series were a family of Shmoo-like creatures who could change themselves into any shape or size. The group included Barbapapa, Barbabravo, Barbazoo, Barbabright, Barbalala, and Irving the dog.

BARBARA DeANGELIS CBS

14 JANUARY 1991–26 APRIL 1991 Psychologist and author Barbara DeAngelis dispensed advice on personal problems to a studio audience on this half-hour daytime series.

BARBARA MANDRELL & THE MANDRELL SISTERS NBC

18 NOVEMBER 1980–26 JUNE 1982 An hour of music and comedy starring country-and-western singer Barbara Mandrell, assisted by her two sisters, Louise and Irlene, and the Krofft Puppets.

THE BARBARA McNAIR SHOW SYNDICATED

1969–1970 Variety hour with little talk and lots of music, hosted by Barbara McNair. One of the few series hosted by a black woman.

THE BARBARA STANWYCK SHOW NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1960–11 SEPTEMBER 1961 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by, and frequently starring, Barbara Stanwyck. The success of The Loretta Young Show apparently prompted NBC to introduce this series. Like The Loretta Young Show, The Barbara Stanwyck Show was given a late-evening time slot (10:00 P.M. Mondays), but even against only moderate competition (Adventures in Paradise and Hennesey) the show was not a success. Stanwyck, however, reappeared in 1965 in a more successful vehicle: Big Valley.

BARBARY COAST ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1975–9 JANUARY 1976 Limpid western set in San Francisco. Starring William Shatner as Jeff Cable, undercover agent for the governor of California; and Doug McClure as Cash Conover, owner of the Golden Gate Casino. With seven-foot-two Richard Kiel as Moose Moran, useful employee at the casino; Dave Turner as Thumbs, another employee. Created by Douglas Heyes. Executive producer: Cy Chermak. The series pilot (starring Shatner and Dennis Cole) was aired on 4 May 1975.

THE BARBOUR REPORT ABC

10 MARCH 1986–21 MARCH 1986 John Barbour (late of Real People) was given a two-week tryout as host of a talk and comedy show. The thirty-five-minute program was broadcast at midnight after Nightline.

BARE ESSENCE NBC

15 FEBRUARY 1983–13 JUNE 1983 Introduced as a two-part made-for-TV movie on CBS in October 1982, Bare Essence surfaced as a series a few months later on NBC. Its basic story line centered on the perfume industry. The cast included Genie Francis (late of General Hospital) as Patricia "Tyger" Hayes, who married into the Marshall family (unfortunately, her husband died under mysterious circumstances in the first episode); Jennifer O'Neill as Lady Bobbi Rowan, Tyger's mother; Ian McShane as Greek tycoon Niko Theopolous, who wooed Lady Bobbi; John Dehner as Hadden Marshall, Tyger's father-in-law; Jessica Walter as Hadden's sister-in-law, evil Ava Marshall; Jonathan Frakes as Ava's weak son, Marcus; Jaime Lyn Bauer (late of The Young and the Restless) as account executive Barbara Fisher; Susan French as Margaret; Michael Woods as Sean, Margaret's illegitimate son; Wendy Fulton as Muffin; Morgan Stevens as filmmaker Larry Levito; and Penny Fuller as Laura Parker.

BAREFOOT IN THE PARK ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1970–14 JANUARY 1971 The play, written by Neil Simon, was a hit. The movie, starring Jane Fonda and Robert Redford, was also a success. But the television series was a flop. It told the story of a black couple, newlyweds, living in a tiny top-floor apartment in lower Manhattan. With Scoey Mitchlll as lawyer Paul Bratter, an associate at Kendricks, Keene & Klein; Tracy Reed as his wife, Corie Bratter; Thelma Carpenter as Corie's mother, Mabel Bates, a domestic for a Park Avenue family; Nipsey Russell as friend Honey Robinson, proprietor of Honey Robinson's Pool & Billiard Emporium; Harry Holcombe as Arthur Kendricks, Paul's boss. The series was beset with production problems from the beginning and folded when Scoey Mitchlll was fired after thirteen episodes.

BARETTA ABC

17 JANUARY 1975–1 JUNE 1978 After Toma's Tony Musante announced that he would not return to that series for a second season, the surprised producers subsequently signed Robert Blake to star in a "new" series. Blake, a former child actor whose best-known film role was the psychopathic killer of In Cold Blood, starred as Tony Baretta, an unorthodox big city cop who lived in a run-down hotel with his pet cockatoo, Fred, and who was constantly getting in hot water with his superiors. Also featured were Tom Ewell as Billy Truman, desk clerk at the King Edward, Baretta's seedy residence; Dana Elcar (to July 1975) as Lieutenant Shiller, his commanding officer; Edward Grover (1975–1978) as Lieutenant Hal Brubaker, his new commanding officer; Michael D. Roberts as Rooster, his streetwise informant; and Chino Williams as Fats, a gravel-voiced street source. Blake often took an active interest in the production of the series, sometimes to the consternation of the people in charge. Bernard L. Kowalski was executive producer; Jo Swerling, Jr., was the first producer and was succeeded by Ed Waters as supervising producer.

BARGAIN HUNTERS ABC

6 JULY 1987–4 SEPTEMBER 1987 Peter Tomarken hosted this short-lived daytime game show on which contestants tried to find bargains among merchandise on display, then competed in a "super-savers" round. Home viewers could also pick up merchandise by dialing an 800 number.

BARKER BILL'S CARTOON SHOW CBS

18 NOVEMBER 1953–25 NOVEMBER 1956 Animator Paul Terry's black-and-white cartoons, known as Terrytoons, were broadcast on this series. Some of the features, such as "Farmer Al Falfa," dated back to the silent era. The program was seen as a fifteen-minute series, two afternoons a week, in some markets; in other areas it was carried as a half-hour Saturday-morning show.

THE BARKLEYS NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1972–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Saturday-morning cartoon series about a lower-middle-class family of dogs, patterned on the Bunkers of All in the Family.

BARNABY JONES CBS

28 JANUARY 1973–4 SEPTEMBER 1980 After a year layoff following the cancellation of The Beverly Hillbillies in 1971, Buddy Ebsen returned to television as Barnaby Jones, a soft-spoken, milk-drinking private eye who usually worked for insurance companies. Jones had come out of semiretirement when his son was murdered. With Lee Meriwether as Betty Jones, his widowed daughter-in-law and assistant; John Carter as Lieutenant Biddle; Mark Shera (1976–1980) as Jedediah Jones, Barnaby's cousin once removed, who came to work for Barnaby after his father was murdered. Executive producer: Quinn Martin. 177 episodes were produced.

BARNEY & FRIENDS PBS

6 APRIL 1992– Hugely popular with two- and three-year-olds, this half-hour daily show starred a giant purple dinosaur named Barney. The character was created in 1988 by Sheryl Leach, who had been looking for a home video to keep her young son amused. She wrote three scripts in which a teddy bear came to life, but changed the character to a dinosaur after noticing her son's interest in dinosaurs. With money borrowed from her father-in-law, a book publisher, Leach produced three "Barney & the Backyard Gang" videos starring Sandy Duncan. Marketed mainly through day care centers and video stores, they caught the attention of a PBS executive in Connecticut, who in 1991 secured a grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for the production of the series. The first group of thirty episodes premiered on PBS in April 1992 and featured a multi-ethnic group of children who were able to make a small stuffed dinosaur come to life as a huggable and bubbly six-foot-four-inch creature. The gang sang songs, played games, and learned simple lessons about getting along with each other. David Joyner played Barney, while Bob West supplied the voice; Jeff Ayers played Barney's younger dinosaur pal, Baby Bop, with Carol Farabee providing its voice. Lambasted by some observers as an "infomercial for a stuffed animal," the series caught on quickly with the pre-Sesame Street set. By 1993 some four million "Barney" home videos had been sold, together with other Barney merchandise estimated at $300 million. Barney and Company came to commercial television in 1994, with a prime time special, "Bedtime with Barney: Imagination Island" (NBC, 24 April).

BARNEY GOOGLE SYNDICATED

1963 A cartoon series based on the popular comic strip created by Billy DeBeck in the 1920s. His backwoods characters included Barney Google, Snuffy Smith, Loweezy, and Jughead.

BARNEY MILLER ABC

23 JANUARY 1975–9 SEPTEMBER 1982 This half-hour situation comedy about a New York City precinct captain and his multiethnic band of officers starred Hal Linden as Captain Barney Miller of the Twelfth Precinct; Barbara Barrie (1975–1976) as his wife, Elizabeth Miller; Abe Vigoda (1975–1977) as deadpan Detective Phil Fish; Max Gail as Sergeant Stan Wojehowicz (Wojo); Gregory Sierra (1975–1976) as Sergeant Chano Amengual; Jack Soo (1975–1979) as Sergeant Nick Yemana; Ron Glass as Detective Ron Harris; James Gregory as Inspector Frank Luger, the man from headquarters; Steve Landesberg (January 1977–1982) as Detective Arthur Dietrich; Ron Carey (1977–1982) as Officer Carl Levitt; Florence Stanley (1975–1977) as Bernice Fish, Phil's wife. Early episodes also featured Michael Tessier and Anne Wyndham as the Millers' children, David and Rachel. Created by Danny Arnold and Theodore J. Flicker, the series was produced by Chris Hayward and Arne Sultan. There were 170 episodes. See also Fish.

THE BARON ABC

20 JANUARY 1966–14 JULY 1966 Steve Forrest starred as John Mannering, suave American art dealer involved in international intrigue. With Sue Lloyd as his assistant Cordelia; Paul Ferris as his assistant David Marlowe; and Colin Gordon as Mr. Templeton-Green. This hour-long series, a midseason replacement for The Long Hot Summer, was produced in England. It was based on the short stories by John Creasey.

BARRIER REEF NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1971–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 Saturday-morning live-action adventure series, filmed in Australia. With Joe James as Captain Chet King, skipper of the windjammer Endeavor; Richard Melkle as marine biologist Joe Francis; and Ken James as Kip, Chet's young son.

BASEBALL PBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1994–28 SEPTEMBER 1994 A painstaking look at America's national pastime, produced by Ken Burns, using still photographs, films, and reminiscences of players and other key figures. The eighteen-and-one-half-hour series was divided into nine telecasts, each labeled an inning. John Chancellor was the series narrator.

THE BASEBALL CORNER ABC

1 JUNE 1958–27 AUGUST 1958 Half-hour series on which host Buddy Blattner interviewed baseball stars and introduced film clips.

BAT MASTERSON NBC

8 OCTOBER 1958–21 SEPTEMBER 1961 Gene Barry starred as Bat Masterson, dapper ex-lawman who roamed the West. Masterson's gimmick was a goldtipped cane that disguised a sword; he also carried a gun, of course. In real life William Bartley Masterson had been a deputy of Wyatt Earp. Notable guest stars included Dyan Cannon (in her first prime-time appearance, "Lady Luck," 5 November 1959) and William Conrad ("Stampede at Tent City," 29 October 1958, his first TV dramatic appearance). Andy White and Frank Pittman produced the half-hour series for United Artists TV. Gene Barry returned to TV as Bat Masterson in an episode of Paradise in 1989.

BATMAN ABC

12 JANUARY 1966–14 MARCH 1968 Batman, the cartoon crimefighter created by Bob Kane in 1939, came to television with a big splash (and lots of publicity) early in 1966. Originally scheduled as a fall 1966 entry, the show was rushed into production late in 1965 as a midseason replacement. Broadcast twice a week, Batman was an immediate hit—both half hours cracked Nielsen's top ten that season, and millions of dollars of Batman merchandise was sold to children and adults. But by the fall of 1966 the ratings had already begun to fall off. In the fall of 1967 the show was cut back to once a week, and it passed away quietly in midseason. Unlike Superman, Batman was written and played for laughs—it was "camp." Visually, it should be remembered for its comic book look, achieved by the use of bright colors, slanted camera angles and by the use of such words as "Pow!" and "Smash!" that were flashed on the screen during fight scenes. The show starred Adam West, a handsome, athletic type who had been featured on The Detectives, as Bruce Wayne, a Gotham City millionaire whose secret identity was Batman, a masked, caped crusader who used sophisticated paraphernalia to capture crooks (unlike Superman, Batman was a mere mortal and possessed no super powers). Burt Ward costarred as Dick Grayson, Wayne's teen-aged ward, whose secret identity was Robin (the Boy Wonder), similarly masked and caped. Together, the Dynamic Duo assisted the usually impotent police force and helped keep Gotham City's streets safe for the citizenry. Also featured were Alan Napier as Alfred Pennyworth, Wayne's butler, the only other person who knew of their secret identities; Madge Blake as Dick's aunt, Harriet Cooper; Neil Hamilton as Police Commissioner Gordon, the city official who often dialed the Caped Crusaders on the Batphone; and Stafford Repp as Chief O'Hara. In the fall of 1967 Yvonne Craig joined the cast as Barbara Gordon (daughter of the Commissioner), whose secret identity was Batgirl. She often assisted the Dynamic Duo, though she never learned the identities of Batman and Robin and they never learned hers. Among the many "guest villains" who appeared were Burgess Meredith as The Penguin; Frank Gorshin as The Riddler; Julie Newmar, Lee Meriwether, and Eartha Kitt as Catwoman; George Sanders, Otto Preminger, and Eli Wallach as Mr. Freeze; Victor Buono as King Tut; Cesar Romero as The Joker; Liberace as Chandell; Vincent Price as Egghead; Milton Berle as Louie the Lilac; Tallulah Bankhead as The Black Widow; Ethel Merman as Lola Lasagne; and Pierre Salinger (former press secretary to President Kennedy) as Lucky Pierre. Several of the guest villains appeared more than once—the only character ever killed off on Batman was Molly, one of The Riddler's henchpeople, who was played by Jill St. John. Production of the series was supervised by William Dozier (who also provided the narration) for 20th Century-Fox; Howie Horwitz was the line producer. The Batman theme was composed by Neal Hefti. The 120 episodes of the series remained reasonably popular in reruns, but received a big boost in 1989 with the release of the theatrical film Batman, starring Michael Keaton as the Caped Crusader and Jack Nicholson as The Joker.

BATMAN CBS/NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1970 (CBS); 12 FEBRUARY 1977–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 (CBS); 27 SEPTEMBER 1980–5 SEPTEMBER 1981 (NBC) Like many other cartoon characters, Batman and Robin appeared in a bewildering array of weekend cartoon shows, headlining some and costarring in others. The popularity of the live-action prime-time series (see above) led to the initial animated series, The Batman/Superman Hour, which ran for a single season on CBS; Bud Collyer provided Batman's voice, and Casey Kasem supplied Robin's. Reruns were seen on Sunday mornings during the 1969–1970 season under the title The Adventures of Batman. New episodes were made in 1977 and were shown on Saturday mornings under the title The New Adventures of Batman; on these shows, Adam West and Burt Ward, who had starred in the prime-time series, provided the voices of the caped crusaders. Batman and Robin were assisted by Batgirl and by a new character, Bat-Mite, who replaced Alfred the butler. Reruns of The New Adventures of Batman were seen on CBS as part of The Batman/Tarzan Adventure Hour during the 1977–1978 season, as part of Tarzan and the Super 7 (see also that title) during the next two seasons, and surfaced the following season on a new network—NBC—as Batman and the Super 7. To make matters even more complicated, Batman and Robin also appeared as regular characters on ABC's long-running cartoon series Superfriends (see also that title) during the 1970s.

BATMAN: THE ANIMATED SERIES FOX

Daytime: 5 SEPTEMBER 1992– Nighttime: 13 DECEMBER 1992–14 MARCH 1993 An animated version of Batman first surfaced on the Fox network in the fall of 1992; it was previewed twice on Saturday mornings, and ran weekday afternoons from 7 September 1992 through 2 September 1994. In the fall of 1994 it shifted to Saturday mornings, and was retitled The Adventures of Batman & Robin. It also aired in a Sunday night slot for three months during the 1992–1993 season. Principal voices were supplied by Kevin Conroy (Batman), Loren Lester (Robin), and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. (Alfred the butler).

BATTLE LINE SYNDICATED

1963 Author Jim Bishop narrated World War II film footage on this documentary series.

BATTLE OF THE AGES DUMONT/CBS

1 JANUARY 1952–17 JUNE 1952 (DUMONT); 6 SEPTEMBER 1952–29 NOVEMBER 1952 (CBS) This prime-time game show was a talent contest between a team of children and a team of adult celebrities. John Reed King hosted the DuMont version; Morey Amsterdam the CBS version; and Norman Brokenshire and Arthur Van Horn were the announcers. The studio audience voted for the more talented team at the end of the show. If the adults won, their winnings were donated to the Actors Fund of America. If the kids won, their winnings went to the Professional Childrens' School. In a rare TV appearance, composer W. C. Handy ("The St. Louis Blues") performed on the DuMont premiere.

BATTLE OF THE PLANETS SYNDICATED

1978 A science fiction cartoon series, Battle of the Planets pitted the G Force, a team of five orphans headquartered at a secret base beneath the Pacific, against invaders from alien galaxies. The series was made in Japan in 1972 and was televised there under the title Gatchaman.

BATTLE REPORT NBC

13 AUGUST 1950–20 APRIL 1952 A weekly report on the Korean conflict, broadcast live from Washington, D.C. Produced by Ted Ayers, the show was originally seen Sunday evenings, and was shifted to Sunday afternoons in 1951.

BATTLESTAR GALACTICA ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1978–4 AUGUST 1979 An expensive and elaborate science fiction series, Battlestar Galactica was obviously inspired by the colossal film Star Wars (one of Galactica's producers was John Dykstra, who was responsible for the special effects in Star Wars). Hurtling through space in a huge convoy of spacecraft, Galactica's inhabitants were heading toward Earth, trying to avoid annihilation by the Cylons, a mechanical race of beings out to destroy all humanoid forms of civilization. The cast included: Lorne Greene as Adama, commander of the fleet; Richard Hatch as Apollo; Dirk Benedict as Starbuck; Herb Jefferson, Jr., as Boomer; Maren Jensen as Athena; Noah Hathaway as Boxey; Tony Swartz as Jolly; Laurette Spang as Cassiopeia; and Terry Carter as Tigh. Glen A. Larson was the executive producer for Universal TV in association with Glen Larson Productions. The show, normally an hour program, kicked off with a three-hour premiere, which, at $3 million, was reported to be the most costly premiere telecast in TV history. See also Galactica 1980.

BATTLESTARS NBC

26 OCTOBER 1981–23 APRIL 1982; 4 APRIL 1983–1 JULY 1983 Alex Trebek hosted this daytime game show on which two contestants and a panel of six celebrities appeared; the game was similar to Hollywood Squares, except that the celebs were seated in a grid of triangles rather than squares. The contestant who won three triangles (by guessing whether the celebs' answers to questions were correct) got the chance to identify a partially covered photo of another celebrity for a top prize of $5,000.

THE BAXTERS SYNDICATED

1979–1981 An unusual half-hour series, The Baxters was created by Hubert Jessup and televised locally for several years on WCVB-TV in Boston before Norman Lear acquired the series in 1979. The first part of the program was an eleven-minute dramatic vignette highlighting a particular problem, which was then the subject of discussion by a studio audience for the remainder of the half hour. The 1979 cast of the nationally syndicated version included Anita Gillette as Nancy Baxter; Larry Keith as her husband, Fred Baxter; Derin Altay as daughter Naomi; Terri Lynn Wood as daughter Rachel; and Chris Petersen as son Jonah. Local stations which broadcast The Baxters were encouraged to provide their own audiences and moderators, although the audience-discussion portion taped in Los Angeles (where the vignettes were also taped) was made available to stations which chose not to provide a local studio audience. In 1980 production was shifted to Toronto, and a new cast was assembled: Terry Tweed as Susan, the mother; Sean McCann as Jim, the father; Marianne McIsaac as daughter Allison; Sammy Snyders as son Gregg; and Megan Follows as daughter Lucy.

BAY CITY BLUES NBC

25 OCTOBER 1983–15 NOVEMBER 1983 This hour dramatic series followed the ups and downs of a minor-league baseball team, the Bay City (California) Bluebirds of the AA Western League, two notches below the majors. It was created by one of the cocreators of Hill Street Blues, Steven Bochco, and one of Hill Street's producers, Jeffrey Lewis. Like Hill Street, it featured a large cast of regulars (several of whom had guest-starred on Hill Street) and continuing storylines. The regulars included Michael Nouri as the young manager, Joe Rohner, who hoped eventually to manage in the big leagues; Pat Corley as used-car dealer Ray Holtz, the owner; Perry Lang as pitcher John "Frenchy" Nuckles, a big-league prospect; Michele Greene as his wife, Judy Nuckles; Patrick Cassidy as Terry St. Marie, an outstanding athlete who was also a bedwetter; Sharon Stone as his patient wife, Cathy St. Marie; Dennis Franz as coach Angelo Carbone; Ken Olin as womanizing Rocky Padillo; Jeff McCracken as Vic Kresky; Larry Flash Jenkins as Linwood "Linoleum" Scott; Tony Spiridakis as catcher Lee Jacoby; Mykel T. Williamson as Dee Jay Cunningham; Peter Jurasik as radio-TV announcer Mitch Klein; Bernie Casey as aging player-coach Thomas "Ozzie" Peoples; Kelly Harmon as Sunny Hayward, who began an affair with Joe; Kevin McCarthy as her husband, banker George Hayward; and Marco Rodriguez as "Bird," the team mascot. A major disappointment in the ratings, Bay City Blues was pulled from NBC's schedule after just four episodes.

THE BAY CITY ROLLERS SHOW NBC

4 NOVEMBER 1978–27 JANUARY 1979 A popular recording group from Scotland, the Bay City Rollers hosted The Krofft Superstar Hour from September to late October of 1978, when the series was trimmed to thirty minutes and retitled. The group included Derek Longmuir, Alan Longmuir, Stuart Wood, Eric Faulkner, and Leslie McKeown. Also featured on the live-action show were Billie Hayes, Billy Barty, and Jay Robinson.

BAYWATCH NBC/SYNDICATED

22 SEPTEMBER 1989–26 AUGUST 1990 (NBC); 1991– (SYNDICATED) A perfect excuse to show plenty of bare-chested young men and bikini-clad young women, Baywatch was an hour adventure series about the lifeguards who patrolled the beaches of greater Los Angeles. Canceled after one lackluster season on NBC, Baywatch was revived for first-run syndication in 1991, where it soon became an international hit. The network cast included David Hasselhoff as Mitch Buchannon, newly promoted lieutenant; Parker Stevenson as his best friend, lawyer and part-time lifeguard Craig Pomeroy; Shawn Weatherly as Jill Riley, who was killed off (by a shark) in midseason; Billy Warlock as rookie lifeguard Eddie Kramer; Erika Eleniak as rookie Shauni McClain; Peter Phelps as rookie Trevor Cole; Gregory Alan-Williams as Sergeant Garner Ellerbee; Monte Markham as Mitch's boss, Captain Don Thorpe; Holly Gagnier as Gina Pomeroy, Craig's wife; Brandon Call as Hobie Buchannon, Mitch's young son; and John Allen Nelson as John D. Cort, who ran Sam's Surf & Dive, a beachfront rental shop. For the syndicated version, Hasselhoff, Warlock, Eleniak, Alan-Williams, and Markham remained from the network cast. Jeremy Jackson replaced Brandon Call as Hobie, and two new characters were added: Tom McTigue as lifeguard Harvey Miller, and Richard Jaeckel as Captain Ben Edwards. McTigue, Warlock, and Eleniak left in 1992, as several newcomers appeared: Alexandra Paul as Mitch's ex-girlfriend, Lieutenant Stephanie Holden; Pamela Anderson (later known as Pamela Lee) as lifeguard C. J. Parker; David Charvet as lifeguard Matt Brody; Nicole Eggert as junior lifeguard Summer Quinn; Kelly Slater as surfer Jimmy Slade; and Susan Anton as Summer's mother, Jackie Quinn. Markham, Jaeckel, Eggert, Slater, and Anton departed in 1994, while Yasmine Bleeth was added as Caroline Holden, Stephanie's younger sister, and Jaason Simmons joined as Logan Fowler, an Australian lifeguard who had moved to Los Angeles. Hasselhoff's wife, Pamela Bach, appeared occasionally during the first two syndicated seasons as Kay Morgan, Mitch's love interest. Gena Lee Nolin was added in 1995 as Neely Capshaw.

Filmed mostly on location at Will Rogers State Park in Los Angeles, the syndicated version was widely distributed overseas, reaching a weekly audience estimated as high as one billion by 1994. A made-for-video feature, "Baywatch the Movie: Forbidden Paradise," was released in 1995. A second series, Baywatch Nights, was scheduled to appear in late 1995. The series pilot, Baywatch: Panic at Malibu Pier, was telecast 23 April 1989 as a TV-movie on NBC.

BAYWATCH NIGHTS SYNDICATED

1995– In this spinoff from the hugely successful Baywatch, two characters from the parent series moonlighted as private eyes. The hour show starred Baywatch veterans David Hasselhoff and GregAlan Williams as Mitch Buchannon and Garner Ellerbee, and featured Angie Harmon as their boss, Ryan McBride, owner of the detective agency; Lisa Stahl as Destiny, a tarot reader; and Lou Rawls as Lou Raymond, owner of the nightspot located beneath the detective office.

BE OUR GUEST CBS

27 JANUARY 1960–JUNE 1960 Hour-long variety series, hosted first by George DeWitt and Mary Ann Mobley (Miss America of 1958), later by Keefe Brasselle and Mobley. Music by the Burt Farber orchestra. A midseason replacement for The Lineup.

THE BEACHCOMBER SYNDICATED

1961 Cameron Mitchell starred as John Lackland, a San Francisco adman who forsakes a successful career for the tranquility of a South Pacific island called Amura. With Don Megowan as Captain Huckabee; Sebastian Cabot as Commissioner Crippen; and Joan Staley as Linda.

BEACON HILL CBS

25 AUGUST 1975–4 NOVEMBER 1975 The biggest flop of the 1975–1976 season, Beacon Hill was an expensive, cumbersome and much-ballyhooed attempt to Americanize Upstairs Downstairs, the British export which had proven popular on PBS. Set in Boston's fashionable Beacon Hill in 1918, it told the story of a large, wealthy Irish family and their company of servants. The cast was so large that it was often difficult for viewers to keep track of the many characters. Some Bostonians noted also that the series was historically inaccurate, as few Irish families lived on Beacon Hill at that time, even fewer had so many servants, and no house on the Hill was as large as the Lassiters' seemed to be. Though thirteen episodes were taped, two were never televised as CBS decided to cut its losses after only eleven weeks.

Regulars included Stephen Elliott as Benjamin Lassiter, the hardnosed head of the clan; Nancy Marchand as his wife, Mary Lassiter, the grande dame; David Dukes as their embittered son Robert, who lost an arm in World War I; Kathryn Walker as Fawn, their arty-Bohemian daughter; Maeve McGuire as their daughter Maude Palmer; Edward Herrmann as Richard, Maude's boring husband; DeAnn Mears as the Lassiters' daughter Emily Bullock; Roy Cooper as Trevor, Emily's husband; Linda Purl as Betsy, Trevor and Emily's eighteen-year-old daughter; Kitty Winn as Rosamund Lassiter, the Lassiters' youngest daughter; Michael Nouri as Giorgio Balanci, Fawn's voice teacher and lover; George Rose as Mr. Hacker, the family butler and head of the servant staff; Beatrice Straight as his wife, Emmaline Hacker; Paul Rudd as Brian Mallory, the young chauffeur; David Rounds as Terence O'Hara, Hacker's assistant; Richard Ward as William Piper, the black cook; Don Blakely as his son Grant, also a veteran of World War I; Barry Snider as Harry Emmet, a former servant; Holland Taylor as Marilyn Gardiner, Mrs. Lassiter's secretary; Sydney Swire as Eleanor, a maid; Susan Blanchard as Maureen Mahaffey, a maid; and Lisa Pelikan as Maureen's sister, Kate Mahaffey, also a maid. Executive producer: Beryl Vertue. Produced by Jacqueline Babbin. Music by Marvin Hamlisch.

THE BEAGLES CBS/ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1966–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 (CBS); 9 SEPTEMBER 1967–7 SEPTEMBER 1968 (ABC) Saturday-morning cartoon series about a pair of rock-and-rolling dogs. (Not to be confused with The Beatles.)

BEAKMAN'S WORLD SYNDICATED/TLC/CBS

1992–1993 (SYNDICATED); 30 SEPTEMBER 1992– (TLC); 18 SEPTEMBER 1993– (CBS) Half-hour series explaining science to kids, with Paul Zaloom as nerdy scientist Beakman, with assistance from Alanna Ubach (as Josie), Mark Ritts (Lester), and Eliza Schneider (Liza). Derived from the comic strip "You Can with Beakman," created by Jok Church, the series debuted in 1992, with different episodes available on The Learning Channel and in first-run syndication. CBS added the series to its Saturday morning schedule in 1993, while the show continued its run on TLC.

BEANY AND CECIL

See TIME FOR BEANY

BEARCATS! CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1971–30 DECEMBER 1971 Forgettable adventure series about two troubleshooters roaming the West, circa 1914, in their Stutz Bearcat. With Rod Taylor as Hank Brackett; Dennis Cole as Johnny Reach. The show fared poorly against NBC's The Flip Wilson Show.

BEAT THE CLOCK CBS/ABC/SYNDICATED

23 MARCH 1950–12 SEPTEMBER 1958 (CBS); 13 OCTOBER 1958–30 JANUARY 1961 (ABC); 1969–1974 (SYNDICATED); 17 SEPTEMBER 1979–1 FEBRUARY 1980 (CBS) One of the earliest and most successful game shows from the fertile minds of Mark Goodson and Bill Todman. On Beat the Clock couples (usually married couples) were required to perform various stunts within certain time periods (usually less than sixty seconds). The winning couple was given the chance to try a special stunt for a large prize; the stunt was quite difficult and would be attempted weekly until someone was able to perform it. Bud Collyer hosted the network versions, which were seen on prime time over CBS and daily over CBS and ABC; for many seasons he was assisted by an attractive blonde known as Roxanne (her real name was Dolores Rosedale). The stunts were devised by Frank Wayne and Bob Howard and were always pretested by members of the show's staff; in 1952 a young, unemployed actor got his first job in TV testing stunts and warming up audiences. His name was James Dean.

A syndicated version of the series appeared in 1969; it was hosted first by Jack Narz, later by Gene Wood. It was substantially identical to the network version, except that guest celebrities were on hand to aid the contestants, and there was no special stunt for the winners to attempt. Monty Hall hosted the 1979 daytime revival on CBS, on which two couples competed.

THE BEATLES ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1965–20 APRIL 1969 Saturday cartoon series starring animated versions of the enormously popular British rock group, The Beatles (John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, and Ringo Starr). Two Beatles songs were usually "performed" on each episode; the Beatles' speaking voices were supplied by Paul Frees (John and George) and Lance Percival (Paul and Ringo). One of the few series which featured cartoon characterizations of real-life people.

THE BEAUTIFUL PHYLLIS DILLER SHOW NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1968–22 DECEMBER 1968 Variety hour hosted by Phyllis Diller, featuring Norm Crosby and Rip Taylor.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1987–25 AUGUST 1989; 12 DECEMBER 1989–24 JANUARY 1990; 9 JUNE 1990–4 AUGUST 1990 One of television's truly romantic series, Beauty and the Beast was an updated version of the fairy tale. With its handsome sets and poetic dialogue, it acquired an almost instant cult following, but the audience never widened enough to satisfy the network. Linda Hamilton starred as Catherine Chandler, a Manhattan corporate attorney who was beaten and left for dead in Central Park. Ron Perlman costarred as Vincent, the furry-faced, leonine man-beast who found her and carried her to a labrynthine city beneath the city, where he healed her wounds. Catherine eventually returned to the "real" New York and joined the district attorney's office, but realized that she and Vincent had fallen in love. Vincent, whose extranormal powers included the ability to sense Catherine's feelings, came to the same realization.

Over the next two years their relationship deepened (they didn't even kiss until the end of the first season). Catherine and Vincent recited poetry to each other, at least whenever Vincent wasn't rescuing her from danger. Catherine learned more about Vincent and the closed community under the city where he dwelled. Vincent had been abandoned as an infant and found by one of the underground people, who lived in a subterranean world of steam pipes, sewer lines, unused subway tunnels, and abandoned basements. Other regulars included Roy Dotrice as Father, the unofficial leader of the community, who had raised Vincent; Jay Acovone as Catherine's boss, Deputy District Attorney Joe Maxwell; Ren Woods as computer operator Edie, who worked for Catherine; and Cory Danziger and David Greenlee (1988–1990) as Kipper and Mouse, two of the underground people.

Beauty and the Beast finished a mediocre 40th for the 1987–1988 season, and 55th in 1988–1989. Linda Hamilton announced her intention to leave the show. She appeared in the two-hour premiere of the abortive third season. At that time, Catherine was about to give birth to Vincent's child, but was kidnapped by a wealthy and well-connected criminal, who took the baby and killed Catherine. Jo Anderson joined the cast for the last few episodes as Diana Bennett, an investigator for the New York Police Department, who met Vincent. But the magic of the series had already died, and it expired quietly in January 1990.

BEAVIS AND BUTT-HEAD MTV

8 MARCH 1993– The MTV cartoon series about a pair of inarticulate, moronic teenage boys is perhaps best summarized by an on-screen promo clip: "Beavis and Butt-head are dumb, crude, thoughtless, ugly, sexist, self-destructive fools. But for some reason, the little wienerheads make us laugh." Their creator, Mike Judge, had begun making cartoons at home while taking graduate courses in the late 1980s; by 1990 he had conceived the pair. Butt-head, the dominant force, had brown hair, wore an AC/DC T-shirt, sported braces and had prominent gums; Beavis, his inseparable pal, was blonde with a huge lower jaw and wore a Metallica T-shirt. Both had annoying nervous laughs (Judge provided the voices of both characters). Their first feature, "Frog Baseball," found the lads using a live frog for batting practice. Entered in an animation festival, it was spotted by an MTV executive and was picked up on the cable channel's experimental animation series, Liquid Television. By late 1992 some 65 episodes had been commissioned, and the series premiered under its own name early in 1993.

Originally telecast at 7 P.M., the series soon generated controversy because of the characters' propensities for cruelty to small animals and for starting small fires. After a report surfaced that a five-year-old Ohio boy had set fire to his mobile home, killing his younger sister, the series was moved to a late-night timeslot and the stars' excesses were curbed: Beavis and Butt-head refrained from torturing animals and no longer carried lighters; they did, however, continue to torment humans (as well as take some brutal beatings themselves).

Fortunately, the toned-down Beavis and Butt-head was just as humorous. Each cartoon ran only six or seven minutes; the stories were punctuated by the characters' constant channel-surfing (with running commentary) through an endless parade of music videos (MTV made its immense video library available for use on the series). Beavis and Butt-head's artistic criterion was a simple one: what they liked was "cool," and what they didn't like "sucked." The boys were especially fond of heavy metal bands (particularly ones whose videos featured "cool chicks"), and the sales of records by bands such as White Zombie and Babes in Toyland soared after exposure on the series. In 1994 a Beavis and Butt-head record was released, in 1995 several volumes of cartoons were packaged for home video release, and other merchandise has also appeared.

Judge's crude animation style harmonized perfectly with the title characters' limited attention spans and vocabularies. He succeeded in creating two of television's most utterly hopeless figures, in the tradition of such human sitcom characters as Chester A. Riley, Ralph Kramden, and Al Bundy.

BEDROOM BUDDIES SYNDICATED

1992 Half-hour game show in which three couples were quizzed on how well they knew each other. The winning couple was awarded a "bedroom fantasy" trip. Bobby Rivers presided over the festivities.

BEETHOVEN CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1994–2 SEPTEMBER 1995 This Saturday morning cartoon show was based not on the life of the famous composer, but instead on a dog, the mischievous

Saint Bernard who had been the title character in a popular 1992 live-action motion picture and its 1993 sequel.

BEETLEJUICE ABC

9 SEPTEMBER 1989–5 SEPTEMBER 1992 Half-hour Saturday morning cartoon series inspired by the 1988 film. Here, a fun-loving ghost named Beetlejuice befriended a little girl, Lydia Deetze, while delighting in playing tricks on her parents, Charles and Delia.

BEFORE HOURS NBC

2 MARCH 1987–16 SEPTEMBER 1988 Fifteen-minute early-morning weekday business report, hosted by Bob Jamieson.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS NBC

2 OCTOBER 1958–9 APRIL 1959 Stories on this half-hour anthology series were adapted from the files of Rear Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias, deputy chief of naval intelligence during World War II. Bruce Gordon, as Commander Matson, hosted the show.

BEHIND THE LINES PBS

1971–1976 Half-hour news analysis show, hosted by Harrison E. Salisbury of The New York Times, produced at WNET in New York.

BEHIND THE NEWS CBS

11 JANUARY 1959–27 SEPTEMBER 1959 CBS newsman Howard K. Smith hosted this Sunday-afternoon news analysis program; William Weston produced it. Smith, who was CBS's Washington correspondent at the time, had joined the network in 1941; in 1961, following a dispute with CBS concerning on-the-air editorializing, Smith left for ABC News.

BEHIND THE SCENES PBS

1992 Guerrilla magicians Penn and Teller hosted this ten-part series exploring the creative arts and aimed at children.

BEHIND THE SCREEN CBS

9 OCTOBER 1981–8 JANUARY 1982 A short-lived late-night (11:30 P.M.) serial, Behind the Screen told the story of the cast and crew of a fictional daytime soap opera called "Generations" (the serial-within-a-serial idea was hardly new, having been tried thirty-two years earlier in one of TV's very first soaps, A Woman to Remember). Featured were Mel Ferrer as Evan Hammer, producer and starmaker; Janine Turner as starlet Janie-Claire Willow, Evan's cousin; Joshua Bryant as the producer, Gerry Holmby; Loyita Chapel as Gerry's wife, Dory, an aspiring writer; Michael Sabatino as Gerry's son, Brian; Debbi Morgan as Lynette Porter, another starlet; Bruce Fairbairn as Bobby; Joanne Linville as Zina; Catherine Parks as Sally; Erica Yohn as Joyce; and Mark Pinter as Karl. Because the show was not scheduled in prime time, it ran for thirty-five minutes, thereby permitting the insertion of five extra minutes of commercials.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT NBC

1 MARCH 1949–5 OCTOBER 1950 This half-hour series usually presented dramatizations of some of the amazing incidents depicted by cartoonist Robert L. Ripley in his "Believe It or Not" newspaper strip. Ripley, who died in 1949, hosted the show for many years on radio and also hosted the first few telecasts. Robert St. John succeeded Ripley as host. In 1982 ABC introduced a remake of the series (see Ripley's Believe It or Not).

THE BELL TELEPHONE HOUR NBC

12 JANUARY 1959–14 JUNE 1968 This musical series ran semiregularly for almost ten seasons—sometimes weekly, sometimes biweekly, and sometimes as irregularly scheduled specials. All types of music were presented on the hour series; Donald Voorhees conducted the Bell Telephone Orchestra.

BEN CASEY ABC

2 October 1961–21 March 1966 "Man, woman, birth, death, infinity." So began the introduction to Ben Casey, which, together with NBC's Dr. Kildare, ushered in a new era of doctor shows. Both series lasted five seasons. Vince Edwards starred as Ben Casey, resident neurosurgeon at County General Hospital, seemingly an expert in every known area of medicine. Edwards's good looks and surly disposition (on-camera, anyway) helped make him a heartthrob among the female fans. Other regulars included Sam Jaffe (1961–1965) as Dr. David Zorba, chief of neurosurgery; Bettye Ackerman (Jaffe's wife) as anesthesiologist Dr. Maggie Graham; Harry Landers as Dr. Ted Hoffman; Nick Dennis as orderly Nick Kanavaras; Jeanne Bates as Nurse Wills; and Franchot Tone (1965–1966) as Dr. Freeland, Zorba's replacement as chief of neurosurgery. Created by James Moser (who also created Medic); produced by Matthew Rapf for Bing Crosby Productions. Edwards reprised the role in a two-hour 1988 TV-movie, The Return of Ben Casey.

BEN GRAUER'S AMERICANA QUIZ NBC

8 December 1947–4 July 1949 Ben Grauer hosted this prime-time half-hour game show on which contestants were quizzed about American history.

BEN JERROD NBC

1 April 1963–28 June 1963 This daytime serial told the story of two small-town attorneys. With Michael Ryan as young lawyer Ben Jerrod; Addison Richards as his older partner, John Abbott, a former judge; Regina Gleason as Janet Donelli, who became a defendant in a murder case; Jeanne Baird as Agnes, Abbott's daughter; Ken Scott as Jim O'Hara, Janet's boyfriend; William Phipps as Coroner Engle; John Napier as Dan Joplin, the D.A.; Lyle Talbot as Lieutenant Choates; Peter Hansen as druggist Pete Morrison; and Martine Bartlett as Lil Morrison, Pete's wife. Ben Jerrod was one of television's shortest-running soap operas; ironically, two other serials that premiered the same day—The Doctors and General Hospital—proved exceptionally durable.

THE BEN STILLER SHOW FOX

27 September 1992–31 January 1993 Half-hour filmed comedy sketch show, starring Ben Stiller (son of comedian-actors Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara), with Andy Dick, Janeane Garofalo, Bob Odenkirk, and occasional guest stars. The Sunday program, which was critically acclaimed and won a posthumous writing Emmy, was the lowest rated prime-time series of the season, finishing 109th in the Nielsen parade.

BEN VEREEN—COMIN' AT YA NBC

7 August 1975–28 August 1975 This four-week summer variety hour showcased the multitalented Ben Vereen, star of the Broadway hit Pippin. Vereen later achieved wider fame in television for his portrayal of Chicken George in Roots. Other regulars included singer Lola Falana and comedians Arte Johnson, Avery Schreiber, and Liz Torres. Produced by Jaime Rogers and Gene McAvoy.

BENJI, ZAX & THE ALIEN PRINCE CBS

17 September 1983–25 August 1984 This half-hour series was the only live-action program on the commercial networks' Saturday-morning schedules during the 1983–1984 season. It starred a mutt named Benji (described in the credits as "America's most huggable hero"), who had been featured in several motion pictures. In the series Benji befriended Prince Yubi (played by Chris Burton), who, with his talking robot, Zax, had escaped to Earth from a faraway planet. The three creatures tried to keep one step ahead of two emissaries of the alien planet's evil ruler, who sought to recapture the child prince. Rig Spiegel provided Zax's voice. The program was videotaped in Dallas.

THE BENNETTS (THE BENNETT STORY) NBC
6 JULY 1953–8 JANUARY 1954 Another short-lived soap opera about a small-town attorney, this one featured Don Gibson as lawyer Wayne Bennett and Paula Houston as his wife, Nancy. Also featured were Jerry Harvey and Kay Westfall. The setting was the town of Kingsport.

THE BENNY HILL SHOW SYNDICATED
1979–1989 A half-hour series of comedy skits featuring bawdy British comic Benny Hill and an assortment of scantily clad females. The American programs were edited versions of the one-hour specials that Hill did for Thames Television between 1969 and 1989. The British shows contained considerably more nudity.

THE BENNY RUBIN SHOW NBC
29 APRIL 1949–1 JULY 1949 Comedian Benny Rubin, whose career began in vaudeville, starred as a talent agent in this comedy-variety show, which also featured Vinnie Monte as the office boy. Jerry Rosen was the producer.

BENSON ABC
13 SEPTEMBER 1979–30 AUGUST 1986 A spinoff from Soap, starring Robert Guillaume as Benson, who left his employ at the Tate residence to manage the household of the state's governor. With James Noble as Governor Gene Gatling, a widower, a cousin of Soap's Jessica Tate; Inga Swenson as Gretchen Kraus, the Teutonic housekeeper at the governor's mansion; Caroline McWilliams as Marcy Hill, the governor's secretary; Missy Gold as Katie, the governor's precocious daughter; Lewis J. Stadlen (1979–1980) as Taylor, the governor's aide. The half-hour show was created by Susan Harris. In the fall of 1980 two new cast members were added: Rene Auberjonois as Clayton Endicott, the governor's officious chief of staff, and Ethan Phillips as Pete Downey, the governor's press secretary. In one of his earliest TV appearances, Jerry Seinfeld appeared in a few episodes that year as Frankie, the governor's joke writer. Later that season Marcy met and married TV producer Dan Slater (played by Ted Danson); Caroline McWilliams, who played Marcy, left the show early in the 1981–1982 season. That fall Benson acquired a new job— budget director for the governor—and his last name was finally revealed: Dubois. Didi Conn also joined the series as Benson's secretary, Denise Stevens. Denise and Pete were married in the fall of 1983, and departed the series in the middle of the next season. Benson was elected lieutenant governor in the fall of 1984, and chose Kraus as his executive aide. In the series's final season, Benson fell for a legislator, Diane Hartford (played by Donna LaBrie), and, ultimately, decided to run for governor against Gatling; the election took place on the last first-run episode. The producers filmed four different endings—Benson winning, Gatling winning, a third candidate upsetting them both, and Benson and Gatling watching the returns with no winner announced—and chose to air the last one.

THE BERENSTAIN BEARS CBS
14 SEPTEMBER 1985–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 The central characters on this Saturday morning cartoon show were the four members of the Bear family—Mama, Papa, Brother, and Sister. The show was based on the popular series of children's books written by Stan and Jan Berenstain.

BERNSTEIN/BEETHOVEN PBS
25 JANUARY 1982–12 APRIL 1982 An eleven-week series of concerts, in which Beethoven's nine symphonies (as well as other of his works) were presented. Leonard Bernstein (who received top billing on the show) conducted the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. Maximilian Schell provided the commentary.

BERRENGER'S NBC
5 JANUARY 1985–9 MARCH 1985 A posh New York City department store was the centerpiece of this ill-fated hour prime-time serial. With Sam Wanamaker as Simon Berrenger, chairman of the board; Ben Murphy as his eldest son, Paul Berrenger, the store president; Anita Morris as Babs, Simon's daughter; Robin Strand as Billy Berrenger, Simon's black sheep son; Art Hindle as Todd Hughes, Babs's husband; Claudia Christian as Melody, their daughter; Andrea Marcovicci as Gloria, Paul's estranged wife; Yvette Mimieux as Shane Bradley, vice president of merchandising, who was hot for Paul; Laura Ashton as model Laurel Hayes; Jonelle Allen as Stacy Russell, a department manager, Laurel's roommate; Jeff Conaway as John Higgins, office lothario; Leslie Hope as new employee Cammie Springer; Eddie Velez as aspiring clothes designer Julio Morales; Donna Dixon as executive trainee Allison Harris; and Jack Scalia as Danny Krucek. Diana Gould created the series.

BERT D'ANGELO-SUPERSTAR ABC

21 FEBRUARY 1976–10 JULY 1976 Paul Sorvino starred as Bert D'Angelo, a former New York City police detective who worked in San Francisco. With Robert Pine as Inspector Larry Johnson; Dennis Patrick as Captain Jack Breen. Produced by Mort Fine for Quinn Martin Productions. Filmed on location.

THE BERT PARKS SHOW NBC/CBS

1 NOVEMBER 1950–11 JANUARY 1952 (NBC); 14 JANUARY 1952–26 JUNE 1952 (CBS) Although Bert Parks hosted many TV series, this daytime variety show—originally aired three times weekly, later daily—was the only one which bore his name. Other regulars included vocalist Betty Ann Grove, Harold Lang, the Heathertones, and the Bobby Sherwood Quintet.

THE BERTICE BERRY SHOW SYNDICATED

1993–1994 Low-rated daytime talk show hosted by Bertice Berry, a black woman who had previously been a standup comic and had also earned a doctorate in sociology.

THE BEST IN MYSTERY NBC

13 JULY 1956–31 AUGUST 1956 Rebroadcasts of the several episodes of Four Star Playhouse in which Dick Powell starred as Willie Dante, an ex-gambler who owned Dante's Inferno, a San Francisco nightclub. With Alan Mowbray as Jackson; Herb Vigran as Monte; and Regis Toomey as Lieutenant Waldo. Willie Dante reappeared in 1960, and was played by Howard Duff; see Dante. Reruns culled from other series were also broadcast under the title The Best in Mystery on CBS during the summers of 1954 and 1955.

THE BEST OF BROADWAY CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1954–4 MAY 1955 Martin Manulis produced this series of specials, which replaced Pabst Blue Ribbon Bouts every fourth Wednesday for one season. Presentations included: "The Royal Family," with Claudette Colbert (making her TV debut), Helen Hayes and Fredric March (15 September); "The Man Who Came to Dinner," with Buster Keaton, Margaret Hamilton, Joan Bennett, Bert Lahr, and Monty Woolley (13 October); "The Philadelphia Story," with Mary Astor and John Payne (8 December); "Arsenic and Old Lace," with Pat Breslin and Orson Bean (5 January); "The Guardsman," with Margaret Hamilton and Mary Boland (2 March); "Stage Door," with Rhonda Fleming (in her first major TV role, 6 April); and "Broadway," with Martha Hyer (4 May).

THE BEST OF EVERYTHING ABC

30 MARCH 1970–25 SEPTEMBER 1970 Daytime serial based on the 1959 film about three young career women, all working at Key Publishing Company, trying to make it in New York City. With Susan Sullivan and Julie Mannix as April Morrison; Patty McCormack as Linda Warren; Geraldine Fitzgerald as Violet Jordan; and Gale Sondergaard as Amanda Key.

THE BEST OF SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE

See NBC'S SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE

THE BEST OF THE POST SYNDICATED

1957 Dramatic anthology series; episodes were based on stories from the Saturday Evening Post. Produced by MGM.

BEST OF THE WEST ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1981–28 JANUARY 1982; 7 JUNE 1982–23 AUGUST 1982 Joel Higgins starred in this comedy-western as Sam Best, a Philadelphian who bought a general store in the seamy western town of Copper Creek; upon his arrival there, he became the new marshal. With Carlene Watkins as his addled wife, Elvira; Meeno Peluce as his homesick son, Daniel; Leonard Frey as Parker Tillman, the town boss; Tracey Walter as Frog, Tillman's lamebrained lackey; Tom Ewell as Doc Jerome Kullens; and Valri Bromfield as mountain woman Laney Gibbs. Earl Pomerantz created the series, which was well received by the critics, but, like most other comedy-westerns, failed to score in the ratings.

THE BEST OF THE WORST FOX

17 AUGUST 1991–24 JANUARY 1992 Greg Kinnear emceed this weekly variety show, which highlighted "the worst" in the media and the arts. The series lived up to its title, finishing in a tie with Charlie Hoover as the lowest-rated prime-time series of the season.

BEST SELLERS NBC

30 SEPTEMBER 1976–25 APRIL 1977 The umbrella title for an anthology series made up of several serialized novels. Presentations included: (1) "Captains and the Kings," Taylor Caldwell's story of three generations of an influential Irish Catholic family, shown in eight parts. The large cast included Richard Jordan (Joseph Armagh), Patty Duke Astin (Bernadette Armagh, Joseph's wife), Charles Durning (Ed Healey), Henry Fonda (Senator Enfield Bassett), Perry King (Joseph's son Rory), Celeste Holm (Sister Angela), John Houseman (Judge Chisholm), Harvey Jason (Harry Zeff), Vic Morrow (Tom Hennessey), Barbara Parkins (Martinique), Joanna Pettet (Katherine Hennessey), Ann Sothern (Mrs. Finch), and Robert Vaughn (Charles Desmond). (2) "Once an Eagle," Anton Meyer's tale of two soldiers and two wars, shown in seven parts, with Sam Elliott (Sergeant Sam Damon), Cliff Potts (Lieutenant Courtney Massengale), Darleen Carr (Tommy Caldwell Damon, Sam's wife), Amy Irving (Emily Massengale, Courtney's wife), Glenn Ford (Major Caldwell), Gary Grimes (Jack Devlin), Clu Gulager (Lieutenant Merrick), John Saxon (Captain Townshend), and William Windom (General Pulleyne). (3) "Seventh Avenue," Norman Bogner's saga of New York's garment industry, shown in three two-hour segments, featuring Steven Keats (Jay Blackman), Dori Brenner (Rhoda Gold Blackman, his wife), Anne Archer (Myrna Gold, Rhoda's sister), Herschel Bernardi (Joe Vitelli), Jack Gilford (Finkelstein), Alan King (Harry Lee), Ray Milland (Fredericks), Paul Sorvino (Dave Shaw), Kristoffer Tabori (Al Blackman), and William Windom (John Meyers). (4) "The Rhinemann Exchange," a three-part, five-hour adaptation of Robert Ludlum's World War II spy thriller, with Stephen Collins (David Spaulding), Lauren Hutton (Leslie Hawkewood), José Ferrer (Rhinemann), John Huston (Ambassador Granville), and Roddy McDowall (Bobby Ballard). Although "Captains and the Kings" fared well in the ratings, the other serializations did not, and the umbrella concept was scrapped in the spring of 1977.

THE BEST TIMES NBC

19 APRIL 1985–7 JUNE 1985 This hour dramatic series focused on the lives of the students and faculty at John F. Kennedy High School, located in a Southern California beach community. With Beth Ehlers as student Mia Braithwaite; Janet Eilber as her mother, Joanne Braithwaite, who landed a job as substitute English teacher there; Jim Metzler as science teacher Dan Bragen; David Packer as Neil "Trout" Troutman; K. C. Martel as Dale, Trout's younger brother; Melora Hardin as Joy, Trout's girlfriend; Darren Dalton as ex-dropout Chris Henson; Liane Curtis as Annette; Tammy Lauren as Giselle; Jay Baker as Tony; and LaSaundra J. Hall as Dionne.

BETTER DAYS CBS

1 OCTOBER 1986–29 OCTOBER 1986 Raphael Sbarge starred in this half-hour sitcom as Brian McGuire, a teenager who moved from Beverly Hills to Brooklyn to live with his grandfather following his parents' separation. Also featured were Dick O'Neill as the grandfather, Harry Clooney; Chip McAllister as Luther Kane and Guy Killum as Anthony "Snake" Johnson, two of Brian's basketball-playing pals at Buckner High; Randall Batinkoff as Terence Dean; and Randee Heller as homeroom teacher Harriet Winters. The first announced cancellation of the 1986 fall season, Better Days was lifted after only four showings.

THE BETTER HOME SHOW ABC

5 MAY 1951–26 APRIL 1952 Home repair was the focus of this Saturday evening series, hosted by Norman Brokenshire, with help from Dick and Doreen Wilson, who played Brokenshire's neighbors.

BETTER LIVING TELEVISION THEATER ABC/DUMONT

21 JUNE 1953–16 AUGUST 1953 (ABC); 21 APRIL 1954–29 AUGUST 1954 (DUMONT) Like Enterprise U.S.A. and Industry on Parade, Better Living Television Theater was a series of documentaries designed to promote American industry. Fischer Black hosted the half-hour series. Typical of the presentations was the 1954 DuMont premiere, "A Is for Atom: The Story of Nuclear Power."

THE BETTER SEX ABC

18 JULY 1977–13 JANUARY 1978 A Goodson-Todman daytime game show in which a team of six men faced a team of six women. One player was given a question, then handed a card which indicated the correct answer and an incorrect answer; the player read one of those answers to members of the opposite team. Two members of the opposite team had to agree on whether the announced answer was the correct one; if their response was correct, two members of the first team were eliminated. If their response was incorrect, they were eliminated. The first team to eliminate all the members of the opposite team was the winner and split $1,000. The winning team then played against thirty audience members of the opposite sex in a similar format for the chance to win $5,000. Former country and western singer Bill Anderson served as cohost with Sarah Purcell; Purcell was the first woman to emcee a game show in more than twenty years.

THE BETTY CROCKER STAR MATINEE ABC

3 NOVEMBER 1951–26 APRIL 1952 Saturday noontime potpourri of variety, talk and short dramas, hosted by Adelaide Hawley.

THE BETTY FURNESS SHOW

See BY-LINE and PENTHOUSE PARTY

THE BETTY HUTTON SHOW CBS

1 OCTOBER 1959–30 JUNE 1960 One of the most popular film stars of the 1940s (The Fleet's In, The Miracle of Morgan's Creek, and Annie Get Your Gun), Betty Hutton was unable to make a successful transition to television. Her dramatic debut, "Satins and Spurs" (NBC, 12 September 1954), spurred little excitement. In 1959, she and her former husband, Charles O'Curran, put together this unsuccessful situation comedy in which Hutton played Goldie Appleby, a former showgirl, now a manicurist, who is unexpectedly named executrix of a millionaire's estate and guardian of the three children. Also featured were Richard Miles as Nicky Strickland, Gigi Perreau as Patricia Strickland, and Dennis Joel as Roy Strickland, Goldie's wards; Joan Shawlee as Goldie's friend, Lorna; Jean Carson as Rosemary, Goldie's roommate; Tom Conway as Howard Seaton, attorney for the estate; and Gavin Muir as Hollister, the butler. Slated against ABC's The Donna Reed Show and NBC's Bat Masterson, the series perished quietly. Hutton then made a few television appearances (the most recent was a 1965 Gunsmoke) and vanished from Hollywood. Early in the 1970s she was discovered washing dishes in a Portsmouth, Rhode Island, rectory.

THE BETTY WHITE SHOW NBC/ABC

8 FEBRUARY 1954–31 DECEMBER 1954 (NBC); 5 FEBRUARY 1958–30 APRIL 1958 (ABC) Betty White hosted two shows during the 1950s. The first was a daytime talk show; it was broadcast at lunchtime except during the summer, when it was aired late afternoons. Early in 1958 she returned as host of a prime-time comedy-variety show; regulars included John Dehner, Reta Shaw, Peter Leeds, Johnny Jacobs, and Frank DeVol's orchestra. In 1977 she starred in her own sitcom: see below.

THE BETTY WHITE SHOW CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1977–9 JANUARY 1978 After achieving her greatest fame as the delightfully catty Sue Ann Nivens on The Mary Tyler Moore Show, Betty White was given her own sitcom in 1977. She starred as Joyce Whitman, the not-too-talented star of TV's Undercover Woman, a purely fictional series that bore some resemblance to NBC's Police Woman. Also featured were John Hillerman as unemotional John Elliot, Joyce's ex-husband and Undercover Woman's director; Georgia Engel (another Mary Tyler Moore alumna) as Joyce's roommate, Mitzi Maloney, recently laid off from her job at the unemployment office; Caren Kaye as voluptuous Tracy Garrett, Joyce's costar; Barney Phillips as timid Fletcher Huff, who played the police chief; Charles Cyphers as Hugo Muncy, Joyce's burly double; Alex Henteloff as Doug Porterfield, a network vice president who oversaw the production of Undercover Woman. Executive producer: Bob Ellison. Produced by Charles Raymond and Dale McRaven for MTM Enterprises.

BETWEEN THE WARS SYNDICATED

1978 Sixteen half-hour documentaries on American diplomacy, 1919–1941, narrated by Eric Sevareid. Produced by Alan Landsburg Productions.

BEULAH ABC

3 OCTOBER 1950–22 SEPTEMBER 1953 The first TV dramatic series to star a black performer, Beulah told the story of a maid with a heart of gold. The character had been created by a white actor, Marlin Hurt, who played the part on the Fibber McGee and Molly radio series and on the first radio version of Beulah, which premiered in 1945 (the character was later played by a second white performer, Bob Corley, before Hattie McDaniel took over the radio role). Television's first Beulah was Ethel Waters, a blues singer and Oscar nominee (for Pinky); Hattie McDaniel was scheduled to replace Waters in 1951, but was unable to do so; Louise Beavers took over the role in April 1952 (McDaniel filled in for Beavers for six episodes during the summer of 1952). Other regulars included William Post, Jr. (1950–1952) and David Bruce (1952–1953) as Beulah's employer, New York lawyer Harry Henderson; Ginger Jones (1950–1952) and June Frazee (1952–1953) as Alice Henderson, his wife; Clifford Sales (1950–1952) and Stuffy Singer (1952–1953) as Donnie, their son; Percy (Bud) Harris (1950–1952) and Dooley Wilson (1952–1953; he played Sam in Casablanca) as Bill Jackson, Beulah's boyfriend; Butterfly McQueen as Beulah's friend and confidante, Oriole, also a domestic.

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1962–7 SEPTEMBER 1971 Together with The Andy Griffith Show, The Beverly Hillbillies was the most successful of the "rural" situation comedies brought to television under the aegis of James T. Aubrey, then president of CBS-TV. Universally blasted by the critics upon its premiere, Hillbillies climbed to the number-one spot in the Nielsens by January and remained there through 1964. It was the story of a backwoods family who suddenly became rich beyond description when oil was discovered on their property (located somewhere in Appalachia); they immediately packed their belongings in their decrepit car and headed for California. With Buddy Ebsen (song-and-dance man of the 1930s, and Davy Crockett's sidekick on Disneyland) as widower Jed Clampett; Irene Ryan (former vaudevillian) as Granny (Daisy Moses), his crusty mother-in-law; Donna Douglas as Jed's daughter, Elly May; Max Baer, Jr., son of the former heavyweight champion, as Jethro Bodine, Jed's dimwitted nephew; Raymond Bailey as Milburn Drysdale, president of the Commerce Bank of Beverly Hills, custodian of the Clampett funds and neighbor of the Clampetts; Nancy Kulp as Jane Hathaway, Drysdale's officious aide-de-camp; Harriet MacGibbon as Margaret Drysdale, Milburn's snooty wife; Shug Fisher (1969–1971) as Shorty, Elly May's boyfriend; Roger Torrey (1970–1971) as Mark Templeton, another boyfriend; and Stretch as Duke, the Clampett bloodhound. The "Beverly Hillbillies Theme" was played by Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, who occasionally appeared as themselves, and sung by Jerry Scoggins. Also appearing during the 1963–1964 season was Sharon Tate, as bank secretary Janet Trego, in one of her first professional roles. In 1963 Petticoat Junction was spun off, and in 1965 Green Acres appeared; its premise was the converse of the Hillbillies—a city family moves to the hinterlands. On 6 October 1981 a made-for-TV-movie sequel was broadcast; "The Return of the Beverly Hillbillies" reunited Buddy Ebsen, Nancy Kulp, and Donna Douglas (Max Baer, Jr., the other surviving principal, refused to recreate his role).

During its network run the series set some ratings records that have never been equalled. According to the A. C. Nielsen Company, the eight most widely watched half-hour programs of all time are all episodes of The Beverly Hillbillies. Perhaps even more interesting is the fact that all eight episodes were aired during the first three months of 1964, as the nation tried to recover from the shock of the assassination of President Kennedy. A total of 274 episodes were produced, the first 106 of which were in black and white; the show was aired in color starting in the fall of 1965.

A theatrical film was released in 1993, featuring Jim Varney (Jed), Cloris Leachman (Granny), Erika Eleniak (Elly May), Diedrich Bader (Jethro), Dabney Coleman (Drysdale), and Lily Tomlin (Miss Hathaway). Buddy Ebsen had a cameo role—as Barnaby Jones.

BEVERLY HILLS BUNTZ NBC

5 NOVEMBER 1987–22 APRIL 1988 Beverly Hills Buntz was one of two 1987 series starring alumni of Hill Street Blues (Mama's Boy was the other) and intended by NBC to serve as "designated hitter" series—shows that could be quickly summoned to replace faltering programs. The idea never caught on, mainly because both were scheduled so erratically that there was no chance for either to build an audience. On this series, played mostly for laughs, Dennis Franz continued his Hill Street role as Norman Buntz, now an ex-cop, who decided to set up shop as a private eye in Beverly Hills. Accompanying Buntz was his snitch from Hill Street, greasy Sid Thurston (played by Peter Jurasik). Dana Wheeler-Nicholson was seen as writer Rebecca Griswold, whose office was near Buntz's, and Guy Boyd played Lieutenant Pugh.

BEVERLY HILLS 90210 FOX

4 OCTOBER 1990– TV's first series with a zip code in its title was an hour dramatic series about a pair of sixteen-year-old twins whose family moved from Minnesota to Beverly Hills; the twins enrolled at West Beverly High, and tried to fit in with the new crowd. The series quickly became popular with teenagers, because the stories dealt with sensitive topics such as teen sex, alcohol, and drugs. The cast included Jason Priestley as twin Brandon Walsh; Shannen Doherty (1990–1994) as twin Brenda Walsh; Carol Potter (1990–1995) as their mom, Cindy, who could usually be found at home; James Eckhouse (1990–1995) as their dad, Jim, an accountant who was transferred from Minneapolis; Jennie Garth as Kelly Taylor, daughter of a recovering alcoholic mother; Ian Ziering as Steve Sanders, adopted son of a television star; Gabrielle Carteris (1990–1995) as brainy Andrea Zuckerman, editor of the school paper; Brian Austin Green as David Silver; Luke Perry as brooding Dylan McKay; Tori Spelling (real life daughter of executive producer Aaron Spelling) as dyslexic Donna Martin; and Douglas Emerson (1990–fall 1991) as Scott Scanlon, who was accidentally killed in a handgun mishap. During the first season Brenda became involved with Dylan; they had sex in a hotel room on their prom night, after which Brenda worried that she might be pregnant (she wasn't). In a clever programming move, the series started its second season in the summer of 1991 (it also dropped the comma from its title). The strategy worked, as teens continued to follow the show. Occasional new regulars included Christine Elise as Emily Valentine; Nicholle Tom as Sue Scanlon, Scott's sister; Joe E. Tata as Nat, owner of the Peach Pit, a restaurant where the gang hung out (and where Brandon found work); Ann Gillespie as Kelly's mother, Jackie; and Dana Barron as Nikki. David and Kelly found themselves stepsiblings for a while, as David's father, Mel (played by Matthew Laurance) married Jackie Taylor in the spring of 1992 (they later divorced after having a daughter). Grant Show was introduced late in the season as Jake Hanson, Kelly's boyfriend; he then headed to 90210's spinoff series, Melrose Place. 90210 again aired first-run episodes during the summer, as a lead-in to Melrose Place on Wednesdays, while summer reruns continued to run on Thursdays. In the fall of 1992 Cory Tyler joined the cast as Herbert, the first black regular on the series. The gang graduated from high school in the spring of 1993, and headed for college that fall. Andrea met and married law student Jesse Vasquez (played by Mark Damon Espinoza); they had a baby in the spring of 1994.

Amid much publicity, Shannen Doherty left the series at the end of the 1993–1994 season (it was explained that Brenda was studying in England). Three new regulars were added in the fall of 1994: Kathleen Robertson as Clare Arnold; Jamie Walters as musician Ray Pruit; and Tiffani-Amber Thiessen as unwholesome Valerie Malone, the daughter of friends of the Walshes from Minnesota, who moved into Brenda's old room.

As the series' sixth season began in 1995, Jim and Cindy Walsh had gone to Hong Kong; leaving Brandon as the only Walsh still living in Beverly Hills. New additions included Rebecca Gayheart as Antonia Marchette, Dylan's love interest; Emma Caulfield as Susan Keats, Brandon's love interest; and Jason Wiles as Colin. Luke Perry left the series in the middle of the 1995–1996 season.

BEWITCHED ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1964–1 JULY 1972 Situation comedy in which a winsome witch, married to a mere mortal, tried to curb her supernatural powers. With Elizabeth Montgomery (daughter of Robert Montgomery) as Samantha Stephens; Dick York (1964–1969) and Dick Sargent (1969–1972) as her husband, Darrin, an account executive at McMahon and Tate, a New York advertising agency; Agnes Moorehead as Endora, Samantha's meddlesome mother; David White as Larry Tate, Darrin's boss; Alice Pearce (1964–1966) and Sandra Gould (1966–1972) as Gladys Kravitz, a nosy neighbor; George Tobias as her husband, Abner Kravitz; Irene Vernon (1964–1966) and Kasey Rogers (1966–1972) as Louise Tate, Larry's wife; Maurice Evans as Maurice, Samantha's warlock father; Marion Lorne (1964–1968) as Samantha's daffy Aunt Clara; Paul Lynde (1965–1966) as Samantha's Uncle Arthur; and Alice Ghostley (1968–1970) as Esmeralda, also a witch. In 1965 the Stephens' first child, Tabitha, was born; she too had supernatural powers. The part was played by three sets of twins: first, Heidi and Laura Gentry; second, Tamar and Julie Young; third (1966–1972), Diane and Erin Murphy (the part was credited to Erin). In 1970 son Adam was born, played by twins David and Greg Lawrence. In the later seasons, Elizabeth Montgomery also played the part of Serena, Samantha's free-spirited cousin; the part was credited to "Pandora Sparks." One of ABC's longest-running sitcoms (252 episodes), the series was created by Sol Saks and produced by William Asher, Montgomery's husband, for Screen Gems. See also Tabitha.

BEYOND TOMORROW FOX

10 SEPTEMBER 1988–16 DECEMBER 1989 Science and technology were the subjects of this Saturday-night documentary series. Regular correspondents included Gary Cubberly, Randy Meier, Susan Hunt, and Richard Wiese. The series was produced in Australia and was based on a show that had originated there.

BEYOND WESTWORLD CBS

5 MARCH 1980–19 MARCH 1980 Hour fantasy series about a mad scientist hoping to take over the world with his crew of remarkably humanlike robots, and the security agent assigned to thwart him. With Jim McMullan as John Moore, security agent for the Delos Corporation; James Wainwright as Simon Quaid, the mad scientist; Judith Chapman as Laura Garvey, Moore's partner; William Jordan as Professor Joseph Oppenheimer, who created the robots, only to have them fall into Quaid's evil clutches; Stewart Moss and Severn Darden as Foley, one of Quaid's assistants; Ann McCurry as Roberta, another of Quaid's assistants; and Connie Sellecca as Pam. The series was based on Michael Crichton's novel Westworld, and was developed for television by Lou Shaw. John Meredyth Lucas was the producer.

BID 'N' BUY CBS

1 JULY 1958–23 SEPTEMBER 1958 Bert Parks hosted this Tuesday-night auction game show, a summer replacement for The $64,000 Question.

1990–1991 A one-hour talent contest series, hosted by Natalie Cole.

BIG EDDIE CBS

23 AUGUST 1975–7 NOVEMBER 1975 Abysmal situation comedy about an ex-gangster who went straight as the owner of the Big E sports arena. With Sheldon Leonard as Big Eddie Smith; Sheree North as Honey, his new wife, a former showgirl; Quinn Cummings as Ginger, his perky granddaughter; Alan Oppenheimer as Jesse, his younger brother; Billy Sands as Monte (Bang Bang) Valentine, an ex-jockey, now the cook; and Ralph Wilcox as Raymond McKay, Eddie's black business associate. Created by Bill Persky and Sam Denoff.

THE BIG EVENT NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1976–26 JULY 1981 The umbrella title for assorted movies and specials broadcast frequently throughout the year. Presentations included movies such as Earthquake and Gone with the Wind (which was the highest-rated single program in TV history at the time), made-for-TV features such as "Sybil," the story of a multiple personality with Sally Field and Joanne Woodward, and "The Moneychangers," and documentaries such as "The Search for the Loch Ness Monster—An Adventure," and "Life Goes to the Movies."

By far the most noteworthy presentation of the 1977–1978 season was "Holocaust," a four-part, nine-and-one-half-hour dramatization of the persecution and extermination of European Jews by the Nazis during World War II. Written by Gerald Green, the drama centered on the lives of the Weiss family, who lived in Berlin. Principal players included Fritz Weaver as Dr. Josef Weiss; Rosemary Harris as his wife, Berta Weiss; James Woods as their elder son, Karl; Meryl Streep as Karl's Christian wife, Inga; Joseph Bottoms as their younger son, Rudi; Blanche Baker as their daughter, Anna; Sam Wanamaker as Josef's brother, Moses; and Michael Moriarty as Erik Dorf, an ambitious Nazi officer. "Holocaust" won eight Emmys in 1978.

The chief "Big Event" of the 1978–1979 season was "Centennial," a twenty-five-hour, $25 million adaptation of James Michener's hefty saga of the West, starring Robert Conrad (Pasquinel), Richard Chamberlain (McKeag), Clint Walker (Joe Bean), Raymond Burr (Bockweiss), Sally Kellerman (Lise), Barbara Carrera (Clay Basket), Richard Crenna (Colonel Skimmerhorn), Chad Everett (Maxwell Mercy), and Alex Karras (Hans Brumbaugh). John Wilder was the producer.

BIG GAME NBC

13 JUNE 1958–12 SEPTEMBER 1958 On this Friday-night game show two contestants played a game similar to "Battleships," in which each sought to locate his opponent's game animals on a hidden board. This was the first of several game shows hosted by Tom Kennedy, younger brother of television quizmaster Jack Narz.

BIG HAWAII NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1977–30 NOVEMBER 1977 An early casualty of the 1977–1978 season, Big Hawaii told the story of modern-day cattle ranchers in the fiftieth state. With Cliff Potts as Mitch Fears; John Dehner as Barrett Fears, his father, the ranch owner; Lucia Stralser as Keke, Barrett's niece; Bill Lucking as Oscar, the foreman; Elizabeth Smith as Lulu (Auntie Lu), the housekeeper; Moe Keale as Garfield; Remi Abellira as Kimo; and Josie Over as Asita. Created by William Wood, with Perry Lafferty as executive producer and William Finnegan as supervising producer. Only seven episodes were telecast.

BIG JOHN, LITTLE JOHN NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1976–3 SEPTEMBER 1977 Saturday-morning sitcom about a forty-five-year-old science teacher, who, after drinking from a "fountain of youth," changes into a twelve-year-old (and back again) at inopportune times. With Herb Edelman as the adult John Martin (Big John); Robbie Rist as the young John Martin (Little John); Joyce Bulifant as his wife, Marjorie; Mike Darnell as their son, Ricky; and Olive Dunbar as Miss Bertha Bottomly, the school principal. Created by Sherwood Schwartz and Lloyd J. Schwartz.

THE BIG MOMENT NBC

5 JULY 1957–13 SEPTEMBER 1957 Great moments in sports history were relived on this half-hour series, hosted by former Princeton football star Bud Palmer.

THE BIG PARTY CBS

8 OCTOBER 1959–31 DECEMBER 1959 The Big Party was planned as a series of fifteen variety extravaganzas which would alternate with Playhouse 90 on Thursdays. The set for each show was a living room, with a party going on. Making his television debut, a nervous Rock Hudson hosted the premiere, which also featured a rare TV appearance by Tallulah Bankhead. The entire concept was scrapped after the New Year's Eve "Big Party" and replaced by a series of variety shows entitled The Revlon Revue.

THE BIG PAYOFF NBC/CBS

Daytime: 31 DECEMBER 1951–27 MARCH 1953 (NBC); 30 MARCH 1953–23 OCTOBER 1959 (CBS) Nighttime: 29 JUNE 1952–14 SEPTEMBER 1952 (NBC); 21 JUNE 1953–27 SEPTEM-BER 1953 (NBC) This long-running game show had several hosts, including Bert Parks, Randy Merriman, Mort Lawrence, and Robert Paige; the principal prizes given away were furs, which were modeled for several seasons by Bess Myerson. Vocalist Betty Ann Grove was later featured on the show, as were Denise Lor and Susan Sayers. In addition to its eight-year daytime run, The Big Payoff also surfaced as a prime-time show for two summers, and during the summer of 1953 it became one of the few series to have been carried by two networks at the same time.

THE BIG PICTURE SYNDICATED

1951–1964 Probably the most widely televised public service program in history, The Big Picture was the story of the United States Army, as told by the United States Army. Most of the several hundred half-hour shows were assembled from documentary footage filmed over the years by the Army Signal Corps; occasional scenes, however, were dramatized. The first series of thirteen programs was organized by Lt. Carl Bruton and offered to just one station in Washington, D.C. The experiment proved popular, and production continued under the supervision of William Brown of the Army Pictorial Center. By 1957 the show was carried by more than 350 stations in the United States—it seemed to fill the odd nooks and crannies of practically every station's program schedule. The series was also picked up by the ABC network off and on from 1953 to 1959. See also Flight; Uncommon Valor.

THE BIG QUESTION CBS

9 SEPTEMBER 1951–9 MARCH 1952 This Sunday series featured debates on current issues among leading journalists and other experts. Charles Collingwood acted as moderator. The series moved from evenings to afternoons in October.

THE BIG RECORD CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1957–11 JUNE 1958 Popular recording artists stopped by to sing their hits on this musical variety series, hosted by Patti Page and featuring the Vic Schoen orchestra. The show's one-hour format was cut to a half hour beginning 26 March 1958.

BIG SHAMUS, LITTLE SHAMUS CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1979–6 OCTOBER 1979 An early casualty of the 1979–1980 season, Big Shamus, Little Shamus was an hour crime show about a father-and-son detective team. With Brian Dennehy as Arnie Sutter, house dick at the Hotel Ansonia in Atlantic City; Doug McKeon as Max Sutter, his 13-year-old son; George Wyner as Mr. Korman, the security chief; Kathryn Leigh Scott as Stephanie Marsh; Cynthia Sikes as Jingles, a waitress; Ty Henderson as Jerry, another hotel employee. Terry Hotchner created the series; Lee Rich and Sam H. Rolfe were the executive producers for Lorimar Productions. Canceled after just two episodes, Big Shamus, Little Shamus was the lowest-rated prime-time series of the 1979–1980 season.

THE BIG SHOW NBC

4 MARCH 1980–3 JUNE 1980 Ninety-minute variety series, with regulars Graham Chapman, Mimi Kennedy, Charlie Hill, Owen Sullivan, Edie McClurg, Paul Grimm, Joe Baker, and a dancing group known as Shabba-Doo.

THE BIG SHOWDOWN ABC

23 DECEMBER 1974–4 JULY 1975 Jim Peck hosted this daytime game show on which contestants won points by answering questions. The highest scorer then rolled a special pair of dice for cash. If the dice came up "Show" and "Down," the contestant won the $10,000 top prize. Executive producers: Don Lipp and Ron Greenberg.

THE BIG STORY NBC/SYNDICATED

16 SEPTEMBER 1949–28 JUNE 1957 (NBC); 1957 (SYNDICATED) This half-hour anthology series presented stories about courageous journalists. It was hosted first by William Sloane, then by Norman Rose, Ben Grauer, finally by Burgess Meredith.

THE BIG SURPRISE (THE $100,000 BIG SURPRISE) NBC

8 OCTOBER 1955–2 APRIL 1957 This nighttime game show began as a giveaway show, rewarding good Samaritans with valuable prizes. As big-money game shows began to gain popularity, however, the show changed to a question-and-answer format with a $100,000 top prize. The good Samaritans were replaced by contestants with areas of specialized knowledge; silent film star Francis X. Bushman, for example, won $30,000 as an expert in poetry. Jack Barry was the first host but was fired during the second season; he was replaced by Mike Wallace. Executive producer: Steve Carlin.

BIG TOP CBS

1 JULY 1950–21 SEPTEMBER 1957 Circus program for kids, broadcast weekends from Camden, New Jersey, by WCAU-TV in Philadelphia. Jack Sterling was the ringmaster; regulars included Ed McMahon (in his first national television appearance) as a clown and strongman Dan Luri. Charles Vanda was the producer.

BIG TOWN CBS/NBC

5 OCTOBER 1950–16 SEPTEMBER 1954 (CBS); 11 OCTOBER 1954–2 OCTOBER 1956 (NBC) This popular crime show, which began on radio in 1937 (and, for a time, featured Edward G. Robinson), was set in Big Town, U.S.A., home of the Illustrated Press, a crusading daily paper. It first starred Patrick McVey as reporter Steve Wilson, with Mary K. Wells as society columnist Lorelei Kilbourne; Wells was succeeded in 1951 by Julie Stevens, then by Jane Nigh, Beverly Tyler, and, late in 1954, by Trudy Wroe. In the fall of 1954 the series switched networks. Mark Stevens, who had starred in another crime show—Martin Kane—during the previous season, took over, not only as the star but also as producer and director. Stevens upgraded Steve Wilson from reporter to managing editor. Barry Kelley was also featured as city editor Charlie Anderson, and in the fall of 1955 Doe Avedon was added as reporter Diane Walker, replacing Lorelei Kilbourne. Grace Kelly was the guest star on the 1950 CBS premiere, entitled "The Pay-Off." Big Town was widely syndicated during the 1950s under several titles, including Byline: Steve Wilson, City Assignment, and Heart of the City. It was telecast live until the spring of 1952.

THE BIG VALLEY ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1965–19 MAY 1969 ABC's answer to Bonanza, The Big Valley told the story of the Barkley family, trying to make a go of it on their 30,000-acre ranch in California's San Joaquin Valley. While the Barkley ranch may not have been as large as the Ponderosa, it boasted a mine, a vineyard, an orange grove, and a black servant. With Barbara Stanwyck as the widowed Victoria Barkley, iron-willed head of the clan; Richard Long as level-headed number one son Jarrod, a lawyer; Peter Breck as hot-headed number two son Nick; Lee Majors as feisty number three son Heath (actually, Heath was the illegitimate half-Indian son of Victoria's husband); Charles Briles (1965–1966) as introspective number four son Eugene; Linda Evans as beautiful daughter Audra; and Napoleon Whiting as servant Silas.

BIG WAVE DAVE'S CBS

9 AUGUST 1993–13 SEPTEMBER 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a Chicago stockbroker who persuaded his two pals to leave the Windy City with him to open a surf shop in Hawaii. With David Morse as the stockbroker, Dave Bell; Adam Arkin as lawyer Marshall Fisher; Patrick Breen as typing teacher Richie Lamonica; Jane Kaczmarek as Marshall's wife, Karen; and Kurtwood Smith as local guy Jack Lord. Ken Levine and David Isaacs created the series and were the executive producers.

THE BIGELOW SHOW NBC/CBS

14 OCTOBER 1948–7 JULY 1949 (NBC); 5 OCTOBER 1949–28 DECEMBER 1949 (CBS) Mentalist Joseph Dunninger was featured on this half-hour variety show hosted by ventriloquist Paul Winchell and his star dummy, Jerry Mahoney.

BIGELOW THEATER CBS

10 DECEMBER 1950–3 JUNE 1951

BIGELOW-SANFORD THEATER DUMONT

6 SEPTEMBER 1951–27 DECEMBER 1951 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen Sundays on CBS, Thursdays on DuMont. Presentations included: "Charming Billy," with Spring Byington (3 June); "A Man's First Debt," with Lloyd Bridges (27 September); and "TKO," with Richard Jaeckel (25 October, his first major television role).

BIGFOOT AND WILDBOY ABC

2 JUNE 1979–18 AUGUST 1979 A Saturday-morning adventure series set in the Pacific Northwest, Bigfoot and Wildboy was first seen during the 1977–78 season as one segment of The Krofft Supershow. It starred Ray Young as the anthropomorphic Bigfoot and Joe Butcher as Wildboy, a human teenager who had been raised by Bigfoot. Also featured was Yvonne Regalado as their friend, Cindy.

BIKER MICE FROM MARS SYNDICATED

1993–1994 The central characters in this daily cartoon show were three Martian mice—Modo, Throttle, and Vinnie—who escaped to Earth after their home planet was taken over by the evil Plutarkians.

BILL & TED'S EXCELLENT ADVENTURE FOX

28 JUNE 1992–20 SEPTEMBER 1992 The live-action series based on the two movies had a brief prime-time run. It featured Evan Richards as Bill S. Preston; Christopher Kennedy as Ted Logan; Danny Breen as Mr. Keilson, who ran the hardware store where Bill and Ted sometimes worked; Ron Lake as Bill's father, Mr. Preston; Matthew Sanders as Ted's father, Mr. Logan; and Rick Overton as Rufus. Set in San Dimas, California, the half-hour show was produced in Vancouver.

BILL & TED'S EXCELLENT ADVENTURES CBS/FOX

15 SEPTEMBER 1990–31 AUGUST 1991 (CBS); 14 SEPTEMBER 1991–5 SEPTEMBER 1992 (FOX) Saturday-morning cartoon show based on the 1989 film Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure, about two Southern California teen dudes who, assisted by a holographic mentor known as Rufus, travel through time to meet various historical figures. Keanu Reeves, Alex Winter, and George Carlin, who had starred in the film, supplied the voices of their cartoon characters. When the series moved to Fox in 1991, it was titled Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure. In the summer of 1992 the live-action version debuted: see above.

THE BILL ANDERSON SHOW SYNDICATED

1966 Country-and-western music, hosted by singer Bill Anderson.

THE BILL COSBY SHOW NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1969–31 AUGUST 1971 Bill Cosby, the first black actor to costar in an adventure series (I Spy), returned to TV after a year's absence in this low-key situation comedy. In so doing, he became the first black man to star in a comedy series since Amos and Andy ceased production in 1953. Cosby played Chet Kincaid, a gym teacher at Richard Allen Holmes High School. Also featured were Lillian Randolph (1969–1970) and Beah Richards (1970–1971) as his mother, Rose; Lee Weaver as his brother Brian, a garbage collector; De De Young (1969) and Olga James (1969–1971) as Brian's wife, Verna; Donald Livingston as Roger, Brian and Verna's young son; Joyce Bulifant as Mrs. Marsha Patterson, the school guidance counselor; Sid McCoy as Mr. Langford; and Joseph Perry as Max.

THE BILL CULLEN SHOW CBS

12 FEBRUARY 1953–14 MAY 1953 A fifteen-minute Thursday-morning variety show, hosted by Bill Cullen, with Betty Brewer and the Milton DeLugg Trio.

THE BILL DANA SHOW NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1963–17 JANUARY 1965 Bill Dana's many appearances on The Steve Allen Show as José Jiminez, the easily confused Latin American, led him to his own series. On this Sunday-evening sitcom he continued to play Jiminez, now employed as a bellhop at a New York hotel. Also featured were comic Don Adams (in his first continuing TV role) as Byron Glick, the house dick; Jonathan Harris as the persnickety Mr. Phillips, hotel manager; Gary Crosby as Eddie, a fellow bellhop; and Maggie Peterson as Susie, a waitress in the coffee shop.

THE BILL GOODWIN SHOW NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1951–27 MARCH 1952 Bill Goodwin left his job as announcer on The Burns and Allen Show to host his own half-hour variety show, broadcast Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 3:30. Regulars included Eileen Barton, Roger Dann, and the Joe Bushkin Trio. Produced and directed by Sherman Marks.

THE BILL GWINN SHOW ABC

5 FEBRUARY 1951–21 APRIL 1952 Hosted by Bill Gwinn, this series began under the title It Could Happen to You, on which couples from the studio audience acted out scenes suggested by songs. In April of 1951 the show was retitled The Bill Gwinn Show.

BILL MOYERS' JOURNAL PBS

14 NOVEMBER 1972–16 APRIL 1976; 5 FEBRUARY 1979–21 JUNE 1981 Magazine series hosted by Bill Moyers, who served as President Johnson's press secretary during the 1960s. During the 1972–1973 and 1975–1976 seasons Moyers's programs focused on life in America; during the 1974–1975 season Moyers reported on international issues. After a two-and-one-half-year stint with CBS, Moyers returned to PBS in 1979. See also This Week.

BILL MOYERS' WORLD OF IDEAS PBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1988–18 NOVEMBER 1988 Wide-ranging half-hour interview series with writers, philosophers, historians, scientists, and other intellectuals, hosted by Bill Moyers. On most programs Moyers discussed a single topic with a single guest.

BILL NYE, THE SCIENCE GUY SYNDICATED

1993– Half-hour educational series for children on which Bill Nye, a former engineer at Boeing, explained the mysteries of science. Despite its use of sound effects, slapstick demonstrations, and music video-style sequences, the show was less comedic and more straightforward than its contemporary, Beakman's World.

BILLY CBS

26 FEBRUARY 1979–28 APRIL 1979 Half-hour sitcom hastily scheduled by CBS to replace Co-Ed Fever, which the network shelved after just one showing. With Steve Guttenberg as Billy Fisher, a nineteen-year-old who fantasized a lot; James Gallery as George Fisher, his father; Peggy Pope as Alice Fisher, his mother; Paula Trueman as Gran, his grandmother; Michael Alaimo as Norville Shadrack, Billy's employer, a funeral director; and Bruce Talkington as Arthur Milliken, Billy's coworker. Billy was supplied by John Rich Productions.

BILLY ABC

31 JANUARY 1992–4 JULY 1992 The second series with this title starred Scottish comedian Billy Connolly as Billy MacGregor, the role he had played a season earlier on Head of the Class. This time Billy was a college teacher who married a divorced student so that he could remain in the country; the marriage was strictly on paper, as Billy lived in the basement apartment in his wife's house. Also featured were Marie Marshall as the student he married, Mary Springer; Johnny Galecki as her fourteen-year-old, David; Natanya Ross as her ten-year-old, Laura, a violinist; Clara Bryant as her five-year-old, Annie, a pianist; Kathy Wagner as Giselle; and Mary Gross as Phoebe.

BILLY BOONE AND COUSIN KIB CBS

9 JULY 1950–27 AUGUST 1950 A summer replacement for Mr. I. Magination, this half-hour children's show starred Carroll "Kib" Colby and Patti Milligan. Billy Boone was an animated figure whose adventures were drawn by Colby. Judy Dupuy produced the series.

THE BILLY CRYSTAL COMEDY HOUR NBC

30 JANUARY 1982–27 FEBRUARY 1982 Another unsuccessful attempt by NBC to fill its 10:00 P.M. time slot on Saturdays. Fresh from Soap, Billy Crystal hosted the series, with help from Jane Anderson, Monica Ganas, Tino Insana, and Phyllis Katz. Music was provided by Van Dyke Parks.

THE BILLY DANIELS SHOW ABC

5 OCTOBER 1952–28 DECEMBER 1952 One of few blacks to host a variety series, singer Billy Daniels ("That Old Black Magic") emceed his own fifteen-minute show on Sunday evenings. Benny Payne and Jimmy Blaine were also featured.

BILLY GRAHAM CRUSADES (HOUR OF DECISION) ABC/SYNDICATED

30 SEPTEMBER 1951–21 FEBRUARY 1954 (ABC); 1954– (SYNDICATED) One of the first evangelists to utilize television, Billy Graham first appeared on a fifteen-minute series entitled Hour of Decision. Since that time, the Billy Graham Crusades, taped at cities throughout the world, have been widely telecast, usually as specials.

BILLY JAMES HARGIS AND HIS ALL-AMERICAN KIDS SYNDICATED

1972 Religious show, featuring the Reverend Billy James Hargis and several of his youthful followers, known as the All-American Kids.

BILLY ROSE'S PLAYBILL ABC

3 OCTOBER 1950–27 MARCH 1951 Theatrical producer Billy Rose hosted this half-hour dramatic anthology series.

THE BING CROSBY SHOW ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1964–14 JUNE 1965 An established recording and motion picture star, Bing Crosby had made few forays into television before taking the big plunge with this 1964 sitcom. In it he played Bing Collins, an architectural designer. Also featured were Beverly Garland as his wife, Ellie; Diane Sherry as their daughter Janice; Carol Faylen as their daughter Joyce; and Frank McHugh as the handyman, Willie Walters. The cast usually performed one or two musical numbers each week. The series was produced by Steven Gethers for Bing Crosby Productions and was telecast Mondays immediately preceding Ben Casey, another Bing Crosby Productions venture.

BIOGRAPHY SYNDICATED

1962 Mike Wallace hosted this self-explanatory documentary series on which the lives of notables were presented through the use of film clips and interviews.

BIOGRAPHY A&E

5 JANUARY 1988– The second series of this title was similar to the first, presenting filmed biographies of notable people, usually in an hour format. Peter Graves and Jack Perkins hosted. The series began in 1988 as a weekly program, without a continuing title; each week's presentation bore the name of its subject. By 1992 the Biography title had stuck, and in May 1994 it became a nightly series.

THE BIONIC SIX SYNDICATED
1987 The six members of the Bennett family, who possessed bionic powers, battled Dr. Scarab on this cartoon series.

THE BIONIC WOMAN ABC/NBC
14 JANUARY 1976–4 MAY 1977 (ABC); 10 SEPTEMBER 1977–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 (NBC) A spinoff from The Six Million Dollar Man, The Bionic Woman starred Lindsay Wagner, a newcomer to television, as Jaime Somers. Severely injured in a skydiving mishap, Jaime was outfitted with bionic legs, a bionic right arm, and a bionic right ear. Employed as an OSI operative, she had the cover occupation of a schoolteacher at the Ventura Air Force Base school. Also featured were Richard Anderson as OSI topsider Oscar Goldman; Martin E. Brooks as Dr. Rudy Wells, OSI physician; Sam Chew, Jr., as Mark Russell, another OSI employee; Ford Rainey as Jim; and Martha Scott as Helen. In 1977, the series was dropped by ABC and picked up by NBC; it was one of the few shows to switch networks during the 1970s. As a result of the switch costars Richard Anderson and Martin E. Brooks, who continued to appear on The Six Million Dollar Man over at ABC, became two of the very few (if not the only two) performers ever to play the same role simultaneously on two series aired by different networks. Added to the cast in the fall of 1977 was Maximillian, the bionic German shepherd. The series was created by Kenneth Johnson, and its executive producer was Harve Bennett for Universal Television. Wagner returned in several made-for-TV movies: The Return of the Six Million Dollar Man and the Bionic Woman, with Lee Majors and Richard Anderson (17 May 1987, NBC), Bionic Showdown: The Six Million Dollar Man and the Bionic Woman, with Majors, Anderson, and Brooks (30 April 1989, NBC); and Bionic Ever After? with Majors, Anderson, and Brooks (29 November 1994, CBS).

BIRDLAND ABC
5 JANUARY 1994–9 FEBRUARY 1994; 14 APRIL 1994–21 APRIL 1994 Hour dramatic series set at Riverside Hospital in Oakland, California. With Brian Dennehy as Dr. Brian McKenzie, the caring, accessible and sensitive chief of psychiatry; Lindsay Frost as Dr. Jesse Lane, who was also McKenzie's love interest; John Rothman as Dr. Alan Bergman, hospital administrator; Leslie Mann as Mary, a shy nurse; C. C. H. Pounder as Lucy, a psychiatric nurse; Jeff Williams as Dr. Lewis Niles; Kevin J. O'Connor as psychiatric patient Steve Horner; David Packer as Zuchetti; and Julio Oscar Mechoso as Hector, a gay man who was the head orderly (Mechoso had also played an orderly named Hector on the 1991 sitcom, Stat). Walter F. Parkes and Scott Frank created the series.

BIRDMAN AND THE GALAXY TRIO NBC
9 SEPTEMBER 1967–28 DECEMBER 1968 Saturday-morning cartoon series produced by Hanna-Barbera, featuring the adventures of Ray Randall (alias Birdman), who was endowed with the usual array of super powers by Ra, the Egyptian sun god, and fought evildoers. The series's second segment, "The Galaxy Trio," followed three superheroes—Vapor Man, Galaxy Girl, and Meteor Man—as they traveled through space aboard the Condor I.

BISHOP SHEEN
See LIFE IS WORTH LIVING

THE BISKITTS CBS
17 SEPTEMBER 1983–1 SEPTEMBER 1984; 30 MARCH 1985–7 SEPTEMBER 1985 In this Saturday-morning cartoon series, set at Biskitt Island, a group of miniature dogs—the Biskitts—were the guardians of the crown jewels of their late king; the clever canines thwarted the efforts of the king's brother, Max, and his dimwitted jester, Shecky, to seize the jewels.

BIZARRE SHOWTIME
1980–1985 Half-hour series of comedy sketches, hosted by John Byner, and later packaged (without the racier segments) for broadcast syndication.

BLACK JOURNAL PBS
1968–1976 Long-running public affairs program focusing on issues of concern to black Americans. Produced and hosted after 1970 by Tony Brown at New York's WNET, the show was aired in both an hour and a half-hour format. It was one of the few programs on which controversial black leaders such as Angela Davis, Bobby Seale, and Malcolm X were able to appear. Early in 1976 the program experimented with a talk-show format; after the program was dropped by PBS, Brown decided to syndicate the program commercially (see Tony Brown's Journal).

BLACK OMNIBUS SYNDICATED
1973 Talent showcase for black performers, hosted by James Earl Jones.

BLACK PERSPECTIVE ON THE NEWS PBS
1973–1979 Black journalists interviewed newsmakers on this educational series produced by Acel Moore and Reginald Bryant (who also served as moderator) for Philadelphia's WHYY-TV.

THE BLACK ROBE NBC
18 MAY 1949–6 APRIL 1950 Created by Phillips Lord (creator of Gangbusters), this series recreated court cases. In its early weeks, it was entitled Police Night Court. To achieve realism, nonprofessionals were used as witnesses and attorneys. Frankie Thomas, Sr., appeared as the judge, and John Green played the court clerk. The live series was usually seen Thursdays.

BLACK SADDLE NBC/ABC
10 JANUARY 1959–5 SEPTEMBER 1959 (NBC); 2 OCTOBER 1959–30 SEPTEMBER 1960 (ABC) Half-hour western starring Peter Breck as Clay Culhane, a former gunfighter who is now a frontier lawyer. With Russell Johnson as Marshal Gib Scott; Anna Lisa as widow Nora Travers, proprietor of the Marathon Hotel. Set in Latigo, a town in New Mexico Territory. Antony Ellis was the producer.

BLACK SHEEP SQUADRON
See BAA BAA BLACK SHEEP

BLACK TIE AFFAIR NBC
29 MAY 1993–19 JUNE 1993 Short-lived, quirky sitcom created by Jay Tarses (Buffalo Bill, The 'Slap' Maxwell Story, The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd). Tarses, who was given a thirteen-episode commitment and creative control by NBC in 1992, intended his show to examine contemporary adult relationships in a film noirish milieu; he titled it Smoldering Lust. The cast included Bradley Whitford as Dave Brodsky, a part-time private eye who ran a used record store on the side; Kate Capshaw as Margo Cody, who hired Brodsky to watch her philandering husband; John Calvin as the husband, Christopher Cody; and Alison Elliott as Eve Saskatchewan, in whom Chris Cody was interested. Although production was completed by September 1992, the network waited eight more months before deciding to run it. The series debuted in a highly inauspicious time slot—10 P.M. on the Saturday night of Memorial Day weekend—and with a few changes: NBC had rechristened it Black Tie Affair (its original working title) and had stripped the lyrics from the show's theme song. Hardly surprised when the series was canceled after five telecasts, an infuriated Tarses vowed never to work for NBC again. The series's evolution and evaporation was chronicled by Vance Muse in his 1994 book, We Bombed in Burbank.

THE BLACK TULIP SYNDICATED

1972 Dumas's story, set in seventeenth-century France and Holland, was told in a six-part miniseries produced in England and aired as part of Family Classics Theatre. It starred Simon Ward as Cornelius von Baerle, a young Dutchman trying to cultivate the legendary black tulip.

BLACKADDER A&E

3 JANUARY 1987–7 DECEMBER 1989 A satiric look at British history, starring Rowan Atkinson as Edmund, the Black Adder, and Tony Robinson as his faithful servant, Baldrick. Produced in England, the series was shown in four parts: The Black Adder was set during the War of the Roses in the late fifteenth century, Blackadder II during Elizabethan times, Blackadder the Third during the eighteenth century, and Blackadder Goes Forth in World War I.

BLACKE'S MAGIC NBC

5 JANUARY 1986–11 JUNE 1986; 29 JULY 1988–9 SEPTEMBER 1988 An hour crime show from the team responsible for Murder, She Wrote: Peter Fischer, Richard Levinson, and William Link. Here, Hal Linden and Harry Morgan starred as a son-and-father detective duo, Alexander Blacke (a former magician) and his dad, Leonard, a semi-retired con artist. Reruns were shown during the summer of 1988.

BLACKOUT CBS

4 JANUARY 1988–1 APRIL 1988 Bob Goen hosted this daytime game show on which two celebrity-and-contestant teams competed. One member of the team was given twenty seconds to describe a word missing from a phrase; when that twenty-second playback was provided to the teammate, the other team could activate its "blackout" button to delete up to seven seconds of the description. The winning team had the opportunity to play a bonus round for a top prize of $10,000.

BLACKSTAR CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1981–11 SEPTEMBER 1982 Saturday-morning cartoon series about the adventures of John Blackstar, an astronaut who, while in space, slipped through a black hole to a planet ruled by a tyrant; he then sought to organize a rebellion there.

THE BLAIR & RAITT SHOW (THE CHEVY SHOW) NBC

7 JUNE 1959–20 SEPTEMBER 1959 Janet Blair and John Raitt cohosted this musical variety hour, a summer replacement for The Dinah Shore Show.

BLANK CHECK NBC

6 JANUARY 1975–4 JULY 1975 A dull daytime game show on which panelists tried to outguess each other in selecting digits that form the sum of a "blank check." Executive producer: Jack Barry. Hosted by Art James.

BLANKETY BLANKS ABC

21 APRIL 1975–27 JUNE 1975 Bill Cullen hosted this short-lived daytime game show on which panelists tried to guess puns. Executive producer: Bob Stewart.

BLANSKY'S BEAUTIES ABC

12 FEBRUARY 1977–27 JUNE 1977 Following the cancellation of her eponymous series, Nancy Walker was immediately cast in a new sitcom, which was in turn canceled; she thus earned the dubious distinction of starring in two unsuccessful series in a single season. In Blansky's Beauties she played Nancy Blansky, the manager and den mother of a troupe of Las Vegas showgirls. Featured were Eddie Mekka (also of Laverne and Shirley) as her nephew, Joey DeLuca, the troupe's dance instructor; Scott Baio as Anthony DeLuca, her worldwise twelve-year-old nephew; Lynda Goodfriend as Sunshine (Ethel Akalino), the klutzy showgirl; Caren Kaye as Bambi Benton, the daffy one; Rhonda Bates as Arkansas, the tall one; Taaffe O'Connell as Hillary Prentiss, the one who knew the boss; Bond Gideon as Lovely Carson; Gerri Reddick as Jackie Outlaw; Elaine Bolton as Bridget Muldoon; Jill Owens as Misty Karamazov; Shirley Kirkes as Cochise (Gladys Littlefeather); Antonette Yuskis as Sylvia Silver; George Pentecost as Horace (Stubs) Wilmington, manager of the Oasis Hotel; Pat Morita (on loan from Happy Days) as Arnold; and Blackjack the Great Dane. Garry K. Marshall, Bob Brunner, and Arthur Silver created the series; Marshall, Edward K. Milkis, and Thomas L. Miller were the executive producers. Three members of the show's cast turned up in a 1978 sitcom which was also set in Las Vegas: see Who's Watching the Kids.

BLESS THIS HOUSE CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1995–17 JANUARY 1996 Obviously inspired by The Honeymooners, this half-hour sitcom starred Andrew Clay (the raunchy standup comic formerly known as Andrew Dice Clay) as postal worker Burt Clayton, who lived in a cramped New York apartment with his wife and two children; Cathy Moriarty as wife Alice Clayton, who worked as a cashier; Raegan Kotz as twelve-year-old daughter Danny; Sam Gifaldi as young son Sean; Don Stark as Lenny, Burt's co-worker and neighbor; Molly Price as Lenny's wife, Phyllis, Alice's best friend; Wren T. Brown as Cuba, another postal worker; Patricia Healy as neighbor Vicki Shetski, a single mother; and Kimberly Cullum as Vicki's daughter, Jane, who hung out at the Claytons' apartment.

BLIND AMBITION CBS

20 MAY 1977–23 MAY 1979 A four-part, eight-hour docudrama on Watergate, based on the books Blind Ambition by former White House counsel John Dean and Mo by Maureen Dean, his wife. Principal players included: Martin Sheen as John Dean; Theresa Russell as Maureen Dean; Rip Torn as Richard Nixon; Lawrence Pressman as H. R. Haldeman; Graham Jarvis as John Ehrlichman; John Randolph as John Mitchell; Christopher Guest as Jeb Magruder; Michael Callan as Chuck Colson; Ed Flanders as Dean's lawyer, Charlie Shaffer. The scenes in the Oval Office between Dean and Nixon were all verbatim extracts from the official White House tapes. George Schaefer and Renée Valente produced the series.

BLIND DATE ABC/NBC/DUMONT

5 MAY 1949–20 SEPTEMBER 1951 (ABC); 7 JUNE 1952–19 JULY 1952 (NBC); 9 JUNE 1953–15 SEPTEMBER 1953 (DUMONT) A precursor of The Dating Game, Blind Date began on radio in 1943. It was the first TV game show to be hosted by a woman: Arlene Francis (Jan Murray hosted the version in 1953). The format was similar to that of The Dating Game; two eligible college men talked with a model, who could not see her hopeful suitors. She then chose one of the men to be her date.

BLOCKBUSTERS NBC

27 OCTOBER 1980–23 APRIL 1982; 5 JANUARY 1987–1 MAY 1987 On this daytime game show, a solo player competed against two persons from the same family; by answering questions, each side tried to connect a chain of boxes on a grid. The winner(s) then played a "Gold Rush" round for extra cash. Bill Cullen hosted the 1982 version, Bill Rafferty the 1987 version.

BLONDIE NBC

4 JANUARY 1957–27 SEPTEMBER 1957 The first of two short-running adaptations of Chic Young's long-running comic strip. With Pamela Britton as Blondie Bumstead, hard-working housewife; Arthur Lake as Dagwood Bumstead, her bumbling husband (Lake had played Dagwood to Penny Singleton's Blondie in a score of movies during the 1940s), an architect; Stuffy Singer as teenage son Alexander; Ann Barnes as preteen daughter Cookie; Florenz Ames as J. C. Dithers, Bumstead's blustery boss, president of Dithers Construction Company; and Hal Peary as next-door neighbor Herb Woodley.

BLONDIE CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1968–9 JANUARY 1969 The second attempt at turning the comic strip into a successful series also failed. This effort featured Patricia Harty as Blondie

Bumstead; Will Hutchins as Dagwood; Peter Robbins as son Alexander; Pamelyn Ferdin as daughter Cookie; Jim Backus as boss J. C. Dithers; Henny Backus (Jim's real-life wife) as Cora Dithers; Bryan O'Byrne as neighbor Herb Woodley; and Bobbi Jordan as Tootsie Woodley.

BLOSSOM NBC

3 JANUARY 1991–20 MARCH 1995; 22 MAY 1995–6 JUNE 1995 Half-hour sitcom, starring Mayim Bialik as fourteen-year-old Blossom Russo, who lived with her divorced father and her two older brothers; Ted Wass as her dad, musician Nick Russo; Joey Lawrence as brother Joey; Michael Stoyanov as brother Anthony, a recovering substance abuser; Jenna Von Oy as Blossom's fast-talking best friend, Six LeMeure; Barnard Hughes (1991–1994) as Blossom's maternal grandfather, Buzz Richman; David Lascher (1992–1994) as Blossom's boyfriend, Vinnie; Samaria Graham (1993–1995) as Shelly, who married Anthony; Finola Hughes (1993–1995) as Nick's new girlfriend, Carol (they were married in the fall of 1994); and Courtney Chase (1993–1995) as Carol's precocious young daughter, Kennedy. During the early seasons the series employed fantasy sequences (many featuring guest stars), but this device was downplayed in later years. Blossom became especially popular with teen and preteen girls, many of whom identified with the title character; other fans helped make Joey Lawrence a teen idol and recording star. Don Reo created the series, and Bill Bixby directed many of the episodes in 1991 and 1992 before his death from cancer in 1993.

THE BLUE ANGEL CBS

6 JULY 1954–12 OCTOBER 1954 This Tuesday-night variety series was a summer replacement for See It Now. Orson Bean and Polly Bergen hosted the series, set at a posh New York nightclub.

THE BLUE ANGELS SYNDICATED

1960 The adventures of the Blue Angels, a precision squadron of four U.S. Navy flyers who tour the country giving exhibitions. With Dennis Cross as Commander Arthur Richards, head of the squadron; Warner Jones as Captain Wilbur Scott; Don Gordon as Lieutenant Hank Bertelli; Mike Galloway as Lieutenant Russ MacDonald; Robert Knapp as crewman Zeke Powers; and Ross Elliott as crewman Cort Ryker. Simeon G. Gallu, Jr., produced the half-hour show.

BLUE JEAN NETWORK SYNDICATED

1981 Another hour of rock music.

THE BLUE KNIGHT CBS

17 DECEMBER 1975–27 OCTOBER 1976 Joseph Wambaugh's novel about a veteran cop on the beat was first telecast as an eight-hour mini-series in 1973 (shown on four consecutive nights, 13 November–16 November), starring William Holden as patrolman Bumper Morgan. It was Holden's first serious dramatic role on television (he'd played himself on an I Love Lucy episode some eighteen years earlier). Holden was not interested in doing a series, however. George Kennedy was then signed for the part. The series pilot was aired 9 May 1975, and the series itself was selected as a midseason replacement for Kate McShane. Although the series was renewed in 1976, competition from ABC's Charlie's Angels proved too strong. Also appearing (in the last three episodes) was Barbara Rhoades as Carrie Williams, Bumper's lady friend. Executive producers: Lee Rich and Philip Capice.

BLUE LIGHT ABC

12 JANUARY 1966–31 AUGUST 1966 This half-hour adventure series starred Robert Goulet as David March, a double agent working for the U.S.A. in the intelligence unit of the Third Reich. March's code name was "Blue Light." With Christine Carere as Suzanne Duchard, his confidante.

BLUE SKIES CBS

13 JUNE 1988–1 AUGUST 1988 Hour family drama, with Tom Wopat as newly remarried widower Frank Cobb, who left his advertising job in San Francisco and returned to his Oregon home town to join his father at the family's woodworking mill; Season Hubley as his new wife, Annie Cobb; Alyson Croft as Frank's twelve-year-old daughter, Sarah; Kim Hauser as Annie's twelve-year-old daughter, Zoe; Danny Gerard as Frank's ten-year-old son, Charley; and Pat Hingle as Frank's father, Henry.

BLUE SKIES ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1994–31 OCTOBER 1994 The second series with this title was a sitcom set at the Cambridge, Massachusetts, headquarters of the Blue Skies Trading Company, a mail-order catalog business. In the cast were Corey Parker as co-owner Joel Goodman; Matt Roth as co-owner Russell Evans; Julia Campbell as Ellie Baskin, a Harvard MBA taken on by Joel and Russell as a partner; Richard Kind as Kenny, the crooked accountant; Stephen Tobolowsky as Oak, the products tester; and Adilah Barnes as Eve, the secretary. John Peaslee and Judd Pillot created the series, which was axed after seven weeks. Peaslee and Pillot then cast Campbell, Kind, and Tobolowsky in Blue Skies's eventual replacement, A Whole New Ballgame.

BLUE THUNDER ABC

6 JANUARY 1984–7 SEPTEMBER 1984 Based on the 1983 movie, this hour crime show focused on the Blue Thunder Unit, a Los Angeles police unit which operated a special helicopter equipped with (among other things) an electric cannon, night sensors, airborne video gear, laser tracking systems, and a "whisper mode" that enabled it to run almost noiselessly. James Farentino starred as its pilot, gutsy Frank Chaney. Also featured were Dana Carvey as his observer, Clinton "Jafo" Wonderlove ("Jafo" is the acronym for "Just Another Frustrated Observer"); Sandy McPeak as Captain Ed Braddock, the unit commander; Dick Butkus and Bubba Smith as the ground support team, Officers "Ski" Butowski and "Bubba" Kelsey; and Ann Cooper as Officer J. J. Douglas. See also Airwolf.

BLUES BY BARGY CBS

24 JANUARY 1949–6 JULY 1950 Singer-pianist Jeane Bargy was the star of this durable musical show. It was usually broadcast several times a week, sometimes in a fifteen-minute format, other times in a thirty-minute format.

BOB CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1992–31 MAY 1993; 22 OCTOBER 1993–12 NOVEMBER 1993; 27 DECEMBER 1993 Bob Newhart starred in his third sitcom as Bob McKay, who had created a comic book, Mad Dog, which had lasted for twelve issues in the 1950s; the title character was a veterinarian with the adrenal glands of a Doberman pinscher. After years of designing greeting cards, McKay was asked to bring back his cartoon superhero. Also featured were Carlene Watkins as Bob's wife, Kaye; Cynthia Stevenson as their myopic daughter, Trisha; Ruth Kobart as animator Iris Frankel; Timothy Fall as inker Chad Pfefferle; Andrew Bilgore as rookie employee Albie Strauss; John Cygan as story writer (or "graphic novelist") Harlan Stone, who wanted Mad Dog to become a bloodthirsty vigilante rather than a good guy; and Michael Cumpsty as the voice of Chuck Terhorst, head of the parent company (American Canadian Transcontinental Communications Co.), who insisted that Bob and Harlan work together. Lisa Kudrow joined the cast in the spring of 1993 as Trisha's roommate, Kathy. Bob finished the 1992–1993 season in a disappointing 62nd place among prime-time series. It was revived for a few episodes in the fall of 1993, with a different format: Mad Dog had died again, and Bob was asked to head up the greeting card company he had previously worked for. Newhart, Watkins, and Stevenson were retained from the old cast, and four new regulars were added: Betty White as Sylvia Schmidt, the owner; Jere Burns as her son, Pete; Eric Allan Kramer as Whitney van de Bunt; and Megan Cavanaugh as Chris Szelinski.

BOB AND CAROL AND TED AND ALICE ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1973–7 NOVEMBER 1973 This pale adaptation of the 1969 film comedy about mate swapping was the first fatality of the 1973–1974 season. With Robert Urich as film director Bob Sanders; Anne Archer as his wife, Carol; David Spielberg as attorney Ted Henderson; Anita Gillette as his wife, Alice; Jodie Foster as Elizabeth, Ted and Alice's preteen daughter; and Brad Savage as Sean, Bob and Carol's young son.

THE BOB AND RAY SHOW NBC

26 NOVEMBER 1951–1 FEBRUARY 1952; 12 JULY 1952–16 AUGUST 1952; 7 OCTOBER 1952–23 JUNE 1953; 27 APRIL 1953–28 SEPTEMBER 1953 Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding), two low-key satirists, first joined forces on a Boston radio station in the late 1940s. Though they made several forays into television (they also did a Broadway show, The Two and Only, in 1972), their unique brand of humor seemed best suited to radio. Their first TV program, a fifteen-minute affair, was seen Mondays through Fridays at 7:15 P.M. and featured Audrey Meadows. During the summer of 1952 they hosted a half-hour show on Saturdays, which featured Cloris Leachman. In the fall of that year, they were again seen in a fifteen-minute format; this show, also known as Club Embassy or Club Time, featured Audrey Meadows (again) and singer Mindy Carson, who replaced Bob and Ray as host in midseason. In late April of 1953 they began a second fifteen-minute show, which was seen Mondays at 7:30 P.M. Bob and Ray later cohosted a game show, The Name's the Same, in 1955, and were regulars on Happy Days, a 1970 summer series. Goulding died in 1989.

THE BOB CONSIDINE SHOW NBC/ABC

20 JANUARY 1951–19 JANUARY 1954 (NBC); 11 JULY 1954–29 AUGUST 1954 (ABC) Syndicated columnist Bob Considine had two network shows of his own. The first, a fifteen-minute weekly show, featured comments and interviews with guests; it was also known as On the Line with Considine. The second show was seen once a week as a summer replacement for The Walter Winchell Show. Considine was later one of the regulars on Tonight! America After Dark, the short-lived NBC late-night show that replaced Steve Allen's Tonight show in 1957.

THE BOB CRANE SHOW NBC

6 MARCH 1975–19 JUNE 1975 Insipid sitcom about a middle-aged man who decided to go to medical school. With Bob Crane as Bob Wilcox; Trisha Hart as his wife, Ellie Wilcox; Erica Petal as daughter Pam; Ronny Graham as Ernest Busso, their eccentric landlord, an inventor; Jack Fletcher as Lyle Ingersoll, dean of the medical school; Todd Susman as fellow student Marvin Susman; and James Sutorius as student Jerry Mallory. The half-hour show was produced by Norman S. Powell and Martin Cohan for MTM Enterprises. Bob Crane, a one-time disc jockey who had been featured on The Donna Reed Show and had starred in Hogan's Heroes, was found murdered in an Arizona hotel room in June of 1978.

THE BOB CROSBY SHOW CBS/NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1953–30 AUGUST 1957 (CBS); 14 JUNE 1958–6 SEPTEMBER 1958 (NBC) Bing's younger brother was a popular bandleader during the 1930s and 1940s; Bob Crosby's Bobcats even appeared on television in 1939. Crosby later hosted several radio shows, including The Crosby Music Shop and The Crosby Night Shift. The first of the two television series he hosted was a half-hour daytime show, broadcast Monday through Friday; it featured the Modernaires (who had sung with Crosby on radio), Joan O'Brien, Jack Narz, and (in later seasons) Bob's daughter Cathy Crosby. Bob's second series was an hour-long prime-time effort, a summer replacement for The Perry Como Show; it featured singer Gretchen Wyler, the Peter Gennaro dancers, the Clay Warnick singers, The Carl Hoff orchestra, and (at the opening and closing) clown Emmett Kelly. Produced by Louis DaPron.

THE BOB CUMMINGS SHOW

See LOVE THAT BOB

THE BOB CUMMINGS SHOW CBS

5 OCTOBER 1961–1 MARCH 1962 Shortly after the demise of Love That Bob, Bob Cummings returned in another situation comedy strikingly similar to the earlier one. This time Bob played Bob Carson, a wealthy girl-crazy adventurer who owned three airplanes (including one that converted into an automobile) and lived near a desert hotel with a private airstrip. Murvyn Vye costarred as Bob's sidekick, Lionel, and Roberta Shore played "Hank" Geogerty, the daughter of the hotel owner. Broadcast on Thursday nights, the show was clobbered in the ratings by Dr. Kildare.

BOB HOPE PRESENTS THE CHRYSLER THEATER NBC

4 OCTOBER 1963–6 SEPTEMBER 1967 Hour-long dramatic anthology series hosted by Bob Hope. Interspersed throughout each season were The Bob Hope Specials, musical or variety hours with Hope and guest stars. Dramatic presentations on the anthology series included Aleksandr Solzhenitzyn's "One Day in the Live of Ivan Denisovich" (8 November 1963); "Double Jeopardy," with a rare television appearance by Lauren Bacall (8 January 1965); "The War and Eric Kurtz," with David Carradine (his first major TV role, 5 March 1965); and "Blind Man's Bluff," with Susan Clark (her first major TV role, 8 February 1967).

THE BOB HOPE SHOW NBC

12 OCTOBER 1953–22 MAY 1956 One of the world's best-known personalities and America's premier comedian, Bob Hope's regular appearances on television during the 1950s were on a monthly basis. During the 1952–1953 season he hosted The Colgate Comedy Hour on Sundays every four weeks; during the 1953–1954 and 1954–1955 seasons he was seen once a month on Tuesdays, replacing Milton Berle; during the 1955–1956 season he was also seen on Tuesdays, alternating with Milton Berle, Martha Raye, and Dinah Shore. Hope's famous theme song, "Thanks for the Memory," was written by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin.

THE BOB NEWHART SHOW NBC

11 OCTOBER 1961–13 JUNE 1962 Bob Newhart, a onetime accountant, was one of the most successful of the "new wave" of stand-up comics who appeared on television in the late 1950s. Newhart's trademark was a telephone; many of his monologues were done as telephone conversations. Nicknamed the "button-down comedian" (because of his button-down shirts), he headlined a thirty-minute variety series in 1961. It was adored by the critics, if not by a large viewing audience, and won both an Emmy and a Peabody award in 1962. Other regulars included Jackie Joseph, Kay Westfall, Jack Grinnage, Mickey Manners, Pearl Shear, June Ericson, Andy Albin, and announcer Dan Sorkin.

THE BOB NEWHART SHOW CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1972–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 Bob Newhart's second eponymous series, his first situation comedy, was a clear success. In it he played Bob Hartley, a Chicago psychologist. With Suzanne Pleshette as his wife Emily, a third-grade teacher; Bill Daily as divorced neighbor Howard Borden, a 747 navigator; Peter Bonerz as orthodontist Jerry Robinson, whose office is on the same floor as Bob's; Marcia Wallace as their receptionist Carol (Kester) Bondurant; Patricia Smith (1972–1973) as Margaret Hoover, the Hartleys' neighbor; Pat Finley (1974–1976) as Ellen, Bob's sister; Will MacKenzie (1975–1978) as travel agent Larry Bondurant, who married Carol. For several seasons Bob's therapy group included Jack Riley as paranoid Elliott Carlin; Florida Friebus as kindly Mrs. Bakerman; John Fiedler as timid Mr. Peterson; Renee Lippin as shy Michelle; and Noam Pitlik and Daniel J. Travanti as obnoxious Mr. Gianelli. Created by David Davis and Lorenzo Music. Executive producers (and script supervisors): Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses (a former comedy team). The show's 142 episodes were produced by MTM Enterprises. CBS aired a series retrospective, "The Bob Newhart ~~20th~~ 19th Anniversary Special," on 23 March 1991. Marcia Wallace reprised her role in an episode of Murphy Brown, which aired 14 March 1994.

BOBBIE GENTRY'S HAPPINESS HOUR CBS
5 JUNE 1974–26 JUNE 1974 A four-week summer replacement for The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour, hosted by singer Bobbie Gentry, who is best known for her 1967 record, "Ode to Billy Joe."

THE BOBBY DARIN AMUSEMENT CO. NBC
27 JULY 1972–7 SEPTEMBER 1972; 19 JANUARY 1973–27 APRIL 1973 Born Walden Robert Cassotto, Bobby Darin burst on the entertainment scene in 1958 with a hit record: "Splish Splash." After several more hits (including "Mack the Knife"), a marriage to Sandra Dee, and a string of movies, he disappeared from show business in 1967. He returned early in the 1970s and was given his own series in 1972, a summer replacement for The Dean Martin Show. The series was revived that winter as a midseason replacement. Regulars included Dick Bakalyan, Steve Landesberg, and Rip Taylor. Stricken as a child with rheumatic fever, Darin had had two artificial valves inserted in his heart in 1971; following open heart surgery to correct a malfunctioning valve, Darin died on December 20, 1973, at the age of thirty-seven.

THE BOBBY GOLDSBORO SHOW SYNDICATED
1972 Half-hour variety series hosted by pop singer Bobby Goldsboro. The announcer was a frog puppet named Calvin Calaveras. Goldsboro's musical career began as a guitarist for Roy Orbison; his hits have included "See the Funny Little Clown," "Little Things," and "Honey."

THE BOBBY LORD SHOW SYNDICATED
1966 A half hour of country-and-western music, hosted by Bobby Lord.

THE BOBBY VINTON SHOW SYNDICATED
1975–1976 Hosted by singer Bobby Vinton, this half-hour musical variety series was produced in Toronto. Vinton began his recording career as a clarinetist and bandleader but is best known as a vocalist. His hits (dating back to 1962) have included "Roses Are Red," "Blue on Blue," "Blue Velvet," and "My Melody of Love." Executive producers: Allan Blye and Chris Bearde.

BOBBY'S WORLD FOX
8 SEPTEMBER 1990– Fox's first entry in the Saturday-morning cartoon arena, Bobby's World looked at life through the eyes of four-year-old Bobby Generic, who lived in suburbia with his parents, older brother and sister, and dog Roger. Bobby was based on a character created by actor/comedian Howie Mandel, who supplied the voice and who appeared in live form at the beginning and end of each program. John Tesh (of Entertainment Tonight) composed the theme music. In the fall of 1994 the series moved to Fox's weekday schedule.

BOBO THE HOBO SYNDICATED
1956 A filmed color anthology series for children, starring a repertory company of puppets. The puppets' limbs were manually controlled, but their jaws and lips were operated by a person wearing a special helmet which electronically transmitted the wearer's jaw and lip movements to the puppets. Samuel H. Evans invented the helmet device and co-produced the series with Lorraine Lester. Brett Morrison supplied the voice of Bobo, leader of the puppet troupe.

BODIES OF EVIDENCE CBS
18 JUNE 1992–27 AUGUST 1992; 30 MARCH 1993–28 MAY 1993 Hour crime show focusing on the homicide squad of the Metropolitan Police Force. With Lee Horsley as Lt. Ben Carroll; George Clooney as Det. Ryan Walker; Kate McNeil as new member Det. Nora Houghton; Al Fann as Det. Walt Stratton; Francis X. McCarthy as Nora's father, Sgt. Tim Houghton; Michele Scarabelli as TV reporter Holly Bennett; Lorraine Toussaint as pathologist Dr. Mary Rocket; and Leslie Jordan as Lemar the lab man.

BODY BY JAKE SYNDICATED

1988–1990 An exercise program with Jake Steinfeld, bodybuilder to the stars, who charged up to $200 per half hour for private workouts.

THE BODY IN QUESTION PBS

1980 Author-actor-director-physician Jonathan Miller hosted this British-produced series on human anatomy and physiology.

BODY LANGUAGE CBS

4 JUNE 1984–3 JANUARY 1986 Tom Kennedy hosted this daytime game show on which two celebrity-and-contestant teams competed. In the "body language" segment, one member tried to pantomime a series of words to his or her partner; all such words correctly guessed were inserted into the blanks of a sentence, which formed a puzzle for the player to solve. If the player was unable to solve the puzzle, a member of the opposing team was given a chance to solve it.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL CBS

23 MARCH 1987– A half-hour daytime serial created by William Bell and Lee Phillip Bell, the pair responsible for The Young and the Restless. Their son, Bradley Bell, has been its supervising producer and head writer. The series is set in the fashion business of Los Angeles, and its two central families are the Forresters and the Logans. See TREASURE QUEST

BONANZA NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1959–16 JANUARY 1973 Second only to Gunsmoke among long-running westerns, Bonanza was the archetype of the "property" western that dominated the genre during the 1960s. Set in Virginia City, Nevada, it told the story of the Cartwrights, owners of a nearby 600,000-acre (give or take a few) ranch—The Ponderosa (named because of the ponderosa pines growing there). Hardworking, resourceful, and independent, the Cartwrights seemed to devote little time to running the ranch, despite the fact that their hired help never numbered more than four; obviously, the Cartwrights knew good labor when they saw it. With Canadian actor Lorne Greene as Ben Cartwright, a three-time widower; Pernell Roberts (1959–1965) as eldest son Adam; big Dan Blocker (1959–1972) as son Hoss; Michael Landon (star of the 1957 film, I Was a Teenage Werewolf) as youngest son, Little Joe; Victor Sen Yung as Hop Sing, the cook; Ray Teal as Sheriff Roy Coffee, the Virginia City lawman who frequently called on the Cartwrights for assistance; David Canary (1968–1970; 1972–1973) as foreman Mr. Canaday (Candy); Mitch Vogel (1970–1972) as Jamie Hunter, a young runaway taken in by the Cartwrights; and Tim Matheson (1972–1973) as ranch hand Griff King, an ex-con.

Each of the Cartwright sons was a half-brother to the other two; the story of Ben Cartwright's three marriages was told in flashbacks. Adam, born in New England, was the son of Ben's first wife Elizabeth. Hoss was the son of second wife Inger, a woman of Scandinavian extraction who was killed by Indians; Hoss's real name is Eric (hoss is Norwegian for "good luck"). Little Joe, the youngest, was the son of Marie, whom Ben met in New Orleans; Marie died as the result of a fall from her horse.

During its first two seasons, Bonanza was seen on Saturdays and failed to outdraw CBS's Perry Mason. In the fall of 1961, it was scheduled on Sundays at 9 P.M. It remained there for eleven years, ranking consistently among the Top Ten, eventually knocking off Perry Mason in 1965–1966. Even after Pernell Roberts quit the series in 1965 (explaining he'd grown tired of the role), the show continued to do well. But two calamitous events in 1972 led to Bonanza's cancellation halfway through its fourteenth season: the sudden death of Dan Blocker during the summer and a scheduling change to Tuesdays.

In 1988 a TV-movie was made for syndication, intended as a pilot for a possible sequel series. Titled "Bonanza: The Next Generation," it starred John Ireland as Aaron Cartwright, brother of the deceased Ben (Lorne Greene had been signed to reappear as Ben, but died before filming began), and featured Gillian Greene (Lorne's daughter) as Jennifer Sills and Michael Landon, Jr., as Hoss's son, Benj. Michael Landon, Jr., and Dirk Blocker (son of Dan Blocker) teamed up in two subsequent TV-movies: "Bonanza: The Return" (28 November 1993, NBC), and "Bonanza: Under Attack" (15 January 1995, NBC).

BONINO NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1953–26 DECEMBER 1953 An early ethnic situation comedy about an Italian-American opera singer, a widower with several children, who decides to spend more time with his family. With Italian-American opera singer Ezio Pinza as Babbo Bonino; Mary Wickes as Martha, the maid; David Opatoshu as Walter Rogers, Bonino's manager; Conrad Janis as eldest son Edward; Lenka Peterson as daughter Doris; Chet Allen as son Terry; Oliver Andes as son Carlo; Gaye Huston as daughter Francesca; and Van Dyke Parks as son Andrew. Parks grew up to be a rock-music producer and composer and cowrote (with Brian Wilson) the Beach Boys' hits "Heroes and Villains" and "Surf's Up."

BONKERS SYNDICATED

1978 Comedy-variety half hour starring the Hudson Brothers—Bill, Brett, and Mark—with Bob Monkhouse and the Bonkettes. Produced by Jack Burns for ITC.

BONKERS SYNDICATED

1993– A wacky bobcat was the title character in this half-hour cartoon series. He was introduced in 1992 on Saturday mornings in Disney's Raw Toonage; a season later Bonkers became one segment of the daily two-hour cartoon block, Disney Afternoon.

THE BONNIE HUNT SHOW CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1995–27 OCTOBER 1995; 10 MARCH 1996– Half-hour sitcom, partially unscripted, set mostly in the newsroom of Chicago TV station WBDR. With Bonnie Hunt as newly hired reporter Bonnie Kelly; Mark Derwin as news director William Kirkland; Janet Carroll as Kirkland's officious assistant, Diane Fulton; Richard Gant as assignment editor Joe Briggs; Brian Howe as Sammy Sinatra, who ran the food cart; Tom Virtue as cameraman Tom Vandoozer; Eamonn Roche as news editor Andrew Wiggins; Holly Wortell as Bonnie's friend and neighbor, Holly Jankovsky, who was also a makeup artist at the station; and Don Lake as Bonnie and Holly's neighbor, Keith Jetzek, a limousine driver. The series returned in midseason as Bonnie.

THE BONNIE PRUDDEN SHOW SYNDICATED

1968 Half-hour exercise show, hosted by physical fitness expert Bonnie Prudden.

BOOK BEAT PBS

1965–1978 Hardy half-hour series hosted by Robert Cromie of the Chicago Tribune, featuring interviews with authors.

THE BOOK OF LISTS CBS

4 MAY 1982–25 MAY 1982 A lightweight hour of trivial information and dramatizations of matters appearing in the popular Book of Lists books. Bill Bixby hosted the show.

BOOKER FOX

24 SEPTEMBER 1989–26 AUGUST 1990 In this spinoff from 21 Jump Street, Richard Grieco starred as Dennis Booker, who was now an investigator for the Teshima Corporation of America. Joining him were Katie Rich (fall 1989) as his assistant, Elaine Grazzo; Carmen Argenziano as Chick Sterling; and Marcia Strassman as Alicia Rudd, Teshima's vice president of acquisitions. Lori Petty joined the cast early in 1990 as Booker's new assistant, Diane Dunne. Rocker Billy Idol composed and sang the show's theme.

BOOKMARK PBS

1989–1991 Half-hour series of book reviews and discussions with authors, hosted by Lewis Lapham.

BOONE NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1983–12 DECEMBER 1983; 28 JULY 1984–11 AUGUST 1984 Created by Earl (The Waltons) Hamner, this hour dramatic series was set in 1953 in Trinity, Tennessee. It starred Tom Byrd as Boone Sawyer, a young man who sang and played the guitar, and dreamed of making it big as an entertainer. Also featured were Barry Corbin as his father, Merit, a mechanic who hoped Boone would join him in the garage business; Elizabeth Huddle as his mother, Faye, who hoped Boone would become a preacher; Kitty Moffatt as his teenaged sister, Susannah; Amanda Peterson as his little sister, Squirt; Greg Webb as Boone's fellow musician, Rome Hawley; Ronnie Claire Edwards and William Edward Phipps as Boone's Aunt Dolly and Uncle Linc Sawyer, who ran Linc's Orchid Lounge, where Boone and Rome frequently performed.

BOOTS AND SADDLES SYNDICATED

1957–1959 The adventures of the Fifth Cavalry. With Jack Pickard as Captain Shank Adams, Patrick McVey as Lieutenant Colonel Hays; Gardner McKay as Lieutenant Kelly; David Willock as Lieutenant Binning; John Alderson as Sergeant Bullock; and Michael Hinn as scout Luke Cummings. Thirty-nine half-hour episodes were filmed by California National Productions.

BORDER PATROL SYNDICATED

1959 Modern-day adventure series starring Richard Webb (Captain Midnight) as Don Jagger, Deputy Chief of the United States Border Patrol.

BORDERTOWN FAM

7 JANUARY 1989– Jointly produced in Canada by The Family Channel (formerly the Christian Broadcasting Network) and Global TV, Bordertown was a western—a northwestern, to be precise—set during the 1890s in a town that straddled the U.S.–Canada border. John Brennan and Richard Comar costarred as Corporal Clive Bennett of the North West Mounted Police and United States Marshal Jack Craddock, the two lawmen whose jurisdiction and temperament clashed there. Also featured was Sophie Barjac as Dr. Marie Dumont, the town's physician, in whom both lawmen were interested. A total of 78 episodes were produced between 1988 and 1990; the series continued in reruns on The Family Channel.

BORN FREE NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1974–30 DECEMBER 1974 Conservation-minded adventure series set in Kenya. With Gary Collins as game warden George Adamson; Diana Muldaur as Joy Adamson; Hal Frederick as Makedde, their scout and assistant. The series was based on Joy Adamson's best-selling books, Born Free and Living Free, which told of the Adamsons' adventures with Elsa the lioness. Created for television by Carl Forman. Executive producer: David Gerber.

BOSOM BUDDIES ABC

27 NOVEMBER 1980–12 AUGUST 1982 A well-crafted sitcom, Bosom Buddies borrowed its original gimmick—two guys in drag—from the Tony Curtis–Jack Lemmon–Marilyn Monroe film Some Like It Hot. The series starred Tom Hanks and Peter Scolari as Kip Wilson and Henry Desmond, two young men whose cheap New York apartment was demolished; desperate, they moved into the Susan B. Anthony, a hotel for women, where they masqueraded as their own "sisters," Buffy and Hildegarde. Also featured were Donna Dixon as Sonny Lumet, their naive and voluptuous hallmate (and Kip's girlfriend); Holland Taylor as Ruth Dunbar, Kip and Henry's boss at a Manhattan ad agency; Wendie Jo Sperber as Amy Cassidy, their coworker and hallmate, who pursued Henry and who was the only person who knew of their charade; Telma Hopkins as hallmate Isabel Hammond; and Lucille Benson (1980–1981) as crusty Lily Sinclair, the hotel manager. During the second season, Kip revealed his dual identity to Sonny, and the boys-in-drag storyline was deemphasized as Kip and Henry opened their own production outfit, 60 Seconds Street, with financial help from Ruth and Amy. NBC reran a few episodes of the series during the summer of 1984.

BOSS LADY NBC

1 JULY 1952–23 SEPTEMBER 1952 Lynn Bari, who began her film career in 1933 at age eighteen, starred as Gwen Allen, the boss of a construction company, Hillendale Homes, Inc., in this summer replacement for Fireside Theatre. Also featured were Nicholas Joy as Gwen's father, Glen Langan as her boyfriend, Jeff, and Lee Patrick as Aggie, the secretary.

BOSTON BLACKIE SYNDICATED

1951 Boston Blackie, the criminal-cum-detective made famous in films by Chester Morris, was played on television by veteran character actor Kent Taylor. With Lois Collier as his lady friend, Mary Wesley; Frank Orth as Inspector Faraday. The half-hour series was set in Los Angeles, not Boston. Produced by Ziv TV; directed by Eddie Davis, Sobey Martin, and George M. Cahan.

BOTH SIDES ABC

15 MARCH 1953–7 JUNE 1953 A series of debates on public policy issues, moderated by Quincy Howe.

BOURBON STREET BEAT ABC

5 OCTOBER 1959–26 SEPTEMBER 1960 New Orleans was the setting for this Warner Brothers hour-long detective series. It starred Richard Long as Rex Randolph and Andrew Duggan as Cal Calhoun, the owners of Randolph and Calhoun, Special Services. Also featured were Arlene Howell as their receptionist, Melody Lee Mercer; Van Williams as their young assistant, Kenny Madison; and Eddie Cole as "The Baron," a local pianist. After Bourbon Street Beat expired, Rex Randolph moved West to join 77 Sunset Strip, while Kenny Madison headed southeast to Warner Brothers' new detective series, SurfSide 6.

Although the series was shot in Hollywood on the set of the film A Streetcar Named Desire, ABC desired to give the series a look of local authenticity. The network bought a half-interest in a real New Orleans restaurant, The Absinthe House, and set the offices of Randolph and Calhoun above it.

BOWLING HEADLINERS ABC/DUMONT

26 DECEMBER 1948–30 OCTOBER 1949 (ABC); 13 NOVEMBER 1949–9 APRIL 1950 (DUMONT) One of network television's first bowling shows, this half-hour series was hosted by Jimmy Powers during its first season and by Al Cirillo (who also produced it) during its second season.

BOWLING STARS ABC/NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1957–29 DECEMBER 1957 (ABC); 1 OCTOBER 1960–6 MAY 1961 (NBC) A series of head-to-head matches between professional bowlers. The ABC version, which ran in prime time, was hosted by "Whispering Joe" Wilson (so named because he spoke softly to avoid disturbing the keglers' concentration). The NBC version, a weekend feature, was hosted by Bud Palmer. See also National Bowling Champions.

BOY MEETS WORLD ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1993– Half-hour sitcom starring Ben Savage (younger brother of The Wonder Years' Fred Savage) as eleven-year-old Cory Matthews, whose next-door neighbor also happened to be his teacher. William Daniels costarred as the teacher, the ever-watchful George Feeny. Also featured were William Russ as Cory's father, Alan, a supermarket manager; Betsy Randle as Cory's mother, Amy; Will Friedle as his older brother, Eric; Lily Nicksay as his younger sister, Morgan; Rider Strong as his best friend, Shawn Turner; Lee Norris (1993–1994) as his nerdy classmate, Minkus; and Danielle Fishel as classmate Topanga. For the series' second season, Cory and his pals left elementary school and started middle school; unfortunately for them, Mr. Feeny joined them, too, as the new vice principal. Added to the cast were Anthony Tyler Quinn as Jonathan Turner, Shawn's father; Sydney Bennett as Desiree; Danny McNulty as school bully Harley Kiner; Ethan Suplee as Frankie; and Blake Soper as Joey. Alex Desert joined the cast in the fall of 1995 as student Eli Williams.

THE BOYS CBS

20 AUGUST 1993–17 SEPTEMBER 1993 In this half-hour sitcom, a young horror novelist moved into a house whose former owner, an elderly man, had died, and became friends with the former owner's cronies. With Christopher Meloni as the novelist, Doug Kirkfield; Isabella Hofmann as his live-in girlfriend, Molly; Ned Beatty as nextdoor neighbor Bert Greenblatt; Doris Roberts as Bert's wife, Doris; Richard Venture as Al, who worked in a tar plant; and John Harkins as Harlan, a retired firefighter.

THE BOYS ARE BACK CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1994–28 JANUARY 1995 Half-hour sitcom about a middle-aged couple whose plans for a peaceful life together were thrown asunder when their two grown sons, daughter-in-law, and three grandchildren suddenly moved back home. With Hal Linden as Fred Hansen; Suzanne Pleshette as Jackie Hansen; George Newbern as son Mike, who had lost his job; Kevin Crowley as son Rick, a police officer; Bess Meyer as Mike's wife, Judy; Ryan O'Donohue as Mike and Judy's son Peter; Kelsey Mulrooney as their daughter, Sarah; and Justin Cooper as their son Nicky.

THE BOYS OF TWILIGHT CBS

29 FEBRUARY 1992–21 MARCH 1992 This four-episode modern-day western, about the two elderly lawmen in the town of Twilight, starred Richard Farnsworth as Sheriff Cody McPherson; Wilford Brimley as Deputy Bill Huntoon; Louise Fletcher as Cody's wife, Geneva; Ben Browder as the young deputy, Tyler Clare; and Amanda McBroom as Mayor Troxell.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

see SECOND CHANCE (1987 version)

BOZO THE CLOWN (BOZO'S BIG TOP) SYNDICATED

1956– Not exactly a national series, Bozo the Clown is essentially a television "franchise" controlled by Larry Harmon. Bozo was originally the star of dozens of children's records released by Capitol. In 1956 Harmon bought the TV rights to the character and developed the idea of a live Bozo (each local station supplying its own) introducing Bozo cartoons. The idea caught on; by 1966 Bozo could be seen on more than 240 stations in over forty countries. By that time several dozen stations featured the same Bozo on videotape: Frank Avruch, Boston's Bozo. Willard Scott of the Today show also served as a local Bozo in Washington, D.C. The durable character carried on through the 1970s and 1980s, and was still being carried in a number of markets in 1990. Variety reported in 1992 that Chicago superstation WGN had renewed the show through 1997, and that the waiting list for tickets had dropped from ten years to five.

BRACKEN'S WORLD NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1969–25 DECEMBER 1970 Life at Hollywood Century Studios. With Peter Haskell as producer Kevin Grant; Madlyn Rhue as his wife, Marjorie; Elizabeth Allen as Laura Deane, who runs a talent school; Dennis Cole as young leading man David Evans; Karen Jensen as starlet Rachel Holt; Steven Oliver as Brando-type Tom Huston; Laraine Stephens as young leading lady Diane Waring; Linda Harrison as shy young actress Paulette Douglas; Jeanne Cooper as Mrs. Douglas, Paulette's overbearing mother; and Eleanor Parker as Sylvia Caldwell, executive secretary to studio boss John Bracken. During the 1969–1970 season Bracken was unseen; for the second season (Cole and Oliver having left the series) Leslie Nielsen was added to play the now-visible Bracken. The hour show was produced by 20th Century-Fox.

THE BRADBURY CHRONICLES
see RAY BRADBURY THEATER

THE BRADY BRIDES NBC
6 FEBRUARY 1981–17 APRIL 1981 This sequel to The Brady Bunch was made as a two-hour made-for-TV movie, titled "The Brady Girls Get Married." Shortly before its scheduled broadcast, however, the network decided to air it in three parts, and subsequently ordered a few additional episodes. For the movie, the original Brady Bunch cast was reassembled for the double wedding of the two older Brady girls, Marcia and Jan: Marcia married Wally Logan (played by Jerry Houser) and Jan wed Phillip Covington III (Ron Kuhlman). After the wedding, the two couples bought a house together, forcing the easygoing Wally and the uptight Phillip to co-exist. Also featured in the latter episodes was Keland Love as Harry, a neighborhood kid; Florence Henderson and Ann B. Davis (from the original Brady Bunch) also appeared occasionally.

THE BRADY BUNCH ABC
26 SEPTEMBER 1969–30 AUGUST 1974 Harmless sitcom about a widower with three sons who married a widow with three daughters. Featuring Robert Reed as architect Mike Brady; Florence Henderson as Carol Brady; Ann B. Davis as Alice Nelson, their harried housekeeper; Maureen McCormick as Marcia; Barry Williams as Greg; Eve Plumb as Jan; Christopher Knight as Peter; Susan Olsen as Cindy; and Michael Lookinland as Bobby. Robbie Rist was also featured in the last six episodes as Carol's eight-year-old nephew, Oliver, who stayed with the Bradys while his parents were away. Sherwood Schwartz created the series and was its executive producer. The Bunch also turned up in animated form (see The Brady Kids), in a variety format (see The Brady Bunch Hour), in a 1981 sequel (see The Brady Brides), in a 1988 TV-movie ("A Very Brady Christmas"), and a 1990 sequel (see The Bradys). By the 1990s the series had achieved cult status among the late and post-baby boomers. Several books were written about the series, including Barry Williams's autobiography, Growing Up Brady. Verbatim versions of some episodes were produced on stage in several cities under the title "The Real Live Brady Bunch." Florence Henderson hosted an ABC prime-time special, "Bradymania," on 19 May 1993, and a motion picture based on the series emerged in 1995. "The Brady Bunch Movie" featured cameo appearances by original cast members Henderson, Davis, Williams, and Knight. To the disappointment of some fans, Robert Reed expressed utter disdain for the series before his untimely death in 1992.

THE BRADY BUNCH HOUR ABC
23 JANUARY 1977–25 MAY 1977 A variety hour with some running sketches broadcast irregularly during 1977. With Florence Henderson (Carol), Robert Reed (Mike), Maureen McCormick (Marcia), Barry Williams (Greg), Geri Reischl (Jan), Chris Knight (Peter), Susan Olsen (Cindy), and Michael Lookinland (Bobby).

THE BRADY KIDS ABC
16 SEPTEMBER 1972–31 AUGUST 1974 A Saturday-morning cartoon series. The voices of the six Brady Bunch children (McCormick, Williams, Plumb, Knight, Olsen, and Lookinland) were used.

THE BRADYS CBS
9 FEBRUARY 1990–9 MARCH 1990 Most of the original cast of The Brady Bunch reassembled for this hour comedy-drama sequel to the original 1969–1974 sitcom;

CBS thoughtfully scheduled the show in the same time slot (Fridays at 8 P.M.) that The Brady Bunch had had for its last three seasons. This time, however, there were not two generations of Bradys, but three; Mike and Carol now had four grandchildren. They still didn't have the house to themselves, however, as daughter Marcia and her family moved in with Mike and Carol after her husband lost his job. Returning from the old cast were Robert Reed as Mike Brady, who ran for city council (and won); Florence Henderson as Carol Brady, who now sold real estate; Ann B. Davis as Alice Franklin, who had finally married Sam the butcher and was no longer the Bradys' housekeeper; Barry Williams as son Greg, now an obstetrician; Christopher Knight as son Peter, an environmental activist; Mike Lookinland as son Bobby, who had been paralyzed in an auto racing mishap; Eve Plumb as daughter Jan Covington, an architect like her father; and Susan Olsen as Cindy, a disc jockey. Leah Ayres played the sixth Brady child, oldest daughter Marcia. Other cast members included Caryn Richman as Greg's wife, Nora; MTV vee-jay Martha Quinn as Bobby's wife, Tracy; Ron Kuhlman as Jan's husband, Philip; Jerry Houser as Marcia's hapless husband, Wally Logan; Ken Michelman as Cindy's boss, Greg Greenberg; Jonathan Weiss as Greg and Nora's son, Kevin; Valerie Ick as Jan and Phillip's adopted daughter, Patty; Jaclyn Bernstein as Marcia and Wally's daughter, Jessica; and Michael Melby as Marcia and Wally's son, Mickey. The series was liberally laced with clips from the original Brady Bunch, as the various members of the clan took to reminiscing pretty often.

THE BRAIN PBS

10 OCTOBER 1984–5 DECEMBER 1984 Highly acclaimed eight-part series on the workings of the human brain. Among the topics examined were stress, vision, learning, the brain's two hemispheres, and states of mind. In 1988 a sequel series was produced: see The Mind.

BRAINS AND BRAWN NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1958–27 DECEMBER 1958 Bifurcated prime-time game show featuring a contest between two teams, each composed of one athlete and one celebrity. Fred Davis hosted the Brain portion, a general knowledge quiz; Jack Lescoulie hosted the Brawn portion, which involved physical exertion.

BRAINS & BRAWN NBC

10 JULY 1993–16 OCTOBER 1993 The second game show with this title was for kids. Mark-Paul Gosselaar, star of Saved by the Bell, hosted the Saturday morning series on which two teams of three young contestants, each captained by a young celebrity, competed in tests of mental and physical ability. Danielle Harris was the cohost.

BRANDED NBC

24 JANUARY 1965–4 SEPTEMBER 1966 A midseason replacement for The Bill Dana Show. Starring Chuck Connors as Jason McCord, an Army officer wrongfully court-martialed after the Battle of Bitter Creek (he was the only known survivor) and dishonorably discharged. Forty-eight half hours were made.

BRAVE EAGLE CBS

28 SEPTEMBER 1955–6 JUNE 1956 One of the few westerns told from the Indians' point of view. With Keith Larsen as Brave Eagle, a Cheyenne chief; Kim Winona as Morning Star; Keena Nomkeena (a real Indian) as Keena, Brave Eagle's adopted son; and Bert Wheeler as halfbreed Smokey Joe.

BREAK THE BANK ABC/NBC/CBS/SYNDICATED

22 OCTOBER 1948–23 SEPTEMBER 1949 (ABC); 5 OCTOBER 1949–9 JANUARY 1952 (NBC); 13 JANUARY 1952–1 FEBRUARY 1953 (CBS); 30 MARCH 1953–18 SEPTEMBER 1953 (NBC); 31 JANUARY 1954–20 JUNE 1956 (ABC); 12 APRIL 1976–23 JULY 1976 (ABC); 1976 (SYNDICATED); 1985 (SYNDICATED)

BREAK THE $250,000 BANK NBC

9 OCTOBER 1956–29 JANUARY 1957 This durable game show, whose network peregrinations have sometimes been difficult to follow, began on radio in 1945. From 1948 until 1956, it was seen in prime time, except for a brief daytime run on NBC in 1953. Bert Parks hosted the ABC and NBC versions of the show, and Bud Collyer emceed the CBS version. It employed a straightforward question-and-answer format; contestants were quizzed in their chosen areas of specialized knowledge and could answer up to eight questions. Those who answered the first eight questions (one wrong answer was permitted) could then opt to answer a ninth question to "break the bank." Winners were paid on the spot—in cash for small amounts and by check for larger sums. In the fall of 1956 the show returned to NBC, with Parks as host, and was retitled Break the $250,000 Bank. On this version contestants were permitted to have their families with them and could call upon one family member to answer one question if the contestant had previously missed it. Joseph Nathan Kane, who wrote the questions used on the show, also served as judge, and Janice Gilbert was featured as the paying teller. In 1976 Break the Bank again returned, after an absence of almost two decades. The new format featured a panel of nine celebrities and two contestants. When a question was asked, one celebrity provided the correct answer for it, and one provided a false answer; contestants won money by choosing the one who had answered correctly. Tom Kennedy hosted the short-lived daytime network version, and Jack Barry (whose longtime partner, Dan Enright, produced it) hosted the syndicated version. The show surfaced again in 1985, hosted first by Gene Rayburn, then by Joe Farago.

BREAKAWAY SYNDICATED

19 SEPTEMBER 1983–7 SEPTEMBER 1984 This hour talk show was broadcast live from New York on weekday afternoons. Monte Markham and Martha Lambert were the original cohosts; Markham was succeeded by Norman Mark.

BREAKFAST IN HOLLYWOOD NBC

11 JANUARY 1954–5 FEBRUARY 1954 Short-lived morning show broadcast live from Hollywood. Johnny Dugan hosted the festivities, which included songs, chitchat, and audience-participation features.

BREAKFAST PARTY NBC

7 JANUARY 1952–23 MAY 1952 Mel Martin hosted this half-hour morning variety show, which was broadcast live from Cincinnati.

BREAKING AWAY ABC

29 NOVEMBER 1980–10 JANUARY 1981 Based on the 1979 movie, this refreshing series unfortunately never got off the ground. Set in Bloomington, Indiana (but actually filmed in Athens, Georgia), it told the story of four teenage boys growing up in a college town; the locals, many of whose fathers had worked at the nearby quarries, were derogatorily known as "cutters" to the college kids. Featured were Shaun Cassidy as Dave Stohler, an idealistic youngster obsessed by the European sport of cycling; Tom Wiggin as jockish Mike Carnahan; Jackie Earle Haley as rebellious Moocher; Thom Bray as cerebral Cyril; Vincent Gardenia as Dave's father, Ray Stohler, a used-car dealer; Barbara Barrie as Dave's mother, Evelyn Stohler; and Shelby Brammer as Nancy, Moocher's girlfriend. Two members of the TV cast—Haley and Barrie—had also appeared in the film. Though the show was canceled in January 1981, a few episodes were later televised on Mondays to fill the gap in programming caused by the baseball players' strike.

BREAKING POINT ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1963–7 SEPTEMBER 1964 The success of Ben Casey led to a proliferation of medical shows; this one (like NBC's Eleventh Hour) featured two psychiatrists. With Paul Richards as Dr. McKinley Thompson, resident in psychiatry at York Hospital; Eduard Franz as Dr. Edward Raymer, clinic director. Produced by Bing Crosby Productions (which also produced Ben Casey). Robert Redford made one of his last TV appearances in one episode, "Bird and Snake" (7 October).

BRENNER CBS

6 JUNE 1959–10 OCTOBER 1959; 10 MAY 1964–13 SEPTEMBER 1964 This half-hour cop show starred Edward Binns and James Broderick as Roy and Ernie Brenner, father and son police officers. Roy was a lieutenant assigned to the Confidential Squad, an internal investigative unit, while Ernie was a rookie plainclothesman. The series was based on "The Blue Men," a police drama broadcast on Playhouse 90. After its 1959 summer run, Brenner was rerun on CBS in 1961 and 1962; the 1964 run led off with a number of newly made episodes.

BRET MAVERICK NBC

1 DECEMBER 1981–24 AUGUST 1982 James Garner returned to the role he had created two dozen years earlier in this hour western. However, like virtually all sequels in television history, Bret Maverick was not nearly as popular as its predecessor. As the sequel opened, Maverick won himself the Red Ox Saloon in a card game, and finally decided to settle down in the town of Sweetwater, Arizona. Also on hand were Darleen Carr as photographer M. L. (Mary Lou) Springer; John Shearin as Sheriff Mitchel Dowd; Ed Bruce as Maverick's partner, former sheriff Tom Guthrie; David Knell as Rodney, M. L.'s Assistant; Stuart Margolin (co-starring in his third series with Garner) as Philo Sandine; Ramon Bieri as Mr. Crow, the banker; and Richard Hamilton as Cy Whitaker, the chief hand at Maverick's Lazy Ace Ranch. Ed Bruce, better known as a country-and-western singer than as an actor, co-wrote (with Patsy Bruce and Glenn Ray) and sang the show's theme. NBC reran the series during the summer of 1990. See also Maverick; Young Maverick.

BREWSTER PLACE ABC

1 MAY 1990–11 JULY 1990 Oprah Winfrey produced and starred in this half-hour dramatic series, derived from the two-part TV-movie The Women of Brewster Place (ABC, 19–20 March 1989), which in turn was based on Gloria Naylor's novel. The series depicted life in the black community of a large city in the mid-1960s. Winfrey reprised her role as Mattie Michael, who lost her job as a hairdresser and bought a restaurant with her best friend. Brenda Pressley played Etta Mae Johnson, Mattie's friend and partner in the new venture, La Scala. Olivia Cole (who had also been in the telefilm) played Miss Sophie, the officious and opinionated woman who owned the neighborhood grocery. The rest of the cast included Oscar Brown, Jr., as Jesse, Sophie's husband; John Cothran, Jr., as Ralph Thomas, who had just moved to the city from Arkansas; Steven Crump as Matthew, Ralph's older son; DeLeon Richards as Margaret, Ralph's daughter; Jason Weaver as Miles, Ralph's younger son; Rachael Crawford as Kiswana; Kelly Neal as her boyfriend, Abshu; and John Speredakos as Mickey, the white cook at La Scala. Oprah Winfrey was executive producer, together with Earl Hamner and Donald Sipes.

BRIDE AND GROOM CBS/NBC

25 JANUARY 1951–9 OCTOBER 1953 (CBS); 7 DECEMBER 1953–27 AUGUST 1954 (NBC); 1 JULY 1957–10 JANUARY 1958 (NBC) Couples were married before a live coast-to-coast audience on this daytime show broadcast from New York. John Nelson was the first host of the show; Robert Paige and Byron Palmer cohosted the 1957–1958 version (Palmer was later replaced by Frank Parker).

BRIDGES TO CROSS CBS

24 APRIL 1986–12 JUNE 1986 Half-hour sitcom about two divorcés who were journalists on World Week, a Washington, D.C., newsmagazine. With Suzanne Pleshette as Tracy Bridges; Nicolas Surovy as her ex, Peter Cross; Roddy McDowall as Norman Parks, Tracy's secretary; Jose Ferrer as Morris Cane, the editor; Barry Sobel as Aaron, the office boy; and Eva Gabor as Washington socialite Maria Talbot. Tracy and Peter often wrote the "Bridges to Cross" column for the magazine, in which they took opposite points of view.

BRIDGET LOVES BERNIE CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1972–8 SEPTEMBER 1973 An updated video version of the long-running Broadway hit, Abie's Irish Rose, about a rich Irish girl who marries a poor Jewish boy. Starring Meredith Baxter as Bridget Theresa Mary Coleen Fitzgerald, a young schoolteacher, and David Birney as Bernie Steinberg, an aspiring writer and part-time cabbie. As luck would have it, Baxter and Birney actually did fall in love and were married in 1973 (they were later divorced). Also featured were David Doyle as Walter Fitzgerald, Bridget's wealthy father, an executive; Audra Lindley as Amy Fitzgerald, Bridget's pompous mother; Harold J. Stone as delicatessen owner Sam Steinberg, Bernie's folksy father; Bibi Osterwald as Sophie Steinberg, Bernie's stereotypically Jewish mother; Robert Sampson as Bridget's brother Mike, a priest; Ned Glass as Bernie's uncle, Moe Plotnick; and William Elliott as Bernie's black friend, Otis Foster. Aired at 8:30 P.M. on Saturdays, between CBS's monster hits All in the Family and The Mary Tyler Moore Show, Bridget Loves Bernie was one of the highest-rated shows ever to be cancelled after one season. It was widely reported that many Jewish groups had pressured CBS to axe the series, but the network's official explanation was that the show's ratings were not high enough. Too many viewers, it said, were switching away from CBS after All in the Family and returning for The Mary Tyler Moore Show.

BRIGHT PROMISE NBC

29 SEPTEMBER 1969–31 MARCH 1972 A soap opera apparently aimed at a youthful audience, Bright Promise was set at Bancroft College, a small Midwestern institution. It featured Dana Andrews as college president Thomas Boswell; Paul Lukather as Professor William Ferguson; Susan Brown as Martha Ferguson; Dabney Coleman as Dr. Tracy Brown; Coleen Gray and Gail Kobe as Ann (Boyd) Jones; Mark Miller as Howard Jones; Pamela Murphy as Sandy Jones Pierce, dropout, adulteress and accused murderer; David Lewis as Henry Pierce; Peter Ratray as Stuart Pierce; Sherry Alberoni as Jody Harper; Richard Eastham as Red Wilson; Anthony Eisley as Charles Diedrich; Regina Gleason as Sylvia Bancroft; and June Vincent as Dr. Amanda Winninger.

THE BRIGHTER DAY CBS

4 JANUARY 1954–28 SEPTEMBER 1962 Another successful soap opera created by Irna Phillips ("The Queen of the Soaps"), The Brighter Day began on radio in 1948, where it remained until 1956; from 1954 to 1956, the radio broadcast was an audio repeat of the day's television episode. The serial's central characters were the members of the Dennis family, who had just moved from Three Rivers to New Hope as the video version began. Featured were William Smith (1954–1955) and Blair Davies (1955–1962) as the Reverend Richard Dennis, a widower with five children (the eldest of the children, Liz, was never seen on TV; she had been institutionalized earlier in the series); Brooke Byron and Jayne Heller as Althea Dennis Bigby, second eldest, recently widowed; Hal Holbrook and James Noble as son Grayling Dennis; Lois Nettleton and June Dayton as teenage daughter Patsy Dennis; Mary Linn Beller and Nancy Malone as youngest daughter Barbara (Babby) Dennis; Larry Ward as Doctor Randy Hamilton, who married Patsy; Gloria Hoye and Mary K. Wells as Sandra Talbot, who married Grayling; Mona Bruns as Aunt Emily (Potter), Richard's sister; Paul Langton as Uncle Walter, Richard's brother; Herb Nelson as the Reverend Max Canfield; Muriel Williams as Lydia Herrick; Lori March as Lydia's sister, Lenore; Mark Daniels as Robert Ralston; and Joe Sirola as Peter Nino. Also featured were Patty Duke, John Heath, Harriet MacGibbon, Peter Donat, and Anne Meacham. The Brighter Day was televised from New York until 1961, when it moved to Hollywood. On 18 June 1962 it expanded from fifteen minutes daily to twenty-five, and moved from a late afternoon to a late morning time slot. Leonard Blair was the producer.

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1982–21 JUNE 1983 One of several 1982 series that tried to capitalize on the phenomenal success of the movie Raiders of the Lost Ark (see also The Quest and Tales of the Gold Monkey), this silly show was ostensibly based on the adventures of Frank Buck, the real-life explorer and big-game hunter of the 1930s whose motto was the show's title. The television Buck grappled not with animals, but rather with assorted smugglers and spies. Bruce Boxleitner starred as Frank Buck, with Cindy Morgan as Gloria Marlowe, who worked for the American consulate in Singapore; Clyde Kusatsu as Ali, Buck's "number one boy"; Ron O'Neal as H. H., the Sultan of Johore, Buck's buddy; Sean McClory as Myles Delaney, who ran Singapore's Raffles Hotel; John Zee as dastardly G. B. von Turgo; and Harvey Jason as Bhundi.

BRINGING UP BUDDY CBS

10 OCTOBER 1960–25 SEPTEMBER 1961 Situation comedy about a young bachelor who boards with his two spinster aunts. With Frank Aletter as stockbroker Buddy Flower; Enid Markey as Aunt Violet Flower; and Doro Merande as Aunt Iris Flower.

BRINGING UP JACK ABC

27 MAY 1995–24 JUNE 1995 Formulaic domestic sitcom, with Jack Gallagher as Jack McMahon, host of "The Locker Room," a sports-related radio talk show in Philadelphia, who had recently married a woman with two kids; Harley Jane Kozak as his wife, Ellen McMahon, who was pregnant with Jack's child; Matthew Lawrence as Ellen's teenage son, Ryan; Kathryn Zaremba as Ellen's preteen daughter, Molly; Jeff Garlin as Jack's cohost, Artie Hudson, a single guy who hung around at the McMahons house a lot; and Ralph Manza as Lou, Jack's producer. The series was to have premiered in March 1995, but was abruptly postponed; it then debuted in a throwaway time slot — Saturday evening of Memorial Day weekend.

BROADSIDE ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1964–5 SEPTEMBER 1965 Essentially a McHale's Navy with women, Broadside featured four WAVES mechanics assigned to duty at New Caledonia in the South Pacific during World War II. With Kathy Nolan as Lieutenant Anne Morgan, the commanding officer; Joan Staley as Private Roberta Love; Lois Roberts as Private Molly McGuire; Sheila James as Private Selma Kowalski; Edward Andrews as Commander Adrian, the stuffy supervisor of the New Caledonia outpost; Dick Sargent as Lieutenant Maxwell Trotter, Anne Morgan's boyfriend; George Furth as Lieutenant Beasley, Adrian's assistant; Arnold Stang as Stanley Stubbs, the cook; Jimmy Boyd as Marion Butnick, a GI mistakenly assigned to the WAVES. In the fall of 1977 ABC dusted off the format: see Operation Petticoat.

BROADWAY GOES LATIN SYNDICATED

1962 Bandleader Edmundo Ros hosted this musical variety series syndicated by ITC.

BROADWAY OPEN HOUSE NBC

29 MAY 1950–24 AUGUST 1951 Network television's first regularly scheduled late-night program was conceived by Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, the NBC VP whose ideas in programming (such as Today, Ding Dong School, Home, and Wide Wide World) helped shape American television. Broadway Open House bore little resemblance to the talk shows which succeeded it; the show was a heavy-handed mixture of vaudeville routines, songs, dances, and sight gags. It was to have been hosted by comedian Don "Creesh" Hornsby (so nicknamed because he yelled "Creesh!" a lot), but Hornsby died of polio two weeks before the premiere. Two veteran comedians were quickly signed up to share the hosting duties: Jerry Lester, "The Heckler of Hecklers," and Morey Amsterdam, a walking repository of jokes who also played the cello. Lester emceed the show three nights each week, Amsterdam the other two nights. Assisting them were announcer Wayne Howell, singers Andy Roberts, Jane

Harvey, and David Street, accordionist Milton DeLugg, tap dancer Ray Malone, and a buxom blonde named Jennie Lewis, but better known as Dagmar, who played it dumb. The show went through many changes of personnel, and was trimmed to three nights a week in May of 1951. Its fifteen-month week-night run demonstrated at least that there was an audience for late-night TV. Weaver refined his ideas and in 1954 introduced the Tonight show (see also that title).

BROADWAY TELEVISION THEATER (BROADWAY THEATER) SYNDICATED
1952–1954 Adaptations of Broadway plays comprised this hour-long dramatic anthology series.

BROADWAY TO HOLLYWOOD DUMONT
20 JULY 1949–15 JULY 1954 This half-hour series was one of the most durable shows aired on the DuMont network. It began in 1949 as an all-purpose show and was titled Broadway to Hollywood Headline Clues. Hosted by George F. Putnam, it consisted of thirty minutes of news, gossip, celebrity interviews, and a quiz for home viewers. By the fall of 1949, however, Headline Clues was made a separate daytime game show, while Broadway to Hollywood continued as a prime-time variety show. Bill Slater later hosted the series.

BROKEN ARROW ABC
25 SEPTEMBER 1956–23 SEPTEMBER 1958 Half-hour western starring Michael Ansara as Cochise, Chief of the Apaches, and John Lupton as Indian Agent Tom Jeffords, a blood brother of Cochise. Filmed at 20th Century-Fox Studios, the series was syndicated under the title Cochise. Although Broken Arrow was one of the few westerns to show American Indians in a positive light, Michael Ansara was less than thrilled with the role: In a 1960 TV Guide interview, he recalled that in the series, "Cochise could do one of two things—stand with his arms folded, looking noble; or stand with arms at his sides, looking noble."

BROKEN BADGES CBS
24 NOVEMBER 1990–22 DECEMBER 1990; 6 JUNE 1991–20 JUNE 1991 Short-lived crime show from Stephen J. Cannell Productions, starring Miguel Ferrer as Beau Jack Bowman, a New Orleans cop sent on an assignment to Bay City, California, where he decided to set up a "nonspecific undercover unit" comprised of Bay City officers who were considered misfits by their department. Bowman's team included Eileen Davidson as sexually aggressive J. J. "Bullet" Tingreedies; Ernie Hudson as forensic specialist (and kleptomanic) Toby Baker; and Jay Johnstone as ventriloquist Stanley Jones. Charlotte Lewis was featured as department psychiatrist Dr. Priscilla Mathers.

BRONCO ABC
20 OCTOBER 1959–13 SEPTEMBER 1960 This hour-long western from Warner Brothers starred Ty Hardin as Bronco Layne, a loner who drifted across the Texas plains after the Civil War. Though Bronco existed as a separate series only during the 1959–1960 season, when it alternated with Sugarfoot, the character was seen for several seasons on Cheyenne, another Warner Brothers western. During the 1958–1959 season, when Clint Walker did not appear on Cheyenne because of a contractual dispute, a season of Bronco episodes was shown under the Cheyenne title. During the 1960–1961 season, Cheyenne, Bronco, and Sugarfoot episodes were all shown under the Cheyenne title (Clint Walker had returned to the show in 1959), and during the 1961–1962 season, Bronco and Cheyenne shows were aired under the Cheyenne banner. See also Cheyenne; Sugarfoot.

BRONK CBS
21 SEPTEMBER 1975–18 JULY 1976 Jack Palance starred as Lieutenant Alexander (Bronk) Bronkov, a police detective specially assigned to the mayor of Ocean City, California. With Joseph Mascolo as Mayor Pete Santori; Henry Beckman as former cop Harry Mark; Tony King as Sergeant John Webber, Bronk's assistant; and Dina Ousley as Ellen, Bronk's crippled daughter. Executive producer: Bruce Geller, for MGM Television. Palance apparently thought little of the series, characterizing it as "stupid" in a 1982 interview.

THE BRONX ZOO NBC

19 MARCH 1987–6 MAY 1987; 19 AUGUST 1987–9 SEPTEMBER 1987; 9 DECEMBER 1987–20 JANUARY 1988; 30 MARCH 1988–20 APRIL 1988; 1 JUNE 1988–29 JUNE 1988 Benjamin Harrison High School, in the heart of a tough (but unnamed) inner city, was the setting for this gritty hour dramatic series that focused more on the lives of the faculty than on the students. With Edward Asner as principal Joe Danzig; Kathryn Harrold as English teacher Sara Newhouse; Nicholas Pryor as vice principal Jack Felspar; Kathleen Beller as art and drama teacher Mary Caitlin Callahan; David Wilson as history teacher Harry Barnes; Mykel T. Williamson as science teacher and basketball coach Gus Butterfield; Jerry Levine as math teacher Matthew Lippman; and Janet Carroll as Danzig's wife, Carol, who died unexpectedly on the episode of 8 June 1988. The series bounced in and out of NBC's Wednesday schedule for fifteen months, but was never aired long enough in any one time slot to find an audience.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1991–14 NOVEMBER 1992; 10 APRIL 1993–24 APRIL 1993; 16 JULY 1993–6 AUGUST 1993 Gary David Goldberg drew on his own childhood experiences to create this sitcom about a Jewish family living in Brooklyn in 1956. The cast included Danny Gerard as fourteen-year-old Alan Silver; Marion Ross and Louis Zorich as his grandparents, Sophie and Jules Berger, who had emigrated from Russia years earlier; Amy Aquino as their daughter, and Alan's mother, Phyllis; Peter Friedman as Phyllis's husband, and Alan's father, George Silver; Matthew Louis Siegel as Alan's nine-year-old brother, Nathaniel; Jenny Lewis as Alan's sometime girlfriend, Katie Monahan; Aeryk Egan as Warren Butcher; Jake Jundef as Benny Belinsky; David Wohl as Sid Elgart; and Adam LaVorgna as Nicholas Scamperelli. Art Garfunkel composed and sang the show's theme.

BROTHERLY LOVE NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1995–1 APRIL 1996 Real life brothers Joey, Matthew, and Andrew Lawrence teamed up in this half-hour sitcom. Eldest brother Joey Lawrence headlined as twenty-year-old Joe Roman, who returned home after his father's death to help his stepmother run the family auto customizing business. Matthew Lawrence was Joe's fifteen-year-old half-brother, Matt, and Andrew Lawrence was seven-year-old half-brother Andy, who loved to wear disguises and costumes. Rounding out the cast were Melinda Culea as Joe's stepmother (and Matt and Andy's mom), Claire Roman; and Michael McShane and Liz Vassey as Lloyd and Lou, the two employees.

THE BROTHERS CBS

2 OCTOBER 1956–26 MARCH 1957 CBS had high hopes for this situation comedy, which went nowhere. It starred Gale Gordon and Bob Sweeney as brothers Harvey and Gilmore (Gilly) Box, who operated a photography studio in San Francisco. With Nancy Hadley as Marilee Dorf, Gilly's girlfriend; Oliver Blake as her father, Carl Dorf; Barbara Billingsley as Barbara, Harvey's girlfriend; Ann Morris as Dr. Margaret Kleeb; and Frank Orth as Captain Sam Box, the brothers' father.

BROTHERS SHOWTIME

13 JULY 1984–25 JULY 1989 A groundbreaking show, Brothers was the first original sitcom produced for pay-cable TV. It was also among the first shows on which a major character was homosexual. It starred Robert Walden as Joe Waters, a former pro football player who now ran a restaurant; Brandon Maggart as his older brother, Lou, a conservative construction worker; and Paul Regina as his younger brother, Clifford, who, as the series began, announced to his siblings that he was gay. Also featured were Philip Charles MacKenzie as Clifford's friend, Donald Maltby, a ste-reotypically effeminate gay man; Hallie Todd as Joe's daughter, Penny; Robin Riker as Kelly, a waitress at Joe's restaurant; and Mary Ann Pascal as Samantha, who married Joe in 1988.

During its lengthy (115-episode) run, Brothers dealt with such topics as AIDS, gay-bashing, and coming out of the closet; it also allowed men to kiss men and dared to use the word faggot. It is therefore no surprise that the series had been turned down by both ABC and NBC before finding a home on Showtime. Greg Antonacci and Gary Nardino were the executive producers.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS NBC

21 JANUARY 1979–6 APRIL 1979 Half-hour sitcom set at Larry Krandall College, home of the Pi Nu fraternity and the Gamma Iota sorority. With Chris Lemmon (son of Jack Lemmon) as Checko; Randy Brooks as Ronald Holmes, Pi Nu's token black; Jon Cutler as the irrepressible Stanley Zipper; Larry Anderson as Harlan Ramsey, beleaguered president of the frat; Amy Johnston as Mary Lee, Harlan's girlfriend; Mary Crosby (daughter of Bing Crosby) as Suzi Cooper; and Roy Teicher as Seymour, frat brother with a ravenous appetite. Producers: Bob Brunner and Arthur Silver for Universal TV.

THE BROTHERS BRANNAGAN SYNDICATED

1960 This low-budget half-hour crime show was set in Phoenix and starred Steve Dunne and Mark Roberts as private eyes Mike and Bob Brannagan, who were based at the Mountain Shadows Resort Inn.

THE BUCCANEERS CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1956–14 SEPTEMBER 1957 Set in the Caribbean island of New Providence in 1720, this half-hour adventure series featured Robert Shaw as Captain Dan Tempest, an ex-pirate turned commander of the Sultana, who fought evildoers; Peter Hammond as Lieutenant Beamish, the island's newly appointed governor; Paul Hansard as crewman Taffy; Brian Rawlinson as crewman Gaff; Hugh David as crewman Benjy; and Wilfrid Downing as Dickon, Tempest's cabin boy. Tempest's pet monkey was called Captain Morgan. The show was filmed at Falmouth, England; the Sultana had formerly served as the Pequod in the 1956 film Moby Dick.

BUCK JAMES ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1987–10 JANUARY 1988; 10 MARCH 1988–5 MAY 1988 Dennis Weaver starred in this hour medical drama as Dr. Buck James, head of the trauma unit at the Holloman Trauma Center in Texas, who headed back to his ranch when he was off duty. With Alberta Watson as chief resident Rebecca Meyer, newly arrived from New York, whose urban manner contrasted with Buck's homespun style; Elena Stiteler as his daughter, Dinah; Jon Maynard Pennell as his son, Clint, a wrangler; Shannon Wilcox as Jenny, his ex-wife (Wilcox was well suited for the role, for in real life she was the ex-wife of a surgeon); Dehl Berti as Vittorio, the ranch foreman; and John Cullum as Henry Carliner. The lead character was based loosely on a real-life Texas surgeon/rancher, Dr. Red Duke, who had been profiled on NBC's Lifeline in 1978.

THE BUCK OWENS SHOW SYNDICATED

1972 A half hour of country-and-western music, hosted by Buck Owens.

BUCK ROGERS ABC

15 APRIL 1950–30 JANUARY 1951 Better known as a radio serial, Buck Rogers enjoyed a brief television run. It starred Kem Dibbs and Robert Pastene as Buck Rogers, an ordinary American who woke up to find himself in the year 2430; from a cave hidden behind Niagara Falls, he battled intergalactic troublemakers. Also featured were Lou Prentis as Lieutenant Wilma Deering; Harry Southern as Doctor Huer; and Harry Kingston as the evil Black Barney Wade. Babette Henry produced and directed.

BUCK ROGERS IN THE 25TH CENTURY NBC

27 SEPTEMBER 1979–16 APRIL 1981 The second television incarnation of Buck Rogers was a prime-time hour, which starred Gil Gerard as Captain William "Buck" Rogers, a twentieth-century astronaut who was caught in a time warp and returned to Earth 500 years later, where he assisted the Defense Directorate. Other regulars during the 1979–1980 season were Erin Gray as Colonel Wilma Deering, commander of Earth's defense systems and Buck's romantic interest; Felix Silla as Twiki, Buck's favorite robot; and Tim O'Connor as Dr. Elias Huer, head of the Defense Directorate. Buster Crabbe, who had starred in the 1939 Buck Rogers theatrical serial, made a cameo appearance in the premiere episode, "Planet of the Slave Girls."

When the show returned in January 1981 for its brief second season, the format had changed: Buck and Wilma were aboard the Searcher, a space ship attempting to find the "lost tribes" of Earth who had fled the planet after a nuclear war. Tim O'Connor had left the series, and new regulars included: Thom Christopher as Hawk, a bird-man creature from the planet Throm, who was searching for others of his species; Jay Garner as Admiral Asimov, commander of the Searcher; Wilfrid Hyde-White as Dr. Goodfellow, the ship's scientist; and Crichton, a haughty robot who refused to believe that Dr. Goodfellow had built him. William Conrad narrated the series, which was created by Glen Larson.

BUCKAROO 500 SYNDICATED

1964 Children's variety program, hosted by Buck Weaver.

BUCKSKIN NBC

3 JULY 1958–14 SEPTEMBER 1959 Set in the town of Buckskin, Montana, during the 1880s, this half-hour western was told from the point of view of a ten-year-old boy. It starred Tommy Nolan as young Jody O'Connell and also featured Sallie Brophy as Annie O'Connell, his widowed mother; Mike Road as Sheriff Tom Sellers; Michael Lipton as Ben Newcomb, the town schoolteacher; and Marjorie Bennett and Shirley Knight as Mrs. Newcomb. In 1958 Buckskin was introduced as a summer replacement for The Tennessee Ernie Ford Show (Ford owned an interest in the series) and was given its own berth in NBC's fall schedule.

BUFFALO BILL NBC

1 JUNE 1983–17 AUGUST 1983; 15 DECEMBER 1983–5 APRIL 1984 Creators Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses intentionally violated one of the cardinal rules of sitcoms in this unusual half-hour series—the central character was a thoroughly unlikable soul who had almost no redeeming virtues. Dabney Coleman starred as "Buffalo Bill" Bittinger, the self-centered, self-infatuated host of a talk show on WBFL-TV in Buffalo. Also featured were Joanna Cassidy as his director, Jo-Jo White, with whom he had an affair; Max Wright as Karl Shub, WBFL's Milquetoast station manager; John Fiedler as stage manager Woody Deschler, the only person who genuinely liked Bill; Charles Robinson as Newdell, the brooding black makeup man; Geena Davis as Wendy Killian, the naive researcher; Meshach Taylor as assistant director Tony Fitipaldi; and Pippa Pearthree as prop person Melanie Bittinger Wayne, Bill's homely daughter.

BUFFALO BILL, JR. SYNDICATED

1955 Children's western featuring Dick Jones as Buffalo Bill, Jr., an orphan adopted by a judge and subsequently named marshal of Wileyville, Texas; Nancy Gilbert as Calamity, Bill's younger sister; and Harry Cheshire as Judge Ben Wiley, their guardian, founder of Wileyville. The half-hour series was produced by Gene Autry's Flying A Productions.

THE BUFFALO BILLY SHOW CBS

22 OCTOBER 1950–14 JANUARY 1951 Buffalo Billy was the main character in this half-hour Sunday-afternoon puppet show, set in the old West.

BUFORD AND THE GALLOPING GHOST NBC

3 FEBRUARY 1979–1 SEPTEMBER 1979 Formerly part of Yogi's Space Race, Buford the lethargic bloodhound was given his own half-hour cartoon series in midseason. Buford was a crime-solving mutt who starred in "The Buford Files" segment of the show; "The Galloping Ghost" was a horse who haunted a dude ranch.

THE BUGALOOS NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 Live-action Saturday-morning series set in the Tranquility Forest, where a witch sought to destroy a four-insect singing group, the Bugaloos. With Martha Raye as Benita Bizarre, the witch; Carolyn Ellis as Joy; John Philpott as Courage; John McIndoe as I.Q.; Wayne Laryea as Harmony; and Billy Barty as Sparky the firefly, the Bugaloos' pal. Created by Sid and Marty Krofft.

THE BUGS BUNNY SHOW ABC/CBS

11 OCTOBER 1960–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 (ABC); 11 SEPTEMBER 1971–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 (CBS); 8 SEPTEMBER 1973–30 AUGUST 1975 (ABC)

THE BUGS BUNNY/ROAD RUNNER HOUR CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1968–4 SEPTEMBER 1971; 6 SEPTEMBER 1975–7 SEPTEMBER 1985

THE BUGS BUNNY/LOONEY TUNES COMEDY HOUR ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1985–6 SEPTEMBER 1986

THE BUGS BUNNY & TWEETY SHOW ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1986– One of the world's most popular cartoon characters, Bugs Bunny hopped into prime-time television in 1960 after a long career in animated films. His half-hour show remained in prime time for two seasons and began as a Saturday-morning series in April 1962. Bugs and his Warner Brothers cartoon pals—including Daffy Duck, Sylvester and Tweety, Elmer Fudd, and Yosemite Sam—have appeared in various half-hour, hour, and ninety-minute formats. Bugs has shared top billing with the Road Runner, the resourceful bird who always outwits his pursuer, Wile E. Coyote, and with Tweety, the diminutive household pet who always outwits his feline nemesis, Sylvester. The voice of Bugs Bunny (and of many other Warner Brothers cartoon characters) was, until his death in 1989, supplied by Mel Blanc.

THE BUICK-BERLE SHOW

See THE MILTON BERLE SHOW

THE BUICK CIRCUS HOUR NBC

7 OCTOBER 1952–16 JUNE 1953 A musical variety hour that replaced Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater every fourth week. Regulars included Joe E. Brown, Dolores Gray, and John Raitt.

THE BUILDING CBS

20 AUGUST 1993–17 SEPTEMBER 1993 Half-hour sitcom starring Bonnie Hunt as Bonnie Kennedy, an actress who returned to her old Chicago apartment house after her wedding plans fell through. Also on hand were Michael G. Hagerty as Finley, a firefighter and bartender; Richard Kuhlman as the foul-mouthed hoodlum, Big Tony (whose expletives were bleeped out on the show's soundtrack); Holly Wortell as Holly; Don Lake as Brad, a newspaper columnist; and Tom Virtue as Brad's roommate, actor Stanley Michaels. Bonnie Hunt created the series, and was the executive producer with David Letterman. Hunt, Wortell, Lake, and Virtue were reunited two years later on The Bonnie Hunt Show.

BULLSEYE SYNDICATED

1980 Jim (The Dating Game) Lange hosted this question-and-answer game show, which employed a pair of contestants and a game board with three wheels; each player tried to fulfill a "contract" by answering a particular number of questions, as determined by the spin of the wheels.

THE BULLWINKLE SHOW NBC/ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1961–12 SEPTEMBER 1964 (NBC); 20 SEPTEMBER 1964–2 SEPTEMBER 1973 (ABC) Bullwinkle the moose, faithful companion of Rocky the flying squirrel on Rocky and His Friends, hosted and starred in his own animated spinoff series; the half-hour show was seen Sunday evenings on NBC for one season, before beginning a long run on weekend mornings, first on NBC, later on ABC. Bill Scott provided the voice of Bullwinkle, and William Conrad narrated the series. Jay Ward was the producer. CBS reran an episode in prime time on 29 May 1991. See also Rocky and His Friends.

BUMP IN THE NIGHT ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1994– Sophisticated animation techniques were employed in this Saturday morning cartoon series in which a group of toys, who lived under the bed in a little boy's room, came alive. Mr. Bumpy, a small green toad-like creature, was the leader of the group, which also included a blue animal named Squishington and a doll named Mollycoddle. Voices were supplied by Jim Cummings (Bumpy), Rob Paulsen (Squishy), and Gail Matthius (Molly). The series expanded to an hour for a few weeks during the summer of 1995.

BUMPER STUMPERS USA

29 JUNE 1987–28 DECEMBER 1990 Daytime game show, hosted by Al Dubois, on which contestants tried to decipher the sometimes cryptic clues suggested by various hypothetical vanity license plates.

BURKE'S LAW ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1963–31 AUGUST 1965

AMOS BURKE, SECRET AGENT ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1965–12 JANUARY 1966 Gene Barry starred as Amos Burke in both of these adventure series. The character, however, was introduced on the premiere telecast of The Dick Powell Show, "Who killed Julie Greer?" (26 September 1961). Dick Powell played Burke; Ronald Reagan also appeared on the program. In Burke's Law, Burke was the debonair homocide chief of Los Angeles. A swinging bachelor, he was independently wealthy and traveled around town in a chauffeured Rolls Royce. Also featured were Regis Toomey as Detective Lester Hart ("old cop"); Gary Conway as Detective Tim Tilson ("young cop"); Eileen O'Neill as Sergeant Ames; and Leon Lontoc as Henry, Burke's chauffeur. Most episodes were entitled "Who Killed ______?" Many featured cameo appearances by film stars such as William Bendix (30 September 1964, his last TV appearance), Rhonda Fleming ("Who Killed 711?" 9 December 1964, her last appearance to date), Jack Haley ("Who Killed Beau Sparrow?" 27 December 1963), Buster Keaton (8 May 1964, his last TV appearance), Jayne Mansfield (27 March 1964, her last dramatic appearance), ZaSu Pitts (20 September 1963, her last appearance), Frank Sinatra ("Who Killed Wade Walker?" 15 November 1963), and Terry Thomas ("Who Killed Julian Buck?" 18 October 1963, his first American appearance).

In the fall of 1965 the show's producers decided to make Burke a secret agent (apparently to cash in on the success of NBC's 1964 smash, The Man from U.N.C.L.E). All the regulars except for Barry were dropped, and Carl Benton Reid was added as The Man, Burke's superior. The show perished opposite NBC's new hit, I Spy. Twenty-eight years later Burke's Law returned: see below.

BURKE'S LAW CBS

7 JANUARY 1994–9 SEPTEMBER 1994; 21 MARCH 1995–3 AUGUST 1995 The remake of the 1963–1965 series was remarkably similar to the original. Gene Barry returned as Amos Burke, who was still the chief of the homicide squad, who was still driven around town in a chauffeured Rolls Royce, and who still uttered vacuous platitudes together with the catchphrase "Burke's law." Joining Barry were Peter Barton as Amos's handsome and eligible son, Peter Burke, also a homicide detective; Danny Kamekona as Henry, Amos's cheerful chauffeur and butler; Dom DeLuise as Amos's friend Vinnie, a restaurateur who often found himself at the crime scenes; and Bever-Leigh Banfield (1995) as Lily Morgan, the homicide squad's forensics specialist. The new version continued the series' tradition of featuring stars of yesteryear in guest roles. Among them was Anne Francis, who appeared as Honey West on 21 January 1994; she had, of course, starred in the 1965–1966 series Honey West.

BURNING QUESTIONS ABC

13 APRIL 1989–1 JUNE 1989 This was the title of a series of prime-time documentaries on ABC, several of which were broadcast as specials before the series was given a weekly berth in April 1989. Among the topics covered were job safety ("Working in America: Hazardous Duty"), public education ("America's Kids: Teaching Them How to Think"), and honesty ("Lying, Cheating and Stealing in America"). Some programs were shown under the umbrella title Burning Questions, while others were aired as ABC News Specials.

THE BURNS AND ALLEN SHOW CBS

12 OCTOBER 1950–22 SEPTEMBER 1958 This long-running comedy series is probably best remembered for the vaudeville routines performed at the end of each show by its stars, George Burns and Gracie Allen ("Say goodnight, Gracie!"). Burns and Allen played themselves on the show, though Burns would frequently talk directly to the camera, to comment on the plot, to analyze Gracie's scatterbrained antics, or to tell a few jokes. Ronnie Burns, their son, also played himself on the show. Also featured were Bea Benaderet as Gracie's friend and neighbor, Blanche Morton. Blanche's husband (and George's accountant), Harry Morton, was originally played by Hal March, then by John Brown, until he was blacklisted by the "red scare" of the early 1950s. The part was later played by Fred Clark and Larry Keating (on the episode when Keating took over the role, Burns candidly explained to the viewing audience that Clark had asked for too big a raise and had been replaced). Bill Goodwin was the show's first announcer, but he left in 1951 to host his own series; Harry Von Zell was brought in to replace him. Ralph Levy produced and directed the half-hour show, which was done live for the first two seasons (all but the first six shows were done in Hollywood). Among the show's writers were Paul Henning (who later developed The Beverly Hillbillies), Sid Dorfman, Harvey Helm, and William Burns. In 1958 Gracie Allen retired from show business. George Burns tried a second comedy series, which was unsuccessful: see The George Burns Show. Burns also hosted a comedy anthology series in 1985: see George Burns' Comedy Week.

Burns's technique of talking directly to the camera—known as "breaking the fourth wall"—would not again be employed effectively until the mid-1980s. See It's Garry Shandling's Show.

THE BURNS AND SCHREIBER COMEDY HOUR ABC

30 JUNE 1973–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Summer variety series cohosted by comedy duo Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber.

BURTON HOLMES TRAVELOG SYNDICATED

1949 A series of fifteen-minute travelogues filmed in America, sponsored by the Santa Fe Railroad. Burton Holmes was the host and narrator.

BUS STOP ABC

1 OCTOBER 1961–25 MARCH 1962 This drama series bore little resemblance to William Inge's play or the 1956 film which had starred Marilyn Monroe. It was billed as a dramatic anthology series with continuing characters. The guest stars, passing through Grace's Diner (located in Sunrise, Colorado) were supposed to provide the drama and the regulars the continuity. The Sherwood was the town's bus depot as well. Featured were Marilyn Maxwell as Grace Sherwood, the diner owner; Rhodes Reason as Sheriff Will Mayberry; Richard Anderson as District Attorney Glenn Wagner; and Joan Freeman as waitress Emma Gahringer. Robert Redford guest-starred in one episode, "The Covering Darkness" (22 October). The most noteworthy episode, however, was titled "A Lion Walks Among Us," broadcast 3 December. Several ABC affiliates refused to carry the episode, which attracted much publicity before it was shown and even more afterward. Universally excoriated for its excessive violence (such as guest star Fabian going after an old man with an axe), it precipitated a congressional inquiry into violence on television.

BUSINESS WORLD ABC
5 OCTOBER 1986–28 MARCH 1993 A weekly business report, hosted by Sander Vanocur and broadcast Sunday mornings. Stephen Aug succeeded Vanocur early in 1992.

BUSTIN' LOOSE SYNDICATED
1987 Based on the 1981 motion picture, this half-hour sitcom starred Jimmie Walker (of Good Times fame) as Sonny Barnes, a streetwise con artist who, after one of his frequent run-ins with the law, was assigned to help out a home for foster children. Vonetta McGee played Mimi Shaw, the social worker who ran the home. The four kids included: Larry Williams as Rudey; Tyren Perry as Trish; Aaron Lohr as Nikky; and Marie Lynn Wise as Sue Anne.

BUSTING LOOSE CBS

THE BYRDS OF PARADISE ABC
3 MARCH 1994–5 MAY 1994; 16 JUNEO 1994–23 JUNE 1994 Hour dramatic series about a Yale professor who, with his three kids, left New Haven after his wife's death to take a job as headmaster of a private school in Hawaii. The cast included Timothy Busfield as widower Sam Byrd; Seth Green as his sixteen-year-old, Harry; Jennifer Love Hewitt as his fifteen-year-old, Franny; Ryan O'Donohue as his eleven-year-old, Zeke; Elizabeth Lindsey as Healani Douglas, dean of students at the Palmer School; Andy Bumatai as teacher Tony Argabrita; Alani Apio as English teacher Alan Akana; Elsa Awaya as Crystal; Robert Kekaula and Lani Opunui-Ancheta as the Byrds' housekeepers, Sonny and Manu; and folksinger Arlo Guthrie as aging hippie Alan Moon. Charles H. Eglee and Channing Gibson created the series.

THE BYRON ALLEN SHOW SYNDICATED
1989–1992 The success of The Arsenio Hall Show no doubt led to the creation of this weekly hour talk show, hosted by black comedian Byron Allen.

C.B. BEARS NBC
10 SEPTEMBER 1977–28 JANUARY 1978 Saturday-morning cartoon show featuring a bunch of bears who used citizens' band radios.

CBS CARTOON THEATER CBS
13 JUNE 1956–5 SEPTEMBER 1956 This little heralded summer show was network television's first prime-time cartoon show, antedating The Flintstones by four years. It was hosted by Dick Van Dyke, who introduced "Terrytoons," the animated adventures of such creatures as Heckle and Jeckle (who later got a show of their own), Little Roquefort, Dinky Duck, and Gandy Goose.

THE CBS CHILDREN'S FILM FESTIVAL CBS
11 SEPTEMBER 1971–25 AUGUST 1984 This Saturday-afternoon series was first introduced in 1967 on an irregular basis and was given a permanent slot four years later. Each week films from around the world of interest to youngsters were aired. The series was hosted by Fran Allison and her puppet friends, Kukla and Ollie (see also Kukla, Fran and Ollie).

CBS EARLY MORNING NEWS CBS
4 OCTOBER 1982– CBS introduced its early-morning newscast three months after its competitors introduced theirs (see also ABC World News This Morning and Early Today). Broadcast weekday mornings at 6:00 A.M., it was coanchored by Bill Kurtis and Diane Sawyer, who also coanchored The CBS Morning News an hour later. Sawyer left in the fall of 1984, and was briefly succeeded by Jane Wallace. Thereafter Kurtis anchored the newscast alone until March 1985, when Faith Daniels succeeded him. Daniels would stay with the program for five years, sometimes as sole anchor and sometimes as coanchor. She was teamed up with Forrest Sawyer from mid-1985 to early 1986, and again from January to September of 1987; during the latter period, when CBS's ill-fated The Morning Program was introduced, the early morning newscast expanded to ninety minutes and was retitled The CBS Morning News. In late November 1987, following the cancellation of The Morning Program, the newscast reverted to sixty minutes, and Charles Osgood became Daniels's coanchor. The Daniels–Osgood team remained intact until the spring of 1990, when Daniels moved to NBC to anchor that network's early morning newscast. Victoria Corderi became Osgood's new coanchor. Victoria Corderi was succeeded by Giselle Fernandez in August 1991; she and Osgood coanchored until February 1992, when Meredith Vieira replaced Fernandez. John Roberts replaced Charles Osgood in June 1992; he and Vieira were paired until March 1993, when Vieira left. Roberts served as sole anchor until late August 1993, when Monica Gayle was named coanchor. Roberts departed in late 1994, leaving Gayle as the sole anchor until the spring of 1995, when Jane Robelot and Troy Roberts became the new coanchors.

CBS EVENING NEWS CBS
3 MAY 1948– CBS has relied on just four anchors for its evening newscasts: Douglas Edwards, Walter Cronkite, Dan Rather, and Connie Chung. Edwards, who had worked with CBS radio, hosted local television newscasts in 1947 (Larry LeSueur had preceded him) and continued in that position for fifteen years; Edwards also hosted Armstrong Circle Theater from 1957 to 1961. For most of its run the fifteen-minute newscast was officially titled Douglas Edwards with the News. On 30 November 1956, it became the first network news show to be videotaped for rebroadcast in the western time zones.

In April of 1962 Walter Cronkite succeeded Edwards as CBS's evening newscaster (Edwards continued to do a five-minute daytime newscast until 1 April 1988). A seasoned journalist, Cronkite had worked for radio station KCMO in Kansas City before joining the United Press in 1939. Cronkite covered World War II from several locations in Europe, and on D-Day, June 6, 1944, he was chosen (by lot) to be the only reporter to cover the Normandy invasion from the air. After the war he was UP's chief correspondent at the Nuremberg trials; he then worked in Moscow before returning to the United States in 1948. He left UP to become a radio correspondent for a group of ten midwestern radio stations, and in 1950 he joined CBS News. For a time he anchored the newscasts on CBS's Washington affiliate, and in 1952 he was named the network's anchorman for the political conventions (he anchored every subsequent convention through 1980, except for the 1964 Democratic convention, when the network experimented with Roger Mudd and Robert Trout in a vain attempt to outdraw NBC's Huntley–Brinkley combination). Cronkite hosted and narrated several CBS public affairs shows during the 1950s and early 1960s, including You Are There, The Morning Show, Air Power, and The Twentieth Century. He also hosted several news specials, including in-depth interviews with former President Dwight Eisenhower and with political columnist Walter Lippmann.

Cronkite was not only the anchorman for the network newscast, but also served as its "managing editor." The dual position gave him considerable latitude in the selection, timing, and arrangement of the day's news items. It was during Cronkite's early days at anchor that the nightly broadcasts expanded from fifteen to thirty minutes. The first half-hour show was aired 2 September 1963 (a week ahead of NBC's first expanded newscast) and featured a special interview with President John Kennedy. Less than twelve weeks later Cronkite anchored the network's marathon coverage of Kennedy's death and funeral (CBS was the first of the television networks to report the shooting, interrupting As the World Turns at 1:40 P.M. on 22 November 1963, but it was the last to confirm his death an hour later). Cronkite also anchored the coverage of almost all of America's space missions of the 1960s and 1970s, as well as CBS's day-long coverage of America's bicentennial observance on 4 July 1976. Perhaps his most significant television reportage were his broadcasts from Vietnam following the 1968 Tet offensive, in which he sadly concluded that Americans had been misled about the course of the conflict and (much to the chagrin of President Johnson) advocated a negotiated withdrawal.

Color broadcasts of the evening news began early in 1966, about two months after NBC's. By the end of the decade, the CBS Evening News had recaptured the ratings lead from NBC's Huntley-Brinkley Report. According to a poll taken in 1974, Cronkite was America's most trusted newscaster.

From the late 1960s until his retirement in 1977, Eric Sevareid commentated on the evening news. A native North Dakotan, Sevareid joined CBS News at Edward R. Murrow's invitation in 1939 and covered World War II from several locations. From 1946 until 1959 he worked mostly in Washington, where for a time he was CBS's bureau chief. From 1961 until 1964 he hosted a series of CBS News specials entitled "The Roots of Freedom." Later in 1964 he was named national correspondent for CBS News. Cronkite's conscientious efforts to maintain objectivity and to separate news reporting from news advocacy were epitomized by the show's closing during the Sevareid years. Cronkite's familiar benediction, "And that's the way it is. . ." was deliberately omitted on those evenings when Sevareid's commentary was scheduled as the final item of the CBS Evening News.

Cronkite reached CBS's semi-mandatory retirement age of sixty-five in 1981 and anchored the newscast for the last time on 6 March of that year. He was succeeded on 9 March by Dan Rather, one of the two CBS correspondents who had most frequently filled in for Cronkite during the latter's vacations (the other one, Roger Mudd, soon left CBS for NBC and became that network's coanchor in 1982). A native Texan, Rather joined the network in 1962 after working in local radio and television in Houston. Shortly after joining CBS he was named the chief of its new domestic bureau in Dallas (the bureau subsequently became headquartered in New Orleans). Rather was on the scene in Dallas at the time of President Kennedy's assassination in 1963 and anchored CBS's coverage from there. In 1964 he covered the Johnson administration at the White House. After tours of duty in London and Vietnam, he returned to the White House during the Nixon administration. His exchange of words with President Nixon at the latter's March 1974 press conference in Houston has become legendary. After recognizing Rather, Nixon quipped, "Are you running for something?" Rather immediately responded, "No sir, Mr. President, are you?" Rather left the White House beat in 1974 and joined the 60 Minutes staff in 1975; he also hosted the irregularly scheduled CBS Reports documentaries.

The 1980s were turbulent years for The CBS Evening News and for CBS in general, as the news division coped with sagging ratings, shrinking budgets, and the alienation and loss of many of the "old guard" at CBS News (one group of the old guard, headed by 60 Minutes executive producer Don Hewitt, even considered buying CBS News from the network). Dan Rather, the beneficiary of a ten-year, $22 million contract, saw the ratings of The CBS Evening News plummet to third place by the fall of 1981, when Van Gordon Sauter was named president of CBS News. Sauter, who had not come up through the division ranks, dared to redesign the newscast. He, his top assistant, Ed Joyce, and Evening News producer Howard Stringer (both of whom would later be news division presidents) changed not only the set, the camera angles, and Rather's wardrobe (even putting him in a sweater at one time), but also the tone of the stories. Human interest stories received more coverage. Reports of government policy decisions from Capitol Hill hearing rooms were deemphasized in favor of reports depicting the effects of those policies on individuals. Sauter characterized the new approach as "moments" television. As a direct result, many veteran reporters found themselves getting fewer stories on the broadcast, as a carefully selected list of favored correspondents, generally younger and more telegenic, was cultivated. Although many staffers from the Murrow–Cronkite era were horrified by the changes, The CBS Evening News climbed out of third place in 1982 and recaptured the top spot, where it remained for the next four years.

However, CBS News was no longer insulated from economic pressures, as it had been during the Murrow–Cronkite era. CBS's top executives ordered reductions in the news division's budgets, which resulted in three series of layoffs between the fall of 1985 and the spring of 1987. The latter prompted a critical op-ed piece in the New York Times by CBS News producer Richard Cohen (joined by Dan Rather), which the newspaper ran under the now-famous headline "From Murrow to Mediocrity." By the summer of 1987 The CBS Evening News had sunk again to third place in the ratings; its June 1987 figures were the lowest in twenty-five years.

Unusual things happened on the air as well. The CBS Evening News was to have originated from Miami on 11 September 1987, covering the pope's visit to the city. Shortly before airtime it appeared that a semifinal match of the US Open tennis tournament, which CBS Sports was carrying, would run late and would delay the start of the newscast. Dan Rather insisted that the newscast begin at 6:30 P.M. as scheduled, and, when it did not, walked off the set. When the tennis coverage ended moments later, Rather could not be located, and the network went "dark" for six minutes until the anchorman agreed to return to the desk. The Miami incident came back to haunt Rather four months later during a live interview with then vice president George Bush. As Rather attempted to pin Bush down about his alleged involvement in Iran-Contra activities, Bush countered by asking Rather if he would like to have his entire career judged by the six-minute hiatus in Miami.

Another insult to CBS News was dealt in the fall of 1988, this time by the network's own "flagship" station in New York, which opted to move The CBS Evening News back from 7 P.M. to 6:30 P.M. in order to run a game show in the competitive 7:00 slot. By the end of the decade, the CBS evening newscast found itself in second place most of the time, having surrendered the top spot to ABC.

In August 1990 Rather scored a major journalistic coup when he secured an exclusive interview with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein in Baghdad, following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

On 1 June 1993, with The CBS Evening News still running second to ABC, Dan Rather was paired with a coanchor: Connie Chung. Chung had been a local reporter in Washington, D.C., and a local anchor in Los Angeles before joining NBC News in the early 1980s; by 1989 she had moved over to CBS News, where she anchored weekend newscasts and hosted two magazine shows, Saturday Night with Connie Chung (later known as Face to Face with Connie Chung) and Eye to Eye with Connie Chung.

The pairing did nothing to improve the newscast's ratings, which soon sank to third place behind ABC and NBC. There was little on-air chemistry between Rather and Chung; indeed, the two appeared together in the New York studio on only 210 of the 513 newscasts during the two-year dual anchor period. Chung was criticized for her Eye to Eye interview with Kathleen Gingrich in January 1995, at which she persuaded Gingrich to confide to her that her son, Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich, thought Hillary Rodham Clinton was a "bitch." Chung was also criticized for her field reporting from Oklahoma City following the April 1995 bombing in that city. On 18 May 1995 Chung was relieved of her coanchor duties (she was also removed from Eye to Eye). On 22 May 1995 the newscast was retitled The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather, and, at the end of the program, Rather wished his former colleague "good luck and Godspeed."

THE CBS MORNING NEWS CBS

2 SEPTEMBER 1963– CBS has tried since 1954 to compete successfully with NBC's Today show. First came The Morning Show, which ran from 1954 to 1957. Then the network experimented briefly with an early-morning variety show hosted by Jimmy Dean (see The Jimmy Dean Show). In 1963 the network made yet another attempt. From 1963 until 1969 it aired a twenty-five-minute morning news show which was anchored for several seasons by veteran newsman Mike Wallace. In the fall of 1966 Wallace was succeeded by Joseph Benti, who remained until 28 August 1970. It was during Benti's tenure (on 31 March 1969) that the program was expanded to a full hour. On 31 August 1970, John Hart, who had previously been featured on the show, took over the anchor desk and remained there for almost three years. In an effort to boost ratings the network teamed up a man and a woman in August 1973: Hughes Rudd, gravel-voiced former bureau chief of CBS's Moscow office, and Sally Quinn, a former reporter for the Washington Post, who had had no television experience. Quinn's lack of experience was apparent, and by January 1974, she was on her way back to the Post. (The full story of her television career, gaffes and all, is told in her book, We're Going to Make You a Star, which she dedicated to Hughes Rudd.) Rudd continued at the anchor desk and was soon joined by CBS correspondent Bruce Morton in Washington. Morton and Rudd both left in the fall of 1977 and were replaced by Richard Threlkeld and Lesley Stahl; Rudd continued to appear occasionally as a wry commentator. The show emphasized hard news, eschewing the lighter features characteristic of its competitors, Today and Good Morning America.

On 28 January 1979 CBS expanded its morning show to six days a week, Sundays through Fridays. The new shows were titled Sunday Morning, Monday Morning, etc. Bob Schieffer took over as the anchor of the weekday programs, replacing Threlkeld and Stahl; Charles Kuralt, CBS's "on the road" correspondent, was named to host the new Sunday show. To make room for the latter program, which ran ninety minutes, the network dropped three venerable but little watched Sunday series—Camera Three, Lamp unto My Feet, and Look Up and Live—each of which had been on the air for at least twenty-three years. In the fall of 1980 the titles were all shortened to Morning, and Charles Kuralt took over as the daily host. On 28 September 1981 the weekday telecasts expanded to ninety minutes (at the expense of Captain Kangaroo), and Diane Sawyer became Kuralt's cohost. On 18 January 1982 the weekday programs again expanded (again at the expense of Captain Kangaroo), this time to two hours, the same length as Today and Good Morning America. Kuralt left the weekday broadcasts in March of that year, and was succeeded as cohost by Bill Kurtis. Sawyer in turn left the show (for 60 Minutes) in the fall of 1984.

To find a replacement for Sawyer, the network passed over an in-house candidate, Jane Wallace, and settled instead on Phyllis George, a former Miss America who had previously hosted The New Candid Camera, The Challenge of the Sexes, and People, but who had no news experience. George was given a three-year, multimillon-dollar contract, but proved to be a disaster. Her cohost, Bill Kurtis, quoted as expressing his disappointment that the show was now a clone of ABC's Good Morning America, left the program in July 1985, and was temporarily replaced by Bob Schieffer. Phyllis George herself was taken off the air in September 1985, after just eight months on the job. Another Sawyer then came aboard as cohost—Forrest Sawyer (no relation to Diane), who shared the job with Maria Shriver. Their stay lasted less than a year; both left in August 1986, when the network announced that the show would be taken away from CBS News and put under CBS Entertainment. Bruce Morton and Faith Daniels were named temporary cohosts until the new format was ready.

On 12 January 1987 The Morning Program made its debut. It was a ninety-minute show, produced by CBS Entertainment and hosted by actress Mariette Hartley. Rolland Smith handled the news and served as cohost, while Mark McEwen did the weather and Bob Saget did comedy; a studio audience was present. Clearly, the shift had been made from news to entertainment. To be sure, The CBS Morning News still existed, with Faith Daniels and Forrest Sawyer, but it was now a ninety-minute program that ran from 6:00 A.M., too early to attract more than a minuscule audience. Unfortunately, The Morning Program didn't attract much of an audience either, and the format was aborted after ten and a half months.

With the time slot now back in the hands of CBS News, CBS This Morning made its debut on 30 November 1987, with cohosts Kathleen Sullivan (formerly of Good Morning America) and Harry Smith. Sullivan and Smith stayed together for a little over two years; after remarking on Donahue that she felt an "ax hanging" over her head, and after being quoted as referring to CBS as the "Cheap Broadcasting System," Sullivan left the show in February 1990. She was succeeded by Paula Zahn (formerly of ABC World News This Morning); at last, all three network morning shows were cohosted by a man and a blonde woman. Greg Gumbel (brother of the Today show's Bryant Gumbel) became the show's sports anchor in 1989. The Smith-Zahn team remained a stable one well into the 1990s, although the ratings of CBS This Morning never seriously challenged those of Good Morning America or Today. In October 1995 the program acquired a new set and regained a live format.

Amid all the turmoil on the weekday show, Charles Kuralt's CBS News Sunday Morning managed to hang on, relatively undisturbed, through the entire decade. Kuralt bade farewell to the Sunday show on 3 April 1994; he was succeeded by Charles Osgood.

CBS NEWS NIGHTWATCH CBS

3 OCTOBER 1982–26 MARCH 1992 CBS began providing its overnight news service about three months after NBC started its late-late-night newscast (see also NBC News Overnight). CBS's effort was more ambitious, offering four hours of coverage from 2:00 to 6:00 A.M., Sunday through Thursday nights. Principal correspondents were Christopher Glenn, Felicia Jeter, Harold Dow, Karen Stone, and Mary Jo West. In the summer of 1983 network-imposed budget cuts led to staffing reductions, and service was trimmed to two hours live; the second two hours was simply a rebroadcast of the first two. Charlie Rose and Lark McCarthy were the coanchors in 1984. McCarthy left in the spring of 1985, and Rose carried on as sole anchor until his departure in May 1990. The program carried on for two more years without permanent anchor until it was revamped in March 1992: see Up to the Minute.

CBS REPORTS CBS

27 OCTOBER 1959– CBS Reports is the umbrella title for most of the documentaries produced by CBS News. Though CBS Reports has sometimes been scheduled regularly (e.g., during the 1961–1962 and 1970–1971 seasons), the documentaries have usually been telecast as specials. Fred Friendly, longtime associate of Edward R. Murrow, produced the series for the first several years. The premiere telecast, "Biography of a Missile," was narrated by Murrow. Recent offerings have included "The Best Congress Money Can Buy" (a report on political campaign financing anchored by Dan Rather, broadcast 31 January 1975), "The Guns of Autumn" (a report on hunting and firearms anchored by Rather, 5 September 1975), "The American Assassins" (a four-part series, also hosted by Rather, which examined the Kennedy, King, and Wallace incidents, broadcast between November 1975 and January 1976), "The Selling of the F-14" (a report on the marketing of a fighter plane to Iran, anchored by Jay L. McMullen and Bill McLaughlin, broadcast 27 August 1976), "Honor, Duty and a War Called Vietnam" (with Walter Cronkite returning to Vietnam, broadcast 25 April 1985), "Hiroshima Plus 40 Years . . . and Still Counting" (31 July 1985, also with Cronkite), "Four Days in November: The Assassination of President Kennedy" (a look back at the events of November 22–25, 1963, broadcast 17 November 1988); "CBS Reports: Who Killed JFK—The Final Chapter?" (19 November 1993), hosted by Dan Rather; "Space: Last Frontier or Lost Frontier" (14 July 1994), with Connie Chung, an examination of America's space program twenty-five years after the moon landing; and "Legacy of Shame" (20 July 1995), a follow-up to 1960's "Harvest of Shame" which examined the plight of America's migrant workers a generation later.

CBS SPORTS SPECTACULAR CBS

3 JANUARY 1960– The original umbrella title for CBS's long-running weekend sports anthology series; in its early seasons the show was titled Sunday Sports Spectacular. The Harlem Globetrotters were featured on the premiere. Later the series was titled CBS Sports Saturday or CBS Sports Sunday. On 17 April 1994 the network introduced Eye on Sports, a weekend sports anthology cohosted by Greg Gumbel and Andrea Joyce. Michele Tafoya succeeded Joyce in 1995.

CBS STORYBREAK CBS

30 MARCH 1985–4 JANUARY 1986; 3 JANUARY 1987– Cartoon adaptations of works of children's literature were presented on this Saturday morning anthology show, hosted for several seasons by Bob Keeshan, who is better known to viewers as Captain Kangaroo. Malcolm-Jamal Warner later hosted.

CBS SUMMER PLAYHOUSE CBS

12 JUNE 1987–18 SEPTEMBER 1987; 21 JUNE 1988–6 SEPTEMBER 1988 This hour series presented "busted pilots"—pilot episodes of series commissioned by the network, but never ordered into further production. Some shows presented a one-hour pilot, while others consisted of two half-hour pilots. The 1987 version was hosted by Tim Reid and his wife, Daphne Maxwell Reid, and featured a "900" toll number on which viewers could indicate their preferences; although one pilot, "Doctors Wilde" (17 July), with Joseph Bottoms and Jennifer Hetrick as husband-and-wife veterinarians, received more than 100,000 affirmative calls, none of the programs ever made it onto CBS's permanent lineup. Other programs from the 1987 run included a new version of "The Saint" (12 June, with Andrew Clarke), and "Kung Ku: The Next Generation" (19 June, with David Darlow and Brandon Lee). The 1988 version of the show featured neither a host nor a telephone number.

CBS TELEVISION WORKSHOP CBS

24 JANUARY 1960–1 MAY 1960; 2 OCTOBER 1960–25 DECEMBER 1960 Broadcast at noon on Sundays, this was an experimental anthology series. Among the presentations were "Tessie Malfitano," with Maureen Stapleton (3 April); "Afterthought," by Guy Parent, described as "a play without actors or dialogue" (1 May); "The Dirtiest Word in the English Language," with Uta Hagen and Ben Piazza (2 October); and "A Pattern of Words and Music," featuring Joan Baez, John Sebastian, and Lightnin' Hopkins.

CE NEWS MAGAZINE PBS

13 OCTOBER 1988–12 JANUARY 1989 "CE" stood for Children's Express on this half-hour weekly newsmagazine show on which all of the contributors were fourteen or under.

C. EVERETT KOOP, M.D. NBC

4 JUNE 1991–7 JULY 1991 This series of six informational hours about medical topics was hosted by former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop.

CHiPs NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1977–17 JULY 1983 Popular with young viewers, this hour action series showed the officers of the California Highway Patrol (CHiPs, for short) at work and at play. From 1977 to 1982 Erik Estrada and Larry Wilcox starred as Officers Francis "Ponch" Poncherello and Jonathan Baker, motorcycle-riding partners. Personal differences between the two stars led to Wilcox's departure after five seasons, and Estrada carried on with new partners for the show's final year. Other regulars included: Robert Pine as the commanding officer, Sergeant Joe Getraer; Paul Linke as Officer Grossman; Brodie Greer (1977–1982) as Officer Barickza; Lou Wagner (1978–1983) as Harlan, the police mechanic; Brianne Leary (1978–1979) as Officer Sindy Cahill; Randi Oakes (1979–1982) as Officer Bonnie Clark; Michael Dorn (1980–1981) as Officer Turner; Bruce Jenner (1981–1982) as Officer Steve McLeish (the former Olympic decathloner was hired to fill in for Estrada, who refused to report for work during part of the fifth season); Tom Reilly (1982–1983) as Officer Bobby "Hot Dog" Nelson; Bruce Penhall (1982–1983) as his half-brother, Officer Bruce Nelson; and Tina Gayle (1982–1983) as Officer Kathy Linahan. CHiPs offered its audiences lots of action, especially crashes and car chases; Estrada himself was seriously injured in a 1979 motorcycle mishap. 138 episodes were filmed.

C.P.O. SHARKEY NBC

1 DECEMBER 1976–28 JULY 1978 Service sitcom starring Don Rickles as C.P.O. (Chief Petty Officer) Otto Sharkey, a Navy drill instructor with twenty-four years of experience. Also featured were Harrison Page as C.P.O. Robinson, Sharkey's black colleague; Elizabeth Allen (1976–1977) as Captain Quinlan, his commanding officer; tall Peter Isacksen as Seaman Pruitt; Jeff Hollis as Daniels; David Landsberg as Skolnick; Tom Ruben as Kowalski; Richard Beauchamp as Rodriguez; Phillip Sims as Apodaca; and Barry Pearl as Mignone. In the fall of 1977 two new cast members were added: Richard X. Slattery as Captain Buckner, the new commanding officer; Jonathan Daly as Whipple, his aide. The series was created by Aaron Ruben, who also served as its executive producer; Arnie Rosen was the supervising producer. Though C.P.O. Sharkey was not on NBC's 1977 fall schedule, it was quickly resuscitated to replace the faltering Sanford Arms in October.

CADE'S COUNTY CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1971–4 SEPTEMBER 1972 Glenn Ford starred as Sam Cade, sheriff of Madrid County, in this hour-long adventure series set in the modern-day Southwest. With Edgar Buchanan as Senior Deputy J. J. Jackson; Taylor Lacher as Deputy Arlo Pritchard; Victor Campos as Deputy Rudy Davillo; Peter Ford (Glenn's son) as Pete; and Betty Ann Carr as Betty Ann Sundown, the dispatcher.

CADILLACS AND DINOSAURS CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1993–26 MARCH 1994 This Saturday morning cartoon show was based on Mark Schultz's comic books. Its central characters, ecologist Jack Tenrec and scientist Hannah Dundee, traveled through a dinosaur-riddled world in a special Cadillac.

CAESAR'S CHALLENGE NBC

14 JUNE 1993–14 JANUARY 1994 Sportscaster Ahmad Rashad hosted this short-lived daytime game show, taped at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. Each day three contestants tried to unscramble seven-, eight-, and nine-letter combinations to form words. Assisting Rashad was toga-clad Dan Doherty.

CAESAR'S HOUR NBC

27 SEPTEMBER 1954–25 MAY 1957 After the ninety-minute Your Show of Shows left the air in 1954, Sid Caesar returned that fall in a sixty-minute format with most of the old gang. Regulars included Nanette Fabray (1954–1956) and Janet Blair (1956–1957), who played Sid's wife in many sketches; Carl Reiner; Howard Morris; Pat Carroll (who often played Reiner's wife); Shirl Conway; Sandra Deel; Ellen Parker; singer Bill Lewis; and pianist Earl Wild. Although the show won five Emmys in 1957, it was canceled because it could not top The Lawrence Welk Show in the ratings race.

CAFÉ AMERICAIN NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1993–8 FEBRUARY 1994; 28 MAY 1994 Valerie Bertinelli starred in this half-hour sitcom as Holly Aldrich, a divorcée from Minneapolis who moved to Paris and landed a job at the Café Americain. Also featured were Lila Kaye as the owner, Margaret Hunt; Sofia Milos as model Fabiana Borelli; Peter Spears as Mark; Maurice Godin as Marcel, a mineral water executive; Graham Beckel as Steve Sullivan; and Jodi Long as Madame Ybarra, the deposed former first lady of an unnamed Asian government.

CAFE DePARIS DUMONT

17 JANUARY 1949–4 MARCH 1949 Sylvie St. Clair hosted this fifteen-minute musical series, which was seen on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The show, which featured Jacques Aubuchon and the Stan Free Trio, was set in a Paris bistro which St. Clair had inherited.

CAGNEY & LACEY CBS

25 MARCH 1982–25 APRIL 1982; 25 OCTOBER 1982–12 SEPTEMBER 1983; 19 MARCH 1984–25 AUGUST 1988 Cagney & Lacey was the first TV crime show in which the two central characters were female. Executive producer Barney Rosenzweig had formerly worked on Charlie's Angels, and was not interested in doing a show like that one; after reading Molly Haskell's history of the treatment of women in films, From Reverence to Rape, Rosenzweig conceived of a series in which the two female leads would have a Butch Cassidy–Sundance Kid relationship. The series was based on a made-for-TV movie, aired 8 October 1981, which had starred Loretta Swit and Tyne Daly as New York police officers Chris Cagney and Mary Beth Lacey. Swit was unable to appear in a series because of her commitment to *M*A*S*H*, so Meg Foster was signed to play Cagney in the spring 1982 episodes. When the series was picked up for the following season, Foster had been dropped; TV Guide quoted an unnamed CBS executive as saying that Foster's character was "too tough, too hard and not feminine." Another network executive said that audience testing revealed that the "world perceived them as too masculine." Foster was replaced in the fall of 1982 by Sharon Gless (ironically, Gless had replaced the costar of another CBS series, House Calls, a season earlier). The new combination worked: Daly's Lacey was a solid, earthy wife and mother, while Gless's Cagney was spontaneous, beautiful, and single. Between them, Daly and Gless won six consecutive Emmys for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series. A fine supporting cast was also on hand, including: Al Waxman as the boss, Lieutenant Bert Samuels; Carl Lumbly as Detective Marcus Petrie; Martin Kove as macho Detective Victor Isbecki; Sidney Clute (1982–1985) as Detective Paul LaGuardia; John Karlen as Mary Beth's patient husband, Harvey Lacey, a contractor; Tony La Torre as their older son, Harvey Jr.; Troy Slaten as their younger son, Michael; Dana and Paige Bardolph (1985–1987) and Michelle Sepe (1987–1988) as their baby daughter, Alice; Harvey Atkin as Desk Sergeant Ronald Colman, who kept his first name secret for several seasons; Barry Primus (1984–1985) as Cagney's one-time boyfriend, Sergeant Dory McKenna, who had a drug problem; Dan Shor (1985–1986) as Detective Jonah Newman; Stephen Macht (1985–1988) as Cagney's later boyfriend, lawyer David Keeler; Dick O'Neill (1983–1987) as Cagney's alcoholic father, Charlie Cagney, a retired cop; Robert Hegyes (1986–1988) as Detective Manny Esposito; Paul Mantee (1986–1988) as Detective Al Corassa; Merry Clayton (1987–1988) as Detective Verna Dee Jordan; and Carl Weintraub (1987–1988) as plumber Nick Amatucci. Producer Rosenzweig himself appeared in one episode as a Broadway producer, while his mother-in-law, Jo Corday, was seen frequently as Josie the bag lady. Cagney & Lacey narrowly escaped cancellation after its first full season; CBS had decided not to renew the series at the end of the 1982–

1983 season, but complaints from viewers helped the network to change its mind. Seven episodes were ordered as midseason replacement fare, and the series returned to the air in March 1984, enjoying its highest ratings that spring.

Gless and Daly reprised their roles in several two-hour made-for-TV movies, including "Cagney & Lacey: The Return" (6 November 1994, CBS) and "Cagney & Lacey: Together Again" (2 May 1995, CBS).

CAIN'S HUNDRED NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1961–11 SEPTEMBER 1962 Mark Richman starred as Nick Cain, a former syndicate lawyer who decided to fight crime; his mission was to apprehend the nation's 100 most dangerous underworld figures. Paul Monash was the creator and executive producer.

CALENDAR CBS

2 OCTOBER 1961–30 AUGUST 1963 A daytime series, aimed at housewives, which emphasized news and current events. Hosted by Harry Reasoner and Mary Fickett.

CALIFORNIA DREAMS NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1992– Live-action Saturday morning series about a multi-ethnic bunch of high schoolers who formed a rock band known as California Dreams. With Brent Gore (1992–1993) as guitarist and songwriter Matt Garrison; Heidi Noelle Lenhart (1992–1993) as Matt's sister, Jennifer, the keyboardist; Kelly Packard as Tiffany Smith, who played bass and sang; William James Jones as drummer Tony Wicks; Michael Cade as the group's youthful manager, Sylvester "Sly" Winkle; Ryan O'Neill (1992–1993) as Matt and Jennifer's little brother, Dennis; Jay Anthony Franke (1993– ) as the new guitarist and singer, Jake Sommers; Jennie Kwan (1993– ) as the new keyboardist, Samantha Woo; Diana Uribe (1994– ) as rich kid Lorena Costa; and Aaron Jackson (1994– ) as Sly's cousin, Mark Winkle.

CALIFORNIA FEVER CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1979–11 DECEMBER 1979 Hour adventure series about four carefree California teenagers. With Jimmy McNichol as Vince Butler; Marc McClure as Ross Whitman; Michele Tobin as Laurie; and Lorenzo Lamas as Rick, the proprietor of Rick's Place, a Sunset Beach hangout. The series, which was titled We're Cruisin' before it reached the air, was created by Dan Polier, Jr., for Warner Brothers TV and Lou-Step Productions.

THE CALIFORNIA RAISIN SHOW CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1989–1 SEPTEMBER 1990 Saturday-morning cartoon series featuring the characters originally created in claymation form by Will Vinton Productions in 1986 for a series of commercials promoting the raisin industry. The four singing and dancing raisins were Stretch, Beebop, A. C., and Red; all the other characters on the show were fruits, vegetables, or other food products.

THE CALIFORNIANS NBC

24 SEPTEMBER 1957–10 SEPTEMBER 1959 This half-hour western was set in San Francisco during the 1850s. The original stars were Adam Kennedy as Dion Patrick and Sean McClory as Jack McGivern. Dion Patrick was an Irish immigrant who headed west to pan for gold; instead, he ended up in San Francisco and became a vigilante along with Jack McGivern, who ran a general store. By midseason, however, pressure from the show's sponsors, who were uneasy about glorifying vigilantes, caused the producers to drop Adam Kennedy and to introduce a new star. Richard Coogan joined the show in March 1958 as Matt Wayne, a newcomer to San Francisco who bought a saloon and soon became the town's marshal. Sean McClory lasted out the first season but was dropped thereafter; also featured during the first season was Nan Leslie as Mrs. McGivern. Two new regulars were added for the second season: Arthur Fleming (who would later host Jeopardy) as Jeremy Pitt, a young lawyer, and Carole Matthews as the widowed Wilma Fansler, who ran a casino. Robert Bassler produced the show until January 1958, when he was replaced by Felix Feist.

CALL MY BLUFF NBC
29 MARCH 1965–24 SEPTEMBER 1965 Bill Leyden hosted this daytime game show on which contestants tried to guess which of three proffered definitions of an esoteric word was the correct one. A Mark Goodson–Bill Todman Production.

CALL TO GLORY ABC
13 AUGUST 1984–12 FEBRUARY 1985 An ambitious idea, Call to Glory was envisioned as a journey through the turbulent 1960s, as seen through the eyes of a conservative Air Force family. To help achieve realism, vintage TV news clips and actual sixties music were incorporated into the story lines. Featured were Craig T. Nelson as Colonel Raynor Sarnac, Air Force pilot; Cindy Pickett as his wife, Vanessa; Elisabeth Shue as their teenaged daughter, Jackie; Gabriel Damon as their young son, R.H., who was so traumatized by fear of his father's flying that he could speak only to his sister; David Hollander as Raynor's nephew, Wesley, who lived with the Sarnacs; Keenan Wynn as Raynor's father, Carl Sarnac; J. D. Cannon as General Hampton; and David Lain Baker as Tom Bonelli, a young Air Force pilot who was interested in Jackie.

Call to Glory was originally intended to be a limited-run series, but in May 1984 ABC decided not only to make it a regular series, but also to premiere it in August, immediately after the conclusion of the 1984 Summer Olympics. The network extensively promoted the upcoming series throughout its Olympics coverage, and the two-hour premiere on 13 August (which focused on the 1962 Cuban missile crisis) drew an impressive 24.8 rating and 44 share. Audiences soon began turning away, however, and the network suggested to co-executive producers Steve Tisch and Jon Avnet that more of the scripts should center around the Sarnac family rather than on historical events. The shift in focus begat further production problems, especially with star Craig T. Nelson, and the series sputtered off the air early in 1985. Scenes from unaired episodes were subsequently pieced together for a two-hour program, "Call to Glory: JFK," set in November 1963 and aired 30 June 1985 as a TV-movie.

CALUCCI'S DEPT. CBS
14 SEPTEMBER 1973–28 DECEMBER 1973 A half-hour situation comedy created by Renée Taylor and Joseph Bologna. Scheduled at 8:00 P.M. on Fridays, opposite NBC's Sanford and Son, it went nowhere. James Coco starred as Joe Calucci, supervisor of a state unemployment office in New York City, who tried to manage a motley crew of nincompoops and deadbeats. With José Perez as Ramon Gonzales; Candy Azzara as Shirley Balukis, Joe's secretary and girlfriend; Peggy Pope as Elaine Fusco; Jack Fletcher as claims adjuster Oscar Cosgrove; Bill Lazarus as Jack Woods; and Bernard Wexler as Walter Frohler.

CALVIN AND THE COLONEL ABC
3 OCTOBER 1961–22 SEPTEMBER 1962 Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, who created Amos and Andy on radio, provided the voices for this prime-time cartoon series about a bear (Calvin) and a fox (The Colonel) afoot in a big city. Other voices included those of Beatrice Kay as Sister Sue; Virginia Gregg as Maggie Belle; and Paul Frees as Oliver Wendell Clutch.

THE CAMEL CARAVAN (THE VAUGHN MONROE SHOW) CBS
10 OCTOBER 1950–3 JULY 1951 Singer-bandleader Vaughn Monroe ("Ghost Riders in the Sky") hosted this Tuesday-night musical variety series, sponsored by Camel cigarettes.

CAMEO THEATER NBC
14 JUNE 1950–27 SEPTEMBER 1950; 18 JUNE 1951–6 AUGUST 1951; 6 JANUARY 1952–13 APRIL 1952; 3 JULY 1955–21 AUGUST 1955 This dramatic anthology series was aired three times as a summer replacement and in 1952 was a midseason replacement for Leave It to the Girls on Sundays. The emphasis was on the story; no props, scenery, or fancy costumes were used in the productions.

CAMERA THREE CBS/PBS
22 JANUARY 1956–21 JANUARY 1979 (CBS); 4 OCTOBER 1979–10 JULY 1980 (PBS) A Sunday-morning fixture for more than twenty years, Camera Three had perhaps the loosest format of any television series: anything in the arts or sciences was fair game. Concerts, dramas, and interviews were all featured regularly. Developed by Robert Herridge, the series was broadcast locally in New York beginning in 1953. In the fall of 1979 Camera Three moved to prime time on PBS.

CAMOUFLAGE ABC/SYNDICATED
9 JANUARY 1961–16 NOVEMBER 1962 (ABC); 1980 (SYNDICATED) Daytime game show on which contestants sought to trace the outline of a described object camouflaged within a larger scene on the game board. When a contestant answered a question correctly, a portion of the camouflage was electronically removed from the board. Don Morrow hosted the network version, Tom Campbell the syndicated.

CAMP CANDY NBC
9 SEPTEMBER 1989–7 SEPTEMBER 1991 John Candy, one of the stars of SCTV, went on to make a number of motion pictures in the late 1980s that proved popular with young audiences. In the fall of 1989 he lent his name and voice to this Saturday morning cartoon series, in which he played the chief counselor at a kids' summer camp located on the shores of Lake Cacciatore. Helped by his friends, campers Rick, Robin, Alex, Binky, Vanessa, and Iggy, and pursued by amorous Nurse Molly, he went on various adventures and spun various tall tales; some stories involved Candy's archenemy, Rex de Forrest, who plotted with his henchman Chester to buy the camp and turn it into condos.

CAMP RUNAMUCK NBC
17 SEPTEMBER 1965–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 Situation comedy about two summer camps across the lake from each other: Camp Runamuck (for boys) and Camp Divine (for girls). With Arch Johnson as Commander Wivenhoe, child-hating boss of Runamuck; Dave Ketchum as Spiffy, his second in command; Dave Madden as Counselor Pruett; Alice Nunn as Mahalia May Gruenecker, chief counselor at Divine; Nina Wayne (older sister of Carol Wayne) as voluptuous counselor Caprice Yeudleman; Hermione Baddeley as Eulalia Divine, owner of the girls' camp; Frank DeVol and Leonard Stone as Doc; and Mike Wagner as Malden, the cook.

CAMP WILDER ABC
18 SEPTEMBER 1992–26 FEBRUARY 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a divorced nurse who, with her young daughter, moved back home to care for her teenage brother and sister after their parents' death. With Mary Page Keller as nurse Ricky Wilder; Tina Marjorino as Ricky's young daughter, Sophie; Jerry O'Connell as Ricky's brother, Brody; Meghann Haldeman as Ricky's sister, Melissa; Margaret Langrick as Beth, a neighbor; Jay Mohr as Dorkman, a neighbor; and Hilary Swank as Danielle, another neighbor.

CAMPAIGN PBS
3 OCTOBER 1988–7 NOVEMBER 1988 Six-part documentary series that examined various aspects of the 1988 presidential campaign.

CAMPBELL PLAYHOUSE NBC

6 JUNE 1952–29 AUGUST 1952 This dramatic anthology series was a summer replacement for The Aldrich Family. See also TV Soundstage.

THE CAMPBELLS FAM

4 JANUARY 1986–31 DECEMBER 1989 Half-hour dramatic series about a Scottish family that emigrated to the Canadian frontier in the 1830s. With Malcolm Stoddard as physician James Campbell; Amber-Lea Weston as Emma Campbell; Eric Richards as John Campbell; and Cedric Smith as Captain Simms.

CAMPY'S CORNER SYNDICATED

1960 Half-hour sports talk show, hosted by former Brooklyn Dodgers catcher Roy Campanella and sportscasters Chris Schenkel and Don Dunphy.

CAN DO NBC

26 NOVEMBER 1956–31 DECEMBER 1956 Robert Alda hosted this Monday-night game show on which contestants tried to predict whether celebrity guests could successfully perform prescribed stunts.

CAN WE SHOP? SYNDICATED

17 JANUARY 1994–15 JULY 1994 Following the demise of her daytime talk show, Joan Rivers experimented with her own daytime home shopping program for six months. Each day Rivers and guests hawked products, which viewers could purchase by dialing an 800 number. Local stations which aired the show received a percentage of net sales in their respective markets. Rivers had previously marketed successfully a line of jewelry on the QVC cable service.

CAN YOU TOP THIS ABC/SYNDICATED

3 OCTOBER 1950–26 MARCH 1951 (ABC); 1970 (SYNDICATED) This show was derived from the radio program of the same title. Jokes sent in by home viewers were read to the audience, and a celebrity panel then tried to "top" the response to that joke by telling a funnier joke on the same subject. Ward Wilson hosted the 1950–1951 network version; Wink Martindale first hosted the syndicated version but was replaced by Dennis James. Morey Amsterdam was a permanent panelist.

CANDID CAMERA ABC/NBC/CBS/SYNDICATED

10 AUGUST 1948–3 DECEMBER 1948 (ABC); 29 MAY 1949–18 AUGUST 1949 (NBC); 12 SEPTEMBER 1949–25 SEPTEMBER 1950 (CBS); 27 AUGUST 1951–23 MAY 1952 (ABC); 2 JUNE 1953–5 AUGUST 1953 (NBC); 2 OCTOBER 1960–3 SEPTEMBER 1967 (CBS); 4 MAY 1990–31 AUGUST 1990 (CBS); 1991–1992 (SYNDICATED)

THE NEW CANDID CAMERA SYNDICATED

1974–1978 Allen Funt created and hosted this unique, and often hilarious, human interest show on which people were filmed by a hidden camera and were "caught in the act of being themselves." The idea originated when Funt was in the armed services; he surreptitiously recorded servicemen's gripes and broadcast them on Armed Forces Radio. In 1947 Funt took the idea to network radio, and the show appeared as Candid Microphone. The filmed version, at first titled Candid Microphone, followed one year later. Many of the situations were staged by Funt and his stooges (such as driving a car with no engine into a service station, or posting a guard at the Pennsylvania-Delaware border to inform motorists that Delaware was closed for the day), but other situations were not contrived at all (such as filming a traffic cop at work, or teenage boys combing their hair). Some sequences were edited and set to music. On the early years of Candid Camera, Funt was assisted by Jerry Lester. When the show returned in 1960, Funt's cohost was Arthur Godfrey; Godfrey left after one season and was replaced by Durward Kirby for the next five seasons. Bess Myerson was the cohost for the 1966–1967 season. In 1974 Funt returned to television with The New Candid Camera, which included not only new segments, but also highlights of the old shows. Phyllis George cohosted the show from 1974 until 1976, when Jo Ann Pflug succeeded her. On 14 February 1983 the show marked its thirty-fifth anniversary with a prime-time retrospective on NBC; the hour special was cohosted by Allen Funt and Loni Anderson. Other specials have subsequently popped up in prime time; on one, titled "On Wheels" and broadcast 17 May 1989 on CBS, all the stunts involved automobiles. The series spawned a few competitors over the years: see People Do the Craziest Things and Totally Hidden Video. Funt filed suit against the latter, but did not prevail. In May 1990, in the wake of the sudden popularity of America's Funniest Home Videos, Candid Camera surfaced briefly on CBS's weekly lineup, with Allen Funt, his son Peter, and celebrity guest hosts. A daily syndicated version appeared in 1991, hosted by Dom DeLuise. This version, which was licensed by the Funt family to King World, was criticized by Peter Funt in Variety, who called it "not a good show—and not very funny."

CANNON CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1971–19 SEPTEMBER 1976 This successful crime show starred William Conrad as Frank Cannon, a former cop turned private eye. Though television viewers may not have recognized Conrad's hefty frame before this series, his voice certainly should have been familiar: Conrad was radio's Matt Dillon on Gunsmoke, and narrated several television series, including Rocky and His Friends, and The Fugitive. A Quinn Martin production, Cannon was one of the few series of the 1970s with only one regular; 124 episodes were made. The character came out of retirement in a made-for-TV movie, "The Return of Frank Cannon," telecast 1 November 1980.

CANNONBALL SYNDICATED

1958 A half-hour adventure series about a couple of long-distance truckers (NBC exhumed this concept for its 1974 series, Movin' On). With Paul Birch as Mike Malone and William Campbell as his partner, Jerry Austin. Robert Maxwell was the producer.

CAN'T HURRY LOVE CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1995–26 FEBRUARY 1996 Nancy McKeon starred in this half-hour sitcom as Annie O'Donnell, a young single woman who lived in a New York apartment, worked for an employment agency, and tried to find true love. With Mariska Hargitay as Annie's hedonistic neighbor, Didi Edelstein; Louis Mandylor as Roger Carlucci, Annie's oversexed coworker at People Pleasers; and Kevin Crowley as Elliot Tenney, Annie's married coworker.

CAPITAL NEWS ABC

9 APRIL 1990–30 APRIL 1990 The Washington Capital, a great metropolitan daily newspaper, was the centerpiece of this hour dramatic series. The ensemble cast included Lloyd Bridges as Jonathan "Jo Jo" Turner, the editor; Mark Blum as national editor Edison King; Christian Clemenson as mild-mannered reporter Todd Lunden; Kurt Fuller as Miles Plato, flamboyant syndicated gossip columnist; Wendell Pierce as Conrad White, a black reporter assigned to the local desk; William Russ as maverick local reporter Redmond Dunne; Helen Slater as rookie reporter Anne McKenna, also assigned to the local desk; Michael Woods as local editor Clay Gibson; Jenny Wright as local reporter Doreen Duncan; Chelsea Field as national reporter Cassy Swann; and Charles Levin as business editor Vinnie DiSalvo. David Milch, who had previously worked on Hill Street Blues, created the series with Christian Williams.

CAPITOL CBS

29 MARCH 1982–20 MARCH 1987 Washington, D.C., with its trappings of politics and power, was the locale for this half-hour daytime serial. The original storyline centered on two powerful, feuding families, the McCandlesses and the Cleggs; borrowing a plot from Romeo and Juliet, Capitol's writers arranged to have a McCandless son fall in love with a Clegg daughter. The cast included: Rory Calhoun as Judge Judson Tyler, head of the McCandless clan; Constance Towers as his daughter, Clarissa McCandless, mother of four; David Mason Daniels and Dane Witherspoon as son Tyler, a politician; Brian-Robert Taylor and Michael Catlin as crippled son Thomas, a doctor; Bill Beyers as son Wally, a gambler; Shea Farrell and Chris

Durham as son Matt, a jock; Kelly Palzis as daughter Gillian, a college student (Gillian was actually a distant relative adopted by Clarissa); Carolyn Jones (who died in August 1983), Marla Adams, and Marj Dusay as Myrna Clegg, head of the Clegg clan; Nicholas Walker as Myrna's stepson, Samuel "Trey" Clegg III, a congressman; Leslie Graves, Ashley Laurence, and Karen Kelly as Myrna's daughter, Brenda; Todd Curtis as Myrna's son, Jordy (after Curtis sustained facial scars in an auto accident, his character met the same fate); Kimberly Beck-Hilton and Catherine Hickland as Myrna's daughter (and Jordy's twin sister), Julie Clegg, who fell for Tyler McCandless and married him in September 1983 (Hickland also played Jenny Diamond); Ed Nelson as Myrna's friend, Senator Mark Denning; Julie Adams as Mark's wife, Paula Denning; Deborah Mullowney (later known as Debrah Farentino) as Mark's daughter, Sloane Denning, a reporter who married Trey Clegg; Anthony Eisley as Philip Dade; Corinne Michaels as his wife, Joan Dade; Jeff Chamberlain as Lawrence Barrington, a spy; Robert Sampson and Richard Egan as Samuel Clegg II, Trey's father; Wolf Muser as Kurt Voightlander; Rodney Saulsberry as Jeff Johnson; Tonja Walker as Lizbeth Bachman; Carol Cooke as Sugar Laine; Kimberly Ross as Amy; Lana Wood as Amy's mother, Fran Burke; Victor Brandt and Eddie Zammit as Danny Donato; Dawn Parrish as Veronica Angelo; Julie Parrish as Maggie Brady; Todd Starks as Roje Avery; Bradley Lockerman as Zed Diamond; Jim McKrell as Dr. Yale Parker; Jane Daly Gamble and Jess Walton as former prostitute Shelly Granger, later known as Kelly Harper; Walter Malet as Hal Dayton; Billy Warlock as Ricky Driscoll; Becca C. Ashley as Cheetah; Lindsey Richardson as Chip Landry; Lara Parker as Linda Vandenburg; Valarie Reynolds as Vera Sweet; Joey Aresco as Nino Vincent; Beth Windsor as Frankie Bridges; Paul Comi as Victor Markham; Christine Kellogg as Leanne Foster; Ron Harper as Jarrettt Morgan/Baxter McCandless, who married Clarissa in 1986; Grant Aleksander as D. J. Phillips; Cheryl-Ann Wilson as Kate Wells; Peter Lochran as Prince Ali; Alisha Das as Princess Yasmeen, who married Ali in 1986; Teri Hatcher as Angelica, who married Trey Clegg in 1986; Mitch Brown as Dylan Ross; and Malachi Pearson as Scotty Harper, Kelly's son. Among the celebrities who made guest appearances were Michael Reagan (three shows in 1986), Lola Falana as Charity Blake, and Tammy Wynette, who appeared as waitress Darlene Stenkowski.

Capitol was the first daytime serial to be introduced during prime time; a special one-hour preview was aired on Friday, 26 March 1982, three days before the series's daytime premiere (ABC would follow the same practice with its 1983 soap, Loving). John Conboy (of The Young and the Restless) was the executive producer of the series, which encountered strong competition from ABC's One Life to Live. Capitol went through three sets of head writers in its first eighteen months: Stephen and Elinor Karpf were succeeded by Joyce and John William Carrington, who were in turn succeeded by Peggy O'Shea. Henry Slesar later served as head writer. The series never enjoyed high ratings, and vanished after a modest five-year run. Although most canceled daytime serials have tied up loose ends on their final episodes, Capitol did not: the program terminated with reporter Sloan Denning facing a firing squad in the Mideast nation of Baracq.

CAPITOL CAPERS NBC

1 AUGUST 1949–7 SEPTEMBER 1949 A fifteen-minute musical variety show, broadcast twice a week before the evening news from Washington, D.C. The show featured singer Gene Archer and was also known as The Gene Archer Show.

CAPITOL CLOAKROOM CBS

14 OCTOBER 1949–15 SEPTEMBER 1950 Friday-night public affairs program, with Eric Sevareid, Willard (Bill) Shadel, Griffing Bancroft, and a guest panelist. The show was broadcast live from Washington, D.C. Explanatory notes

CAPITOL CRITTERS ABC

28 JANUARY 1992–29 FEBRUARY 1992 Steven Bochco created this prime-time animated sitcom set at the White House. Its central characters were the vermin—rats, mice, and roaches—who lived there. Among the many characters were Max, a mouse from Nebraska; Moze the cockroach; Berkeley, a hippie mouse; and Muggle, an escaped lab rat. Neil Patrick Harris supplied Max's voice, Bobcat Goldthwait supplied Muggle's.

THE CAPTAIN & TENNILLE ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1976–14 MARCH 1977 ABC's answer to Sonny and Cher, The Captain (Daryl Dragon) and Tennille (Toni Tennille, his wife) were given their own musical variety series after a string of hit records, the biggest of which was "Love Will Keep Us Together" (written by Neil Sedaka). The laconic Captain and the toothsome Tennille were both talented musicians (each had worked at one time with the Beach Boys), but neither seemed at ease with the labored comedy sketches which often dominated the series.

CAPTAIN BILLY'S MISSISSIPPI MUSIC HALL CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1948–3 DECEMBER 1948 This half-hour musical variety show was set aboard a nineteenth-century riverboat and was hosted by Ralph Dumke as Captain Billy Bryant. Also on board were Johnny Downs, Bibi Osterwald, and Juanita Hall. The series was produced by Paul Killiam and actually premiered (as Captain Billy's Showboat) on 16 August 1948, though it was not broadcast weekly until late September.

CAPTAIN CAVEMAN AND THE TEEN ANGELS ABC

8 MARCH 1980–21 JUNE 1980 The central character in this Saturday-morning cartoon series was Captain Caveman, a prehistoric creature who had been frozen in a glacier; after thawing out, he teamed up with a trio of teenage girls—Brenda, Dee Dee, and Taffy—and helped them solve mysteries. The cartoons were originally shown in 1977 as part of Scooby's All-Star Laff-a-Lympics and were subsequently seen in 1980 on The Flintstones Comedy Show.

CAPTAIN DAVID GRIEF SYNDICATED

1955 These adaptations of the Jack London stories starred Maxwell Reed as South Seas sailor Captain David Grief and Maureen Hingart as Anura, his permanent passenger aboard the Rattler.

CAPTAIN GALLANT OF THE FOREIGN LEGION NBC

13 FEBRUARY 1955–7 DECEMBER 1957 This half-hour adventure series for children starred Buster Crabbe as Captain Michael Gallant, commander of the North African headquarters of the French Foreign Legion. Also featured were Cullen Crabbe (Buster's son) as Cuffy Sanders, an orphan taken in by Captain Gallant after the death of his Legionnaire father; Al "Fuzzy" Knight as Private Fuzzy Knight; and Gilles Queant as Sergeant Du Val. Produced by Serge Glykson, the series was filmed on location from 1954 until 1956, when production was shifted to the politically safer climate of Northern Italy. Syndicated reruns were shown under the title Foreign Legionnaire.

CAPTAIN HARTZ AND HIS PETS SYNDICATED

1954 Ned Locke starred in this children's series as Captain Hartz, an airline pilot who brought back unusual pets from his travels; Jerry Garvey was also featured as his teenage pal.

CAPTAIN KANGAROO CBS

3 OCTOBER 1955–8 DECEMBER 1984 Television's longest-running network children's series. Its star, Bob Keeshan, began his show business career as Clarabell on Howdy Doody. After hosting two local shows in New York (Time for Fun and Tinker's Workshop), he brought this show on the air in 1955, playing Captain Kangaroo, a gentle man so named because of the large pockets of his jacket (the show premiered on the same day as The Mickey Mouse Club). In three decades the show changed little. Stressing gentleness, with a touch of morality and religion, Keeshan managed to keep its tone calm and its pace even. The show was geared to the individual child watching at home—no children appeared in the studio (though some were occasionally featured in filmed segments). But the Captain was not alone; Hugh (Lumpy) Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, was with the show from its early days. Mr. Green Jeans was apparently a farmer (and an amateur inventor); several times a week he introduced animals on the show. For many seasons Cosmo Allegretti was featured as Dennis, the bumbling apprentice. Allegretti and Brannum also appeared in other roles on the show; in addition, Allegretti was the show's chief puppeteer and was thus responsible for such characters as the mischievous Mr. Moose, the introspective Bunny Rabbit, the curious Miss Frog, the quiet Mr. Whispers, and the erudite Word Bird. Cartoons were also featured but never predominated in the show; one of the most popular segments during the 1950s was "Tom Terrific," the serialized adventures of Tom Terrific, a little boy who could change himself into anything, and his canine sidekick, Mighty Manfred the Wonder Dog. During most of the 1970s two other humans were also featured: Larry Wall as Mr. Baxter and Debby Weems as Debby. Bill Cosby became a regular contributor in the fall of 1980, and shortly thereafter a character known as Slim Goodbody began to appear; played by John Burstein, Slim wore a costume showing the parts of the body and sang "Top 40 Health Hits." Additionally, many guest stars have appeared on Captain Kangaroo, including Alan Arkin, Pearl Bailey, Carol Channing, Imogene Coca, Doug Henning, Earl Monroe, Dick Shawn, Marlo Thomas, Edward Villella, and Eli Wallach.

For the first three months of its run, Captain Kangaroo was seen on weekday mornings. On 7 January 1956 a Saturday telecast was added, and the show could be seen six days a week until 7 September 1968, except during the 1964–1965 season when Keeshan hosted a separate series on Saturdays (see Mister Mayor). Occasionally the show was aired in a forty-five-minute format, but for most of its run between 1955 and 1981 it occupied a full hour. During the 1970s, about 120 new programs were made each year and were mixed in with reruns.

In the fall of 1981 Captain Kangaroo's 8:00 A.M. time slot was changed to make room for the expanding CBS Morning News. On 28 September it was moved back to 7:00 A.M., trimmed to thirty minutes, and retitled Wake Up with the Captain. Less than four months later, on 18 January 1982, when CBS Morning News expanded to two hours, Wake Up was moved back again, to 6:30 A.M., an hour when very few children (or grownups) were even awake. On 18 September 1982, after a twenty-seven-year weekday run, the program was moved to weekends, where it was seen at 7:00 A.M. on Saturdays and 8:00 A.M. Sundays (the Saturday shows were new ones, the Sunday shows were reruns from the previous season). Captain Kangaroo's departure from the weekday schedule marked the end of an era. By 1982 it was the only weekday program on any of the three commercial networks aimed specifically at children. In the fall of 1984 the show was reduced to a half-hour, and left the network, after a twenty-nine-year run, in December of that year. Keeshan later turned up on CBS's Saturday morning schedule as the host of CBS Storybreak. In 1991 and 1992 edited excerpts from the series, blended with some newly produced segments, were made available to public television stations.

Bob Keeshan has long been aware of the impact of commercials on young viewers. No cast members delivered commercials on the show, and all advertisements were approved by program executives. Keeshan was among the first people to insert "bumpers"—announcements separating the program from the commercials—a practice later implemented by all the networks (and most local stations) on their child-oriented shows.

CAPTAIN MIDNIGHT CBS

4 SEPTEMBER 1954–12 MAY 1956 A half-hour adventure series for children, Captain Midnight began on radio in 1940 and ran for thirteen years. On TV, Richard Webb starred as Captain Midnight, head of the Secret Squadron, an omnibus crime-fighting agency (according to the radio story, Captain Midnight was really Captain Albright, a brave and daring World War I flying ace who returned to his home base after a particularly hazardous mission precisely at the stroke of midnight). Also featured were Sid Melton as Ichabod (Ikky) Mudd, Midnight's none-too-bright assistant, and Olan Soule as Tut (Aristotle Jones), an eccentric scientist who worked for the Secret

Squadron. The network version of the series was sponsored by Ovaltine, which had also sponsored the radio show. Because Ovaltine owned the rights to the name "Captain Midnight," when the reruns of the series went into syndication (without Ovaltine's sponsorship) they were seen under the title Jet Jackson, Flying Commando; all references in the dialogues to "Captain Midnight" were crudely overdubbed with the words "Jet Jackson."

CAPTAIN N: THE GAME MASTER NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1989–25 JULY 1992 Saturday morning hour cartoon series about a young boy, Kevin, and his dog, Duke, who crossed over through their home video screen into the world of Videoland. There the boy, known as Captain N, went on various adventures (some of which were based on Nintendo video games) with Duke and their new friends, Megaman the robot, Princess Lana, self-infatuated Simon Belmont, and Dr. Wiley. The group's chief foe was the evil Motherbrain. The main title sequence used live action; Dorian Barag appeared as Kevin and Louie played Duke.

In the fall of 1990 another Nintendo-based segment was added, as the show was retitled Captain N and the Adventures of Super Mario Bros. 3. In the new segment, brothers Mario and Luigi (who were also featured on the syndicated Super Mario Bros. Super Show) battled King Coopa and his seven kids, and tried to help Princess Toadstool. In the fall of 1991 the series was retitled Captain N and the New Super Mario World.

CAPTAIN NICE NBC

9 JANUARY 1967–28 AUGUST 1967 An imitation Batman, Captain Nice was set in Big Town. With William Daniels as Carter Nash, a police chemist who devised a secret formula, one swallow of which turned him into Captain Nice, crimefighter; Alice Ghostley as his mother, Mrs. Nash; and Ann Prentiss as Sergeant Candy Kane, his admirer. (Captain Nice should not be confused with Mr. Terrific, the CBS imitation Batman, which premiered and closed on the same dates as Captain Nice.)

CAPTAIN PLANET AND THE PLANETEERS TNT/SYNDICATED

16 SEPTEMBER 1990– (TNT); 1990– (SYNDICATED) Half-hour cartoon series in which Captain Planet and his five-kid Planeteer force battled environmental villains around the world.

CAPTAIN POWER AND THE SOLDIERS OF THE FUTURE SYNDICATED

1987–1988 Although many kids' shows of the 1980s were based on toys, this one went one step further: kids who owned Mattel's Powerjet XT-7 or Phantom Striker could actually play along and attempt to zap characters onscreen. This form of "interactive" television had not been seen since the days of Winky Dink and You three decades earlier. Captain Power and the Soldiers of the Future combined live action and computer animation; each episode contained a five-minute "interactive" segment. The half-hour daily series was set in the year 2146, when the good guys—Captain Power and his cohorts—battled the baddies, led by Lord Dread. Tim Dunigan starred as Captain Jonathan Power. David Hemblen appeared as Lord Dread; Sven-Ole Thorsen played Tank; Peter MacNeil was Hawk; Maurice Dean Wint was Scott; and Jessica Steen was The Pilot.

CAPTAIN SCARLET AND THE MYSTERONS SYNDICATED

1967 Created by Gerry and Sylvia Anderson, this British children's series was filmed in "Supermarionation," a technique using plastic models operated by very fine wires. Captain Scarlet led the forces of Spectrum, an international planetary defense force, against the Mysterons, unseen invaders from Mars.

CAPTAIN VIDEO DUMONT/SYNDICATED

27 JUNE 1949–1 APRIL 1955 (DUMONT); 1953–1955 (SYNDICATED); 1956 (SYNDICATED) Television's best-known space serial began in 1949 with Richard Coogan as Captain Video, the ordinary human who led the Video Rangers, a squad of loyal agents which fought terrestrial and extraterrestrial villains during the twenty-second century. Coogan was replaced later in 1949 by Al Hodge, who continued in the role for seven years. Also featured were Don Hastings (who would go on to greater fame in As the World Turns) as a teenager, The Video Ranger, the Captain's main assistant; Hal Conklin as Dr. Pauli, the Captain's arch-enemy; and Tobor the robot ("Tobor" is "robot" spelled backwards), originally a foe but later an ally of the Captain. Guest villains over the years included Ernest Borgnine (as Nargola, one of his first TV roles), Jack Klugman, and Tony Randall.

A scientific genius, Captain Video invented dozens of fantastic gadgets in his secret mountain headquarters, such as the Remote Tele-Carrier, the Cosmic Vibrator, the Opticon Scillometer, and the Astra-Viewer. His first spaceship—the X-9—crashed; Video replaced it with the Galaxy. Broadcast live from New York for its first six years, Captain Video started out as a half-hour show four nights a week; by the fall of 1949 it was on every weeknight. To fill the half hour, clips from old western moviews were spliced in; it was explained that the good guys were allies of Captain Video. In the fall of 1953 the daily version was cut back to fifteen minutes, and it was finally dropped in 1955. In 1953, however, a second Captain Video series had begun, titled The Secret Files of Captain Video, which appeared in a half-hour, noncontinuing form. In 1956 Al Hodge returned as the host of a syndicated cartoon show, Captain Video's Cartoons. After Captain Video left the air, Al Hodge appeared only rarely on television. In March of 1979 he died alone in a New York hotel room.

Written by M. C. Brook, the original Captain Video was the first and longest-running of the several TV space shows; it spawned a host of competitors, including Atom Squad, Captain Midnight (which was not actually set in outer space), Commando Cody, Rocky Jones, Space Ranger, Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers, Space Patrol, and Tom Corbett, Space Cadet.

CAPTAIN Z-RO SYNDICATED

1955 Children's fantasy series written by and starring Roy Steffens as Captain Z-Ro, inventor of a combination rocket ship and time machine. This device enabled him to travel anywhere in the past, present, or future. The show, which began as a local show in Los Angeles in 1952, also featured Bobby Trumbull as Jet, his teenage assistant.

CAPTURED

See GANGBUSTERS

CAR 54, WHERE ARE YOU? NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1961–8 SEPTEMBER 1963 Created by Nat Hiken, who also created You'll Never Get Rich, Car 54 was the first situation comedy about police officers. It was also one of the few series of its time to feature a black performer (Nipsey Russell) as a regular. The large cast included Joe E. Ross (he played Ritzik on You'll Never Get Rich) as Officer Gunther Toody; Fred Gwynne as his partner, Officer Francis Muldoon; Beatrice Pons as Lucille Toody, Gunther's wife (Pons had played Ritzik's wife on You'll Never Get Rich; Ross and Pons thus became the first actor-actress team to play two different married couples on two sitcoms); Al Lewis as Schnauzer; Charlotte Rae as Mrs. Schnauzer; Paul Reed as Captain Block; Nipsey Russell as Officer Dave Anderson; Fred O'Neal as Officer Wallace; Mickey Deems as Officer Fleisher; Al Henderson as Officer O'Hara; Duke Farley as Officer Riley; Hank Garrett as Officer Nicholson; Shelley Burton as Officer Murdock; Jerry Guardino as Officer Antonnucci; Jim Gormley as Officer Nelson; and Joe Warren as Officer Steinmetz. Sixty episodes were produced. A theatrical movie was released in 1994, with David Johansen and John C. McGinley as Toody and Muldoon; Nipsey Russell and Al Lewis reprised their roles.

THE CARA WILLIAMS SHOW CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1964–10 SEPTEMBER 1965 Half-hour sitcom about a pair of newlyweds who worked for a company where marriage between employees was forbidden. With Cara Williams as Cara Bridges; Frank Aletter as her husband, Frank Bridges; Jack

Sheldon as their neighbor, jazz trumpeter Fletcher Kincaid; Paul Reed as their boss, Damon Burkhardt; Reta Shaw as Mrs. Burkhardt; and Jeanne Arnold as Mary, Burkhardt's secretary. The series was developed by Keefe Brasselle.

CARD SHARKS NBC/SYNDICATED/CBS

24 APRIL 1978–23 OCTOBER 1981 (NBC); 1982 (SYNDICATED); 1986 (SYNDICATED); 6 JANUARY 1986–31 MARCH 1989 (CBS) The basic format of this game show was one of the simplest ever devised: contestants tried to predict whether the value of the next playing card would be higher or lower than the preceding one. Jim Perry presided over the NBC daytime and 1982 syndicated versions. The show surfaced again in 1986, with an added wrinkle: contestants had to first predict how a group of one hundred persons had answered a question before they could tackle the cards. Bob Eubanks hosted the CBS daytime version, while Bill Rafferty emceed the syndicated one.

THE CARE BEARS FAMILY ABC/SYNDICATED

CAROL & COMPANY NBC

31 MARCH 1990–20 JULY 1991 Carol Burnett returned to series television in an unusual format: a comedy anthology series. Each week Burnett and her repertory company (sometimes augmented by guest stars) performed a single comedy skit. The repertory players included Anita Barone, Meagen Fay, Richard Kind, Terry Kiser, Peter Krause, and Jeremy Piven.

CAROL BURNETT & COMPANY ABC

18 AUGUST 1979–8 SEPTEMBER 1979 A four-week comedy-variety hour with Carol Burnett, Tim Conway, Vicki Lawrence, Craig Richard Nelson, and Kenneth Mars.

THE CAROL BURNETT SHOW CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1967–9 AUGUST 1978 Popular variety hour hosted by Carol Burnett, a physical comedienne who became familiar to audiences during her three seasons on The Garry Moore Show. By the fall of 1975, The Carol Burnett Show was the second-oldest prime-time series on the air (Walt Disney was first). A California native, Burnett moved to New York in the mid-1950s, where she landed a role on Buddy Hackett's 1956 sitcom, Stanley. She then guested on several variety shows, including The Garry Moore Show (daytime version) and Jack Paar's Tonight show, where she brought down the house singing a novelty number, "I Made a Fool of Myself over John Foster Dulles." In 1959 she became a regular on the nighttime version of The Garry Moore Show; it was there that she met her husband and future producer, Joe Hamilton. After leaving the Moore show in 1962, she appeared in several specials and also hosted The Entertainers in 1964. On her own show she brought together a group of talented supporting players: Harvey Korman, a versatile funny man who had previously been featured on The Danny Kaye Show; handsome Lyle Waggoner; and a newcomer named Vicki Lawrence, whose resemblance to Burnett led her to be cast as Burnett's younger sister in many sketches. In 1974 Waggoner left the series; a year later Tim Conway (who had guested frequently on the show) joined as a regular. Korman left in 1977 and was replaced by Dick Van Dyke, who announced his "resignation" from the series in December 1977. In later seasons, the show did not emphasize guest stars, relying instead on the talents of the regulars. Spoofs of movies, especially musicals, had become a staple; other recurring segments included "As the Stomach Turns," a soap opera parody, and "The Family," a group of rural folks who constantly bickered with one another. Most shows began with questions from the studio audience and ended with Burnett tugging her ear. Music was supplied by the Peter Matz Orchestra, with choreography by Ernest Flatt and costumes by Bob Mackie. See also Carol & Company; Mama's Family. Two retrospectives were produced: "The Carol Burnett Show: A Reunion" (10 January 1993, CBS), and "Carol Burnett: The Special Years" (20 May 1994, CBS).

THE CAROL BURNETT SHOW CBS

1 NOVEMBER 1991–20 DECEMBER 1991 Carol Burnett's fourth prime-time series, which lasted only seven weeks, was an hour of sketch comedy. Assisting Burnett were Rick Aviles, Chris Barnes, Meagen Fay, Roger Kabler, Jann Karam, Richard Kind, and Jessica Lundy.

CAROLINE IN THE CITY NBC

CARTER COUNTRY ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1977–23 AUGUST 1979 The first situation comedy to use the name of a current President in its title, Carter Country was set in Clinton Corners, a medium-sized town somewhere in the deep South. With Victor French as Roy Mobey, the white police chief; Kene Holliday as Curtis Baker, his black deputy; Richard Paul as Ted Burnside, the town's spineless mayor; Vernée Watson as Lucille Banks, Burnside's black secretary; Barbara Cason as Cloris, the town's policewoman; Guich Koock as Officer Harley Puckett; Harvey Vernon as Officer DeWitt; and Melanie Griffith (1978–1979) as Tracy. Created by Phil Doran and Douglas Arango. Executive producers: Bud Yorkin, Saul Turteltaub, and Bernie Orenstein.

CARTOON TELETALES ABC

11 AUGUST 1948–24 SEPTEMBER 1950 One of the first children's programs to incorporate the philosophy that television can be a participatory medium, rather than a passive one for its viewers, Cartoon Teletales was a Sunday-evening feature which encouraged children to sketch along with artist Chuck Luchsinger as he drew illustrations to accompany stories narrated by his brother, Jack Luchsinger. Featured characters included Pinto the Pony, Cletus the Caterpillar, and Alice the Alligator. The series premiered locally in Philadelphia in May 1948.

CARTOONIES ABC

13 APRIL 1963–28 SEPTEMBER 1963 Known as Cartoonsville in its early weeks, this half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show was hosted by Paul Winchell and his dummies, Jerry Mahoney and Knucklehead Smith.

CASABLANCA ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1955–24 APRIL 1956 One segment of Warner Brothers Presents, Casablanca alternated with Cheyenne and King's Row for one season. It was a pale adaptation of the 1941 classic film which had starred Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman. On television Charles McGraw starred as Rick Blaine, the American expatriate who ran a night spot in Casablanca at the outbreak of World War II.

CASABLANCA NBC

10 APRIL 1983–24 APRIL 1983; 27 AUGUST 1983–3 SEPTEMBER 1983 The second TV version of the movie was no more successful than the first had been twenty-eight years before. In this incarnation, which employed some of the props from the movie, the action was supposed to be taking place slightly before that in the film. The cast included David Soul as American café owner Rick Blaine; Scatman Crothers as Sam, the club pianist; Ray Liotta as Sacha, the bartender; Arthur Malet as Carl, the maitre'd; Reuven Bar-Yotam as the mysterious Ferrari; Hector Elizondo as the beleaguered gendarme, Captain Renault; Patrick Horgan as Major Strasser of the German forces; and Kai Wulff as Strasser's adjutant, Lieutenant Heinz. David Wolper was the executive producer, and Charles Fitsimons the producer, of the hour series.

CELEBRITY SWEEPSTAKES NBC/SYNDICATED

1 APRIL 1974–1 OCTOBER 1976 (NBC); 1974–1977 (SYNDICATED) A game show involving two contestants, six celebrities, and the studio audience. First, host Jim McKrell asked a question; the members of the audience then set the "odds" for each celebrity by voting electronically for the one they thought was most likely to answer correctly. Once the odds were established and posted, one contestant could wager on any of the celebrities; if that celebrity answered correctly, the contestant won money. At the end of the show each contestant could wager "all or none" of his or her winnings on one celebrity. Frequently seen on the celebrity panel were Carol Wayne, Buddy Hackett, Dick Martin, and Joey Bishop. The NBC daytime version ran for two-and-one-half years, spawning a nighttime syndicated version. Executive producer: Ralph Andrews.

See THE RUGGLES

THE CHARLEY WEAVER SHOW (CHARLEY WEAVER'S HOBBY LOBBY) ABC

30 SEPTEMBER 1959–23 MARCH 1960 This prime-time series began with an unusual format: host Cliff Arquette (as beloved bumpkin Charley Weaver) interviewed celebrity guests about their hobbies. By midseason that idea had been scrapped, and a standard comedy-variety format was adopted.

CHARLIE & CO. CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1985–28 JANUARY 1986; 25 APRIL 1986–23 JULY 1986 In the wake of The Cosby Show's sudden popularity, CBS came up with its version of a black family sitcom. Set in Chicago, it featured Flip Wilson as Charlie Richmond, who worked for the city highway department; Gladys Knight (better known as a singer than as an actress) as his wife, Diana, a teacher; Kristoff St. John as elder son Charlie Jr.; Fran Robinson as teen daughter Lauren; Jaleel White as younger son Robert; Della Reese as Aunt Rachel, who moved in with the Richmonds; Ray Girardin as Charlie's boss, Walter Simpson; and Richard Karron, Terry McGovern, Eddie Velez, and Kip King as Charlie's ethnically diverse coworkers, Milton Bieberman, Jim Coyle, Miguel Santana, and Ronald Sandler, respectively.

THE CHARLIE BROWN AND SNOOPY SHOW CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1983–3 AUGUST 1986 Although Charles Schulz's Peanuts cartoon characters had appeared in prime-time specials since 1965 ("A Charlie Brown Christmas" was the first), they did not come to Saturday morning television until 1983. The half-hour series featured all the popular Peanuts characters—Charlie Brown, Lucy Van Pelt, Linus, Peppermint Patty, Snoopy, Woodstock, and others. As in the comic strip and the prime-time specials, adults were never pictured; on the Saturday morning show, adult voices were supplied by musical instruments. Lee Mendelson and Bill Melendez, who produced the prime-time programs, also produced this series.

CHARLIE CHAN SYNDICATED

1958 Earl Derr Biggers's fictional sleuth first came to television in this half-hour series starring J. Carrol Naish as Charlie Chan and James Hong as number-one son, Barry. In 1972 the Oriental detective reappeared in cartoon form. See The Amazing Chan and the Chan Clan. The Chan character was based on a Honolulu police detective, Chang Apana.

CHARLIE GRACE ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1995–19 OCTOBER 1995 Predictable crime show starring Mark Harmon as Charlie Grace, a none-too-successful private eye who kept an office at the back of a bar in Los Angeles. Divorced, Charlie struggled to help raise his daughter while assisting his clients. Also featured were Cindy Katz as lawyer Leslie Loeb; Leelee Sobieski as Charlie's twelve-year-old daughter, Jenny; and Robert Costanzo as Artie Crawford, a fellow p.i. who, like Charlie, had also been an L.A. cop.

CHARLIE HOOVER FOX

9 NOVEMBER 1991–2 FEBRUARY 1992 Domestic sitcom about a mild-mannered accountant whose diminutive alter ego appears on his fortieth birthday. With Tim Matheson as Charlie Hoover; Sam Kinison as Hugh, who could be seen and heard only by Charlie; Lucy Webb as Charlie's wife, Helen; Michael Manasseri as their son, Paul; Leslie Engel as their daughter, Emily; Julie Hayden as Charlie's secretary, Doris; and Kevin McCarthy as Charlie's boss, Mr. Culberton. The half-hour series tied with The Best of the Worst as the lowest-rated prime-time series of the season.

CHARLIE ROSE PBS

4 JANUARY 1993– Late-night talk show, hosted by lawyer and former newscaster Charlie Rose, usually featuring a single guest each evening. The series was produced at WNET in New York, and was originally aired on The Learning Channel from January to September 1992.

CHARLIE WILD, PRIVATE DETECTIVE CBS/ABC/DUMONT

22 DECEMBER 1950–27 JUNE 1951 (CBS); 11 SEPTEMBER 1951–4 MARCH 1952 (ABC); 13 MARCH 1952–19 JUNE 1952 (DUMONT) Half-hour crime show starring Kevin O'Morrison, then John McQuade as New York private eye Charlie Wild, with Cloris Leachman as Effie Perrine, his woman Friday. Herbert Brodkin produced the series, and Leonard Valenta directed it.

CHARLIE'S ANGELS ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1976–19 AUGUST 1981 By far the most popular new show of the 1976–1977 season, Charlie's Angels was an hour crime show with enormous visual appeal: three stunning young women who often went braless. The three "Angels" were all police academy graduates who signed on with Charles Townsend Associates, a private detective agency. Featured were Kate Jackson (late of The Rookies) as Sabrina Duncan; former Wella Balsam model Farrah Fawcett-Majors (1976–1977) as Jill Munroe; former Breck girl Jaclyn Smith as Kelly Garrett; David Doyle as John Bosley, their avuncular associate; and John Forsythe as the voice of Charlie Townsend, the Angels' unseen boss, who usually communicated by telephone. In 1977 Farrah Fawcett-Majors decided to leave the series, even though another year remained on her contract. She was replaced by Cheryl Ladd (the then wife of actor David Ladd, she was formerly known as Cheryl Stoppelmoor when she was featured on Search) as Jill's younger sister, Kris Munroe, also a police academy graduate. Cheryl Ladd proved every bit as popular with viewers as Farrah Fawcett-Majors had been; some three million posters of Ladd were sold during the 1977–1978 season. In the spring of 1978 Fawcett-Majors settled her dispute with Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg, the executive producers of the show, by agreeing to appear in six episodes during the 1978–1979 season. Kate Jackson left the show after the third season, and was succeeded by Shelley Hack as Tiffany Welles. Hack lasted only one season herself; Tanya Roberts became the new third Angel, Julie Rogers, in the fall of 1980, the series's final season. A total of 115 episodes were produced. In 1988 Aaron Spelling produced a pilot for an updated version of the series for the Fox network, but the series never made it to the air. Angels '88, as the show was known, would have had four females, rather than three.

THE CHARMINGS ABC

20 MARCH 1987–24 APRIL 1987; 6 AUGUST 1987–11 FEBRUARY 1988 In this fantasy sitcom, the fairy tale characters Snow White and Prince Charming awoke from a spell to find themselves living in modern-day suburbia. Featured were Caitlin O'Heaney (spring 1987) and Carol Huston (August 1987–February 1988) as Snow White; Christopher Rich as her husband, Prince Eric Charming; Judy Parfitt as Snow's wicked stepmother, Queen Lillian, who still managed to cast a mean spell; Cork Hubbert as Luther the dwarf, Snow and Eric's servant, who attended college; Garette Ratliffe as their son Corey; Brandon Call as their son Thomas; Paul Winfield as The Mirror, who talked back to Queen Lillian whenever she consulted him; Paul Eiding as the Charmings' next-door neighbor, carpet salesman Don Miler; and Dori Brenner as Don's wife, Sally. As a promotional gimmick, the producers of The Charmings sent hand-held mirrors to TV critics late in the summer of 1987, heralding the series's upcoming new season; unfortunately, as TV Guide reported, many of the mirrors arrived cracked.

CHASE NBC

THE CHEAP SHOW SYNDICATED

1978 Raucous game show combining Truth or Consequences with Liars Club. Hosted by Dick Martin, the game involved two competing couples and a pair of celebrities. Martin asked a question of the celebrities, one of whom answered correctly, one incorrectly. One member of one couple team then tried to guess which celeb had answered correctly; if the guess proved incorrect, the player's partner was then "punished" with a hosing, pie in the face, or other surefire laugh-getter. Cheap prizes were also given away from time to time by Polly the Prize Lady, and the grand prize award was determined by a rat, Oscar the Wonder Rodent. Chris Bearde and Robert D. Wood were the executive producers.

THE CHEATERS SYNDICATED

1961 John Ireland starred as John Hunter, insurance fraud investigator for the Eastern Insurance Company, in this half-hour adventure series filmed in England. Also featured was Robert Ayres as his associate, Walter Allen.

CHECK IT OUT! USA/SYNDICATED

2 OCTOBER 1985–15 MARCH 1986 (USA); 1986–1988 (SYNDICATED) A weak half-hour sitcom, based on the British series Tripper's Day. With Don Adams as Howard Bannister, manager of Cobb's Supermarket; Jeff Pustil as assistant manager Jack Christian; Dinah Christie as Howard's secretary, Edna Moseley; Kathleen Laskey as checker Marlene; Henry Beckman (1985–1987) as Alf, the security guard; Aaron Schwartz as checker Leslie; Tonya Williams (1985–1987) as checker Jennifer; Simon Reynolds (1985–1987) as stockboy Murray; Jason Warren (1985–1986) as stockboy Marvin; Barbara Hamilton (1985–1986) as Mrs. Cobb; Gordon Clapp (1986–1988) as handyman Viker; and Elizabeth Hanna (1987–1988) as T. C. Collingwood, one of the new owners of the store. Filmed in Toronto, the series was originally seen on Canada's CTV before coming to the United States.

CHECKING IN CBS

9 APRIL 1981–30 APRIL 1981 In this spinoff from The Jeffersons, Marla Gibbs starred as Florence Johnston, who left her position as the Jeffersons' maid to become the executive housekeeper at New York's St. Frederick Hotel. Also featured were Larry Linville as Lyle Block, the manager; Liz Torres as Elena, Florence's assistant; Patrick Collins as Earl, the dimwitted house detective; Robert Costanzo as Hank, the maintenance man; Ruth Brown as Betty, the maid; and Charles Fleischer as Dennis, the bellhop. After a four-week spring tryout, the series was not renewed, and Florence returned to the Jeffersons' employ the next season.

CHECKMATE CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1960–19 SEPTEMBER 1962 The private eyes who comprised Checkmate, Inc., tried not only to solve crimes but also to prevent them. The hour-long series starred Tony George as Don Corey; Doug McClure as young Jed Sills; Sebastian Cabot as Dr. Carl Hyatt, theoretician and criminologist; and Frank Betts (1961–1962) as Chris Devlin. Notable guest appearances included those by Charles Laughton (in "Terror from the East," 7 January 1961, his last TV role) and Cyd Charisse (in "Dance of Death," 22 April 1961, her first TV dramatic role). Checkmate's distinctive title sequence, which featured swirling liquid shapes, was accompanied by theme music composed by John Williams. Williams, of course, was later to score such colossal motion pictures as Star Wars, The Empire Strikes Back, and E.T.

CHEER TELEVISION THEATRE NBC

30 MAY 1954–27 JUNE 1954 This half-hour filmed dramatic anthology series was produced by MCA-TV and sponsored by Procter & Gamble. It was seen only on the West Coast for a time before going coast-to-coast.

CHEERS NBC

30 SEPTEMBER 1982–19 AUGUST 1993 Cheers, a Beacon Street bar in downtown Boston, was the setting for this popular half-hour sitcom. Featured were Ted Danson as its owner, Sam "Mayday" Malone, a former Red Sox pitcher, a reformed alcoholic, and a womanizer; Shelley Long (1982–1987) as Diane Chambers, an overeducated intellectual who took a "temporary" job as a barmaid and gradually got involved with Sam; Nicholas Colasanto (1982–1985) as "Coach" Ernie Pantusso, the thick-skulled ex-Red Sox coach who worked the bar; Rhea Perlman as the acid-tongued waitress Carla Tortelli; George Wendt as beefy Norm Peterson, a beer-guzzling regular; and John Ratzenberger as Cliff Clavin, a postal employee who was also a regular customer. Later additions to the cast included Kelsey Grammer (1984–1993) as Dr. Frasier Crane, a stuffy psychiatrist who dated Diane for a while; Woody Harrelson (1985–1993) as Woody Boyd, the naive new bartender who replaced Coach (Nicholas Colasanto had died in February 1985); and Bebe Neuwirth (1986–1992) as Frasier's new love interest, icy psychiatrist Dr. Lilith Sternin (Sternin and Crane were later married, had a son, and were separated). By the fall of 1987 Diane had finally jilted Sam to pursue her writing career; Sam sold the bar to a conglomerate and started to sail around the world. Unfortunately, his boat sank, and Sam returned to Cheers, this time as just a bartender. Kirstie Alley joined the cast as the new manager, Rebecca Howe, and she and Sam embarked upon a new relationship. Tom Skerritt appeared occasionally during the 1987–1988 season as Rebecca's boss, Evan Drake, for whom Rebecca swooned, and Roger Rees signed on in 1988 as ultrawealthy corporate raider Robin Colcord, who also captured Rebecca's attention; unfortunately, Colcord himself was captured—by federal authorities—and imprisoned for stock-market crimes. By the fall of 1990 Sam had regained ownership of the bar, and Rebecca now worked for him. In the meantime, Carla had married—again. Jay Thomas was occasionally featured between 1987 and 1989 as her ne'er-do-well spouse, Eddie LeBec, a former hockey player who was run over by a Zamboni machine. Woody also got himself a girlfriend; Jackie Swanson joined the cast in 1989 as wealthy Kelly Gaines. She and Woody were married in the spring of 1992.

Cheers narrowly escaped cancellation after its first season. Fortunately, it was allowed to remain on Thursday nights. When The Cosby Show premiered in 1984, the network soon found itself with a powerhouse Thursday lineup. Cheers first entered Nielsen's top five in its fourth season; it remained there for six more years, reaching number one during the 1990–1991 season. In 1992 Ted Danson (who was then earning an estimated $450,000 per episode) announced he would leave the show after the 1992–1993 season. The producers decided not to continue the show without him. The final first-run episode of Cheers was a ninety-six-minute program, aired 20 May 1993, following a twenty-four-minute series retrospective; after a six-year absence, Shelley Long returned for the finale. It was the highest-rated entertainment program of the season. Later that evening most of the cast (many of whom had already been celebrating for a few hours) appeared on the Tonight show, which was broadcast live from the Bull and Finch Pub in Boston, the real-life bar which had inspired the series.

The series was created by Glen Charles, Les Charles, and James Burrows, who had also worked together on Taxi. Its theme, "Where Everybody Knows Your Name," was recorded by Gary Portnoy, who wrote it with Judy Hart Angelo; the song was nominated for an Emmy in 1983. See also Frasier.

CHER CBS

16 FEBRUARY 1975–4 JANUARY 1976 After the divorce and the demise of The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour in 1974, Sonny (Bono) was the first to return to television. His ABC series, The Sonny Comedy Revue, was gone in thirteen weeks. A few weeks later, Cher returned to host this musical variety series; it did well enough to be renewed. Cher kicked off her new series with a special preview broadcast on 12 February; her guests included Elton John, Flip Wilson, and Bette Midler. In January 1976 Cher left the air, returning a month later with Sonny in The Sonny and Cher Show (see that title). Also featured on the Cher show was Gailard Sartain. Executive producer: George Schlatter; producers: Lee Miller, Alan Katz, and Don Reo.

CHESTER THE PUP ABC

7 OCTOBER 1950–30 SEPTEMBER 1951 On this kids' show the adventures of Chester the Pup and his friend Drizzlepuss were sketched onscreen by Sid Stone, as they were narrated by Art Whitefield. The show was originally seen Saturday mornings but switched to Sundays in January.

CHEVROLET SHOWROOM ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1953–12 FEBRUARY 1954 Cesar Romero hosted this half-hour variety show, which featured appearances by guest stars and by the 1954 Chevrolets.

THE CHEVY CHASE SHOW FOX

7 SEPTEMBER 1993–15 OCTOBER 1993 One of the season's biggest debacles, Chevy Chase's one-hour late-night talk show mercifully was axed after only six weeks. Simply put, Chase was not right for the job; the comedy bits were unfunny, and the interviews were awkward. The show was Fox's fourth attempt to establish itself in the late-night arena; the previous efforts—The Late Show Starring Joan Rivers, The Late Show, and The Wilton North Report—had all failed. Following its cancellation, Fox televised reruns of Code 3 and In Living Color for a few weeks before returning the time slot to its local affiliates.

CHEYENNE ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1955–13 SEPTEMBER 1963 One of the first series for TV by Warner Brothers, Cheyenne was introduced during the 1955–1956 season as one segment of Warner Brothers Presents. The hour-long western starred Clint Walker as Cheyenne Bodie, a laconic drifter of mixed descent. During the first season L. Q. Jones was also featured as Smitty, an itinerant mapmaker who accompanied Bodie. Cheyenne was the only one of the Warner Brothers Presents segments to be renewed; during the 1956–1957 season it alternated with Conflict, an anthology series. In its third season (1957–1958) Cheyenne alternated with Sugarfoot, a new Warner Brothers western, and its subsequent history is closely entwined with that of Sugarfoot and a third Warner Brothers western, Bronco. In 1958 Walker walked out of the series, but the show continued; Ty Hardin, as Bronco Layne, starred in the series during the 1958–1959 season, as Cheyenne again alternated with Sugarfoot. By mid-1959 Walker had agreed to return to Cheyenne; meanwhile, Hardin had proved popular enough as Bronco to merit his own series. The problem was solved by making Bronco a separate series, which alternated with Sugarfoot during the 1959–1960 season. During the 1960–1961 season, episodes of Cheyenne, Bronco, and Sugarfoot were all shown under the Cheyenne title, and during the 1961–1962 season Cheyenne and Bronco shows were both aired under the Cheyenne banner. Cheyenne, with Walker alone in the saddle, continued on for another season, leaving the air early in 1963; reruns popped up later that year. See also Bronco; Sugarfoot.

CHICAGO HOPE CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1994– Created by David E. Kelley, this hour medical drama was originally scheduled on Thursdays, directly opposite NBC's new medical drama, ER (which was also set in Chicago). Chicago Hope blinked first, moving to an earlier Thursday timeslot in October, then to a Monday slot in midseason. The series was set at Chicago Hope Hospital, a busy urban medical center. The cast included Adam Arkin as surgeon Aaron Shutt; Roxanne Hart as his wife, nurse Camille Shutt (the marriage was on the ropes); Mandy Patinkin (1994–1995) as Dr. Jeffrey Geiger; E. G. Marshall (1994–1995) as Dr. Arthur Thurmond, whose skills were beginning to deteriorate; Hector Elizondo as chief surgeon Phillip Watters; Peter MacNicol (1994–Fall 1995) as hospital lawyer Alan Birch; Roma Maffia as Angela; Thomas Gibson as Dr. Daniel Nyland; Robyn Lively as nurse Maggie Atkisson; Diane Venora as Dr. Infante; Peter Berg (January 1995– ) as Dr. Billy Kronk; and Vondie Curtis-Hall (February 1995– ) as Dr. Dennis Hancock (coincidentally, Curtis-Hall had guested earlier in the season on ER).

Mandy Patinkin left the series early in the second season. Two new regulars were added: Christine Lahti as Dr. Kathryn Austin, a surgeon, and Jamey Sheridan as Dr. John Sutton, an obstetrician.

CHICAGO JAZZ NBC

26 NOVEMBER 1949–31 DECEMBER 1949 A short-lived program of jazz music, broadcast live from Chicago. The series was also titled Sessions.

CHICAGO STORY NBC

6 MARCH 1982–27 AUGUST 1982 Filmed on location, this ninety-minute series focused on a group of doctors, police officers, and lawyers working in the Windy City. It featured Maud Adams as Dr. Judith Bergstrom; Vincent Baggetta as public defender Lou Pellegrino; Molly Cheek as defense attorney Megan Powers; Dennis Franz as street cop Joe Gilland; Daniel Hugh-Kelly as plainclothes officer Frank Wajorski; Richard Lawson as Wajorski's partner, O. Z. Tate; Craig T. Nelson as state's attorney Kenneth A. Dutton; and Kristoffer Tabori as Dr. Max Carson.

THE CHICAGO SYMPHONY CHAMBER ORCHESTRA ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1951–18 MARCH 1952 A half-hour program of classical music.

THE CHICAGO TEDDY BEARS CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1971–17 DECEMBER 1971 Set at Linc & Latzi's Speakeasy in Chicago during the 1920s, this sitcom was gone in thirteen weeks. With Dean Jones as Linc McCray; John Banner as Uncle Latzi, his partner; Art Metrano as Big Nick Marr, Linc's cousin, a gangster; Huntz Hall (one of the original Bowery Boys) as Dutch, Nick's henchman; Jamie Farr as henchman Duke; Mickey Shaughnessy as henchman Lefty; Mike Mazurki as Julie, Linc's bouncer; and Marvin Kaplan as Marvin, Linc's accountant.

THE CHICAGOLAND MYSTERY PLAYERS (THE CHICAGOLAND PLAYERS) DUMONT

11 SEPTEMBER 1949–23 JULY 1950 Broadcast live from Chicago, this series began as a crime drama, with Gordon Urquhart as criminologist Jeff Hall and Bob Smith as Sergeant Holland. In midseason, the crime format was dropped, and the show became a dramatic anthology series.

CHICKEN SOUP ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1989–7 NOVEMBER 1989 One of the highest-rated new series ever to be canceled in midseason, Chicken Soup was dropped because its ratings weren't high enough. Scheduled immediately after the powerhouse sitcom Roseanne, it couldn't retain enough of its lead-in's viewers—most likely because of its markedly East Coast urban ethnicity; and was canned after only eight airings. The sitcom starred standup comic (and star of the one-man Broadway show The World According to Me) Jackie Mason as New Yorker Jackie Fisher, who quit his job as a pajama salesman after falling in love with an Irish Catholic divorcee. Lynn Redgrave costarred as his love interest, Maddie Peerce, who lived next door and owned his townhouse. Also featured were Rita Karin as Jackie's mom, Bea Fisher; Johnny Pinto as Maddie's son, Donnie; Alisan Porter as Maddie's daughter Molly; Katherine Erbe as Maddie's daughter Patty; and Brandon Maggart as Maddie's brother, Mike.

CHICO AND THE MAN NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1974–21 JULY 1978 A situation comedy set in the barrio of East Los Angeles, Chico and the Man told the story of a salty white garage owner and his Mexican-American employee. It starred Jack Albertson, a former vaudevillian, as cantankerous Ed Brown, the last WASP left in the neighborhood, and young Freddie Prinze as Chico Rodriguez, the optimistic, fast-talking Chicano who convinced Ed to hire him. Although the show was the first series set in a Mexican-American neighborhood, it was criticized by many Chicano organizations because there were no Chicanos in the cast (indeed, few Mexican-Americans were involved in any aspect of television production, despite the fact that the large majority of programs are produced in Los Angeles). Freddie Prinze was of Puerto Rican and Hungarian extraction (a "Hungarican," as he described himself), and José Feliciano, who composed and sang the show's theme, was also of Puerto Rican origin. Additionally, the name "Chico" was considered a derogatory nickname to many Chicanos. To rectify matters, executive producer James Komack soon expanded the cast, adding four new members, including two Mexican-Americans: Isaac Ruiz as Ramon (Mando), Chico's friend, and Rodolfo Hoyos as Rudy, Ed's pal. Also added were Scatman Crothers, a black trouper with fifty years of experience, as Louie Wilson, the garbage collector ("I'm the man who empties your can"), and Bonnie Boland as Mabel, the letter carrier. All but Crothers were gone by the end of the second season. Ronny Graham was seen in 1975–1976 as Reverend Bemis and Della Reese was added in 1976 as Della Rogers, Ed's landlady (she also operated a traveling snack wagon).

Freddie Prinze committed suicide in January 1977, at the age of twenty-two. The young performer had been an overnight success—a high school dropout who first appeared on TV late in 1973, Prinze was the star of a smash hit series less than a year later. Though he played a happy-go-lucky character, Prinze was a troubled young man offstage. In nightclub appearances Prinze often emulated Lenny Bruce, the so-called "sick" comic whose troubles with the law precipitated his death from a drug overdose in 1966. Prinze was briefly engaged to the comic's daughter, Kitty Bruce. Prinze, too, was involved with drugs and was also fascinated by guns. He had remarked to several friends that he did not expect to live to be an old man. On 27 January 1977, a despondent Prinze shot himself in the head; he died two days later.

Despite the tragic death of Prinze, NBC elected to continue the series. In the fall of 1977, twelve-year-old Gabriel Melgar joined the cast as Raul Garcia, a Mexican youngster who sneaked into the trunk of Louie's car when Ed and Louie went fishing in Mexico. Ed proceeded to adopt the boy. Also joining the show was Charo, as Aunt Charo. James Komack, creator of the series, served as its executive producer. Produced by Alan Sacks (1974–1975); Michael Morris (1975–1976) and Ed Scharlach (1975–1976); Jerry Ross (1976–1978) and Charles Stewart (1976–1978).

CHINA BEACH ABC

26 APRIL 1988–8 JUNE 1988; 24 AUGUST 1988–15 DECEMBER 1990; 4 JUNE 1991–22 JULY 1991 China Beach was the second dramatic series of the 1987–1988 season set during the Vietnam War (CBS's Tour of Duty had premiered in September). Creators William Broyles, Jr., and John Sacret Young chose to look at the war through the eyes of the American women who were there. The result was a well-crafted, evocative, and emotional drama. The setting, China Beach, was a U.S. Armed Forces hospital and recreational facility at Da Nang. The cast included Dana Delany as Lieutenant Colleen McMurphy, a nurse; Michael Boatman as Samuel Beckett; Nancy Giles as Armed Forces Radio DJ Frankie Bunsen; Jeff Kober as Dodger; Robert Picardo as Dr. Dick Richard; Concetta Tomei as Major Lila Garreau of Special Services; Brian Wimmer as Boonie Lanier, a lifeguard; Marg Helgenberger as K.C., a self-employed civilian working girl; Chloe Webb (spring 1988) as USO entertainer Laurette Barber; Nan Woods (spring 1988–1989) as Red Cross volunteer Cherry White; Megan Gallagher (fall 1988–1989) as reporter Wayloo Marie Holmes; Ned Vaughn (1989–1990) as Jeff Hyers; and Ricki Lake (1989–1990) as Red Cross volunteer Holly Pelegrino. The series incorporated much period music from the late 1960s: the Supremes' hit "Reflections," was used as the theme. Nancy Sinatra even made a cameo appearance on 8 June 1988, singing her 1966 hit, "These Boots Are Made for Walking." Another effective episode, aired 15 March 1989, incorporated the reminiscences of actual Vietnam veterans around the dramatic scenes. The final episode, set as a 1988 reunion of the characters, incorporated a visit to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C.

28 FEBRUARY 1978–11 APRIL 1978 A prime-time variety hour hosted by game show magnate Chuck Barris. The show featured celebrity guest stars as well as acts originally seen on The Gong Show, the daytime game show created and hosted by Barris.

CHUCK NORRIS KARATE COMMANDOS SYNDICATED

1986 Half-hour cartoon series featuring characters inspired by those played by actor Chuck Norris in various action films.

THE CHUCK WOOLERY SHOW SYNDICATED

1991–1992 Already familiar to daytime audiences as the host of Love Connection, Chuck Woolery also hosted this short-lived hour talk show from Group W Prods.

CIMARRON CITY NBC

11 OCTOBER 1958–26 SEPTEMBER 1959 This hour-long western battled CBS's Have Gun Will Travel and Gunsmoke for one season. It featured George Montgomery as cattleman Matt Rockford, ex-mayor of Cimarron City, Oklahoma; Audrey Totter as Beth Purcell, proprietor of a boardinghouse; and John Smith as blacksmith and Deputy Sheriff Lane Temple. Montgomery's wife—Dinah Shore—guest-starred in one episode ("Cimarron Holiday," 20 December). Norman Jolley and Richard Bartlett were the producers.

CIMARRON STRIP CBS

7 SEPTEMBER 1967–19 SEPTEMBER 1968 Television's third ninety-minute western (following The Virginian and Wagon Train) was the second western set in Oklahoma's Cimarron country. This time there was a range war brewing. With Stuart Whitman as Marshal Jim Crown; Randy Boone as Francis Wilde, a young photographer and part-time deputy; Percy Herbert as MacGregor, another deputy; and Jill Townsend as Dulcey Coopersmith, café owner.

CIRCLE SYNDICATED

1960 Singer Lonnie Sattin hosted this half-hour musical variety series.

CIRCLE OF FEAR NBC

5 JANUARY 1973–22 JUNE 1973 Circle of Fear was the new title given to NBC's Ghost Story, following Sebastian Cabot's departure as its host.

CIRCLE THEATER
See ARMSTRONG CIRCLE THEATER

THE CIRCUIT RIDER ABC
5 MARCH 1951–7 MAY 1951 A filmed religious show presented by America for Christ, Inc., The Circuit Rider featured guests, biographies of evangelists and musical selections. Franklyn W. Dyson produced the series.

CIRCUS! SYNDICATED
1971 Bert Parks hosted this half-hour series, which, like International Showtime, presented European circus acts. The series was filmed on location.

CIRCUS BOY NBC/ABC
23 SEPTEMBER 1956–8 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC); 19 SEPTEMBER 1957–11 SEPTEMBER 1958 (ABC) Children's western from Screen Gems, starring Mickey Braddock as Corky, a youngster whose parents were killed in a high-wire accident; Robert Lowery as Big Tim Champion, the new owner of the circus, and guardian of Corky; Noah Beery, Jr., as Uncle Joey, one of the clowns; and Guinn Williams as Pete, a roustabout. Braddock, later known as Mickey Dolenz (his real name), achieved stardom as one of the Monkees on the show of that title.

CIRCUS TIME ABC
4 OCTOBER 1956–27 JUNE 1957 Circus and novelty acts were featured on this Thursday-night hour-long series hosted by ventriloquist Paul Winchell and his dummy, Jerry Mahoney.

THE CISCO KID SYNDICATED
1950–1955 One of the most durable of television's early westerns, The Cisco Kid began on radio in 1943. The TV version, from Ziv TV, starred Duncan Renaldo as Cisco and Leo Carillo as his jovial sidekick, Pancho. In the eyes of the law, Cisco and Pancho were desperadoes, wanted for unspecified crimes; in the eyes of the poor and downtrodden, the two were do-gooders who often acted where inept and unscrupulous lawmen would not. The producers' decision to film the series in color proved to be a wise one, for Cisco and Pancho were widely seen well into the 1970s. The characters reappeared in a TV-movie which aired 6 February 1994 on TNT; Jimmy Smits played Cisco and Cheech Marin was Pancho.

CITIZEN SOLDIER (THE BIG ATTACK) SYNDICATED
1958 Half-hour anthology series which dramatized true-life incidents during World War II and the Korean conflict. Each episode was narrated by the individual whose exploits were the subject of the drama. Ron Alcorn produced the thirty-nine episodes, which were filmed on location in Germany and used G.I.'s as actors and extras.

CITY CBS
29 JANUARY 1990–16 APRIL 1990; 12 MAY 1990–8 JUNE 1990 Half-hour sitcom starring Valerie Harper as Liz Gianni, city manager of a large but unnamed metropolis, with Lu Anne Ponce as Penny, her nineteen-year-old daughter; Stephen Lee as Ken Resnick, the sleazy deputy mayor; Todd Susman as Roger Barnett, Liz's assistant; Mary Jo Keenen as Gloria, the city's social coordinator; Sam Lloyd as snoopy stenographer Lance Armstrong; Tyra Farrell as Wanda, Liz's secretary; James Lorinz as police officer Victor Sloboda; and Liz Torres as Anna Maria. The series was originally scheduled on Mondays, directly opposite NBC's The Hogan Family, which had started life in 1986 as Valerie, starring none other than Valerie Harper. Coincidentally, the scheduling setup also meant that City costar Lu Anne Ponce was appearing directly opposite her brother Danny Ponce, who played one of the kids on The Hogan Family.

CITY DETECTIVE SYNDICATED
1953 Rod Cameron starred as Lieutenant Bart Grant, tough New York cop, in this half-hour crime show. Late in 1953 Variety noted that the series had been sold to 171 stations, a record at the time.

CITY HOSPITAL ABC/CBS
3 NOVEMBER 1951–19 APRIL 1952 (ABC); 25 MARCH 1952–1 OCTOBER 1953 One of TV's first medical shows, City Hospital starred Melville Ruick as Dr. Barton Crane, New York City physician. A real-life drama forced the cancellation of one episode, scheduled for 30 June 1953. During rehearsal that afternoon a man burst into the studio, stabbed a camera operator, and shattered a pitcher over the head of one of the actors. The half-hour series was telecast biweekly. On ABC it was seen Saturday afternoons, on CBS in prime time.

CITY OF ANGELS NBC
3 FEBRUARY 1976–10 AUGUST 1976 Inspired by the film Chinatown, this private eye series was set in Los Angeles during the 1930s. It featured Wayne Rogers (formerly of *M*A*S*H*) as Jake Axminster; Clifton Jones as Lieutenant Murray Quint; Elaine Joyce as Marsha, Jake's secretary; Timmie Rogers as Lester; and Philip Sterling as Michael Brimm. Executive producer: Jo Swerling, Jr. Produced by Philip DeGuere, Jr., and William F. Phillips.

CITYKIDS ABC
18 SEPTEMBER 1993–12 FEBRUARY 1994 On this live action Saturday morning program from Jim Henson Productions, a multi-ethnic septet of youths, assisted by two Muppets named Trish and Toya, embarked on various urban adventures. The cast included Brad Stoll as David; Cynthia Cartagena as Angelica; Renoly Santiago as Tito; Hassan Elgendi as Chris or "Snoopy"; Diana Smith as Nikki; Anne Ho as Susan; and Dule Hill as John.

THE CIVIL WAR PBS
23 SEPTEMBER 1990–27 SEPTEMBER 1990 Ken Burns's moving documentary on the American Civil War proved to be the highest-rated series in PBS's history. Burns skillfully wove contemporary still photographs, modern-day cinematography, new recordings of period music, sound effects, and readings into an eleven-hour saga, which PBS shrewdly decided to air on consecutive nights. David McCullough narrated the series. Other voices included those of Sam Waterston (as Abraham Lincoln), Morgan Freeman (Frederick Douglass), Jason Robards (U. S. Grant), and Julie Harris (Mary Chesnut).

CIVIL WARS ABC
20 NOVEMBER 1991–2 MARCH 1993; 3 AUGUST 1993–10 AUGUST 1993 Hour dramatic series about domestic relations attorneys, created by William M. Finkelstein for Steven Bochco Productions. The cast included Mariel Hemingway as Sydney Guilford; Peter Onorati as her new law partner, Charlie Howell; Alan Rosenberg as her former partner, Eli Levinson; and Debi Mazar as the secretary, Denise Iannello. The series attracted some notoriety for one episode, "Grin and Bare It" (30 September 1992), in which Guilford agreed to pose nude for a photographer; the viewing audience saw most of Mariel Hemingway's backside. In the fall of 1993, following Civil Wars's cancellation, Rosenberg and Mazar (and their characters) moved to L.A. Law.

CLASS OF '96 FOX
19 JANUARY 1993–25 MAY 1993 The campus of Havenhurst College was the setting of this dramatic series. With Jason Gedrick as David Morrissey, the track star; Perry Moore as the black student, Antonio Hopkins; Brandon Douglas as the rich guy, Whitney Reed; Megan Ward as Patty Horvath, the dramatic hopeful; Kari Wuhrer as her slutty roommate, Robin Farr; Lisa Dean Ryan as the third roommate, Jessica Cohen, the rich girl; and Gale Hansen as Sam (Stroke) Dexter, the computer nerd. The hour show was filmed in Toronto.

CLASSIC CONCENTRATION

CLAUDIA (CLAUDIA, THE STORY OF A MARRIAGE) NBC/CBS
6 JANUARY 1952–23 MARCH 1952 (NBC); 31 MARCH 1952–30 JUNE 1952 (CBS) This situation comedy was based on Rose Franken's stories about a young woman and her romance. With Joan McCracken as newlywed Claudia Naughton; Hugh Reilly as her husband, David Naughton, an architect; and Margaret Wycherly as Mrs. Brown, Claudia's mother.

THE CLEAR HORIZON CBS
11 JULY 1960–10 MARCH 1961; 26 FEBRUARY 1962–11 JUNE 1962 This soap opera attempted to capitalize on the topicality of the space age; it told the story of astronauts and their families. The Clear Horizon was the first daytime serial to originate from Hollywood and was also one of the few programs to reappear after its original cancellation. The cast included Ed Kemmer as Captain Roy Selby; Phyllis Avery as his wife, Ann; Craig Curtis; Denise Alexander as Lois; Jimmy Carter (the actor, not the president); Lee Meriwether; Ted Knight; William Roerick as Colonel Adams; Rusty Lane as Sergeant Moseby; and William Allyn as Frank.

CLEGHORNE! WB
10 SEPTEMBER 1995–24 DECEMBER 1995 Half-hour sitcom starring Ellen Cleghorne (late of Saturday Night Live) as Ellen Carlson, a single mom who was co-owner of a small TV commercial production business; to her consternation, her parents moved into a neighboring apartment in Ellen's New York neighborhood. The cast also included Garrett Morris as Ellen's father, Sidney, a postal worker; Alaina Reed Hall as her mother, Lena; Steve Bean as her business partner, Brad; Cerita Monet Bickelmann as her young daughter, Akeyla; Michael Ralph as her ex-husband, Tyrell; and Sherri Shepherd as her empty-headed sister, Victoria.

THE CLIENT CBS
17 SEPTEMBER 1995– Set in Atlanta, this hour dramatic show was inspired by John Grisham's best-selling novel (the series' full title was John Grisham's The Client) which was made into a 1994 movie. JoBeth Williams starred as lawyer Regina "Reggie" Love, whose specialty was family law and whose own family life was a shambles; a recovering alcoholic, she was embroiled in a bitter custody dispute with her ex-husband. Also featured were John Heard as district attorney Roy Fortrigg; Polly Holliday as Momma Love, with whom Reggie lived; David Barry Gray as Clint McGuire, Reggie's young assistant; and Ossie Davis (who also appeared in the movie) as Judge Harry Roosevelt. Occasionally featured was William Converse-Roberts as Reggie's ex, Gus Cardoni, a physician.

THE CLIFF EDWARDS SHOW CBS
23 MAY 1949–19 SEPTEMBER 1949 Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards hosted this fifteen-minute musical series seen on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays after the network news (sometimes the show was only ten minutes long, preceding the five-minute Ruthie on the Telephone). Edwards is better known to the public as the voice of Jiminy Cricket in Walt Disney films.

CLIFFHANGERS NBC
27 FEBRUARY 1979–1 MAY 1979 An unusual prime-time program, Cliffhangers presented chapters from three continuing serials each week. The first (and only) three offerings were: "Stop Susan Williams," with Susan Anton as Susan Williams, a news photographer investigating the mysterious death of her brother; "The Secret Empire," a science fiction western with Geoffrey Scott as Marshal Jim Donner, a frontier lawman who accidentally stumbles on a futuristic subterranean society, and Diane Markoff and Stepfanie Kramer as Tara, leader of the secret empire; "The Curse of Dracula," with Michael Nouri as the five-hundred-year-old vampire who turns up teaching night courses in history at South Bay College in California, Stephen Johnson as Kurt von Helsing, and Carol Baxter as Mary. Executive producer: Kenneth Johnson for Universal TV.

CLIMAX CBS

7 OCTOBER 1954–26 JUNE 1958 This hour-long dramatic anthology series began as a live show but soon switched to film. It was cohosted by William Lundigan and Mary Costa. Presentations included: Raymond Chandler's "The Long Goodbye," with Dick Powell (as Philip Marlowe), Cesar Romero, and Teresa Wright (7 October 1954); Ian Fleming's "Casino Royale," with Barry Nelson (the first person to play James Bond), Linda Christian, and Peter Lorre (21 October 1954); "The Great Impersonation," with Zsa Zsa Gabor (10 March 1955; her first TV dramatic role); "Fear Strikes Out," with Tab Hunter (as baseball player Jimmy Pearsall; 18 August 1955); "Edge of Terror" with Tom Laughlin (11 September 1955; the first major TV role for Laughlin, later the star of the Billy Jack films). Climax shared a time slot with Shower of Stars, which was seen every fourth week (see also that title).

THE CLOCK NBC/ABC

16 MAY 1949–31 AUGUST 1951 (NBC); 17 OCTOBER 1951–9 JANUARY 1952 (ABC) An anthology series of half-hour suspense dramas, The Clock was seen sporadically for three seasons. It was derived from the radio show which began in 1946.

A CLOSER LOOK NBC

28 JANUARY 1991–19 MARCH 1993 A rarity in modern daytime television, A Closer Look was a half-hour public affairs series that examined topical issues. Faith Daniels hosted, and other NBC news personnel contributed.

CLUB MTV MTV

31 AUGUST 1987–14 MARCH 1992 Weekday dance show, broadcast from the Palladium in New York City, hosted by MTV veejay Julie Brown. The series shifted to weekends in 1991.

CLUB OASIS NBC

28 SEPTEMBER 1957–6 SEPTEMBER 1958 This biweekly variety series, set in a nightclub, alternated with The Polly Bergen Show. Each program was hosted by a different guest star until 7 June, when bandleader Spike Jones took over as permanent host. Other summer regulars included Helen Grayco, Doodles Weaver, Phil Gray, George Rock, Gil Bernal, and Jad Paul.

CLUB SEVEN ABC

12 AUGUST 1948–17 MARCH 1949; 11 SEPTEMBER 1950–28 SEPTEMBER 1951 One of the first programs broadcast from ABC's New York studios, Club Seven was a weekly half-hour variety show during the 1948–1949 season, when it was hosted by Johnny Thompson (the show was titled Thompson's Talent Show during its early weeks). Tony Bavaar took over as host when the show was revived as a Monday-through-Friday-evening entry during the 1950–1951 season.

CLUB 60 NBC
18 FEBRUARY 1957–27 SEPTEMBER 1957

THE HOWARD MILLER SHOW NBC
30 SEPTEMBER 1957–10 JANUARY 1958 A daytime variety hour broadcast live and in color from Chicago, Club 60 featured vocalists Mike Douglas, Nancy Wright, and the Mello-Larks. Don Sherwood was the first host, but he was succeeded in March by Dennis James. By late summer Howard Miller took over as host, and late in September the show's title was changed to The Howard Miller Show. Music on both programs was supplied by the NBC Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Gallicchio.

CLUE CLUB CBS
14 AUGUST 1976–3 SEPTEMBER 1977; 10 SEPTEMBER 1978–21 JANUARY 1979 Two bloodhounds, Woofer and Wimper, and a group of teenage sleuths—D.D., Dotty, Larry, and Pepper—were the main characters on this Hanna-Barbera cartoon show.

COACH ABC
28 FEBRUARY 1989–7 JUNE 1989; 21 NOVEMBER 1989– Half-hour sitcom starring Craig T. Nelson as divorcé Hayden Fox, the football coach at Minnesota State University; Jerry Van Dyke as Luther Van Dam, assistant coach of the Screaming Eagles; Clare Carey as Hayden's daughter, Kelly, whom he hadn't seen for sixteen years until she enrolled at MSU; Shelley Fabares as Hayden's lady friend, newscaster Christine Armstrong; Bill Fagerbakke as student assistant Dauber Dybinski; and Kris Kamm (1989–fall 1991) as Stuart Rosebrock, who married Kelly in the fall of 1989 (they were divorced in 1991). After a successful trial run in the spring of 1989, Coach returned to ABC's schedule as a replacement for Chicken Soup. After an on-again, off-again romance, a lengthy courtship, and aborted wedding ceremonies, Hayden and Christine finally got married in 1993. That fall Christine became host of a local TV talk show, and Kelly landed a job in New York (Clare Carey no longer appeared regularly on the series). Ken Kimmins, who had been featured occasionally in previous seasons, had become a regular as athletic director Howard Burleigh. Other semi-regulars included Pam Stone (1989–1994) as women's basketball coach Judy Watkins, who became Dauber's girlfriend; Georgia Engel as Howard's wife, Shirley; and Rita Taggart (1994–1995) as Luther's girlfriend, Ruthanne. In the fall of 1995 Hayden, Christine, Luther, and Dauber left Minnesota for Florida, where Hayden became the coach of the Orlando Breakers, a new pro team. Katherine Helmond joined the cast as Doris, the team's owner.

CODE R CBS
21 JANUARY 1977–10 JUNE 1977 An unimaginative imitation of NBC's Emergency!, Code R was a midseason replacement for Spencer's Pilots, the unlucky occupant of CBS's least successful time slot, Fridays at 8:00 P.M. Code R featured James Houghton as Rick Wilson, chief of the Channel Island fire and rescue unit; Marty Kove as George Baker, unit member; Tom Simcox as Walt Robinson, the island police chief; Susanne Reed as Suzy, the dispatcher and office manager; W. T. Zacha as Harry; Ben Davidson as Ted Milbank; and Robbie Rundle as Bobby Robinson, Walt's young son. Edwin Self produced the hour series for Warner Brothers.

CODE RED ABC
1 NOVEMBER 1981–28 MARCH 1982 An hour adventure series about a family of firefighters. With Lorne Greene as arson investigator Joe Rorchek; Julie Adams as his wife, Ann Rorchek; Andrew Stevens as their son Ted, a firefighter; Sam J. Jones as their son Chris, a helicopter pilot; Martina Deignan as Haley Green; Adam Rich as young Danny Blake; and Jack Lindine as Al Martelli. Broadcast Sundays at 7 P.M., the series was aimed mainly at children, and failed to dent the ratings of its CBS competitor, 60 Minutes.

CODE 3 SYNDICATED

1957 This half-hour crime show was ostensibly based on actual case histories. It was hosted by Richard Travis, who appeared as Assistant Sheriff Barnett; as Barrett explained, "Code 3" meant "get there fast." Additional authenticity was imparted to the series by the appearance of Eugene W. Biscailuz, then sheriff of Los Angeles County, at the conclusion of most episodes.

CODE 3 FOX

11 April 1992–23 July 1993 The second series of this title was a reality-based show hosted by Gil Gerard. Boasting that it used "no actors [and] no reenactments," it presented video footage of actual rescue attempts.

CODENAME: FOXFIRE NBC

27 January 1985–22 March 1985 This hour action series featuring a trio of female agents who took their orders from a male boss was obviously inspired by Charlie's Angels: even NBC admitted as much, advertising the trio in its promos as "the hottest team of hellcats since you-know-who!" The show starred Joanna Cassidy as Liz "Foxfire" Towne, a former CIA agent who formed the trio to undertake special assignments from the U.S. government; Sheryl Lee Ralph as Maggie Bryan, safecracker and combat expert; Robin Johnson as Danny O'Toole, the trio's designated driver; and John McCook as their boss, Larry Hutchins, the president's brother. Sheryl Lee Ralph attempted to downplay the inevitable comparisons to Charlie's Angels in a TV Guide interview, explaining that "We're trying to make it more believable and real." Following a two-hour TV-movie premiere, six episodes were televised.

CO-ED FEVER CBS

4 February 1979 A hapless half-hour sitcom, Co-Ed Fever was pulled from CBS's schedule after its only showing, a special preview following the telecast of the movie Rocky. Set at Baxter College, an Eastern women's school which recently admitted men, it featured David Keith as Tucker Davis; Alexa Kenin as Maria (Mousie); Christopher S. Nelson as Doug, a wealthy chap; Cathryn O'Neil as Elizabeth; Michael Pasternak as the zany Gobo; Tacey Philips as Hope; Heather Thomas as Sandi; and Jane Rose as Mrs. Selby, the housemother at Brewster House. Martin Ransohoff was the executive producer for Ransohoff Productions. CBS chose a new sitcom, Billy, to replace Co-Ed Fever in its midseason lineup.

COKE TIME NBC

29 April 1953–22 February 1957 Eddie Fisher, a pop star of the early 1950s who later made headlines when he married Debbie Reynolds, then Elizabeth Taylor, hosted this fifteen-minute musical series which was seen Wednesdays and Fridays before the news. Singer Jaye P. Morgan appeared frequently. Fisher's backup group was known as the Echoes: Ralph Brewster, Marilyn Jackson, Norma Zimmer, and Don Williams (Zimmer was later a featured vocalist on The Lawrence Welk Show). Coca-Cola sponsored the series.

THE COLBYS ABC

20 November 1985–26 March 1987 Trying to match the success of Dallas in generating a popular spinoff serial (Knots Landing), the producers of Dynasty spawned this series, which was formally titled Dynasty II: The Colbys in its early weeks. The major characters were introduced on the first few episodes of Dynasty during the fall of 1985, after which The Colbys went its own way as a separate series. Set in Los Angeles, its central characters were the members of the family of one of Dynasty's main characters, Jeff Colby. Principal players included: Charlton Heston as corporate magnate Jason Colby, Jeff's father (by an out-of-wedlock union); Stephanie Beacham as his wife, Sable Scott Colby; Katharine Ross as Francesca, Sable's sister (and Jeff's mother); Barbara Stanwyck (1985–1986) as Jason's sister, Constance Colby; Tracy Scoggins as Jason and Sable's older daughter, Monica; Maxwell Caulfield as their son, Miles; Claire Yarlett as their younger daughter, Bliss; Emma Samms as Fallon

Carrington, who married Miles, and later, Jeff Colby (Fallon was thought to have been killed on Dynasty, but was resurrected for this series); Ken Howard (1985–1986) as Garrett Boydston; Joseph Campanella (1985–1986) as Hutch Corrigan; Ricardo Montalban as Zachary Powers; Charles Van Eman (1985–1986) as Sean McAlister; Kim Morgan Greene (1986–1987) as Channing Carter; James Houghton (1986–1987) as Senator Cash Cassidy; Shanna Reed (1986–1987) as Adrienne Cassidy; and Michael Parks as Jason's brother, Phillip Colby. In one of the most implausible cliffhangers ever concocted on any of the prime-time serials, The Colbys wrapped up its second, and final, season, with Fallon being abducted by a UFO. Fortunately for Dynasty fans, she showed up safe and sound on the latter series in the fall. Although it had been expected that there would be interaction between the main characters of Dynasty and The Colbys, in fact there was little, except for the characters of Jeff and Fallon. Joan Collins (Dynasty's Alexis) was particularly perturbed by the existence of the new series, and, according to TV Guide, urged her cohorts to have nothing to do with it.

THE COLGATE COMEDY HOUR — NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1950–25 DECEMBER 1955 This Sunday-evening variety hour competed successfully with The Ed Sullivan Show for its first four seasons. Most shows were comedy-variety hours with guest hosts—Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis appeared dozens of times, and Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope, Donald O'Connor, Jimmy Durante, and Fred Allen also appeared frequently. A few comedy plays and musicals were also televised, such as "Roberta," with Gordon MacRae (10 April 1955). In the fall of 1955 the show was retitled The Colgate Variety Hour; when Colgate dropped its sponsorship in midseason, the show continued as The NBC Comedy Hour (see also that title).

COLGATE THEATER — NBC

3 JANUARY 1949–25 JUNE 1950 Half-hour dramatic anthology series.

COLISEUM — CBS

26 JANUARY 1967–1 JUNE 1967 A compendium of European and American circus acts, Coliseum was hosted by a different guest star each week. The series was a midseason replacement for Jericho.

THE COLLEGE BOWL — ABC

2 OCTOBER 1950–26 MARCH 1951 This little-known half-hour variety series was hosted by Chico Marx, who appeared as the operator of the College Bowl, a campus hangout. Andy Williams was also featured on the series.

COLLEGE BOWL — CBS/NBC/DISNEY

4 JANUARY 1959–16 JUNE 1963 (CBS); 22 SEPTEMBER 1963–14 JUNE 1970 (NBC); 13 SEPTEMBER 1987–20 DECEMBER 1987 (DISNEY) Each week two four-member teams from America's colleges and universities competed on this fast-paced quiz show; by answering "toss-up" and multiple-part questions the teams amassed points. The winning school was awarded $1,500 in scholarship funds (and the right to return the following week), the losing school $500 in funds. General Electric sponsored the series, which was hosted by Allen Ludden (1959–1962) and Robert Earle (1962–1970); Jack Cleary was the producer. On 23 May 1984 NBC aired a prime-time special "The 30th Anniversary College Bowl National Championship," hosted by Pat Sajak. Dick Cavett hosted the Disney version, which was titled College Bowl '87.

COLLEGE MAD HOUSE — SYNDICATED

1989–1990 College Bowl it wasn't. This half-hour weekly series pitted two four-member teams from different colleges against each other in a battle of stunts and games. The winning team then tried to tackle an obstacle course. Greg Kinnear was the host, Donna Wilson and Richard McGregor the referees.

COLLEGE OF MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE (KAY KYSER'S KOLLEGE OF MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE) NBC

1 DECEMBER 1949–28 DECEMBER 1950; 4 JULY 1954–12 SEPTEMBER 1954 This popular radio giveaway program came twice to television. The first version was hosted by Kay Kyser ("The Old Perfesser"), who began the show on radio in 1938. Attired in cap and gown, Kyser required contestants to identify songs played by the band and to answer true-false questions incorrectly ("That's wrong, you're right!"). Assisting Kyser was mop-topped Mervyn Bogue, better known to audiences as Ish Kabibble; Mike Douglas was one of the show's featured vocalists. After a four-year absence, the show reappeared in the summer of 1954 with Tennessee Ernie Ford as host; it was then called simply College of Musical Knowledge. Assisting Ford were three "cheerleaders": Donna Brown, Spring Mitchell, and Maureen Cassidy.

COLLEGE PRESS CONFERENCE ABC

11 OCTOBER 1954–20 NOVEMBER 1960 Ruth Geri Hagy moderated this half-hour public affairs program on which a panel of college students questioned a newsmaker. During its first season the show was seen Monday nights; thereafter, it was relegated to Sunday afternoons.

COLONEL HUMPHREY FLACK (THE FABULOUS FRAUD) DUMONT/SYNDICATED

7 OCTOBER 1953–2 JULY 1954 (DUMONT); 1958–1959 (SYNDICATED) This half-hour situation comedy was based on the stories by Everett Rhodes Castle about a modern-day Robin Hood whose specialty was swindling swindlers. The pilot for the series was shown on Plymouth Playhouse. Alan Mowbray starred as Colonel Humphrey Flack, and Frank Jenks was featured as his sidekick, Uthas P. (Patsy) Garvey. A similar story line was later used in such series as The Rogues and Switch. The thirty-nine stories were produced twice: once for DuMont, where most episodes were done live, and once for syndication five years later, when all were filmed.

COLONEL MARCH SYNDICATED

1954 This British detective series starred Boris Karloff as Colonel March, a Scotland Yard sleuth who wore an eyepatch.

COLT .45 ABC

18 OCTOBER 1957–20 SEPTEMBER 1960 Half-hour western starring Wayde Preston as government agent Christopher Colt, son of the inventor of the famous Colt revolver. Donald May replaced Preston as Christopher's cousin, Sam Colt, Jr., and was in turn replaced when Preston returned to the series early in 1960.

COLUMBO NBC/ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1971–1 SEPTEMBER 1978 (NBC); 6 FEBRUARY 1989–28 JULY 1990 (ABC) Peter Falk starred as Columbo, a nonviolent police lieutenant with no first name, in this popular segment of The NBC Mystery Movie. Most shows followed the same formula. The crime (usually murder most foul) was committed at the outset, and the viewing audience learned the identity of the culprit. The fun came from watching Columbo pursue his investigation; his beguilingly inept manner and disheveled appearance often led the villain to underestimate his adversary. It was clear from the questions he asked that Columbo was nobody's fool; by the conclusion of each ninety-minute or two-hour episode, he had snared his quarry. By 1975 Falk was reportedly earning $125,000 per episode, thus ranking him as one of the highest-paid regular performers on television. No new *Columbo*s were shown during the 1976–1977 season, but four were scheduled for the 1977–1978 season. Created by Richard Levinson and William Link, the character first appeared in one segment of The Sunday Mystery Hour, a summer anthology series aired in 1960 and 1961. In that segment, broadcast 13 August 1961 and titled "Enough Rope," Lieutenant Columbo was played by Bert Freed. Levinson and Link subsequently incorporated the character into a play, "Prescription: Murder," which featured Thomas Mitchell as Columbo. The script was then submitted to Universal Studios, which expressed interest in it. Lee J. Cobb and Bing Crosby were considered for the role, but were unavailable, and Falk was finally selected. The TV version of "Prescription: Murder" was shown on 20 February 1968; a second TV movie, "Ransom for a Dead Man," was aired 1 March 1971. Levinson and Link noted in their entertaining book, Stay Tuned, that Falk wore the same suit, shirt, tie, and shoes for the entire run of the series, thereby keeping the star's wardrobe costs to an almost absolute minimum. After a decade-long hiatus, Peter Falk returned as Columbo in 1990; the new episodes, now two hours in length, were shown as one segment of The ABC Monday Mystery Movie (later The ABC Saturday Mystery Movie). A few Columbo shows were telecast irregularly thereafter. In the fall of 1992 Columbo actually acquired a new raincoat, his first in almost twenty-five years. The garment, however, had been carefully weathered to resemble the old one. See also Kate Loves a Mystery.

COMBAT ABC

2 OCTOBER 1962–29 AUGUST 1967 The longest-running of the several World War II dramas of the 1960s, Combat outlived such rivals as The Gallant Men, The Rat Patrol, Twelve O'Clock High, Jericho, Convoy, and Garrison's Gorillas. Set in Europe, it told the story of one platoon and featured Vic Morrow as Sergeant Chip Saunders; Rick Jason as Lieutenant Gil Hanley; Dick Peabody as Littlejohn; Pierre Jalbert as Caje; Steven Rogers (1962–1963) and Conlan Carter (1963–1967) as Doc; Jack Hogan as "Wild Man" Kirby; and Tom Lowell (1963–1967) as Nelson. Gene Levitt produced the series.

COMBAT SERGEANT ABC

29 JUNE 1956–27 SEPTEMBER 1956 One of the first series set during World War II, Combat Sergeant blended actual footage from the North African campaign with dramatic action. Featured were Michael Thomas as Sergeant Nelson; Cliff Clark as General Harrison; Bill Slack as Lieutenant Kruger; and Mara Corday as Corporal Harbin of the WACs.

COME CLOSER ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1954–13 DECEMBER 1954 Half-hour game show, played for laughs. Ventriloquist Jimmy Nelson was the host, assisted by his puppets Danny O'Day, Humphrey Higby, and Farful. The series was not carried regularly by the network's New York affiliate.

COMEBACK SYNDICATED

1979 Like The Comeback Story, ABC's 1953 series, this half-hour show presented biographies of people who had faced and overcome great adversities in their lives. James Whitmore was the host.

THE COMEBACK STORY ABC

2 OCTOBER 1953–5 FEBRUARY 1954 George Jessel first hosted this series which resembled This Is Your Life. The Comeback Story highlighted dramatic moments from the lives of its guests, all of whom were once-famous personalities. Arlene Francis later hosted the show.

COMEDY BREAK SYNDICATED

1985 Half-hour potpourri of skits, monologues, and interviews with comedians and other funny people, cohosted by Mack Dryden and Jamie Alcroft.

THE COMEDY FACTORY ABC

21 JUNE 1985–9 AUGUST 1985 On this half-hour summer series, a resident repertory company, working with a different guest star each week, presented a sitcom. Seven of the eight scripts were from unsold pilot series. The repertory players included Geoff Bowes, Susan Hogan, Mary Long, Mary Ann McDonald, Derek McGrath, and Denis Simpson.

THE COMEDY SHOP SYNDICATED

1978–1980 Norm Crosby hosted this half-hour series, a showcase for standup comics, known and unknown. Paul Roth was the executive producer.

COMEDY THEATRE ABC

11 OCTOBER 1949–20 NOVEMBER 1949 An experimental anthology series of six comedies produced by Arch Oboler, the playwright and writer who was active in radio. The series was first seen locally on 23 September over KECA-TV, Los Angeles.

COMEDY TONIGHT CBS

5 JULY 1970–23 AUGUST 1970 A summer replacement for The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, this hour comedy-variety series was hosted by Robert Klein and produced in part by Shelley Berman, a prominent stand-up comic of the early 1960s. Regulars included Marty Barris, Peter Boyle, Barbara Cason, MacIntyre Dixon, Boni Enten, Judy Graubart, Laura Greene, Madeline Kahn, Jerry Lacy, and Lynn Lipton.

COMEDY TONIGHT SYNDICATED

1985 A half hour of stand-up comics, hosted (and coproduced) by Bill Boggs.

COMEDY ZONE CBS

17 AUGUST 1984–7 SEPTEMBER 1984 A short-lived, New York-based summer comedy hour consisting of skits performed by guest stars and the regulars: Joe Mantegna, Audrie J. Neenan, Bob Gunton, Bill Randolph, and Mark Linn-Baker.

COMEDYWORLD (DEAN MARTIN'S COMEDYWORLD) NBC

6 JUNE 1974–15 AUGUST 1974 Comedyworld, a summer replacement for The Dean Martin Comedy Hour, was a showcase for comics, known and unknown. Most segments were videotaped on location in various clubs. Jackie Cooper hosted the hour show, which also featured Nipsey Russell and Barbara Feldon as roving "Comedy Correspondents."

COMIC STRIP LIVE (COMIC STRIP LATE NIGHT) (THE SUNDAY COMICS) FOX

12 AUGUST 1989–15 JANUARY 1994 An hour of standup comedy, taped at the Comic Strip in Los Angeles, and hosted by John Mulrooney (1989), then by Gary Kroeger. The program began as a local show in Los Angeles in July 1988. It was offered to Fox's owned-and-operated stations in the fall of that year, before going to all of Fox's affiliates a year later. When Fox added a second hour of prime-time standup comedy in November 1990, Comic Strip Live moved from Saturday to Sunday nights; it was now taped on location across the country, and featured a guest host each week. The Sunday program was retitled Comic Strip Prime Time early in 1991, and ran until 21 April of that year. The Kroeger-hosted broadcasts continued on Saturdays, but with a new title, Comic Strip Late Night. Wayne Kotter succeeded Kroeger as host in January 1991, and on 27 April of that year the Saturday show resumed use of the Comic Strip Live title. On 28 April a new Sunday comedy hour appeared, replacing Comic Strip Prime Time. Entitled The Sunday Comics, it featured standup acts as well as other comedy presentations. It was hosted briefly by Jeff Altman, then by Lenny Clarke, and then by various guest hosts through 29 March 1992.

COMING OF AGE CBS

15 MARCH 1988–29 MARCH 1988; 24 OCTOBER 1988–21 NOVEMBER 1988; 29 JUNE 1989–27 JULY 1989 An Arizona retirement community, The Dunes, was the setting of this half-hour sitcom, with Paul Dooley and Phyllis Newman as Dick and Ginny Hale, a Pittsburgh couple who had just moved in; Alan Young and Glynis Johns as Ed and Trudie Pepper, who loved the place; Kevin Pollak as the director, Brian Brinker; Pearl Shear as Marvel; Lenore Woodward as Wilma, Brinker's assistant; and Ruta Lee as Pauline, who still had eyes for the male residents of The Dunes. Nada Despotovich was occasionally seen as the Hales' adult daughter, Cindy. The comedy team of Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding), in one of their last TV appearances together, guested on 14 November 1988.

COMMAND POST CBS

14 FEBRUARY 1950–4 APRIL 1950 Of the many shows which did battle with NBC's Milton Berle on Tuesday nights, Command Post was among the most unusual—the hour-long show was an experiment conducted by the United States Army to train reservists.

COMMANDO CODY NBC

16 JULY 1955–8 OCTOBER 1955 This Saturday-morning outer space show starred Judd Holdren as Commando Cody, Sky Marshal of the Universe, and Aline Towne as Joan Albright, his assistant. Cody usually did battle with the Ruler (played by Gregory Gay), whose home base was on Saturn. Commando Cody should not be confused with Commander Corry of Space Patrol (see also that title).

COMMENT NBC

14 JUNE 1954–9 AUGUST 1954; 13 APRIL 1958–10 AUGUST 1958; 24 JANUARY 1971–10 SEPTEMBER 1972 Comment first surfaced during the summer of 1954 as a Monday-night series on which NBC news reporters commented on topical issues. The 1958 version of the series was more erudite, featuring discussions with luminaries such as Arnold J. Toynbee and Aldous Huxley (the 1958 dates listed above are those of Comment's Sunday-afternoon run; the show had previously been aired as a "filler" program after the conclusion of NBC's Friday-night boxing telecasts). The 1971–1972 version of Comment was again seen on Sundays; hosted by Edwin Newman, it featured interviews with newsmakers.

THE COMMISH ABC

28 SEPTEMBER 1991–20 MAY 1995 Michael Chiklis starred in this hour crime show as Tony Scali, the unorthodox, hands-on police commissioner of Eastbridge, New York. Other regulars included Theresa Saldana as his wife, Rachel; Kaj-Erik Eriksen as their teenage son, David (Tony and Rachel had a baby, Sarah, in late 1992); Geoffrey Nauffts (1991–1994) as Detective Stan Kelly, who was killed in action; Alex Bruhanski (1991–1992) as Irv Wallerstein, chief of detectives; Nicholas Lea (1991–1993) as Officer Ricky Caruso; Gina Belafonte (1991–1993) as Officer Carmela Pagan, Caruso's partner; David Paymer (1991–1992) as Tony's live-in brother-in-law, Arnie Metzger; Phil Peters (1991–1992; he was Theresa Saldana's husband in real life) as Sergeant William Frawley; John Cygan (1991–1992; 1994–1995) as Detective Paulie Pentangeli; Melinda McGraw (1992–1994) as Detective Cyd Madison; Jason Schombing (1994–1995) as Detective Lopez; and Ian Tracey (1994–1995) as Detective Hibbs. Created by Stephen J. Cannell and Stephen Kronish, the series was filmed in Vancouver; the Scali character was based loosely on the experiences of Tony Schembri, the police chief of Rye, New York.

COMPASS ABC

23 OCTOBER 1954–11 AUGUST 1957 Half-hour travelogue, broadcast irregularly over a three-year period.

THE COMPLETELY MENTAL MISADVENTURES OF ED GRIMLEY NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1988–2 SEPTEMBER 1989 Ed Grimley, the quintessential nerd character created by Martin Short at Toronto's Second City, and popularized by him on Saturday Night Live, got his own Saturday morning series for a season. The half hour combined cartoons with some live-action sequences, and featured the voices of Short, Andrea Martin, Catherine O'Hara, and Jonathan Winters.

CONAN AND THE YOUNG WARRIORS CBS

5 MARCH 1994–27 AUGUST 1994 On this Saturday morning cartoon series, Conan the Barbarian found himself protecting three young warriors, each with special powers, who were destined to rule a mythical kingdom.

CONCENTRATION NBC/SYNDICATED
28 JULY 1958–23 MARCH 1973 (NBC); 1973–1979 (SYNDICATED)
CLASSIC CONCENTRATION NBC
4 MAY 1987–14 JANUARY 1994 Concentration enjoyed one of the longest continuous runs of any network daytime game show; it also enjoyed brief nighttime runs in the fall of 1958 and the spring of 1961. The TV game was based on the card game and featured two contestants each day, seated opposite a board containing thirty numbered squares. Behind each numbered square was the name of a prize, and behind that was a portion of a rebus puzzle; each prize was listed twice on the board. Contestants took turns naming pairs of numbers, which were then turned to reveal the prizes. If the prizes matched, the two portions of the rebus puzzle were uncovered. The first contestant to solve the rebus won all the prizes he or she had accumulated. Hugh Downs was the first host of the series. During his tenure as host, Downs also continued to appear on the Tonight show (until Jack Paar's departure in 1962), and later on the Today show (which Downs hosted from 1962 to 1971). Downs relinquished his duties as Concentration's host in 1965, and a string of hosts followed: Jack Barry, Art James, Bill Mazer, Ed McMahon, and finally Bob Clayton (26 September 1969–1973). The syndicated version of the show, substantially identical to the network version, first appeared in 1973 and was hosted by Jack Narz. In 1987 the series returned to NBC's daytime schedule after a fourteen-year absence. With occasional interruptions, it ran for another six years, sometimes in reruns. Titled Classic Concentration and hosted by Alex Trebek, it featured a grid of twenty-five boxes that no longer needed to be turned manually; the prize or puzzle piece was now revealed electronically.

CONCERNING MISS MARLOWE NBC
5 JULY 1954–1 JULY 1955 Another of NBC's unsuccessful daytime serials, Concerning Miss Marlowe concerned a forty-year-old actress who lived in New York. Louise Allbritton played Maggie Marlowe until April 1955, when Helen Shields replaced her. Other regulars included John Raby as Bill; Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. (in his first TV role) as Jim Gavin; Jane Seymour as "Hat"; and Ross Martin as Bojalian.

CONCERT TONIGHT DUMONT
30 DECEMBER 1953–31 MARCH 1954; 15 SEPTEMBER 1954–6 APRIL 1955 An hour of classical music broadcast from Chicago, featuring the Chicago Symphony.

CONCRETE COWBOYS CBS
7 FEBRUARY 1981–21 MARCH 1981 A light hour adventure series starring Jerry Reed as J. D. Reed and Geoffrey Scott as Will Ewbanks, two guys who liked to drive. Each week found them looking for excitement in a new city.

CONDO ABC
10 FEBRUARY 1983–16 JUNE 1983 On this half-hour sitcom a WASP family and a Hispanic family each bought adjacent condominiums in a Southern California development, much to the consternation of the two patriarchs. The series managed to borrow a storyline from Romeo and Juliet, as the WASP son fell in love with (and married) the Hispanic daughter. Featured were McLean Stevenson (in his sixth sitcom in fifteen years) as James Kirkridge; Brooke Alderson as his wife, Margaret "Kiki" Kirkridge; Mark Schubb as their older son, Scott; Marc Price as their younger son, Billy; Luis Avalos as Jesus "Jessie" Rodriguez, who had started his own landscaping business; Yvonne Wilder as his wife, Maria Rodriguez; Julie Carmen as their daughter, Linda, who fell for Scott; and James Victor as José Montoya, Maria's father.

CONFESSION ABC
19 JUNE 1958–13 JANUARY 1959 Jack Wyatt hosted this unusual half-hour interview show: Wyatt's guests were convicted criminals, who talked about the crimes they had committed. Law enforcement personnel were also featured on the videotaped show, which originated from Dallas.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE SYNDICATED
1955–1957 Paul Coates narrated this half-hour series, which presented interviews with guests as well as dramatic adaptations of topical subjects, particularly crime and show business.

CONFIDENTIAL FOR WOMEN ABC
28 MARCH 1966–8 JULY 1966 A daytime series that, like NBC's Modern Romances, presented a new five-part story each week. Jane Wyatt (formerly of Father Knows Best) narrated and psychiatrist Theodore Isaac Rubin provided daily commentary.

CONFLICT ABC
18 SEPTEMBER 1956–3 SEPTEMBER 1957 Warner Brothers supplied this biweekly anthology series, which alternated with Cheyenne. A few Conflict segments had been seen during the preceding season on Warner Brothers Presents. Personal conflicts were the subjects of the episodes; the series was produced by Jack Barry in cooperation with the National Association for Mental Health. Will Hutchins, later star of Sugarfoot, made his television debut in "Stranger on the Road," broadcast 11 December.

CONFLICTS PBS
21 NOVEMBER 1973–16 JANUARY 1974 Dramatic anthology series presented by the Hollywood Television Theatre. Among the presentations were "Me," a two-act play by Gardner McKay (former star of Adventures in Paradise) with Richard Dreyfuss and Alison Rose, and "Double Solitaire," a drama with Richard Crenna and Susan Clark.

CONGRESSIONAL REPORT NBC
13 APRIL 1969–31 AUGUST 1969 Bill Monroe was the moderator of this Sunday public-interest series on which groups of four members of Congress discussed current issues.

CONNECTIONS PBS
30 SEPTEMBER 1979–2 DECEMBER 1979 A ten-week hour series on the history of technology, hosted by James Burke, and produced by BBC-TV and Time-Life Television. A successor series, Connections$^2$, aired on The Learning Channel in 1994.

CONRAD NAGEL THEATER SYNDICATED
1955 Actor Conrad Nagel, whose film career began in 1919, hosted this half-hour dramatic anthology series.

THE CONSTITUTION: THAT DELICATE BALANCE PBS
18 SEPTEMBER 1984–11 DECEMBER 1984 A thirteen-part hour discussion series on constitutional topics. Among the issues discussed were executive privilege (with former President Gerald Ford), elections, criminal justice, and national security. The genesis of the series was a fall 1983 seminar on war powers, in which Ford also participated.

CONSULT DR. BROTHERS
See DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

CONSUMER BUYLINE SYNDICATED
1978 David Horowitz hosted this informational show for consumers, which had been featured on local television in Los Angeles before going national. Lloyd Thaxton, host of several game shows and rock music programs of the 1960s, produced the show.

CONSUMER SURVIVAL KIT PBS

1975–1979 Educational series for consumers on products and services, presented with a light touch. Hosted by Lary Lewman, the show was produced by the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting.

THE CONTENDER CBS

3 APRIL 1980–1 MAY 1980 Five-part miniseries about an amateur boxer who left his native Oregon to train for the Olympics. With Marc Singer as Johnny Captor; Moses Gunn as ex-fighter Beifus, his trainer, who envisioned Johnny as the next "great white hope"; Katherine Cannon as Johnny's girlfriend, Jill; Louise Latham as his mother, Alma Captor; Tina Andrews as Missy Dinwittie; and Alan Stock as Brian.

CONTEST CARNIVAL CBS

3 JANUARY 1954–18 DECEMBER 1955 Telecast on Sunday mornings from Philadelphia, this talent contest for aspiring young circus performers was hosted by Gene Crane. Also on hand were three clowns—Kernel, Puff, and Carney—and Dave Stephen's band.

THE CONTINENTAL CBS

22 JANUARY 1952–17 APRIL 1952 This unusual series starred Renzo Cesana as a suave bachelor (The Continental), who wooed the ladies watching at home; the set featured a table for two, a bottle of champagne, and a rose. The show was aired live on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11:15 P.M. Cesana later hosted a similar series. See First Date.

CONTINENTAL CLASSROOM NBC

6 OCTOBER 1958–18 DECEMBER 1964 Like CBS's Sunrise Semester, Continental Classroom was an early-morning educational series for adults. The first offering was a course on physics taught by Dr. Harvey E. White of the University of California at Berkeley. The half-hour show was produced by NBC in cooperation with the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

CONTINENTAL SHOWCASE CBS

11 JUNE 1966–10 SEPTEMBER 1966 CBS put together this circus show by reediting tapes of European circus acts supplied by Bavarian Television in Munich. Jim Backus was then added as "host," to introduce the acts and provide a measure of continuity.

CONVERSATIONS WITH ERIC SEVAREID CBS

13 JULY 1975–7 SEPTEMBER 1975 Public affairs series on which Eric Sevareid conversed with notables such as West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, former ambassador George Kennan, and others.

CONVOY NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1965–10 DECEMBER 1965 One of the lesser known World War II series, Convoy told the story of a group of 200 American ships heading across the North Atlantic. With John Gavin as Commander Dan Talbot, skipper of the fleet's escort destroyer, a naval officer longing for more action; John Larch as Ben Foster, merchant captain of the fleet's flagship; Linden Chiles as Chief Officer Steve Kirkland; and James Callahan as Lieutenant O'Connell. One of the last NBC shows filmed in black and white, Convoy was shot down after thirteen weeks.

COOL McCOOL NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1966–31 AUGUST 1968; 17 MAY 1969–30 AUGUST 1969 Saturday-morning cartoon series about a secret agent, Cool McCool, who took his orders from an unseen boss, Number One, and who battled such villains as the Rattler, the Owl and the Pussycat, and Jack-in-the-Box. Another regular segment of the series was "Harry McCool," Cool's father, a bumbling policeman.

COOL MILLION NBC

25 OCTOBER 1972–11 JULY 1973 One segment of The NBC Mystery Movie, Cool Million alternated with Banacek and Madigan. It starred James Farentino as private eye Jefferson Keyes, who charged a cool $1 million per assignment, with results guaranteed. Also featured was Adele Mara as Elena, the woman who ran Keyes's answering service.

THE COP AND THE KID NBC

4 DECEMBER 1975–4 MARCH 1976 In this situation comedy a white bachelor cop became the foster father of a black orphan. With Charles Durning as Officer Frank Murphy; Tierre Turner as young Lucas Adams, his ward; Patsy Kelly as Brigid Murphy, Frank's mother; Sharon Spelman as Mary Goodhew, the school principal; Curtiz Willis as Shortstuff, Lucas's pal; and Eric Laneuville as Mouse, another of Lucas's pals. Jerry Davis created the series and was also its executive producer. Produced by Ben Joelson and Art Baer.

COP ROCK ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1990–26 DECEMBER 1990 Steven Bochco and William M. Finkelstein created this unusual series, the first to mix music into a crime show format. Each week four or five original songs were blended into the story line. Randy Newman composed the show's theme, "Under the Gun," and the other songs used on the premiere; others composed music for the subsequent episodes, under the direction of veteran TV composer Mike Post. Most of the performances were actually sung live during the filming by the actors themselves. The cast included: Ronny Cox as Chief Roger Kendrick, a Wild West buff; Larry Joshua as Captain John Hollander; Peter Onorati as Detective Vincent LaRusso; Mick Murray as Detective Joseph Gaines; Ron McLarty as Detective Ralph Ruskin; Anne Bobby as Ruskin's wife, Officer Vicki Quinn; David Gianopoulos as Officer Andy Campo, Vicki's partner; James McDaniel as Officer Franklin Rose; and Barbara Bosson as Louise Plank, mayor of Los Angeles, where the action took place.

The show was reportedly one of the most expensive hour series ever produced for television, at an estimated cost of $1.8 million per episode.

COPS FOX

7 JANUARY 1989– An interesting, video-verité look at real law enforcement officers on and off the job. Camera crews followed their subjects in the office, on stakeouts, on raids, and, to a lesser extent, at home. The results were often fascinating. The series focused first on the men and women of the Broward County (Fla.) Sheriff's Department, then moved to other locations, mostly in the United States. One special sixty-minute program, broadcast 15 July 1989, was produced on location in Moscow and Leningrad. The success of this series, with its relatively low production costs, led to a proliferation of similar programs: see American Detective, FBI: The Untold Stories, Real Stories of the Highway Patrol, Secret Service, and True Detectives.

THE CORAL JUNGLE SYNDICATED

1976 A series of marine documentaries filmed at and around the Great Barrier Reef off the coast of Australia; narrated by Leonard Nimoy.

THE CORNER BAR ABC

21 JUNE 1972–23 AUGUST 1972; 3 AUGUST 1973–7 SEPTEMBER 1973 Shown during two summers, this sitcom was set in a New York bar. In 1972 the bar was known as Grant's Toomb; in 1973 it was simply The Corner Bar. The 1972 cast included Gabriel Dell as Harry Grant, the owner of Grant's Toomb; J. J. Barry as cabbie Fred Costello, token bigot; Bill Fiore as Phil Bracken, token drunk; Joe Keyes as Joe the cook, token black; Vincent Schiavelli as Peter Panama, token homosexual; and Shimen Ruskin as waiter Meyer Shapiro, token Jew. The 1973 cast featured Barry, Fiore, and Ruskin from the 1972 crew and newcomers Anne Meara as Mae, the widowed co-owner of The Corner Bar; Eugene Roche as Mae's partner, Frank

Flynn; and Ron Carey as actor Donald Hooten. Comedian Alan King was the executive producer, and comedian Howard Morris (one of the second bananas on Your Show of Shows) was the producer.

CORONADO 9 SYNDICATED

1959 Rod Cameron, who had played cops on City Detective and State Trooper, played a private eye—Dan Adams—in this half-hour series set in San Diego. Beverly Garland was also featured. Coronado 9 was Adams's telephone exchange.

CORONET BLUE CBS

29 MAY 1967–4 SEPTEMBER 1967 This offbeat hour-long series featured an amnesiac searching for his identity. Frank Converse starred as Michael Alden, a young man who lost his memory following an attempt on his life. Fearful that his assailants may still be pursuing him, Alden's only clue to his past were the words "coronet blue." Also featured were Joe Silver as his new friend, Max, and Brian Bedford as Brother Anthony, a monk who tried to help him. Eleven episodes were filmed in 1965, but CBS decided not to air the show at that time. Although the show proved fairly popular in 1967, production could not have continued because Converse had been signed for a fall series, N.Y.P.D. Several prominent guest stars appeared on the program, including Susan Hampshire ("A Time to Be Born," 29 May), Candice Bergen ("The Rebel," her first dramatic role on American television, 19 June), Hal Holbrook (10 July), Alan Alda ("Six Months to Live," 14 August), and disc jockeys Murray the K and Dick Clark ("The Flip Side of Tommy Devon," 4 September). Filmed on location in New York, the series was produced by Herbert Brodkin and directed by Paul Bogart.

COS ABC

19 SEPTEMBER 1976–31 OCTOBER 1976 An unsuccessful Sunday-evening variety hour aimed principally at children, hosted by Bill Cosby, with help from Charlie Callas, Jeff Altman, Buzzy Linhart, Timothy Thomerson, Marion Ramsey, Mauricio Jarrin, Willie Bobo, and Rod Hull. Chris Bearde was the producer.

THE COSBY MYSTERIES NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1994–12 APRIL 1995 Bill Cosby returned to network television after a two-year absence in this hour crime show as Guy Hanks, a criminologist who came out of retirement to assist the New York City police on selected cases. Also featured were James Naughton as Detective Sully; Rita Moreno as Guy's housekeeper, Angie Corea; Dante Beze as Dante, Guy's occasional assistant; and Lynn Whitfield as Guy's girlfriend, Barbara Lorenz. William Link and David Black were the executive producers of the series, which was filmed in New York.

THE COSBY SHOW NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1984–17 SEPTEMBER 1992 Considered to be the most popular series of the 1980s, The Cosby Show was the principal cause of NBC's rise to prime-time ratings supremacy. Introduced in 1984, at a time when some analysts predicted that the age of the sitcom had passed, the program finished second in the ratings in 1984–1985, and topped the charts (sometimes by huge margins) for the next four seasons. Its phenomenal success ushered in a new era of sitcoms, many of them based on the traditional family; by the end of the decade there were more sitcoms on the network prime-time schedules than at any other time in television history.

The series was created by Bill Cosby, Ed. Weinberger, and Michael Leeson for the Carsey-Werner Company, whose principals, Marcy Carsey and Tom Werner, had been programming executives at ABC. Cosby was well known as a comedian and performer; in 1965 he had made TV history by becoming the first black performer to star in a network dramatic series. He won three Emmys for his portrayal of Alexander Scott on I Spy. After that groundbreaking series, however, his prime-time record was unimpressive: a low-key sitcom (The Bill Cosby Show) and two failed variety series (The New Bill Cosby Show and Cos). His biggest TV success was the long-running Saturday morning cartoon series, Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids, based loosely on his childhood days in Philadelphia.

For his 1984 show, Cosby had in mind a family sitcom, with two working parents and several children. He was actively involved in almost every aspect of the show (his name would appear up to six times in the credits during some seasons), and was able to insist that it be taped in New York, rather than in Hollywood. Originally, Cosby proposed that the parents should have blue collar jobs—the father a limousine driver, the mother a plumber. But by the time NBC had picked up the show (ABC, Carsey and Werner's old network, having passed on an earlier version), the parents were both professional people; indeed, the show was beginning to resemble Cosby's own life. Cosby played Dr. Cliff (short for Heathcliff) Huxtable, an obstetrician living in a Brooklyn townhouse. His wife, Clair, an attorney, was played by Phylicia Ayers-Allen (later known as Phylicia Rashad after her marriage to NBC sportscaster Ahmad Rashad, who proposed to her on the air during NFL Live! in 1985). As the series progressed, the parents' professional lives gradually became less significant as more of the stories centered on family life.

For the show's first few weeks the Huxtable household had only four children. Playing them were Lisa Bonet as daughter Denise; Malcolm-Jamal Warner as son Theodore (Theo); Tempestt Bledsoe as daughter Vanessa; and Keshia Knight Pulliam as daughter Rudy. A fifth child had been mentioned in some of the early episodes (although in the pilot episode Clair had asked Cliff, "Why do we have four children?"), and on 24 November 1984 Sabrina LeBeauf was introduced as the oldest daughter, Sondra, a student at Princeton. The Huxtable household now mirrored Cosby's own: each had four daughters and a son. Occasionally appearing were: Earle Hyman as Cliff's father, Russell Huxtable; Clarice Taylor as Cliff's mother, Anna Huxtable; Peter Costa (1985–1989) as Rudy's quiet pal, Peter Chiara; Deon Richmond (1986–1992) as Rudy's pal Kenny; and Carl Anthony Payne (1986–1987) as Theo's friend Cockroach.

Geoffrey Owens joined the cast in 1986 as Sondra's boyfriend, Elvin Tibideaux; Elvin and Sondra were married in 1987 and their twins, Nelson and Winnie, were born in November 1988. Also in 1986 daughter Denise graduated from high school and started college at Hillman, alma mater of her father and grandfather; in the fall of 1987 this story line evolved into a spinoff series, A Different World. Lisa Bonet, however, lasted only one season on the new series, returning to The Cosby Show in the fall of 1988 (although not on a regular basis that season, due to her real-life pregnancy). In the fall of 1989 the character returned full time; Denise was now married to Lieutenant Martin Kendall (played by Joseph C. Phillips, who had previously appeared on the show as a suitor of Sondra's), and was the stepmother of Martin's three-year-old daughter, Olivia (played by Raven-Symone). In the fall of 1990 Erika Alexander joined the cast as Pam Turner, Clair's second cousin once removed, who came from the tough Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood of Brooklyn. Also appearing occasionally for the last two seasons were Mushond Lee as Pam's friend Slide, Karen Malina White as Pam's friend Charmaine, and Allen Payne as Pam's friend Lance. By the fall of 1991, The Cosby Show's eighth and final season, Lisa Bonet had been dropped from the show. Jessica Vaughn and Gary Gray appeared as Elvin and Sondra's twins, Winnie and Nelson, and William Thomas, Jr., played Vanessa's boyfriend, Dabnis Brickley. The series' last first-run episode (30 April 1992) was an hour program celebrating Theo's graduation from college. In the final scene Cliff and Clair "broke the fourth wall," as they sauntered off the set, past the studio audience and out a studio door.

The rerun rights to The Cosby Show were sold to local stations in 1988 at the peak of the show's popularity, grossing an estimated $500 million for the distributor, Viacom, and for the principals, Cosby, Carsey, and Werner. In some markets the price charged per episode was more than twice the amount ever charged for any previous program. Inevitably, some local stations were disappointed when local rerun ratings failed to justify the enormous cost.

The Cosby Show engendered much discussion among critics and academics, particularly for its treatment of race and class. The "blackness" of the show was simply a given. While it was not overtly stressed, it was always present in subtle ways: antiapartheid posters and portraits of Martin Luther King, Jr., and Frederick Douglass on the kids' walls, references to predominantly black colleges (including the mythical Hillman College), and Cliff's reminiscing about "conking" his hair to impress a girl. Some have criticized the obvious affluence of the Huxtable family, noting that few black American households are headed by two working professionals. But almost everyone has praised the series for its wholehearted endorsement of family values.

COSMOPOLITAN THEATER DUMONT
2 OCTOBER 1951–25 DECEMBER 1951 This hour-long filmed dramatic anthology series was seen on Tuesday nights. The stories were adapted from those appearing in Cosmopolitan magazine.

COSMOS PBS
1980 Cornell astronomer Carl Sagan was the host of this lavishly produced and highly acclaimed multipart series on astronomy. The production crew made good use of special effects to help bring the subject matter alive.

COUCH POTATOES SYNDICATED
1989 Television itself was the subject of this game show, hosted by Marc Summers. Two teams of three players each competed, winning "ratings points" by answering TV trivia questions. The winning team was given the opportunity to try for a top prize of $5000.

THE COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO SYNDICATED
1955 George Dolenz starred as Edmond Dantes, the French patriot who escaped from prison and fled to the isle of Monte Cristo, where he set up shop to battle evildoers; Faith Domergue was also featured as Princess Anne. Hal Roach, Jr., was the executive producer of the half-hour adventure series, which was filmed in Hollywood, using the sets from the 1940 film of the same title, and later in England.

COUNTERATTACK: CRIME IN AMERICA ABC
2 MAY 1982–23 MAY 1982 George Kennedy hosted this hour documentary series on crime. Each show was a potpourri of dramatic reenactments of various crimes, descriptions of assorted fugitives, and advice on crime prevention. Scheduled on Sundays opposite CBS's 60 Minutes, it vanished quickly.

COUNTRY CARNIVAL SYNDICATED
1969 Half-hour country-and-western music show, hosted by singer Del Reeves.

COUNTRY MUSIC CARAVAN SYNDICATED
1966 Half-hour musical show.

COUNTRY MUSIC JUBILEE
See OZARK JUBILEE

COUNTRY STYLE DUMONT
29 JULY 1950–25 NOVEMBER 1950 One of network television's first country-music programs, Country Style was seen for an hour on Saturday nights and was hosted by Peggy Anne Ellis.

COUNTRY STYLE U.S.A. SYNDICATED
1959 Fifteen-minute country-and-western musical show hosted by singing serviceman Charlie Applewhite, who had been featured on The Milton Berle Show in 1953.

COUNTY FAIR NBC
22 SEPTEMBER 1958–25 SEPTEMBER 1959 Bert Parks hosted this daytime variety half hour, which was set at a county fair.

A COUPLE OF JOES ABC

5 AUGUST 1949–12 JULY 1950 This half-hour variety series was cohosted by Joe Bushkin and Joe Rosenfield and featured Warren Hull, Joan Barton, Allyn Edwards, the Milton DeLugg Orchestra (1949), and Mike Reilly's Orchestra (1950), and Morgan the basset hound, owned by producer Richard Gordon.

COUPLES SYNDICATED

1982 On this half-hour "reality show," pairs of people—husbands and wives, parents and children, brothers and sisters, or whatever—were persuaded to pour out their most intimate problems to psychologist Dr. Walter Brackelmanns and, of course, to a nationwide viewing audience.

COURT MARTIAL ABC

8 APRIL 1966–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 Another World War II series, this one focused on the United States Army Judge Advocate General Corps. With Bradford Dillman as Captain David Young; Peter Graves as Major Frank Whittaker; Kenneth J. Warren as their aide, Sergeant MacCaskey; and Diene Clare as their secretary, Wendy.

COURT OF CURRENT ISSUES DUMONT

9 FEBRUARY 1948–26 JUNE 1951 This early public affairs program featured debates on topical issues. It was not widely watched because for most of its run it was slotted opposite Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater.

THE COURT OF HUMAN RELATIONS NBC

22 JUNE 1959–21 AUGUST 1959 On this unusual daytime program a panel of three experts gave advice on interpersonal problems presented to them by guests. The moderator, A. L. Alexander, had hosted a similar program on radio.

THE COURT OF LAST RESORT NBC

4 OCTOBER 1957–11 APRIL 1958 This half-hour series dramatized the work of the Court of Last Resort, a real-life organization, founded in 1948, which was not a court of law but rather a group of seven criminal law experts. Its purpose was to aid defendants whom it believed had been convicted unjustly. The series starred Lyle Bettger as investigator Sam Larsen; Paul Birch appeared occasionally as defense attorney Erle Stanley Gardner (Gardner, of course, is better known as the creator of Perry Mason). Jules Goldstone was the producer. The series was rerun on ABC during the 1959–1960 season.

COURT TV: INSIDE AMERICA'S COURTS SYNDICATED

1993– A weekly half hour of highlights of trials from the Court TV cable network. Cynthia McFadden and Gregg Jarrett were the anchors. The cable service, which was launched in July 1991, saw its ratings escalate in 1995 because of widespread public interest in the murder trial of O. J. Simpson.

COURTHOUSE CBS

13 SEPTEMBER 1995–15 NOVEMBER 1995 Hour prime time drama set at the courthouse in Clark County, an urban center in an unspecified state. With Patricia Wettig as Presiding Judge Justine Parkes; Annabeth Gish as assistant district attorney Lenore Laderman; Robin Givens as investigator Susanne Graham; Bob Gunton as unmerciful Judge Homer Conklin; Brad Johnson as hunky Judge Wyatt Earp Jackson, newly arrived from Montana; Michael Lerner as Judge Myron Winkleman, head of the family court; Jennifer Lewis as family court Judge Rosetta Reide, a gay woman; Nia Peeples as idealistic public defender Veronica Gilbert; and Jeffrey D. Sams as assistant district attorney Ed Moore.

COURTROOM U.S.A. SYNDICATED

1960 Actual court cases were dramatized on this series, which starred Jay Jostyn.

THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1969–14 JUNE 1972 In this sitcom, a widower was constantly getting entangled with women, thanks to the persistent match-making efforts of his young son. Nevertheless, the two were (in the words of the show's theme song) "best friends." With Bill Bixby as Tom Corbett, editor of Tomorrow magazine; Brandon Cruz as son Eddie; Miyoshi Umeki as their Japanese housekeeper, Mrs. Livingston; James Komack as Tom's friend Norman Tinker, the magazine's art director; Kristina Holland as Tina Rickles, Tom's secretary; and Jodie Foster (1970–1972) as Joey Kelly, a schoolmate of Eddie's. Costar Komack also produced the series for MGM-TV (he later created Chico and the Man and Sugar Time!).

COVER TO COVER NBC

29 JULY 1991–25 OCTOBER 1991 Daytime magazine series aimed at women, co-hosted by Gayle King and Robin Wagner. King had been a local news anchor in Hartford and Baltimore; Wagner had anchored local newscasts in Cleveland.

COVER UP CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1984–6 JULY 1985 This ill-fated adventure series was an updated version of I Spy. Originally, it starred Jennifer O'Neill as Dani Reynolds and Jon-Erik Hexum as Mac Harper, two American secret agents who, operating undercover as a fashion photographer and her male model, traveled all over the world to help Americans in trouble overseas. Also featured were Richard Anderson as their boss, Henry Towler; Mykel T. Williamson as Dani's assistant, Rick; and Ingrid Anderson, Irena Ferris, Dana Sparks, and Kimberly Foster as models Gretchen, Billie, Ashley, and Kim. Sadly, on 12 October 1984 Hexum, while reloading blanks into a prop gun, accidentally shot himself in the head. The force of the shot proved fatal, and Hexum died a few days later; his heart was transplanted into a critically needy recipient. (The series carried a tribute to Hexum at the end of the next televised episode, read by costar Richard Anderson, but unfortunately Hexum's name was misspelled.) Following Hexum's death, the producers frantically searched for a replacement, and ultimately came up with Australian actor Antony Hamilton as Jack Striker, who was introduced on 24 November. Glen A. Larson created the series.

COVINGTON CROSS ABC

25 AUGUST 1992–31 OCTOBER 1992 The first prime-time dramatic series in three decades to be set during the Middle Ages, Covington Cross can perhaps be described as Dallas with armor. Created by Gil Grant and filmed on location in England, the continuing drama's central characters were a widowed lord and his five children. The cast included Nigel Terry as Sir Thomas Gray, the patriarch; Jonathan Firth as son Richard, a knight; Ben Porter as son William, also a knight; Glenn Quinn as son Cedric, headed for the clergy; Tim Killick as son Armus, who was off on a crusade; Ione Skye as daughter Eleanor, a medieval feminist; Cherie Lunghi as Lady Elizabeth, a potential love interest for Sir Thomas; and James Faulkner as the evil John Mullens.

COWBOY G-MEN SYNDICATED

1952 This low-budget western starred Russell Hayden and Jackie Coogan as Pat Gallagher and Stoney Crockett, two nineteenth-century government agents. Lesley Selander directed the series.

COWBOY IN AFRICA ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1967–16 SEPTEMBER 1968 This adventure series starred Chuck Connors as Jim Sinclair, an American rodeo star who goes to Kenya to assist in an ambitious wildlife management project. With Tom Nardini as John Henry, a Navajo who accompanies Jim; Ronald Howard as Wing Commander Hayes, the wealthy rancher who recruited their services; and Gerald B. Edwards as Samson, a young Kenyan boy who makes friends with the two Americans. The series was filmed largely at Africa, U.S.A., near Los Angeles.

COWBOY THEATRE NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1956–15 SEPTEMBER 1957 Monty Hall, better known as the host of Let's Make a Deal, emceed this weekend series of western films.

THE COWBOYS ABC

6 FEBRUARY 1974–14 AUGUST 1974 Adapted from the 1972 film starring John Wayne, The Cowboys was a half-hour western about seven homeless boys who go to work on a ranch owned by a widow. With Jim Davis as Marshal Bill Winter; Diana Douglas as widow Kate Andersen; Moses Gunn as Nightlinger, the black cook and overseer of the boys; Robert Carradine as Slim; A Martinez as Cimarron; Sean Kelly as Jimmy; Kerry MacLane as Homer; Clint Howard as Steve; Mitch Brown as Hardy; and Clay O'Brien as Weedy. Four of the youngsters—Carradine, Martinez, Kelly, and O'Brien—had appeared in the film (Carradine and Martinez repeated their film roles on television; Kelly had played Bob and O'Brien had played Hardy in the movie).

COWTOWN RODEO ABC

23 JUNE 1958–8 SEPTEMBER 1958 Half-hour rodeo show, with commentary by Marty Glickman, broadcast from New Jersey.

CRAFTS WITH KATY SYNDICATED

1971 A half-hour of macrame and decoupage and the like, demonstrated by Katy Dacus.

CRAIG KENNEDY, CRIMINOLOGIST SYNDICATED

1952 Donald Woods starred as criminologist Craig Kennedy in this little-noted half-hour series. Adrian Weiss produced and directed.

CRASH CORRIGAN'S RANCH ABC

15 JULY 1950–29 SEPTEMBER 1950 Ray "Crash" Corrigan hosted this summer variety series for children. Corrigan's real-life "ranch," located near Hollywood, was widely used for location filming by many TV western series.

CRAZY LIKE A FOX CBS

30 DECEMBER 1984–4 SEPTEMBER 1986 This lighthearted detective show starred Jack Warden as rumpled private eye Harry Fox and John Rubinstein as his son, attorney Harrison Fox, Harry's reluctant crime-solving partner. Penny Peyser played Harrison's wife, Cindy, and Robby Kiger their son, Josh. Also around were Lydia Lei (1984–1985) and Patricia Ayame Thomson (1985–1986) as Harrison's secretary, Allison Ling, and Robert Hanley as Lieutenant Walker of the San Francisco Police Department. Thirty-seven episodes were made. The cast was reunited for a TV-movie, "Still Crazy Like a Fox," filmed in England and broadcast 5 April 1987.

CREATIVE COOKERY NBC/ABC

10 OCTOBER 1953–3 APRIL 1954 (NBC); 30 AUGUST 1954–25 FEBRUARY 1955 (ABC) A cooking instruction program broadcast from Chicago, hosted by chef François Pope and his sons, Frank and Robert Pope. The NBC version was seen for an hour on Saturday mornings, while the ABC version ran for 55 minutes on weekdays. Elina Fahrenholz was the producer, Phil Bodwell the director.

CREATIVITY WITH BILL MOYERS PBS

8 JANUARY 1982–21 MAY 1982 In an effort to examine the creative process, host Bill Moyers interviewed poets, playwrights, entrepreneurs, and scientists on this half-hour series.

THE CREW FOX

31 AUGUST 1995–25 JANUARY 1996 Predictable sitcom about a flight crew based in Miami and employed by Regency Airlines. With Rose Jackson as Jess Jameson; Kristin Bauer as Maggie Reynolds (Jess and Maggie not only worked together, but also shared an apartment); David Burke as Paul Steadman, a gay man; Charles Esten as Randy Anderson, a randy womanizer; Christine Estabrook as flight crew supervisor Lenora Zwick; Lane Davies as pilot Captain Rex Parker; and Dondre T. Whitfield as Mac, who worked at the Mambo Lambo, the crew's favorite hangout when they weren't airborne.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT SYNDICATED

1961 Like Confession, this series featured interviews with convicted criminals as well as with law and corrections officials. The program was hosted by Clete Roberts, with additional commentary provided by criminologist Robert A. McGee. Collier Young was the producer.

CRIME & PUNISHMENT NBC

3 MARCH 1993–6 APRIL 1993 The cops on this hour crime show tried to think like criminals in order to catch them. Featured were Jon Tenney as Detective Ken O'Donnell; Rachel Ticotin as his partner, Detective Annette Rey; Carmen Argenziano as the boss, Lieutenant Bartoli; James Sloyan as the voice of the unseen interrogator, who pushed the detectives to "get inside the criminal mind"; Maria Celedonio as Annette's young daughter, Tanya; and Lisa Darr as O'Donnell's girlfriend, Jan. Dick Wolf created the series and was its executive producer.

CRIME PHOTOGRAPHER CBS

19 APRIL 1951–5 JUNE 1952 The television version of the radio program originally starred Richard Carlyle as Casey, the gutsy photographer for the Morning Express, a New York daily. Carlyle was later replaced by Darren McGavin (in his first starring role on television; McGavin would later play a similar role in The Night Stalker). Also featured were Jan Miner as Annie Williams, Casey's girlfriend (Miner had played the role on radio but is better known to modern viewers as Madge the Manicurist in commercials for Palmolive); John Gibson as Ethelbert, bartender at the Blue Note Café, Casey's favorite hangout (Gibson, too, had played the role on radio); and Bernard Lenrow as Inspector Logan of the New York Police Department, Casey's nemesis. George Harmon Coxe created Casey in a series of novels. Martin Manulis produced the TV series.

CRIME STOPPERS 800 SYNDICATED

1990–1991 A clone of America's Most Wanted, except that some of the crime depicted and fugitives sought were international, rather than domestic. Edwin Hart was the principal reporter.

CRIME STORY NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1986–13 MARCH 1987; 12 JUNE 1987–10 MAY 1988 To its credit, NBC gave this ambitious cop show two full seasons to catch on, but it was never able to capture a large audience. The action started in Chicago in 1963, where Lieutenant Mike Torello (played by Dennis Farina, who had been a Chicago cop in real life) waged a vendetta against mobster Ray Luca (played by Anthony Denison). Torello headed the Major Crime Unit of the police department, which also included Sergeant Danny Krychek (Bill Smitrovich), Detective Nate Grossman (Steve Ryan), Detective Joey Indelli (Bill Campbell), and Detective Walter Clemmons (Paul Butler). Stephen Lang played prosecutor David Abrams, and John Santucci (who had been a criminal in real life) played Luca's loyal but dimwitted henchman, Paul (Paulie) Taglia. Darlanne Flugel was seen in the earliest episodes as Torello's wife, Julie (they were divorced by midseason). By the middle of the season Luca and Taglia had left Chicago for Las Vegas, and Torello and his squad followed, becoming agents of a federal strike force in the process. Others who appeared from time to time as "guest mobsters" included Joseph Wiseman (he'd had the title role in Dr. No) as Manny Weisbrod, Jon Polito as Phil Bartoli, and comedian Andrew Dice Clay as Max Goldman. The first season ended with an unusual cliffhanger: escaping from the Feds, Paulie drove Luca to what appeared to be a "safe house" in the Nevada desert. Unfortunately, it was the site of an imminent nuclear bomb test. Miraculously, the two escaped without serious injury to enjoy a second season of cops and robbers. Later in the season Luca fled to a Latin American country, where he was eventually tracked down by Torello. Del Shannon sang the series's theme, "Runaway," updating the lyrics to his 1961 hit. Michael Mann, executive producer of Miami Vice, created the series.

CRIME SYNDICATED CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1951–23 JUNE 1953 This anthology series of crime dramas, supposedly based on true stories, was hosted and narrated by Rudolph Halley, an investigator for the congressional crime committee chaired by Senator Estes Kefauver. It was produced by Jerry Danzig and directed by John Peyser. The half-hour series began as a weekly effort, then alternated biweekly with City Hospital beginning in March 1952.

CRIME TIME AFTER PRIME TIME CBS

8 APRIL 1991–4 JANUARY 1995 Crime Time After Prime Time was the umbrella title of CBS's late-night group of crime shows. They were telecast weeknights at 11:30 P.M. from 1991 through 26 August 1993; Late Night with David Letterman took over the slot on 30 August 1993. In the meantime, a second nightly telecast of Crime Time After Prime Time, scheduled at 12:30 A.M., was inaugurated early in 1993; it followed Late Night until 4 January 1995 (although the comedy show The Kids in the Hall usually aired on Friday evenings). The Late Late Show with Tom Snyder inherited the time slot the following week.

Nine separate series were aired on Crime Time After Prime Time: Dangerous Curves, Dark Justice, The Exile, Fly by Night, Forever Knight, Scene of the Crime, Silk Stalkings, Sweating Bullets, and Urban Angel. See individual titles for details.

CRIME WITH FATHER ABC

31 AUGUST 1951–25 JANUARY 1952 Comedy-mystery starring Rusty Lane and Peggy Lobbin as a father-daughter detective team, Jim and Chris Riland.

CRIMEWATCH TONIGHT SYNDICATED

1989–1990 A half-hour show, best described in its own words: "a daily report on America's war against crime." It presented segments on wanted fugitives, news of recent crimes, and tips on crime prevention. Former CBS News reporter Ike Pappas was the host.

CRISIS NBC

5 OCTOBER 1949–28 DECEMBER 1949 Arthur Peterson hosted this unusual half-hour dramatic anthology series, which was broadcast from Chicago. Each week a group of actors reenacted three events from the life of a guest; periodically through the show, host Peterson checked with the guest to see if the dramatizations accurately reflected the incidents.

CRISIS TO CRISIS WITH BARBARA JORDAN PBS

23 JULY 1982–8 OCTOBER 1982 Former Congresswoman Barbara Jordan hosted this ten-week series of independently produced documentaries.

THE CRITIC ABC/FOX

26 JANUARY 1994–2 MARCH 1994 (ABC); 1 JUNE 1994–20 JULY 1994 (ABC); 5 MARCH 1995–30 JULY 1995 (FOX) The central figure in this half-hour animated series was nerdy film critic Jay Sherman, a fat, balding divorcé with a young son, Marty. Jay hosted a film review program, "Coming Attractions," on cable television. Jon Lovitz provided the character's voice. Other voices were supplied by Nancy Cartwright, Christine Cavanaugh, Gerrit Graham, Doris Grau, Judith Ivey, Nick Jameson, Maurice LaMarche, Charles Napier, and Kath Soucie. Al Jean and Mike Reiss, two veterans of The Simpsons, created the series; its show-within-a-show format provided ample opportunities to satirize current films and TV shows.

CRITIC AT LARGE ABC

18 AUGUST 1948–27 APRIL 1949 John Mason Brown was the host of this half-hour series, on which he chatted with guest critics about the arts.

CRO ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1993–15 JULY 1995 Inspired by the book "The Way Things Work," this semi-educational Saturday morning cartoon series was set in prehistoric times. The title character, Cro, was an orphaned cave boy who was able to show his less intelligent contemporaries the basic principles of science. In the fall of 1994 Cro acquired a girlfriend, Sooli. The episodes were introduced by Cro's pal Phil, a mammoth who had been frozen in a glacier and was thawed out in the twentieth century. Max Casella provided the voice of Cro.

CROCKETT'S VICTORY GARDEN

See VICTORY GARDEN

CROOK AND CHASE SYNDICATED/TNN

1986–1989 (SYNDICATED); 1989–1993 (TNN) Nashville's equivalent of Entertainment Tonight, Crook and Chase was a half-hour weekday entertainment magazine show cohosted by Lorrianne Crook and Charlie Chase and broadcast from Nashville. A weekend wrap-up, Weekend with Crook and Chase, was also nationally syndicated between 1987 and 1993. By 1992 Crook and Chase had expanded to an hour nightly on TNN, and in October 1993 the duo began hosting Music City Tonight on TNN; the latter series was originally a ninety-minute program, but was later trimmed to sixty minutes.

CROSS CURRENT

See FOREIGN INTRIGUE

CROSSFIRE CNN

1982– Half-hour nightly debate series on newsworthy topics, with Patrick Buchanan representing the conservative viewpoint, and Tom Braden (to 1989) and Michael Kinsley (1989–1995) espousing the liberal side. Columnist Robert Novak filled in for Buchanan when the latter served as White House director of communications in 1987. Former White House chief-of-staff John Sununu succeeded Buchanan in 1992.

CROSSROADS ABC

7 OCTOBER 1955–27 SEPTEMBER 1957 This half-hour dramatic anthology series depicted the work of clergymen.

CROSSROADS

See THE AMERICAN PARADE

CROSSROADS ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1992–31 OCTOBER 1992; 10 JUNE 1993–15 JULY 1993 Robert Urich starred in this hour dramatic series as Johnny Hawkins, a Manhattan prosecutor who quit his job after being reunited with his troubled sixteen-year-old son; they decided to hit the road together. Dalton James costarred as the son, Dylan, who was released to his father's custody after getting in trouble with the law.

THE CROSS-WITS SYNDICATED

1976–1980; 1986–1987 On this half-hour game show two teams, each consisting of two celebrities and a noncelebrity captain, scored points by filling in words on a giant crossword puzzle. Jack Clark hosted the first version of the series; David Sparks presided over the latter version, which was officially titled The New Cross-Wits. Ralph Edwards was executive producer.

CROWN THEATRE
See THE GLORIA SWANSON SHOW

CRUNCH AND DES SYNDICATED
1955 This half-hour adventure series, set in the Bahamas, featured Forrest Tucker as Crunch Adams, owner of the Crunch Adams Charter Boat Service and skipper of the Poseidon, and Sandy Kenyon as his partner, Des (short for "Desperate") Smith. The series was based on stories by Philip Wylie.

CRUSADE IN EUROPE ABC
5 MAY 1949–27 OCTOBER 1949 One of the first documentary series filmed especially for television, Crusade in Europe was a series of twenty-six half hours based on Dwight Eisenhower's book about the American effort in Europe during World War II. Sponsored by Time, Inc., the series was produced by Richard de Rochemont and narrated by Westbrook Van Voorhis.

THE CRUSADER CBS
7 OCTOBER 1955–28 DECEMBER 1956 Brian Keith starred as Matt Anders, a freelance writer who helped persons escape from Communist nations, in this little-remembered adventure series. Dick Lewis was the producer.

CRUSADER RABBIT SYNDICATED
1949–1957 One of the first cartoon series made especially for television, Crusader Rabbit was the brainchild of Jay Ward and his partner, Alexander Anderson. The witty, five-minute segments were produced in color and were in serial form; some stations thus ran a single cartoon each day, while other combined several into a longer show. The stars of the series were Crusader Rabbit, a small but noble adventurer, and Rags the Tiger, his somewhat less intelligent partner. The first set of cartoons was produced between 1948 and 1951; NBC was offered the series in 1949 but declined it. A second set of cartoons was made in 1956; by that time Jay Ward had sold his interest in the show and had begun to develop a new series for television, Rocky and His Friends (Rocky and Bullwinkle closely resembled Crusader and Rags). The voices of Crusader and Rags were supplied by Lucille Blass and Verne Loudin respectively.

THE CRUSADERS SYNDICATED
1993–1994 An hour weekly investigative show with five correspondents: Mark Hyman, Carla Wohl, William LaJeunesse, Howard Thompson, and Ted Wayman.

CURIOSITY SHOP ABC
11 SEPTEMBER 1971–2 SEPTEMBER 1973 This educational show for children was a mix of cartoons, filmed segments, and interviews; each hour was devoted to one theme, such as "Tools," "Rules," or "Flight." With Pamelyn Ferdin as Pam; Kerry MacLane as Ralph; John Levin as Gerard; Jerrelyn Fields as Cindy; and Barbara Minkus as Gittel the Witch. Seen on Sunday mornings, the series was created and produced by Chuck Jones.

A CURRENT AFFAIR SYNDICATED
1987– This half-hour, five-day-a-week series that has been described as "tabloid television" offered a regular dose of sensational stories on lurid crimes, sex, and celebrities. Maury Povich was the chief correspondent. The series was originally seen only on the several stations owned by the Fox network before being made available for national syndication in 1987. In the fall of 1990 a weekend edition was introduced; titled A Current Affair Extra, it was hosted by Maureen O'Boyle, who also took over as the weekday host that fall. Penny Daniels succeeded O'Boyle in 1994. In June 1995 longtime chief reporter Steve Dunleavy was let go as new producers took over the series. Jon Scott was named anchor in the fall of 1995.

CURTAIN CALL NBC

20 JUNE 1952–26 SEPTEMBER 1952 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was a summer replacement for The Dennis Day Show. Telecasts included: "The Promise," with Carol Bruce (20 June); "The Soul of the Great Bell," with Boris Karloff (27 June); and "Season of Divorce," with Richard Kiley (8 August).

CUSTER (THE LEGEND OF CUSTER) ABC

6 SEPTEMBER 1967–27 DECEMBER 1967 Custer was an unsuccessful attempt to tell the story of America's best-known Calvary officer, a flamboyant twenty-eight-year-old who had risen to the rank of major general and was demoted for dereliction of duty; ordered reinstated, he was put in command of the Seventh Regiment of the United States Cavalry, which was stationed at Fort Hays, Kansas. The series was canceled long before the men of the Seventh would have reached the Little Big Horn. With Wayne Maunder as Lieutenant Colonel George A. Custer; Michael Dante as Sioux chief Crazy Horse; Slim Pickens as scout California Joe Milner; Peter Palmer as Sergeant James Bustard, a former Confederate soldier; Robert F. Simon as General A. H. Terry; and Grant Woods as Captain Myles Keogh. Created by Samuel Peeples and David Weisbart.

CUT DUMONT

4 JUNE 1949–18 JUNE 1949 Hosted by Carl Caruso, this hour-long game show featured phone calls to home viewers. If the viewer could identify the subject of the scene being acted out by a group of players on stage, the viewer could try to identify a photograph of a famous personality as it spun on a wheel. After just three weeks the format was modified, and the show was retitled Spin the Picture (see that title). Jerry Layton and Wilbur Stark produced the series, and the Alan Logan Trio provided the music.

CUTTER TO HOUSTON CBS

1 OCTOBER 1983–31 DECEMBER 1983 This hour medical show was set at Cutter Community Hospital in Cutter, Texas, a small rural town about an hour's flight from Houston. The series focused on three physicians who worked there, and starred Jim Metzler as Dr. Andy Fenton, a general practitioner who had grown up in Cutter; Alec Baldwin as internist Dr. Hal Wexler, who had agreed to serve there after his implication in a big-city prescription-forging scandal; and Shelley Hack as surgeon Dr. Beth Gilbert, who had been advised to work at Cutter by her Houston superiors in order "to learn more about taking responsibility." Also featured were K Callan as Connie, a nurse; Susan Styles as Patty, another nurse; and Noble Willingham as Cutter's Mayor Jarvis. The program was CBS's lowest rated series of the 1983–1984 season.

CUTTERS CBS

11 JUNE 1993–9 JULY 1993 Unfunny sitcom about a father and son who decided to knock down the wall between their barber shop and the mother-and-daughter beauty parlor next door. With Robert Hays as barber Joe Polachuk; Dakin Mathews as his irascible dad, Harry Polachuk, an Archie Bunker clone; Margaret Whitton as Adrienne St. John, co-owner of the beauty parlor; Julia Campbell as her stepdaughter and business partner, Lynn Fletcher, who had an on-again, off-again romance with Joe; Julius Carry as their gay black hairdresser, Troy King, a former Olympic champion; Robin Tunney as Deborah, who also worked in the beauty shop; and Ray Buktenica as Chad, one of the barber shop regulars. The short-lived series was set in Buffalo, New York.

CYBER C.O.P.S. CBS

20 MARCH 1993–4 SEPTEMBER 1993 Set in the future, this Saturday morning cartoon series featured a team of superpowered crimefighters known as the Cyber C.O.P.S.—the Central Organization of Police Specialists.

CYBILL CBS

2 JANUARY 1995– Half-hour sitcom starring Cybill Shepherd as Cybill Sheridan, a Hollywood actress with two ex-husbands and two daughters, who began to find it increasingly harder to get work as middle age loomed. Other regulars included Christine Baranski as Cybill's booze-guzzling best friend, Maryann Thorpe, also divorced; Tom Wopat as Cybill's first ex, Jeff, a stuntman; Alan Rosenberg as Cybill's second ex, Ira, a writer; Dedee Pfeiffer as Cybill and Jeff's 22-year-old daughter, Rachel Blanders; and Alicia Witt as Cybill and Ira's 16-year-old daughter, Zoey. Marilu Henner appeared occasionally as Terry, Jeff's other ex-wife.

THE D.A. NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1971–7 JANUARY 1972 Jack Webb produced this half-hour series in which most of the action took place in the courtroom. With Robert Conrad as Paul Ryan, deputy district attorney in Los Angeles; Harry Morgan as H. M. "Staff" Stafford, chief deputy D.A.; Ned Romero as investigator Bob Ramirez; and Julie Cobb as Katy Benson, deputy public defender.

THE D.A.'S MAN NBC

3 JANUARY 1959–29 AUGUST 1959 John Compton starred as private detective Shannon, the man whom the New York district attorney called on for help when he needed it, in this half-hour crime show. Also featured was Ralph Manza as Al Bonacorsi, Shannon's contact man in the D.A.'s office. Based on the book by James B. Horan and Harold Danforth, the series was produced by Jack Webb's Mark VII, Ltd.

D. C. FOLLIES SYNDICATED

1987–1989 Political satire was the thread of this half-hour comedy show, set at a Washington, D.C., bar. Fred Willard played the bartender, and the other characters were all puppets designed, by Sid and Marty Krofft, as caricatures of prominent politicians and showbiz people. The show was no doubt inspired by the popular British show Spitting Image, which also employed puppets.

DEA FOX

7 SEPTEMBER 1990–16 NOVEMBER 1990; 19 APRIL 1991–7 JUNE 1991 An hour crime show, shot in video verité style, about the efforts of five agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Agency. With Tom Mason as Bill Stadler; Byron Keith Minns as Jimmy Sanders; Chris Stanley as Nick Biaggi; David Wohl as Phil Jacobs; and Jenny Gago as Teresa Robles. When the series returned to the air in April 1991 it was retitled DEA: Special Task Force. Richard DiLello created the series and was its executive producer.

DADDY DEAREST FOX

5 SEPTEMBER 1993–12 DECEMBER 1993 Richard Lewis teamed up with Don Rickles in this predictable sitcom about a single guy whose father moved in with him. Lewis played the son, psychologist Steven Mitchell, Rickles the dad, Al Mitchell, whose wife had thrown him out of their house. Also on board were Renee Taylor as Helen, Al's wife and Steven's mother; Carey Eidel as Steven's brother, Larry; Jeffrey Bomberger as Steven's son, Danny (Jonathan Gibby played the role on the premiere); Sydney Walsh as Steven's office partner, therapist Christine Winters; and Alice Carter as Lisa, their receptionist.

DADDY'S GIRLS CBS

21 SEPTEMBER 1994–12 OCTOBER 1994 This short-lived sitcom was Dudley Moore's second flop on CBS in eighteen months (see also Dudley). This time he starred as Dudley Walker, the head of a New York fashion business, whose wife had run off with his best friend and business partner. Assisting him were Harvey Fierstein as his gay designer, Dennis Sinclair; Meredith Scott Lynn as middle daughter Samantha, who worked in the office; Stacy Galina as eldest daughter Amy; Keri Russell as youngest daughter Phoebe; Alan Ruck as Lenny, Amy's dull husband, an optometrist; and Eugene Roche as Seymour, one of Dudley's employees.

DADS ABC

5 December 1986–6 February 1987; 6 June 1987–27 June 1987 This half-hour sitcom could be described as The Odd Couple . . . with Children. It starred Barry Bostwick and Carl Weintraub as best friends (and single fathers) Rick Armstrong and Louie Mangiotti, who shared a Philadelphia house with their three teenaged kids: Kelly Armstrong (played by Skye Bassett), Allan Mangiotti (Eddie Castrodad), and Kenny Mangiotti (Jason Naylor).

THE DAFFY DUCK SHOW NBC

4 November 1978–11 September 1982 Half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show starring the Warner Brothers character. In the fall of 1981 the show was retitled The Daffy–Speedy Show, as Speedy Gonzales, the fastest mouse in Mexico, became Daffy's costar. Other Warner Brothers cartoons were also shown, including Tweety and Sylvester, Yosemite Sam, Elmer Fudd, and Foghorn Leghorn. In the fall of 1982 Daffy and Company moved to CBS (see Sylvester and Tweety).

DAGMAR'S CANTEEN NBC

22 March 1952–14 June 1952 Broadcast at 12:15 A.M. on Saturday nights, this short-lived fifteen-minute variety series was hosted by Dagmar (Jennie Lewis), late of Broadway Open House, and presented talent culled from the armed forces. Ray Malone and Milton DeLugg were also featured.

THE DAKOTAS ABC

7 January 1963–9 September 1963 Set in the Dakota Territory, this Warner Brothers western replaced Cheyenne. With Larry Ward as Marshal Frank Ragan; Chad Everett as Deputy Del Stark; Jack Elam as Deputy J. D. Smith, a former gunslinger; and Michael Green as Deputy Vance Porter.

DAKTARI CBS

11 January 1966–15 January 1969 This African adventure series was set at the Wameru Study Center for Animal Behavior. It featured Marshall Thompson as Dr. Marsh Tracy, a veterinarian and conservationist (daktari is the Swahili word for "doctor"); Cheryl Miller as Paula, his daughter; Yale Summers as conservationist Jack Dane; Hari Rhodes as Mike, an African conservationist; Hedley Mattingly as District Officer Hedley, local game warden; Ross Hagen (1968–1969) as hunter Bart Jason; and Erin Moran (1968–1969) as six-year-old Jenny Jones, an orphan taken in by Dr. Tracy. The show's two animal stars—Clarence the cross-eyed lion and Judy the chimp—were as popular as its human stars. Like Cowboy in Africa, Daktari was filmed at California's Africa, U.S.A., the home for some 500 beasts established by Ralph Helfer and Ivan Tors. Tors, the producer of Daktari, had produced the 1965 film, Clarence the Cross-Eyed Lion (which featured Thompson and Miller), from which the series was derived.

DALLAS CBS

2 April 1978–30 April 1978; 23 September 1978–3 May 1991 The first popular prime-time serial since Peyton Place in the late 1960s, Dallas emerged as one of the most popular series of its, or any other, era. When Dallas finished first in the 1980–1981 seasonal ratings (by a wide margin), it became only the second dramatic series ever to do so (Marcus Welby, M.D. was the first). Dallas also enjoyed enormous popularity abroad; it became a runaway hit in almost every nation where it was shown, with the lone exception of Japan.

Created by David Jacobs for Lorimar Productions, Dallas was introduced in the spring of 1978 for a five-week trial run. It introduced the two generations of the Ewing family, whose huge fortunes had been made in the oil business; all of the Ewings lived at South Fork, the family's sprawling ranch in Braddock County outside of Dallas. Also introduced were the two generations of the Barnes family, the Ewings' bitter adversaries. The basic story line of the spring tryout was borrowed from Romeo and Juliet—the youngest Ewing son fell for the Barnes daughter, and married her. The original cast included: Jim Davis as John "Jock" Ewing, the head of Ewing Oil, a rough-hewn, self-made man; Barbara Bel Geddes as his stolid wife, Eleanor ("Miss Ellie") Southworth Ewing; Larry Hagman as the eldest son, John Ross (J. R.) Ewing, an unprincipled philanderer; Linda Gray as Sue Ellen (Shepard) Ewing, J. R.'s beautiful but troubled wife; Patrick Duffy as the youngest son, Bobby Ewing, considerably more honest and principled than J. R.; Victoria Principal as Bobby's beautiful (but less troubled) wife, Pamela (Barnes) Ewing; Ken Kercheval as Pamela's brother, lawyer Cliff Barnes; David Wayne as their father, Willard "Digger" Barnes, whose one-time partnership with Jock Ewing had long since disintegrated into bitter enmity (Keenan Wynn succeeded Wayne in the fall of 1978; Digger died in 1980); Charlene Tilton as Jock's granddaughter, Lucy Ewing (she was the daughter of the middle son, seldom-seen Gary); and Steve Kanaly as Ray Krebbs, the ranch foreman.

Dallas was renewed for the 1978–1979 season, and performed adequately in the 10:00 P.M. Saturday time slot. Its popularity zoomed, however, later in the season when it was moved to Fridays at 10:00 P.M. The Ewing-Barnes rivalry remained a major story line; after Digger's death, his son Cliff waged an incessant, but unsuccessful, campaign to destroy Ewing Oil. Other story lines also began to develop, particularly those involving the Ewings themselves: J. R. Ewing became one of fiction's most dastardly villains as he schemed to destroy his enemies, betray his friends, outmaneuver his brothers, and even to institutionalize his wife. The stormy marriage between J. R. and Sue Ellen would dissolve, only to be reestablished. Bobby and Pamela's marriage would also crumble, with some behind-the-scenes assistance from J. R. The family would be shocked at Jock's revelation that Ray Krebbs was his illegitmate son. The family would later learn of Jock's death in South America (in real life, Jim Davis had died in March 1981).

Dallas's most effective ploy, however, was the introduction of a cliffhanger ending to each season, one which was designed to keep the audience in suspense during six long months of reruns. The most famous of these climaxed the 1979–1980 season; at the end of the final episode, J. R., working late at the office, was shot in the chest. The "Who Shot J. R.?" mystery generated worldwide publicity, and was resolved during the first five weeks of the 1980–1981 season. J. R., it turned out, had been wounded, but not killed; his wife, Sue Ellen, became the prime suspect. However, it was revealed on the fifth show that Sue Ellen's younger sister, Kristin (played by Mary Crosby), who had had an affair with J. R., had fired the gun. That episode, telecast 21 November 1980, was then the most widely watched TV program of all time (it would later be topped by the finale of *M*A*S*H* in 1983). To help insure secrecy up to the last minute, at least five alternate endings were filmed—Kristin, Sue Ellen, Cliff, Ellie, and Jock were all filmed shooting J. R.—and the one with Kristin was delivered to the network on the day of the broadcast.

Subsequent seasons ended with other cliffhangers, but none proved quite as exciting as the first one. The 1980–1981 season ended with Cliff Barnes's discovery of a body floating in the Ewings' pool (it was Kristin's). The 1981–1982 season was capped with Cliff's attempted suicide (he recovered), and the 1982–1983 season came to a close with J. R., Sue Ellen, their son, and Ray Krebbs trapped in the burning South Fork mansion (all were safely rescued). The 1983–1984 season cliffhanger offered a variation of the "Who Shot J. R.?" ploy, as an unidentified assailant stalked J. R. in his office and fired a gun through his chair; unfortunately, Bobby Ewing was seated in his brother's chair at the time. Bobby survived, but in the fall it was revealed that it was he, not J. R., who had been stalked; his wife's half-sister, Katherine Wentworth (played by Morgan Brittany from 1982 to 1984) was the culprit.

Other members of the original cast began to depart. In the fall of 1984 Donna Reed succeeded Barbara Bel Geddes as Miss Ellie; Bel Geddes had been ill, and wished to leave the series. However, the substitution never really worked, and Bel Geddes was persuaded to return to her role in the fall of 1985 (Reed later sued for breach of contract, and the case was settled for an undisclosed seven-figure sum).

Patrick Duffy announced his departure from Dallas in 1985; at the end of the season, he was apparently killed while trying to save Pam from a hit-and-run driver (again, Katherine Wentworth was at the wheel). Charlene Tilton also left the show at that time, though she would return for two more seasons beginning in 1988. It became obvious during the 1985–1986 season that Dallas just wasn't the same without the two Ewing brothers; the show's ratings began to decline, as the series slipped from second to sixth place. Larry Hagman and the show's producers convinced Duffy to return for the 1986–1987 season. With Duffy back in the fold, they then faced the even more challenging problem of explaining his return. The solution, divulged in the fall 1986 opener, was one of the most disappointing in television history: Pamela discovers Bobby happily showering, and realizes that the entire preceding season had been only her dream.

Perhaps Pamela was never able to recover from the dream, as Victoria Principal exited the show in the spring of 1987. Two other longtime regulars followed her—Steve Kanaly in the fall of 1988 and Linda Gray in the spring of 1989. As the 1989–1990 season—Dallas's thirteenth—dawned, Larry Hagman (who by now wore the executive producer's hat as well as J.R.'s Stetson) and Ken Kercheval were the only continuously serving members of the original cast. No exteriors were filmed in Dallas that year, although the series had previously made jaunts to Europe and the Soviet Union. The series finished the season in 43rd place.

Other regulars have included: Susan Howard (1979–1987) as Donna Culver, who married Ray Krebbs; Leigh McCloskey (1979–1981) as Mitch Cooper, an idealistic medical student who married Lucy but who couldn't accept her wealth; Jared Martin (1979–1982 and 1985–1987) as Steven "Dusty" Farlow, a cowboy who had an affair with Sue Ellen (thought to have died, he returned as a bitter paraplegic); Randolph Powell (1979–1980) as Alan Beam; Susan Flannery (1980–1982) as public relations agent Leslie Stewart; Tyler Banks (1980–1983) and Omri Katz (1983–1991) as J. R. and Sue Ellen's son, John Ross Ewing; David Ackroyd (1979–1980) and Gary Shackelford (1980–1981) as Gary Ewing, J. R. and Bobby's brother; Joan Van Ark (1979–1981) as Gary's wife, Valene Ewing (Gary and Valene, of course, went west to California and their own spinoff, Knots Landing); Howard Keel (1981–1991) as Dusty's father, Clayton Farlow, who married Ellie Ewing in 1984; Audrey Landers (1981–1984) as Mitch's sister, singer Afton Cooper; Priscilla Pointer (1981–1983) as Rebecca Wentworth, mother of Cliff and Pamela; Timothy Patrick Murphy (1982–1983) as Ray Krebbs's nephew, Mickey Trotter; Lois Chiles (1982–1983) as Holly Harwood, owner of a rival oil company; John Beck (1983–1984 and 1985–1986) as Mark Graison, who fell for Pamela after her divorce from Bobby; Deborah Tranelli as Bobby's secretary, Phyllis; Debbie Rennard as J. R.'s secretary, Sly; Christopher Atkins (1983–1984) as Peter Richards, a psychology student who had been John Ross's camp counselor; Priscilla Beaulieu Presley (1983–1988) as Bobby's old flame, Jenna Wade (the part had previously been played by Morgan Fairchild and Francine Tacker); Shalane McCall (1983–1988) as Jenna's daughter, Charlie Wade; Deborah Shelton (1984–1987) as Mandy Winger; Jennilee Harrison (1984–1986) as cousin Jamie Ewing, who married Cliff Barnes; Dack Rambo (1985–1987) as Jamie's brother, Jack Ewing; Joshua Harris (1984–1991) as Christopher Ewing, son of Bobby and Pam; Barbara Carrera (1985–1986) as shipping magnate Angelica Nero; Sheree J. Wilson (1986–1990) as April Stevens, ex-wife of Jack, who married Bobby and was later killed; Steve Forrest (1986–1987) as Ben Stivers (also known as Wes Parmalee, who claimed to be Jock Ewing); Jack Scalia (1987–1988) as banker Nicholas Pearce, who had an affair with Sue Ellen; Bert Remsen (1987–1988) as wildcatter Harrison "Dandy" Dandridge; Leigh Taylor-Young (1987–1988) as Kimberly Cryder; Amy Stock (1987–1988) as Lisa Alden, who claimed to be the mother of Christopher Ewing; Andrew Stevens (1987–1989) as Casey Denault; Michele Scarabelli (1987–1988) as Connie Hall; Karen Kopins (1987–1988) as Kay Lloyd; Sherril Lynn Rettino as Jackie, Cliff Barnes's secretary; George Kennedy (1988–1991) as Carter McKay, who bought Ray Krebbs's ranch; Kimberly Foster (1989–1991) as Michelle Stevens, April's younger sister; Cathy Podewell (1989–1991) as Cally Harper, who married J. R.; Sasha Mitchell (1989–1991) as James Richard Beaumont, who turned out to be J.R.'s long-lost son; and Michael Wilding as Alex Barton.

Barbara Bel Geddes ceased appearing as a regular after the 1989–1990 season. Added to the cast the following fall were Susan Lucci (in her first prime-time series role) as Sheila Foley; Deidre Imershein as Sheila's daughter, Jory; Gayle Hunnicutt as James's mother, Vanessa; Barbara Eden (Larry Hagman's former costar on I Dream of Jeannie) as oil baroness LeeAnn de la Vega, who had been impregnated by J. R. many years earlier and now schemed to gain control of Ewing Oil; Paul Ganus as Derrick; Jeri Gaile as Rose McKay, Carter's wife; and Padraic Duffy (son of Patrick Duffy) as Mark Harris.

In addition to the spinoff, Knots Landing, Dallas also produced a host of imitators (in the fall of 1983 the three networks scheduled seven prime-time serials), and even a spoof (see Filthy Rich). A two-hour movie, "Dallas: The Early Years" (23 March 1986, CBS), set in the 1930s, filled in much of the "backstory" of the series, and starred Dale Midkiff and Molly Hagan as the young Jock and Ellie Ewing.

DALTON'S CODE OF VENGEANCE NBC

27 JULY 1986–24 AUGUST 1986 This four-week summer show can barely be called a series. It was derived from two TV-movies that starred Charles Taylor as drifter David Dalton, a Vietnam veteran: "Code of Vengeance," telecast 30 June 1985, and "Dalton: Code of Vengeance II," shown 11 May 1986. The former film was cut in half to make two hour episodes; two more hour shows were filmed, and the four resulting programs were shown on Sundays late in the summer of 1986.

DAMON RUNYON THEATRE CBS

16 APRIL 1955–30 JUNE 1956 Some of the episodes on this Saturday-night dramatic anthology series were based on the stories of 1920s and 1930s New York written by Damon Runyon (1884–1946).

DAN AUGUST ABC

23 SEPTEMBER 1970–26 AUGUST 1971 Set in Santa Luisa, California, this hour-long crime show starred Burt Reynolds as Detective Lieutenant Dan August, a tough young cop. With Norman Fell as Detective Sergeant Charles Wilentz; Richard Anderson as Chief George Untermeyer; Ned Romero as Detective Joe Rivera; and Ena Hartman as Katy Grant, department secretary. A Quinn Martin Production, the series was rebroadcast on CBS during the summers of 1973 and 1975, after Reynolds had become a major film star (he did Deliverance after Dan August ceased production).

DAN RAVEN NBC

23 JANUARY 1960–6 JANUARY 1961 Former child film star Skip Homeier was featured as Hollywood cop Lieutenant Dan Raven in this crime show; also featured was Dan Barton as Sergeant Burke, his assistant, and Quinn Redeker as photographer Perry Levitt. The series began as a half-hour show and was expanded to a full hour in the fall of 1960. Bobby Darin guest-starred on the fall premiere.

DANCE FEVER SYNDICATED

1979–1987 Dance contest on which couples competed for a grand prize of $25,000. The half-hour series, which originated from Los Angeles, was first hosted by Deney Terrio, and featured a panel of three guest celebrities, who judged the contestants. Freeman King was the announcer during the first season. From 1979 to 1981 couples competed in disco dancing, but as disco music began to wane, Dance Fever broadened its base and permitted couples to choose any style of dancing. Deney Terrio was succeeded as host in 1985 by Adrian Zmed (who had costarred in T. J. Hooker). By that time the grand prize had been doubled to $50,000.

DANCE PARTY

See SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY

DANCE PARTY USA USA

30 JUNE 1986–28 JUNE 1991 A modern incarnation of American Bandstand, Dance Party USA was a weekday music show for young people, with a studio audience of teenagers dancing to recorded music. The show expanded from thirty to sixty minutes early in 1988.

DANCIN’ TO THE HITS SYNDICATED

1986 Half-hour rock music series, hosted by Lorenzo Lamas, featuring a resident dance troupe (Sweet Dreams) and guest appearances by rock artists.

DANGER CBS

26 September 1950–31 May 1955 A suspense-filled dramatic anthology series. Notable guest appearances included those by Steve Allen (“Five Minutes to Die,” 15 September 1953; “Flamingo,” 10 November 1953); Carroll Baker (“Season for Murder,” 29 March 1955); Mildred Dunnock and James Dean (“Padlocks,” 9 November 1954); Lee Grant (three appearances in 1952); Grace Kelly (“Prelude to Death,” 5 February 1952); Jack Lemmon (“Sparrow Cop,” 24 July 1951); Paul Newman (“Knife in the Dark,” 7 December 1954); and Jacqueline Susann (“A Day’s Pay,” 24 August 1954). The live series originated from New York. The aura of suspense even permeated the commercial breaks, as announcer Richard Stark habitually appeared visibly shaken by the drama when he delivered the commercials. Danger was one of the first television dramatic series to make effective use of background music. Jazz guitarist Tony Mottola was hired to compose the program’s haunting theme and to score each episode. Several of these compositions later appeared on what is believed to be television’s first soundtrack album.

DANGER BAY DISNEY

1985–1992 Half-hour adventure series for children, produced in Canada and set in the Canadian Northwest, with Donnelly Rhodes as biologist Grant “Doc” Roberts, and Cristopher Crabb and Ocean Hellman as his children, Jonah and Nicole.

DANGER IS MY BUSINESS SYNDICATED

1958 People with dangerous occupations were the subjects of this documentary series produced by Lieutenant Colonel John D. Craig (whose 1938 book of the same name inspired the series) and hosted by Jack Douglas.

DANGER MAN CBS

5 April 1961–13 September 1961 Patrick McGoohan starred as NATO agent John Drake in this half-hour British import; in 1965, McGoohan returned as Drake. See Secret Agent.

DANGER THEATRE FOX

11 July 1993–22 August 1993 Robert Vaughn, appearing as the unnamed Attorney General of the United States, was the host of this half-hour series which spoofed adventure shows. Each program contained mini-episodes of “The Searcher,” which starred Diedrich Bader as The Searcher, a motorcycle-riding dimwit who offered his services to persons in trouble, and “Tropical Punch,” with Adam West as clueless Captain Mike Morgan, head of a special police unit in Hawaii, Billy Morrissette as Detective Tom McCormick, and Peter Navy Tuiasosopo as Detective Al Hamoki.

DANGEROUS ASSIGNMENT SYNDICATED

1952 Brian Donlevy starred as Steve Mitchell, government agent, in this half-hour adventure series; Donlevy originated the role on radio in 1940. Harold Knox was the producer.

DANGEROUS CURVES CBS

26 February 1992–15 December 1993 One installment of CBS’s late-night adventure umbrella series, Crime Time After Prime Time, this one was filmed on location in Dallas. It starred Lise Cutter and Michael Michele as Gina McKay and Holly Williams, two private security operatives, with Gregory McKinney as Ozzie Bird, their friend on the police force. The hour series was made available in foreign markets with more nudity than the American version.

DANGEROUS ROBIN (THE CASE OF THE DANGEROUS ROBIN) SYNDICATED

1960 Rick Jason starred as insurance investigator Robin Scott in this half-hour crime show. A karate expert, Scott eschewed firearms. Also featured was Jean Blake as Phyllis Collier, his assistant.

DANGEROUS WOMEN SYNDICATED

1991 Continuing drama set at a women's prison. With Kelli Van Londerself as Holly, a teenager convicted of murder; Maria Rangel as Maria Trent, who had killed her husband; Melanie Vincz as prostitute Crystal Fox; Lynn Hamilton as Cissie Johnson; Valerie Wildman as Faith Cronin; Katherine Justice as Rita; Stephen Liska as Officer Jack Fisher; and Randy Mancuso as the electrician, Randy Carter. The series was marketed to local stations as a weekly hour series or as two half-hours.

DANIEL BOONE NBC

24 SEPTEMBER 1964–27 AUGUST 1970 A surprisingly successful series based loosely on the life of the American pioneer who was instrumental in the settlement of Kentucky during the 1770s. Fess Parker, who owned an interest in the show, starred as Daniel Boone; a decade earlier Parker had skyrocketed to stardom in Disneyland as Davy Crockett, another American folk hero. Also featured were Ed Ames (1964–1968) as Mingo, Boone's friend, a college-educated Cherokee; Pat Blair as Rebecca Boone, Daniel's wife; Albert Salmi (1964–1965) as Yadkin, Boone's companion; Jimmy Dean (March 1967–1969) as his companion Josh Clements; Roosevelt Grier (1969–1970) as his companion Gabe Cooper, a runaway slave; Darby Hinton as Boone's son, Israel; Veronica Cartwright as Boone's daughter, Jemima; and Dallas McKennon (1968–1970) as his friend Cincinnatus. In the fall of 1977, CBS made an unsuccessful attempt to revive the character: see Young Dan'l Boone.

DANNY! SYNDICATED

1995 Hour daytime talk show hosted by Danny Bonaduce, who had achieved fame a quarter century earlier as Danny Partridge of The Partridge Family.

THE DANNY KAYE SHOW CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1963–7 JUNE 1967 Danny Kaye, an all-around entertainer perhaps best known for his work on behalf of UNICEF, hosted his own Wednesday-night variety hour for four seasons. Regulars included Harvey Korman, four-year-old Victoria Meyerink (1963–1964), youngster Laurie Ichino, the Earl Brown Singers, the Tony Charmoli Dancers, and the Paul Weston Orchestra.

THE DANNY THOMAS HOUR NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1967–10 JUNE 1968 An all-purpose hour hosted by Danny Thomas. Presentations included musical programs, comedy and variety hours, and filmed dramas. Several of the latter were noteworthy because they featured appearances by stars seldom seen on American television, such as Geraldine Chaplin ("The Scene," her only American dramatic appearance, 25 September), Horst Buchholz and May Britt ("Fear Is the Chain," 19 February), and Olivia de Havilland ("The Last Hunters," 29 January).

THE DANNY THOMAS SHOW

See FOUR STAR REVUE; MAKE ROOM FOR DADDY

DANTE NBC

3 OCTOBER 1960–10 APRIL 1961 This adventure series starred Howard Duff as Willie Dante, the ex-gambler who ran Dante's Inferno, a San Francisco nightspot. With Alan Mowbray as Stewart Styles, the maitre'd; Tom D'Andrea as Biff, Dante's man Friday; Mort Mills as Lieutenant Bob Malone. Dick Powell had previously played Dante on several episodes of Four Star Playhouse, which were later rebroadcast under the title The Best in Mystery (Alan Mowbray was also featured). This series, however, was clobbered by its competition, The Andy Griffith Show and Adventures in Paradise.

DARK ADVENTURE ABC

5 JANUARY 1953–1 JUNE 1953 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen on Monday nights; some of the presentations were rebroadcasts of shows aired on other anthologies.

DARK JUSTICE CBS

5 APRIL 1991–14 APRIL 1994 One element of the CBS late-night Crime Time After Prime Time umbrella, this one was reminiscent of the 1983–1986 ABC series Hardcastle and McCormick. Dark Justice starred Ramy Zada (1991–1993) and Bruce Abbott (1993–1994) as Nicholas Marshall, who served as a judge by day and a motorcycle-riding vigilante by night; Marshall's second career began after his wife and daughter were killed and the perpetrators escaped unpunished. Marshall had three accomplices: Clayton Prince as Jericho "Gibs" Gibson, Dick O'Neill as Arnold "Moon" Willis, and Begona Plaza (1991) as Cat Duran, who also ran a day-care center. After Cat was killed, Viviane Vives joined the group as Maria Marti; she was succeeded in 1993 by Janet Gunn as Kelly Cochran. Also featured were Carrie Anne Moss as Marshall's secretary, Tara McDonald, and Kit Kincannon as prosecutor Ken Horton. An American-Spanish coproduction, the hour show was filmed in Barcelona. It ran steadily on CBS for two and a half years, and popped up occasionally on CBS's late-night schedule in 1994.

DARK OF NIGHT DUMONT

3 OCTOBER 1952–1 MAY 1953 This half-hour mystery anthology series was seen on Friday nights. Broadcast live and on location from New York, it was produced and directed by Frank Bunetta.

DARK SHADOWS ABC

27 JUNE 1966–2 APRIL 1971 This soap opera was a radical departure from other daytime serials: it featured vampires, ghosts, haunted houses, werewolves, and other assorted Gothic surprises. Telecast in a late afternoon time slot, it was especially popular with teenagers. Set at brooding Collins House in Collinsport, Maine (exteriors were actually filmed in Newport, Rhode Island), it told the story of the Collins family. Principal players included Alexandra Moltke as Victoria Winters, a governess sent to take care of young David Collins; Louis Edmonds as Roger Collins, David's father; David Hennessy as David; Joan Bennett as Elizabeth Collins, Roger's sister; Jonathan Frid as Barnabas Collins, a 200-year-old vampire; Grayson Hall as Dr. Julia Hoffman, the physician sent to cure Barnabas who ended up falling in love with him; David Selby as Quentin Collins; Kate Jackson as Daphne Harridge; Lara Parker as Angelique; and Jerry Lacy as Reverend Trask. Toward the end of the show's five-year run the plot grew even thicker as action shifted back and forth between the 1800s and the 1960s; many performers played two roles. Dan Curtis created the serial and produced it with Robert Costello. Early in 1990 NBC announced plans to make a TV-movie and new episodes for the 1990–1991 season. See below.

DARK SHADOWS NBC

13 JANUARY 1991–22 MARCH 1991 The prime-time remake of the cult 1960s serial was considerably gorier, and more sexually explicit, than its predecessor. Dan Curtis, who had created the original series, returned as executive producer. The new cast included: Ben Cross as 200-year-old vampire Barnabas Collins; Joanna Going as the governess, Victoria Winters (Going also appeared as Josette in the flashbacks to the 1790s); Jean Simmons as Barnabas's cousin, Elizabeth Collins Stoddard (and as Naomi); Jim Fyfe as Willie Loomis, the simple-minded caretaker of Collinsport (and as Ben); Roy Thinnes as Roger Collins, Elizabeth's brother (and as Reverend Trask); Joseph Gordon-Levitt as Roger's son, David (and as Daniel Collins); former horror-movie queen Barbara Steele as Dr. Julia Hoffman (and as Countess Natalie Dupre); Ely Pouget as Roger's lover, Maggie Evans; Barbara Blackburn as Carolyn, Elizabeth's daughter, Veronica Lauren as Sarah; Lysette Anthony as Angelique; and Michael Cavanaugh as Sheriff George Patterson.

DARKROOM ABC

27 NOVEMBER 1981–15 JANUARY 1982; 24 JUNE 1982–22 JULY 1982 James Coburn was the host of this undistinguished hour anthology series of supernatural tales.

DARKWING DUCK ABC/SYNDICATED

7 SEPTEMBER 1991–11 SEPTEMBER 1993 (ABC); 1991–1993 (SYNDICATED) The hero of this cartoon from Walt Disney Television Animation was Drake Mallard, a duck who fought crime under the nom de quack of Darkwing Duck. Assisted by his daughter, Gosalyn, her pal Honker Muddlefoot, and pilot Launchpad McQuack, Darkwing kept the town of St. Canard safe from evildoers.

DASTARDLY AND MUTTLEY IN THEIR FLYING MACHINES CBS

13 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 A Saturday-morning cartoon series from Hanna-Barbera about a pair of World War I era aerial racers: Dick Dastardly and his snickering canine companion, Muttley. The main characters had been introduced in 1968 on The Wacky Races.

A DATE WITH JUDY ABC

2 JUNE 1951–23 FEBRUARY 1952; 15 JULY 1952–2 OCTOBER 1952; 7 JANUARY 1953–30 SEPTEMBER 1953 A Date with Judy began on radio in 1941, was made into a movie in 1948 (with Elizabeth Taylor) and twice came to television. The 1951 version featured Patricia Crowley (who later starred in Please Don't Eat the Daisies) as Judy Foster, all-American teenager; Jimmie Sommer as her goofy boyfriend, Ogden "Oogie" Pringle; Gene O'Donnell as her father, Melvin Foster; Anna Lee as her mother, Dora Foster; and Judson Rees as her kid brother, Randolph. The summer 1952 and 1953 versions featured an entirely new cast, except for Jimmie Sommer: Mary Linn Beller as Judy; John Gibson as Melvin; Flora Campbell as Dora; and Peter Avramo as Randolph. Both versions of the half-hour sitcom were produced and written by Aleen Leslie.

A DATE WITH LIFE NBC

10 OCTOBER 1955–29 JUNE 1956 Bay City was the setting of this fifteen-minute daytime serial, on which a new story was presented every few weeks. Logan Field appeared as newspaper editor Jim Bradley, who appeared in the stories and served as narrator; Mark Roberts later served a similar function, playing Jim's brother, Tom.

A DATE WITH THE ANGELS ABC

10 MAY 1957–29 JANUARY 1958 This domestic sitcom starred Betty White as Vickie Angel and Bill Williams as her husband, Gus Angel, an insurance agent. Burt Mustin was also featured as their elderly neighbor, Mr. Finley. Produced by Don Fedderson.

DATELINE: HOLLYWOOD ABC

3 APRIL 1967–29 SEPTEMBER 1967 Joanna Barnes interviewed celebrities on this daytime series. The show was twenty-five minutes long and was followed by a five-minute series, Children's Doctor, with pediatrician Lendon Smith.

DATELINE NBC NBC

31 MARCH 1992– After countless attempts through the 1970s and 1980s, NBC finally put together a newsmagazine series that lasted more than a season. Indeed, Dateline NBC proved so successful that a second weekly telecast was added in June 1994, followed by a third one in September 1994. Jane Pauley and Stone Phillips were the busy coanchors. The series generated much controversy for a November 1992 segment, "Waiting to Explode?" In an effort to show that design defects of certain GM pickup trucks caused the fuel tanks to explode in accidents, explosive charges were detonated under the trucks while a collision was filmed. General Motors exposed the fakery, and Stone Phillips later apologized on camera. The incident eventually led to the departure of NBC News president Michael Gartner.

THE DATING GAME ABC
20 DECEMBER 1965–6 JULY 1973
THE NEW DATING GAME SYNDICATED
1973; 1977–1980; 1986; 1988 Jim Lange hosted the network incarnations of this game show, which typically featured one young woman (the "bachelorette") and three young men seated behind a screen, hidden from her view. By asking questions of the men, the bachelorette chose the one she'd most like to go out with. The lucky couple was then sent on a date—with a chaperone, of course. Occasionally the tables were turned: one bachelor would quiz three hopeful young women. The series enjoyed a seven-year daytime run and was also seen during prime time from 1966 to 1970. The syndicated version appeared in 1973, 1977, 1986, and 1988. Jim Lange hosted the first two versions. Elaine Joyce emceed the 1986 version, and Jeff MacGregor the 1988 version, which was titled The All-New Dating Game. The Dating Game was the first of several game shows developed by Chuck Barris, the best known of which would include The Newlywed Game and The Gong Show.

DAVE AND CHARLEY NBC
7 JANUARY 1952–28 MARCH 1952 This fifteen-minute daytime comedy series featured Cliff Arquette (as Charley Weaver) and Dave Willock (as himself).

DAVE ELMAN'S CURIOSITY SHOP SYNDICATED
1952 Dave Elman hosted this half-hour human interest series, which was essentially a video version of his popular radio show, Hobby Lobby, on which people with unusual hobbies or talents demonstrated them. See also Charley Weaver's Hobby Lobby.

THE DAVE GARROWAY SHOW NBC
2 OCTOBER 1953–25 JUNE 1954 In addition to hosting the Today show, Dave Garroway also found time to host this Friday-night half-hour variety series. Regulars included Jack Haskell, Jill Corey, Shirley Harmer, Cliff Norton, and dancers Ken Spaulding and Diane Sinclair; Haskell and Norton had worked previously with Garroway on his first series, Garroway at Large.

THE DAVE KING SHOW NBC
27 MAY 1959–23 SEPTEMBER 1959 British singer Dave King hosted this summer replacement for The Perry Como Show.

THE DAVE THOMAS COMEDY SHOW CBS
29 MAY 1990–25 JUNE 1990 SCTV alumnus Dave Thomas was given his own half-hour show on Mondays, comprised mostly of short skits. Anson Downes, Fran Ryan, and Teresa Ganzel were also featured.

DAVE'S WORLD CBS
20 SEPTEMBER 1993– This half-hour sitcom set in Miami was based loosely on the life of columnist Dave Barry, whose humorous observations on life were nationally syndicated. With Harry Anderson as Dave Barry; DeLane Matthews as his wife, Beth; Zane Carney as their older son, Tommy; Andrew Ducote as their younger son, Willie; Shadoe Stevens as Dave's friend and editor, Kenny Becket; Meshach Taylor as Dave's newly divorced pal, plastic surgeon Sheldon Baylor; J. C. Wendel as Dave's assistant, Mia; and Tammy Lauren (1994– ) as Beth's sister, Julie. Patrick Warburton joined the cast in 1995 as Eric, Mia's boyfriend.

DAVEY AND GOLIATH SYNDICATED
1960–1965 A long-running series of fifteen-minute morality lessons for children. The central characters are young Davey Hanson and Goliath, his talking dog. Davey and Goliath was one of the few series which employed "pixillation," the process by which small models appear to move by themselves; this is usually accomplished by shooting a few frames of film, physically moving each model a fraction of an inch, then shooting a few more frames, and so on.

DAVID BRINKLEY'S JOURNAL NBC

11 OCTOBER 1961–26 AUGUST 1963 This highly acclaimed public affairs program won both an Emmy and a Peabody Award in 1962. NBC newscaster David Brinkley covered a wide variety of topics, heavy and light, during its two-season run. Brinkley himself appeared live, though filmed segments were regularly featured. One of the show's researchers was Marya McLaughlin, who later became an on-camera correspondent for CBS News.

DAVID CASSIDY—MAN UNDERCOVER NBC

2 NOVEMBER 1978–18 JANUARY 1979 Hour crime show starring David Cassidy as Officer Dan Shay, an undercover police officer in Los Angeles, with Wendy Rastatter as his wife, Joanne Shay; Elizabeth Reddin as their young daughter, Cindy; Simon Oakland as his commanding officer, Lieutenant Abrams; and Ray Vitte as T. J. Epps. David Gerber was the executive producer for David Gerber Productions in association with Columbia Pictures TV. A few episodes were telecast during the summer of 1979.

THE DAVID FROST REVUE SYNDICATED

1971 A half hour of satirical comedy with host David Frost and regulars Jack Gilford, Marcia Rodd, and George S. Irving.

THE DAVID FROST SHOW SYNDICATED

7 JULY 1969–14 JULY 1972 A ninety-minute talk show hosted by David Frost, the British television star who became familiar to American audiences on That Was the Week That Was. As host, Frost chose not to sit behind a desk, relying instead on a clipboard to hold his notes. Seemingly able to concentrate totally on each guest, he appeared to be equally fascinated by all of them. During the three-year run of his American talk show, Frost continued to appear regularly on London Weekend Television. To accommodate his hectic schedule, the show was taped in New York Mondays through Thursdays (two shows were taped each Wednesday). Frost was then free to commute back to London each weekend. About 750 American shows were taped; among the most famous guests were Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, and Johnny Carson. Music was provided by the Billy Taylor Orchestra; the show's theme was composed by George Martin. The series was syndicated by Westinghouse. After the show ceased production in 1972, Frost was seldom seen on American TV until 1977, when his multipart series of interviews with former President Richard Nixon was shown on many stations.

THE DAVID LETTERMAN SHOW NBC

23 JUNE 1980–24 OCTOBER 1980 Freewheeling comedian David Letterman, who had frequently substituted for Johnny Carson on the Tonight show, was turned loose in his own daytime show, which by most accounts was a disaster. It was a live show with no fixed format, one which mixed typical talk-show celebrity interviews with intentionally boring satirical interviews. Letterman also involved (some would say exploited) the studio audience; he once sent a hapless visitor out for sandwiches and coffee, and on another occasion persuaded a woman to come onstage to host the show while he departed. A large crew of regulars was also on hand: Valri Bromfield, Edie McClurg, Bob Sarlatte, Wil Shriner, Paul Raley, and Mark Goldstein. Other contributors included Edwin Newman, Senator William Proxmire, Jimmy Breslin, Jon-Michael Reed, and Karen Blaker.

The series lasted only four months. It began as a ninety-minute program, but was cut to sixty minutes as of 4 August. As various network affiliates began to drop the show, and as the ratings slipped below those of the game shows it had replaced, NBC pulled the plug on The David Letterman Show (ironically, Letterman and his writers won two Emmys that season). Fortunately, the network didn't give up completely on the comedian. He returned early in 1982 at the other end of the broadcast day (see Late Night with David Letterman).

THE DAVID MCLEAN SHOW SYNDICATED

1970 A short-lived talk show, hosted by David McLean.

THE DAVID NIVEN SHOW NBC

7 APRIL 1959–15 SEPTEMBER 1959 A half-hour dramatic anthology series, hosted by (and occasionally starring) David Niven. Vincent Fennelly was the producer.

DAVID NIVEN'S WORLD SYNDICATED

1976 On this documentary series adventurers tried to set records in various fields of endeavor. Hosted by David Niven, the series's executive producer was Aubrey Buxton.

THE DAVID STEINBERG SHOW CBS

19 JULY 1972–16 AUGUST 1972 A five-week summer variety hour, hosted by comedian David Steinberg. Born in Manitoba, Steinberg was a member of the Second City comedy troupe in Chicago and frequently appeared on the Tonight show during the late 1960s. In 1969 he hosted The Music Scene.

THE DAVID SUSSKIND SHOW (OPEN END) SYNDICATED

1958–1987 This long-running New York–based talk show was hosted by theatrical and television producer David Susskind. Typically, each show centered around one topic and featured four to seven guests, who often seemed to spend much of their time interrupting each other. In 1960 Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev appeared on the program as the sole guest; the interview was generally criticized as dull. The show was originally titled Open End because it had no fixed time limit: guests could chatter on as long as they (or Susskind) wished. By the early 1960s a two-hour format was established; this was subsequently reduced to one hour and later expanded to ninety minutes. The show was seen on educational outlets in many markets.

DAVIS RULES ABC/CBS

27 JANUARY 1991–9 APRIL 1991; 7 AUGUST 1991–11 SEPTEMBER 1991 (ABC); 30 DECEMBER 1991–8 JULY 1992 (CBS) A 90s version of My Three Sons, this sitcom starred Randy Quaid as grammar-school principal Dwight Davis, a widower trying to raise his three boys with the help of his father. Also featured were Jonathan Winters as his wacky dad, Gunny Davis, a former Marine; Trevor Bullock as eldest son, Robbie; Luke Edwards as son Charlie; Nathan Watt as son Ben; Patricia Clarkson as Dwight's colleague and lady friend, Cosmo Yergin; Tamayo Otsuki as Mrs. Elaine Yamagami, the assistant principal of the Pomahac School; and Rigoberto Jiminez as Robbie's pal Rigo. When the series shifted networks the following season there were a few changes. Quaid, Winters, Edwards, and Watt were retained from the former cast. Dwight Davis now had only two sons of his own to care for, but the teenage son of some college pals moved into the Davis household. Vonni Ribisi played the new arrival, Skinner. Bonnie Hunt was added as Dwight's sister, Gwen, who helped him care for the brood, and Kelly Rutherford was seen occasionally as Dwight's love interest, Erika. Danny Jacobson and Norma Safford Vela created the series.

DAY BY DAY NBC

29 FEBRUARY 1988–10 MAY 1988; 30 OCTOBER 1988–25 JUNE 1989 On this half-hour sitcom a yuppie St. Louis couple quit their jobs to open a home day-care center. With Doug Sheehan as Brian Harper, ex-stockbroker; Linda Kelsey as Karen Harper, ex-lawyer; C. B. Barnes as their teenaged son, Ross; Courtney Thorne-Smith as Kristin Carlson, the Harpers' day-care aide, whom Ross fell for; and Julia Louis-Dreyfus as Eileen Swift, a former colleague of Brian's. Appearing as the Harpers' preschool charges were Chris Finefrock as Justin O'Donnell; Christine Healey as Nina; Jack Blessing as Kevin; Thora as Molly; Garrett Taylor as Blake; Sara and Erin Leonard as Emily; and J. P. Dizon as Dana.

DAY IN COURT ABC

13 OCTOBER 1958–24 JUNE 1965 On this half-hour daytime series of courtroom dramas, each case was based on a real case from which the show's writers developed an outline. The actual dialogue was largely improvised by the participants: professional actors portrayed the litigants and witnesses, while real attorneys appeared as the lawyers. The presiding judges were played by Edgar Allan Jones, Jr. (a law professor at UCLA) and by William Gwinn (a former law professor). Created by Selig J. Seligman, the show was televised locally in Los Angeles before going network in 1958.

DAY ONE ABC

7 MARCH 1993–11 JULY 1994; 5 JANUARY 1995–21 SEPTEMBER 1995 Hour newsmagazine show, so named because it was originally televised on Sunday evenings. Forrest Sawyer was the original anchor. When the series returned in early 1995 in a Thursday slot, Forrest Sawyer was joined by a coanchor, Diane Sawyer (no relation).

THE DAY THE UNIVERSE CHANGED PBS

13 OCTOBER 1986–15 DECEMBER 1986 Host James Burke examined the relationship between major scientific advancements and social events on this ten-week series. Burke had previously hosted Connections, a 1979 series on technology.

THE DAYS AND NIGHTS OF MOLLY DODD NBC/LIFETIME

21 MAY 1987–13 AUGUST 1987; 24 MARCH 1988–29 JUNE 1988 (NBC); 27 FEBRUARY 1989–8 AUGUST 1991 (LIFETIME) Jay Tarses, cocreator of Buffalo Bill, again came up with a series that was a critical success but a commercial disappointment. Certainly, it was one of the best of the sub-genre of late 80s TV known as "dramadies," which attempted to combine dramatic and sitcom elements. Blair Brown starred as Molly Dodd, a divorced New Yorker hoping to find Mr. Right while coping with her mother's well-intended intrusions. Allyn Ann McLerie played Molly's meddlesome mom, Florence Bickford; William Converse-Roberts dropped in and out as Molly's ex, jazz musician Fred Dodd; and James Greene was Davey McQuinn, the advice-dispensing elevator man in Molly's apartment building who was never able to land his car even with the floor. Occasionally featured were Sandy Faison (1987–1988) as Molly's sister, Mamie; Victor Garber (1987–1988) as realtor Dennis Widmer, Molly's one-time boss and lover, and David Strathairn (1988–1990) as bookseller Moss Goodman, Molly's next boss. Following its NBC cancellation, Molly Dodd moved to the Lifetime cable network, where reruns and new episodes were shown. In the spring of 1990 Molly discovered that she was pregnant, but didn't know whether the father was Moss (with whom she'd been stranded in an elevator) or her new boyfriend, Detective Nathaniel Hawthorne (played by Richard Lawson). Her plans to marry Hawthorne were thwarted by the character's sudden death early in 1991. The baby, Emily, turned out to be Hawthorne's. By that time Molly had acquired new neighbors, Ron and Ramona Luchesse (John Pankow and J. Smith-Cameron), and the services of Davey's son, Jimmy (James Gleason), who was learning the fine points of the doorman business from his dad.

DAY'S END ABC

6 MARCH 1989–2 JUNE 1989 Another of ABC's attempts to find a late-night series to schedule after Nightline, this one was a sixty-minute magazine show cohosted by Spencer Christian and Ross Shafer; Shafer had previously hosted The Late Show on the Fox network.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES NBC

8 NOVEMBER 1965– "Like sands through the hourglass, so are the days of our lives. . . ." So begins this popular daytime serial, created in 1965 by Ted Corday, Irna Phillips, and Allan Chase. Ted Corday died shortly after the show began; his wife, Betty Corday, then became the executive producer. Subsequent executive producers have included H. Wesley Kenney, Jack Herzberg, Al Rabin, and Ken Corday. Among the numerous head writers have been Peggy Phillips and Kenneth Rosen, William Bell, Pat Falken Smith, Ann Marcus, Elizabeth Harrower, Ruth Brook Flippen, Nina Laemmle, Gary Tomlin and Michele Poteet-Lisanti, Smith (again), Margaret DePriest, Sheri Anderson, Leah Laiman, Anne Howard Bailey, Gene Palumbo, Richard Allen and Beth Millstein, and James Reilly. The series enjoyed its peak popularity in the early 1970s. Days of Our Lives began as a half-hour show; in April 1975 it became TV's second soap opera to expand to a full hour. The late United States Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall was said to be among Days' biggest fans.

Set in the town of Salem, the serial was built around the Horton family—Tom and Alice, their five children, assorted grandchildren, and (as children often grow up faster on soaps than on real life) assorted great- and great-great-grandchildren. The large cast has included: Macdonald Carey as Dr. Tom Horton, chief of internal medicine at University Hospital (Carey played the role until his death in March 1994; his voice continued to be used for the series' introduction, however); Frances Reid as his wife, Alice; John Lupton as their eldest son, Dr. Tommy Horton, who was believed missing in action in Korea but turned up in town having undergone plastic surgery (Tommy seems simply to have disappeared from the story; writer De Priest confessed that Tommy is the "legendary character who went upstairs and never came down"); Pat Huston and Patricia Barry as their daughter Addie Olson, who died; John Clarke as their son, Mickey, a lawyer; Maree Cheatham as their daughter Marie Horton (Marie decided to become a nun and was written out; several years later she returned, played first by Kate Woodville, later by Lanna Saunders); Paul Carr and Ed Mallory as their youngest son, Dr. Bill Horton (Bill was written out in the major shakeup that took place in 1979–1980; the character briefly returned a few years later, played by Christopher Stone); Floy Dean, Susan Flannery, Susan Oliver, Rosemary Forsyth, and Jaime Lyn Bauer as psychiatrist Dr. Laura Spencer, who married Mickey Horton; Steven Mines and Clive Clerk as David Martin; Denise Alexander and Bennye Gatteys as Susan Martin, who killed David; Regina Gleason as Kitty Horton, who married Tommy; Heather North, Martha Smith, and Pamela Roylance as Sandy Horton, daughter of Tommy and Kitty; Dick Colla, Don Briscoe, and Ron Husmann as Tony Merritt, Marie Horton's boyfriend; Robert Knapp as Ben Olson, Addie's husband; Charla Doherty, Catherine Dunn, Cathy Ferrar, and Susan Seaforth as Julie Olson, daughter of Addie and Ben; Robert Carraway, Mike Farrell, Robert Hogan, and Ryan MacDonald as Julie's first husband, Scott Banning, who died in a construction accident; Mark Tapscott as Bob Anderson, Julie's second husband; Nancy Wickwire (who died in 1973) and Corinne Conley as Bob's former wife, Phyllis Anderson; Brigid Bazlen, Karin Wolfe, Carla Borelli, Nancy Stephens, Barbara Stanger, Susan Keller, and Melinda Fee as Bob and Phyllis's daughter, Mary Anderson.

In 1970 Bill Hayes joined the cast as former nightclub singer Doug Williams. Doug married Addie (Horton) Olson, who became ill with leukemia, and was later killed trying to save their baby from the path of an oncoming truck. After Addie's death Doug fell for her daughter, Julie Olson. Following a long courtship, Doug became her third husband in one of TV's biggest weddings on 1 October 1976 (in real life Bill Hayes and Susan Seaforth were married in October 1974). After Doug and Julie were divorced in 1979, Doug married his brother's widow, Lee Carmichael (played by Brenda Benet, who committed suicide in 1982). Doug and Julie later remarried. Bill Hayes also appeared as his brother, Byron, though the part was credited to George Spelvin, in deference to theatrical tradition. On the show, Doug became the proprietor of Doug's Place, where he occasionally sang a few numbers. Featured there were Marty Davich as Marty, the pianist, and Don Frabotta as Dave, the bartender. Hayes and Seaforth left the show in April 1984 (Susan Seaforth Hayes returned later).

Other regulars have included: Joyce Easton as Janet Banning, Scott Banning's first wife; Bobby Eilbacher, Eddie Rayden, Stuart Lee, Alan Decker, John Amour, Dick DeCoit, Wesley Eure, Paul Coufos, and Michael Weiss as Michael Horton, son of Mickey and Laura Horton; Flip Mark, James Carroll Jordan, and Stephen Schnetzer as Steve Olson, Julie's brother; Natasha Ryan, Tammy Taylor, and Kristian Alfonso as Hope Williams, daughter of Addie and Doug Williams (Alfonso later returned as Gina, an amnesiac); Stanley Kamel as Eric Peters; Peter Brown as Eric's brother, Dr. Greg Peters; Jeanne Bates as Anne Peters; Herb Nelson as Phil Peters; Margaret Mason and Elaine Princi as Linda Anderson, Mickey Horton's secretary and lover; Victor Holchak as lawyer Jim Phillips, who eventually wed Linda; Coleen Gray as Diane Hunter; Jed Allan as lawyer Don Craig; Suzanne Rogers (also known as Suzanne Rogers Groom) as Maggie Simmons, who married Mickey Horton in 1986 (Rogers's bout with the debilitating muscular disease myasthenia gravis was incorporated into the story line); Kaye Stevens as Jeri Clayton, a singer at Doug's Place; Patty Weaver as Trish Clayton, Jeri's daughter; Joe Gallison as Dr. Neal Curtis; Mary Frann as Amanda (Howard) Peters; Jan Jordan as Helen Cantrell, Jim Phillips's secretary; Jeffrey Williams, Steve Doubet, Richard Guthrie, and Gregg Marx as David Martin Banning, Julie's illegitimate son (by David Martin), who married Trish Clayton; Burt Douglas as Sam Monroe; Helen Funai as Kim Douglas; Robert Brubaker as John Martin; K. T. Stevens as Helen Martin; Mark Miller as Howard Jones; Robert Clary as Robert LeClair; Garry Marshall as Bert Atwater; Jack Denbo as Jack Clayton; Brooke Bundy as Rebecca North; Joan Van Ark as Janene Whitney; John Aniston as Dr. Eric Richard; John Howard as Cliff Peterson; Eloise Hardt as Rita Beacon; Maidie Norman as Gracie Jones; Graham Brown as Jeffrey Jones; Susan Adams as Meredith Marshall; Tina Andrews, Rose Fonseca, and Diane Sommerfield as Valerie Grant; Ketty Lester as Helen Grant; Michael Dwight-Smith and Roger Aaron Brown as Danny Grant, manager of Shenaningans, a nightspot; Lawrence Cook as Paul Grant; Paul Henry Itkin as Johnny Collins; Mike Warren as Jerry Davis; Fred Beir as Larry Atwood; John Lombardo as Fred Barton; Jocelyn Somers as Jean Barton; Chip Fields as Toni Johnson; Tom Scott as Jim Bradley; Josh Taylor as Chris Kositchek; Deidre Hall as Dr. Marlena Evans (in 1992, a spinoff soap starring Hall was considered; in 1994 Marlena found herself possessed by the devil); Andrea Hall Lovell (Deidre's twin sister) as Samantha Evans, Marlena's twin sister; Fran Ryan as Rosie Carlson; Jenny Sherman as Betty Worth; William H. Bassett as Dr. Walter Griffin; Cindy Fisher as Patti Griffin; Stephen Manley as Billy Barton; Ken Sansom as Dr. Powell; Martha Nix and Elizabeth Storm as Janice Horton; Kim Durso, Debbie Lytton, Lisa Trusel, and Camilla Scott as Melissa Anderson, daughter of Jim and Linda Phillips, who was adopted by Linda's second husband, Bob Anderson; Frederic Downs as Hank; Paul Savior as Sam; Tom Brown as Nathaniel Curtis; Dee Carroll as Adele Hamilton; Pauline Myers as Mrs. Jackson; Sid Conrad as Ribitz; Ben DiTosti as Ben; Myron Natwick as Rick; Peter Brandon as Dr. Cunningham; Peter MacLean as Dr. Paul Whitman; Gary McGurrin as Roy Hazeltine; Francine York as Lorraine Temple; Elizabeth MacRae as Phyllis Curtis; Tracey E. Bregman as Donna Craig; Diana Douglas as Mrs. Evans; Corinne Michaels as Joann Barnes; Elizabeth Brooks as Theresa Harper; Gail Johnson as Mimi; Amanda Jones as Dora; Adrienne LaRussa and Eileen Barnett as Brooke Hamilton (Barnett also appeared as Stephanie Woodruff); Meegan King as Pete Curtis; Robin Pohle as Amy Kositchek; Suzanne Zenor as Margo Horton.

Also: Quinn Redeker as evil Alex Marshall; John McCann as Tony Kingman; George McDaniel as Dr. Jordan Barr; Jennifer Peterson, Melissa Brennan, and Melissa Reeves as Jennifer Rose Horton, daughter of Bill and Laura Horton; Robert Pickering as Dr. Goddard; John Stevenson as Terry Gilbert; Dianne Harper as Leslie

James, Chris Kositchek's girlfriend; Jack Coleman as "The Salem Strangler" (who turned out to be Chris's brother, Jake); Brett Williams, Paul Keenan, and David Wallace as Todd Chandler; Deborah Dalton as Cassie Burns; Barbara Crampton as Trista Evans; Tyler Murray as Carol Welles; Hal Riddle and Charles Bateman as Max Jarvis; William Joyce as Kellam Chandler; Jean Bruce Scott as Jessica Blake, daughter of Alex Marshall and Marie Horton; Howard Sylvester as Warren Heywood; Richard Hill as Kyle McCullough; Stephen Brooks and Scott Palmer as Joshua Fallon; Wayne Northrop and Drake Hogestyn as police officer Roman Brady, who married Marlena Evans (when Northrop returned to the show, the producers decided to keep Hogestyn also; it developed that Hogestyn's Roman Brady was really an impostor, and that his true identity was John Black); Lane Caudell as singer Woody King; Erick Petersen, Dick Billingsley, and Rick Hearst as Scotty Banning, son of David Banning and Trish Clayton; Gloria Loring as Liz Chandler DiMera; Joe Mascolo as Stephano DiMera; Thaao Penghlis as Stephano's son, Anthony DiMera; Philece Sampler as Stephano's daughter (and Anthony's half-sister), Renee Dumonde; James Reynolds as detective Abe Carver; Anne Marie Martin (formerly known as Eddie Benton) as lawyer Gwen Davies; Catherine Mary Stewart and Mary Beth Evans as Roman's sister, nurse Kayla Brady; John deLancie as Eugene Bradford, a psychic; Andrea Barber, Christie Clark, and Tracy Middendorf as Carrie Brady; Jason Bernard as Preston Wade; Kim Hamilton as Penelope Wade; Shirley Deburgh as Delia Abernathy; Leann Hunley as Anna Brady DiMera; Perry Bullington and Richard Bergman as Anna's brother, Brett Fredericks; Dorothy James as Esther Kensington; Renee Jones as Nikki Wade; Katie Krell, Aimee Brooks, Shana Lane-Block, and Alli Brown as Sarah Horton, Maggie's daughter (by artificial insemination); Shawn Stevens as Oliver Martin; H. DEAD AT 21 MTV

9 JUNE 1994–24 DECEMBER 1994 MTV's first adventure series, punctuated by quick cuts and a throbbing music score, starred Jack Noseworthy as twenty-year-old Ed Bellamy, who learned that he was a "neurocybernaut": a microchip had been placed in his brain at birth as part of a government plan to create smarter humans. He further learned that the plan had not worked as intended, and that most neurocybernauts died by the age of twenty-one. Ed's mission was to find other neurocybernauts and their creator, Victor Heisenberg. The half-hour series also featured Lisa Dean Ryan as Maria, who assisted him on his quest, and Whip Hubley as Major Winston, a government agent who tried to track him down.

DEADLINE SYNDICATED

1959 An anthology series about journalists, hosted and narrated by Paul Stewart.

DEADLINE FOR ACTION ABC

THE DEAN MARTIN SHOW (THE DEAN MARTIN COMEDY HOUR) NBC
16 SEPTEMBER 1965–24 MAY 1974 A variety hour hosted by Dean Martin. Few would have predicted that when the comedy team of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis broke up in 1956, it would be Martin who would have the more successful solo career. Martin demonstrated, however, that he could not only do comedy but could also sing and act; he appeared in more than thirty films after splitting with Lewis. By not taking himself too seriously, Martin became an enormously popular television personality. In 1970 it was reported that he and NBC negotiated the largest contract in history between a network and a star. The TV show itself required little of Martin: he usually spent only one day a week rehearsing and taping. It was obvious to viewers that Martin was reading from cue cards (as do most stars on variety shows), but it was equally obvious that he was having a good time doing the show. Several of the shows were celebrity "roasts," set at a banquet table, in which the guest of honor was showered with insults by other celebs. Regulars on the series included pianist Ken Lane (1965–1972), Kay Medford, Lou Jacobi, The Golddiggers, Marian Mercer (1971–1972), Tom Bosley (1971–1972), Rodney Dangerfield (1972–1973), Dom DeLuise (1972–1973), and Nipsey Russell (1972–1974). Among the several attractive young women who assisted Martin in various comedy sketches were Kathi King, Diana Lee, Betty Rosebrock, Diane Shatz, and Melissa Stafford. Music was provided by Les Brown and his Band of Renown. Greg Garrison produced the series, which was entitled The Dean Martin Comedy Hour during its final season.

DEAR DETECTIVE CBS
28 MARCH 1979–18 APRIL 1979 Four-week miniseries based on the French film Tendre Poulet. With Brenda Vaccaro as Sergeant Kate Hudson, a detective with the Los Angeles Police Department; Arlen Dean Snyder as Richard Wayland, her boyfriend, a professor of Greek philosophy; Ron Silver as Sergeant Schwartz; Michael MacRae as Sergeant Brock; John Dennis Johnston as Sergeant Clay; Jack L. Ging as Sergeant Chuck Morris; Lesley Woods as Mrs. Hudson, Kate's mother; Jet Yardum as Lisa, Kate's daughter by a previous marriage. Dean Hargrove and Roland Kibbee were the producers.

DEAR JOHN . . . NBC
6 OCTOBER 1988–22 JULY 1992 Half-hour sitcom starring Judd Hirsch as John Lacey, who moved into an apartment and joined a singles group after his wife left him a "Dear John" letter. Appearing as the other members of the One-Two-One Club at the Rego Park (N.Y.) Community Center were: Jane Carr as Louise Mercer, the British moderator; Jere Burns as self-proclaimed macho stud Kirk Morris; Isabella Hofmann as the seemingly well-adjusted Kate McCarron; Harry Groener (1988–1991) as the terminally shy Ralph Drang; and Billie Bird as the sex-crazed biddy, Mrs. Philbert. Susan Walters joined the cast in the spring of 1990 as Mary Beth Sutton, a new member of the club. Tom Willett also appeared as Mrs. Philbert's quiet boyfriend, Tom. Olivia Brown signed on early in 1991 as Denise, and William O'Leary was seen as Ben, the janitor. Ed Weinberger, Hal Cooper, and Rod Parker were the executive producers.

DEAR PHOEBE NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1954–2 SEPTEMBER 1955 A situation comedy about a former psychology professor who got a job writing the advice-to-the-lovelorn column (under the name Phoebe Goodheart) for a Los Angeles newspaper. With Peter Lawford as Bill Hastings; Marcia Henderson as sports columnist Mickey Riley, his girlfriend; Charles Lane as Mr. Fosdick, the editor; and Joe Corey as Humphrey, the copyboy.

DEATH VALLEY DAYS SYNDICATED

1952–1970; 1974 This long-running series began on radio in 1930; it was one of television's few western anthology series. Approximately twenty new episodes were filmed each year; several were filmed on location at Death Valley. The series was hosted by Stanley Andrews from 1952 to 1965 (as the Old Ranger). Ronald Reagan succeeded him and when Reagan left for politics in 1966, he was replaced by Robert Taylor. In 1968 Taylor was succeeded by Dale Robertson (star of two previous westerns, Wells Fargo and The Iron Horse). Merle Haggard hosted the short-lived revival in 1974. The show was sponsored for many years by Twenty Mule Team Borax. It was originally produced by Darrell McGowan for Gene Autry's Flying A Productions; early episodes were directed by Stuart McGowan.

THE DEBBIE REYNOLDS SHOW NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1969–1 SEPTEMBER 1970 This unsuccessful situation comedy was NBC's attempt to rival CBS's 1968 hit, The Doris Day Show. Like Doris Day, Debbie Reynolds was a popular and talented film star, and like Day she had not appeared in a dramatic role on television before. Created by Jess Oppenheimer (I Love Lucy), the show featured Reynolds as Debbie Thompson, a housewife who longed to become a newspaperwoman; Don Chastain as her husband, Jim Thompson, a sportswriter (note the parallel between this show and I Love Lucy—in each the housewife wanted to break into her husband's line of work); Tom Bosley as accountant Bob Landers, their neighbor and Debbie's brother-in-law; Patricia Smith as Bob's wife, Charlotte Landers, Debbie's sister; Bobby Riha as Bruce Landers, Bob and Charlotte's young son; and Billy DeWolfe as accountant Delbert Deloy. Reynolds, who owned a 50 percent interest in the show, had originally been guaranteed a two-year run by NBC. Infuriated by the fact that the show was sponsored by a cigarette manufacturer, she relinquished the second-season guarantee in exchange for the network's agreement to drop the cigarette sponsorship.

DECEMBER BRIDE CBS

4 OCTOBER 1954–24 SEPTEMBER 1959 This domestic sitcom starred Spring Byington as Lily Ruskin, a widow who lived with her daughter and son-in-law; Frances Rafferty as Ruth Henshaw, her daughter; Dean Miller as architect Matt Henshaw, Ruth's husband; Harry Morgan as next-door neighbor Pete Porter, an insurance agent who constantly wisecracked about his wife, Gladys (who was never seen in the flesh); Verna Felton as Lily's comrade, Hilda Crocker. Occasionally featured was Arnold Stang, as Private Marvin Fisher, Pete's brother-in-law. Filmed at Desilu Studios before a live audience, most of the "action" in December Bride took place in the Henshaw's living room. Joel Grey guest-starred as Lily's nephew (7 December 1957 and 14 December 1957). Parke Levy created the series; Lily Ruskin was based on his own mother-in-law. In 1960 a spinoff appeared: see Pete and Gladys.

DECISION NBC

6 JULY 1958–28 SEPTEMBER 1958 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was a summer replacement for The Loretta Young Show. The premiere telecast, "The Virginian," starring James Drury, became a series in 1962.

DECISION: THE CONFLICTS OF HARRY S TRUMAN SYNDICATED

1964 Truman's presidency (1945–1953) was the subject of this half-hour documentary series.

DECOY (POLICEWOMAN DECOY) SYNDICATED

1957 Beverly Garland starred as New York policewoman Casey Jones in this half-hour crime show, apparently the first series to feature a female cop.

THE DEFENDERS CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1961–9 SEPTEMBER 1965 This high-quality series about a father-and-son defense team attracted much controversy, as well as much critical acclaim during its four-year run. The show regularly dealt with such sensitive issues as euthanasia, abortion, blacklisting, and civil disobedience. Even more atypical was the fact that the defenders occasionally lost a case. The show starred E. G. Marshall as Lawrence Preston: It was the first continuing role for Marshall, one of the most frequently seen performers on television during the 1950s. Robert Reed costarred as his Ivy League son, Kenneth Preston. Also featured were Polly Rowles (1961–1962) as their secretary, Helen Donaldson, and Joan Hackett (1961–1963) as Ken's girlfriend, social worker Joan Miller. Among the many guest stars who appeared were Gene Hackman ("Quality of Mercy," 16 September 1961; "Judgment Eve," 20 April 1963), Martin Sheen ("The Attack," 9 December 1961, his first major TV role), James Farentino ("The Last Illusion," 9 March 1963, his first major TV role), Jon Voight ("The Brother Killers," 25 May 1963, a rare TV appearance), Ossie Davis (seven appearances), James Earl Jones ("The Non-Violent," 6 June 1964), Robert Redford ("The Siege," 3 December 1964, his last TV dramatic role), and Dustin Hoffman ("A Matter of Law and Disorder," 8 April 1965). The series was created by Reginald Rose, who wrote several of the scripts, including the two-part genesis of the series for Studio One, which was entitled "The Defenders" (with Ralph Bellamy and William Shatner, 25 February and 4 March 1957). Other regular writers included Ernest Kinoy and Robert Crean. Produced by Herbert Brodkin, the series was filmed in New York.

DEFENDERS OF THE EARTH SYNDICATED

1986 Flash Gordon, Mandrake, Lothar, and the Phantom teamed up to protect the planet on this half-hour cartoon series. The four veteran superheroes were assisted by a quartet of youngsters: Flash's son Rick, Lothar Jr. (known as L.J.), the Phantom's daughter Jedda, and an orphan named Kshin.

DEGRASSI JUNIOR HIGH (DEGRASSI HIGH) PBS

1987–1991 This half-hour dramatic series depicted life with all its problems at a modern urban junior high school. The series, which evolved from a 1979 Canadian production (The Kids of DeGrassi Street), was produced in Toronto and was televised in Canada beginning in 1986; within two years it was aired in forty countries. Most of the fifty-odd roles were filled by the members of the Playing with Time repertory company. Among the regulars: Pat Mastroianni as Joey Jeremiah; Stefan Brogren as Snake; Duncan Wangh as Arthur; Amanda Stepto as Spike; Anais Granofsky as Lucy; Neil Hope as Wheels; Maureen Deiseach as Heather; Michael Carry as Simon; Irene Courakos as Alexa; Sara Ballingall as Melanie; Rebecca Haines as Kathleen; Jacey Hunter as Amy; and Siluck Saysanasy as Yick. In 1989 the teens all moved up to Degrassi High, and the show was retitled.

DELLA SYNDICATED

1969 A talk show hosted by singer-actress Della Reese, who began her professional career as a gospel singer and became a pop artist in 1957.

THE DELPHI BUREAU ABC

5 OCTOBER 1972–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Part of ABC's trilogy The Men, this segment alternated with Assignment: Vienna and Jigsaw. It featured Laurence Luckinbill as

Glenn Garth Gregory, a secret agent who possessed total recall, and Anne Jeffreys (infrequently seen since Topper) as his assistant, Sybil Van Loween.

DELTA ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1992–17 DECEMBER 1992; 6 APRIL 1993–27 APRIL 1993; 21 JULY 1993–25 AUGUST 1993 Following her well-publicized departure from Designing Women, Delta Burke returned in this sitcom as Delta Bishop, a blonde aspiring country and western singer who moved to Nashville and got a job in a small bar. Also featured were Earl Holliman as her employer, Darden Towe, owner of the Green Lantern; Gigi Rice as Delta's cousin, Lavonne Overton, with whom she stayed; Beth Grant as hairstylist Thelma Wainwright; Nancy Giles as Connie; and Bill Engvall as Buck. The series was pulled from ABC's schedule after thirteen weeks. When it returned in April with four new episodes, it had two new cast members (Joe Urla as Delta's agent, Sandy Scott, and Elizabeth Wilson as Delta's mom, Rosalind Dupree), and Delta had become a brunette.

DELTA HOUSE ABC

18 JANUARY 1979–28 APRIL 1979 Half-hour sitcom based on National Lampoon's Animal House, one of the most successful films of 1978. Students at Pennsylvania's Faber College in 1962, its central characters resided at Delta House, the campus's most hedonistic and socially undesirable fraternity, where they managed to thwart the efforts of the dean (and the upright lads of Omega House) to expel them. With John Vernon as Dean Vernon Wormer; Stephen Furst as Kent (Flounder) Dorfman; Bruce McGill as Daniel (D-Day) Day; Jamie Widdoes as Bob Hoover, Delta's president; Josh Mostel (son of Zero Mostel) as Jim (Blotto) Blutarski, a transfer student, the younger brother of Bluto Blutarski (played by John Belushi in the film); Peter Fox as Eric "Otter" Stratton; Richard Seer as Larry (Pinto) Kroger; Gary Cookson as Doug Niedermeyer of Omega House; Brian Patrick Clarke as Greg Marmalarde of Omega House; Susanna Dalton as Mandy Peppridge; Wendy Goldman as Muffy Jones, Pinto's girlfriend; Peter Kastner as Professor Jennings; Lee Wilkof as Einswin; and Michelle Pfeiffer as Bombshell. Vernon, Furst, McGill, and Widdoes had been featured in the motion picture. Executive producers: Matty Simmons and Ivan Reitman for Universal TV in association with Matty Simmons–Ivan Reitman Productions.

DELVECCHIO CBS

9 SEPTEMBER 1976–17 JULY 1977 This crime show starred Judd Hirsch as Sergeant Dominick Delvecchio, a tough but fair-minded cop who graduated from law school but flunked the bar exam. With Charles Haid as Officer Paul Shonski, his eager-beaver assistant; Michael Conrad as Lieutenant Macavan, his commanding officer; and Mario Gallo as Tomaso Delvecchio, Dom's father, a barber. William Sackheim was the executive producer.

DEMI-TASSE TALES SYNDICATED

1953 A half-hour dramatic anthology series of little note.

DEMPSEY & MAKEPEACE SYNDICATED

1985 British-made hour crime show about an American cop who teamed up with a Scotland Yard officer. With Michael Brandon as Lieutenant James Dempsey, late of Brooklyn; Glynnis Barber as Det. Sgt. Harriet Makepeace (Brandon and Barber later married in real life); and Ray Smith as their boss, Det. Supt. Spikings.

THE DENNIS DAY SHOW (THE RCA VICTOR SHOW STARRING DENNIS DAY) NBC

8 FEBRUARY 1952–2 AUGUST 1954 Dennis Day, the singer-actor who worked with Jack Benny for many years, also hosted his own comedy-variety series. Regulars included Cliff Arquette (fall 1952–1954, as Charley Weaver), Hal March (fall 1952–1953), and Jeri Lou James. During the spring of 1952 the show was seen biweekly, alternating with The Ezio Pinza Show, also sponsored by RCA. Paul Henning, who later developed The Beverly Hillbillies, was the producer.

THE DENNIS JAMES SHOW ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1951–15 FEBRUARY 1952 One of television's most ubiquitous performers (he was seen regularly as early as 1938), Dennis James hosted this half-hour daytime variety show as well as countless other programs. It was produced by Aaron Steiner and directed by Lou Sposa (James's brother).

THE DENNIS MILLER SHOW SYNDICATED

20 JANUARY 1992–10 SEPTEMBER 1992 After leaving Saturday Night Live, the acerbic Dennis Miller entered the talk show arena with this nightly hour produced by Tribune Entertainment. Despite revamping in March, the program never found a large audience and was dropped after eight months. Miller then found a more suitable niche on HBO, hosting Dennis Miller Live starting in 1994.

THE DENNIS O'KEEFE SHOW CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1959–14 JUNE 1960 This half-hour sitcom featured Dennis O'Keefe as newspaper columnist Hal Towne, a widower who lived in a Manhattan penthouse with his young son and a housekeeper; Rickey Kelman as the son, Randy; Hope Emerson as Amelia "Sarge" Sargent, the formidable housekeeper; and Eloise Hardt as Karen, Hal's sometime girlfriend. Les Hafner produced the series, which was subtitled "All Around Towne," the title of Hal's newspaper column.

THE DENNIS PRAGER SHOW SYNDICATED

1994 Half-hour daily talk show.

DENNIS THE MENACE CBS

4 OCTOBER 1959–22 SEPTEMBER 1963 Hank Ketcham's mischievous cartoon character made a successful transition to television in this prime-time series. There were 146 half-hour episodes filmed, with Jay North as young Dennis Mitchell; Herbert Anderson as his father, Henry; Gloria Henry as his mother, Alice; Joseph Kearns (1959–1962) as next-door neighbor George Wilson, the object of many of Dennis's well-intentioned escapades; Sylvia Field (1959–1962) as Martha Wilson, Mr. Wilson's kindly wife; Billy Booth as Dennis's friend Tommy Anderson; Gil Smith as Dennis's friend Joey MacDonald; and Jeannie Russell as Dennis's sometime friend Margaret Wade. After Kearns's death Gale Gordon joined the cast in the spring of 1962 as Mr. Wilson's brother (and the Mitchells' neighbor), John Wilson, and Sara Seegar was added as his wife, Eloise, that fall. In real life cartoonist Ketcham has a son named Dennis; the inspiration for the comic strip came one day when Ketcham's wife remarked, "Our son, Dennis, is a menace." Harry Ackerman was the executive producer.

In 1993 a theatrical film was released, starring Mason Gamble as Dennis and Walter Matthau as Mr. Wilson.

DENNIS THE MENACE SYNDICATED

1987–1988 Not to be confused with the live-action sitcom (see above), this animated version of the comic strip was supplied by DIC Enterprises. See also The New Dennis the Menace.

DENVER THE LAST DINOSAUR SYNDICATED

1989–1990 Half-hour cartoon series about Denver, a modern-day dinosaur who was befriended by a group of teenagers: Mario, Shades, Jeremy, and Wally.

THE DEPUTY NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1959–16 SEPTEMBER 1961 Henry Fonda, who had starred in many a movie western, had top billing in this half-hour TV western, set in Silver City, Arizona Territory. Fonda played Chief Marshal Simon Fry, whose district included several nearby towns as well. Allen Case costarred in the title role, as Deputy Clay McCord, a storekeeper who bore arms with great reluctance. Also featured during the first season were Wallace Ford as Silver City's elderly marshal, Herk Lamson, and Betty Lou Keim as Clay's sister, Fran McCord. Read Morgan joined the show for the second season as Sergeant Tasker (Sarge), the one-eyed cavalry officer stationed in town. Although Henry Fonda may have had top billing, he starred in only about a dozen episodes, and appeared only briefly (sometimes only to introduce the program) in the others. Robert Redford made his television debut on one episode ("The Last Gunfight," 30 April 1960).

DEPUTY DAWG SYNDICATED/NBC

1961 (SYNDICATED); 11 SEPTEMBER 1971–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 (NBC) A cartoon show about a fumbling canine law enforcement officer.

THE DES O'CONNOR SHOW (KRAFT MUSIC HALL) NBC

20 MAY 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1970; 2 JUNE 1971–1 SEPTEMBER 1971 A summer variety series taped in London, starring singer Des O'Connor. Other regulars included Jack Douglas, the MacGregor Brothers (1970), and Connie Stevens (1971).

DESIGNING WOMEN CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1986–24 MAY 1993 Like The Golden Girls, Designing Women was a sitcom in which all of the stars were female. Designing Women focused on the four women who ran Sugarbakers, an interior design business in Atlanta. It starred Dixie Carter as widowed Julia Sugarbaker; Delta Burke (1986–1991) as her younger sister, the thrice-divorced former beauty queen Suzanne Sugarbaker; Annie Potts as divorced mother Mary Jo Shively; and Jean Smart (1986–fall 1991) as the (initially) single Charlene Frazier. Meshach Taylor costarred as their man Friday, ex-con Anthony Bouvier. Occasionally seen were Hal Holbrook (who was married to Dixie Carter) as Julia's suitor, Reese Watson; Richard Gilliland (who was married to Jean Smart) as Mary Jo's beau, J. D. Shackleford; Alice Ghostley as Bernice Clifton; Olivia Brown (1989–1990) as Vanessa, Anthony's girlfriend; and Priscilla Weems and Brian Lando as Mary Jo's kids, Claudia and Quinton. In another much-publicized real-life romance, Delta Burke fell in love with Gerald McRaney on the set of Designing Women and eventually married him; McRaney had been hired to appear as Dash Goff, the second of Suzanne's ex-husbands. Burke's conspicuous weight gain was also addressed on the series, in an episode in which Suzanne, apprehensive about attending her high school reunion because of her weight, decides to go and makes no apologies. At the end of the 1988–1989 season Charlene married Bill Stillfield (played by Doug Barr), and on 1 January 1990 their baby, Olivia, was born (again, art imitated life, as Jean Smart had had a baby boy in October). The series's executive producers were the husband-and-wife team of Harry Thomason and Linda Bloodworth-Thomason; Bloodworth had previously worked with Burke and Carter on the 1982 sitcom Filthy Rich. Designing Women's theme, "Georgia on My Mind," was performed by Doc Severinsen for the first five seasons.

Numerous changes occurred in the fall of 1991. The theme was now performed by Ray Charles, while two cast members departed. Following a lengthy and well-publicized feud with the producers, Delta Burke's contract was not renewed, and Jean Smart ceased appearing as a regular after the fall 1991 premiere. Two new cast members were added: Julia Duffy as Julia's whiny cousin, Alison Sugarbaker, and Jan Hooks as Carlene Dobber, Charlene's younger sister, fresh from the country. Duffy left after one season. Judith Ivey joined the cast in the fall of 1992 as Bonnie Jean (B. J.) Poteet, a Texas customer of Sugarbakers who bought Alison's interest. Also joining for the final season was Sheryl Lee Ralph as Etienne Toussant, who married Anthony.

The off-network reruns of Designing Women were sold to 200 different U.S. stations in 1992, a then record for distribution. The feud between Burke and the Thomasons was eventually settled, as Burke headlined the Thomason-produced sitcom Women of the House in 1995.

DESILU PLAYHOUSE CBS

6 OCTOBER 1958–10 JUNE 1960 Desi Arnaz was the host and occasional star of this hour dramatic anthology series, filmed at Desilu Studios. Some episodes of The Lucy-Desi Comedy Hour were shown during this time slot (see also I Love Lucy).

DESTRY ABC

14 FEBRUARY 1964–11 SEPTEMBER 1964 This little-watched western replaced 77 Sunset Strip on Friday nights; it starred John Gavin as Harrison Destry, a loner who sought to prove himself innocent of a trumped-up robbery charge.

DETECTIVE SCHOOL ABC

31 JULY 1979–24 NOVEMBER 1979 Introduced for a four-week trial run in the summer of 1979, Detective School (then titled Detective School—One Flight Up) proved popular enough to warrant a spot on ABC's fall schedule. The half-hour sitcom starred James Gregory as Nick Hannigan, veteran private eye, now the sole instructor at a low-budget school for fledgling gumshoes. Hannigan's class included Randolph Mantooth as Eddie Dawkins; LaWanda Page as Charlene Jenkins; Jo Ann Harris (summer 1979) as Teresa; Melinda Naud (fall 1979) as Maggie; Douglas V. Fowley as Robert Redford; Pat Proft as Leo; and Taylor Negron as Silvio. Executive producers were Bernie Kukoff and Jeff Harris for the Kukoff-Harris Partnership.

DETECTIVE IN THE HOUSE CBS

1 MARCH 1985–19 APRIL 1985 Six-episode hour detective show starring Judd Hirsch as Press Wyman, who abandoned his engineering career to become an apprentice to a famous private detective. With Cassie Yates as his wife, Diane, a teacher; Jack Elam as his mentor, Nick Turner; and Meeno Peluce, Mandy Ingber, and R. J. Williams as the Wymans' kids, Todd, Deborah, and Dunc.

THE DETECTIVES (ROBERT TAYLOR'S DETECTIVES) ABC/NBC

16 OCTOBER 1959–22 SEPTEMBER 1961 (ABC); 29 SEPTEMBER 1961–21 SEPTEMBER 1962 (NBC) This straightforward crime show was set in New York. With Robert Taylor as Captain Matt Holbrook; Tige Andrews as Lieutenant Johnny Russo; Lee Farr (1959–1960) as Lieutenant Jim Conway; Russell Thorsen (1959–1961) as Lieutenant Otto Lindstrom; Mark Goddard (1960–1962) as Sergeant Chris Ballard; and Adam West (1961–1962) as Sergeant Steve Nelson. The series expanded from a half hour to an hour when it shifted networks in 1961.

DETECTIVE'S DIARY

See MARK SABER

DETECTIVE'S WIFE CBS

7 JULY 1950–6 OCTOBER 1950 Broadcast live from New York, this comedy-mystery was a summer replacement for Man Against Crime. It starred Lynn Bari as Connie Conway, who tried to help her private-eye husband solve his cases, and Donald Curtis as her husband, Adam Conway.

DEVLIN ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1974–15 FEBRUARY 1976 Kids' cartoon show about three orphans (Ernie, Tod, and Sandy) who decide to become motorcycle stunt drivers. The Hanna-Barbera production was seen Saturdays during its first season; reruns were shown on Sundays during the second season.

THE DEVLIN CONNECTION NBC

2 OCTOBER 1982–25 DECEMBER 1982 Rock Hudson starred in this hour detective show as Brian Devlin, a former military intelligence officer who ran the Los Angeles Performing Arts Center; Brian then met Nick Corsello (played by Jack Scalia), a young private investigator who was also the racquetball pro at a local health club. Oddly enough, Nick turned out to be Brian's son—the son he never knew he had. Brian soon found himself helping Nick on his cases. Filling out the cast were Leigh Taylor-Young as Lauren, Brian's secretary, and Louis Giambalvo as Lt. Earl Borden of the Los Angeles police. The series had been scheduled for the 1981–1982 season, but Rock Hudson underwent heart surgery, forcing its postponement.

DIAGNOSIS MURDER CBS

29 OCTOBER 1993–8 SEPTEMBER 1995; 8 DECEMBER 1995– Dick Van Dyke starred in this hour crime show as Dr. Mark Sloan, a physician at Community General Hospital who dabbled in crime solving. Also on hand were Scott Baio (1993–1995) as Dr. Jack Stewart; Victoria Rowell as Amanda Bentley; Delores Hall as Mark's secretary, Delores; Barry Van Dyke (Dick's real-life son) as Mark's son, Steve Sloan, a cop; and Michael Tucci as hospital administrator Norman Briggs. Dick Van Dyke's character first appeared in an episode of Jake and the Fatman on 20 March 1991, and later in a made-for-TV movie, "Diagnosis of Murder" (5 January 1992, CBS).

DIAGNOSIS: UNKNOWN CBS

5 JULY 1960–20 SEPTEMBER 1960 A summer replacement for The Garry Moore Show, Diagnosis: Unknown starred Patrick O'Neal as New York police pathologist Dr. Daniel Coffee. Also featured were Chester Morris as Detective Ritter; Phyllis Newman as lab assistant Doris Hudson; Cal Bellini as Dr. Motilal Mookerji, a visiting physician from India; and Martin Huston as Link, the teenage lab assistant.

THE DIAHANN CARROLL SHOW CBS

14 AUGUST 1976–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 This four-week variety series was a summer replacement for The Carol Burnett Show. Diahann Carroll, formerly the star of Julia, hosted the show. Executive producers: Robert DeLeon and Max Youngstein.

DIAL 999 SYNDICATED

1959 Set at Scotland Yard, this crime show starred Robert Beatty as Inspector Michael Maguire, a Canadian police officer sent to London to learn advanced methods of detection.

THE DIAMOND HEAD GAME SYNDICATED

1975 Bob Eubanks hosted this game show, taped at Oahu's Kuilima Hotel. Through a series of questions, the field of contestants was gradually reduced until only one remained. That contestant was then placed in a plastic booth ("The Diamond Head Treasure Vault"), where dollar bills of various denominations were blown about. The contestant was given fifteen seconds to fill a "treasure bag" with dollar bills; afterward, Eubanks pulled out up to ten bills from the bag. Those bills were then awarded to the contestant, unless a $1-bill was drawn, in which case the contestant lost everything.

DIAMONDS CBS/USA

22 SEPTEMBER 1987–13 SEPTEMBER 1988 (CBS); 9 OCTOBER 1988–25 MARCH 1990 (USA) Another of the several Canadian-produced shows that dotted CBS's late-night schedule (see also Adderly and Night Heat), Diamonds starred Nick Campbell and Peggy Smithhart as Mike Devitt and Christina Towne, who, when married, had starred in a private-eye show called Diamonds; now divorced, they teamed up again, this time as real private eyes. Also featured were Tony Rosato as Lieutenant Gianetti and Alan Feiman as their assistant, Darryl. After a one-year run on CBS, the series remained in production and was picked up by the USA Cable Network.

DIANA NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1973–7 JANUARY 1974 Diana was an unsuccessful vehicle for Diana Rigg, the former star of The Avengers. In this comedy she starred as Diana Smythe, a recent divorcée who left London for New York, where she moved into the apartment of her brother, Roger (he was out of the country) and got a job as a fashion coordinator at Buckley's Department Store. Also featured were David Sheiner as Norman Brodnik, her boss; Barbara Barrie as Norman's wife, Norma Brodnik, head of the merchandising department; Richard B. Shull as coworker Howard Tolbrook, a copywriter; Robert Moore as window dresser Marshall Tyler; and Carol Androsky as Diana's neighbor, Holly Green, a model. Executive producer: Leonard Stern.

DICK AND THE DUCHESS CBS

28 SEPTEMBER 1957–16 MAY 1958 This comedy-mystery was set in London. With Patrick O'Neal as insurance investigator Dick Starrett; Hazel Court as his British wife, Jane Starrett, a duchess; Richard Wattis as Dick's boss, Peter Jamison; and Ronnie Stevens as Rodney, a young man who also worked in Dick's office.

THE DICK CAVETT SHOW ABC/CBS/PBS/USA

4 MARCH 1968–24 JANUARY 1969; 26 MAY 1969–19 SEPTEMBER 1969; 29 DECEMBER 1969–1 JANUARY 1975 (ABC); 16 AUGUST 1975–6 SEPTEMBER 1975 (CBS);1977–1981 (PBS); 30 SEPTEMBER 1985–23 SEPTEMBER 1986 (USA); 23 SEPTEMBER 1986–30 DECEMBER 1986 (ABC) Though Dick Cavett has hosted several series, he is best known as the host of ABC's late-night show, a noble attempt to compete with Johnny Carson of NBC. Like Carson, Cavett was raised in Nebraska and was interested in magic as a teenager. After graduating from Yale, Cavett went to New York, hoping to get a job as a writer; he thrust some material into Jack Paar's hand in an NBC corridor and was subsequently hired by Paar. After writing for others, he became a stand-up comic for a while and continued to do summer stock. During the mid-1960s he was occasionally seen as a game show panelist. In 1968 he was given his first series on ABC. It was a daytime talk show and was originally titled This Morning before it was changed to The Dick Cavett Show. In the summer of 1969 he hosted a thrice-weekly prime-time series on ABC, and later that year he succeeded Joey Bishop as host of the network's late-night talk show. Cavett brought with him the announcer and the bandleader who had worked with him on the earlier shows—Fred Foy (better known as the announcer on The Lone Ranger) and drummer Bobby Rosengarten. The show was originally seen five nights a week but was gradually cut back over the years as Cavett's ratings failed to dent Carson's. By January of 1973 the show was seen one week a month, as part of ABC's Wide World of Entertainment; by late 1974 the show was seen only twice a month and disappeared altogether on New Year's Day 1975. Perhaps because of Cavett's Yale background and because of his interest in language, he has acquired the image of an "intellectual" host (an image which Cavett himself disputes), and because of it the show probably failed to attract more viewers. Nevertheless, there were some fine moments on the show, such as Lester Maddox's sudden departure after getting into an argument with Cavett, and a verbal brawl between Norman Mailer and Gore Vidal, with Cavett and Janet Flanner caught in the middle. Cavett also made effective use of the one-guest show, managing to lure such elusive talk show guests as Marlon Brando, Katharine Hepburn, and John Lennon and Yoko Ono. In the summer of 1975 Cavett switched networks, hosting a four-week variety series on CBS. Regulars included Leigh French and Marshall Efron; the show was produced by Carole Hart and Bruce Hart. In the fall of 1977 he appeared on PBS in a half-hour talk show on which he returned to his strong suit: one-guest interviews. The show was produced by Cavett's former Yale roommate, Christopher Porterfield. In the fall of 1985 Cavett hosted a one-hour prime-time talk show on the USA Cable Network, and in the fall of 1986 he returned briefly to ABC late-night television as host of an hour talk show, which followed ABC News Nightline on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. See also Jimmy Breslin's People.

DICK CLARK PRESENTS THE ROCK AND ROLL YEARS ABC

28 NOVEMBER 1973–9 JANUARY 1974 On this half-hour series, host Dick Clark reminisced with live guests and introduced film clips of rock performances from the fifties and sixties.

THE DICK CLARK SHOW (THE DICK CLARK SATURDAY NIGHT BEECHNUT SHOW) ABC

15 FEBRUARY 1958–10 SEPTEMBER 1960 Dick Clark, who was already hosting American Bandstand weekdays, commuted to New York from Philadelphia on weekends to host this half-hour rock-and-roll show, broadcast live from the Little Theater. Dick's guests on the premiere included Pat Boone, Connie Francis, Jerry Lee Lewis, Johnnie Ray, Chuck Willis, and the Royal Teens. Sponsored by Beechnut Foods.

DICK CLARK'S LIVE WEDNESDAY
NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1978–27 DECEMBER 1978 The only live prime-time entertainment show of the 1978–1979 season, this hour variety series was hosted by Dick Clark, who also served as its executive producer. The show was seen live only in the East and Midwest and was shown on tape in areas farther west.

DICK CLARK'S NITETIME
SYNDICATED

1985 An hour of rock music, hosted by the ubiquitous Dick Clark, consisting of in-studio appearances by artists, videos, and dancing.

DICK CLARK'S WORLD OF TALENT
ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1959–20 DECEMBER 1959 Dick Clark, one of ABC's most ubiquitous personalities of the time, hosted this half-hour series on which aspiring performers were rated by a celebrity panel; regular panelists included Jack E. Leonard and Zsa Zsa Gabor.

THE DICK POWELL SHOW
NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1961–17 SEPTEMBER 1963 Dick Powell hosted and occasionally starred in some episodes of this hour-long dramatic anthology series. These were the last appearances of Powell, who died in January 1963 (after his death, various guest stars hosted the program). The most widely acclaimed drama was probably "The Price of Tomatoes" (16 January 1962), Richard Alan Simmons's story of a truck driver (Peter Falk) who picked up a pregnant hitchhiker (Inger Stevens); Falk won an Emmy for his performance.

DICK TRACY
ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1950–12 FEBRUARY 1951 One of fiction's most famous cops, Dick Tracy first appeared in the comic strip drawn by Chester Gould. In 1935 he went to radio, and in 1937 a fifteen-chapter movie serial was made starring Ralph Byrd. Byrd played Tracy in several more films before making this television series; his death in 1952 terminated plans to continue production beyond the twenty-six programs already filmed. Also featured were Joe Devlin as Tracy's partner, Sam Catchem, and Angela Greene as Tracy's wife, Tess Trueheart. The Dick Tracy character reappeared on television in cartoon form in 1961 and in 1971 (where he could be seen on The Archie Show). In 1990 a feature film was released that starred Warren Beatty and Madonna and was directed by Beatty.

THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
CBS

3 OCTOBER 1961–7 SEPTEMBER 1966 After a shaky first season (the series didn't crack Nielsen's top thirty-five shows), this popular situation comedy became a solid hit. It was one of the first series in which the central characters worked for a television series; both Van Dyke and costar Mary Tyler Moore employed a similar format on their later series (The New Dick Van Dyke Show and The Mary Tyler Moore Show). With Dick Van Dyke as Rob Petrie, head writer for The Alan Brady Show, a variety series; Mary Tyler Moore as his wife, Laura Petrie, a former dancer; Morey Amsterdam as Buddy Sorrell, wisecracking comedy writer; Rose Marie as Sally Rogers, husband-hunting comedy writer; Richard Deacon as Mel Cooley, producer of The Alan Brady Show (and brother-in-law of Alan Brady), the target of many of Buddy's barbs; Carl Reiner as Alan Brady, the vain star; Jerry Paris (who also directed many episodes) as dentist Jerry Helper, the Petries' next-door neighbor in New Rochelle; Ann Morgan Guilbert as Millie Helper, Jerry's wife; Larry Matthews as Richie Petrie, Rob and Laura's young son. Occasionally appearing were Jerry Van Dyke (Dick's brother) as Rob's brother, Stacy Petrie; Peter Oliphant as Freddy Helper, Jerry and Millie's son and Richie's pal; Joan Shawlee as Buddy's wife, Viona (Pickles) Sorrell; Tom Tully and J. Pat O'Malley as Rob's father, Sam Petrie; and Isabel Randolph and Mabel Albertson as Rob's mother, Clara Petrie. Created by Carl Reiner, the pilot for the series, "Head of the Family" (with Reiner as Rob and Barbara Britton as Laura), was broadcast 19 July 1960. Production of the series was supervised by Sheldon Leonard; many of the 158 episodes were written by Bill Persky and Sam Denoff, who later produced the show. CBS aired a retrospective, "The Dick Van Dyke Show Remembered," on 23 May 1994. Carl Reiner reprised his role as Alan Brady on a February 1995 episode of Mad About You.

A DIFFERENT WORLD NBC

24 SEPTEMBER 1987–9 JULY 1993 In this spinoff from enormously popular sitcom The Cosby Show, second daughter Denise Huxtable found herself going away to the predominantly black Hillman College, alma mater of her father and grandfather, where she moved into Gilbert Hall. During the first season the cast included Lisa Bonet as Denise; Marisa Tomei as her white roommate, Maggie Lawton; Dawnn Lewis as her black roommate, Jaleesa Vinson, who was twenty-six and divorced; Jasmine Guy as wealthy and obnoxious dormmate Whitley Gilbert; Loretta Devine as dorm director Stevie Rollins; Amir Williams as Stevie's young son, J. T.; Kadeem Hardison as ladies' man Dwayne Wayne; Darryl Bell as Ronald Johnson; and Marie-Alise Recasner as Millie. Mary Alice succeeded Devine in midseason as the new dorm director, Lettie Bostic, and Sinbad also joined the cast as coach Walter Oakes (a standup comic, Sinbad had actually been hired to warm up the studio audience at tapings of the program; impressed with his work, the producers gave him a regular role).

During that first season A Different World featured a catchy theme (sung by Phoebe Snow over a snappy title sequence), but not much else. Had it not had the benefit of a great time slot (in the "hammock" between The Cosby Show and Cheers), the treacly show would almost surely have been canceled. TV Guide noted in May 1988 that it was "the worst sitcom in recent memory to do so well in the ratings," finishing second to The Cosby Show. Fortunately, the quality of the show improved in its second year, as Debbie Allen took over as producer-director. Lisa Bonet (who was pregnant) left the series and returned to The Cosby Show. Lewis, Guy, Hardison, Bell, Alice, and Sinbad returned from the previous season, and three new members were added: Charnele Brown as Kim Reese; Cree Summer as Freddie Brooks; and Glynn Turman as the no-nonsense math professor Colonel Clayton ("Dr. War") Taylor. The series's theme was now sung by Aretha Franklin, who was married to Turman. Mary Alice left at the end of the season. In the fall of 1989, Gilbert Hall had become a coed dorm, and Coach Oakes was the new dorm director; Jaleesa, who had a budding romance with Oakes, was now a resident adviser. Occasionally featured was Lou Myers as Vernon Gaines, chef at the campus hangout, The Pit. Cory Tyler was occasionally featured as the Colonel's son, Terrence. Jada Pinkett joined the cast in the fall of 1991 as freshman Lena James. Joe Morton was added in February 1992 as Senator Byron Douglas III, a Hillman alumnus who almost married Whitley before she realized that Dwayne was her true love. The newlyweds were the focus of the series' sixth and final season, which also featured Patrick Y. Malone as Terrell and Karen Malina White as Charmaine, a refugee from The Cosby Show.

DIFF'RENT STROKES NBC/ABC

3 NOVEMBER 1978–31 AUGUST 1985 (NBC); 27 SEPTEMBER 1985–21 MARCH 1986 (ABC); 14 JUNE 1986–30 AUGUST 1986 (ABC) A half-hour sitcom about a white Park Avenue millionaire who adopted two black kids, Diff'rent Strokes was developed by Norman Lear's Tandem Productions especially for its young star, Gary Coleman. A natural comedic talent with an impeccable sense of timing, Coleman looked younger than his true age due to a congenital kidney condition that affected his growth. His big break came after a successful guest role as a wisecracking youngster on Good Times, another Norman Lear sitcom. On Diff'rent Strokes, Coleman starred as eight-year-old Arnold Jackson, who, with his thirteen-year-old brother, Willis (played by Todd Bridges), came downtown to live with wealthy widower Philip Drummond (played by Conrad Bain) after the death of their mother, who had been Drummond's housekeeper. Sullen and distrustful at first, the boys gradually came to love Drummond and were adopted by him. Also featured on the series were Dana

Plato (1978–1984) as Drummond's natural daughter, the teenaged Kimberly; Charlotte Rae (1978–1980) as the housekeeper, Mrs. Edna Garrett, who left after her spinoff series, The Facts of Life, was renewed; Nedra Volz (1980–1982) as the next housekeeper, Adelaide Brubaker; Dody Goodman (1981–1982) as Drummond's daffy sister, Aunt Sophia; Mary Jo Catlett (1982–1986) as the last housekeeper, Pearl Gallagher; Shavar Ross (1981–1986) as Arnold's best friend, Dudley Ramsey; Nikki Swasey (1982–1986) as Arnold's classroom nemesis, the stuck-up Lisa Hayes; Janet Jackson (1981–1982) as Willis's girlfriend, Charlene Dupree. In January 1984 Dixie Carter joined the cast as Maggie McKinney, whom Drummond married later that season; Danny Cooksey also came aboard, as Maggie's young son, Sam. When the series changed networks in the fall of 1985, Carter was replaced by Mary Ann Mobley as Maggie. Arnold was permitted to grow up from age thirteen to age fifteen, and to begin getting interested in girls (in real life, Gary Coleman had turned seventeen by then).

During its 189-episode run, Diff'rent Strokes deftly addressed some sensitive topics, such as child molesting (in an episode featuring guest star Gordon Jump) and drug abuse (in a 1983 episode featuring a special appearance by Nancy Reagan). Jeff Harris and Bernie Kukoff were the creators of the series. All three of the child stars made headlines after the series had run its course: Dana Plato posed for Playboy, Gary Coleman filed suit against his parents and a former manager (claiming they had mishandled his earnings), and Todd Bridges was arrested for attempted murder in a drug-related shooting incident (he was later acquitted).

DINAH! SYNDICATED

1974–1980 Ninety-minute talk show hosted by Dinah Shore. Featuring a set resembling a living room, the program was seen during the daytime in most markets. Executive producers: Henry Jaffe and Carolyn Raskin. In 1979 the show was retitled Dinah! & Friends, as Dinah employed a weekly cohost.

DINAH AND HER NEW BEST FRIENDS CBS

5 JUNE 1976–31 JULY 1976 This summer replacement for The Carol Burnett Show starred Dinah Shore and a group of young professionals: Diana Canova, Bruce Kimmel, Gary Mule Deer, Mike Neun, Leland Palmer, Michael Preminger, Avelio Falana, and Dee Dee Rescher. Executive producer: Henry Jaffe. Producer: Carolyn Raskin.

THE DINAH SHORE SHOW NBC

27 NOVEMBER 1951–18 JULY 1957; 20 OCTOBER 1957–1 JUNE 1962

DINAH'S PLACE NBC

3 AUGUST 1970–26 JULY 1974 One of the few females to host a successful television variety series, Dinah Shore came to TV in 1951 with several years experience in show business; she had experimented in television in 1936, had had her own radio series in 1939 (at the age of twenty-two), and had begun making records in 1941. From 1951 until 1957 she hosted a fifteen-minute musical show, which was seen once or twice a week before the evening news. For several seasons the show was sponsored by Chevrolet and was known officially as The Dinah Shore Chevy Show; Shore's backup group during the latter seasons was the Skylarks, who included George Becker, Earl Brown, Joe Hamilton, Lee Lombard, and Gilda Maiken. During the 1956–1957 season, in addition to her fifteen-minute show, Shore starred in a number of specials, which were also sponsored by Chevrolet and were scheduled on Sunday evenings. These specials were the genesis of her second series, an hour variety show which ran from 1957 to 1962, and was again sponsored by Chevrolet; for most of these five seasons Shore hosted the series three out of every four weeks, with guest hosts filling in every fourth week. In 1970, after an eight-year absence, Shore returned to host Dinah's Place, a daytime half-hour talk show. After the cancellation of that show in 1974, she continued to host a talk show: see Dinah!

DING DONG SCHOOL NBC/SYNDICATED

22 DECEMBER 1952–28 DECEMBER 1956 (NBC); 1959 (SYNDICATED) One of the first educational series for young children, Ding Dong School was seen Mondays through Fridays on NBC. It was presided over by Dr. Frances Horwich, head of the education department at Roosevelt College in Chicago; she was better known to viewers, of course, as Miss Frances. The show was given its title by the three-year-old daughter of producer Reinald Werrenrath after she watched a test broadcast of the opening sequence (a hand ringing a small bell). In 1959 a syndicated version appeared.

DINK, THE LITTLE DINOSAUR CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1989–31 AUGUST 1991 Saturday morning cartoon show about a young brontosaurus, Dink, and his prehistoric pals Crusty, Scat, Flapper, and Shyler.

DINNER AT JULIA'S PBS

1983 Public television's most famous chef, Julia Child, returned to PBS to host her third series. Unlike her previous shows, The French Chef and Julia Child & Company, Dinner at Julia's emphasized American cuisine.

DINNER DATE DUMONT

28 JANUARY 1950–29 JULY 1950 Saturday-evening musical show, broadcast from the Grill Room at New York's Hotel Taft, featuring Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, Ann Warren, and Lee Russell.

DINOSAURS ABC

26 APRIL 1991–3 SEPTEMBER 1993; 1 JUNE 1994–20 JULY 1994 A collaboration of Walt Disney Television, Michael Jacobs Productions, and Jim Henson Productions, this half-hour sitcom was set during the age of dinosaurs—in the year 60,000,003 B.C., to be exact. The premise was that the dinosaurs lived mundane lives much like their modern human counterparts, and were thoughtlessly bringing about their own extinction. The series was a live-action program, shot on film. The elaborately constructed characters were operated from within by human performers, and their facial expressions were created by a process called audio animatronics. Voices were supplied by Stuart Pankin as Earl Sinclair, a megalosaurus; Jessica Walter as his wife, Fran; Jason Willinger as their fourteen-year-old, Robbie; Sally Struthers as their twelve-year-old, Charlene; Kevin Clash as their baby, Baby; Florence Stanley as Fran's mother, Grandma Ethyl; Sam McMurray as Earl's best friend, Roy Hess; and Sherman Hemsley as B. D. Richfield, Earl's boss at the Wesayso Development Company. The last names of the characters—Sinclair, Hess, and Richfield—were deliberately chosen: all are extinct gasoline brands.

DIONE LUCAS' COOKING SHOW CBS

25 FEBRUARY 1948–29 DECEMBER 1949 One of television's first cooking shows, this prime-time series, hosted by Dione Lucas, was titled To the Queen's Taste in its early weeks.

THE DIPSY DOODLE SHOW SYNDICATED

1974 An hour-long children's show produced at WJW-TV in Cleveland. Its central character was an animated figure, Dipsy Doodle; also featured were live performers Karen League Barrett, Sandy Faison, Jon Freeman, Michael McGee, Harry Gold, Emil Herrera, and Helene Leonard. Executive producer: Bob Huber.

DIRECTIONS ABC

13 NOVEMBER 1960–25 MARCH 1984 Sunday-morning religious program produced by the News Public Affairs department of ABC. Executive producer: Sid Darion.

DIRTY DANCING CBS

29 OCTOBER 1988–14 JANUARY 1989 An unsuccessful sitcom based on the 1987 hit movie. Set in 1963 at Kellerman's Mountain Resort in New York's Catskills, it featured Patrick Cassidy as Johnny Castle, the streetwise dance instructor; Melora

Hardin as the owner's daughter, Frances "Baby" Kellerman, the new talent coordinator (a job Johnny had had); McLean Stevenson as Baby's father, Max Kellerman; Constance Marie as Penny, Johnny's dancing partner; and Mandy Ingber as Baby's buddy, Robin.

DIRTY DOZEN: THE SERIES FOX

30 APRIL 1988–30 JULY 1988 A low-budget action series, based on the 1967 World War II film about a group of military convicts formed into a special unit, and its three made-for-TV sequels: "The Dirty Dozen: The Next Mission" (1985), "The Dirty Dozen: The Deadly Mission" (1987) and "The Dirty Dozen: The Fatal Mission" (1988). The TV series featured Ben Murphy as Lieutenant Danko; John DiAquino as Lebec, demolition expert; John Slattery as Leeds, a forger; Jon Tenney as Feke, intelligence ace; John Bradley as Farrell, the actor; Mike Jolly as Vern; Glenn Withrow as Roy; and Barry Cullison as Cutter. The Fox network had ordered thirteen episodes from the supplier, MGM/UA Television, but, apparently disappointed with the show and its lack of ratings, only aired seven, and repeated six of them.

DIRTY SALLY CBS

11 JANUARY 1974–19 JULY 1974 This light western starred Jeanette Nolan as crusty Sally Fergus, a wandering junk collector, and Dack Rambo as Cyrus Pike, the ex-outlaw with whom she teamed up. Nolan had first appeared as Sally on an episode of Gunsmoke.

DISCO MAGIC SYNDICATED

1978 Half-hour disco music show, taped in Fort Lauderdale and hosted by Evelyn "Champagne" King.

DISCO '77 SYNDICATED

1977 Los Angeles-based disco music series.

THE DISCOPHONIC SCENE SYNDICATED

1966 Disc jockey Jerry Blavat hosted this hour of rock music. For many years Blavat was the only white DJ on Philadelphia soul station WHAT, where he was known as "The Geater with the Heater."

DISCOVERY ABC

1 OCTOBER 1962–5 SEPTEMBER 1971 This highbrow series for children, bankrolled by a large investment from ABC, began as a twenty-five-minute weekday series but was unable to attract enough affiliates in that format. In 1963 it switched to Sunday mornings, where it remained for the duration of its run. Historical and cultural themes were emphasized on the program, which was cohosted by Frank Buxton and Virginia Gibson, later by Bill Owen and Gibson. The exact title of the series included the last two digits of the current year (Discovery '63, etc.)

DISNEY AFTERNOON SYNDICATED

1990– Disney Afternoon was the umbrella title given to Disney's two-hour block of daily cartoon programming. During the first season the four components were The Gummi Bears, Ducktales, Chip 'n' Dale's Rescue Rangers—all of which had been launched previously—and a new series, Tale Spin. In 1991 the components were Ducktales, Chip 'n' Dale's Rescue Rangers, Tale Spin, and Darkwing Duck. In 1992 Goof Troop was substituted for Duck Tales; in 1993 Bonkers replaced Chip 'n' Dale, and in 1994 Aladdin replaced Tale Spin. See individual titles for details.

DISNEY'S RAW TOONAGE CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1992–28 AUGUST 1993 Saturday morning cartoon series from Disney. A different Disney character hosted each program. Among the newly introduced characters were Marsupilami, a long-tailed monkeylike creature, and Bonkers, a bobcat, each of whom later had his own cartoon series. Also included in each program were "Totally Tasteless Videos," which spoofed commercials and other TV programs.

DIVORCE COURT SYNDICATED

1957–1969; 1986–1991 This long-running courtroom drama presented a new case each day. The purpose of the show (according to the announcer, anyway) was "to help stem the rising tide of divorces." In the earlier version actor Voltaire Perkins played the judge, while Bill Walsh and Colin Male were the courtroom-based narrators. When the series was remade in the late 1980s, William B. Keene (who, like Judge Wapner of The People's Court, was a retired California Superior Court judge) presided, with Jim Peck as the host-narrator.

DIVORCE HEARING SYNDICATED

1958 This unusual documentary series was filmed in Los Angeles; on each program couples discussed marital problems with marriage counselor Dr. Paul Popenoe (the participants were identified by first names or by initials). Dave Walpert produced and directed the half-hour show.

DO IT YOURSELF NBC

26 JUNE 1955–18 SEPTEMBER 1955 A light approach to home repair was taken on this series, cohosted by Dave Willock and Cliff Arquette (as Charley Weaver). The two had previously been seen on Dave and Charley. This Sunday-night series replaced Mr. Peepers.

DO YOU KNOW? CBS

12 OCTOBER 1963–25 APRIL 1964 On this Saturday-afternoon game show for kids, children were quizzed about books they had been assigned to read. Afterward they discussed the books with their authors and with host Robert Maxwell.

DO YOU TRUST YOUR WIFE?

See WHO DO YOU TRUST?

DOBIE GILLIS (THE MANY LOVES OF DOBIE GILLIS) CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1959–18 SEPTEMBER 1963 This situation comedy about a girl-crazy teenager was ahead of its time. Its central characters would have felt equally at home in the late sixties: Dobie Gillis, the confused romantic who could never figure out what he wanted from life, and Maynard G. Krebs, his carefree beatnik friend, television's primordial hippie. During the show's four-year run, Dobie and Maynard finished high school, enlisted in the army, and eventually went to junior college. Dwayne Hickman starred as Dobie Gillis; his hair was lightened for the series, apparently to make him look younger (it grew darker as time wore on). When Dobie wasn't at the malt shop trying to impress some sweet young thing, he could be found seated beneath a replica of Rodin's "The Thinker," trying to explain his thoughts to the audience. Bob Denver costarred as Dobie's good buddy, Maynard G. Krebs, a goateed and sweatshirted free spirit who shuddered whenever the word "work" was uttered. Also featured were Frank Faylen as Dobie's father, Herbert T. Gillis, who owned the grocery store over which the Gillises dwelt and whose unrealized dream was that Dobie would come to his senses and take over the business; Florida Friebus as Dobie's mother, Winnifred Gillis, who seemed to understand Dobie and often interceded between father and son; Stephen Franken as Dobie's wealthy classmate, Chatsworth Osborne, Jr., who found the Gillises boorishly amusing; Doris Packer as Mrs. Chatsworth Osborne, the equally insufferable mother of Chatsworth; Sheila James as classmate Zelda Gilroy, who, confident that she and Dobie were meant for each other, pursued him in vain; William Schallert as Mr. Pomfritt, Dobie's English teacher (both at Central High and at S.

Peter Pryor Junior College); Tuesday Weld (1959–1960) as Thalia Menninger, the unattainable object of Dobie's affections who put him off with an armada of excuses. In the earliest episodes Warren Beatty was seen as Milton Armitage, the boy whom Thalia preferred. Darryl Hickman (Dwayne's brother) appeared occasionally as Dobie's brother Davey Gillis. Michael J. Pollard also appeared briefly as Maynard's cousin; when Denver was drafted in 1960, Pollard was under consideration to replace him, but Denver flunked his physical. Robert Diamond (formerly of Fury) appeared as Dobie's cousin Duncan during the show's final season. Ryan O'Neal made his TV debut on one episode, "The Hunger Strike," which also featured Marlo Thomas (26 January 1960). Created by Max Shulman, the series was produced by Rod Amateau. Some members of the cast reassembled for two TV sequels. The first, "Whatever Happened to Dobie Gillis?" was aired in 1977. In the second, "Bring Me the Head of Dobie Gillis," telecast 21 February 1988, Dwayne Hickman, Bob Denver, Sheila James, Stephen Franken, and William Schallert all reprised their roles, and Connie Stevens played Thalia Menninger. Dobie ran Gillis's Market and Pharmacy, had married Zelda, and had a young son.

DOC CBS

13 SEPTEMBER 1975–30 OCTOBER 1976 In this situation comedy about a dedicated New York physician, Barnard Hughes starred as Dr. Joe Bogert. During the first season Bogert was a private practitioner with eight grown children. The cast included: Elizabeth Wilson as his wife, Annie Bogert; Mary Wickes as his nurse, Mrs. Beatrice Tully; comic Irwin Corey as cabbie Happy Miller, a frequent patient; Judy Kahan as Laurie Fenner, Joe and Annie's daughter; John Harkins as Fred Fenner, her pompous husband; and Herbie Faye as Mr. Goldman, another patient. For the second season, Bogert (now widowed) worked at the Westside Community Clinic. The 1975–1976 cast was jettisoned (Mary Wickes appeared on the season premiere), and the new regulars included: Audra Lindley as Janet Scott, R.N.; Ray Vitte as lab technician Woody Henderson; Lisa Mordente as receptionist Teresa Ortega; and David Ogden Stiers as clinic director Stanley R. Moss. The series was created by Ed. Weinberger and Stan Daniels, who also served as its executive producers. Produced by Norman Barasch, Carroll Moore, and Paul Wayne for MTM Enterprises, Inc.

DOC CORKLE NBC

5 OCTOBER 1952–19 OCTOBER 1952 In this situation comedy about a dentist, Eddie Mayehoff starred as Doc Corkle; also featured were Connie Marshall as his daughter, Chester Conklin as his father, Arnold Stang, Hope Emerson, and Billie Burke. The first fatality of the 1952–1953 season, Doc Corkle was replaced after three episodes by a series which had proved popular that summer: Mr. Peepers. Lou Place was the producer, Dick Bare the director.

DOC ELLIOT ABC

10 OCTOBER 1973–14 AUGUST 1974 A dramatic series about a doctor who gave up his lucrative New York practice for life in rural Colorado. With James Franciscus as Dr. Ben Elliot; Neva Patterson as "Mags" Brimble, his landlady; Noah Beery as store owner Barney Weeks; and Bo Hopkins as pilot Eldred McCoy. The series began as a once-a-month replacement for Owen Marshall and went weekly in January.

THE DOCTOR NBC

24 AUGUST 1952–28 JUNE 1953 Warner Anderson hosted this half-hour medical anthology series, which was produced by Marion Parsonnet. Charles Bronson played one of his first major TV roles on one episode, "Take the Odds," seen 18 January 1953.

DR. CHRISTIAN SYNDICATED

1956 This medical show was based on the film and radio series, which had starred Jean Hersholt. On TV Macdonald Carey starred as small-town physician Dr. Mark Christian, nephew of Hersholt's character, Dr. Paul Christian; Hersholt himself actually appeared in the first two TV episodes.

DR. DEAN NBC

15 JUNE 1992–15 JANUARY 1993 On this half-hour daytime series, Dr. Dean Edell dispensed advice on medical matters and health care.

DOCTOR, DOCTOR CBS

12 JUNE 1989–24 JULY 1989; 13 NOVEMBER 1989–26 JANUARY 1990; 20 AUGUST 1990–3 JANUARY 1991; 8 JUNE 1991–6 JULY 1991 This half-hour sitcom was the first television series set in Rhode Island. It starred Matt Frewer (late of Max Headroom) as Dr. Mike Stratford, an unconventional practitioner at Northeast Medical Partners in Providence; Beau Gravitte as Dr. Grant Linowitz; Julius Carry III as Dr. Abe Butterfield; Maureen Mueller as Dr. Dierdre Bennett; Audrie J. Neenan as Nurse Faye Barylski; and Sarah Abrell as Pia Bismarck, anchor of the local TV show Wake Up Providence, on which Mike landed a regular spot as medical correspondent. Occasionally featured were Dakin Matthews as Mike's father, Harold; Inga Swenson as Mike's mother, Connie; and Tony Carreiro as Mike's gay brother, Richard. In the fall of 1990 Anne Elizabeth Ramsay joined the group as Grant's sister, Dr. Leona Linowitz. Norman Steinberg created the series.

DR. DOOLITTLE NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 A Saturday-morning cartoon series about a kindly veterinarian who could talk to the animals, based on the stories by Hugh Lofting and inspired by the 1967 film starring Rex Harrison.

DR. FIX-UM ABC

3 MAY 1949–6 AUGUST 1950 Host Arthur Youngquist presented tips on home repair on this prime-time show.

DR. FU MANCHU (THE ADVENTURES OF FU MANCHU) SYNDICATED

1956 The inscrutable Oriental mastermind created by Sax Rohmer almost came to television in 1952; that year a pilot film was made at Fox Movietone Studios in New York with John Carradine as Fu Manchu and Sir Cedric Hardwicke as Detective Nayland Smith, his adversary. In 1956 Fu reappeared, played by Glen Gordon, with Lester Stevens as Nayland Smith.

DR. HUDSON'S SECRET JOURNAL SYNDICATED

1955–1957 The character of Dr.Wayne Hudson appeared in two novels by Lloyd C. Douglas, Magnificent Obsession and Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal. The television series, a syndicated half-hour serial, starred John Howard as the widowed Dr. Hudson, a neurosurgeon at Center Hospital. Also featured were Olive Blakeney as his housekeeper, Mrs. Grady; Cheryl Gallaway as his daughter, Kathy; Jack Kelly (who would soon move to Maverick) as Dr. Bennett. The seventy-eight episodes were produced by Eugene Solow and Brewster Morgan.

DR. I.Q. ABC

4 NOVEMBER 1953–10 OCTOBER 1954; 15 DECEMBER 1958–23 MARCH 1959 Neither of the television adaptations of this popular radio quiz show fared well. Jay Owen was the first host of the 1953–1954 version. As Dr. I.Q., the Mental Banker, he awarded twenty silver dollars for each question answered correctly by contestants from the studio audience. An Episcopalian minister, James McClain, succeeded Owen during the 1953–1954 season, and Tom Kennedy hosted the show when it was revived four years later as a midseason replacement for Anybody Can Play.

DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE SYNDICATED

1971–1974 This British comedy about a group of medical students studying at St. Swithin's Teaching Hospital in London was based on the stories by Richard Gordon (which in turn had formed the basis for the 1953 film). With Barry Evans (1971–1973) as Michael A. Upton; Ernest Clark as Professor Loftus, anatomy instructor; Robin Nedwell (1971–1972; 1973–1974) as Duncan Waring; George Layton as Paul Collier; Jeffrey Davies as Dick Stuart-Clark; Martin Shaw as Huw Evans; Simon Cuff

(1971–1972) as David Briddock; Ralph Michael (1971–1972) as The Dean; and Richard O'Sullivan (1972–1974) as Dr. Lawrence Bingham. Filmed between 1969 and 1972, the series was not made available to American markets until 1971. The students had earned their degrees by the second season and left St. Swithin's, only to return (as interns) a year later; it was explained that Upton had gone away to sea.

DOCTOR JOYCE BROTHERS (CONSULT DR. BROTHERS) (TELL ME, DR. BROTHERS) (LIVING EASY WITH DR. JOYCE BROTHERS) SYNDICATED

1961; 1964; 1972 Doctor Joyce Brothers, the psychologist who was the first woman to win the top prize on The $64,000 Question (her category was boxing), hosted several syndicated series. The first two—Consult Dr. Brothers (1961) and Tell Me, Dr. Brothers (1964)—focused on human relationships; the third—Living Easy with Dr. Joyce Brothers (1972)—was basically a talk show, featuring celebrity guests.

DR. KATZ: PROFESSIONAL THERAPIST COM

28 MAY 1995– Comedian Jonathan Katz lent his name and voice to this half-hour prime time cartoon series about a psychologist and his teen son, Ben. Other voices were provided by Katz's fellow comedians including Rita Rudner and Steven Wright.

DR. KILDARE NBC

28 SEPTEMBER 1961–30 AUGUST 1966 This popular medical series, like ABC's Ben Casey, enjoyed a five-year run. NBC sealed its doom in 1965 by breaking up the show into two half-hour segments. Richard Chamberlain starred as Dr. James Kildare, an intern at Blair General Hospital. Raymond Massey costarred as Dr. Leonard Gillespie, the paternal senior staff physician who guided him. Also featured were Jud Taylor as Dr. Gerson; Steven Bell (1965–1966) as Dr. Lowry; Lee Kurty (1965–1966) as Nurse Lawton; and Jean Inness (1965–1966) as Nurse Fain. Norman Felton was the executive producer of the series, which was produced at MGM studios. The Doctor Kildare short stories were written by Frederick Schiller Faust, who commonly used the pen name of Max Brand; the inspiration for the stories came from Dr. George Winthrop Fish (1895–1977), a prominent urologist. Several films were made, beginning in 1938, and a radio series appeared in 1939. A second TV series was made in 1972: see Young Dr. Kildare. In 1989 Chamberlain returned to TV as a physician: see Island Son.

DR. QUINN, MEDICINE WOMAN CBS

1 JANUARY 1993– To the surprise of almost everyone, this hour family drama series, set in the 1860s, found an audience in its Saturday night time slot. It starred Jane Seymour as Dr. Michaela "Mike" Quinn, a single female physician who moved from Boston to Colorado Springs, where she set up a practice in the rough-and-tumble frontier town; she also became mother to three children who were orphaned when one of her patients died. Also featured were Chad Allen as Matthew Cooper, eldest of the three children; Erika Flores (1993–January 1995) and Jessica Bowman (January 1995– ) as Colleen Cooper; Shawn Toovey as Brian Cooper; Joe Lando as Byron Sully, the moody and handsome young widower who kept a pet wolf and rented his homestead to Mike and the kids; Guy Boyd (pilot program) and Orson Bean as storekeeper Loren Bray; Colm Meaney (pilot) and Jim Knobeloch as barber Jake Slicker; Geoffrey Lower as Reverend Johnson; William Shockley as Hank the bartender; and Helene Udy as Myra the saloon girl. Mike married Sully at the end of the 1994–1995 season, and in the fall of 1995 she became pregnant.

DR. RUTH WESTHEIMER LIFETIME

27 AUGUST 1984–1 JANUARY 1988; 2 APRIL 1988–14 JANUARY 1989; 4 AUGUST 1989–1 JUNE 1991 Sex therapist Ruth Westheimer has hosted several discussion shows on the Lifetime Cable Channel (formerly known as the Cable Health Network). On the first series, originally titled Good Sex! With Dr. Ruth Westheimer (and later simply titled Dr. Ruth), she dispensed advice to actors who appeared as patients. Her subsequent shows, The All New Dr. Ruth Show, What's Up, Dr. Ruth? and On the Air with Dr. Ruth, featured call-ins and interviews with physicians and celebrities. See also Ask Dr. Ruth.

DOCTOR SIMON LOCKE SYNDICATED

1971 A half-hour medical drama, filmed in Canada. With Jack Albertson as Dr. Andrew Sellers, a general practitioner in the small town of Dixon Mills; Sam Groom as Dr. Simon Locke, the young associate who joined him in the practice; Nuala Fitzgerald as their housekeeper and nurse, Mrs. Louise Winn; and Len Birman as Dan Palmer, local police chief. After one season Doctor Locke left Dixon Mills for the big city: see Police Surgeon.

DR. SNUGGLES SYNDICATED

1981 A Dutch-produced cartoon series featuring Dr. Snuggles, a lovable inventor, and Miss Nettles, his housekeeper. Principal voices were supplied by Peter Ustinov.

DR. SPOCK NBC

9 OCTOBER 1955–9 AUGUST 1956 Dr. Benjamin Spock, America's most famous pediatrician, advised parents on child care on this Sunday-afternoon series. The show was broadcast from KYW-TV in Cleveland; Spock taught at the Western Reserve University College of Medicine.

DOCTOR WHO SYNDICATED

1978–1989 This low-budget but highly entertaining science fiction series acquired cult status in many of the one hundred countries in which it was televised. Produced in England, it began in 1963, though it was not widely seen in this country until 1978. Its central character was the Doctor, a 750-year-old native of the planet Gallifrey who traveled through the universe; though not precisely human, the Doctor found it convenient to use a human form. The title role was played by more than half a dozen actors: William Hartnell, Patrick Troughton, Jon Pertwee, Tom Baker, Peter Davison, Colin Baker, Sylvester McCoy, and Paul McGann; additionally, Richard Hurndall played the first Doctor in a special twentieth-anniversary episode in 1983.

THE DOCTORS NBC

1 APRIL 1963–31 DECEMBER 1982 Created by Orin Tovrov, who had written the radio serial Ma Perkins for many years, The Doctors was set in and around Hope Memorial Hospital. It began not as a continuing drama, but rather as a daily anthology series in which one of four main characters was featured: Jock Gaynor as Dr. William Scott; Margot Moser as Dr. Elizabeth Hayes; Richard Roat as Dr. Jerry Chandler; and Fred J. Scollay as Sam Shafer, the chaplain. The Doctors experimented with a weekly anthology format later in 1963, and became a continuing serial early in 1964. In 1972 it became the first daytime serial to win an Emmy. Its producers included Allen Potter, Joseph Stuart, Jeff Young, Doris Quinlan, and Gerry Straub. Head writers included Eileen Pollack and Robert Mason Pollack, Margaret DePriest, and Douglas Marland. By the early 1980s, however, The Doctors had become television's lowest-rated soap opera, and the show expired quietly at the end of 1982.

When The Doctors changed formats in 1964 Richard Roat and Fred J. Scollay were retained for a time, but were eventually written out as new characters took over. Principal players included: James Pritchett as Dr. Matt Powers, the head of Hope Memorial (Pritchett had appeared on the show in 1963, as a corporate president in a single episode), who was a widower; Ann Williams, Bethel Leslie, and Lydia Bruce as Dr. Maggie Fielding, who married Matt in 1968; Adam Kennedy as Brock Hayden, who was murdered; Ellen McRae (later known as Ellen Burstyn) as Dr. Kate Bartok; Elizabeth Hubbard as Dr. Althea Davis (Hubbard was replaced briefly by Virginia Vestoff in 1969, but returned to the role); Gerald O'Loughlin as Pete Banas, hospital custodian; Karl Light as Dave Davis, Althea's ex-husband; Dorothy Blackburn as Nurse Brown; Katherine Meskill as Faith Collins; and Court Benson as Willard Walling.

Additional players have included: Charles Braswell and Joseph Campanella as Alec Fielding, Maggie's first husband; Byron Sanders as Kurt Van Allen, Maggie's second husband; Harry Packwood, Peter Burnell, Michael Landrum, Armand Assante, John Shearin, and Stephen Burleigh as Dr. Mike Powers, Matt's son by his first marriage; Pamela Toll as Liz Wilson, Mike's girlfriend; Morgan Sterne as Keith Wilson, Liz's father; Meg Myles as Harriet Wilson, Liz's mother; Julia Duffy as Penny Davis, daughter of Althea and Dave Davis (their other child, Buddy, died of spinal meningitis); Gerald Gordon as Dr. Nick Bellini, a brain surgeon who was briefly married to Althea; Eileen Kearney, Jennifer Houlton, and Gracie Harrison as Greta Van Allen, daughter of Kurt and Maggie, who was adopted by Matt Powers when he married Maggie; Terry Kiser as Dr. John Rice; Nancy Donohue as nurse Nancy Bennett; James Shannon as Paul Bennett, Nancy's missing husband; Conrad Roberts as Dr. Simon Harris; Zeida Coles as Anna Ford; Ginger Gerlach as Julie Forrest, who died after a fall down the stairs (not long afterward, Gerlach herself died of a drug overdose); Carolee Campbell and Jada Rowland as nurse Carolee Simpson; Richard Higgs as Dr. Dan Allison, who married Carolee and later committed suicide (though he tried to make it look like murder); David O'Brien as Dr. Steve Aldrich, who was implicated in Dan's death but later married Carolee; Laryssa Lauret as Dr. Karen Werner, Steve's lover, killed in a plane crash; Keith Blanchard and Thor Fields as Erich Aldrich, illegitimate son of Steve and Karen; Bobby Hennessy, David Elliott, Shawn Campbell, and Alec Baldwin as Billy Allison Aldrich, son of Dan and Carolee, later adopted by Carolee and Steve; Patrick Horgan as psychiatrist Dr. John Morrison, who was murdered; Carol Pfander, Nancy Barrett, and Holly Peters as nurse Kathy Ryker, who committed suicide; Anna Stuart as lab technician Toni Ferra, who married Mike Powers and was later killed in a plane crash; Nancy Franklin (who also wrote for the series) as Toni's mother, Barbara Ferra; Paul Henry Itkin as Dr. Vito McCray; Palmer Deane as Dr. Hank Iverson, a black physician; Marie Thomas as Lauri James, Hank's girlfriend; Katherine Squire as Carolee's mother, Emma Simpson; Sally Gracie as Martha Allen; Tara Baker, Bridget Breen, and Gloria Mattioli as Stephanie Aldrich, daughter of Steve and Carolee; Meg Mundy as Mona Aldrich Croft, Steve's mother; Glenn Corbett as Jason Aldrich; Geraldine Court as Dr. Ann Larimer, ex-wife of Steve Aldrich; Gil Gerard as Dr. Alan Stewart, Matt Powers's nephew; Mary Denham as Margo Stewart; Leslie Ann Ray as Stacy Wells; Lloyd Bremseth as Andy Anderson; Lauren White and Kathy Glass as Mary Jane (M.J.) Match; Alex Sheafe as lawyer Luke McAlister; Dino Narizzano as Dr. Kevin MacIntyre; Chandler Hill Harben as Dr. Rico Bellini; Jess Adams as Webb Sutherland; Thomas Connolly as Dr. Clifford DeSales; Edmund Lyndeck as Dr. Carl Hendryx; Toni Darnay as Vivian Hendryx; Anthony Cannon as Dr. Tom Barrett; Roni Dengel as Dawn Eddington; George Smith as Detective Ernie Cadman; Tammy McDonald as Iris Fonteyne; Matthew Tobin as Rex Everlee; Robert Coppes as Reverend Joe Turner; George Coe as Scott Conrad; Peter Lombard as Dr. Robert Wilson; Lois Smith as Eleanor Conrad; Fanny Speiss and Kathy Eckles as Wendy Conrad; Alan Koss as Alvin Ing; Dale Robinette as Dr. Gil Lawford; Paul Carr as Dr. Paul Sommers; Kathryn Harrold, Kathleen Turner, and Kim Zimmer as Nola Dancy Aldrich; Jonathan Hogan as Jerry Dancy; Frank Telfer as Luke Dancy; Elizabeth Lawrence as Virginia Dancy; Jonathan Frakes as Tom Carroll; Jason Matzner as Ricky Manero; Petronia Paley as Dr. Jesse Rawlings; Larry Weber as Barney Dancy; Pamela Lincoln as Doreen Aldrich; Philip English as Colin Wakefield; Melissa Sherman as Judy; Peggy Cass as Sweeney; Dorothy Fielding as Sara Dancy; Martin Shakar as Dr. Speer; John Downes as Michael Paul Powers; Jane Fleiss as Kim; John Newton as Dr. Cummings; Dorian LoPinto as Missy Roberts, who was killed by terrorists; Heywood Hale Broun as Cappy Randall; Patricia Hayling as Mrs. Chambers; and Count Stovall as Hank Chambers.

Other regulars during The Doctors' later years included: Amanda Treyz and Jeannine Costigan as Lee Ann Aldrich, young daughter of Billy Allison Aldrich and Greta Van Allen; Doris Belack as Claudia Howard; Richard Borg as Alan Ross; Nancy Pinkerton as Viveca Strand; Laurie Klatscher and Jane Badler as Natalie Dancy, Luke's wife; Chris Calloway as singer Ivie Gooding; Rex Robbins as Dr. Murray Glover; John Pankow as Danny Martin; Hillary Bailey as nurse Kit McCormack; Michael Stark as Dr. Jeff Manning; James Douglas as Jeff's father, banker

Phillip Manning; Nancy Stafford as Adrienne Hunt; Mark Goddard as Lieutenant Paul Reed, a cop; Valerie Mahaffey as Ashley Bennett; Franc Luz as Dr. John Bennett; Ben Thomas as Jack Garner; David Canary as Warner; Carolyn Byrd as Dr. Terri Foster; Diane Kirksey as Bobby; Nana Tucker as Darcy Collins; Laurie Kussold as Jessica; Elaine Lee as Mildred Turnbull; Larry Riley as Calvin Barnes; Nicholas Walker as Brad Huntington; Bea Winde as Lillian Foster; and Augusta Dabney as Theodora Van Allen.

THE DOCTORS AND THE NURSES
See THE NURSES

DOCTORS HOSPITAL NBC
10 SEPTEMBER 1975–14 JANUARY 1976 Hour-long medical series set at Lowell Memorial Hospital. With George Peppard as Dr. Jake Goodwin, chief of neurosurgery; Zohra Lampert as Dr. Noah Purcell; Victor Campos as Dr. Felipe Ortega; and Albert Paulsen as Dr. Janos Varga. Executive producer: Matthew Rapf. Produced by Jack Laird.

DOCTORS' PRIVATE LIVES ABC
5 APRIL 1979–26 APRIL 1979 Four-week medical miniseries. With Ed Nelson as Dr. Michael Wise, chief of surgery; John Gavin as Dr. Jeff Latimer, head of the hospital cardiovascular unit; Randolph Powell as Dr. Rick Calder, a young surgeon; Phil Levien as Kenny Wise, Michael's son; Gwen Humble as med student Sheila Castle, a friend of Michael's; Eddie Benton as nurse Diane Curtis; William Smithers as Dr. Trilling; Elinor Donahue as Mona, Michael's ex-wife. James Henerson created the series; David Gerber was the executive producer, Matthew Rapf the producer.

DOG AND CAT ABC
5 MARCH 1977–14 MAY 1977 Crime drama about a woman police officer assigned to work with a male officer who, at least initially, doubted her abilities. With Kim Basinger as Officer J. Z. Kane; Lou Antonio as Sergeant Jack Ramsey; and Matt Clark as Lieutenant Kipling. Walter Hill created the series; Lawrence Gordon was the executive producer.

DOG CITY FOX
26 SEPTEMBER 1992–28 JANUARY 1995 This Saturday morning kids' series, created by Jim Henson Productions, combined puppetry with animation. Its central character was Eliot Shag, a canine muppet who had created a cartoon series about a canine private eye named Ace Hart.

DOLLAR A SECOND DUMONT/NBC/ABC
20 SEPTEMBER 1953–14 JUNE 1954 (DUMONT); 4 JULY 1954–22 AUGUST 1954 (NBC); 1 OCTOBER 1954–24 JUNE 1955 (ABC); 5 JULY 1955–23 AUGUST 1955 (NBC); 2 SEPTEMBER 1955–31 AUGUST 1956 (ABC); 22 JUNE 1957–28 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC) Jan Murray hosted this prime-time game show, which was not unlike Truth or Consequences. Contestants earned $1 for each second during which they could answer questions correctly; if they answered incorrectly or were interrupted by the host, they were required to perform a stunt. The show was based on a French radio program, Cent Francs par Seconde, created by Jean-Pierre Bloudeau.

THE $1.98 BEAUTY CONTEST SYNDICATED
1978 This half-hour game show bore the unmistakable marks of a Chuck Barris Production. Hosted by comic Rip Taylor, it was similar to The Gong Show; three celebrity panelists watched a group of contestants compete—in talent and swimsuit segments—for the daily prize, $1.98 in cash and a tacky tiara.

DOLLY SYNDICATED
1976–1977 A half hour of country and western music, hosted by Dolly Parton, one of the most popular country and western stars of the decade.

DOLLY ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1987–7 MAY 1988 In the hope of finding someone who could host a successful network variety show (a feat undone since the demise of The Carol Burnett Show), ABC made a two-season, $44 million commitment to country music star Dolly Parton. Unfortunately, the glitzy, big-budget hour finished 47th in the ratings for its first season, and the second season never materialized. Parton's considerable talents were probably overutilized on the show; she seemed to appear in virtually every segment, singing with the musical guests and performing in skits with the acting guests. Except for a four-man vocal group called A Cappella, there were no other regulars besides Parton. Nevertheless there were some memorable musical highlights, such as the appearance of Linda Ronstadt and Emmylou Harris (with whom Parton had recorded the album Trio) on 11 October.

DOLPHIN COVE CBS

21 JANUARY 1989–11 MARCH 1989 Hour adventure series about a widowed scientist who moved to Australia with his kids to study dolphins. With Frank Converse as Michael Larson; Trey Ames as son David; Karron Graves as daughter Katie, who hadn't spoken since her mother's death; Virginia Hey as Allison, Katie's speech therapist; Antony Richards as Kevin; Ernie Dingo as Didge, a local aborigine; and Nick Tate as Trent. The series was filmed on location.

THE DOM DeLUISE SHOW CBS

1 MAY 1968–18 SEPTEMBER 1968 Comedian Dom DeLuise hosted this variety hour, a summer replacement for The Jackie Gleason Show (though it was televised in a different time slot). Regulars included Carol Arthur (Dom's wife), Marian Mercer, Bill McCutcheon, Paul Dooley, B. S. Pulley, the Gentry Brothers, Dick Lynn, the June Taylor Dancers, and the Sammy Spear Orchestra. Taped in Miami Beach, the show was produced by Ronnie Wayne.

THE DOM DeLUISE SHOW SYNDICATED

1987–1989 In this half-hour sitcom Dom Deluise starred as Dom, a widower who operated a barber shop across the street from a Hollywood film studio. George Wallace (the black actor, not the former governor) played his partner, George Wallace. With Maureen Murphy as Maureen the manicurist; Lauren Woodland as Dom's daughter, Rosa; Lois Foraker as Dom's romantic interest, Blanche; Angela Aames as Penny; and Michael Chambers as Michael.

DOMESTIC LIFE CBS

4 JANUARY 1984–31 JULY 1984 Half-hour sitcom about the home life of a local television personality. With Martin Mull as Martin Crane, who delivered commentaries on "Domestic Life" over station KMRT in Seattle; Judith-Marie Bergan as his wife, Candy Crane; Christian Brackett-Zika as their precocious young son, Harold; Megan Follows as their teenage daughter, Didi; Robert Ridgely as Cliff, coanchor of the KMRT newscast; and Mie Hunt as Jane, the other coanchor.

DON ADAMS' SCREEN TEST SYNDICATED

1975 Half-hour game show on which preselected contestants acted out scenes from various motion pictures with celebrity partners. At the end of the show a guest judge (usually a producer or director) selected the best amateur, who was then promised a small role in an upcoming film or television series. Don Adams was host and executive producer. Producer: Marty Pasetta.

DON AMECHE PLAYHOUSE (DON'S MUSICAL PLAYHOUSE) ABC

5 JULY 1951–4 OCTOBER 1951 Half-hour musical comedy series hosted by Don Ameche; it replaced the very similar Holiday Hotel on Thursdays.

THE DON HO SHOW ABC

25 OCTOBER 1976–4 MARCH 1977 Half-hour daytime variety series broadcast from various sites in Hawaii and hosted by singer Don Ho.

DON KIRSHNER'S ROCK CONCERT SYNDICATED

1973–1982 Film clips of various rock-and-roll stars introduced by Don Kirshner, the music publisher and rock impresario responsible for the success of such groups as the Monkees and the Archies. Kirshner also served as executive producer of the series; it was produced by David Yarnell.

THE DON KNOTTS SHOW NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1970–6 JULY 1971 After years as a supporting player on The Steve Allen Show and The Andy Griffith Show, Don Knotts took a stab at headlining a variety series. Also featured were Elaine Joyce, Frank Welker, John Dehner, Kenneth Mars, Eddy Carroll, Francis DeSales, Mickey Deems, Brad Logan, Fay DeWitt, Gary Burghoff, and Bob Williams and his dog, Louis. Executive producer: Nick Vanoff. Producer: Bill Harbach. Director: Norman Abbott.

THE DON LANE SHOW SYNDICATED

1980 An hour talk show, hosted by Don Lane and broadcast from Australia. Lane, a native New Yorker, hosted the Sydney-based show from 1974 to 1983.

DON McNEILL'S TV CLUB ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1950–19 DECEMBER 1951

THE BREAKFAST CLUB ABC

22 FEBRUARY 1954–25 FEBRUARY 1955 Don McNeill hosted one of America's longest-running radio shows: The Breakfast Club ran from 1933 to 1968. It was a spontaneous, low-key blend of music, interviews, comedy, and audience participation broadcast weekday mornings from Chicago. In 1950 McNeill brought his show to prime-time television, where it was titled Don McNeill's TV Club. Regulars included Fran Allison (of Kukla, Fran and Ollie fame), Johnny Desmond, Eileen Parker, Patsy Lee, Sam Cowling, and Eddie Ballantine and his orchestra. The show was produced by George M. Cahan and directed by Grover J. Allen. In 1954 McNeill again tried television, this time on weekday mornings. The show, called The Breakfast Club, was simulcast with the radio show.

THE DON RICKLES SHOW ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1968–31 JANUARY 1969 An ill-conceived half-hour series, part game show and part variety show. Host Don Rickles, known to most audiences strictly as an insult comic (his sobriquet, "The Merchant of Venom," was well deserved), spent most of the show trading insults with celebrity guests. Occasionally he found time to quiz—and insult—contestants from the studio audience. Rickles's considerable talents as a dramatic actor never surfaced on the series, unfortunately. Also featured was Pat McCormick, king-sized comic (and the show's head writer). The show was a Mark Goodson–Bill Todman Production.

THE DON RICKLES SHOW CBS

14 JANUARY 1972–26 MAY 1972 Don Rickles's second series was a sitcom in which Rickles was cast as Don Robinson, a high-strung executive with Kingston, Cohen & Vanderpool, a New York advertising agency. With Louise Sorel as Barbara Robinson, Don's wife; Erin Moran as Janie, their daughter; Robert Hogan as Don's friend and coworker, Tyler Benedict; Joyce Van Patten as Jean Benedict, Tyler's wife and Barbara's best friend; Barry Gordon as Conrad Musk, aggressive young adman. Executive producer: Sheldon Leonard. Director: Hy Averback.

THE DONALD O'CONNOR SHOW NBC

9 OCTOBER 1954–10 SEPTEMBER 1955 This half-hour filmed variety series was seen biweekly, alternating with The Jimmy Durante Show on Saturdays. It was hosted by singer-dancer Donald O'Connor, who had earlier hosted The Colgate Comedy Hour.

THE DONALD O'CONNOR SHOW SYNDICATED

1968 Donald O'Connor, the star of countless musical comedies during the 1940s and 1950s, made few appearances on TV after his earlier show left the air in 1955. He returned briefly in 1968 to host this syndicated talk show.

THE DONNA FARGO SHOW SYNDICATED

1978 Half-hour country-and-western music show hosted by singer Donna Fargo.

THE DONNA REED SHOW ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1958–3 SEPTEMBER 1966 One of the most wholesome sitcoms ever made, The Donna Reed Show barely escaped cancellation after its first season. It was moved to Thursdays in 1959, where it remained for seven more seasons; by the end of its run in 1966 it was ABC's third oldest prime-time series. Donna Reed, who won an Academy Award for her performance in From Here to Eternity (1955), starred as Donna Stone, all-American housewife and mother. Also featured were Carl Betz as her husband, Alex Stone, a small-town pediatrician; Shelley Fabares (1958–1963) as Mary, their teenage daughter; Paul Petersen as Jeff, their son (he was eleven when the show started and had been one of the original Mouseketeers on The Mickey Mouse Club). In 1963 Patty Petersen (Paul's real-life sister) joined the cast as Trisha, an orphan taken in by the Stones. Other regulars included Kathleen Freeman (1958–1960) as Mrs. Wilgus, their nosy neighbor; Harvey Grant as Jeff's pal, Philip; Darryl Richard as Jeff's friend, Smitty; Jimmy Hawkins as Scotty Simpson; Candy Moore (1964–1966) as Bebe Barnes, Jeff's girlfriend; Bob Crane (1963–1965) as Dr. Dave Kelsey, their neighbor; and Ann McCrea (1963–1966) as Midge Kelsey, Dave's wife and Donna's best friend. Both Shelley Fabares and Paul Petersen attempted to launch recording careers on the strength of their popularity; each had a hit or two (Fabares's "Johnny Angel," Petersen's "My Dad" and "She Can't Find Her Keys"), but neither approached the phenomenal success achieved by Rick Nelson of ABC's other long-running sitcom, Ozzie and Harriet. The Donna Reed Show was produced by Reed's husband, Tony Owen. Among the guest stars who made their first major TV appearances on the series were John Astin ("Mouse at Play," 5 October 1961), James Darren ("April Fool," 1 April 1959), and George Hamilton ("Have Fun," 4 February 1959). Margaret Dumont made a rare television appearance on the show ("Miss Lovelace Comes to Tea," 12 May 1959) as did Buster Keaton ("A Very Merry Christmas," 24 December 1958).

DONNY AND MARIE ABC

23 JANUARY 1976–19 JANUARY 1979 The first variety hour hosted by a brother-and-sister team: Donny and Marie Osmond, two of the nine talented Osmond children. Both are excellent singers (she, "a little bit country," he, "a little bit rock and roll") as well as competent ice skaters; many routines were done on ice, and the dancing Ice Vanities were regular performers (the ice routines were dropped in the fall of 1978). Additional regulars included Jim Connell and Hank Garcia. The other Osmond siblings appeared frequently on the show (Donny had sung with his older brothers in the Osmonds). In the fall of 1977 designer Bob Mackie was hired to help dress up Marie's image and plans were undertaken to shift production of the series from Hollywood to Utah, the Osmonds' home state. Executive producer: Raymond Katz. Producers: Sid and Marty Krofft. See also Marie; The Osmond Family Show.

DON'T CALL ME CHARLIE NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1962–25 JANUARY 1963 Forgettable sitcom about an Iowa veterinarian who was drafted and ended up assigned to the Army in Paris. With Josh Peine as Private Judson McKay; John Hubbard as Colonel U. Charles ("Don't call me Charlie!") Barker; Alan Napier as General Steele; Cully Richards as Sergeant Wozniak; Arte Johnson as Corporal Lefkowitz; Louise Glenn as secretary Selma Yossarian; Linda Lawson as Pat Perry, the general's secretary; and Penny Santon as Madame Fatime.

THE DOODLES WEAVER SHOW NBC

9 JUNE 1951–1 SEPTEMBER 1951 A half hour of sight gags, costumery, and sound effects hosted by Doodles Weaver and featuring Lois Weaver (his wife) and Red Marshall. Weaver, whose real first name was Winstead, was the brother of NBC executive Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, the creative genius responsible for such shows as Today and Tonight. This series was a summer replacement for Your Show of Shows.

DOOGIE HOWSER, M.D. ABC

19 SEPTEMBER 1989–21 JULY 1993 Half-hour comedy-drama series from Steven Bochco (who created the series with David Kelley) about a child prodigy, with Neil Patrick Harris as sixteen-year-old Douglas "Doogie" Howser, the youngest physician in the country, a second-year resident at Eastman Medical Center; James B. Sikking as his father, Dr. David Howser; Belinda Montgomery as his mother, Katherine; Max Casella as Doogie's hormone-driven pal, Vinnie Delpino; Lawrence Pressman as chief of staff Dr. Canfield; Mitchell Anderson (1989–1991) as Dr. Jack McGuire; Kathryn Layng as Nurse Curly Spaulding; Lisa Dean Ryan (1989–1992) as Doogie's girlfriend, Wanda Plenn; Lucy Boryer as Vinnie's girlfriend, Jeannine; and Rif Hutton as Dr. Welch. In the fall of 1990 Markus Redmond joined the cast as Raymond Alexander, who became a hospital orderly; the character had appeared in an episode during the first season as the robber of a convenience store. As the series progressed, Doogie eventually moved out of his parents' house and into his own place, as Wanda went away to college. Appearing occasionally during the final season was Robyn Lively as Doogie's new girlfriend, Michele, a nurse.

THE DOOR WITH NO NAME NBC

6 JULY 1951–17 AUGUST 1951 A summer replacement for Big Story, this half-hour spy show starred Grant Richards as an American intelligence agent, Doug Carter, and Melville Ruick as his boss. Westbrook Van Voorhis narrated the series. See also Doorway to Danger.

DOORWAY TO DANGER NBC

4 JULY 1952–22 AUGUST 1952; 3 JULY 1953–28 AUGUST 1953 This half-hour spy series was twice a summer replacement for Big Story. It starred Roland Winters as secret agent John Randolph and Stacy Harris as agent Doug Carter. See also The Door with No Name.

DOORWAY TO FAME DUMONT

7 MARCH 1949–4 JULY 1949 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was significant because of a technical innovation it utilized: the actors performed in front of a simple black backdrop, while a second camera was trained on miniature sets or on painted backdrops. The two images were then blended in the control room to create the desired illusion.

THE DORIS DAY SHOW CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1968–3 SEPTEMBER 1973 Doris Day was one of the few film stars whose initial entry into television proved successful; her situation comedy lasted five seasons and weathered four formats. Doris Day starred as Doris Martin in each of them. The first format found Doris, recently widowed, settling down on her uncle's farm with her two young sons. It featured Denver Pyle (1968–1970) as her uncle, Buck Webb; Tod Starke (1968–1971) as son Toby; Philip Brown (1968–1971) as son Billy; James Hampton (1968–1969) as Leroy B. Simpson, Buck's handyman; Fran Ryan (1968) as Aggie, the first housekeeper; Naomi Stevens (1969) as Juanita, the second housekeeper. As the second season began, Doris found work as an executive secretary for Today's World magazine. Pyle, Starke, and Brown remained and new additions to the cast included McLean Stevenson (1969–1971) as her boss, Michael Nicholson; Rose Marie (1969–1971) as coworker Myrna Gibbons; Paul Smith (1969–1971) as Ron Harvey, associate editor; Billy DeWolfe as fussy Willard Jarvis, Doris's neighbor. For the third season, Doris left the farm (and Denver Pyle left the series) and moved into an apartment over an Italian restaurant; joining the series were Kaye

Ballard (1970–1971) as Angie Palucci and Bernie Kopell (1970–1971) as Louie Palucci, the proprietors of the eatery. The fourth season saw the most dramatic change in format: Doris became a swinging single. Gone were the kids, as well as Stevenson and Marie. The final format lasted two seasons, longer than any of the others. It featured John Dehner (1971–1973) as editor Sy Bennett and Jackie Joseph (1971–1973) as his secretary, Jackie Parker (Doris had finally become a reporter). Occasionally appearing was Peter Lawford as her boyfriend, Dr. Peter Lawrence. Day's son, Terry Melcher, was executive producer of the series.

DOROTHY CBS
8 AUGUST 1979–29 AUGUST 1979 A four-episode half-hour sitcom set at the Hannah Huntley School for Girls. With Dorothy Loudon as the divorced music and drama teacher, Dorothy Banks; Russell Nype as Mr. Foley, the headmaster (and grandson of the founder); Priscilla Morrill as Lorna Cathcart, the French teacher; Kenneth Gilman as T. Jack Landis, the biology teacher; Linda Manz as fresh Frankie Sumter, a scholarship student; Elissa Leeds as Cissy; Susan Brecht as Meredith; and Michele Greene as Margo. Created by Nick Arnold, Madelyn Davis, and Bob Carroll, Jr., Dorothy should not be confused with NBC's The Facts of Life, another 1979 sitcom set at a girl's boarding school.

DO'S AND DONT'S ABC
3 JULY 1952–18 SEPTEMBER 1952 Hints on safety were dispensed on this half-hour public service series.

DOTTO CBS/NBC
Daytime: 6 JANUARY 1958–15 AUGUST 1958 (CBS); Nighttime: 1 JULY 1958–19 AUGUST 1958 (NBC) Jack Narz hosted this game show which, like the parlor game, required contestants to identify a figure outlined in dots; by answering questions correctly, contestants saw the lines connecting the dots. Dotto is probably better remembered as one of the first series implicated in the quiz show scandals. In August 1958, a standby contestant accidentally happened upon some notes left by another contestant; the notes contained the answers to the questions asked that day. The discovery led to an investigation of game shows by the New York District Attorney and precipitated the cancellation of several series, including Dotto.

THE DOTTY MACK SHOW DUMONT/ABC
16 FEBRUARY 1953–25 AUGUST 1953 (DUMONT); 3 SEPTEMBER 1953–3 SEPTEMBER 1956 (ABC) The regulars on this variety series, broadcast from Cincinnati, performed pantomime routines to popular recordings. Surprisingly, the show lasted three years. Assisting former model Dotty Mack were Colin Male and Bob Braun. The DuMont series was originally titled Girl Alone.

DOUBLE DARE CBS
13 DECEMBER 1976–29 APRIL 1977 Alex Trebek hosted this daytime game show on which two contestants sought to identify subjects from descriptive clues; the first contestant to identify the subject could then "dare" the opponent to identify the subject from subsequent clues. If the opponent then missed, the first contestant won extra money. The first contestant to win $500 faced "The Spoilers," a panel of three Ph.D.s. If two of the spoilers failed to identify a subject after four clues, the contestant was awarded $5,000. The show was a Mark Goodson–Bill Todman Production.

DOUBLE DARE CBS
10 APRIL 1985–22 MAY 1985 The second of the three series of this title was an hour crime show about a suave San Francisco thief who, to avoid prosecution, agreed to help out the cops if they would agree to let him team up with his ex-partner, now in jail. With Billy Dee Williams as the thief, Billy Diamond; Ken Wahl as his ex-con partner, Ken Sisko; Joseph Maher as Sylvester, Billy's butler; and Janet Carroll as Lieutenant Samantha Warner (Jennifer Warren played the part in the pilot). Garry

Michael White created the series, of which six episodes were aired. Costar Ken Wahl went on to star in the more successful Wiseguy in 1987.

DOUBLE DARE NICK/SYNDICATED
6 OCTOBER 1986– (NICKELODEON); 1989–1991 (SYNDICATED)
FAMILY DOUBLE DARE FOX
3 APRIL 1988–23 JULY 1988 The third series titled Double Dare was an updated version of the venerable game show Beat the Clock, aimed at kids. Marc Summers hosted the program, on which two pairs of children competed first in a quiz segment. If one team did not know the answer to a question, it could "dare" the other team to answer; that team could elect to answer or could "double dare" the first team. The first team could then choose either to answer the question or to take the "physical challenge," i.e., perform a stunt of some kind, which usually involved making a mess. The winning team was given the opportunity to negotiate an obstacle course within a specified time limit for a series of prizes. During part of its Nickelodeon run the show was known as Super Sloppy Double Dare. In 1988 a second version was introduced on the Fox network, Family Double Dare, in which groups of parents and children competed in a similar format. Both variants were also aired on Nickelodeon.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE CBS
13 MARCH 1961–29 SEPTEMBER 1961 Steve Dunne hosted this daytime game show on which contestants sought to identify a picture hidden beneath a large jigsaw puzzle.

THE DOUBLE LIFE OF HENRY PHYFE ABC
13 JANUARY 1966–1 SEPTEMBER 1966 This situation comedy—a midseason replacement for O.K. Crackerby!—was a pale imitation of Get Smart. Red Buttons, whose TV appearances had been infrequent since the cancellation of his own series in 1954, starred as Henry Phyfe, a bumbling accountant hired by American intelligence to impersonate a deceased enemy agent known as U-31. Also featured were Fred Clark as Chief Hannahan, his immediate superior; Parley Baer as Mr. Hamble, Phyfe's boss at the accounting firm; Zeme North as Judy, Phyfe's girlfriend, who was unaware of his double life; and Marge Redmond as Phyfe's landlady, Florence.

DOUBLE OR NOTHING CBS/NBC
6 OCTOBER 1952–2 JULY 1954 (CBS) 5 JUNE 1953–3 JULY 1953 (NBC) One of the many game shows hosted by Bert Parks, Double or Nothing began on radio in 1940. Each show featured five contestants in a question-and-answer format; contestants jointly agreed whether to try to double their winnings on the "Double or Nothing" round, and split their earnings evenly. The CBS version was a daytime entry; the NBC version was a prime-time program.

DOUBLE PLAY SYNDICATED
1953 Sports personalities were interviewed by Leo Durocher and his then wife, Laraine Day, on this series.

DOUBLE RUSH CBS
4 JANUARY 1995–12 APRIL 1995 After several seasons as Eldin the painter on Murphy Brown, Robert Pastorelli was given his own sitcom. This one was set at a Manhattan bicycle courier service, and Pastorelli played its owner, Johnny Verona, a former rock musician. Also featured were David Arquette, the madman bike messenger; Corinne Bohrer as Zoe Fuller, a down-on-her-luck Harvard Business School graduate, who stumbled into a job as the bookkeeper; Adam Goldberg as Leo; D. L. Hughley as Marlon; Phil Leeds as the ancient messenger known simply as Kid, who didn't use a bike; and Sam Lloyd as Barkley, the dispatcher. Stephen Nathan and Diane English created the series.

DOUBLE TALK (CELEBRITY DOUBLE TALK) ABC
18 AUGUST 1986–19 DECEMBER 1986 On this daytime game show two two-member teams, each with a celebrity and a contestant, tried to solve word puzzles by deciphering the "double talk" (e.g., a clue like "Freezing Dollars") into plain English ("Cold Cash"). Henry Polic II, who was a regular on Webster at the time, hosted. By mid-September the show had been retitled Celebrity Double Talk.

DOUBLE TROUBLE NBC

4 APRIL 1984–5 SEPTEMBER 1984; 1 DECEMBER 1984–21 AUGUST 1985 This innocuous sitcom about twin high-schoolers—one zany, the other serious—was reminiscent of The Patty Duke Show some two decades earlier. There were two principal differences, however: in Double Trouble real-life twins played the leading roles (while Patty Duke had played both roles herself), and The Patty Duke Show lasted three times longer. When the show premiered in the spring of 1984, it was set in Des Moines, with the twins in high school. Jean Sagal played Kate Foster, the headstrong, impulsive twin; and Liz Sagal played Allison, the studious, sensible one. Also featured were Donnelly Rhodes as their widowed father, Art; and Pat Richardson as Art's woman friend, Beth McConnell. When the show returned in the winter of 1984, the twins had moved to New York City to live with their aunt, with Allison studying fashion design and Kate hoping to become an actress. Rhodes and Richardson were gone. Joining the cast were Barbara Barrie as the girls' aunt, Margo Foster, author of the "Bongo Bear" kids' books; James Vallely as Charles Kincaid, and Jonathan Schmock as Billy Batalato, two actors who also lived in Margo's townhouse; and Michael D. Roberts as Mr. Arrechia, Allison's pompous fashion instructor. In real life the Sagal twins were the daughters of the late film director Boris Sagal and the younger sisters of Katey Sagal of Married . . . with Children..

DOUBLE UP NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1992–24 OCTOBER 1992 J. D. Roth hosted this Saturday morning kids' game show on which a brother and sister tried to choose the ideal date for each other by quizzing panels of three girls or three boys.

DOUG NICK

11 AUGUST 1991– The central character in this half-hour cartoon series was eleven-year-old Doug Funnie, who hung around with his pal Skeeter and his dog, Porkchop.

DOUGH RE MI NBC

24 FEBRUARY 1958–30 DECEMBER 1960 Hosted by Gene Rayburn, this daytime game show was similar to Name That Tune: Contestants tried to identify songs after hearing a limited number of notes.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS PRESENTS SYNDICATED

1953–1956 Dramatic anthology series hosted by, and occasionally starring, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Buster Keaton's first dramatic appearance was on this show ("The Awakening"); Christopher Lee, star of countless British horror films, made his American TV debut in an episode entitled "Destination Milan." In some areas, the show was known by another title, such as the name of the sponsor; in New York, for example, the series was called Rheingold Theatre.

DOWN AND OUT IN BEVERLY HILLS FOX

25 JULY 1987–12 SEPTEMBER 1987 An unsuccessful sitcom based on the 1986 film of the same title, which itself was a remake of Jean Renoir's 1932 film, Boudu Saved from Drowning. The TV version starred Hector Elizondo as Dave Whiteman, a successful clothes hanger manufacturer who lived in Beverly Hills; Anita Morris as his wife, Barbara; Evan Richards (repeating his film role) as their son, Max; Eileen Seeley as their daughter, Jenny; Tim Thomerson as Jerry Baskin, a down and out drifter who moved into the Whitemans' mansion after Dave pulled him from the swimming pool; and April Ortiz as Carmen, the Whitemans' maid. Mike the Dog also repeated his film role as Matisse. The half-hour series had a special preview on 26 April, but did not begin weekly telecasts until July.

DOWN HOME NBC

12 APRIL 1990–12 MAY 1990; 28 FEBRUARY 1991 Half-hour sitcom starring Judith Ivey as Kate McCrorey, a successful Manhattan executive who returned home to Hadley Cove, Texas, to help save her father's business. With Dakin Matthews as her dad, Walt, owner of McCrorey's Landing, a fishing pier with an attached café; Eric Allan Kramer as her dim-witted brother, Drew, who worked for Walt; Gedde Watanabe as Tran Van Din, an Asian immigrant who also worked for Walt; Ray Baker as Kate's old boyfriend, Wade Prescott, a successful local businessman who hoped to develop McCrorey's Landing; and Tim Scott as Grover, the mayor of Hadley Cove. Barton Dean created the series, which NBC scheduled as a backup series on its 1990–1991 roster.

DOWN THE SHORE FOX

21 JUNE 1992–13 SEPTEMBER 1992; 3 DECEMBER 1992–5 AUGUST 1993 A Belmar, New Jersey, beach house was the setting of this sitcom, where six young New Yorkers gathered. With Louis Mandylor as Aldo, the ladies' man; Anna Gunn as Arden; Lew Schneider as the nice guy, Zack, a teacher; Pamela Segall (summer 1992) as Miranda; Cathryn de Prume as Donna Shipko; Tom McGowan as Eddie, the girth-enhanced virgin; and Nancy Sorel (December 1992–1993) as the new roomie, Sammy.

DOWN YOU GO DUMONT/CBS/ABC/NBC

30 MAY 1951–27 MAY 1955 (DUMONT); 18 JUNE 1955–3 SEPTEMBER 1955 (CBS); 15 SEPTEMBER 1955–14 JUNE 1956 (ABC); 16 JUNE 1956–8 SEPTEMBER 1956 (NBC) One of the few programs broadcast over all four commercial networks, Down You Go was a prime-time game show hosted by Dr. Bergen Evans. The game, played by a panel of celebrities, was similar to "Hangman." The object was to guess a mystery word or phrase. The panel was shown a row of blanks representing the number of letters in the secret word or phrase; panelists then took turns suggesting a letter of the alphabet. A panelist who suggested an incorrect letter was eliminated from the game. Among the many panelists who appeared over the years were Carmelita Pope, Toni Gilman, Robert Breen, Francis Coughlin, Georgann Johnson, William Williams, Patricia Cutts, and Arthur Treacher.

DOWNTOWN CBS

27 SEPTEMBER 1986–27 DECEMBER 1986; 22 AUGUST 1987–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 A lame crime show about a Los Angeles cop who was asked to supervise a diverse group of four parolees, who sometimes tried to assist him with his cases. With Michael Nouri as Detective John Forney; Blair Underwood (later of L.A. Law fame) as Terry Corsaro, a runaway; Millicent Martin as swindler Harriet Conover, in whose mansion the parolees all lived; Mariska Hargitay (daughter of Jayne Mansfield) as troubled teen Jesse Smith; Robert Englund (better recognized as Freddy Krueger in the Nightmare on Elm Street films) as imposter Dennis Shotoffer; Virginia Capers as social worker Delia Bonner; and David Paymer as Captain Kiner, Forney's supervisor.

DRACULA—THE SERIES SYNDICATED

1990–1991 A modern-day adaptation of the classic vampire legend. With Geordie Johnson as Alexander Lucard, Dracula's latest incarnation, a wealthy industrialist who lived in a European castle (the name "A. Lucard," of course, is "Dracula" spelled backwards; a similar name, "Alucard," was used in the 1943 film Son of Dracula); Jacob Tierney and Joe Roncetti as young brothers Max and Chris Townsend, who were sent by their globetrotting mother to live with their European uncle, and quickly learned of Lucard's identity; Bernard Behrens as the uncle, Gustav Helsing, a fourth-generation vampire hunter; Geraint Wyn Davies as Gustav's son, Klaus, a vampire (Davies would go on to play a vampire again in Forever Knight); and Mia Kirshner as Sophie Metternich, a student who boarded with Gustav.

DRAGNET NBC

16 DECEMBER 1951–6 SEPTEMBER 1959; 12 JANUARY 1967–10 SEPTEMBER 1970 One of the most famous (and often lampooned) crime shows in television history, Dragnet began on radio in 1949. It starred Jack Webb as Sergeant Joe Friday, a hardworking Los Angeles cop who seemed to have no personal life and no interests other than police work. Civil but not quite courteous (everyone was "ma'am" or "sir"), tireless but not quite overzealous ("It's my job. I'm a cop."), Friday pursued every lead, interviewed every witness ("Just the facts, ma'am"), and eventually apprehended the wrongdoer. Webb, who owned an interest in the series, directed most episodes, and also served as narrator, stressed realism in Dragnet: police jargon, paperwork, and intensive investigation characterized the show. Episodes were supposedly based on actual cases; as announcers Hal Gibney and (later) George Fenneman stated at the end of each show: "The story you have just seen is true. The names have been changed to protect the innocent." The emphasis on authenticity also characterized most of the shows which Webb later produced, such as Adam-12 and Emergency!

When Dragnet came to TV in 1951, Barton Yarborough was featured as Friday's partner, Sergeant Ben Romero. Yarborough died after three episodes were filmed; for the rest of the first season Barney Phillips was seen as Friday's partner, Sergeant Ed Jacobs. In the fall of 1952 Ben Alexander (a former child star in several Cecil B. DeMille films) replaced Phillips as Friday's sidekick, Officer Frank Smith; Smith's character gave the show a touch of comic relief, offering counterpoint to Friday's matter-of-fact character. By the time Dragnet left the air in 1959, Friday and Smith had earned promotions to lieutenant and sergeant respectively. Occasionally a female character was introduced as a romantic interest for Friday, though no serious relationship ever developed. Dorothy Abbott appeared as Ann Baker in the fall of 1954, and Marjie Millar was seen as Sharon Maxwell, a civilian who worked in the Records Bureau, during the spring of 1956.

Eight years later a new version of Dragnet returned to NBC as a midseason replacement for The Hero. It was titled Dragnet '67 (and later Dragnet '68, etc.). Webb again starred as Sergeant Joe Friday (how he lost his former rank was never explained). Harry Morgan was featured as his partner, Officer Bill Gannon (Webb and Morgan had appeared together in a 1950 film, Dark City). Many of the shows dealt with topical issues, especially student dissidence and drug use. The show seemed a bit heavy-handed in its second incarnation but lasted two and a half seasons nevertheless. The little details that helped fashion Dragnet's unique style will long be remembered: Walter Schumann's suspenseful theme, the epilog relating the fate of the evening's evildoers, and the chiseling of "Mark VII" (the name of Webb's production company) in stone at the show's conclusion.

In 1987 Saturday Night Live alumnus Dan Aykroyd paid comic respect to the series in a theatrical film; Aykroyd starred as Joe Friday's nephew, Tom Hanks played his partner, and Harry Morgan appeared as their supervisor, Captain Gannon.

In the fall of 1990 a new version of the TV series appeared: see The New Dragnet.

DRAGON'S LAIR ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1984–27 APRIL 1985 A Saturday-morning cartoon series based on the popular video game, featuring Dirk the Daring, his horse, Bert, The King, and Princess Daphne.

THE DRAK PACK CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1980–5 SEPTEMBER 1981 Saturday-morning cartoon show about the Drak Pack, a trio of teenagers (Frankie, Howler, and Drak, Jr., all descended from famous monsters) who did battle with OGRE (Organization of Generally Rotten Enterprises), headed by the sinister Doctor Dread.

DRAW ME A LAUGH ABC

15 JANUARY 1949–5 FEBRUARY 1949 This short-lived series was part variety show and part game show. The object of the game portion was for cartoonist Mel Casson, a regular, to sketch a cartoon from an idea submitted by a viewer. Simultaneously, a studio contestant attempted to sketch a cartoon, having been given the gag line of the cartoon. A panel then chose the funnier cartoon. The game portion was interspersed with music from folksinger Oscar Brand.

DRAW TO WIN CBS

22 APRIL 1952–10 JUNE 1952 A Tuesday-night game show which briefly replaced See It Now. Henry Morgan hosted the series, on which a panel of four cartoonists tried to identify subjects drawn by home viewers.

DRAWING POWER NBC

11 OCTOBER 1980–16 MAY 1981 This Saturday-afternoon series combined live action with cartoons. Set at an animation studio, it featured Bob Kaliban, Kari Page, and Lenny Schultz. Regular segments included "Superperson U.," "Pet Peeves," "Turkey of the Week," and "Bus Stop."

DREAM GIRL OF '67 ABC

19 DECEMBER 1966–29 DECEMBER 1967 This daytime game show was a yearlong beauty pageant. Each day four young women competed for the "Dream Girl of the Day" title. The four daily winners competed for the weekly title on Fridays; the weekly winners all competed at year's end. Dick Stewart hosted the series until September, when he was replaced by Paul Petersen (formerly of The Donna Reed Show). See also Dream Girl U.S.A.

DREAM GIRL U.S.A. SYNDICATED

1986 Ken Howard hosted this updated version of Dream Girl of '67, on which a panel of four celebrities judged groups of four aspirants in the typical beauty contest categories.

DREAM HOUSE ABC/NBC

Nighttime: 27 MARCH 1968–19 SEPTEMBER 1968 (ABC); Daytime: 1 APRIL 1968–2 JANUARY 1970 (ABC); 4 APRIL 1983–29 JUNE 1984 (NBC) Couples had the chance to win a house on this game show. On the ABC versions, which were hosted by Mike Darrow, three couples competed in a question-and-answer format, and the winning couple won the furnishings for one room of a house. If a couple won seven times, they were awarded the grand prize, a "dream house" valued at up to $40,000, built for them on the site of their choice. On the NBC version, hosted by Bob Eubanks some thirteen years later, two couples competed and the winning pair again won a room of furnishings; however, a couple needed to win only five times in order to obtain the house.

DREAM ON HBO/FOX

8 JULY 1990–27 MARCH 1996 (HBO); 8 JANUARY 1995–16 APRIL 1995 (FOX); 19 JUNE 1995–3 JULY 1995 (FOX) Short clips from vintage films and TV series (all from MCA's archives) punctuated this adult sitcom about a divorced thirty-six-year-old book editor. Brian Benben starred as Martin Tupper, who tried to get a love life off the ground as he struggled in his thankless job. Also featured were Wendie Malick as his ex-wife, Judith; Chris Demetral as their teenage son, Jeremy; Denny Dillon as Martin's abrasive secretary, Toby Pedalbee; and Jeff Joseph (1990–1991) and Dorien Wilson (1991–1996) as Martin's best friend, Eddie Charles, host of a New York talk show. Michael McKean joined the cast in 1991, and was occasionally seen as Gibby Fisk, Martin's overbearing boss. Brief movie and TV clips were deftly inserted throughout the episodes, to amplify Martin's thoughts or to complement the storyline. The HBO version included four-letter words and bare breasts; bowdlerized alternate takes were produced as well, for later use on broadcast outlets such as Fox, which aired selected reruns in 1995.

DREAM STREET NBC

13 APRIL 1989–19 MAY 1989 An hour dramatic series from Ed Zwick and Marshall Herskovitz, the creators of thirtysomething. Set in Hoboken, N. J., it featured Dale Midkiff as Denis Debeau, who took over the family refrigeration business from his ill father; Peter Frechette as Denis's older brother, Harry; David Barry Gray as Denis's younger brother, Eric; Tom Signorelli as their father, Peter; Thomas Calabro as Denis's childhood friend, Joey Coltrera, now a mobster; Cecil Hoffmann as Joey's girlfriend, Joni Goldstein; Jo Anderson as Denis's girlfriend, Marianne McKinney; Victor Argo as Anthony Coltrera; and Debra Mooney as Lillian Debeau.

DREAMS CBS

3 OCTOBER 1984–31 OCTOBER 1984 This short-lived sitcom attempted to cash in on the music video craze by telling the story of Dreams, an aspiring Philadelphia rock band; performance videos were incorporated into each episode. With John Stamos as guitarist Gino Manelli; Cain Devore as bassist Phil Taylor (Gino and Phil worked as machinists by day); Jami Gertz as vocalist Martha Spino; Albert Macklin as keyboardist Moe Weiner; Valerie Stevenson as the newest band member, vocalist Lisa Copley; David Logeman as Angie, the drummer (oddly, he was the only band member not identified in the show's opening credits); Ron Karabatsos as Frank Franconi, owner of Club Frank, where Dreams performed; and Sandy Freeman as Louise, Frank's wife. A "soundtrack" LP from the band was released after the show had left the air.

DREXELL'S CLASS FOX

19 SEPTEMBER 1991–25 JUNE 1992 Dabney Coleman starred in this sitcom as cantankerous Otis Drexell, a tax cheat forced to take a job teaching fifth grade in order to satisfy his obligation to the IRS. Also featured were Dakin Matthews as Roscoe Davis, the other fifth grade teacher, whom Drexell couldn't stand; A. J. Langer as Drexell's daughter Melissa; Brittany Murphy as Drexell's daughter Brenda; Jason Biggs as student Willie Trankis; Damian Cagnolatti as student Kenny; Heidi Zeigler as student Nicole; Randy Graff (1991) as Francine Itkin, principal of the Grantwood Elementary School; and Edie McClurg (1992) as Marilyn Ridge, the new principal.

THE DREW CAREY SHOW ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1995– Following a stint on the short-lived sitcom The Good Life, standup comic Drew Carey headlined his own series. Here he played Drew Carey, the assistant director of personnel at a Cleveland department store, who lived by himself and hung out with three friends. The supporting cast included Diedrich Bader as Oswald, a disc jockey; Christa Miller as Kate; and Ryan Stiles as Lewis, a janitor at a pharmaceutical ccompany. Kathy Kinney was occasionally seen as co-worker Mimi, and Katy Selverstone appeared as Drew's girlfriend, Lisa.

THE DREW PEARSON SHOW ABC/DUMONT

4 MAY 1952–9 NOVEMBER 1952 (ABC); 24 DECEMBER 1952–18 MARCH 1953 (DUMONT) A half hour of commentary by Washington political columnist Drew Pearson. See also Washington Merry-Go-Round.

DROIDS: THE ADVENTURES OF R2D2 and C3PO ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1985–22 FEBRUARY 1986 The popular androids from the movie Star Wars were the principal characters in this Saturday-morning cartoon series. In March 1986 the series was combined with Ewoks to form The Ewoks and Droids Adventure Hour. See also Ewoks.

DROODLES NBC

21 JUNE 1954–24 SEPTEMBER 1954 Roger Price hosted this lighthearted game show on which celebrity panelists tried to think of captions for line drawings submitted by home viewers or sketched by Price himself. The panel included playwright Marc Connelly, Denise Lor, and Carl Reiner. The show was scheduled irregularly during the summer of 1954.

DROOPY, MASTER DETECTIVE FOX

2 OCTOBER 1993–1 JANUARY 1994 Droopy, the laconic basset hound created by Chuck Jones, came to television in this half-hour Saturday morning cartoon show. He was a private detective, and was assisted by his faithful son, Dripple.

THE DUCK FACTORY NBC

12 APRIL 1984–11 JULY 1984 A small, struggling Hollywood cartoon studio was the setting for this half-hour sitcom from MTM Enterprises. Featured were: Jim Carrey as Skip Tarkenton, who arrived in Los Angeles and landed a job at Buddy Winkler Productions just after the death of its founder; Jack Gilford as veteran animator Brooks Carmichael; Don Messick (the real-life voice of such cartoon characters as Boo Boo of Yogi Bear, Ruff of Ruff and Reddy, and Scooby-Doo, to name a few) as voice man Wally Wooster; Jay Tarses as writer Marty Fenneman; Teresa Ganzel as Winkler's dippy widow, Sheree; Julie Payne as Aggie Aylesworth, the martinet business manager; Nancy Lane as Andrea, the film editor; and Clarence Gilyard, Jr., as Roland Cope, another animator. Allan Burns and Herbert Klynn created the series.

DUCKTALES SYNDICATED

1987–1992 A new series of cartoons from Disney Studios (the studio's first daily TV animated series), starring Scrooge McDuck as an adventurer trotting around the globe with his three grand-nephews (Huey, Dewey, and Louie), a girl duck (Webby), and his trusty pilot (Launchpad). Alan Young supplied the voice of Scrooge.

DUDLEY CBS

16 APRIL 1993–14 MAY 1993 Half-hour sitcom starring Dudley Moore as New York nightclub pianist Dudley Bristol, a divorced father who reluctantly agreed to take in his teenage son. Harley Cross played the son, Fred, and Joanna Cassidy was Dudley's ex, Laraine. Also featured were Max Wright as Paul, Dudley's manager; Lupe Ontiveros as his housekeeper, Marta; and Joel Brooks as Harold Krowten, owner of Liaisons, the nightspot where Dudley performed. Not long after the quick demise of this series, Moore returned to CBS for an equally brief stint: see Daddy's Girls.

THE DUDLEY DO-RIGHT SHOW ABC

27 APRIL 1969–6 SEPTEMBER 1970 Sunday-morning cartoon series featuring Dudley Do-Right, the inept Mountie who loved Nell Fenwick, daughter of Inspector Ray K. Fenwick, Dudley's boss. Alas, Dudley's love was unrequited, for Nell was in love with Dudley's horse, Horse. Jay Ward's cartoon characters originally appeared on The Bullwinkle Show.

DUE SOUTH CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1994–7 JULY 1995; 8 DECEMBER 1995– On this light hour crime show a straight-as-an-arrow Canadian Mountie was teamed up with a streetwise Chicago detective. With Paul Gross as the Mountie, Benton Fraser; David Marciano as Detective Ray Vecchio; Beau Starr as the boss, Lieutenant Walsh; Daniel Kash as Detective Louis Guardino; Tony Craig as Detective Jack Huey; and Catherine Bruhier as Elaine, a civilian aide at the police precinct. The pilot for the series was telecast as a made-for-TV movie on 23 April 1994, and was rerun on 15 September, a week before the series premiere. Paul Haggis was the creator.

DUET FOX

19 APRIL 1987–20 AUGUST 1989 This half-hour sitcom changed considerably during its two-and-a-half-year run. It started as the chronicle of two 30-ish singles who met and fell in love, and ended when one of the supporting characters was given her own series. At the outset, the two central characters were Ben Coleman (played by Matthew Laurance), an aspiring mystery writer, and Laura Kelly (Mary Page Keller), a caterer. Their relationship unfolded against the backdrop of Ben's best friend and his wife, yuppies Richard (Chris Lemmon), a patio furniture salesman, and Linda Phillips (Alison LaPlaca), a film studio executive. Also around were Laura's wacky younger sister, Jane (Jodi Thelen); the Phillips' maid, Geneva (Arleen Sorkin); Linda's boss, Hayden Cooper (Larry Poindexter); and Ben's dog, Reuben (Bo). During the next season and a half, Ben and Laura were married, Ben's first novel had been published, Richard had quit his job to become a cocktail pianist, and he and Linda had a baby.

In the fall of 1988 the action had been moved up: Ben and Laura had returned from a two-year honeymoon trip, which explained why the Phillips' baby had become a talking preschooler. Ginger Orsi joined the cast as little Amanda Phillips. After Ben and Laura's return, however, little was seen of them as the episodes focused increasingly on the Phillipses, particularly on Linda, whose delightfully bitchy character had become popular with viewers. By the end of the season Linda had found a new job as a realtor. At the end of the summer the show's title was changed, as Matthew Laurance and Jodi Thelen were dropped. See Open House.

DUFFY'S TAVERN SYNDICATED

1954 An unsuccessful attempt to bring a popular radio program to television. Ed Gardner created the series, which ran on radio from 1941 to 1951. Gardner starred as Archie, the manager of Duffy's Tavern, a seedy bar and grille on New York's Third Avenue; Duffy, the owner, was never seen. Also featured were Pattee Chapman as Miss Duffy, Duffy's husband-hunting daughter; Alan Reed as Archie's slow-witted comrade, Charlie Finnegan. The radio series had been as much a showcase for guest stars (such as Bing Crosby and Clifton Fadiman) as a situation comedy; the TV adaptation was merely the latter.

THE DUKE NBC

2 JULY 1954–10 SEPTEMBER 1954 This summer sitcom had a fairly interesting story line: a boxer with a penchant for the arts suddenly quit the fight game to open a night club. With Paul Gilbert as Duke Zenlee; Allen Jenkins as Johnny, his former trainer; Phyllis Coates (formerly featured on Superman) as Gloria, his girlfriend; and Rudy Cromwell as Claude Stroud, his partner in the club.

THE DUKE NBC

5 APRIL 1979–18 MAY 1979 Miniseries about an aging Chicago boxer who decided to become a private eye. With Robert Conrad (who actually fought professionally in his younger days) as Duke Ramsey; Larry Manetti as Joe Cadillac, a promoter of less than impeccable integrity; Red West as Sergeant Mick O'Brien; Patricia Conwell as Duke's friend, Dedra, a wealthy socialite. Stephen J. Cannell was the executive producer for Stephen J. Cannell Productions in association with Universal TV.

THE DUKES CBS

5 FEBRUARY 1983–5 NOVEMBER 1983 In this animated Saturday-morning spinoff from The Dukes of Hazzard, the characters were involved in an automobile race around the world.

THE DUKES OF HAZZARD CBS

26 JANUARY 1979–16 AUGUST 1985 An hour comedy-adventure series, The Dukes of Hazzard told the tale of the fast-driving, fun-loving cousins of the Duke clan, who lived in southern Hazzard County and who spent their time outwitting Hazzard's buffoonish political boss and his inept lawmen. The program was popular, especially with children, because of its emphasis on action mixed with slapstick.

The cast included Tom Wopat as Luke Duke; John Schneider as Bo Duke; Catherine Bach as Daisy Duke (Daisy, Bo, and Luke were all cousins); Denver Pyle as sage Uncle Jesse; Sorrell Booke as potbellied Jefferson Davis "Boss" Hogg, Hazzard County's thoroughly corrupt boss; James Best as Sheriff Rosco Coltrane, Hogg's dim-witted aide; Sonny Shroyer (1979–1980; 1982–1985) as Deputy Enos Strate; Ben Jones as Cooter; Rick Hurst (1980– ) as Deputy Cletus; and Waylon Jennings (who wrote and sang the show's theme, "Good Ol' Boys") as The Balladeer, who provided the offscreen narration. The real star of the show, at least to the kids, was the Dukes' car, a 1969 Dodge Charger known as the General Lee; car chases and automotive acrobatics were an integral part of every episode. On the average, three General Lees were used each week. Wear and tear was so great (particularly from jumps) that few, if any, of them could be used again; thus, the Dukes staff was constantly in the market to acquire '69 Chargers for use on the program.

Scheduled on Fridays as the lead-in to Dallas, The Dukes of Hazzard ranked in the top ten prime-time shows for three seasons, from 1979 to 1982. The popularity of the program led to the licensing and manufacture of millions of dollars worth of Dukes-related merchandise. In 1982 costars Wopat and Schneider claimed to be owed substantial sums from the sale of that merchandise; they also claimed to be dissatisfied with the quality of the scripts. Suits and countersuits followed, and Wopat and Schneider sat out the 1982–1983 season. On the show, Bo and Luke were said to have left Hazzard County to race on the NASCAR circuit, and two new Duke cousins suddenly appeared: Byron Cherry as Coy, and Christopher Mayer as Vance. As the show's ratings plummeted during the season, the lawsuits were settled, and Wopat and Schneider returned to their roles in late February 1983; Mayer and Cherry lasted out the season but did not return thereafter.

Supplied by Warner Brothers Television, The Dukes of Hazzard lasted for 143 episodes, and sired two spinoffs: Enos, a prime-time series starring Sonny Shroyer, and The Dukes, a Saturday-morning cartoon show.

DUMB AND DUMBER ABC

28 OCTOBER 1995– Half-hour Saturday morning cartoon show, based on the 1994 hit movie of the same title. The central characters were two intellectually challenged pals, Harry and Lloyd.

THE DUMPLINGS NBC

28 JANUARY 1976–31 MARCH 1976 One of Norman Lear's most forgettable ventures, this sitcom told the story of a happily married couple who ran a luncheonette (Dudley's Take-Out) in a New York skyscraper. With James Coco as Joe Dumpling; Geraldine Brooks as Angela Dumpling; George S. Irving as Charles Sweetzer, executive vice president of the Bristol Oil Company, located upstairs; Jane Connell as Norah McKenna, Sweetzer's secretary; George Furth as Frederic Steele; Marcia Rodd as Stephanie, Angela's sister; and Mort Marshall as Cully, the Dumplings' employee. The show was produced by Don Nicholl, Michael Ross, and Bernie West.

DUNDEE AND THE CULHANE CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1967–13 DECEMBER 1967 The most interesting feature of this western was probably its title. It starred John Mills as Dundee, a British lawyer who roamed the West with a feisty young American lawyer, The Culhane (played by Sean Garrison). Mike Dann, chief of CBS programming during the 1960s, disclosed in a 1968 TV Guide interview that the network had decided to cancel the show before it premiered. Network officials had been pleased with the pilot, but were disappointed after reviewing the scripts for the next several episodes; the decision was made in September to replace it with The Jonathan Winters Show in December.

DUNGEONS & DRAGONS CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1983–30 AUGUST 1986; 20 JUNE 1987–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 This half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show was inspired by Dungeons and Dragons, the role-playing fantasy game that achieved popularity in the 1970s. The central characters in the series were six youngsters who find themselves trapped in a mysterious fantasy land; they were searching for a way to get back to Earth.

THE DUNNINGER SHOW NBC/ABC

25 JUNE 1955–10 SEPTEMBER 1955 (NBC); 9 MAY 1956–10 OCTOBER 1956 (ABC) Master mentalist Joseph Dunninger, who had cohosted The Bigelow Show with Paul Winchell some years earlier, hosted two summer shows on which he demonstrated his mind-reading prowess. A reward of $10,000 was offered each week to anyone who could prove that Dunninger was a fake; it was never claimed.

30 OCTOBER 1956–4 JUNE 1957

THE DuPONT SHOW OF THE MONTH CBS
29 SEPTEMBER 1957–21 MARCH 1961

THE DuPONT SHOW OF THE WEEK NBC

DUSTY'S TRAIL SYNDICATED
1973 Abysmal sitcom about a Conestoga wagon separated from the rest of the train somewhere in the old West. With Bob Denver as Dusty, the bumbling scout; Forrest Tucker as Callahan, the bumbling wagonmaster; Ivor Francis as Carson Brookhaven, stuffy Bostonian passenger; Lynn Wood as Mrs. Brookhaven, his stuffy wife; Jeannine Riley as Lulu, an aspiring showgirl; Lori Saunders as Betsy, an aspiring schoolteacher (Riley and Saunders were both alumnae of Petticoat Junction); and Bill Cort as Andy, a regular guy. Produced by Sherwood Schwartz, the man responsible for Denver's previous venture, Gilligan's Island.

DUSTY'S TREEHOUSE SYNDICATED
1976 Stu Rosen hosted this all-purpose children's show, which consisted of skits, songs, and demonstrations.

DWEEBS CBS
22 SEPTEMBER 1995–27 OCTOBER 1995 Half-hour sitcom about a technophobic woman hired as the office manager of Cyberbyte Software, a small high-tech company with an all-male, ultra-nerdy staff. With Farrah Forke as the office manager, Carey Garrett, whose most difficult job was to humanize the guys; Peter Scolari as Cyberbyte's brilliant but uncommunicative founder, Warren Mosby; Stephen Tobolowsky as Karl; Corey Feldman as Vic; David Kaufman as Morley; Adam Biesk as Todd, the gopher; and Holly Fulger as Carey's pal, Noreen. The show's dismal performance on Friday evenings led to a quick cancellation.

DYNASTY ABC
12 JANUARY 1981–11 MAY 1989 Of the many prime-time serials that followed in the wake of Dallas, Dynasty proved to be the most popular. Like Dallas, it focused on a super-rich family living in the West (Denver), whose fortune was made in the oil business. It also flaunted lavish sets and costumes; its weekly wardrobe budget of $10,000 was the highest in television.

Principals included John Forsythe as Blake Carrington, the head of the family and the business empire (George Peppard had played him in the pilot but was considered too likable); Linda Evans as beautiful Krystle Jennings, a divorcée who married Blake in the premiere episode; Pamela Sue Martin (1981–1984) and Emma Samms (1984–1985 and 1986–1989) as Blake's devious and outspoken daughter, Fallon Carrington; Al Corley (1981–1982) and Jack Coleman (1983–1989) as Blake's idealistic, bisexual son, Steven Carrington (the character had actually been "killed off" in an oil rig explosion after Corley complained about the show; when it was decided to recast the role, it was explained that Steven hadn't died, but had been badly burned and had undergone plastic surgery); John James as Jeff Colby, a young politician who married Fallon (they were later divorced); Lloyd Bochner (1981–1982) as Jeff's uncle, Cecil Colby, a rival oil magnate; Bo Hopkins (spring 1981) as Matthew Blaisdel, a Carrington geologist and an ex-boyfriend of Krystle; Pamela Bellwood (1981–1986) as his unstable wife, Claudia Blaisdel; Katy Kurtzman (spring 1981 and 1986–1987) as their teenage daughter, Lindsay (Matthew and Lindsay were killed off); Lee Bergere (1981–1983) as the Carrington butler, Joseph Anders; Wayne Northrop (spring 1981) as the Carrington chauffeur, Michael Culhane; Peter Mark Richman (1981–1982) as Blake's attorney, Andy Laird; and Dale Robertson (spring 1981) as feisty wildcatter Walter Lankershim.

In the fall of 1981 English actress Joan Collins joined the cast as Blake's former wife (and Fallon and Steven's mother), Alexis Carrington. A thoroughly despicable villainess, Alexis managed to move into the Carrington guest house for a time and to make life miserable for Krystle while she plotted to win Blake back. Alexis became Dynasty's most popular character; whether defending herself for murder, luring a man into her bedroom, or engaging in one of her annual catfights with Krystle, Collins always played her role to the hilt and thoroughly seemed to enjoy herself in the process. Other new regulars were James Farentino (1981–1982) as Dr. Nick Toscanni, a psychiatrist who treated Claudia Blaisdel; and Heather Locklear as Krystle's niece, Sammy Jo Dean, who married Steven Carrington but was paid by Alexis to leave him (Steven subsequently married Claudia Blaisdel).

Four new regulars were added in the fall of 1982: Gordon Thomson as Adam Carrington, the long-lost son of Blake and Alexis (he had been kidnapped at a young age); Kathleen Beller (1982–1984) as Kirby Anders, the butler's daughter, who married Jeff Colby after his divorce from Fallon; Geoffrey Scott (1982–1984) as Krystle's ex-husband, tennis pro Mark Jennings, who saved Krystle and Alexis from a burning cabin; and Paul Burke as Congressman Neil McVane. Added in 1983 were Deborah Adair as Tracy Kendall, and Michael Nader as Dex Dexter. At the end of the 1983–1984 season Diahann Carroll joined the cast as Dominique Deveraux, who turned out to be the illegitimate offspring of Blake's father.

Dynasty reached the peak of its popularity during the 1984–1985 season, when it topped the prime-time ratings. Among the new faces seen that year were Catherine Oxenberg (1984–1986) as Alexis's daughter Amanda (Karen Cellini succeeded Oxenberg for the 1986–1987 season); Billy Dee Williams (1984–1985) as Dominique's husband, Brady Lloyd; William Campbell (1984–1985) as Steven's lover, Luke Fuller; and Rock Hudson (1984–1985, in his last TV role) as Daniel Reece, who had an affair with Krystle. The season ended with the famous "Moldavian massacre": the regulars had gathered for Amanda's wedding in the European kingdom of Moldavia, but the wedding was interrupted by machine-gun toting terrorists who gunned down the entire party.

As the 1985–1986 season unfolded, everyone had survived the wedding, but Dynasty's slippage had begun. A spinoff serial, The Colbys, was introduced that fall, and Dynasty regulars John James and Emma Samms departed for the new show. Joan Collins was embroiled in a salary dispute, and did not appear in the early episodes, necessitating rewrites of those stories (the producers had planned for her to become queen of Moldavia, but the entire Moldavian story line was dropped in midseason). Another odd story line was introduced as Krystle was kidnapped and a lookalike actress was hired to masquerade as Krystle (Linda Evans, of course, played Rita, the lookalike). Joining the cast during that season were George Hamilton (1985–1986) as Joel Abrigore, who masterminded the kidnapping plot with Sammy Jo; Christopher Cazenove (1985–1987) as Blake's brother, Ben Carrington; Kate O'Mara (spring 1986) as Alexis's sister, Caress, an author (in real life, Joan Collins's sister Jackie was a best-selling author); Richard Anderson (spring 1986–1987) as Senator Buck Fallmont; Pat Crowley (spring 1986) as his wife, Emily; and Ted McGinley (spring 1986–1987) as their son, Clay, who married Sammy Jo.

The inexorable ratings decline continued. The series, which had finished seventh in 1985–1986, sagged to 24th in 1986–1987. By the latter season, Alexis had managed to evict Blake and Krystle from the Carrington mansion at 173 Essex Drive in Denver. New to the cast were Leann Hunley (1986–1988) as Dana Waring, who married Adam Carrington; Richard Lawson (1986–1987) as Nick Kimball; Terri Garber (spring 1987–1988) as Leslie Carrington; and Cassie Yates (spring 1987–1988) as Sarah Curtis. Dynasty dropped to 33rd place in 1987–1988, adding James Healey (1987–1988) as mysterious Sean Rowan, who turned out to be the son of the Carringtons' old butler; Jessica Player as Krystina, young daughter of Blake and Krystle; and Stephanie Dunnam (1987–1988) as Karen Atkinson. For its final season, the series fell to 57th place, ending its nine-year run quietly in May 1989, without tying up loose story lines (there had been rumors that a two-hour finale might be produced for the 1989–1990 season, but it did not come to pass until 20 and 22 October 1991). Stephanie Beacham joined the cast as Sable, reprising the role she had played on The Colbys. Also featured during the final season were Stella Hall as Claire; Liza Morrow as Virginia; Ray Abruzzo as Sergeant Zorelli; Kenneth Tigar as Heath; Kim Terry-Costin as Joanna; Tracy Scoggins as Monica; and Lezlie Deane as Phoenix.

Dynasty was created by Richard and Esther Shapiro. Nolan Miller designed the costumes.

DYNOMUTT ABC

3 JUNE 1978–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 Dynomutt, the bionic dog introduced on The Scooby-Doo/Dynomutt Hour in 1976, had his own half-hour cartoon show for a few weeks in 1978. Dynomutt accompanied another superhero, a bird known as the Blue Falcon.

E.A.R.T.H. FORCE CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1990–29 SEPTEMBER 1990 The premise for this hour adventure series was an unlikely one: a dying executive assembled a group of scientists to battle threats to the planet's environment; the newly formed unit was known as E.A.R.T.H.—Earth Alert Research Tactical Headquarters. Regulars included Gil Gerard as Dr. John Harding; Clyton Rohner as physicist Carl Dana; Tiffany Lamb as marine biologist Catherine Romano; Stewart Finlay-McLennan as mercenary Charles Dillon; and Joanna Pacula as the director, Diana Randall. The series was the first cancellation of the 1990–1991 season, lasting only three episodes.

E/R CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1984–27 APRIL 1985; 5 JUNE 1985–24 JULY 1985 Elliott Gould starred in this half-hour sitcom as Dr. Howard Sheinfeld, a Chicago ear-nose-and-throat specialist who had to moonlight in the Emergency Room (E/R) of Clark Street Hospital in order to maintain the alimony payments to his ex-wives. Other regulars included Mary McDonnell as Dr. Eve Sheridan, the E/R supervisor (Marcia Strassman played the part in the pilot); Conchata Ferrell as head nurse Joan Thor; Lynne Moody as Nurse Julie Williams (the character was the niece of George Jefferson of The Jeffersons); Shuko Akune as Maria, the receptionist; Bruce A. Young as police officer Fred Burdock, Maria's boyfriend; Corinne Bohrer as Nurse Cory Smith; Luis Avalos as Dr. Thomas Esquivel; William Schilling as Richard, the orderly; Jeff Doucette as Bert, the paramedic; George Clooney as Thor's nephew, Ace; and Jason Alexander as hospital administrator Harold Stickley.

ER NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1994– Created by novelist (and medical school graduate) Michael Crichton, this hour dramatic series premiered opposite CBS's Chicago Hope, a new medical drama also set at a Chicago hospital. ER quickly won the time slot battle, forcing a rescheduling of Hope, and went on to finish second in the seasonal Nielsen ratings, the best rating ever for a first-year dramatic series and the highest ranking for any TV drama in ten years. The series was set in the Emergency Room of Cook County General Hospital, where the beleaguered staff did its best to cope with a stunning array of crises, both personal and medical. The ensemble cast featured Anthony Edwards as chief resident Dr. Mark Greene; George Clooney as womanizing pediatrician Dr. Douglas Ross (Clooney, who had also appeared in the 1984 sitcom E/R, thus became the first actor to be a regular in two different series with the same title); Sherry Stringfield as Dr. Susan Lewis; Noah Wyle as intern Dr. John Carter; Eriq La Salle as resident surgeon Dr. Peter Barton; Julianna Margulies as head nurse Carole Hathaway; William H. Macy as Dr. David Morgenstern; Christina Harnos as Jennifer Greene, Mark's wife; CCH Pounder as Dr. Angela Hicks; Rick Rossovich as Dr. John Taglieri, who almost married Carole; Ming-Na Wen (1994–1995) as Dr. Deb Chen; Abraham Benrubi as Jerry, the orderly; Gloria Reuben as Jeanie Bouler; Christine Elise (1995– ) as third-year medical student Harper Tracy; and Laura Innes (1995– ) as new chief resident Kerry Weaver (Greene had received a promotion).

E.S.P. ABC

11 July 1958–22 August 1958 Vincent Price hosted this short-lived series, which explored the phenomenon of extrasensory perception. Guests related personal experiences and also participated in various tests calculated to demonstrate their putative abilities.

EARLY TODAY NBC

5 July 1982–29 July 1983 NBC's first early-early-morning news show was conceived as a lead-in to its long-running Today show. Broadcast weekday mornings from 6:00 to 7:00 A.M., immediately preceding Today, the program was designed so that local stations could carry either the full hour or one of the two half hours. Early Today's hosts were the same trio who presided over Today: Bryant Gumbel, Jane Pauley, and jovial Willard Scott. Eventually, network executives concluded that Early Today bore too close a resemblance to Today, and the early-early-morning news concept was reworked (see NBC News at Sunrise). See also ABC World News This Morning (which premiered the same day as Early Today) and CBS Early Morning News.

EARN YOUR VACATION CBS

23 May 1954–5 September 1954 On this prime-time game show contestants competed for the chance to win a vacation to the spot of their choice. The show had been on radio in 1951. The host of the TV version was a twenty-seven-year old comedian who had had his own local show in Los Angeles: Johnny Carson.

EARTH 2 NBC

6 November 1994–4 June 1995 Expensive sci-fi series set in the year 2192, when Earth had become uninhabitable and its people were forced to live in space stations. A small band of Earthlings left a space station and crash landed on the planet they hoped to colonize, where they encountered various other life forms such as the humanoid Terrians, the small Kobas, and the Grendlers. The cast included Debrah Farentino as Devon Adair, leader of the expedition; Joey Zimmerman as her young son, Ulysses, who suffered from "the syndrome" (caused by an absence of fresh air and water; Devon hoped that an organic environment might cure him); Clancy Brown as Danziger, the mechanic; J. Madison Wright as True, Danziger's young daughter; Jessica Steen as Dr. Heller; Antonio Sabato, Jr., as Alonzo Solace, the pilot; Sullivan Walker as Yale; John Gegenhuber as Morgan; Rebecca Gayheart as Bess; Terry O'Quinn as Reilly; and Tim Curry as Gaal, a human who already lived there (the planet had been a penal colony). If the colonists' new habitat looked remarkably terrestrial, it was because the series was filmed in the Jemez Mountains of New Mexico.

EARTHLAB SYNDICATED

1971 A science series for kids, hosted by Rex Trailer. Produced at WBZ-TV in Boston.

EARTHWORM JIM WB

9 SEPTEMBER 1995– Saturday morning cartoon show based on the video game about a worm who became a superhero after donning a special "supersuit" which had fallen on him from outer space. Jim was accompanied by Peter, his faithful canine companion.

EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1963–14 SEPTEMBER 1964 A dramatic series about social workers. Because of its treatment of many controversial issues, especially race relations, CBS was never able to sell the entire hour to sponsors, and the show barely lasted a season. Network executives were never enthusiastic about the series. A scene from one episode, which showed the white star (George C. Scott) dancing with a black woman, was deleted at network insistence. In retrospect, East Side, West Side was probably ahead of its time; TV audiences of 1963 just weren't ready for a hard-hitting series focusing on social problems, especially one in which most of the problems remained unsolved at the hour's end. The show starred George C. Scott as Neil Brock, social worker for the Community Welfare Service, a private agency located in Manhattan; Elizabeth Wilson as Frieda (Hecky) Hechlinger, his boss; Cicely Tyson as the secretary, Jane Porter (Tyson was the first black performer cast in a regular role on a noncomedy series and was also the first to feature an Afro hair style). In midseason the format was changed slightly but ratings failed to improve—Brock went to work for a New York congressman; Linden Chiles appeared as Representative Hanson. David Susskind was the executive producer of the series, which was shot on location in New York.

EASY ACES DUMONT

14 DECEMBER 1949–7 JUNE 1950 A television version of the popular radio comedy show which began in 1930. Goodman Ace and his wife, Jane Sherwood Ace, starred as themselves, and Betty Garde was featured. Goodman Ace was one of radio's foremost comedy writers and later wrote for several television shows, including Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater and The Perry Como Show. Jane Ace was famous for her malaprops. Much of each fifteen-minute program was ad-libbed.

EASY DOES IT CBS

25 AUGUST 1976–15 SEPTEMBER 1976 A four-week summer variety series starring Frankie Avalon, the Philadelphia rock-and-roller who catapulted to stardom in 1958 with such hits as "De De Dinah" and "Venus." Dick Clark, who had featured Avalon frequently on American Bandstand, was the executive producer of this half-hour effort. Avalon's special guest star on the premiere was Annette Funicello, his costar in several "beach" films of the early 1960s.

EASY STREET NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1986–27 MAY 1987 Half-hour sitcom starring Loni Anderson as L. K. McGuire, an ex-showgirl who inherited a mansion from her late husband; she invited her down-and-out uncle, Alvin "Bully" Stevenson (played by Jack Elam), and his black roommate, Ricardo Williams (Lee Weaver), to leave the Shady Grove Retirement Home in Los Angeles and move in with her; unfortunately, the three had to share the property with L. K.'s insufferable sister-in-law, Eleanor Stander (played by Dana Ivey), and her husband, Quentin (James Cromwell), who were contesting the will. Also featured was Arthur Malet as Bobby the butler.

EBONY/JET SHOWCASE SYNDICATED

1983; 1985–1993 Half-hour weekly magazine show, aimed at black audiences. Hosts have included Greg Gumbel (brother of Today show's Bryant Gumbel), Tom Joyner, Darryl Dennard, Debra Crable, and Elliott Francis.

ED ALLEN TIME SYNDICATED

1964 Half-hour exercise show with Ed Allen and his dog, Alice.

THE ED NELSON SHOW SYNDICATED

1969 A ninety-minute talk show hosted by actor Ed Nelson.

THE ED SULLIVAN SHOW (TOAST OF THE TOWN) CBS

20 JUNE 1948–6 JUNE 1971 Television's longest-running variety show ran on Sunday nights for twenty-three years. Its host, Ed Sullivan, couldn't sing or dance, but he knew who could, and he signed them for his show. A syndicated newspaper columnist, Sullivan had hosted two radio shows before agreeing to try television in 1948. On camera Sullivan always seemed ill at ease; he regularly fluffed introductions, and his habit of wandering around the stage during the broadcasts was a continual challenge to the show's technical crew. Ironically, Sullivan's mannerisms probably helped launch the careers of many impressionists. Fortunately for those comics, Sullivan was not too vain to poke fun at himself; Frank Fontaine lampooned him as early as 1949. But when Sullivan shared the stage with the most accomplished Sullivan impersonator of all—Will Jordan—the effect was eerily hilarious.

The show began inauspiciously. Although eight acts appeared on the 1948 premiere, the total talent budget was only $475, with headliners Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis (making their TV debut) splitting $200; composers Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd also appeared on that broadcast. From the beginning, Ray Bloch and his orchestra provided the music; the June Taylor Dancers also began appearing regularly that summer. It was reported that during the early months of the series CBS offered the show to sponsors with or without Sullivan as emcee; fortunately for the network, none of the sponsors opted against "Old Stone Face," as Sullivan had been described by reviewers.

The format for the show was soon established and was changed very little during the next two decades. Sullivan tried to present something to please everyone each week. Thus a typical evening's fare might include an acrobatic act, a couple of comics, a recording star, an aria by an operatic performer, a film star plugging a new movie, and the introduction of a few notables "in our studio audience" by Sullivan. Occasionally an entire program would be devoted to a single event, such as a biography of playwright Josh Logan, or the appearance of the Moiseyev Dancers, a folk troupe from the Soviet Union. In 1959 Sullivan took a group of American performers to the USSR.

It would take a small book just to catalog the thousands of performers who appeared, ranging from Bob Hope (who made his East Coast TV debut on 26 September 1948) to Albert Schweitzer (filmed playing the organ at his African mission). Other notables who made their television debuts on The Ed Sullivan Show (it was officially titled Toast of the Town until 1955) were Irving Berlin (15 August 1948), Victor Borge (25 September 1949), Hedy Lamarr (17 September 1950), Walt Disney (8 February 1953), and Fred Astaire and Jane Powell (14 February 1954). Two acts, however, deserve special mention, for they attracted some of the largest television audiences of the time: Elvis Presley and the Beatles.

In the summer of 1956 Presley was signed for three appearances at the unheard-of fee of $50,000. The twenty-one-year-old recording artist had signed with RCA Records earlier that year, and his career was already skyrocketing by that time. For the record, Presley first appeared on 9 September 1956 and performed "Don't Be Cruel," "Love Me Tender," "Reddy Teddy," and "Hound Dog." Charles Laughton was the substitute host that evening. On 28 October, Presley again appeared, singing "Don't Be Cruel," "Love Me Tender," "Love Me," and "Hound Dog." Presley's final appearance was 6 January 1957, when he performed seven numbers: "Hound Dog," "Love Me Tender," "Heartbreak Hotel," "Don't Be Cruel," "Peace in the Valley," "Too Much," and "When My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again." Two popular misconceptions about the Presley appearances should be dispelled. First, Presley did not make his TV debut on Sullivan's show—he had appeared several times on the Dorsey Brothers' Stage Show, as well as on The Milton Berle Show and The Steve Allen Show (it was reported that Sullivan signed Presley after noting the ratings from his appearance on the Allen show; this act exacerbated the feud between the two men, whose shows were in direct competition with one another). Second, Presley was not photographed only from the waist up; his "lascivious" posturings (which had been the subject of a TV Guide editorial during the week of 7 July 1956) were seen in full on the first two Sullivan shows. It was only for the third show, after much furor, that the decision was made to photograph Presley in tight close-ups. After the third appearance, Presley had had enough of television. By that time his film career had begun to look promising, and, except for a brief appearance on a Frank Sinatra special in May 1960, eleven years would pass before he again appeared on TV.

In the fall of 1963 Sullivan signed the Beatles for two appearances for $25,000. At that time the group was a sensation in England and was gaining a sizable reputation throughout Europe. Their first American singles, however, had gone nowhere. By the time of their first appearance on the Sullivan show, all that had changed, thanks in large part to a publicity blitz by Capitol Records. On 9 February 1964 most Americans saw the quartet for the first time (Jack Paar had shown film clips of them on 3 January, and they had also been covered by the network news) as they performed "All My Loving," "She Loves You," "I Saw Her Standing There," "I Want to Hold Your Hand," and "Till There Was You." Beatlemania was officially under way on this side of the ocean. After concerts in New York and Washington, they returned a week later to perform six songs in a segment broadcast live from the Deauville Hotel in Miami Beach. A third appearance, taped on 9 February, was aired 23 February. The Beatles' appearances opened the floodgates for a torrent of British rock groups; more important, rock acts became a regular feature of the show for the remainder of its run.

One of the few musical giants of the 1960s who did not appear was Bob Dylan, but not because he wasn't asked. Dylan had been signed for an appearance in 1963 and indicated he intended to perform "Talkin' John Birch Society Blues," a humorous number about a man who begins to look for Communists everywhere. Reportedly Sullivan liked the song when he heard it during rehearsal and voiced no objection. He subsequently informed Dylan that the network brass, fearful of a lawsuit, had vetoed the number. Dylan understandably refused to compromise and declined to appear on the program.

Sullivan's ratings, which had remained fairly steady during the 1950s and 1960s, began to slip in 1968, as The F.B.I. and Walt Disney made inroads. In 1971 his show was canceled as part of CBS's attempt to acquire a new image as the network for youthful audiences. Sullivan, who had coproduced the show (first with Marlo Lewis, later with his son-in-law, Bob Precht), appeared in a few specials and also hosted one episode of The ABC Comedy Hour (The Kopykats). He died in 1974. In 1990 Andrew Solt purchased the rights to the show from the Sullivan estate, and CBS telecast a two-hour retrospective on the series on 17 February 1991. Edited segments from the series were packaged for syndication in the fall of 1992.

THE ED WYNN SHOW — CBS

6 OCTOBER 1949–4 JULY 1950 CBS's first Los Angeles-based variety show starred Ed Wynn, a trouper who began his career in vaudeville in 1904 and appeared on radio as early as 1922, where he starred in such comedy series as The Perfect Fool and The Fire Chief. Wynn's guests on television included Leon Errol, Charles Laughton, Andy Devine, and Dinah Shore. Produced by Harlan Thompson and directed by Ralph Levy, the show was seen via kinescopes on the East Coast.

THE ED WYNN SHOW — NBC

25 SEPTEMBER 1958–1 JANUARY 1959 During the mid-1950s Ed Wynn was not often seen on television; he made a triumphant return in 1956, however, on Playhouse 90's "Requiem for a Heavyweight." That performance established him, after fifty years in show business, as a character actor. In this half-hour sitcom he starred as John Beamer, a retired man trying to raise two granddaughters in a small college town. Also featured were Jacklyn O'Donnell as granddaughter Laurie; Sherry Alberoni as granddaughter Midge; and Herb Vigran as Beamer's friend, lawyer Ernie Hinshaw. Ben Feiner, Jr., produced the series and William Russell directed it.

THE EDDIE ALBERT SHOW CBS

2 MARCH 1953–8 MAY 1953 For nine weeks in 1953 Eddie Albert hosted his own half-hour daytime variety show. Also featured were Ellen Hanley and Norman Paris's band.

THE EDDIE CANTOR COMEDY THEATER SYNDICATED

1955 An anthology series that sometimes featured variety acts and sometimes presented half-hour comedies. Eddie Cantor was the host and occasional star.

THE EDDIE CAPRA MYSTERIES NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1978–12 JANUARY 1979 A typical crime show starring Vincent Baggetta as lawyer-sleuth Eddie Capra. With Ken Swofford as his senior partner, J. J. Devlin; Wendy Phillips as his friend and secretary, Lacey Brown; Michael Horton as Capra's junior investigator, Harvey Winchell; and Seven Ann McDonald as Lacey's young daughter, Jennie. Peter S. Fischer was executive producer, James McAdams producer for Universal TV. CBS reran some episodes during the summer of 1990.

THE EDDIE CONDON PROGRAM

See FLOOR SHOW

EDDIE DODD ABC

12 MARCH 1991–2 APRIL 1991; 29 MAY 1991–5 JUNE 1991 Based on the 1989 movie "True Believer," this hour crime show starred Treat Williams as Eddie Dodd, a streetwise New York defense attorney, and featured Corey Parker as his young associate, Roger Baron; Sydney Walsh as his investigator, Kitty Greer; and Annabelle Gurwitch as the secretary/office manager, Billie.

THE EDDIE FISHER SHOW NBC

1 OCTOBER 1957–17 MARCH 1959 After Coke Time left the air in February of 1957; Eddie Fisher returned as host of an hour-long variety series that alternated biweekly with The George Gobel Show. During the 1957–1958 season Gobel was "permanent guest star" on Fisher's show, and Fisher reciprocated on Gobel's program. Debbie Reynolds, Fisher's wife at the time, also appeared occasionally. Music was provided by the Buddy Bregman Orchestra. Fisher's theme song was "As Long As There's Music," by Sammy Kahn and Jule Styne.

THE EDDY ARNOLD SHOW CBS/NBC/SYNDICATED/ABC

14 JULY 1952–22 AUGUST 1952 (CBS); 7 JULY 1953–1 OCTOBER 1953 (NBC); 1954–1956 (SYNDICATED); 26 APRIL 1956–26 SEPTEMBER 1956 (ABC) A popular country-and-western singer for several decades, Eddy Arnold made his television debut on Milton Berle's Texaco Star Theater in 1949. In 1952 he hosted the first of his several TV series, a summer replacement for The Perry Como Show on CBS which was seen three nights a week after the news. In the summer of 1953 he substituted for Dinah Shore twice a week on NBC. A year later he began a syndicated show, Eddy Arnold Time, which originated from Springfield, Missouri. Produced and directed by Ben Park, it featured Betty Johnson, the Gordonaires, Hank Garland, and Roy Wiggins. In 1956 he hosted a live half-hour series on ABC, which featured the Paul Mitchell Quartet and guitarist Chet Atkins.

THE EDGE FOX

19 SEPTEMBER 1992–18 JULY 1993 Half-hour comedy sketch show, with Julie Brown, Jennifer Aniston, Tom Kenney, Wayne Knight, Carol Rosenthal, James Stephens III, and Jill Talley.

THE EDGE OF NIGHT CBS/ABC

2 APRIL 1956–28 NOVEMBER 1975 (CBS); 1 DECEMBER 1975–28 DECEMBER 1984 (ABC) CBS introduced television's first thirty-minute daytime serials, As the World Turns and The Edge of Night, on the same day; both proved extremely successful. The Edge of Night, so titled because of its late afternoon (4:30 P.M., originally) time slot, was created by Irving Vendig, and, for the first few years, emphasized crime stories and courtroom drama; gradually, however, its story lines drifted away from crime toward the romantic and sexual themes common to most soap operas. The show's time slot has drifted as well since 1963, when it was first shifted back an hour. In 1975, after two or three years of declining ratings on CBS, The Edge of Night became the first daytime serial to shift networks. ABC restored the show to a late-afternoon time slot, but by the early 1980s a number of affiliates had dropped the show, substituting syndicated talk shows for the serial. After twenty-eight and a half years, and 7,420 episodes, The Edge of Night departed on 28 December 1984. The show was produced for Procter and Gamble, first by Werner Michel, later by Don Wallace, Charles Fisher, and Erwin Nicholson. Henry Slesar was the head writer from 1968 to 1983; Lee Sheldon succeeded him.

Principal players over the years included: John Larkin (1956–1962; Larkin had previously played Perry Mason on radio), Larry Hugo (1962–1971), and Forrest Compton (1971–1984) as lawyer Mike Karr, who began as an assistant district attorney in Monticello, where Edge was set, but later switched to private practice; and Teal Ames (1956–1961) as Sarah Lane, who married Mike and was killed while saving the life of their daughter. (Sarah's demise was one of the first deaths of a major TV soap opera character; CBS received so many calls after the broadcast that John Larkin and Teal Ames appeared at the end of the next day's program to assure viewers that only the character, and not Teal Ames, had died); Don Hastings (1956–1960) as Jack Lane, Sarah's brother; Mary Alice Moore as Betty Jean Lane, Jack's wife; Betty Garde, Peggy Allenby, and Katherine Meskill as Mattie Lane, Sarah and Jack's mother; Walter Greaza as Winston Grimsley, a widower who married Mattie; Carl Frank and Mandel Kramer as Bill Marceau, Monticello's police chief; Joan Harvey as Judy Marceau, Bill's daughter; Teri Keane (1965–1975) as Martha, Bill's secretary and eventual wife; Heidi Vaughn, Renne Jarrett, Laurie Kennedy, and Johanna Leister as Phoebe Smith, a troubled teenager adopted by Bill and Martha; Ann Flood (1962–1984) as Nancy Pollock, who became Mike Karr's second wife; Ronnie Welch, Sam Groom, and Tony Roberts as Lee Pollock, Nancy's brother; June Carter and Fran Sharon as Cookie Pollock, Nancy's sister; Ed Kemmer as Malcolm Thomas, who married Cookie and was later murdered; Burt Douglas as Ron Christopher, Cookie's next husband; John Gibson and Allen Nourse as Joe Pollock, Nancy's father; Ruth Matteson, Frances Reid, Kay Campbell, and Virginia Kaye as Rose Pollock, Nancy's mother; Millette Alexander as Gail Armstrong, Laura Hillyer, and Julie Jamison (Alexander played the three roles at different times—Gail Armstrong was a commercial artist, Laura Hillyer was killed in a car crash, and Julie Jamison was Laura's lookalike, who showed up shortly after Laura's death); Wesley Addy as Hugh Campbell; Ed Holmes as Detective Willie Bryan; Larry Hagman as lawyer Ed Gibson; Karen Thorsell as Margie Gibson, Ed's sister; Maxine Stuart as Grace O'Leary; Ray MacDonnell as Phil Capice; Lisa Howard and Mary K. Wells as Louise Capice, Phil's wife, daughter of Winston Grimsley; Conrad Fowkes as Steve Prentiss; Liz Hubbard as Carol Kramer; Val Dufour as André Lazar; Lauren Gilbert as Harry Lane; Lester Rawlins as Orin Hillyer (who was married first to Laura Hillyer, and then to Julie Jamison; both roles were played by the aforementioned Millette Alexander); Alberta Grant as Liz Hillyer, Orin's daughter; Penny Fuller, Joanna Miles, and Millee Taggart as Gerry McGrath, who married Pollock; Keith Charles as disc jockey Rick Oliver, who was murdered by Laura Hillyer; Barry Newman as lawyer John Barnes, a young associate of Mike Karr's; Donald May (1967–1977) as Adam Drake, Mike Karr's law partner; Maeve McGuire, Jayne Bentzen, and Lisa Sloan as Nicole Travis, who married Drake in 1973; Bibi Besch as Susan Forbes, Nicole's onetime partner in a dress shop; William Prince and Cec Linder as Nicole's father, Ben Travis, a crook; Alice Hirson as murder victim Stephanie Martin; Irene Dailey as Pamela Stewart; Richard Clarke as Duane Stewart; Alan Feinstein as Dr. Jim Fields, who married Liz Hillyer; Victoria Larkin, Kathleen Bracken, Kathy Cody, Emily Prager, Jeannie Ruskin, and Linda Cook as Laurie Ann Karr, daughter of Mike and Sarah Karr; Ted Tinling as Vic Lamont, Laurie's first husband; John LaGioia as nightclub owner Johnny Dallas, Laurie's second husband; Pat Conwell as Tracey Dallas, Johnny's sister; Alan Gifford as former Senator Gordon Whitney; Lois Kibbee (who would later write for the series) as his wife, Geraldine Whitney; Anthony Call as their son, Collin Whitney; Lucy Martin as Collin's wife, Tiffany; Bruce Martin as Gordon and Geraldine's other son, Keith Whitney (a split personality, Keith was also known as Jonah Lockwood); George Hall as John, the Whitney butler; Mary Hayden as Trudy, the Whitney maid; Hugh Reilly as Simon Jessup; Fred J. Scollay as Lobo Haines; Francine Beers as Nurse Lillian Hubbell; Jay Gregory as Morlock; Elizabeth Farley as Kate Reynolds; Nick Pryor and Paul Henry Itkin as Joel Gantry; Ward Costello as Jake Berman; Dorothy Lyman as Elly Jo Jamison; Dick Shoberg and John Driver as Kevin Jamison, who would marry Raven Alexander; Dixie Carter as assistant district attorney Olivia Brandeis "Brandy" Henderson; Michael Stroka as Brandy's brother, Dr. Quentin Henderson; Lou Criscuolo as Danny Micelli, who married Tracey Dallas; Louise Shaffer as Nicole Travis's cousin, Serena Faraday (another split personality, Serena was also known as Josie); Doug McKeon as Serena's son, Timmy; Dick Latessa as Noel Douglas; Niles McMaster as Dr. Clay Jordan; Brooks Rogers as Dr. Hugh Lacey; Helena Carroll, Jane Hoffman, and Laurinda Barrett as Molly O'Connor; Herb Davis as Lieutenant Luke Chandler; and Tony Craig as Draper Scott.

Later additions to the cast included: Juanin Clay and Sharon Gabet as Charlotte "Raven" Alexander (Jamison)(Swift)(Whitney)(Devereaux) Whitney; Louis Turrene as Tony Saxon; Frances Fisher as Deborah Saxon; Denny Albee as Steve Guthrie; Polly Adams as Carol Barclay; Joel Crothers as Dr. Miles Cavanaugh, who married Nicole Travis; Holland Taylor as Denise Cavanaugh; Terry Davis as April Cavanaugh Scott; Robin Groves as Maggie; Joe Lambie and Tom Tammi as Logan Swift, who was Raven's second husband; Irving Lee as Calvin Stoner; Yahee as Star Stoner, Calvin's wife; Kiel Martin as Raney Cooper; Marilyn Randall as Theresa; Dick Callinan as Ray Harper; Micki Grant as Ada Chandler; Dennis Marino as Packy Dietrich; Gwynn Press as Inez Johnson; Dorothy Stinette as Nadine Scott; Eileen Finley as Joannie Collier; Lee Godart as Elliot Dorn, leader of the "Children of the Earth" cult; Dan Hamilton as Wade Meecham; Michael Longfield as Tank Jarvis; Ann Williams as Margo Huntington; Susan Yusen as Diana Selkirk; Lori Cardille and Stephanie Braxton as Winter Austen; Mel Cobb as Ben Everett; and Wyman Pendleton as Dr. Norwood.

Also, Lori Loughlin and Karrie Emerson as Nicole's sister, Jody Travis; Sonia Petrovna as ballerina Martine Duval; Joey Alan Phipps and Allen Fawcett as Kelly McGrath; Bruce Gray as Owen Madison; Dennis Parker as Derek Mallory, who succeeded Bill Marceau as Monticello's police chief; Shirley Stoler as Frankie; Mark Arnold as dancer Gavin Wylie; Kim Hunter as Nola Madison; Ernie Townsend as lawyer Cliff Nelson; Larkin Malloy as Schuyler Whitney, who was Raven's third and fifth husband (Raven had also been married to Jeff Brown, a man posing as the real Schuyler Whitney; Malloy also played Jeff Brown); Lela Ivey as Mitzi Martin; Mariann Aalda as lawyer Di Di Bannister; George D. Wallace as Dr. Leo Gault; Patricia DeRosa as Julia; James Noseworthy as Jamie; Paul Tinder as Larry Watts; Mark Andrews as artist Chad Sutherland; Ray Serra as gangster Eddie Lormer; Karen Needle as Eddie's secretary, Poppy Johnson; Chris Jarrett as detective Damian Tyler; Victor Arnold as Joe Bulmer, one of Eddie's henchmen; Leah Ayres as Valerie Bryson; David Brooks as Jim Dedrickson; Richard Borg as Schuyler Whitney's brother, Spencer Varney; David Froman as Gunther Wagner, Schuyler's chauffeur (Froman also played Gunther's twin brother, Bruno); Catherine Bruns as Nora Fulton; Meg Myles as tavernkeeper Sid Brennan; Alan Coates as Raven's fourth husband, Ian Devereaux; Charles Flohe as John "Preacher" Emerson; Mary Layne as Camilia Devereaux; Norman Parker as David Cameron; Pat Stanley as Mrs. Goodman; Willie Aames as Robbie Hamlin; Michael Stark as Barry Gillette; Ronn Carroll as Stan Hathaway; Derek Evans as Marty Stillwater; Steven Flynn as Davey Oakes; Pamela Shoemaker as Shelley Franklyn; Chris Weatherfield as Alicia Van Dine; Sandy Faison as Dr. Beth Correll; Jerry Zacks as Louis Van Dine; Cyd Quilling as Claire Daye; Ralph Byers as Donald Hext; Jason Zimbler as Jamey Swift, son of Logan and Raven; Ken Campbell as Russ Powell; A. C. Weary as Gary Shaw; Kerry Armstrong as Tess McAdams; Kelly Patterson as Hollace Dinneen; John Allen Nelson as Jack Boyd; Julianne Moore as Carmen Engler; Bob Gerringer as Del Emerson; Pamela Shoemaker as Shelley Franklyn; Christopher Holder as Mark Hamilton; Jennifer Taylor as Chris Egan; and Amanda Blake as Dr. Juliana Stanhower.

EDWARD & MRS. SIMPSON SYNDICATED
1980 Six-part historical drama about England's King Edward VIII. The king, known as David to his family and friends, abdicated after a brief reign to marry "the woman I love." With Edward Fox as Edward; Cynthia Harris as Wallis Warfield Simpson, the American socialite whom Edward married in 1937; Marius Goring as Edward's father, King George V; and Peggy Ashcroft as Edward's mother, Queen Mary. The series was produced in England by Thames Television, and was hosted by Robert MacNeil.

EDWARD ARNOLD THEATER SYNDICATED
1954 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by portly character actor Edward Arnold.

EDWARD THE KING SYNDICATED
1979 A thirteen-part miniseries based on the life of Edward VII, the son and successor of Queen Victoria. Produced in England in 1975, the American versions of the hour programs were hosted by Robert MacNeil and sponsored by Mobil Oil. With Charles Sturridge and Timothy West as the teenage and adult Edward; Annette Crosbie as Victoria; Robert Hardy as Prince Albert, Edward's father; Deborah Grant and Helen Ryan as Alexandra, Edward's Danish wife; and John Gielgud as Benjamin Disraeli.

EDWIN NEWMAN REPORTING NBC
5 JUNE 1960–4 SEPTEMBER 1960 Also titled Time: Present, this half-hour Sunday series was hosted by Edwin Newman, who was then NBC's Paris correspondent. Newman was subsequently featured on the Today show.

EEK! THE CAT FOX
12 SEPTEMBER 1992– Saturday morning cartoon series about the adventures of a wisecracking housecat. During the second season a second cartoon segment was added and the series was retitled Eek! the Cat and the Terrible Thunderlizards. The Thunderlizards were a group of dinosaurs trying to eliminate the upstart human race, led by Scooter and Bill, and their monster pal Huckleberry. By 1995 the series had been retitled Eek!Stravaganza. The series moved to Fox's weekday schedule in January 1996.

EERIE INDIANA NBC
15 SEPTEMBER 1991–12 APRIL 1992 Quirky sitcom about a fifteen-year-old who moved with his family from New Jersey to Eerie, Indiana, an aptly named town where unusual things happened. The cast included Omri Katz as Marshall Teller; Justin Shenkarow as his pal, nine-year-old Simon Holmes; Mary-Margaret Humes as Marshall's mother, Marilyn; Francis Guinan as his father, Edgar, an inventor; and Julie Condra as his older sister, Syndi. John Astin was added in midseason as the owner of one of Eerie's stores, The World of Stuff. Created by Karl Schaefer and Jose Rivera, the program was scheduled Sundays opposite 60 Minutes on CBS, and, unfortunately, proved to be NBC's lowest-rated series of the 1991–1992 season.

THE EGG AND I CBS

3 SEPTEMBER 1951–1 AUGUST 1952 Television's first comedy serial, The Egg and I told the story of a young woman from New York City who married a chicken farmer from upstate. It was based on Betty MacDonald's book, which had been made into a movie in 1947 starring Claudette Colbert. The fifteen-minute series ran five days a week at noon and starred Pat Kirkland as Betty MacDonald and John Craven as Bob MacDonald.

EIGHT IS ENOUGH ABC

15 MARCH 1977–29 AUGUST 1981 A comedy-drama from the producers of The Waltons, Eight Is Enough was based on the autobiography of Washington columnist Tom Braden. Set in Sacramento, the hour series starred Dick Van Patten as Tom Bradford, a columnist for the Sacramento Register. Diana Hyland costarred as his wife, Joan Bradford; Hyland died of cancer in 1977 after five shows had been filmed, and the series continued with Tom as a widower. The eight Bradford children were played by: Grant Goodeve as David; Lani O'Grady as Mary; Laurie Walters as Joannie; Susan Richardson as Susan; Dianne Kay as Nancy; Willie Aames as Tommy; Connie Newton (known as Connie Needham after her 1979 marriage to a former Eight Is Enough set decorator) as Elizabeth; and Adam Rich as Nicholas. In the fall of 1977 Betty Buckley joined the cast as Abby Abbott, a widow hired as a tutor; Abby and Tom were married on 9 November. In the fall of 1979 a double wedding was celebrated: David married Janet McArthur (played by Joan Prather) and Susan married minor-league baseball pitcher Merle Stockwell (played by Brian Patrick Clarke). Ralph Macchio was added in 1980 as Jeremy, Abby's troubled nephew. Also featured were James Karen as Tom's boss, Eliot Randolph; Jennifer Darling as Tom's secretary, Donna; Michael Thoma as Dr. Maxwell; Virginia Vincent as Daisy Maxwell; and John Louie (1980–1981) as Nicholas's pal, Melvin. Lee Rich and Philip Capice created the series for Lorimar Productions, which churned out 112 episodes. Most of the gang was reunited for Tom's fiftieth birthday on "Eight is Enough: A Family Reunion," shown 18 October 1987 on NBC; Van Patten and all eight kids returned, while Mary Frann appeared as Abby. The clan gathered again, to celebrate eldest son David's second marriage, on "An Eight Is Enough Wedding" (15 October 1989, also NBC); this time, Sandy Faison played Abby.

EIGHTH MAN SYNDICATED

1965 Japanese cartoon series about Tobor the Eighth Man, a robot imbued with the spirit of a slain police officer.

87TH PRECINCT NBC

25 SEPTEMBER 1961–10 SEPTEMBER 1962 Standard New York cop show. With Robert Lansing as Detective Steve Carella; Norman Fell as Detective Meyer Meyer; Gregory Wolcott as Detective Roger Havilland; Ron Harper as Detective Bert Kling; and Gena Rowlands, who was occasionally featured as Carella's wife, Teddy, a deaf-mute. Executive producer: Hubbell Robinson. The characters were based on those created by Ed McBain. A TV-movie, "Ed McBain's 87th Precinct" (NBC, 19 March 1995), starred Randy Quaid as Carella.

EISCHIED NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1979–27 JANUARY 1980 Hour crime show starring Joe Don Baker as Earl Eischied, the unorthodox chief of detectives of the New York City Police Department, with Alan Oppenheimer as Finnerty; Alan Fudge as Kimbrough; Eddie Egan (a former cop in real life) as Chief Ed Parks; Suzanne Lederer as Carol Wright; Vincent Bufano as Alessi; Joe Cirillo as Malfitano; and Waldo Kitty as P. C., Eischied's cat. The executive producer was David Gerber for David Gerber Productions and Columbia Pictures TV. Buried in the ratings by CBS's Dallas, Eischied was exhumed in the summer of 1983, when reruns were aired by NBC on Fridays.

EISENHOWER & LUTZ CBS

14 March 1988–20 June 1988 Allan Burns created this sitcom about a Palm Springs lawyer struggling to get by. With Scott Bakula as Barnett M. "Bud" Lutz, Jr., who hung out his shingle at a small shopping mall (although he was a solo practitioner, he thought it more impressive to make it seem that he had a partner); Rose Portillo as his secretary, Millie Zamora; DeLane Matthews as his girlfriend, Megan O'Malley, a waitress; Patricia Richardson as his ex-girlfriend, Kay Dunne, a successful attorney; Leo Geter as Dwayne Spitler, a sushi delivery boy and pre-law student who volunteered at Lutz's office; and Henderson Forsythe as Bud's dad, Big Bud, a local sign painter.

ELDER MICHAUX DUMONT

17 October 1948–9 January 1949 Probably the first black evangelist to appear regularly on network television, Solomon Lightfoot Michaux hosted his own half-hour religious show, which was broadcast from Washington, D.C.

THE ELECTRIC COMPANY PBS

1971–1976 Aimed principally at seven- to ten-year-olds, The Electric Company emphasized the development of reading skills. Produced by the Children's Television Workshop, its format was similar to that of Sesame Street, CTW's notable series for preschoolers. Regulars included Bill Cosby, Rita Moreno, Lee Chamberlin, Jim Boyd, Morgan Freeman, Hattie Winston, Luis Avalos, Judy Graubart, Skip Hinnant, and Danny Seagren.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR NBC

3 October 1962–9 September 1964 NBC followed up its 1961 smash, Dr. Kildare, with a second medical series that focused on mental problems. It starred Wendell Corey (1962–1963) as Dr. Theodore Bassett, a court-appointed psychiatrist, and Jack Ging as Dr. Paul Graham, a clinical psychologist. In the fall of 1963 Corey was replaced by Ralph Bellamy, who played psychiatrist Dr. Richard Starke. Norman Felton was the executive producer for MGM.

THE ELGIN HOUR ABC

5 October 1954–14 June 1955 This undistinguished hour-long dramatic anthology series alternated on Tuesdays with The U.S. Steel Hour. The premiere telecast, "Flood," starred Robert Cummings and Dorothy Gish.

ELLEN (THESE FRIENDS OF MINE) ABC

29 March 1994–4 May 1994; 2 August 1994– Half-hour sitcom often compared to NBC's Seinfeld because of its focus on life's little problems and small satisfactions. Starring standup comic Ellen DeGeneres as bookstore/cafe owner Ellen Morgan, the series premiered in the spring of 1994 as These Friends of Mine. It also featured Arye Gross as Ellen's roommate, Adam Greene; Holly Fulger as Ellen's friend, Holly; and Maggie Wheeler as Adam's girlfriend, Anita. The show scored impressive ratings during its brief tryout, finishing fifth in the seasonal Nielsen ratings. When the series returned in August (with reruns of the spring episodes), it was retitled Ellen, and the season's new episodes no longer featured Fulger and Wheeler. David Anthony Higgins joined the cast as Joe, who worked for Ellen at Buy the Book, and Joely Fisher was added as Ellen's friend, Paige Clark. Clea Lewis joined the cast in the spring of 1995 as Audrey Penney, Ellen's annoying neighbor. In the fall of 1995 Arye Gross left the series (his character moved to London), and Jeremy Piven was added as Ellen's cousin and new roommate, Spence Kovak.

THE ELLEN BURSTYN SHOW ABC

20 September 1986–15 November 1986; 8 August 1987–12 September 1987 Half-hour sitcom about four generations living under one roof in a Baltimore townhouse. With Ellen Burstyn as Ellen Brewer, a widowed writer and professor of creative writing at a nearby college; Megan Mullally as her daughter, Molly Ross, a divorcée; Jesse Tendler as Molly's five-year-old, Nick; Elaine Stritch as Ellen's mom, Sydney

Brewer; and Barry Sobel as Tom Heinz, a college student who boarded with the Brewers. The series was scheduled on Saturdays following Lucille Ball's new series, Life with Lucy; both failed.

ELLERY QUEEN DUMONT/ABC/SYNDICATED/NBC

19 OCTOBER 1950–6 DECEMBER 1951 (DUMONT); 16 DECEMBER 1951–26 NOVEMBER 1952 (ABC); 1954 (SYNDICATED); 26 SEPTEMBER 1958–4 SEPTEMBER 1959 (NBC); 11 SEPTEMBER 1975–19 SEPTEMBER 1976 (NBC) Ellery Queen, the fictional detective created by two cousins, Frederic Dannay and Manfred Lee, has been played by six actors in five television series. Each series employed the device of having Queen address the home audience at the show's climax, to see if they had been as skillful as he in identifying the real murderer. The first effort—The Adventures of Ellery Queen—was seen originally on the DuMont network and later switched to ABC. Richard Hart was TV's first Ellery Queen; he was succeeded in 1951 by Lee Bowman. The 1954 version starred Hugh Marlowe, who had played the part on radio. Florenz Ames was also featured in the first three versions as Ellery's father, Inspector Richard Queen of the New York Police Department. Irving and Norman Pincus produced the half-hour series. In the fall of 1958 the character returned in a sixty-minute format, The Further Adventures of Ellery Queen; it lasted one season. George Nader played Ellery Queen until March 1959, when he was replaced by Lee Philips. Televised in color, the show was originally broadcast live from Hollywood and later became one of the first dramatic series to be videotaped. In 1971 Peter Lawford played the character in a TV-movie. In 1975 NBC revived the character again; the new series, entitled simply Ellery Queen, was set in 1947, and the cast included: Jim Hutton as Ellery Queen; David Wayne as his father, Inspector Richard Queen; Tom Reese as Sergeant Velie; John Hillerman as criminologist Simon Brimmer; and Ken Swofford as reporter Frank "Front Page" Flannigan. The 1975 edition was produced by Peter S. Fischer and Michael Rhodes; Richard Levinson and William Link were the executive producers.

ELVIS ABC

6 FEBRUARY 1990–18 MARCH 1990; 5 MAY 1990–19 MAY 1990 A loving look at the early years of Elvis Presley's musical career, beginning in 1954 in Memphis. With Michael St. Gerard as Elvis Presley; Jesse Dabson as guitarist Scotty Moore; Blake Gibbons as bassist Bill Black; Jordan Williams as Sam Phillips, owner of Sun Records, where Elvis cut his first recordings; Billy Green Bush as Elvis's father, Vernon; and Millie Perkins as Elvis's mother, Gladys. Created by Rick Husky, the half-hour series was produced with the cooperation of Presley's widow, Priscilla (who provided the voiceover narration), and his estate. Presley's singing voice was supplied by Ronnie McDowell. Michael St. Gerard had previously played Elvis in the 1989 film about singer Jerry Lee Lewis, Great Balls of Fire!

EMERALD POINT N.A.S. CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1983–12 MARCH 1984 One of two 1983 prime-time serials with a military background (For Love and Honor was the other), this one was set at Emerald Point Naval Air Station, somewhere on the American coastline. Principals included: Dennis Weaver as the chief officer, Rear Admiral Thomas Mallory, a widower with three grown daughters; Susan Dey as his oldest daughter, Celia Warren, wife of a Navy lawyer; Stephanie Dunnam as the middle daughter, Kay; Doran Clark as the youngest daughter, Leslie, an Annapolis graduate; Charles Frank as Celia's husband, Commander Jack Warren; Andrew Stevens as Lieutenant Glenn Matthews, who was implicated in a murder; Sela Ward as Glenn's fiancée, Hilary Adams, best friend of Kay Mallory; Patrick O'Neal and Robert Vaughn as Hilary's manipulative father, Harlan Adams; Richard Dean Anderson as Hilary's half-brother, Simon Adams, a Navy pilot; Maud Adams as Maggie Farrell, who was employed by the city's Military Affairs Council and whose husband had been missing in action for ten years; Jill St. John as Tom Mallory's sister-in-law, Deanna Kincaid; and Robert Loggia as Soviet Admiral Yuri Bukharin. The hour series was created by Richard and Esther Shapiro, who had created Dynasty in 1981.

EMERGENCY! NBC

22 JANUARY 1972–3 SEPTEMBER 1977 When this series was introduced as a midseason replacement for The Partners and The Good Life, few people would have predicted that it could withstand the competition from CBS's All in the Family. Emergency! lasted, however, because it appealed to a different audience; for several seasons it was the most popular prime-time program among viewers aged two to eleven. It was a fast-moving show which depicted the efforts of a team of paramedics assigned to Squad 51 of the Los Angeles County Fire Department; the paramedical team was also associated with nearby Ramparts General Hospital. With Robert Fuller as Dr. Kelly Brackett of the hospital staff; Bobby Troup as Dr. Joe Early of the hospital staff; Julie London (Bobby Troup's wife) as Nurse Dixie McCall; Randolph Mantooth as paramedic John Gage; Kevin Tighe as paramedic Roy DeSoto; Dick Hammer as Captain Henderson; Mike Stoker as fireman-engineer Stoker; Tim Donnelly as fireman Chet Kelly; Marco Lopez as fireman Marco Lopez; Michael Norrell as Captain Stanley; Ron Pinkard as Dr. Morton; and Deidre Hall as Sally. Executive producer: Robert A. Cinader for Jack Webb's Mark VII Productions. On 31 December 1978 a two-hour Emergency! was aired on NBC, which consisted mainly of flashbacks.

EMERGENCY +4 NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 Saturday-morning cartoon series based on Emergency! Paramedics DeSoto and Gage from the prime-time series were assisted by four kids: Sally, Randy, Jason, and Matt. The third season consisted entirely of reruns. Produced by Fred Calvert.

EMPIRE (REDIGO) NBC/ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1962–31 DECEMBER 1963 (NBC); 22 MARCH 1964–6 SEPTEMBER 1964 (ABC) Empire was an hour-long dramatic series set in modern New Mexico. It featured Richard Egan as Jim Redigo, foreman of the Garrett ranch; Anne Seymour as Lucia Garrett, the owner; Terry Moore as her daughter, Connie; Ryan O'Neal as her son, Tal; Warren Vanders as Chuck Davis; Charles Bronson joined the cast in February 1963 as ranch hand Paul Moreno. In the fall of 1963 the format was changed, shortened to a half hour, and retitled Redigo. Egan remained as Jim Redigo, who now owned his own spread. The rest of the Empire cast was jettisoned; the new regulars included Roger Davis as ranch hand Mike; Rudy Solari as ranch hand Frank; and Elena Verdugo as Gerry, assistant manager of the local hotel. In 1964 ABC reran some of the Empire episodes.

EMPIRE CBS

4 JANUARY 1984–1 FEBRUARY 1984 Half-hour sitcom about skullduggery and intrigue at a large conglomerate. With Dennis Dugan as Ben Christian, the newly appointed, idealistic vice-president; Patrick Macnee as Calvin Cromwell, the chairman of the board; Maureen Arthur as Peg, Ben's secretary; Richard Masur as Jack Willow; Christine Belford as Jack's wife, Jackie Willow; Caren Kaye as Meredith Blake, head of public relations; Michael McGuire as senior vice-president Everett Roland; Dick O'Neill as v.p. Arthur Broderick; Edward Winter as v.p. Howard Daniels; and Howard Platt as lawyer Roger Martinson.

EMPTY NEST NBC

8 OCTOBER 1988–29 APRIL 1995; 10 JUNE 1995–8 JULY 1995 This half-hour sitcom was spun off from The Golden Girls. It featured Richard Mulligan as Harry Weston, a widowed pediatrician living in Miami; Dinah Manoff as his eldest daughter, Carol, a divorcée; Kristy McNichol (1988–fall 1992) as middle daughter Barbara, a cop (a third daughter, Emily, was away at college); David Leisure (already well known as commercial spokesman Joe Isuzu) as Charley Dietz, Harry's obnoxious freeloading neighbor; Park Overall as LaVerne Todd, Harry's very Southern nurse; and Bear as Dreyfuss, Harry's enormous dog. McNichol left the series in the fall of 1992 to seek treatment for a manic depressive condition (it was explained that her character, Barbara, had moved to Tucson). Lisa Rieffel joined the cast early in 1993, as the hitherto unseen third daughter, Emily, who had returned home from college. Paul Provenza also appeared occasionally as Carol's boyfriend, Patrick Arcola. In the fall of 1993 Rieffel had left, and two new regulars were added: Marsha Warfield as Dr. Maxine Douglas, Harry's wisecracking new partner; and Estelle Getty as Sophia Petrillo, a wisecracking oldster (a role she had originated on The Golden Girls). Carol became a pregnant that season, and gave birth to a son, Scotty (later played occasionally by Caston Holmes). Created by Susan Harris, the series had originally been conceived for the fall of 1987, and was to have starred Paul Dooley and Rita Moreno as a married couple. After a surprisingly lengthy seven-season run, Empty Nest wrapped up on 29 April 1995 (though a few episodes were televised later) with a double wedding at LaVerne's Arkansas home: LaVerne married Matt (Stephen Nichols) and Carol wed Kevin Millen (D. David Morin). Kristy McNichol returned for the final episode, and Harry decided to leave Miami for a teaching position in Vermont.

ENCOUNTER ABC

5 OCTOBER 1958–2 NOVEMBER 1958 Encounter was an experimental dramatic anthology series; broadcast live from Toronto, the hour-long show was also carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

ENCOUNTERS: THE HIDDEN TRUTH FOX

24 JUNE 1994–22 JULY 1994; 9 OCTOBER 1994–21 AUGUST 1995 John Marshall hosted this hour show which focused on supernatural and unexplained phenomena. The series had a brief run during the summer of 1994 and was revived in October to replace Fortune Hunter.

THE END OF THE RAINBOW NBC

11 JANUARY 1958–15 FEBRUARY 1958 On this Saturday-night game show contestants were given the chance to realize a lifetime ambition. The short-lived series was a midseason replacement for another game show, What's It For? Art Baker, the first host, was succeeded in February by Bob Barker.

THE ENGELBERT HUMPERDINCK SHOW ABC

21 JANUARY 1970–19 SEPTEMBER 1970 An hour-long variety series taped in London and hosted by British pop star Engelbert Humperdinck. Known previously by his real name—Arnold Dorsey—he had enjoyed little success until his manager, Gordon Mills, decided on the name change (the real Engelbert Humperdinck was a nineteenth-century German composer). In 1967, Humperdinck was voted Show Business Personality of the Year in Great Britain.

ENOS CBS

12 NOVEMBER 1980–19 SEPTEMBER 1981 In this hour spinoff from The Dukes of Hazzard, Sonny Shroyer starred as Enos Strate. After apprehending some wanted criminals in Hazzard County, the naive deputy was invited by Los Angeles police officials to join that city's new Metro Special Branch. Also on board were Samuel E. Wright as Enos's partner, Turk Adams; John Dehner as their boss, Lieutenant Broggi; John Milford as Captain Dempsey; and Leo V. Gordon as Sergeant Kick. Enos subsequently returned to Hazzard County after his own show was canceled.

ENSIGN O'TOOLE NBC

23 SEPTEMBER 1962–15 SEPTEMBER 1963 Military sitcom, set aboard the destroyer Appleby in the Pacific. With Dean Jones as easygoing Ensign O'Toole; Jay C. Flippen as cantankerous Captain Homer Nelson; Jack Albertson as Lieutenant Commander Virgil Stoner; Jack Mullaney as Lieutenant Rex St. John; Harvey Lembeck as Seaman Gabby DiJulio; Beau Bridges as Seaman Spicer; and Robert Sorrells as Seaman White. Hy Averback produced and directed for Four Star Films.

ENTERPRISE PBS

1981–1984 Eric Sevareid was the host and narrator of this series on American business. Each segment was produced by a different PBS affiliate.

ENTERPRISE U.S.A. ABC

19 OCTOBER 1952–8 MARCH 1953; 6 OCTOBER 1954–26 JANUARY 1955 A series of half-hour documentaries on American industry, produced by ABC News and Public Affairs. Though Enterprise U.S.A. was a network offering, ABC's New York affiliate did not carry it regularly. The series popped up later on ABC's schedule as a "filler" program.

THE ENTERTAINERS CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1964–27 MARCH 1965 An unsuccessful variety series. Originally, the idea was to have three rotating hosts: Carol Burnett, Bob Newhart, and Caterina Valente. After the first few weeks, however, the three cohosts usually appeared together. Other regulars included Dom DeLuise, John Davidson, Ruth Buzzi, Don Crichton, and columnist Art Buchwald.

ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT SYNDICATED

14 SEPTEMBER 1981– One of the few successful syndicated shows of the 1980s, Entertainment Tonight was also one of the first programs to utilize satellites for its distribution; the half-hour roundup of news and features from the showbiz world is fed from Los Angeles each weekday to local stations by Earth-orbiting satellites; each station tapes the satellite feed and may broadcast it at any time that day. The series was originally hosted by Tom Hallick (a former soap opera performer), Marjorie Wallace, and Ron Hendren (a former San Francisco TV critic who had been a regular contributor on the Today show). Hallick and Wallace were quickly dumped, and Hendren became the co-host with Dixie Whatley in November 1981. Whatley was in turn replaced by Mary Hart in August 1982. Hendren left the show in September 1984, and was succeeded as cohost by Robb Weller, who was in turn replaced by John Tesh in the fall of 1986. Thereafter, a new set was constructed, designed to minimize the height difference between Hart and Tesh and to highlight Hart's legs. The Hart-Tesh pairing worked well, as Entertainment Tonight was never seriously challenged by rival showbiz magazine series (see Extra—The Entertainment Magazine and Personalities). By the mid-1990s Tesh had become known as a composer as well, having recorded several CDs of instrumental music (he also composed the theme to the Saturday morning cartoon show Bobby's World). Julie Moran succeeded Leeza Gibbons as weekend coanchor, with Bob Goen, in mid-1995.

A companion show, Entertainment This Week, a weekly recap of showbiz news intended for weekend broadcast, has also been offered since 1981. It was emceed by the ET weeknight cohosts until the fall of 1982, when Dixie Whatley and Steve Edwards took over; Alan Arthur succeeded Edwards in 1983. Both cohosts were replaced in 1984, as Robb Weller and Leeza Gibbons took over. Weller in turn was replaced by weekday cohost John Tesh in 1989.

EQUAL JUSTICE ABC

27 MARCH 1990–27 JUNE 1990; 15 AUGUST 1990–29 AUGUST 1990; 9 JANUARY 1991–10 APRIL 1991; 19 JUNE 1991–24 JULY 1991 The men and women of the Pittsburgh district attorney's office were the subjects of this hour dramatic series. The ensemble cast included George DiCenzo as District Attorney Arnold Bach; Cotter Smith as his chief deputy, Gene Rogan; Joe Morton as Michael James; Debrah Farentino as Julie Janovich; Barry Miller as male chauvinist Peter "Briggs" Brigman; Jane Kaczmarek as Linda Bauer, head of the sex crime unit; James Wilder as Christopher Searls; Jon Tenney as Peter Bauer; Sarah Jessica Parker as rookie prosecutor Jo Ann Harris; Kathleen Lloyd as Jessie Rogan, Gene's wife; and Lynn Whitfield as local TV anchor Maggie Mayfield.

THE EQUALIZER CBS

18 September 1985–7 September 1989 A modern-day version of the classic TV western Have Gun Will Travel, this hour adventure series was set in New York, and starred British actor Edward Woodward as Robert McCall, a former government agent who made his services available, through a newspaper advertisement, to persons who faced adverse situations; McCall's presence was intended to "equalize" the situation. Also featured were Robert Lansing as Control, McCall's former supervisor at the federal agency; William Zabka as McCall's teenage son, Scott; Steven Williams (1985–1986) as Lieutenant Burnett of the N.Y.P.D.; Ron O'Neal (1986–1987) as Lieutenant Smalls; Chad Redding (1987–1989) as Sergeant Alice Shepard; and Keith Szarabajka (1986–1989) as McCall's young assistant, Mickey Kostmayer. In the summer of 1987 Woodward suffered a heart attack, and had to curtail his schedule; Richard Jordan was signed to take up some of the slack, appearing that season as Harley Gage, a former federal colleague. Maureen Anderman joined the cast in December 1987 as Pete O'Phelan, another former colleague who now operated a Manhattan cafe.

THE ERN WESTMORE SHOW SYNDICATED/ABC

1953 (SYNDICATED); 7 August 1955–11 September 1955 (ABC) Advice on make-up for women from beauty consultant Ern Westmore. Westmore's wife, Betty, also appeared on the series, which was seen Sundays over ABC.

ERNIE KOVACS NBC/CBS

14 May 1951–29 June 1951 (NBC); 2 July 1951–24 August 1951 (NBC); 4 January 1952–28 March 1952 (NBC); 30 December 1952–14 April 1953 (CBS); 12 December 1955–27 July 1956 (NBC); 2 July 1956–10 September 1956 (NBC) A brilliant and iconoclastic comedian, Ernie Kovacs pioneered the use of blackouts and trick photography in television comedy. He frequently satirized TV programs and commercials, and introduced his audiences to a host of Kovacsian characters, such as lisping poet Percy Dovetonsils, German disc jockey Wolfgang Sauerbraten, Chinese songwriter Irving Wong, as well as J. Walter Puppybreath and Uncle Gruesome. Many of his shows also featured The Nairobi Trio, a motley group of three instrumentalists dressed in ape suits.

Kovacs grew up in Trenton, New Jersey, but honed his unique skills in Philadelphia, where at one time he found himself hosting three local shows simultaneously: Three to Get Ready, a two-hour daily morning show on Philadelphia's channel 3; Deadline for Dinner, a lighthearted afternoon cooking show; and Pick Your Ideal, a weekly fashion show. His work on Three to Get Ready, most of which was improvised, caught the attention of network executives, and in May of 1951 he hosted his first NBC series, It's Time for Ernie, a fifteen-minute afternoon effort. In July Kovacs was given a weekday evening slot as a summer replacement for Kukla, Fran and Ollie; the thirty-minute show was titled Ernie in Kovacsland. Early in 1952 he reappeared on daytime TV as the host of a morning show, Kovacs on the Korner, the last of his shows to originate from Philadelphia.

In April of 1952 Kovacs moved to New York to host a local daytime show on WCBS-TV, Kovacs Unlimited, which ran until January 1954. In December 1952 the CBS network gave him a prime-time hour series, The Ernie Kovacs Show. Billed as "the shortest hour in television," the program was unfortunately scheduled opposite Milton Berle's Texaco Star Theater on NBC, and, like most of Berle's competition in those years, folded quickly.

In the spring of 1954 Kovacs moved over to WABD-TV, New York's DuMont outlet, where he hosted a late-night local show for about a year. Late in 1955 he returned to NBC, where he hosted another daytime series; shortly before the daytime show ended its seven-month run, Kovacs began hosting a Monday-night variety hour, which replaced Caesar's Hour for the summer.

All of Kovacs's network shows (except It's Time for Ernie) featured singer Edie Adams. One of Kovacs's staffers had spotted her on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts, where she was an unsuccessful contestant, and recommended her to Kovacs; they were married in 1954. Other regulars on Kovacs's early shows included Andy McKay, Trigger Lund, and Eddie Hatrak. Regulars on the 1956 summer series included Barbara Loden, Peter Hanley, Bill Wendell, Al Kelly, and the Bob Hamilton Dancers.

In addition to the several series mentioned here, Kovacs also filled in twice a week for Steve Allen on the Tonight show during the fall of 1956, hosted a game show (see Take a Good Look), a motion picture anthology series (see Silents Please), and starred in several television specials. The first, and most unusual, of these was a half-hour special broadcast by NBC on 19 January 1957 which featured not a single word of dialogue. Kovacs's final television work was a series of monthly specials carried by the ABC network during 1961 and 1962; these programs, which were videotaped, demonstrated his mastery of the medium. A technical perfectionist, Kovacs conceived a wide array of special effects and thought nothing of spending thousands of dollars on a three- or four-second sequence.

The last Kovacs special was televised 23 January 1962, barely a week after his tragic death in an auto accident while returning home from a party in Beverly Hills. In 1977 excerpts from several of Kovacs's shows were packaged for educational television under the title The Best of Ernie Kovacs. On 14 May 1984 ABC aired a made-for-TV movie, "Ernie Kovacs: Between the Laughter," which dramatized Kovacs's desperate efforts to locate the two daughters from his first marriage. Jeff Goldblum and Melody Anderson starred as Kovacs and Adams; Edie Adams herself made a cameo appearance as Mae West.

THE ERROL FLYNN THEATRE — SYNDICATED

1957 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by Errol Flynn, the swashbuckling star of dozens of adventure films.

ESCAPE — CBS

5 JANUARY 1950–30 MARCH 1950 This Thursday-night anthology series—usually of thrillers—was derived from the radio show which ran from 1947 to 1954; it was narrated by William Conrad, and produced and directed by Wyllis Cooper.

ESCAPE — NBC

11 FEBRUARY 1973–1 APRIL 1973 Jack Webb produced and narrated this dramatic anthology series purportedly based on true stories of persons enmeshed in do-or-die situations.

ESPECIALLY FOR YOU

See THE ROBERTA QUINLAN SHOW

ESPIONAGE — NBC

2 OCTOBER 1963–2 SEPTEMBER 1964 Produced in England, this anthology series presented spy stories. Herbert Brodkin produced.

ETHEL AND ALBERT — NBC/CBS/ABC

25 APRIL 1953–25 DECEMBER 1954 (NBC); 20 JUNE 1955–26 SEPTEMBER 1955 (CBS); 14 OCTOBER 1955–6 JULY 1956 (ABC) A low-key situation comedy, Ethel and Albert starred Peg Lynch and Alan Bunce as Ethel and Albert Arbuckle, a middle-aged married couple who lived in the town of Sandy Harbor. Lynch created and wrote the series, which began on radio over a local station in Minnesota in 1938 and went network in 1944 (Lynch's radio costar for several years was Richard Widmark). Ethel and Albert's first television exposure was during the 1952–1953 season, when it was telecast as a regular fifteen-minute segment of The Kate Smith Hour; in April of 1953 it was given its own half-hour slot on Saturday nights. In 1955 it was carried by CBS as a summer replacement for December Bride, and in the fall of 1955 ABC broadcast the show on Fridays. By the spring of 1956, it had become the last live sitcom regularly broadcast on network television. The practice was revived briefly in 1959 on Too Young to Go Steady, and not again until 1992 on Roc.

ETHEL BARRYMORE THEATER SYNDICATED

1953 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by seventy-seven-year-old Ethel Barrymore, star of stage and screen, and sister of John and Lionel Barrymore.

ETHICS IN AMERICA PBS

31 JANUARY 1989–11 APRIL 1989 Hour panel discussion series on which hypothetical ethical questions were discussed and analyzed. Fred W. Friendly was the producer.

EUREEKA'S CASTLE NICKELODEON

4 SEPTEMBER 1989– An hour daytime potpourri of puppetry, live action, and animated segments, aimed at young viewers.

EVANS AND NOVAK SYNDICATED

1976 This hour-long series examined political issues in depth. Syndicated columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak hosted the show, which was produced in Washington by Gordon Hyatt.

THE EVE ARDEN SHOW CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1957–25 MARCH 1958 After the cancellation of Our Miss Brooks, Eve Arden returned a year later in this unsuccessful situation comedy, based on Emily Kimbrough's autobiography. Arden starred as Liza Hammond, a widow who made her living as a traveling lecturer. Also featured were Allyn Joslyn as George Howell, her agent; Karen Greene as Mary, her thirteen-year-old, the nonidentical twin sister of Jenny, played by Gail Stone; and Frances Bavier as Nora, the housekeeper who tended the twins while Liza was on the road. Produced by Robert Sparks and Edmund Hartmann, the series was directed by John Rich.

THE EVE HUNTER SHOW NBC

10 OCTOBER 1951–28 MARCH 1952 Eve Hunter hosted this daily hour interview show for six months during the 1951–1952 season. Because the show was broadcast at one o'clock, few NBC affiliates carried it, choosing instead to carry local programs at that hour. It was not until the late 1970s that NBC again carried a regular network show at one o'clock.

EVENING AT POPS PBS

12 JULY 1970– A recurring summer series, Evening at Pops presents the Boston Pops Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler (until his death in 1979), together with guest artists. The series continued under the Pops' new director, John Williams. Though he is best known as a composer of film scores (including Star Wars, The Empire Strikes Back, E.T., and many others), Williams also worked extensively in television; he composed themes for such series as Bachelor Father, Alcoa Premiere, Checkmate, Wide Country, The Time Tunnel, and Lost in Space, and won Emmys for his scores of "Heidi" (1968) and "Jane Eyre" (1971). Keith Lockhart was named to replace Williams in 1995.

EVENING AT SYMPHONY PBS

6 OCTOBER 1974–20 DECEMBER 1979 An hour of classical music, taped at Symphony Hall in Boston, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

AN EVENING AT THE IMPROV SYNDICATED/A&E

EVENING SHADE CBS

21 SEPTEMBER 1990–4 JULY 1994 The first network series set in Arkansas, this sitcom was created by Linda (Designing Women) Bloodworth-Thomason. It was set in Evening Shade, a sleepy town peopled largely by eccentrics, and starred Burt Reynolds as Wood Newton, coach of Evening Shade's hapless high school football team. Also on board were Marilu Henner as Wood's wife, Ava, candidate for local prosecuting attorney; Jay R. Ferguson as their older son, Taylor; Melissa Renee Martin (1990–1991) and Candace Hutson (1991–1994) as their daughter, Molly; Jacob Parker as their younger son, Will; Hal Holbrook as Ava's father, Evan Evans, publisher of the Evening Shade Argus; Linda Gehringer as stripper Fontana Beausoleil, who married Evan in the fall of 1991; Elizabeth Ashley as Evan's sister, Freida Evans; Charles Durning as Harlan Elldridge, the town doctor; Ann Wedgeworth as his wife, Merleen; Ossie Davis as Ponder Blue, owner of the local rib joint; Michael Jeter as Wood's inexperienced assistant coach, math teacher Herman Stiles; and Charlie Dell as the addled adult paper boy, Nub Oliver. In the spring of 1991 Wood and Ava had a fourth child, Emily (played in later seasons by Alexa Vega).

AN EVENING WITH SYNDICATED

1966 An anthology variety series that showcased a different performer each week. There were no regulars.

THE EVERGLADES SYNDICATED

1961 In this half-hour adventure series Ron Hayes starred as Lincoln Vail, officer of Florida's Everglades County Patrol. Gordon Cosell costarred as Chief Anderson, Vail's commanding officer.

THE EVERLY BROTHERS SHOW ABC

8 JULY 1970–16 SEPTEMBER 1970 A summer replacement for The Johnny Cash Show. The cohosts, Don and Phil Everly, began making records in 1957; their sound, which blended elements of country and rock music, influenced many artists, including the Beatles. Regulars on the series included Ruth McDevitt and Joe Higgins.

EVERYBODY'S TALKING ABC

6 FEBRUARY 1967–29 DECEMBER 1967 Daytime game show on which contestants, after watching film clips of people talking, tried to guess what they were talking about. A celebrity panel was on hand to help the players. Lloyd Thaxton hosted the show. A very similar concept was employed in the 1973 game show, Hollywood's Talking.

EVERYDAY SYNDICATED

1978–1979 A daily hour variety-talk show with two cohosts—Stephanie Edwards and John Bennett Perry—and five other regulars: Anne Bloom, Tom Chapin, Robert Corff, Judy Gibson, and Murray Langston (formerly The Gong Show's "Unknown Comic"). David Salzman was the executive producer for Group W Productions.

EVERYDAY WITH JOAN LUNDEN SYNDICATED

1989–1990 A five-day-a-week talk show emceed by busy Joan Lunden, who simultaneously cohosted Good Morning America on ABC. The show was available to local stations in either a thirty- or sixty-minute format.

EVERYTHING GOES SYNDICATED

1973 Variety show produced in Canada, cohosted by comedians Norm Crosby and Tom O'Malley.

EVERYTHING'S ARCHIE

See THE ARCHIE SHOW

EVERYTHING'S RELATIVE SYNDICATED

1965 Jim Hutton hosted this game show, which pitted two families against each other. Individual family members were called on to answer a question or perform a task; the remaining family members then predicted whether the other one would be able to answer or perform correctly.

EVERYTHING'S RELATIVE CBS

3 OCTOBER 1987–7 NOVEMBER 1987 Only six episodes of this sitcom were broadcast. It told the story of two brothers, one white collar and one blue collar, who shared a Manhattan loft, and their meddlesome mom. With Jason Alexander as Julian Beeby, the white collar, who was co-owner of a products testing company; John Bolger as Scott Beeby, the blue collar, who was a construction worker; Anne Jackson as their mother, Rae; Tony Deacon Nittoli as their pal Mickey; and Gina Hecht as Julian's partner, Emily Cabot.

EVERYWHERE I GO CBS

7 OCTOBER 1952–6 JANUARY 1953 Dan Seymour hosted this human interest series, which was seen Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. It was one of the first daytime shows to employ production techniques such as backscreen projection, so that a housewife on stage would appear to be standing in her kitchen at home; producer Irv Gitlin described the effect as a "studio without walls." Lloyd Gross directed.

THE EVIL TOUCH SYNDICATED

1973 An anthology series of half-hour melodramas, hosted by Anthony Quayle. Produced in Canada.

EWOKS ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1985–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 The furry creatures from the movie Return of the Jedi were the stars of this Saturday-morning cartoon show. From 1 March to 6 September 1986 Ewoks combined forces with Droids, another cartoon show based on characters from the Star Wars films; the resulting hour was titled The Ewoks and Droids Adventure Hour. In the fall of 1986 the series was titled The All-New Ewoks.

EXCLUSIVE SYNDICATED

1960 The stories on this half-hour dramatic anthology series were all written by members of the Overseas Press Club of America.

EXCURSION NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1953–21 MARCH 1954 Burgess Meredith hosted this wide-ranging Sunday-afternoon documentary series. Some programs were devoted to the arts, some examined foreign cultures, and some featured interviews with such guests as former President Harry S. Truman. The show was produced first by Jerry Bragg, and later by Pete Barnum, for the Ford Foundation TV Workshop; Dan Petrie directed.

EXECUTIVE SUITE CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1976–11 FEBRUARY 1977 A continuing drama set at the Cardway Corporation, a large conglomerate headquartered in Los Angeles. The large cast included Mitchell Ryan as Dan Walling, concerned corporate president; Sharon Acker as Helen Walling, his wife; Leigh McCloskey as Brian Walling, their prodigal son; Wendy Phillips as Stacey Walling, their radical daughter; Stephen Elliott as Howell Rutledge, reactionary senior vice president; Gwyda DonHowe as Astrid Rutledge, his scheming wife; Byron Morrow as Pearce Newberry, alcoholic VP; Madlyn Rhue as Hilary Madison, the only woman on the board of directors; Percy Rodriguez as Malcolm Gibson, the only black board member; William Smithers as Anderson Galt, philandering VP; Patricia Smith as Leona Galt, his troubled wife; Joan Prather as Glory Dalessio, Anderson Galt's secretary and after-hours companion; Paul Lambert as Tom Dalessio, Glory's father, the plant manager; Brenda Sykes as Summer Johnson, Glory's black roommate who fell in love with Brian Walling; Richard Cox as Mark Desmond, hotshot young executive; Trisha Noble as Yvonne Holland, the woman who purported to be Mark's wife; Carl Weintraub as Harry Ragin, shop steward; and Scott Marlowe as Nick Coslo, an industrial spy. Based loosely on the novel by Cameron Hawley, the show was produced by Don Brinkley and later by Buck Houghton; its executive producers were Norman Felton and Stanley Rubin.

THE EXILE CBS

2 APRIL 1991–21 DECEMBER 1994 One segment of CBS's late-night umbrella, Crime Time After Prime Time, this one was filmed in Paris. It starred Jeffrey Meek as John Stone, an American spy in East Germany who had been framed for murder; he was given a new identity—John Phillips—by friends in the intelligence service so that he could elude capture while continuing to search for the people who had framed him. Christian Burgess costarred as Charles Cabot, Paris bureau chief of the DCS intelligence agency. Also featured were Patrick Floershim as French intelligence agent Danny Montreau, and Jacquie Decaux as Stone's landlady, Nadia. In the series' final episode Stone learned that it was Cabot himself who had framed him. The Exile was scheduled regularly through the fall of 1991, and then popped up on Crime Time After Prime Time only occasionally.

EXPEDITION! ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1960–23 APRIL 1962 Documentary series that presented modern-day geographical adventures. Hosted by Colonel John D. Craig.

EXPLORING NBC

13 OCTOBER 1962–17 APRIL 1965; 8 JANUARY 1966–9 APRIL 1966 An educational series for children that explored language, music, mathematics, social studies, and science. Televised Saturdays, the show was hosted by Dr. Albert R. Hibbs, who was assisted by the Ritts Puppets: Magnolia the Ostrich, Albert the Chipmunk and Sir Godfrey Turtle.

EXPLORING GOD'S WORLD CBS

EXPOSÉ NBC

6 JANUARY 1991–1 NOVEMBER 1991 Half-hour prime-time investigative news program, anchored by Tom Brokaw, with reports from Brian Ross. The show was seen approximately three times a month; on the fourth week, Real Life with Jane Pauley expanded to a full hour to fill the gap.

EXTRA—THE ENTERTAINMENT MAGAZINE SYNDICATED

1994– A clone of Entertainment Tonight, this half-hour daily series presented news and other features from the world of entertainment. Dave Nemeth and Arthel Neville were the weekday anchors, Maureen O'Boyle the weekend anchor.

THE EXTRAORDINARY SYNDICATED

1994– Hour weekly series comprised mainly of videotaped interviews with persons who claimed to have experienced extraordinary events—such as premonitions, encounters with aliens, etc.—and reenactments of those events. A cigar-smoking Corbin Bernsen hosted the series and provided the overblown introductions to the segments.

EXTREME ABC

29 JANUARY 1995–6 APRIL 1995 Hour adventure series set in the Colorado Rockies, and filmed on location. The central characters were the handsome men and women of Extreme Mountain Rescue, who were likely to be found in bed with one another when they weren't on the slopes rescuing the unfortunate. James Brolin played the boss, Reese Wheeler, and was joined by Cameron Bancroft as new member Kyle Hansen (Reese had climbed with Kyle's father); Brooke Langton as Sarah Bowen; Justin Lazard as Lance Monroe; Julie Bowen as Amanda "Andie" McDermott; Tom Wright as pilot Farley Potts; Micah Dyer as Sarah's teen brother, "Bones" Bowen; Danny Masterson as Bones's snowboarding pal, Skeeter; and Elizabeth Gracen as scheming businesswoman Callie Manners.

EYE GUESS NBC

3 JANUARY 1966–26 SEPTEMBER 1969 This daytime game show tested contestants' abilities to memorize. After observing a board containing the answers to eight upcoming questions for eight seconds, the contestants had to choose the location of the correct answer when the corresponding questions were asked by host Bill Cullen.

EYE ON HOLLYWOOD ABC

4 AUGUST 1983–1 SEPTEMBER 1983; 21 FEBRUARY 1984–18 JULY 1986 Like Entertainment Tonight, this series presented short features mainly about showbiz. During the summer of 1983 it was seen in prime time, and was hosted by Chuck Henry, Johnny Mountain, and Tawny Schneider. In February 1984 it returned to the air, scheduled weeknights at midnight, with cohosts Tawny Schneider and Paul Moyer. Jann Carl took over as host in 1985.

EYE ON NEW YORK CBS

25 DECEMBER 1955–4 NOVEMBER 1956; 9 JUNE 1957–1 SEPTEMBER 1957; 2 MARCH 1958–31 AUGUST 1958; 28 DECEMBER 1958–6 SEPTEMBER 1959 A wide-ranging Sunday-morning documentary series, Eye on New York examined the problems, the politics, and the cultural life of New York City. Bill Leonard hosted the half-hour show, which shared a time slot with The U.N. in Action.

EYE ON SPORTS

See CBS SPORTS SPECTACULAR

EYE TO EYE ABC

21 MARCH 1985–2 MAY 1985 Hour crime series based on the 1977 film The Late Show, about an aging private eye who teamed up with the daughter of his ex-partner after the latter's murder. With Charles Durning as Oscar Poole and Stephanie Faracy as Tracy Doyle. Six episodes were produced; the premiere was televised twice during the show's brief run.

EYE TO EYE WITH CONNIE CHUNG CBS

17 JUNE 1993–13 APRIL 1995; 25 MAY 1995–31 AUGUST 1995 Connie Chung's third CBS news or interview series (see also Face to Face with Connie Chung and Saturday Night with Connie Chung) was an hour of interviews and reported stories, anchored by Chung. The series' most noteworthy moment occurred on a January 1995 broadcast, when Chung persuaded interviewee Kathleen Gingrich, mother of newly elected speaker of the house Newt Gingrich, to whisper to Chung that her son thought First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton was a "bitch." The elder Gingrich, a stranger to the ways of broadcast journalism, thought that her remark was a private one and would not be aired. In mid-May 1995 Chung was relieved of her duties as coanchor of The CBS Evening News and as regular anchor of Eye to Eye.

EYE WITNESS NBC

30 MARCH 1953–29 JUNE 1953 A half-hour mystery anthology series, broadcast live from New York, Eye Witness presented stories about people who had witnessed crimes. Richard Carlson was the first host and was succeeded by Lee Bowman.

THE EYES HAVE IT NBC

20 NOVEMBER 1948–19 JUNE 1949 Ralph McNair hosted this half-hour game show on which contestants sought to identify photographs.

EYES ON THE PRIZE PBS
21 JANUARY 1987–25 FEBRUARY 1987
EYES ON THE PRIZE II PBS
15 JANUARY 1990–5 MARCH 1990 An absorbing look at America's struggle for civil rights, brilliantly put together by Henry Hampton. The series relied almost exclusively on newsreel footage and interviews with participants, and avoided analysis by academics and journalists. The first series, narrated by Julian Bond and televised in six hour-long segments, spanned the period from 1954 to 1965 and focused mainly on desegregation efforts in the South. The second series, in eight hour-long installments, moved from the turbulent years of the late 1960s up to the mid-1980s.

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY CBS
30 SEPTEMBER 1960–26 JULY 1963 Charles Kuralt hosted this Friday-night public affairs program on which the most significant news story (or stories) was reviewed. The show's title was shortened to Eyewitness in its last season.

THE EZIO PINZA SHOW (THE RCA VICTOR SHOW STARRING EZIO PINZA) NBC
23 NOVEMBER 1951–13 JUNE 1952 Ezio Pinza, the Italian-American opera singer who starred in South Pacific on Broadway, made his TV debut in September 1951 as host of All-Star Revue. The reaction was so favorable that he was given his own variety series later that fall. The half-hour show was seen weekly until February, when it began alternating bi-weekly with The Dennis Day Show. In the fall of 1953, Pinza returned to star in an ethnic sitcom: see Bonino.

THE F.B.I. ABC
19 SEPTEMBER 1965–8 SEPTEMBER 1974 ABC's longest-running crime show was produced with the cooperation of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It starred Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., as Inspector Lewis Erskine, a man of impeccable integrity and little humor; Philip Abbott as Agent Arthur Ward; Stephen Brooks (1965–1967) as Agent Jim Rhodes, boyfriend of Erskine's daughter; Lynn Loring (1965–1966) as Barbara Erskine, Lew's daughter; William Reynolds (1967–1974) as Agent Tom Colby; and Shelly Novack (1973–1974) as Agent Chris Daniels. At the conclusion of some episodes, Zimbalist appeared to broadcast the photograph and description of certain real-life fugitives sought by the FBI. An attempt was made in 1981 to update the series: see Today's F.B.I.

FBI: THE UNTOLD STORIES ABC
26 SEPTEMBER 1991–26 JUNE 1993 Pernell Roberts hosted this reality-based series on which exploits of FBI agents were re-enacted.

F.D.R. ABC
8 JANUARY 1965–10 SEPTEMBER 1965 A series of twenty-seven half-hour documentaries on the life of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Arthur Kennedy served as host and narrator; Charlton Heston read excerpts from Roosevelt's writings. Robert D. Graff and Ben Feiner, Jr., produced the series.

FM NBC
17 AUGUST 1989–6 SEPTEMBER 1989; 28 MARCH 1990–9 JUNE 1990 A Washington, D. C., public radio station was the setting for this sitcom. With Robert Hays as Ted Costas, the program director of WGEO-FM; Patricia Richardson as Ted's ex-wife, Lee-Ann Plunkett, a reporter; Lynne Thigpen as Naomi; DeLane Matthews as Gretchen Schreck, a writer; Leo Geter as Jay Edgar, the station's all-purpose production staffer who shared an apartment with Gretchen; Nicole Huntington as Nicole, Ted and Lee-Ann's fifteen-year-old daughter; Fred Applegate as conservative on-the-air personality Harrison Green, who cohosted the Toe to Toe program with liberal Lee-Ann; James Avery as Quentin Lamoreaux, host of the classical music show; John Kassir as Don Topsuni, host of the Capital Punishment comedy show; and Rainbow Harvest as Daryl, the computer technician. Richardson, Matthews, and Geter had all costarred in the short-lived 1988 sitcom Eisenhower & Lutz.

FTV SYNDICATED

1985 The cable network MTV was the target of this syndicated series, which presented parodies of popular music videos. It was hosted by Don Felder, formerly of the Eagles. Other regulars included Khandi Alexander, John Paragon, Stephen Bishop, Pat Matterson, Mark McCollum, and Vic Dunlop.

F TROOP ABC

14 September 1965–31 August 1967 A farcical western that featured a crew of bumbling cavalrymen and a complement of inept Indians. With Ken Berry as Captain Wilton Parmenter, assigned to a command at Fort Courage as a promotion following his unintentional instigation of a Union victory during the Civil War; Forrest Tucker as scheming Sergeant Morgan O'Rourke (the Sergeant Bilko of his day); Larry Storch as Corporal Randolph Agarn, O'Rourke's main henchman; Melody Patterson (who was only sixteen when the series began) as Wrangler Jane, the young woman who ran the post store; Edward Everett Horton as Roaring Chicken, medicine man of the Hekawi tribe; and Frank DeKova as Wild Eagle, Hekawi chief. Produced by Hy Averback.

F.Y.I. CBS

3 January 1960–25 September 1960 This series of half-hour documentaries on various subjects was shown Sunday mornings; F.Y.I. was an acronym for "For Your Information."

FABIAN OF SCOTLAND YARD SYNDICATED

1955 Half-hour crime show starring Bruce Seton as Inspector Fabian. The series was also known as Patrol Car.

THE FABULOUS FRAUD

See COLONEL HUMPHREY FLACK

THE FABULOUS FUNNIES NBC

9 September 1978–1 September 1979 On this Saturday-morning children's show, serious topics such as safety and health care were dealt with by characters from the newspaper comic strips such as Alley Oop, Broom Hilda, The Katzenjammer Kids, Nancy and Sluggo, and Shoe. The executive producers of the half-hour series were Norm Prescott and Lou Scheimer.

THE FACE IS FAMILIAR CBS

7 May 1966–3 September 1966 This Saturday-night game show involved two teams, each consisting of a celebrity and a contestant. The object of the game was to identify the photograph of a famous person; the photo had been cut up into large pieces, scrambled, and covered. By answering questions correctly, contestants were shown the pieces, one by one, and given the chance to identify the subject. The show was hosted by Jack Whitaker, a former weather forecaster for WCAU-TV in Philadelphia, later a CBS network sportscaster.

FACE THE FACTS CBS

13 March 1961–29 September 1961 Red Rowe hosted this daytime game show on which contestants tried to predict the outcome of previously filmed dramatizations of criminal trials.

FACE THE MUSIC CBS

3 May 1948–10 December 1948 This fifteen-minute musical show was usually seen three nights a week. Featured were singers Johnny Desmond and Shaye Cogan (who was later replaced by Sandra Deel) and the Tony Mottola Trio. Ace Ochs produced the series and Worthington "Tony" Miner directed it.

FACE THE MUSIC SYNDICATED

1980 Half-hour game show hosted by Ron Ely (formerly the star of the TV series Tarzan) on which three contestants tried to identify song titles and associate them with photographs of celebrities.

FACE THE NATION CBS

7 NOVEMBER 1954–20 APRIL 1961; 15 SEPTEMBER 1963– Face the Nation is the CBS counterpart of NBC's Meet the Press: Newsmakers are interviewed by a panel. CBS correspondent George Herman moderated the program from 1969 until September 1983, when correspondent Lesley Stahl succeeded him. At that time the composition of the panels was expanded to include experts as well as journalists. Bob Schieffer took over as moderator in May 1991. The program usually originates from Washington but has been produced at other locations; Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, for example, was interviewed in Moscow in May 1957. Senator Joseph McCarthy was the guest on the 1954 premiere. The series was produced for many years by Mary O. Yates.

FACE TO FACE WITH CONNIE CHUNG CBS

23 JULY 1990–10 SEPTEMBER 1990 Connie Chung's previous newsmagazine effort, Saturday Night with Connie Chung, had struggled in its weekend time slot, but two special Monday telecasts earned respectable ratings and convinced CBS to move the series. Face to Face focused less on news stories and more on celebrity interviews.

Shortly after her new series' premiere, Chung surprised her bosses by asking for time off so that she and her husband (Maury Povich of A Current Affair) could try to have a child. The series was not scheduled regularly after 1990.

In 1993 Chung returned with a similar series: see Eye to Eye with Connie Chung.

FACES OF JAPAN PBS

1986; 1987 A look at modern Japanese life and culture, hosted by Dick Cavett.

THE FACTS OF LIFE NBC

24 AUGUST 1979–14 SEPTEMBER 1979; 14 MARCH 1980–10 SEPTEMBER 1988 This durable sitcom, spun off from Diff'rent Strokes, went through several changes of format during its nine seasons; only three regulars stayed with the series for its entire run. Originally, it starred Charlotte Rae as Mrs. Edna Garrett, who left the Drummonds' employ on Diff'rent Strokes to become a housemother at the Eastland School, a prestigious girls' boarding academy near Peekskill, New York. The original cast also featured John Lawlor (1979–1980) as Steven Bradley, the headmaster; Jenny O'Hara (1979) as Miss Mahoney; Lisa Whelchel as wealthy, self-infatuated Blair Warner; Mindy Cohn as chubby Natalie Green; Kim Fields as Dorothy "Tootie" Ramsey, the black kid; Felice Schachter (1979–1980) as Nancy Olson; Julie Piekarski (1979–1980) as Sue Ann Weaver; Julie Anne Haddock (1979–1980) as Cindy Webster; and Molly Ringwald (1979–1980) as Molly Parker. In the fall of 1980, however, the cast was trimmed to include Rae and just four girls, Whelchel, Cohn, and Fields, and a newcomer: Nancy McKeon as Jo Polniazek, a streetwise kid attending Eastland on a scholarship (the new character was suggested by NBC chief Fred Silverman after he had seen the film Little Darlings). From 1981 to 1984 comedienne Geri Jewell was occasionally seen as Blair's cousin, Jeri (Jewell, who had cerebral palsy, was one of the few disabled persons ever to have a regular role on a series).

At the end of the 1982–1983 season Blair and Jo graduated from Eastland. That fall Mrs. Garrett left the school and opened Edna's Edibles, a gourmet food shop in Peekskill; Blair and Jo, now enrolled at nearby Langley College, lived above the store and worked there part-time, as did Tootie and Natalie. Pam Segall was featured during the 1983–1984 season as Kelly Alfonato, a local kid. In the fall of 1985 Edna's Edibles burned to the ground, and Mrs. Garrett opened a new store, a novelty shop called Over Our Heads; again, all four girls worked there. Added to the cast were George Clooney (1985–1986) as handyman George Burnett and Mackenzie Astin (1985–1988) as delivery boy Andy Moffett. In the fall of 1986 (by this time, The Facts of Life was NBC's oldest prime-time series) Mrs. Garrett remarried and moved to Africa with her new husband. Cloris Leachman came aboard as her sister, Beverly Ann Stickle, who took over the store. By the spring of 1987 all four girls were ready to leave the nest: Tootie pursued an acting career, Jo had a job offer in California, Blair planned to go to law school (and eventually bought the Eastland School), and Natalie hoped to become a writer. Over Our Heads closed in the fall of 1987. Joining the cast for the series' final season were Sherrie Krenn as Pippa McKenna, an Australian exchange student; Paul Provenza as Casey Clark; Robert Romanus as Natalie's boyfriend, "Snake" Robinson (Natalie was the first of the girls to have sex); Todd Hollowell as Tootie's fiancé, Jeff Williams; and Scott Bryce as musician Rick Bonner, who married Jo.

FAERIE TALE THEATER SHOWTIME

1982–1987 An engaging hour series of adaptations of classic children's fairy tales. Actress Shelley Duvall served as executive producer, host, and occasional star; she succeeded in attracting some of the industry's top stars and directors, even though her budget was limited. Only twenty-seven programs were made. Among them were "The Tale of the Frog Prince," with Robin Williams and Teri Garr; "Pinocchio," with Pee-wee Herman; and "Rip Van Winkle," with Harry Dean Stanton (directed by Francis Ford Coppola). Duvall went on to develop a second series for Showtime: see Tall Tales.

FAIR EXCHANGE CBS

21 SEPTEMBER 1962–28 DECEMBER 1962; 28 MARCH 1963–19 SEPTEMBER 1963 Situation comedy about an American family and a British family who exchanged their teenage daughters for a year. The Yankee family included Eddie Foy, Jr., as Eddie Walker, owner of a New York ticket agency; Audrey Christie as his wife, Dorothy; Lynn Loring as their daughter, Patty; and Flip Mark as their son, Larry. The British family included Victor Maddern as Thomas Finch, owner of a sporting goods store; Diane Chesney as his wife, Sybil; Judy Carne as their daughter, Heather; and Dennis Waterman as their son, Neville. Also featured was Maurice Dallimore as Tom's friend, Willie Shorthouse. Filmed in England and in Hollywood, Fair Exchange was one of TV's first hour-long sitcoms. That format proved unwieldy, and the show was canceled in December 1962. Three months later it returned in a half-hour format.

FAIRMEADOWS, U.S.A. NBC

4 NOVEMBER 1951–27 APRIL 1952 Fairmeadows, U.S.A. began as a Sunday-afternoon serial about life in a small town. It featured Howard St. John as John Olcott, a businessman who suffered a setback and returned to his hometown, where he opened a general store; Ruth Matteson as his wife, Alice Olcott; Hazel Dawn, Jr., as their older daughter, Mary; Tom Taylor as their son, Jim; Mimi Strongin as their younger daughter, Evvie. In the fall of 1952 the series reappeared with several changes: a new title (The House in the Garden), a new time slot (weekday afternoons, as the third quarter hour of The Kate Smith Hour), and several new faces, including Lauren Gilbert as John Olcott; Monica Lovett as the older daughter; James Vickery as the older daughter's boyfriend (Ruth Matteson and Tom Taylor were retained). Agnes Ridgeway wrote the series, and Alan Neuman directed it.

FAITH BALDWIN ROMANCE THEATER ABC

20 JANUARY 1951–20 OCTOBER 1951 This dramatic anthology series, hosted by Faith Baldwin, was shown on Saturday afternoons, usually on a biweekly basis.

FAITH FOR TODAY ABC/SYNDICATED

1950–1955 (ABC); 1955–1981 (SYNDICATED); 1984– (SYNDICATED) This long-running religious series, produced in cooperation with the Seventh Day Adventist Church, was hosted for many years by the Reverend William A. Fagal, often assisted by his wife, Virginia. The half-hour program was centered around a dramatic vignette, usually followed by a short "sermonette" from Reverend Fagal. In the show's early years, members of Fagal's home church played the dramatic parts; later on, professional actors took over the roles. In 1971, the show's format shifted to a filmed anthology series set at a hospital. Regulars included Robert Clarke as Dr. Jeff Mason; Gordon DeVol as Dr. Wes Gallagher; Laura Wallace as Nurse Penny Peters; and Sarina Grant as Nurse Kitty Williams. Reverend Fagal occasionally appeared as the hospital chaplain. In most areas the show was then known as Westbrook Hospital, although in some markets it retained the Faith for Today title.

Production of the anthology series ceased in 1981; Reverend Fagal also died that year. In 1984 a new talk-show format was introduced. The new series, titled Christian Lifestyle Magazine, was hosted by Dan Matthews; Lena Nozizwe joined him as cohost from 1987 to 1991. In that year the series focused on health, and shortened its title to Lifestyle Magazine.

THE FALCON

FALCON CREST CBS

4 DECEMBER 1981–17 MAY 1990 The wine country of northern California was the locale for this prime-time hour serial, created by Earl (The Waltons) Hamner. Scheduled at 10:00 p.m. on Fridays for its first three seasons, the show benefited from an exceptionally strong lead-in, Dallas. The basic storyline of Falcon Crest centered on the efforts of strong-willed Angela Channing to gain complete and exclusive control of the Falcon Crest vineyard and winery. The cast included: Jane Wyman as Angela Channing, the ruthless, calculating co-owner; Robert Foxworth (1981–1987) as her nephew, Chase Gioberti, who came to claim his share of Falcon Crest after the mysterious death of his father, Angela's brother; Abby Dalton (1981–1986) as Julia Cumson, Angela's divorced daughter; Lorenzo Lamas as Julia's son, Lance Cumson, Angela's frequent co-conspirator; Margaret Ladd as Emma Channing, Angela's unbalanced daughter; Susan Sullivan (1981–1989) as Chase's wife, writer Maggie Gioberti; Jamie Rose (1981–1983) as their daughter, Victoria; Billy R. Moses (1981–1986) as their son, Cole; Chao-Li Chi as Chao-Li Chi, the Channings' butler; Nick Ramus (1981–1982) as Gus Nunoz, a vineyard worker; Mario Marcelino (1981–1982) as Gus's son, Mario; Stephen Elliott (1981–1982) as Angela's ex-husband, San Francisco publisher Douglas Channing; Ana Alicia (1982–1988) as the scheming Melissa Agretti, who married Lance Cumson; Carlos Romero (1982–1983) as Melissa's father, rival vintner Carlo Agretti, who was murdered by Julia; David Selby (1982–1990) as Richard Channing, Douglas's illegitimate son (and his successor as publisher of the San Francisco Globe), who became Angela's chief rival and who married Maggie Gioberti after Chase's death; Shannon Tweed (1982–1983) as Richard's assistant, Diana Hunter; Sarah Douglas (1983–1985) as Richard's next assistant, Pamela Lynch; Mel Ferrer (1982–1984) as lawyer Philip Erikson, who married Angela; Roy Thinnes (1982–1983) as Nick Hogan, who married Victoria Gioberti; Cliff Robertson (1983–1984) as Chase's cousin, neurosurgeon Michael Ranson; Mary Kate McGeehan (1982–1984) as Linda, who married Cole Gioberti; and Laura Johnson (1983–1986) as Maggie's sister, Terry Hartford. Lana Turner also appeared occasionally as Chase's mother, Jacqueline Perrault, who was killed at the end of the 1982–1983 season as her son tried to wrestle a gun from Julia Cumson. After Turner's departure, Falcon Crest continued the practice of signing up major stars who rarely appeared on television.

The series' popularity peaked during the 1983–1984 season, when it finished seventh in the Nielsens. The biggest addition to the cast during the 1984–1985 season was Gina Lollobrigida, who played Francesca Gioberti, Angela's half-sister, for a season. Also added were Kate Vernon (1984–1985) as Lorraine Prescott; Parker Stevenson (1984–1985) as Joel McCarthy; J. Paul Freeman (1984–1985) as neo-Nazi Gustav Riebmann; Simon MacCorkindale (1984–1986) as Greg Reardon; and Anne Archer (spring 1985) as Cassandra Wilder. Another half dozen major characters were added for the 1985–1986 season: former rocker Apollonia Kotero (1985–1986) as Apollonia (Kotero ordered seventy-two items of lingerie for the show); Cesar Romero (1985–1987) as Peter Stavros, who married Angela Channing; Morgan Fairchild (1985–1986) as Jordan Roberts; Ken Olin (1985–1986) as Father Christopher;

Daniel Greene (1985–1986) as Wayne Cooley; and Barbara Howard (1985–1986) as Robin Agretti. The season climaxed when an earthquake struck the area.

Joining the cast for the 1986–1987 season were Kim Novak (1986–1987) as mysterious Kit Marlowe; Jill Jacobson (fall 1986) as Erin Jones; Jane Badler (1986–1987) as Erin's sister, Meredith Braxton; Jeff Kober (1986–1987) as Guy Stafford; Robin Greer (1986–1987) as Dina Wells; Dana Sparks (1986–1988) as Chase and Maggie's daughter, Vickie (Jamie Rose had originally played the role in the show's early years); John Callahan (1986–1988) as Eric Stavros, who married Vickie; Laurel Schaefer (1986–1988) as Mrs. Whitaker; and Brett Cullen (1986–1988) as drifter Dan Fixx.

By the 1987–1988 season the stories began to drift away from the vineyard and toward crime, as the mysterious Thirteen organization went after Richard Channing. The new emphasis did little good, as the series slipped from 23rd place in 1986–1987 to 34th in 1987–1988. New cast members included John David Carson (1987–1988) as Jay Spence; Mariska Hargitay (1987–1989) as Carly Fixx, sister of Dan; Mary Ann Mobley (1987–1988) as psychiatrist Beth Everdene; Cindy Morgan (1987–1988) as Gabrielle Short; and Maggie Cooper as Allison.

Joining for the 1988–1989 season were Kristian Alfonso (former star of the daytime soap Days of Our Lives) as Pilar Ortega, who married Lance Cumson (Ana Alicia, who played Lance's first wife, Melissa, until 1988, made a guest appearance on the series' 200th episode that season, as a Melissa lookalike); David Beecroft (1988–1989) as Nick Agretti; Brandon Douglas (1988–1989) as Ben Agretti; Dan Ferro (1988–1989) as Tommy Ortega; Castulo Guerra (1988–1989) as Cesar Ortega; Danny Nucci (1988–1989) as Gabriel Ortega; and Allan Royal (1988–1989) as R. D. Young, Emma's boyfriend.

After a 47th place finish in 1988–1989, Falcon Crest limped along for one final season, dropping to 63rd place in 1989–1990; the show was unceremoniously moved to a new time slot on Thursdays for its last few episodes. Jane Wyman made few appearances during the final season, and the final group of new regulars included Gregory Harrison as Michael Sharpe; David Sheinkopf as his son, Danny; Wendy Phillips as Lauren; Andrea Thompson as Genele; Mark Lindsay Chapman as Charley, Emma's new boyfriend; and Frank Runyeon as Jovan. The series' finale was a happy one, as Richard, who now owned the vineyard, married Lauren, and agreed to return Falcon Crest to Angela; Angela, in turn, agreed to give control of the vineyard to Lance, on condition that he remain there as the vineyard manager.

Exteriors for the series were filmed at the Spring Mountain Vineyards in St. Helena, California. Life imitated art in 1982, as Spring Mountain marketed two wines bearing the "Falcon Crest" label.

THE FALL GUY ABC

4 NOVEMBER 1981–2 MAY 1986 Lee Majors starred in this hour adventure series as Colt Seavers, a Hollywood stuntman who supplemented his income by working as a modern-day bounty hunter, tracking down persons who jumped bail. Also featured were Douglas Barr as Colt's cousin, Howie Munson, an aspiring stuntman; Heather Thomas as stuntwoman Jody Banks; Jo Ann Pflug (1981–1982) as "Big Jack," Markie Post (1982–1985) as Terri Michaels, and Nedra Volz as Pearl Sperling, the bail bondswomen who hired Colt and Company. Glen A. Larson created the series. Lee Majors also sang the show's theme, "Unknown Stuntman." The series performed well in a Wednesday night time slot during its first three seasons. In its fourth year (1984–1985) it was hurt by an unlikely competitor on NBC, Highway to Heaven. A move to a Thursday slot in the fall of 1985 was of no avail. A total of 111 episodes were produced.

FAME NBC/SYNDICATED

7 JANUARY 1982–4 AUGUST 1983 (NBC); 1983–1987 (SYNDICATED) This hour dramatic series was based on the hit movie about life at New York's High School of Performing Arts, the city's specialized school for hopeful actors, dancers, and musicians. Four members of the movie cast repeated their roles for television: Debbie Allen as dance teacher Lydia Grant; Albert Hague as venerable music instructor

Benjamin Shorofsky (in real life, Hague was better known as a composer and acting teacher); Lee Curreri as musically gifted student Bruno Martelli; and Gene Anthony Ray as talented dancing student Leroy Johnson. Other regulars included Erica Gimpel as singer-dancer Coco Hernandez; Carol Mayo Jenkins as no-nonsense English teacher Elizabeth Sherwood; P.R. Paul (1982) as Montgomery, a student; Lori Singer as cellist Julie Miller; Valerie Landsburg as acting student Doris Schwartz; Carlo Imperato as embryonic comic Danny Amatullo; Michael Thoma (1982) as Mr. Crandall, the drama teacher (Thoma died in September of 1982); Morgan Stevens as David Reardon, the new drama teacher; and Carmine Caridi (1982–1983) as Bruno's father, cabbie Angelo Martelli. Each episode of Fame introduced one or two original musical numbers (some of them written by Lee Curreri) and elaborate dance sequences (choreographed by Debbie Allen); two phonograph records of the material were released, together with a live recording of "The Kids from Fame," staged in England, where the show became enormously popular. Unfortunately, the series was not a ratings success in the United States, although it was almost universally praised by the critics. Following its network cancellation, Fame's coproducers, MGM and United Artists, announced plans to continue production of the series for domestic (and foreign) syndication. The new episodes featured most of the members of the network cast (except for Lori Singer), as well as three new regulars: Ken Swofford (1983–1985) as vice-principal Quentin Morloch; Cynthia Gibb as Holly Laird; and Billy Hufsey as Christopher Donlon. Later arrivals included Janet Jackson (1984–1986) as Cleo Hewitt; Jesse Borrego (1984–1987) as Jesse Velasquez; Nia Peeples (1984–1987) as Nicole Chapman; Dick Miller (1985–1987) as Mr. Mackie; Loretta Chandler (1985–1987) as Dusty Chandler; Graham Jarvis (1985–1987) as the new principal, Mr. Dyrenforth; Carrie Hamilton (daughter of Carol Burnett) (1986–1987) as Reggie Higgins; Page Hannah (1986–1987) as Kate Riley; Elisa Heinsohn (1986–1987) as Jillian Beckett; Robert Romanus (1986–1987) as Miltie Horowitz; and Eric Pierpoint (1986–1987) as Mr. Seeger, the new drama teacher. One of the many young performers who auditioned usuccessfully for Fame was Madonna.

FAME, FORTUNE & ROMANCE ABC

16 JUNE 1986–27 JUNE 1986; 8 SEPTEMBER 1986–29 MAY 1987 Another of the several celebrity-worshipping shows hosted by Robin Leach, this one was shown in a late-morning time slot. According to Leach, it emphasized love and romance, rather than material acquisitions. See also Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous; Runaway with the Rich and Famous.

FAMILY ABC

9 MARCH 1976–13 APRIL 1976; 28 SEPTEMBER 1976–27 APRIL 1979; 24 DECEMBER 1979–25 JUNE 1980 The story of a family of five living in Pasadena, Family first appeared as a six-part miniseries in the spring of 1976; it proved popular enough to merit a slot in ABC's fall lineup. Generally well written, and always well acted, the show managed to avoid much of the mawkishness characteristic of other family dramas of the 1970s. Family featured Sada Thompson as strong but sensitive Kate Lawrence, the mother of three; James Broderick as her husband, Douglas Lawrence, a lawyer; Elaine Heilveil (spring 1976) and Meredith Baxter Birney (fall 1976–1980) as their spoiled daughter, Nancy Maitland, who was divorced in 1976 and lived in the family's guest house with her young son Timmy while attending law school; Gary Frank as their son Willie, a headstrong youth who quit school and hoped to become a writer; Kristy McNichol as their younger daughter, Buddy (Letitia), an honest and open young teenager adjusting to adolescence; Michael David Shackelford as Timmy, Nancy's toddler. Occasionally featured was John Rubinstein as Nancy's former husband, Jeff Maitland; Rubinstein also composed the show's theme music. The series was created by Jay Presson Allen, and its executive producers were Mike Nichols, Aaron Spelling, and Leonard Goldberg. In the fall of 1978 Quinn Cummings joined the cast as Andrea (Annie) Cooper, an orphan adopted by the Lawrences; Nancy moved into her own apartment, and Willie took over the guest house.

FAMILY AFFAIR CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1966–9 SEPTEMBER 1971 This saccharine sitcom was salvaged by the cuteness of its two youthful costars. It starred Brian Keith as Manhattan bachelor Bill Davis, an industrial designer who suddenly finds himself guardian of his nephew and his two nieces (the three children had been raised in separate homes after their parents' deaths); Sebastian Cabot as Davis's manservant, Giles French, a formal Briton with neither the interest nor the inclination to look after small children; Cathy Garver as Bill's teenage niece, Cissy; Johnny Whitaker as his nephew, Jody; and Anissa Jones as his niece, Buffy, Jody's twin sister. Also featured were John Williams as Mr. French's brother, Nigel, who filled in for Giles in the latter's absence; Nancy Walker (1970–1971) as Emily Turner, the cleaning lady; Gregg Fedderson as Gregg Bartlett, Cissy's occasional boyfriend. Young Fedderson was the son of Don Fedderson, executive producer of the series. Following the cancellation of the show in 1971 (after 138 episodes), Johnny Whitaker continued to be seen regularly on TV; he was a regular on Sigmund and the Sea Monsters and was featured in several Walt Disney productions. His costar, Anissa Jones, appeared rarely on television; in 1976, she was found dead (from drug-related causes) in her California home.

FAMILY ALBUM CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1993–12 NOVEMBER 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a family from California who relocated to Philadelphia to be near their aging parents. With Peter Scolari as Jonathan Lerner, a physician; Pamela Reed as his wife, Denise Lerner; Phillip Van Dyke as teen son Max; Ashlee Levitch as teen daughter Nicki; Chris Miranda as preteen son Jeffrey; Doris Belack as Jonathan's mother, Lillian; Alan North as Jonathan's father, Sid Lerner, also a physician (Jonathan joined his practice); Rhoda Gemignani as Denise's mother, Ruby DeMattis, a beautician; Nancy Cassaro as Denise's sister, Sheila; and Giovanni Ribisi as Sheila's son, Elvis.

FAMILY DOG CBS

23 JUNE 1993–28 JULY 1993 One of the biggest disappointments of the season, this prime time animated series looked at family life from the dog's point of view. Unfortunately, it wasn't a very amusing perspective. No one in the family seemed to care for the poor dog, who didn't even have a name. The series's pedigree was impressive: Steven Spielberg and Tim Burton were its executive producers. The character first appeared in an episode of Spielberg's 1985–1987 series, Amazing Stories. Episodes were ready in early 1991, but Spielberg and Burton were not satisfied with them, and the show was shelved for two more years. Voices were supplied by Martin Mull as Skip Binford, Molly Cheek as his wife, Bev Binford, Zak Huxtable Epstein as son Billy, and Cassie Cole as daughter Buffy.

THE FAMILY FEUD ABC/SYNDICATED/CBS

12 JULY 1976–14 JUNE 1985 (ABC); 1977–1983 (SYNDICATED); 1988– (SYNDICATED); 4 JULY 1988–24 MAY 1991 (CBS); 29 JUNE 1992–10 SEPTEMBER 1993 (CBS) This popular game show from Mark Goodson–Bill Todman Productions pitted two families against each other in an effort to match responses to questions previously given to groups of 100 persons. Each family unit consisted of five persons. Richard Dawson hosted the ABC daytime version and the first syndicated version. Ray Combs was the new host when the show returned, in both network daytime and syndicated formats, in 1988. The 1992–1993 network daytime version was an hour in length, and was titled The New Family Feud Challenge. The syndicated version expanded to an hour in 1994, when Richard Dawson resumed the hosting chores.

Some special shows have been telecast pitting casts of TV shows, or members of sports teams, against one another.

A FAMILY FOR JOE NBC

24 MARCH 1990–5 MAY 1990; 5 AUGUST 1990–19 AUGUST 1990 This half-hour sitcom starred Robert Mitchum in an unlikely role, as Joe Whitaker, a homeless oldster who was persuaded to act as a surrogate grandfather for four orphaned children in order to prevent the children from being split up; suddenly, Joe found himself off the streets and into the kids' house, coping with a new life of domesticity. Appearing as the four kids were David Mascher as Nick Bankston; Juliette Lewis as Holly; Ben Savage (younger brother of Wonder Years's Fred Savage) as Chris; and Jessica Player as Mary. Also featured were Barry Gordon as neighbor Roger, and Leon the dog. The series pilot, a two-hour telefilm, was broadcast 25 February 1990.

THE FAMILY GAME ABC

19 JUNE 1967–15 DECEMBER 1967 Bob Barker hosted this daytime game show on which three families competed; each family consisted of two parents and two children. The children were asked questions before the telecast; the parents then tried to determine which answers had been given by their respective children.

THE FAMILY GENIUS DUMONT

9 SEPTEMBER 1949–30 SEPTEMBER 1949 Short-lived sitcom about a child prodigy. With Jack Diamond as Tommy Howard, Phyllis Lowe as his mother, and Arthur Edwards as his father. James L. Caddigan and Elwood Hoffman produced the series.

THE FAMILY HOLVAK NBC

7 SEPTEMBER 1975–27 OCTOBER 1975 Glenn Ford's second TV series proved even less successful than his first (Cade's County). Presumably inspired by The Waltons, it was based on Jack Ferris's novel, Ramey, and told the story of a preacher and his family living in the South during the 1930s. Ford starred as the Reverend Tom Holvak; Julie Harris as his wife, Elizabeth; Lance Kerwin as their son, Ramey; Elizabeth Cheshire as their daughter, Julie Mae; Ted Gehring as storekeeper Chester Purdle; Cynthia Hayward as Ida, his helper; and William McKinney as police deputy Jim Shanks. Executive producers: Roland Kibbee and Dean Hargrove. A few episodes were broadcast over CBS during the summer of 1977.

FAMILY MAN ABC

18 MARCH 1988–29 APRIL 1988 Half-hour sitcom focusing on the domestic life of a comedy writer. With Richard Libertini as Shelley Tobin; Mimi Kennedy as his wife, Andrea; Alison Sweeney as Andrea's daughter, Rosie; Whitby Hertford as Andrea's son, Josh; and Keeley Mari Gallagher as Shelley and Andrea's daughter, Sarah. The seven-episode series was produced by Universal Television, and was originally intended for the Fox network, which never picked it up.

THE FAMILY MAN CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1990–1 DECEMBER 1990; 10 JUNE 1991–17 JULY 1991 Half-hour sitcom starring Gregory Harrison as recently widowed Jack Taylor, a firefighter trying to raise his four kids. With Al Molinaro as Joe Alberghetti, Jack's father-in-law, who moved in to help out; John Buchanan as eldest son Jeff, sixteen; Scott Weinger as number two son Steve, fourteen; Matthew Brooks as number three son Brian, eleven; Ashleigh Blair Sterling as adorable daughter Allison, five; and Josh Byrn as Allison's best friend, Patrick Kozak.

FAMILY MATTERS ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1989– Created by William Bickley and Michael Warren, this half-hour sitcom about a contemporary black family was spun off from Perfect Strangers. With JoMarie Payton-France as Harriette Winslow, who had been the elevator operator at the newspaper on Perfect Strangers; Reginald VelJohnson as her husband, Carl Winslow, a Chicago cop; Rosetta LeNoire as Estelle Winslow, Carl's live-in mom;

Darius McCrary as Carl and Harriette's fifteen-year-old, Eddie; Kellie Shanygne Williams as their thirteen-year-old, Laura; Jaimee Foxworth (1989–1993) as their nine-year-old, Judy; Telma Hopkins (1989–1993) as Harriette's widowed sister, Rachel; Joseph and Julius Wright (1989–1990) and Bryton McClure (1990– ) as Rachel's young son, Richie; Randy Josselyn as Eddie's pal Rodney; and Shawn Harrison as Eddie's pal, Waldo Faldo. Jaleel White first appeared in the ninth episode of the first season as the ultranerdy Steve Urkel, a neighborhood lad whose crush on Laura was unrequited. The character became extremely popular, and by the show's third season most of the stories centered on Urkel. Though superbly played by White (whose talents enabled him to portray other characters from time to time, such as the ultra-suave Stefan Urquelle), the character was one of the most cartoonish, and least truly human, figures ever concocted for a sitcom. Other changes affected the series as well. Much like Chuck, the older brother on Happy Days, the character of younger daughter Judy was written out of the show after four seasons. Telma Hopkins left the series during the 1992–1993 season to star in another sitcom, Getting By. Her character's young son, however, remained in the Winslow household. Hopkins returned for a few episodes during the 1994–1995 season.

FAMILY SECRETS NBC

22 MARCH 1993–11 JUNE 1993 Bob Eubanks hosted this short-lived daytime game show on which two families competed; children were asked questions about their parents, and vice versa. Each family was seated in chairs on a mock front porch. The family group with the higher point total then played for the chance to win a vacation.

FAMILY TIES NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1982–17 SEPTEMBER 1989 One of the most popular family sitcoms of the 1980s, Family Ties was created by Gary David Goldberg. It was originally intended to focus on the generation gap between the parents and their children: mom and dad were caring liberals who traced their ideology to the turbulent sixties (the original opening title sequence, with its flashback photos, illustrated the point), while the kids were either conservative or apathetically materialistic. The dichotomy was downplayed, however, after network research indicated that viewers were more interested in the children. The result was that one of the kids, Michael J. Fox, became a superstar; ironically, NBC executives had originally balked at Goldberg's suggestion of Fox for the role.

The series was set in Columbus, Ohio. Appearing as the Keaton family were: Meredith Baxter Birney as Elyse, an architect; Michael Gross as Steven, manager of WKS-TV, the local public TV station; Michael J. Fox as eldest child Alex, a whiz kid who worshipped Richard Nixon, William Buckley, and The Wall Street Journal; Justine Bateman as elder daughter Mallory, an unscholastic teen who loved shopping; and Tina Yothers as younger daughter Jennifer. On 31 January 1985 a fourth Keaton kid appeared, as Elyse gave birth to baby Andrew, who grew up to worship his older brother (in real life, Meredith Baxter Birney had had twins the previous fall); Tyler and Grant Merriman appeared as baby Andrew, but Brian Bonsall took over the role in the fall of 1986 (this meant that Andy grew from baby to preschooler virtually over the summer). Creator Goldberg revealed in 1987 that his inspiration for the Alex character came from the stepson of a newspaper editor friend, while that of Jennifer came from his own daughter, Shana. Marc Price was featured as neighbor Irwin "Skippy" Handleman, a hopeless nerd who had a crush on Mallory.

In the fall of 1984 Alex left Harding High for Leland College, where a year later he met his first regular girlfriend, Ellen Reed (played by Tracy Pollan). Ellen left for Paris at the beginning of the 1986–1987 season; later that season Alex met Lauren Miller (played by Courteney Cox). In real life, however, Michael J. Fox married Tracy Pollan. Meanwhile, Mallory began dating junk sculptor Nick Moore (played by Scott Valentine), much to the chagrin of her parents and her older brother.

Though most episodes were played for laughs, Family Ties also had its share of serious programs, including a three-parter dealing with Steven's heart attack and a poignant one-man show starring Fox, on which Alex comes to grips with the death of a friend. The series was also paid an unusual tribute by PBS, which on 15 October 1988 broadcast a one-hour special about the preparation of a single episode. Family Ties enjoyed its peak popularity between 1984 and 1987, when it followed The Cosby Show on NBC's Thursday night schedule. In the fall of 1987 it was moved to Sunday nights opposite CBS's Murder, She Wrote, and ratings began to slip. The last first-run episode, in which Alex left home, was aired 14 May 1989.

THE FAMILY TREE NBC

22 JANUARY 1983–26 FEBRUARY 1983 An hour dramatic series about two divorced parents who married each other. With Anne Archer as Annie Benjamin Nichols, a realtor; Frank Converse as Kevin Nichols, owner of a building supply company; James Spader as Kevin's son, Jake; Martin Hewitt as Annie's older son, Sam; Melora Hardin as Annie's daughter, Tess; and Jonathan Hall Kovacs as Annie's younger son, Toby, who was deaf (Kovacs himself was also deaf). Carol Evan McKeand, who had produced Family, created the show.

FAMOUS FIGHTS FROM MADISON SQUARE GARDEN DUMONT

15 SEPTEMBER 1952–22 DECEMBER 1952 Highlights of famous boxing matches were telecast on this fifteen-minute filmed series.

FAMOUS JURY TRIALS DUMONT

12 OCTOBER 1949–12 MARCH 1952 Most, but not all, of the action in this dramatic series took place in the courtroom; flashbacks were also used to flesh out the stories. Jim Bender played the prosecuting attorney, and Truman Smith played the defense attorney.

THE FAMOUS TEDDY Z CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1989–15 JANUARY 1990; 12 MAY 1990–19 MAY 1990 A Hollywood talent agency was the setting for this half-hour sitcom. With Jon Cryer as young Teddy Zakalokis, who started in the mailroom at the Unlimited Talent Agency but soon became an agent after impressing a "difficult" UTA client with his no-nonsense attitude; Alex Rocco as Al Floss, UTA's most high-powered heavyweight agent; Milton Selzer as Abe Werkfinder, the top UTA executive; Jane Sibbett as Laurie Parr, another mailroom minion who taunted Teddy until he made her his assistant; Nick Segal as Marty Kane; Tom La Grua as Richie Herby, Teddy's old boss at the mailroom; and Erica Yohn as Deena, Teddy's Greek grandmother, who was bewildered by Teddy's job. The series was picked by many critics to be a big hit, but never found an audience, perhaps because most viewers were as bewildered as Teddy's grandmother about what Hollywood agents really do do. Hugh Wilson created the series.

FAN CLUB SYNDICATED

1987 Half-hour "infotainment" show for teens, hosted by Olympic gymnast Mitch Gaylord.

THE FANELLI BOYS NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1990–16 FEBRUARY 1991 Sitcom about four Italian brothers who moved back to their widowed mother's house in Brooklyn. With Joe Pantoliano as Dominic Fanelli, a hustler; Ned Eisenberg as Anthony Fanelli, a funeral director; Christopher Meloni as Frank Fanelli, a jock; Andy Hirsch as Ronnie Fanelli, a college student; Ann Guilbert as their mother, Theresa; Richard Libertini as Theresa's brother, Father Angelo Lombardi; and Vera Lockwood as Theresa's fortune-telling friend, Philamena.

FANFARE CBS

19 JUNE 1965–11 SEPTEMBER 1965 Trumpeter Al Hirt hosted this variety hour, a summer replacement for Jackie Gleason and His American Scene Magazine.

FANGFACE ABC

9 SEPTEMBER 1978–8 SEPTEMBER 1979 Saturday-morning cartoon show about the adventures of four teenagers, one of whom, Sherman Fangsworth, could turn into a werewolf (Fangface). Joe Ruby and Ken Spears were the executive producers for Filmways. See also The Plasticman Comedy/Adventure Show.

FANTASTIC FACTS CBS

9 AUGUST 1991–13 SEPTEMBER 1991 Based on the Time-Life book series "Library of Curious and Unusual Facts," this half-hour non-fiction series consisted mainly of short film clips of supposedly interesting items and events, as well as in-studio features. Merlin Olsen hosted the show.

THE FANTASTIC FOUR ABC/NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1967–15 MARCH 1970 (ABC); 9 SEPTEMBER 1978–1 SEPTEMBER 1979 (NBC) Based on the comic book, The Fantastic Four premiered in 1967 as a Hanna-Barbera Production. Each of the four characters had acquired a special power after their rocket ship encountered a radioactive field: Reed Richards could be stretched infinitely, his wife Sue Richards could become invisible, Johnny Storm ("The Human Torch") could ignite himself, and Ben Grimm ("The Thing") was extraordinarily strong. The series returned in 1978, with new producers (David H. DePatie and Friz Freleng) and a new member— Johnny Storm had been replaced by a robot named HER-B.

THE FANTASTIC JOURNEY NBC

3 FEBRUARY 1977–16 JUNE 1977 In this science fiction series, an expedition investigating the Bermuda Triangle found itself mysteriously transported to what appeared to be another world. In their quest to return to their own time, the three expedition members encountered others who, for various reasons, also wished to join them. Featured were Jared Martin as Varian, expedition leader; Carl Franklin as Dr. Fred Walters, medical expert; Ike Eisenmann as Scott Jordan, a youngster who could read minds; Katie Saylor as Liana, a mysterious woman who joined them in the first episode; and Roddy McDowall as Jonathan Willoway, a scientist who joined up in the third episode. Bruce Lansbury was the executive producer for Bruce Lansbury Productions, Ltd., in association with Columbia Pictures Television and NBC.

FANTASTIC VOYAGE ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1970 This weekend cartoon series about four people who could be miniaturized was based loosely on the 1966 film that starred Raquel Welch.

FANTASY NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1982–28 OCTOBER 1983 Peter Marshall and Leslie Uggams cohosted this hour daytime game show, on which people were rewarded with gifts, or had the chance to make their dreams come true; most of the recipients were nominated by friends or relatives. Some persons received relatively mundane gifts, such as new tools or a newly repaired automobile, while others received more elaborate surprises, such as the opportunity to go "wingwalking" on a moving airplane or a free vacation. Recipients did not have to be present in the studio audience, either; a camera crew traveled the country with roving reporters Chris Lemmon and Meredith MacRae to surprise people all over the country.

FANTASY ISLAND ABC

28 JANUARY 1978–18 AUGUST 1984 This escapist adventure hour starred Ricardo Montalban as Mr. Roarke, proprietor of Fantasy Island, a tropical resort where guests could live out their wildest dreams; Herve Villechaize (1978–1983) was featured as Roarke's diminutive assistant, Tattoo. During the 1981–1982 season, Wendy Schaal appeared as Julie, Mr. Roarke's goddaughter, and in 1983 Christopher Hewett was added as Mr. Roarke's new assistant, Lawrence, replacing Herve Villechaize. Usually, two stories were presented each week, with the action shifting back and forth from fantasy to fantasy. Production of the weekly series was begun after two fairly successful pilot films had been televised. Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg were the executive producers; 130 episodes were filmed.

FAR OUT SPACE NUTS CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1975–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 This live-action sitcom was seen on Saturday mornings. It starred Bob Denver as Junior and Chuck McCann as Barney, two space-center employees who accidentally blasted off while loading food onto a rocket. Also featured were Patty Maloney as Honk, their space pal, and Al Checco. Produced by Sid and Marty Krofft and Al Schwartz.

FARADAY AND COMPANY NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1973–13 AUGUST 1974 One segment of The NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie, Faraday and Company alternated with Banacek, The Snoop Sisters, and Tenafly. It featured Dan Dailey as Frank Faraday, a private eye who escaped to the United States after spending twenty-eight years in a Caribbean prison (he'd been framed, of course); James Naughton as Steve Faraday, Frank's new partner, the son Frank had never seen; Geraldine Brooks as Lou Carson, Frank's former secretary and Steve's mother, the woman Frank had intended to marry twenty-eight years before; and Sharon Gless as Holly Barrett, their current secretary and Steve's girlfriend. This appears to have been the first series other than a soap opera in which a parent and an illegitimate child were regular characters.

THE FARMER'S DAUGHTER ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1963–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 Sitcom based on the 1947 film about a young woman from Minnesota who becomes the housekeeper for a widowed Congressman in Washington, D.C. With Inger Stevens as Katy Holstrum; William Windom as Congressman Glen Morley; Cathleen Nesbitt as Glen's mother, Agatha Morley, herself the widow of a Congressman; Mickey Sholdar as Glen's son Steve; Rory O'Brien as Glen's son Danny; and Philip Coolidge as Glen's brother, Cooper. Occasionally featured were Walter Sande as Papa Holstrum, Alice Frost as Mama Holstrum, and Nancy DeCarl as Steve's girlfriend, Pam. During the fall of 1965 (1 November), Katy and Glen finally got married. The event was even celebrated in real-life Washington, where Perle Mesta threw a party for 300 guests (including Stevens and Windom).

FASHION MAGIC CBS

10 NOVEMBER 1950–15 JUNE 1951 Beauty and wardrobe were the topics discussed on this daytime series, which was usually broadcast twice a week. Hosted by Ilka Chase through 20 April, then by Arlene Francis.

FASHION STORY ABC

4 NOVEMBER 1948–22 FEBRUARY 1949 Host Marilyn Day presented news from the world of fashion on this Thursday-night series. Carl Reiner also appeared.

FASHIONS ON PARADE DUMONT/ABC

5 FEBRUARY 1948–24 APRIL 1949 (DUMONT); 27 APRIL 1949–29 JUNE 1949 (ABC) One of television's first fashion programs, Fashions on Parade was hosted by Adelaide Hawley. Leon Roth and Charles Caplin produced the series, which was also broadcast under the titles Television Fashions and Fashion Parade.

FAST DRAW SYNDICATED

1968 Johnny Gilbert hosted this game show played by two teams, each consisting of a celebrity and a contestant. One partner tried to guess a phrase from sketches drawn by the other partner.

FAST TIMES CBS

5 MARCH 1986–23 APRIL 1986 One of several 80s series set at a high school (see also The Best of Times, Better Days, The Bronx Zoo, and Square Pegs, to name a few),

Fast Times was based on the 1982 film Fast Times at Ridgemont High. The TV version featured Dean Cameron as Jeff Spicoli, typical Valley dude; Ray Walston as Mr. Arnold Hand, the history teacher; Patrick Dempsey as Mike Damone; Courtney Thorne-Smith as Stacy Hamilton; James Nardini as Stacy's brother, Brad Hamilton; Claudia Wells as Stacy's pal, Linda Barrett; Moon Zappa as Barbara DeVille; Wally Ward as Mark Ratner; Jason Hervey as Curtis Spicoli, Jeff's kid brother (Hervey would soon play the older brother on The Wonder Years); Kit McDonough as Ms. Leslie Mallon, the life science teacher; and Vincent Schiavelli as Mr. Hector Vargas, also a science teacher. Walston and Schiavelli had also appeared in the film.

FAT ALBERT AND THE COSBY KIDS CBS/SYNDICATED/NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1972–25 AUGUST 1984 (CBS); 1984 (SYNDICATED) 11 FEBRUARY 1989–2 SEPTEMBER 1989 (NBC) Bill Cosby hosted this Saturday cartoon series with a humanitarian message. Its central characters—such as Fat Albert, Weird Harold, Mush Mouth, and Donald—were based on the boyhood friends of Cosby, who grew up in Philadelphia. Produced by Norm Prescott and Lou Scheimer; Cosby served as executive producer. The show was retitled The New Fat Albert Show in the fall of 1979.

FATHER DOWLING MYSTERIES NBC/ABC

20 JANUARY 1989–10 MARCH 1989 (NBC); 4 JANUARY 1990–5 SEPTEMBER 1991 (ABC) An hour mystery series, based on the Father Dowling books by Ralph McInerny. With Tom Bosley as Father Frank Dowling, pastor of St. Michael's Parish in Chicago, who solved crimes in his spare time; Tracy Nelson as his assistant, Sister Stephanie ("Steve" for short); Mary Wickes as Marie Gillespie, the housekeeper; and James Stephens as Father Philip Prestwick, a priest dispatched by the bishop to keep an eye on Father Dowling. The pilot for the series, "Fatal Confession: A Father Dowling Mystery," was shown 30 November 1987 on NBC.

FATHER KNOWS BEST CBS/NBC

3 OCTOBER 1954–27 MARCH 1955 (CBS); 31 AUGUST 1955–17 SEPTEMBER 1958 (NBC); 22 SEPTEMBER 1958–17 SEPTEMBER 1962 (CBS) This durable sitcom began on radio in 1949, starring Robert Young as Jim Anderson, an insurance agent who lived in the town of Springfield with his wife and three children. Originally, Father was somewhat of a bumbler, but by the end of the show's run on radio, he had become wiser and more paternal. Young was the only member of the radio cast to make the transition to television. Joining him on camera were Jane Wyatt as Margaret Anderson, his wife; Elinor Donahue as Betty (or "Princess" to Father), their eldest child; Billy Gray as teenager Bud (Jim, Jr.); Lauren Chapin as Kathy ("Kitten" to Father), the youngest. Natividad Vacio occasionally appeared as gardener Frank Smith ("Fronk"), a newly naturalized American citizen. The show was produced by Eugene B. Rodney, who owned the series together with Young. Despite critical acclaim, the series was dropped after its first twenty-six weeks; one reason for its initial lack of success may have been that few children saw it—it was scheduled at 10:00 on Sundays. The following season it found a new sponsor, a new time, and a new network and became a solid hit. Between 1954 and 1960, there were 203 episodes filmed; reruns were broadcast on CBS for two more seasons and subsequently on ABC. After Father Knows Best ceased production, Young, Wyatt, and Donahue continued to appear frequently on television; Young, of course, starred in Marcus Welby, M.D. for seven seasons. Gray and Chapin, however, made few TV appearances. On 15 May 1977 the five appeared together in "The Father Knows Best Reunion," on NBC; the slow-moving hour-long special proved disappointing.

FATHER MURPHY NBC

3 NOVEMBER 1981–28 DECEMBER 1982 Merlin Olsen starred in this hour dramatic show as John Michael Murphy, who arrived in the mining town of Jackson after the Civil War. When the town was destroyed, Murphy posed as a priest in order to save the orphaned youngsters from the workhouse. Also featured were Moses Gunn as Murphy's friend and partner, Moses Gage; Katherine Cannon as schoolteacher Mae Woodward, who married Murphy at the end of the first season; Timothy Gibbs as orphan Will Adams; Lisa Trusel as the orphan Lizette Winkler; Scott Mellini as Ephram, Lizette's brother; Charles Tyner as grim Howard Rodman, the man from the workhouse; Ivy Bethune as grim Miss Tuttle, Rodman's associate; Burr DeBenning as evil Mr. Garrett; Richard Bergman (1981–1982) as Father Parker; and Ted Markland (1981–1982) as Frank. Michael Landon was the executive producer of the series; Olsen had previously been a regular on Landon's Little House on the Prairie. Reruns of Father Murphy surfaced briefly in the spring of 1984 as a replacement for NBC's ill-fated First Camera.

FATHER OF THE BRIDE CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1961–14 SEPTEMBER 1962 This domestic sitcom was based on the book by Edward Streeter and the 1950 film. The TV version featured Leon Ames as lawyer Stanley Banks, the father of the bride; Ruth Warrick as Ellie Banks, the mother of the bride; Myrna Fahey as Kay Banks, the bride; Rickie Sorensen as Tommy Banks, the bride's kid brother; Burt Metcalfe as Buckley Dunston, Kay's intended; Ransom Sherman as Buckley's father, Herbert Dunston; Lurene Tuttle as Buckley's mother, Doris Dunston. Kay and Buckley became engaged in the premiere episode and were married in midseason. Robert Maxwell was the executive producer.

FATHERS AND SONS NBC

6 APRIL 1986–4 MAY 1986 A half-hour sitcom, broadcast during the "family viewing hour" (7–8 P.M.) on Sundays. With former pro footballer Merlin Olsen as Buddy Landau; Kelly Sanders as his wife, Ellen; Jason Late as their son, Lanny; Andre Gower as Lanny's pal Sean Flynn; Ian Fried as Lanny's pal Ricky Bolen; Hakeem as Lanny's pal Brandon Russo; and Nicholas Guest as Ricky's father, Dr. Richard Bolen. Rick Nelson appeared in the pilot episode as Sean's father, Michael Flynn.

FAVORITE STORY

FAWLTY TOWERS SYNDICATED

1980 Half-hour sitcom starring John Cleese (of Monty Python's Flying Circus) as Basil Fawlty, who tried to manage a country hotel, and Prunella Scales as his wife, Sybil. Also featured were Connie Booth (who wrote the series with Cleese) as housekeeper Polly Sherman; Andrew Sachs as Manuel, the Barcelonan bellhop; and Ballard Berkeley as daft Major Gowen. The series premiered in England in 1975 and new episodes appeared in 1979; in the U.S., the series was seen on many PBS stations. It also spawned a feeble American version in 1983 (see Amanda's).

FAY NBC

4 SEPTEMBER 1975–23 OCTOBER 1975 A remarkably unsuccessful situation comedy about a forty-three-year-old divorcée who got a job as a secretary in a San Francisco law office. With Lee Grant as Fay Stewart; Joe Silver as Jack Stewart, her ex; Margaret Willock as Linda Baines, Fay's conservative daughter; Stewart Moss as Dr. Elliott Baines, Linda's stuffy husband; Audra Lindley as Lillian, Fay's tactless neighbor; Bill Gerber as lawyer Danny Messina, Fay's boss; Norman Alden as Al Cassidy, Danny's law partner; and Lillian Lehman as Letty Gilmore, Al's black secretary. Created by Susan Harris. Executive producer: Paul Younger Witt. Produced by Jerry Mayer. Fay's theme song was sung by Jaye P. Morgan. Susan Harris later blamed the show's failure on the fact that it had been intended as a sophisticated, adult comedy but had been scheduled by NBC at 8:30 P.M. on Thursdays, smack in the middle of the "family viewing hour." As a result of the scheduling decision, the network ordered many changes in dialogue and characterization, which seriously weakened the show's import.

FAYE AND SKITCH NBC

26 OCTOBER 1953–22 OCTOBER 1954 Faye Emerson and Skitch Henderson (who were married to each other at the time) cohosted this fifteen-minute nightly series of music and chitchat. Johnny Stearns produced and directed it.

THE FAYE EMERSON SHOW CBS/NBC

13 MARCH 1950–9 JULY 1950 (CBS); 22 APRIL 1950–30 AUGUST 1950 (NBC); 26 SEPTEMBER 1950–23 DECEMBER 1950 (CBS) One of network television's first female interviewers, Faye Emerson attracted much attention—and a large number of male viewers—because of the low-cut gowns she wore. She began hosting a local show in New York, which went network in March of 1950; a month later she began a second series, Fifteen with Faye, on NBC, thus becoming one of the few performers to appear on two networks simultaneously. Each of her first two series was seen once a week; in the fall of 1950, however, her CBS show was seen three evenings a week. In 1951 she hosted another local show in New York, before returning to network TV with Faye Emerson's Wonderful Town (see below).

FAYE EMERSON'S WONDERFUL TOWN (WONDERFUL TOWN, U.S.A.) CBS

16 JUNE 1951–19 APRIL 1952 Faye Emerson returned to CBS in this half-hour variety series that replaced part of The Frank Sinatra Show. Skitch Henderson also appeared on the show, which was broadcast live from a different city each week; Boston was the site of the premiere telecast.

FEAR AND FANCY ABC

13 MAY 1953–2 SEPTEMBER 1953 Half-hour filmed dramatic anthology series that usually featured supernatural stories.

FEARLESS FOSDICK NBC

1 JUNE 1952–28 SEPTEMBER 1952 Fearless Fosdick, the bumbling cartoon detective created by Al Capp, was the star of this short-lived filmed puppet show. Other characters included Schmoozer and The Chief. John Griggs provided the voice of Fosdick.

THE FEATHER AND FATHER GANG ABC

7 MARCH 1977–6 AUGUST 1977 A pale imitation of CBS's Switch, this hour-long adventure series featured a female lawyer and her dad, an ex-con man, who combined forces to outwit assorted evildoers. With Stefanie Powers as Toni "Feather" Danton; Harold Gould as her father, Harry Danton. The "Gang," all of them Harry's henchpeople, included Frank Delfino as the midget Enzo; Monte Landis as Michael; Joan Shawlee as Margo; and Lewis Charles as Lou. Bill Driskill created the series, and Larry White was the executive producer.

FEATHER YOUR NEST NBC

4 OCTOBER 1954–27 JULY 1956 Bud Collyer hosted this daytime game show on which couples had the chance to win home furnishings; questions were written on feathers that were hidden among the merchandise. Assisting Collyer at various times were Lou Prentis, Janis Carter, and Jean Williams.

FEELIN' GOOD PBS

1974 Produced by the Children's Television Workshop, Feelin' Good attempted to educate adults on matters of health care. Two formats were tried: The first, a sixty-minute sitcom-variety, was set at a club known as Mac's Place. It featured Tex Everhart as Mac; Priscilla Lopez as Rita; Marjorie Barnes as Melba; Joe Morton as Jason; Ethel Shutta as Mrs. Stebbins; and Ben Slack as Hank. That format was scrapped after eleven weeks, and Dick Cavett was brought in to host a half-hour narrative program.

FELONY SQUAD ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1966–31 JANUARY 1969 Half-hour crime show set in Los Angeles. With Howard Duff as Detective (and later Sergeant) Sam Stone; Ben Alexander as Sergeant Dan Briggs; Dennis Cole as Detective Jim Briggs, Dan's son; Frank Maxwell (1966–1967) as Captain Nye; and Barney Phillips (1967–1969) as Captain Ed Franks. The series was supplied by 20th Century-Fox TV.

FERNWOOD 2-NIGHT SYNDICATED

4 JULY 1977–30 SEPTEMBER 1977

AMERICA 2NIGHT SYNDICATED

10 APRIL 1978–18 AUGUST 1978 A satire of talk shows, Fernwood 2-Night was developed by Norman Lear to fill the summer gap between Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman and Forever Fernwood. Set at the studios of Channel 2 in Fernwood, Ohio, it starred Martin Mull as host Barth Gimble, Fred Willard as his half-witted sidekick, Jerry Hubard, and Frank DeVol as Happy Kyne, leader of the show's four-man band, the Mirthmakers. Host Gimble was the twin brother of Garth Gimble, a wife-beater who had impaled himself on an aluminum Christmas tree on Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman. Second banana Hubard was the brother-in-law of the station owner, while bandleader Kyne supplemented his income by running a chain of fast-food outlets known as Bun 'n' Run. In real life, Frank DeVol was a talented musician and composer of many TV theme songs, including the song in Family Affair. Most of the guests on Fernwood 2-Night were purely fictional (such as Fernwood's high school principal, who demonstrated the proper technique for spanking the bottom of a shapely sixteen-year-old), but a few celebrities, such as singer Tom Waits and journalist Harry Shearer, played themselves. America 2Night was introduced in the spring of 1978 and was similar in format to its predecessor, except that it was broadcast from Alta Coma, California, "the unfinished furniture capital of the world." Many of America 2Night's guests appeared as themselves; Charlton Heston, for example, was a guest on the premiere. Bill Kirchenbauer frequently appeared as hugely untalented lounge singer Tony Roletti on both Fernwood and America 2Night. Robin Williams and Paul Reubens (who later became famous as Pee-wee Herman) also made appearences on America 2Night, Williams as the operator of an escort service and Reubens as a dancing Indian.

FERRIS BUELLER NBC

23 AUGUST 1990–16 DECEMBER 1990; 11 AUGUST 1991 Half-hour sitcom, based on the 1986 film Ferris Bueller's Day Off. With Charlie Schlatter as sixteen-year-old Ferris Bueller, a student at California's Ocean Park High School who always succeeded in outwitting the administration; Richard Riehle as Bueller's nemesis, principal Ed Rooney; Jennifer Aniston as Ferris's older sister, Jeannie, a senior; Cristine Rose as their mother, Barbara; Sam Freed as their father, Bill; Brandon Douglas as Ferris's best friend, Cameron Frye; Ami Dolenz (daughter of former Monkee Mickey Dolenz) as transfer student and love interest Sloan Peterson; Judith Kahan as Rooney's assistant, Grace; and Jeff Maynard as Arthur Petrelli.

FESTIVAL OF STARS NBC

2 JULY 1957–17 SEPTEMBER 1957 Jim Ameche hosted this Tuesday-night series of rebroadcasts from The Loretta Young Show. The episodes that were shown did not feature Young.

FIBBER McGEE AND MOLLY NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1959–5 JANUARY 1960 A short-lived version of the popular radio comedy that starred Jim Jordan (who created the show with Don Quinn) and his wife, Marian Jordan. On television Bob Sweeney starred as Fibber McGee, teller of tall tales, and Cathy Lewis played his long-suffering wife, Molly. Also featured were Hal Peary (who originated The Great Gildersleeve on the radio version of Fibber McGee) as Mayor Charles LaTrivia, a bombastic politician; Addison Richards as Doctor Gamble; Paul Smith as next-door neighbor Roy Norris; Elisabeth Fraser as his wife, Hazel; and Barbara Beaird as Teeny, their daughter (the McGees, of course, resided at 79 Wistful Vista).

FIEVEL'S AMERICAN TAILS CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1992–11 SEPTEMBER 1993 This Saturday morning cartoon series, based on the feature films An American Tail and its sequel An American Tail: Fievel Goes West, found the immigrant rodent Fievel Mousekiwitz living in town of Green River in the Old West.

THE FIFTH CORNER NBC

17 APRIL 1992–24 APRIL 1992 Axed after just two telecasts, this adventure series starred Alex McArthur as intelligence agent Richard Braun, who woke up with amnesia one morning in a Latin American country (and with a dead woman in his bed); Braun soon discovered that he had five identities, and struggled to determine which of the five was the real one. Also featured were J. E. Freeman as Boone; Kim Delaney as Erica, a journalist; Christoph Ort as Rolf; Anthony Valentine as The Hat; and James Coburn as billionaire Mr. Grandwell.

50 GRAND SLAM NBC

4 OCTOBER 1976–31 DECEMBER 1976 Tom Kennedy hosted this daytime game show on which contestants could earn up to $50,000. The format was somewhat similar to that of Twenty-One: Pairs of contestants competed in areas of specialized knowledge or in games. The winner of the first round (which paid $200) could elect to risk his or her winnings on the next round against a new challenger; each new challenger began at the $200 level, while the champion competed for ever-increasing amounts up to the $50,000 top prize.

54TH STREET REVUE CBS

5 MAY 1949–25 MARCH 1950 This Thursday-night variety hour, broadcast live from a theater on 54th Street in New York, was a showcase for up-and-coming professionals. The first few shows were hosted by comic Al Bernie; other regulars included Carl Reiner, Jack Sterling, Mort Marshall, Wynn Murray, and dancer Bob Fosse. Reiner, of course, went on to Your Show of Shows and later created The Dick Van Dyke Show; Fosse choreographed many Broadway hits and later directed the film Cabaret. Barry Wood was the executive producer of the series. Ralph Levy, who directed it, later produced and directed The Burns and Allen Show and served as executive producer of The Jack Benny Program. Original music and lyrics were supplied by Al Selden, who later wrote Man of La Mancha; Bill Scudder also provided musical material for the series. Writers included Max Wilk, George Axelrod, and Allan Sherman. The last few shows were hosted by Billy Vine.

FIGHT BACK! WITH DAVID HOROWITZ SYNDICATED

1980–1992 Consumer advocate David Horowitz tested products and exposed consumer ripoffs on this half-hour weekly series. Horowitz had previously hosted a similar series, Consumer Buyline.

THE FIGHT OF THE WEEK ABC

24 JANUARY 1953–11 SEPTEMBER 1964 ABC's weekly boxing series, which ran continuously for eleven years, was aired under several different titles. From 1953 to 1955 it was known as The Saturday Night Fights. In the summer of 1955 it moved to a new day and became The Wednesday Night Fights. In the fall of 1960 the series moved back to Saturdays and was retitled The Fight of the Week; that title was retained when the show switched to Fridays for its final season. Jack Drees announced the bouts during the early seasons, Don Dunphy during the later ones. The popularity of boxing on television (and in the arenas) took a significant down-turn during the early 1960s. One reason for this decline may have been The Fight of the Week of 24 March 1962, when Emile Griffith defeated Benny "Kid" Paret for the welterweight championship. Paret was carried unconscious from the ring and later died of his injuries.

THE FILES OF JEFFREY JONES SYNDICATED

1954 This half-hour crime show starred Don Haggerty as New York private eye Jeffrey Jones and Gloria Henry as reporter "Mike" Malone, his girlfriend. Produced by Lindsley Parsons; directed by Lew Landers.

FILTHY RICH CBS

9 AUGUST 1982–23 AUGUST 1982; 6 OCTOBER 1982–10 NOVEMBER 1982; 17 JANUARY 1983–14 FEBRUARY 1983; 8 JUNE 1983–15 JUNE 1983 A broadly played spoof of Dallas, in which the members of a Memphis family tried to live by the dictates of the recently deceased head of the clan, who thoughtfully had videotaped his will. With Slim Pickens (who was succeeded by Forrest Tucker) as Big Guy Beck, the decedent; Delta Burke as Cathleen, his widow; Dixie Carter as his daughter-in-law, Carlotta; Michael Lombard as his son Marshall, Carlotta's husband; Charles Frank as his son Stanley; Jerry Hardin as his illegitimate son, Wild Bill Winchester; Ann Wedgeworth as Bill's wife, Bootsie, an aspiring singer; and Nedra Volz as Mother B, Big Guy's first wife, the mother of Marshall and Stanley. Though the show fared well in the ratings during its summer tryout, it did poorly in the fall and was quickly yanked from the schedule, only to resurface (twice) later in the season.

FINAL APPEAL: FROM THE FILES OF UNSOLVED MYSTERIES NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1992–16 OCTOBER 1992 This half-hour reality show was created by the producers of Unsolved Mysteries, and was hosted by Unsolved's Robert Stack. Each week the show examined the case of a convicted felon—from the defendant's and prosecution's side—to determine whether the defendant's case should be reopened.

FINDER OF LOST LOVES ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1984–24 AUGUST 1985 This hour dramatic series starred Tony Franciosa as widower Cary Maxwell, who ran an agency that tried to reunite separated loved ones, or to locate old flames for would-be suitors. Working for Maxwell were Deborah Adair as Daisy Lloyd, his late wife's sister; Anne Jeffreys (seldom seen on TV since Topper) as office manager Rita Hargrove; Richard Kantor as Brian Fletcher; and Larry Flash Jenkins (1985) as gofer and chauffeur Lyman Whittaker. Dionne Warwick sang the show's theme. Series creator Gail Parent got her inspiration for the show after reading about a real-life "finder" on an airplane flight.

A FINE ROMANCE ABC

18 JANUARY 1989–16 MARCH 1989 Promoted as a throwback to the "screwball" film comedies of the 1940s, this ambitious hour comedy-adventure series lasted only eight weeks, and finished 122nd out of 126 prime-time series in the seasonal ratings. Filmed on location in Europe, it starred Margaret Whitton and Christopher Cazenove as Louisa Phillips and Michael Trent, a divorced couple who cohosted a TV travel show (Anthony Andrews had played Trent in the pilot, which never aired). Also featured were Dinah Lenney as Friday; Kevin Moore as Miles; and Ernie Sabella as George. Although the series garnered good reviews, it was scheduled opposite NBC's The Cosby Show on Thursdays, and it vanished quietly.

FIREBALL FUN FOR ALL NBC

28 JUNE 1949–27 OCTOBER 1949 Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, the veteran comedy team who starred in Hellzapoppin on Broadway, hosted this hour of slapstick and sight gags. Broadcast from the Center Theater in New York, it began as a summer replacement for Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater on Tuesdays and later shifted to Thursdays before its cancellation. Produced and directed by Ezra Stone, its writers included Arnold Horwitt, Lew Lipton, Mike Stewart (who later wrote Hello, Dolly), and Max Wilk. Also in the cast were June Johnson, Marty May, Bill Hayes, and J. C. Olsen.

FIREBALL XL-5 NBC

5 OCTOBER 1963–25 SEPTEMBER 1965 This Saturday-morning series was one of the first to use Supermarionation, a technique utilizing fine wires and plastic models developed by Gerry Anderson; the technique was refined in Anderson's later series (Captain Scarlet and the Mysterons, The Thunderbirds, etc.). This series was set in Space City; its central character was Colonel Steve Zodiac, who piloted his spacecraft—Fireball XL-5—throughout the galaxy.

FIREHOUSE ABC

17 JANUARY 1974–1 AUGUST 1974 This half-hour adventure series was apparently inspired by NBC's Emergency! It told the story of the fearless firefighters of Engine Company 23 in Los Angeles. With James Drury as Captain Spike Ryerson; Richard Jaeckel as number two man Hank Myers; Mike DeLano as firefighter Sonny Capito, who doubled as the company cook; Bill Overton as firefighter Cal Dakin, token black; Scott Smith as firefighter Scotty Smith; and Brad David as rookie firefighter Billy DelZell.

FIRESIDE THEATRE NBC

5 APRIL 1949–23 AUGUST 1955 Produced and directed by Frank Wisbar, Fireside Theatre was a low-budget half-hour filmed anthology series, and a fixture at 9:00 P.M. on Tuesdays. During the first season two 15-minute films were presented each week; thereafter, the series offered thirty-minute dramas. One notable presentation, "The Reign of Amelika Jo" (12 October 1954), featured a largely black and Asian cast (James Edwards, Nick Stewart, Johnny Lee, and Keye Luke) in a fact-based story set in the South Pacific during World War II. TV Guide noted that it was "probably the first all-Negro show ever to go out over a network." Gene Raymond hosted the show for several seasons; in 1955 Jane Wyman took over as host, and the show's title was changed. See Jane Wyman Theatre.

FIRING LINE SYNDICATED/PBS

1966–1971 (SYNDICATED); 1971– (PBS) William F. Buckley, Jr., the erudite conservative columnist, hosts this durable political discussion program.

1ST & TEN HBO

2 DECEMBER 1984–30 AUGUST 1991 The world of professional football was the setting for this half-hour sitcom, which incorporated female toplessness and four-letter words into almost every episode. The cast included: Delta Burke (1984–1988) as Diane Barrow, new owner of the California Bulls, who acquired the team in a divorce settlement (after her husband had run off with a lineman); Reid Shelton as Coach Ernie Denardo; O. J. Simpson (1985–1991) as T.D. Parker, who became the general manager; John Matuszak (1984–1990) as John Manzak; Don Gibb as "Dr. Death" Crunchner; John Kassir as Bulgarian-born placekicker Zagreb Shkenusky; Jason Beghe as quarterback Tom Yinessa; Prince Hughes as lineman Bubba Kincaid; Cliff Frazier as Jethro Snell; Tony Longo as "Mad Dog" Smears; Jay Kerr as quarterback Mac Daniels; Jeff Hochendonner as linebacker Elvin Putts; Keith Amos (1990–1991) as receiver "Miracle Miles" Coolidge; and Shannon Tweed (1989–1991) as Kristy Fulbright, who succeeded Diane as the team's owner. Simpson and Matuszak had, of course, been professional football players; many other pro players, past and present, made guest appearances on the show.

Beginning with the second season, the series bore a new subtitle each year: Training Camp: The Bulls Are Back, The Championship, Going for Broke, The Bulls Mean Business, Do It Again, and In Your Face!

THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS CBS

4 DECEMBER 1950–27 JUNE 1952 CBS's first television soap opera, The First Hundred Years accentuated the lighter side of married life. It starred Jimmy Lydon and Olive Stacey as newlyweds Chris and Connie Thayer; Stacey was later replaced by Anne Sargent. Also featured were Dan Tobin and Valerie Cossart as Chris's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thayer; Robert Armstrong and Nana Bryant as Connie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin; and Nancy Malone as Connie's sister, Margie. In 1952 CBS replaced the show with a more successful serial: The Guiding Light.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS CBS

27 AUGUST 1988–1 OCTOBER 1988 The most notable thing about this short-lived sitcom was that it was the first network series to be set in Nebraska. It starred Brad Garrett as Frank Dutton, a producer of commercial jingles in Omaha who was suddenly left to raise his child after his wife walked out. Also in the cast were Brandy Gold as his nine-year-old daughter, Lindsay; Thom Sharp as Frank's business partner at Media of Omaha, Dave Poole; James Noble as recording engineer Raymond Voss; and Sarah Abrell as receptionist Donna Patterson. The six-foot, nine-inch Garrett had won the "Best Comedian of 1984" award on Star Search. Unfazed by the unfavorable ratings of this sitcom, CBS introduced another series with an almost identical format barely a month later: see Raising Miranda.

FIRST LOOK NBC

16 OCTOBER 1965–9 APRIL 1966 An educational series for children hosted by singer Oscar Brand and featuring youngsters Sally Sheffield, Jackie Washington, and Neil Jones.

FIRST LOVE NBC

5 JULY 1954–30 DECEMBER 1955 This soap opera also centered on newlyweds. With Val Dufour and Tod Andrews as jet engineer Zach James; Patricia Barry as Laurie James; Rosemary Prinz as Amy; Bob Courtleigh as David; Joe Warren as Phil Gordon; Henrietta Moore as Peggy; Jay Barney as Bruce McKee; Peter Cookson as Tony Morgan; and Frederic Downs as Andrews. The fifteen-minute show was aired live from Philadelphia.

FIRST PERSON PLAYHOUSE (FIRST PERSON SINGULAR) NBC

3 JULY 1953–11 SEPTEMBER 1953 In this half-hour dramatic anthology series, a summer replacement for The Life of Riley, the camera was the principal character.

FIRST TIME OUT WB

10 SEPTEMBER 1995–17 DECEMBER 1995 Half-hour sitcom about three young women who shared an apartment in Los Angeles. With Jackie Guerra as Jackie, who worked at a Beverly Hills beauty salon; Mia Cottet as Susan, a therapist; Leah Remini as Dominique, who worked for a record company; Craig Anton as Nathan, Jackie's nerdy friend; Tracy Vilar as Rosa; and Roxanne Beckford as Madeleine.

FIRST TUESDAY NBC

7 JANUARY 1969–7 SEPTEMBER 1971; 3 OCTOBER 1972–7 AUGUST 1973 Eliot Frankel produced this news magazine series, televised on the first Tuesday of each month. Sander Vanocur was the original host, but was succeeded by Garrick Utley. From 1969 to 1971 First Tuesday was a two-hour series; when it returned to NBC's schedule in the fall of 1972, however, it was trimmed to sixty minutes. The network continued to experiment with the concept of a monthly magazine series during the 1970s: see also Chronolog and Weekend.

FISH ABC

5 FEBRUARY 1977–8 JUNE 1978 This half-hour sitcom was a spinoff from Barney Miller. Abe Vigoda starred as Phil Fish, who retired from the New York Police Department to run a home for juvenile delinquents. Also featuring Florence Stanley as his devoted wife, Bernice; Barry Gordon as live-in counselor Charlie. The lovable young troublemakers included Lenny Bari as Mike, Denise Miller as Jilly, Todd Bridges as Loomis, Sarah Natoli as Diane Pulaski, and John Cassisi as Victor. Executive producer: Danny Arnold. Produced by Norman Barasch and Roy Kammerman.

FISH POLICE CBS

28 FEBRUARY 1992–13 MARCH 1992 This half-hour prime-time animated series was set in Fish City, and all the characters were marine life. Principal voices were supplied by John Ritter as Inspector Gil; Edward Asner as Chief Abalone; JoBeth Williams as Angel; and Megan Mullally as Pearl the waitress. Other voices were provided by Hector Elizondo, Georgia Brown, Jonathan Winters, Buddy Hackett, Robert Guillaume, and Tim Curry. Produced by Hanna-Barbera Productions, the series was paired with Scorch on CBS's Friday schedule; both shows were dropped after three episodes.

FISHING AND HUNTING CLUB DUMONT

7 OCTOBER 1949–31 MARCH 1950 Half-hour panel show on which the panelists answered questions about outdoor activities submitted by viewers. Bill Slater was the host, and the panel included former Olympian Gail Borden, author Jeff Bryant, the New York Mirror outdoor editor Jim Hurley, and Dave Newell, a former editor of Field and Stream. The show was later titled Sports for All.

FITZ AND BONES NBC

24 OCTOBER 1981–21 NOVEMBER 1981 Tom and Dick Smothers starred in this hour dramatic series, but they did not portray brothers. The action took place at KSFB-TV in San Francisco, with Dick as news reporter Ryan Fitzpatrick, and Tom as Edsel-driving ENG technician Bones Howard. Also featured were Diana Muldaur as news director Terri Seymour; Mike Kellin as station manager Robert Whitmore; Lynnette Mettey as Bones's ex-wife, Lt. Rosie Cochran; Roger C. Carmel as Lawrence Brody, reporter for a rival station; and Doug Hale as anchorman Mel Bishop. NBC scheduled the show on Saturdays at 10:00, one of its weakest time slots; the series had the unfortunate distinction of being the lowest-rated prime-time series of the 1981–1982 season.

THE FITZPATRICKS CBS

5 SEPTEMBER 1977–10 JANUARY 1978 One of the plethora of family dramas presented during the 1977–1978 season, The Fitzpatricks were a middle-class family who lived in Flint, Michigan. With Bert Kramer as steelworker Mike Fitzpatrick; Mariclare Costello as Maggie Fitzpatrick, pregnant with their fifth child; Clark Brandon as son Sean, sixteen; James Vincent McNichol (brother of Kristy McNichol of ABC's Family) as son Jack, fifteen; Michele Tobin as daughter Maureen, fourteen; Sean Marshall as son Max, ten; Derek Wells as R. J., Max's best friend, a black; Helen Hunt as teenager Kerry, a neighbor; and Detroit, the family dog. Created by John Sacret Young. Executive producer: Philip Mandelker. Produced by John Cutts.

FIVE FINGERS NBC

3 OCTOBER 1959–9 JANUARY 1960 Cold War spy drama set in Europe; it was based on the 1952 film starring James Mason. With David Hedison (who starred in the 1958 horror film, The Fly) as Victor Sebastian, American counterintelligence agent; Luciana Paluzzi as Simone Genet, his gal Friday; and Paul Burke as Robertson, Sebastian's contact man. Herbert Bayard Swope, Jr., was the producer.

THE FIVE MRS. BUCHANANS CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1994–15 APRIL 1995 Half-hour sitcom set in Mercy, Indiana, the home of the title characters: the four women who had married brothers, and their crusty mother-in-law. With Judith Ivey as Alex, a Jew from New York who ran a store and was married to Roy; Beth Broderick as Delilah, a former cocktail waitress who was married to Charles; Harriet Sansom Harris as Vivian, who was married to Ed and had twins; Charlotte Ross as Bree, the newest Mrs. B., who was wed to Jesse; and Eileen Heckart as gravel-voiced and acid-tongued Mother Buchanan.

FIVE STAR JUBILEE NBC

17 MARCH 1961–22 SEPTEMBER 1961 Broadcast live from Springfield, Missouri, Five Star Jubilee was a half-hour country-and-western music series similar to Ozark Jubilee. Five stars shared the hosting chores on an alternating basis: Rex Allen, Snooky Lanson, Tex Ritter, Carl Smith, and Jimmy Wakely. Other regulars included Slim Wilson and His Jubilee Band, the Promenaders, and the Jubilaires.

FIVE-STAR COMEDY ABC

18 MAY 1957–15 JUNE 1957 A five-week comedy show for kids, shown on Saturday afternoons. Guest hosts included Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney, Jerry Colonna, and Señor Wences.

FLAMBARDS PBS

11 JULY 1980–26 SEPTEMBER 1980 Twelve-part series produced in England by Yorkshire Television. Set at the beginning of World War I, it told the story of a teenage orphan who came to live with her tyrannical uncle at his Essex estate, Flambards. With Christine McKenna as Christina Parsons; Edward Judd as Uncle Russell; Steven Grives as his son Mark; Alan Parnaby as his son William, a flyer; and Sebastian Abineri as Dick. The series was based on the trilogy by K. M. Peyton.

FLAME IN THE WIND

See A TIME FOR US

FLAMINGO ROAD NBC

6 JANUARY 1981–13 JULY 1982 Based on a 1949 motion picture of the same name, Flamingo Road was introduced as a made-for-TV movie in May 1980. When it was brought back the following season as a prime-time serial, it picked up where the movie had left off. Set in the steamy Southern town of Truro, it featured Howard Duff as Sheriff Titus Semple, a political boss; Morgan Fairchild as his bitchy daughter, Constance Semple; Mark Harmon as Fielding Carlyle, who married Constance; John Beck as contractor Sam Curtis; Woody Brown as Skipper Weldon; Kevin McCarthy as Claude Weldon; Cristina Raines as singer Lane Ballou, who married Sam; Barbara Rush as Eudora Weldon, Claude's wife; Stella Stevens as Lute-Mae Sanders, the local madam; and Cynthia Sikes as Sandy Swanson. The series was produced by Lorimar (together with MF Productions), TV's principal supplier of prime-time serial fare.

THE FLASH CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1990–19 JULY 1991 Hour adventure series based on the DC comic book character. Set in Central City, it starred John Wesley Shipp as police scientist Barry Allen, who was doused with chemicals and then struck by lightning; the accident irreversibly accelerated Allen's metabolism, making him extra-strong and extra-fast. Also featured were Amanda Pays as fellow scientist Tina McGee; Alex Desert as lab technician Julio Mendez; Richard Belzer as TV reporter Joe Klein; Biff Manard as Officer Michael Francis Murphy; Mike Genovese as Lieutenant Garfield; and Vito D'Ambrosio as Officer Bellows.

FLASH GORDON SYNDICATED

1953 The television adaptation of the popular movie serial was produced in Europe. It starred Steve Holland as Flash Gordon; Irene Champlin as his assistant, Dale Arden; and Joe Nash as Dr. Alexis Zarkov. The trio worked for the Galaxy Bureau of Investigation. The thirty-nine episodes were filmed in West Berlin and in Marseilles.

FLASH GORDON NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1979–20 SEPTEMBER 1980; 18 SEPTEMBER 1982–10 SEPTEMBER 1983 Half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon version of the story of Flash Gordon, the astronaut who sought to save Earth from the evildoings of Ming the Merciless. Lou Scheimer and Norm Prescott were the executive producers.

FLATBUSH CBS

26 FEBRUARY 1979–12 MARCH 1979 Half-hour sitcom about the five fun-loving members of a Brooklyn gang known as the Flatbush Fungos. With Joseph Cali as Presto; Adrian Zmed as Socks; Vincent Bufano as Turtle; Randy Stumpf as Joey D; Sandy Helberg as Figgy; Antony Ponzini as Esposito, owner of the pool hall where the boys hung out; and Helen Verbit as Mrs. Fortunato, neighborhood busybody. The series was created by David Epstein for Lorimar Productions. Producers: Philip Capice and Gary Adelson.

FLESH 'N BLOOD NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1991–15 NOVEMBER 1991 In this half-hour sitcom set in Baltimore, a young single assistant district attorney was reunited with her newly discovered hillbilly brother (the two had been put up for adoption as young children). With Lisa Darr as assistant D.A. Rachel Brennan; David Keith as her unsophisticated brother, Arlo Weed; Meghan Andrews as Arlo's teen daughter, Beauty; Chris Stacy as Arlo's son, King; Perry Anzilotti as Rachel's much shorter co-worker, Marty Travers; and Peri Gilpin as Rachel's secretary, Irene, who lusted for Arlo.

FLICK-OUT PBS

5 OCTOBER 1970–27 SEPTEMBER 1971 A showcase for young independent filmmakers.

FLIGHT SYNDICATED

1958 The saga of the United States Air Force, which was hosted by General George C. Kenney. Al Simon was the executive producer for California National Productions.

FLIGHT NUMBER 7 ABC

5 SEPTEMBER 1954–10 SEPTEMBER 1955 A travelogue hosted by Robert McKenzie, Flight Number 7 relied heavily on aerial photography. The half-hour series was not carried regularly by ABC's New York affiliate.

FLIGHT TO ADVENTURE SYNDICATED

1960 A series of thirty-nine real-life adventure films, which were shot all over the world. Host: Bill Burrud.

FLIGHT TO RHYTHM DUMONT

10 MARCH 1949–22 SEPTEMBER 1949 Musical series hosted by Delora Bueno. The show premiered as a fifteen-minute series under the title The Delora Bueno Show; it was retitled when it expanded to thirty minutes in May, and became a musical serial.

THE FLINTSTONES ABC/NBC

30 SEPTEMBER 1960–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 (ABC); 4 OCTOBER 1981–18 OCTOBER 1981 (NBC) Produced by William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, The Flintstones was the first prime-time cartoon series made especially for television; remarkably, it enjoyed a six-year run, far longer than any of the other prime-time cartoon shows. Set in the Stone Age, The Flintstones was little more than an animated version of The Honeymooners—the voices of the characters were similar to the Honeymooners, and the Flintstones' cave even resembled the Kramdens' apartment. The voices were provided by: Alan Reed as Fred Flintstone, quarry worker; Jean vander Pyl as Wilma Flintstone, his wife; Mel Blanc as Barney Rubble, Fred's best friend; Bea Benaderet and Gerry Johnson as Betty Rubble, Barney's wife. Before the series had run its course, Fred and Wilma had a daughter, and Barney and Betty had a son (credit for the Flintstone and Rubble children should be given to Sheila Barbera, wife of cocreator Joe Barbera, who suggested the idea to her husband). The two children—Pebbles and Bamm Bamm—were later featured in their own Saturday-morning cartoon series. In the fall of 1962 The Flintstones and another ABC cartoon series, Beany and Cecil, became the first ABC prime-time shows to be regularly broadcast in color. The Flintstones was rerun on Saturday mornings over NBC from 1967 to 1970, and new episodes were aired in 1972 (see The Flintstones Comedy Hour). Additionally, Flintstones segments were later combined with other Hanna-Barbera properties (such as The Jetsons, The Banana Splits, and Top Cat) and syndicated under the title Fred Flintstone and Friends. After an absence of fifteen seasons, The Flintstones returned briefly to prime time in the fall of 1981; the show was hastily added to NBC's Sunday night schedule (at 7:00 p.m.) when The Powers of Matthew Star, which had been slotted there, was forced to suspend production after injuries to its two stars. A prime-time special was aired 20 May 1986 on CBS: "The Flintstones 25th Anniversary Celebration" featured the cartoon characters, as well as such real-life luminaries as Harvey Korman, Tim Conway, Vanna White, and Joseph Barbera. ABC aired two prime-time specials in 1993: "I Yabba-Dabba Do!" (7 February) in which Pebbles wed Bamm-Bamm, and "A Flintstone Family Christmas" (18 December). A moderately successful live-action theatrical film followed in 1994, starring John Goodman (Fred), Elizabeth Perkins (Wilma), Rick Moranis (Barney), and Rosie O'Donnell (Betty). A short clip from the TV series's 1960 pilot, "The Flagstones," surfaced on The Cartoon Network 7 May 1994. The title was subsequently changed to The Flintstones when it was learned that a Flagstones comic strip already existed.

FLINTSTONE FUNNIES NBC
18 SEPTEMBER 1982–8 SEPTEMBER 1984
THE FLINTSTONE KIDS ABC
13 SEPTEMBER 1986–3 SEPTEMBER 1988; 6 JANUARY 1990–SEPTEMBER 1990 Episodes of The Flintstones and Pebbles and Bamm Bamm were shown Saturday mornings on CBS for a season and a half as The Flintstones Comedy Hour and The Flintstones Show. NBC acquired the program in 1979; its first offering, The New Fred and Barney Show, was not new—it consisted of some of the original cartoons with new voices (Henry Corden as Fred, and Gay Autterson as Betty). Fred and Barney Meet the Thing was an hour program, with "Flintstones" segments alternating with "The Thing," the adventures of Benjy Grimm, a high school student who could turn into a behemoth. That show expanded to ninety minutes in December 1979 and was retitled Fred and Barney Meet the Shmoo, with the addition of "The New Shmoo," a series which had been introduced in September 1979 (see also that title). In 1980 the Flintstones acquired new neighbors, the Frankenstones, on Flintstone Comedy Show. The Flintstone clan moved back to ABC's Saturday morning lineup in the fall of 1986. The new series, The Flintstone Kids, put the characters in a slightly more prehistoric setting: as ten-year-olds in Bedrock, with Dino the dinosaur as a mere pup. Another regular feature on the latter series was "Captain Caveman," the world's first superhero.

FLIP! CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1988–22 OCTOBER 1988 A short-lived, low-budget Saturday morning series that combined music videos, comedy blackouts, celebrity interviews, and unseen voices that quibbled with each other between segments.

THE FLIP WILSON SHOW NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1970–27 JUNE 1974 A successful variety hour hosted by a talented black comedian, Flip Wilson. Wilson, whose real first name is Clerow, created and popularized such characters as Geraldine Jones ("What you see is what you get!"), Reverend Leroy (pastor of the Church of What's Happenin' Now), and Freddie Johnson, Wilson's Everyman.

FLIPPER NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1964–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 Another aquatic adventure series created by Ivan Tors (Sea Hunt, The Aquanauts, etc.). The star of the show was Flipper, a dolphin who was the seagoing equivalent of Lassie. The human roles were filled by Brian Kelly as Porter Ricks, the Chief Ranger at Coral Key Park, a marine refuge in Florida; Luke Halpin as his son Sandy; Tommy Norden as his son Bud; and Ulla Stromstedt (1965–1966) as Ulla Norstrand, a visiting biochemist. Though Flipper was supposed to be a male dolphin, he was played by a female named Susie.

FLIPPER SYNDICATED

1995– On this updated, sixty-minute version of the 1964–1967 network series, young Bud Ricks, inspired by spending three years with Flipper, had grown up to become a marine biologist who ran a research institute in the Florida Keys. It starred Brian Wimmer as Bud, who now preferred to be called Dr. Keith Ricks; Colleen Flynn as Dr. Pam Blondell, a Navy researcher assigned to the institute; Payton Haas as Mike, Pam's troubled thirteen-year-old son; and Jessica Marie Alba as Maya, a local girl.

FLIPSIDE SYNDICATED

1973 A showcase for rock-and-roll performers with no regulars.

FLO CBS

24 MARCH 1980–28 APRIL 1980; 21 JULY 1980–2 MAY 1981 In this spinoff from Alice, Polly Holliday starred as Flo Castleberry. Heading east to a new job in Houston, Flo stopped off at her hometown (Cowtown, Texas), bought the local café, and renamed it Flo's Yellow Rose. Also featured were Geoffrey Lewis as Earl Tucker, the bartender; Jim B. Baker as Farley Waters, the former owner (and Flo's creditor); Sudie Bond as Flo's mother, Velma Elmore; Joyce Bulifant as Flo's childhood friend, Miriam; Leo Burmester as Randy, the gas jockey; Stephen Keep as Les Kincaid, the piano player; and Lucy Lee Flippin as Fran, Flo's forlorn sister. Hoyt Axton sang the show's theme song.

FLOOR SHOW NBC/CBS

1 JANUARY 1949–1 OCTOBER 1949 (NBC); 13 MAY 1950–24 JUNE 1950 (CBS) One of the first TV programs to feature jazz musicians, Floor Show was hosted by guitarist Eddie Condon. The half-hour show was seen on Saturday nights.

THE FLORIAN ZaBACH SHOW SYNDICATED

1954 Half-hour musical show hosted by fleet-fingered violinist Florian ZaBach.

FLY BY NIGHT CBS

4 APRIL 1991–4 JANUARY 1995 Part of CBS's late-night Crime Time After Prime Time, this one was filmed in Vancouver. It starred Shannon Tweed as Sally "Slick" Monroe, who bought an airplane and founded Slick Air, a charter service which barely kept itself aloft. Flying the plane were David Elliott as the pilot, Mack Sheppard, and Francois Guetary as the copilot, Jean-Phillippe Pasteur. Fly by Night was a regular part of Crime Time After Prime Time until the fall of 1991, then resurfaced occasionally in reruns.

FLYING BLIND FOX

13 SEPTEMBER 1992–18 JULY 1993 Half-hour sitcom about an uptight young New Yorker and the wild woman he met at a Manhattan restaurant. With Corey Parker as Neil Barash, a recent college grad who worked at his father's company; Tea Leoni as Alicia, the uninhibited woman who entered his life; Marcus Giamatti as Neil's ambitious coworker, Ted Sharperson; Michael Tucci as Neil's father, Jeremy Barash, head of Hochman Foods; Clea Lewis and Robert Bauer as Megan and Jordan, Alicia's roommates; and Cristine Rose as Ellen.

THE FLYING DOCTOR SYNDICATED

1959 Richard Denning starred in this half-hour series as an American physician who served the Australian outback by airplane; Jill Adams costarred as his nurse. Donald Hyde was executive producer for Associated British Pictures Corporation; Gross-Krasne Productions distributed the series.

THE FLYING FISHERMAN

See GADABOUT GADDIS

FLYING HIGH CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1978–23 JANUARY 1979 Hour comedy-drama about a trio of flight attendants working for Sunwest Airlines. With Pat Klous as Marcy Bower; Connie Sellecca as Lisa Benton; Kathryn Witt as Pam Bellagio; and Howard Platt as their pilot, Captain Douglas March. Mark Carliner was the executive producer.

THE FLYING NUN ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1967–18 SEPTEMBER 1970 Situation comedy about a novice nun who discovers she could fly. Sally Field starred as Elsie Ethrington, a young woman who joined the Convent San Tanco in Puerto Rico where she was ordained as Sister Bertrille. Because of the trade winds, her light weight, and the lofty coronets worn by members of her order, Sister Bertrille developed the ability to leave the ground. Also featured were Madeline Sherwood as Reverend Mother Plaseato; Marge Redmond as Sister Jacqueline; Shelley Morrison as Sister Sixto; Alejandro Rey as Carlos Ramirez, owner of a nearby nightspot; and Vito Scotti as Gaspar Formento, local police captain. The half-hour series, of which 82 episodes were made, was a Screen Gems production.

FOCUS ON AMERICA ABC

27 JUNE 1961–12 SEPTEMBER 1961; 11 JULY 1962–12 SEPTEMBER 1962; 9 JULY 1963–10 SEPTEMBER 1963 This three-time summer-replacement series was comprised of half-hour documentaries produced by various ABC affiliates throughout the country. ABC newsman Bill Shadel served as the program's host during the 1962 season.

FOLEY SQUARE CBS

11 DECEMBER 1985–8 APRIL 1986; 11 JUNE 1986–23 JULY 1986 Half-hour sitcom set at the Manhattan District Attorney's Office. With Margaret Colin as assistant district attorney Alex Harrigan; Michael Lembeck as her neighbor, Peter Newman; Cathy Silvers as assistant D.A. Molly Dobbs; Sanford Jensen as assistant D.A. Carter deVries; Vernee Watson-Johnson as Alex's secretary, Denise Willums; Israel Juarbe as messenger Angel Gomez; Richard C. Safarian as Spiro, owner of a nearby coffee shop; and Hector Elizondo as the boss, district attorney Jesse Steinberg. Coincidentally, series regulars Cathy Silvers and Michael Lembeck were the second generation of their respective families to costar in a sitcom; their fathers, Phil Silvers and Harvey Lembeck, appeared together in the classic fifties comedy The Phil Silvers Show. Foley Square was created and produced by Diane English, who sought to have the show represent the "women's viewpoint."

FOLLOW THE LEADER CBS
7 JULY 1953–18 AUGUST 1953 On this prime-time game show studio contestants tried to reenact scenes demonstrated by the "leader"—hostess Vera Vague.

FOLLOW THE SUN ABC
17 SEPTEMBER 1961–9 SEPTEMBER 1962 This hour-long adventure series was set in Honolulu; thus, for one season, ABC carried two shows with Hawaiian locales (the other was Hawaiian Eye). On this effort, the heroes were freelance writers rather than detectives. With Barry Coe as Ben Gregory; Brett Halsey as Paul Templin; Gary Lockwood as boatsman Eric Jason; Gigi Perreau as their secretary, Katherine Ann Richards; and Jay Lanin as Lieutenant Frank Roper, Honolulu cop.

FOLLOW YOUR HEART NBC
3 AUGUST 1953–8 JANUARY 1954 A short-lived serial set on Philadelphia's Main Line, Follow Your Heart told the story of a society girl who didn't want to marry the man her mother had in mind for her. Created by Elaine Carrington, the series was inspired by Carrington's popular radio serial, When A Girl Marries. It starred Sallie Brophy as Julie Fielding; Nancy Sheridan as her mother, Mrs. Fielding; and Grant Williams as Julie's boyfriend, Peter Davis, an FBI agent.

THE FONZ AND THE HAPPY DAYS GANG ABC
8 NOVEMBER 1980–18 SEPTEMBER 1982 This Saturday-morning cartoon show borrowed three characters from Happy Days: Fonzie, Richie, and Ralph. Together with their friend Cupcake and their dog, Mr. Cool, they traveled throughout history in a time machine, trying to get back to 1957. In the fall of 1982 the cartoon Fonz hooked up with the cartoon Laverne and Shirley (see The Mork & Mindy/Laverne & Shirley/Fonz Hour).

FOOD FOR THOUGHT SYNDICATED
1956–1961 A daytime talk show hosted by Virginia Graham.

FOODINI THE GREAT ABC
25 AUGUST 1951–29 DECEMBER 1951 A filmed puppet show created by Hope and Morey Bunin. Its star puppets, a bumbling magician named Foodini and his assistant (Pinhead), first appeared on the Bunins' earlier show, Lucky Pup. Foodini had been created by the Bunins in 1932, originally as an organ grinder. His favorite expression was "Gadzooks!" Lou Prentis was the series' human hostess.

FOOFUR NBC
13 SEPTEMBER 1986–3 SEPTEMBER 1988 Hanna-Barbera Saturday-morning cartoon program about a dog who inherited the mansion of his late owner.

FOOT IN THE DOOR CBS
28 MARCH 1983–2 MAY 1983 An American version of the British sitcom Tom, Dick and Harriet, with Harold Gould as Jonah Foot, a widower who left his home in sleepy Pitts Ferry, New Hampshire, to live with his son and daughter-in-law in their Manhattan co-op and to enjoy the New York night life. Also featured were Kenneth Gilman as the son, James Foot; Diana Canova as the daughter-in-law, Harriet Foot; and Marian Mercer as Mrs. Griffin, the manager of the co-op.

FOOTBALL SIDELINES DUMONT
6 OCTOBER 1952–22 DECEMBER 1952 Sportscaster Harry Wismer narrated highlights of the preceding weekend's football games on this fifteen-minute Monday-night series.

FOOTLIGHTS THEATER CBS

4 JULY 1952–26 SEPTEMBER 1952; 3 JULY 1953–25 SEPTEMBER 1953 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen on Friday nights. In 1953, it was a summer replacement for Our Miss Brooks.

FOR ADULTS ONLY SYNDICATED

1971 Talk show cohosted by Barbara Howar and Joyce Susskind.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE CBS

29 JUNE 1959–24 JUNE 1960 A daytime serial that focused on problems in marriages; stories generally lasted one or two weeks. Dr. James A. Peterson, a professional marriage counselor, served as host and commentator. Dyan Cannon made her television debut on this series.

FOR LOVE AND HONOR NBC

23 SEPTEMBER 1983–27 DECEMBER 1983 Presumably inspired by the film An Officer and a Gentleman, this hour serial was set at an Army post. Principal players included Cliff Potts as First Sergeant Gene Allard; Shelley Smith as Captain Carolyn Engel, a doctor; Gary Grubbs as the ambitious and humorless Captain Steven Wiecek; Yaphet Kotto as Sergeant China Bell, a Vietnam veteran who left a wife and child in that country; Rachel Ticotin as Corporal Grace Pavlik; Keenen Ivory Wayans as Private Duke Johnson; Pete Kowanko as Private Chris Dolan; Tony Becker as Private Andy "Utah" Wilson; John Mengatti as Private Dominick Trezo; Shanna Reed as Steven's wife, Phyllis Wiecek; Amy Steel as Sharon, Dolan's girlfriend; and Kelly Preston as Mary Lee, a general's daughter. Though the series garnered some critical praise, it was scheduled on Fridays opposite ABC's Matt Houston and another serial, CBS's Falcon Crest. After the first two or three low-rated episodes were broadcast, NBC ordered executive producer David Gerber to "redesign" the series so that it would more closely resemble other prime-time soap operas.

FOR LOVE OR MONEY CBS

30 JUNE 1958–2 JANUARY 1959 Bill Nimmo hosted this question-and-answer daytime game show.

FOR RICHER, FOR POORER NBC

6 DECEMBER 1977–29 SEPTEMBER 1978 Set in suburban Chicago, For Richer, For Poorer was a revamped version of Lovers and Friends, which had left the air seven months earlier. Both serials were created by Harding Lemay; Paul Rauch was the executive producer of both. The cast included most of the principals of Lovers and Friends, plus a few new faces: Darlene Parks as Megan Cushing; Tom Happer as Bill Saxton, whom Megan was about to marry as the show began; Cynthia Bostick as Connie Ferguson Saxton; Rod Arrants as Megan's brother, Austin Cushing; Laurinda Barrett as the widowed Edith Cushing, mother of Megan and Austin; Albert Stratton as Lester Saxton, Bill's alcoholic father; Patricia Englund as Lester's wife, Josie Saxton; Flora Plumb as their daughter, Eleanor Saxton Kimball; Richard Backus as their son, Jason Saxton; David Abbott as their son, Bentley Saxton; Breon Gorman as their daughter, Tessa Saxton; Stephen Joyce as Eleanor's husband, lawyer George Kimball; Christine Jones as the Saxtons' cousin, Amy Gifford Cushing, wife of Austin; Charles Bateman as investment banker Roger Hamilton; David Knapp as his son, lawyer Desmond Hamilton; Julia MacKenzie as Laurie Brewster Hamilton, Desmond's wife; Robert (Skip) Burton as Lee Ferguson, Connie's brother; Patricia Barry as Viola Brewster; Anthony Call as Fred Ballard; Michael Goodwin as Stan Hillmer; Lynne MacLaren as Barbara Manners; Roy Poole as Ira Ferguson; Sloane Shelton as Mildred Quinn; David Laden as Turk; Chu Chu Mulave as Paco; Stephen Burleigh as Frank Damico; Connie LoCurto as Wendy Prescott; Dennis Romer as Dr. Ray White; and Nancy Snyder as Colleen Griffin.

FOR THE PEOPLE CBS

31 JANUARY 1965–9 MAY 1965 Herbert Brodkin produced this series about an assistant district attorney in New York City. With William Shatner as David Koster; Howard Da Silva as his boss, Anthony Celese; Jessica Walter as his wife, Phyllis; and Lonny Chapman as Frank Malloy, an investigator for the D.A.'s office. Fortunately for Star Trek fans, For the People was canceled (though it was highly acclaimed); had the show been renewed for the 1965–1966 season, Shatner would not have been available to begin work on Star Trek.

FOR YOU, BLACK WOMAN SYNDICATED

1977–1978 Public affairs program from Gerber/Carter Productions, hosted by Alice Travis, former cohost of A.M. New York, a local show.

FOR YOUR PLEASURE

See GIRL ABOUT TOWN

FORD FESTIVAL (THE JAMES MELTON SHOW) NBC

5 APRIL 1951–26 JUNE 1952 Singer James Melton hosted this hour-long variety series, which replaced The Ford Star Revue on Thursdays.

FORD STAR JUBILEE CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1955–3 NOVEMBER 1956 Ford Motor Company sponsored this lavish series of monthly specials, all of which were broadcast in color. Presentations included: "The Judy Garland Show," a variety special which marked her television debut (24 September 1955); "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," with Lloyd Nolan, Barry Sullivan, and Frank Lovejoy (19 November; directed by Franklin Schaffner); Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," with Lauren Bacall and Noel Coward (in his American TV debut; 14 January); "The Day Lincoln was Shot," with Raymond Massey, Lillian Gish, and Jack Lemmon as John Wilkes Booth (11 February; directed by Delbert Mann); "High Tor," a musical version of the play by Maxwell Anderson, with Bing Crosby and Julie Andrews (in her TV debut; 10 March); "Twentieth Century," with Betty Grable and Orson Welles (7 April); Noel Coward's "This Happy Breed," with Coward and Edna Best (5 May); the first television showing of the 1939 film, The Wizard of Oz (3 November 1956).

FORD STAR REVUE NBC

6 JULY 1950–28 SEPTEMBER 1950; 4 JANUARY 1951–29 MARCH 1951 This hour-long variety series began as a summer replacement for Kay Kyser's Kollege of Musical Knowledge and replaced it again that winter. Jack Haley hosted the show, which also featured singer Mindy Carson.

FORD STARTIME NBC

6 OCTOBER 1959–31 MAY 1960 An anthology series of dramatic and variety shows. Presentations included: "The Turn of the Screw," with Ingrid Bergman (her first dramatic role on television, 20 October); "The Wicked Scheme of Jebal Deeks," with Alec Guinness (his American TV dramatic debut, 10 November); "Dear Arthur," with Rex Harrison (a rare television appearance, 22 March); "The Young Juggler," with Tony Curtis (29 March); "Sing Along with Mitch," the first of Mitch Miller's sing-along specials (24 May). Sponsored by the Ford Motor Company, all presentations were done in color.

FORD THEATER (THE FORD TELEVISION THEATER) CBS/NBC/ABC

17 OCTOBER 1948–29 JUNE 1951 (CBS); 2 OCTOBER 1952–27 SEPTEMBER 1956 (NBC); 3 OCTOBER 1956–26 JUNE 1957 (ABC) The Ford Television Theater was CBS's first sponsored dramatic anthology series, beginning in 1948 as a once-a-month effort. By the end of its run the show had been aired over all three major networks, sometimes as a half hour and sometimes as an hour, sometimes live and sometimes filmed. Marc Daniels produced and directed the series when it was aired on CBS; Jules Bricken later produced and directed it during its NBC run. Among the many stars who played their first major TV roles on the series were Ernest Borgnine ("Night Visitor," 29 April 1954), Michael Connors ("Yours for a Dream," 8 April 1954), Vince Edwards ("Garrity's Sons," 24 March 1955), Barbara Hale ("The Divided Heart," 27 November 1952), Judy Holliday ("She Loves Me Not," 4 November 1949), Robert Horton ("Portrait of Lydia," 16 December 1954), Tab Hunter ("While We're Young," 28 April 1955), Peter Lawford ("The Son-In-Law," 30 April 1953), Donna Reed ("Portrait of Lydia"), Gilbert Roland ("The Arden Woodsman," 14 January 1954), Ann Sheridan ("Malaya Incident," 18 June 1953), Roger Smith ("Never Lend Money to a Woman," 19 January 1956), Barry Sullivan ("As the Flame Dies," 19 November 1953), Claire Trevor ("Alias Nora Hale," 31 December 1953), James Whitmore ("For Value Received," 18 February 1954), Shelley Winters ("Mantrap," 28 January 1954), and Robert Young ("Keep It in the Family," 27 May 1954).

FOREIGN INTRIGUE SYNDICATED

1951–1955 Sheldon Reynolds produced this half-hour adventure series, which was filmed in Europe. From 1951 to 1953 the show starred Jerome Thor and Sydna Scott as Robert Cannon and Helen Davis, reporters for the Consolidated News. During the 1953–1954 season James Daly and Ann Preville starred as Mike Powers and Pat Bennett, reporters for the Associated News. The third, and final, version of the series starred Gerald Mohr as Chris Storm, the American owner of a Vienna hotel. Each of the three shows was later syndicated under a different title: Those with Thor and Scott were titled Dateline: Europe, those with Daly and Preville as Overseas Adventures, and those with Mohr as Cross Current. Foreign Intrigue also holds the distinction of being the first American series televised in Canada when broadcasting began in that country in 1952.

THE FOREST RANGERS SYNDICATED

1964 A half-hour adventure series produced in Canada. With Graydon Gould as Ranger George Keeley of the Forest Rangers; Michael Zenon as Joe Two Rivers, an Indian; Gordon Pinsent as Sergeant Scott; and Rolland Bedard as Uncle Raoul. Also featured were the Junior Rangers, a group of youngsters who helped out the Rangers: Ralph Endersby as Chub; Rex Hagon as Peter; Peter Tully as Mike; George Allen as Ted; Susan Conway as Kathy; and Barbara Pierce as Denise.

FOREVER FERNWOOD SYNDICATED

1977–1978 Following the departure of Louise Lasser from Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, production of the serial resumed, after a summer hiatus, under this title. Most of the gang from MH2 returned: Greg Mullavey as Tom Hartman, Mary Kay Place as Loretta Haggers, Graham Jarvis as Charlie Haggers, Dody Goodman as Martha Shumway, Debralee Scott as Cathy Shumway, Claudia Lamb as Heather Hartman, Victor Kilian as Grandpa Larkin, Marian Mercer as Wanda, and Dabney Coleman as Merle Jeeter. Tab Hunter, seldom seen on TV since the early 1960s, replaced Philip Bruns as George Shumway; it was explained that George had accidentally fallen into a chemical vat at work and had undergone plastic surgery. Other cast members included: Shelley Fabares as Eleanor Major; Judy Kahan as Penny; Richard Hatch as T'Harmon; Dennis Burkley as Mac; Severn Darden as Popesco, a balloonist; Joe Penny as Sal; Randall Carver as Jeffrey DeVito; Shelley Berman as Mel Beach; Renée Taylor as Annabelle; Orson Bean as Reverend Brim, Archbishop of Ohio; Skip Young (formerly of Ozzie and Harriet) as Freddie Friesen; and James Staley as Dr. Szymon.

FOREVER KNIGHT CBS/SYNDICATED

5 MAY 1992–23 AUGUST 1994 (CBS); 1994– (SYNDICATED) Originally broadcast as part of CBS's late-night umbrella, Crime Time After Prime Time, Forever Knight starred Geraint Wyn Davies as Nick Knight, a 700-year-old vampire who desired to return to mortality. He stopped drinking human blood and joined a big city police force (working only the night shift, of course) where he battled not only criminals, but also other vampires who disapproved of his new lifestyle. Also on hand were Catherine Disher as police pathologist Dr. Natalie Lambert, the only mortal who knew Nick's secret; John Kapelos as Nick's wisecracking partner, Don Schanke; Nigel Bennett as Lacroix, Nick's vampire mentor; Deborah Duchene as the vampire Janette, Nick's former love interest; Gary Farmer (1992–1993) as Nick's boss, Captain Stonetree; and Natsuko Ohama (1994– ) as the new boss, Captain Amanda Cohen. The hour series was broadcast regularly from May 1992 to August 1993, and popped up occasionally on CBS's late-night schedule in 1994. New episodes were made for first-run syndication in the fall of 1994. In the fall of 1995 new episodes were shown first in syndication and shortly thereafter on the USA Cable Network. The show was filmed in Toronto.

THE FORSYTE SAGA NET

5 OCTOBER 1969–29 MARCH 1970 A twenty-six-part adaptation of John Galsworthy's series of novels, The Forsyte Saga was produced in England (in black and white) by the BBC in 1967. Spanning the period from 1879 to 1926, it chronicled the lives of the members of a moderately wealthy English family against a backdrop of Victorian and Edwardian life. Principal players included: Kenneth More as Jolyon (Jo) Forsyte, the heir apparent; Eric Porter as lawyer Soames Forsyte; Nyree Dawn Porter as Irene; Susan Hampshire as Fleur; Margaret Tyzack as Winnifred; Nicholas Pennell as Michael Mont; Joseph O'Connor as Jolyon, Sr. (Old Jolyon); Fay Compton as Aunt Ann; Lana Morris as Helene; Martin Jarvis as Jon Forsyte; Ursula Howells as Frances; and George Woodbridge as Swithin. Donald Wilson was the producer, David Giles and James Cellan Jones the directors.

FORTUNE DANE ABC

15 FEBRUARY 1986–27 MARCH 1986 Carl Weathers had the title role in this hour crime show; he played an ex-cop who moved from Twin Rivers to Bay City, where he became a special agent for the mayor. Also featured were Alberta Watson as assistant district attorney Amy Steiner; Penny Fuller as the mayor, Amanda Harding; Daphne Ashbrook as Speed Davenport, another special agent; Joe Dallesandro as "Perfect" Tommy Nicautri, a Bay City cop who worked with Fortune and Speed; and Morgan Upton as Chief Bukowski.

FORTUNE HUNTER FOX

4 SEPTEMBER 1994–2 OCTOBER 1994 An early casualty of the 1994-1995 season, Fortune Hunter was an hour spy show. It starred Mark Frankel as Carlton Dial, a former government agent now working for Intercept. Dial had been fitted with a micro-camera the size of a contact lens, which enabled a "monitor partner" at headquarters to see and hear what Dial did. John Robert Hoffman appeared as Harry Flack, the monitor partner, and Anne Francis was the boss, Mrs. Brady. Steven Aspis created the series.

48 HOURS CBS

19 JANUARY 1988– Each week on this prime-time news program, a forty-eight-hour slice of a single topic was distilled into a single broadcast hour. Topics ranged from the serious (drugs, the 1988 New Hampshire primary, the Israeli army) to the light (dogs, compulsive shoppers, and, in a rare ninety-minute program, rock star Paul McCartney). Dan Rather was the anchor, Bernard Goldberg the principal correspondent. The arrival of 48 Hours gave CBS News its third hour of prime time (together with 60 Minutes and West 57th), a noteworthy achievement.

FOUL PLAY ABC

26 JANUARY 1981–23 FEBRUARY 1981 A light crime show, based on the movie about a bumbling cop and his librarian girlfriend. With Barry Bostwick as Sergeant Tucker Pendleton of the San Francisco Police; Deborah Raffin as Gloria Mundy; Richard Romanus as Pendleton's boss, Captain Lombardi; Mary Jo Catlett as Stella, Gloria's co-worker; and twins Greg and John Rice as Gloria's diminutive landlords, Ben and Beau.

FOUL-UPS, BLEEPS & BLUNDERS ABC

10 JANUARY 1984–16 OCTOBER 1984 Like NBC's TV's Bloopers & Practical Jokes, this series presented clips of "outtakes" and tapes of practical jokes played on celebrities. The half-hour show was hosted by Steve Lawrence and Don Rickles.

FOUR JUST MEN SYNDICATED

1959 Half-hour adventure series filmed largely in Europe. The Four Just Men were former comrades during World War II and later joined forces to combat crime on an international scale; each episode featured just one of the Four Just Men. With Dan Dailey as Tim Collier, an American reporter; Jack Hawkins as Ben Manfred, a British detective; Richard Conte as Jeff Ryder, an American attorney living in Paris; and Vittorio DeSica as Rico Poccari, an Italian hotelier with connections. Jack Wrather produced the series in association with the J. Arthur Rank Organisation.

THE FOUR SEASONS CBS

29 JANUARY 1984–5 AUGUST 1984 Created by Alan Alda, this half-hour sitcom was a continuation of Alda's 1981 film about adult friendships. As the TV series unfolded, Danny and Claudia Zimmer had left Manhattan to join their friends in Southern California. Featured were Jack Weston (repeating his film role) as neurotic dentist Danny Zimmer; Marcia Rodd as his wife, Claudia Zimmer; Tony Roberts as Ted Callan, who dabbled in real estate; Joanna Kerns as Ted's girlfriend, Pat, a stuntwoman; Allan Arbus as Boris, a lawyer who gave up his practice to open a bike shop; Barbara Babcock as Boris's wife, Lorraine, an orthopedist; Beatrice Alda as Ted's daughter, Lisa Callan; and Elizabeth Alda as Beth Burroughs, who headed west with Lisa hoping to find a job as a writer. Beatrice and Elizabeth Alda had also appeared in the film; they are the real-life daughters of Alan Alda, who appeared occasionally in the series as lawyer Jack Burroughs.

FOUR STAR PLAYHOUSE CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1952–27 SEPTEMBER 1956 This half-hour dramatic anthology series originally featured appearances by the actors who founded Four Star Films: Dick Powell, Charles Boyer, Joel McCrea, and Rosalind Russell. McCrea and Russell left shortly after the inception of the project and were replaced by David Niven and Ida Lupino. Several episodes starred Dick Powell as Willie Dante, operator of Dante's Inferno, a San Francisco nightspot; these episodes were rebroadcast in 1956 as The Best in Mystery (see also that title). Other notable appearances included those by Nigel Bruce (in "A String of Beads," his only U.S. TV role, 21 January 1954), Ronald Colman (in "The Lost Silk Hat," his first TV dramatic appearance, 23 October 1952), and Joan Fontaine (in "The Girl on the Park Bench," her first major dramatic role on television, 3 December 1953).

FOUR STAR REVUE NBC

4 OCTOBER 1950–18 JULY 1951 This Wednesday-night variety hour featured four rotating hosts: Danny Thomas, Jack Carson, Jimmy Durante, and Ed Wynn. In the fall of 1951, more hosts were added, and the show was retitled All-Star Revue (see also that title).

FOUR-IN-ONE NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1970–8 SEPTEMBER 1971 The umbrella title for four miniseries introduced by NBC. See: McCloud; Night Gallery; The Psychiatrist; San Francisco International Airport.

FOURSQUARE COURT ABC

16 MARCH 1952–22 JUNE 1952 Norman Brokenshire hosted this unusual panel show on which convicted criminals, all wearing masks, discussed their bad deeds. Other experts in the area of criminal law also participated in the panel discussions. David Lown and Albert T. Knudsen were the producers.

THE FOURTH R NBC

28 MARCH 1954–26 MAY 1957 The fourth "R" stood for "religion" in this Sunday-morning series, which was produced by several different religious organizations.

THE FOX CUBHOUSE FOX

3 OCTOBER 1994– Fox's weekday morning children's show consisted of three segments. In "Jim Henson's Animal Show with Stinky and Jake," shown twice a week, muppets Stinky (a skunk) and Jake (a polar bear) introduced films about real animals and interviewed muppet guest creatures. In "Johnson and Friends," also shown twice a week, the toys in a boy's bedroom (including a pink elephant named Johnson) came to life. In "Rimba's Island," a live-action segment shown once a week, a group of multi-colored animals lived together on an island. All three segments were introduced by a young woman known as Rosie (played by Nancy Mura).

FRACTURED FLICKERS SYNDICATED

1963 Silent films from Hollywood's early days were embellished with "funny" dialogue on this half-hour series hosted by Hans Conried.

FRACTURED PHRASES NBC

27 SEPTEMBER 1965–31 DECEMBER 1965 Art James hosted this daytime game show on which contestants tried to decipher sayings or titles of books and songs after seeing them spelled phonetically.

FRAGGLE ROCK HBO

10 JANUARY 1983–28 MARCH 1988 HBO's first original children's series was supplied by Jim Henson. The live-action puppet show was set in the rock beneath the house of a scientist named Doc, where dwelt three groups of creatures: the fun-loving Fraggles, the small, tower-building Doozers, and the large Gorgs. In 1987 a cartoon series based on the characters premiered on network TV: see below.

FRAGGLE ROCK NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1987–3 SEPTEMBER 1988 Saturday-morning cartoon version of the Jim Henson-produced puppet show that previously ran on the HBO cable service.

THE FRANCES LANGFORD-DON AMECHE SHOW ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1951–14 MARCH 1952 Frances Langford and Don Ameche, who played The Bickersons on radio, hosted this daytime variety hour. A regular feature of the show was "The Couple Next Door," with Jack Lemmon and Cynthia Stone (Lemmon's wife at the time) as young marrieds; this sketch formed the basis of their 1952 series, Heaven for Betsy. Also featured on the Langford-Ameche show were Neil Hamilton and the Tony Romano Orchestra. Produced by Ward Byron.

THE FRANK LEAHY SHOW ABC

27 SEPTEMBER 1953–6 DECEMBER 1953 Fifteen-minute Sunday-night sports show, hosted by football coach Frank Leahy.

FRANK McGEE: HERE AND NOW NBC

29 SEPTEMBER 1961–29 DECEMBER 1961 Friday-night news analysis and commentary with NBC correspondent Frank McGee. Chet Hagan produced the series.

THE FRANK SINATRA SHOW CBS

7 OCTOBER 1950–1 APRIL 1952 Frank Sinatra's first series, a musical variety show, inexplicably failed to catch on during its first season; for the 1951–1952 season, it was cut from an hour to a half hour and scheduled opposite Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater, where, like virtually all of Berle's competition, it perished. Regulars on the show included Erin O'Brien and comic Ben Blue.

THE FRANK SINATRA SHOW ABC

18 OCTOBER 1957–27 JUNE 1958 Frank Sinatra's second attempt at a series proved as unsuccessful as the first. This time he was given free reign (and a reported $3 million) by ABC. The series was a mixed bag—a combination of dramatic shows (some of which starred Sinatra, the rest of which were introduced by him), musical programs, and one or two live half hours. Despite unimposing competition (CBS's Mr. Adams and Eve and NBC's M Squad), the show was canceled after one season.

FRANKENSTEIN JR. AND THE IMPOSSIBLES CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1966–7 SEPTEMBER 1968 Saturday-morning cartoon show from the Hanna-Barbera Studios; Frankenstein Jr. was a giant robot activated by Buzz Conroy, and the Impossibles were a team of super-powered government agents (Coil Man, Multi Man, and Fluid Man) masquerading as a rock and roll trio. The series was rerun in 1976–1977.

THE FRANKIE CARLE SHOW NBC

7 AUGUST 1956–29 OCTOBER 1956 Frankie Carle hosted this fifteen-minute musical series, which preceded the network news. It was first seen on Tuesdays, later on Mondays, and was officially titled The Golden Touch of Frankie Carle.

FRANKIE LAINE TIME (THE FRANKIE LAINE SHOW) CBS/SYNDICATED

20 JULY 1955–7 SEPTEMBER 1955; 1 AUGUST 1956–19 SEPTEMBER 1956 (CBS); 1955–1957 (SYNDICATED) One of America's most popular singers during the pre-rock-and-roll years, Frankie Laine twice hosted a summer replacement series for Arthur Godfrey and His Friends on Wednesday nights entitled Frankie Laine Time. In 1957 he hosted a syndicated half-hour variety program, The Frankie Laine Show. Laine is perhaps best remembered by television audiences as the vocalist of the Rawhide theme.

FRANK'S PLACE CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1987–17 MARCH 1988; 16 JULY 1988–1 OCTOBER 1988 One of the most critically acclaimed shows of the 1987–1988 season, Frank's Place offered a rare look at contemporary black culture in an urban black community; unfortunately, the series never found its audience (or perhaps vice versa) and was canceled after one season. The brainchild of Hugh (WKRP in Cincinnati) Wilson, it starred Tim Reid (also of WKRP) as Frank Parrish, a Boston professor of Italian Renaissance history who inherited a New Orleans restaurant from his estranged father; leaving the white academic world, Parrish moved into his late father's apartment above the restaurant and gradually rediscovered his cultural heritage. Wilson and Reid, who were also the executive producers, wisely set the restaurant not in the touristy French Quarter, but squarely in the city's black community (after making several visits to New Orleans, they patterned their restaurant, Chez Louisiane, after the real Chez Helene, run by Austin Leslie). Frank's Place had more in common with the "dramadies" of the late 1980s (shows like Hooperman, The "Slap" Maxwell Story, and The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd) than with the traditional sitcoms: it was filmed with a single camera, with no studio audience and no laugh track. It also dealt with some serious issues, including drug use and suicide. Oddly, it was originally scheduled Mondays at 8 P.M., a poor slot considering its look and lack of appeal to young viewers. During its one-year run it was moved four more times, a frustrating pattern that effectively prevented it from building a regular audience.

In addition to Reid (who won a 1988 NAACP Image Award for his portrayal), the predominantly black ensemble cast included: Daphne Maxwell Reid (Tim Reid's real-life wife) as mortician Hanna Griffin, a Chez Louisiane regular who became Parrish's love interest; Robert Harper as Si "Bubba" Weisberger, one of the few white patrons; Francesca P. Roberts as waitress Anna-May; Tony Burton as Big Arthur, the chef; Frances E. Williams as waitress Miss Marie Walker; Don Yesso as assistant chef Shorty LaRoux; Charles Lampkin as bartender Tiger Shepin; Lincoln Kilpatrick as Reverend Deal; William Thomas, Jr., as Cool Charles, part-time bartender and handyman; and Virginia Capers as Hanna's mother, Bertha Griffin-

Lamour, also a mortician. As its theme music the series employed Louis Armstrong's "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans."

FRANNIE'S TURN CBS

13 SEPTEMBER 1992–10 OCTOBER 1992 Half-hour sitcom about an overworked New York seamstress. With Miriam Margolyn as Frannie Escobar; Tomas Milian as her Cuban-American husband, Joseph; Alice Drummond as her bedridden live-in mother-in-law, Rosa; Phoebe Augustine as her daughter, Olivia; Stivi Paskoski as her son, Eddie; LaTanya Richardson as her co-worker, Vivian; and Taylor Negron as her boss, Armando, a fashion designer.

FRASIER NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1993– Successful sitcom on which Kelsey Grammer continued the role of psychiatrist Frasier Crane, which he had originated on Cheers. As the new series unfolded, Dr. Crane moved from Boston to Seattle to host a radio call-in show; upon his arrival, his irascible father moved in with him. The cast also included John Mahoney as Frasier's widowed father, Martin, an ex-cop; David Hyde Pierce as Frasier's younger but equally high strung brother, Niles (also a psychiatrist); Jane Leeves as Daphne Moon, Martin's home health care aide; Peri Gilpin as Frasier's producer, Roz Doyle; and Dan Butler as Bulldog Briscoe, the womanizing host of the radio station's sports call-in show. Mercedes Ruehl joined the cast in 1995 as station manager Kate Costas. Almost as popular as the human regulars was a Jack Russell terrier known as Moose, who played Eddie, Martin's dog.

FREAKAZOID! WB

9 SEPTEMBER 1995– The central character in this Saturday morning cartoon show was a mild-mannered teenager named Dexter Douglas, whose alter ego was teen superhero Freakazoid!

FRED AND BARNEY MEET THE THING

See THE FLINTSTONES COMEDY HOUR

THE FRED WARING SHOW CBS

17 APRIL 1949–30 MAY 1954; 22 JULY 1957–30 AUGUST 1957 Fred Waring organized his first band in 1920; by 1932 he and his group, the Pennsylvanians, had their own radio show. Waring's assemblage usually numbered about sixty-five musicians and singers. Among the featured performers were Joanne Wheatley, Daisy Bernier, Joe Marino, Keith and Sylvia Textor, Virginia and Livingston Gearhart, and Hugh Brannum, who later played Mr. Green Jeans on Captain Kangaroo. Waring's first TV series was a half-hour show, which ran on Sunday nights for most of its run; it was produced and directed by Bob Banner. Waring's 1957 series was a daytime show, a six-week summer replacement for The Garry Moore Show broadcast from Waring's Pennsylvania resort, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware.

THE FREDDY MARTIN SHOW (THE HAZEL BISHOP SHOW) NBC

12 JULY 1951–5 DECEMBER 1951 This half-hour musical series, sponsored by Hazel Bishop cosmetics, was introduced as a summer replacement for Martin Kane, Private Eye and was later given another time slot. Bandleader Freddy Martin hosted the series; one of its featured vocalists was Merv Griffin.

FREDDY'S NIGHTMARES SYNDICATED

1988–1990 A gory hour anthology series based on the Nightmare on Elm Street films. Robert Englund reprised his movie role as Freddy Krueger, who wore a glove with long, straight-edge razors for nails and could insert himself into teenagers' dreams. In some cities where the show was aired in an early time slot, complaints were received that the show was causing real nightmares in younger viewers; the distributor dutifully advised its clients to run the show later at night. In a further effort to reassure the viewing public, the producers issued a statement that "no one under the age of 18 will be murdered on this show." Nevertheless, the National Coalition on Television Violence named the series (together with Friday the 13th) TV's "most violent" in 1989.

FREE COUNTRY ABC

24 JUNE 1978–22 JULY 1978 Half-hour comedy-drama starring Rob Reiner and Judy Kahan as Joseph and Anna Bresner, Lithuanian immigrants who came to America in 1906 and 1909 respectively. The five-part series spanned almost seventy years, and each show was "hosted" by Reiner as the eighty-nine-year-old Joseph. Reiner and Phil Mishkin created the series and were its executive producers; Gareth Davies was the producer. Also featured were Larry Gelman and Renée Lippin as the Bresners' friends, Leo and Ida Gewurtzman.

FREE SPIRIT ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1989–21 JANUARY 1990 An updated version of the 1970 sitcom, Nanny and the Professor, this one starred Corinne Bohrer as Winnie Goodwinn, a winsome witch who was hired as a housekeeper for a motherless family; Franc Luz as the father, attorney Thomas J. Harper, the only member of the family who didn't know of Winnie's true identity; Paul Scherrer as son Robb, fifteen; Alyson Hannigan as daughter Jessie, thirteen; and Edan Gross as son Gene, ten. The family was originally to have been called the Haggartys, but the surname was changed to Harper after production had started. The switch thus gave ABC the odd distinction of having two new sitcoms on its fall schedule with families named Harper (Homeroom, featuring a black Harper family, was the other); both flopped.

FREE TO CHOOSE PBS

11 JANUARY 1980–14 MARCH 1980 Ten-part series on capitalism and free enterprise, hosted by economist Milton Friedman.

FREE WILLY ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1994– Saturday morning cartoon series based on the popular movie of the same title. On the TV version Willy the whale had been freed, and could communicate with a twelve-year-old boy named Jesse.

FREEBIE AND THE BEAN CBS

6 DECEMBER 1980–24 JANUARY 1981 An early casualty of the 1980–1981 season, Freebie and the Bean was an hour crime show derived from the motion picture of the same title. It starred Hector Elizondo as Don "the Bean" Delgado, and Tom Mason as Tim "Freebie" Walker, a pair of plainclothes cops assigned to the District Attorney. William Daniels costarred as Walter Cruikshack, the D.A., and Mel Stewart was featured as "Axle," the police mechanic.

FREEDOM RINGS CBS

3 MARCH 1953–27 AUGUST 1953 John Beal hosted this audience participation show, on which contestants acted out household problems with members of the show's cast—Alice Ghostley, Malcolm Broderick, Joy Hilton, Chuck Taylor, and Ted Tiller. Applause from the studio audience determined the prizewinning contestants. Lloyd Gross produced the half-hour show, which was seen Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

THE FRENCH CHEF NET-PBS

1962–1973 Half-hour series on French cooking. Thanks to its host, the irrepressible Julia Child, the show was enjoyed by those not interested in French cuisine as well as by gastronomes. See also Julia Child & Company.

THE FRESH PRINCE OF BEL-AIR NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1990– Rap musician Will Smith (latter half of the duo D. J. Jazzy Jeff and The Fresh Prince) starred in this half-hour sitcom as, appropriately, Will Smith, a streetwise West Philadelphia teenager who was sent to live with rich relatives in ritzy Bel Air, California. Costarring were James Avery as Will's uncle, lawyer

Phillip Banks; Janet Hubert as Philip's wife, Vivian Banks; Alfonso Ribeiro as their preppy son, Carlton, who worshipped Bryant Gumbel; Karyn Parsons as their narcissistic teen daughter, Hilary; Tatyana M. Ali as their younger daughter, Ashley, Will's closest friend in his new home; and Joseph Marcell as the Banks's officious butler, Geoffrey Butler. Occasionally featured was Jeffrey A. Townes as Jazzy Jeff, Will's pal (in real life, of course, Townes was the former half of rap duo D. J. Jazzy Jeff and the Fresh Prince).

In the spring of 1993 Phillip (who had become a judge) and Vivian had a baby boy, Nicholas. Janet Hubert (by now known as Janet Hubert-Whitten) left the series at the end of the 1992–1993 season (she later filed suit against NBC and Smith for defamatory statements allegedly made by Smith about her departure). She was replaced by Daphne Maxwell Reid. In the fall 1993 premiere, one character—Jazzy Jeff—alluded to the personnel change. Jazz himself was married in 1993; Karen Malina White appeared occasionally as his wife, Jewel. Will and Carlton were now attending college at the University of Los Angeles. In the fall of 1994 young Nicky, who had been born only eighteen months earlier, was now played by a five-year-old, Ross Bagley. Once again, Jazz noted the difference as he stared incredulously at the new Nicky (attentive viewers would also have heard him ask Will, "Who's playing the mother this year?"). In the spring of 1995, Will and his girlfriend, Lisa Wilkes (played by Nia Long) headed for the altar, but did not tie the knot.

FRESHMAN DORM CBS

11 AUGUST 1992–9 SEPTEMBER 1992 Hour dramatic series about seven new arrivals at a southern California college. With Paige French as Lulu Abercrombie, the rich kid; Arlene Taylor as Kamala Consuelo Richardo, the poor kid who told her new friends that her name was K. C. Richards; Robyn Lively as Molly Flynn, the wholesome kid from Milwaukee; Matthew Fox as Danny Foley, Molly's boyfriend; Kevin Mambo as Alex Woods, the black guy; Casper Van Dien as Alex's roommate, Zack Taylor, the surfer; Justin Lazard as Joe Ellis; Lisa Fuller as Cynthia; and Robin Thomas as Sydney.

FRESNO CBS

16 NOVEMBER 1986–20 NOVEMBER 1986 Fresno was a rarity in television programming: a comedy miniseries. The five-part, six-hour, $12-million production was an effective spoof of prime-time soap operas. Set in Fresno, California, it told the tale of two warring raisin dynasties, the Kensingtons and the Canes. The large cast included Carol Burnett as Charlotte Kensington; Dabney Coleman as Tyler Cane; Charles Grodin as Charlotte's son, Cane Kensington; Teri Garr as Cane's wife, Talon; Gregory Harrison as Torch; Teresa Ganzel as Bobbi Jo Bobb; Valerie Mahaffey as Tiffany Kensington; and Pat Corley as Earl Duke. Barry Kemp created the miniseries, which was rerun on CBS in July 1989.

FRIDAY NIGHT VIDEOS NBC

29 JULY 1983– The surprising popularity of MTV, the twenty-four-hour all-music cable service, led to the creation of this late-night (12:30 A.M. Fridays) series. Like MTV's service, the program consists mainly of short video clips of rock and roll groups, either performing their material or appearing in visual dramatizations of the songs. Also featured are occasional interviews and vintage clips of yesterday's rockers. The offscreen announcer was Nick Michaels, but in November of 1983 the program began to be hosted each week by a celebrity guest. Among the more unusual celebrity pairings were sex adviser Dr. Ruth Westheimer and rocker Ozzy Osbourne, who cohosted on 2 May 1986. In 1985 Scott Muni took over as announcer. In June of 1987 the show's late-night time slot was moved back another hour (to 1:30 A.M.) in order to make room for the Friday telecast of Late Night with David Letterman. New York disc jockey Frankie Crocker became the anouncer in 1990, and began appearing on camera in 1991, when Tom Kenny was named permanent host. Tonight show bandleader Branford Marsalis was named host in April 1993, and served until 1994, when comedian Henry Cho took over. In January 1994 the series' title was shortened to Friday Night; by now it presented in-studio performances by musical acts, movie reviews, and other segments, in addition to its stable of rock videos.

FRIDAY THE 13TH: THE SERIES SYNDICATED

1987–1990 This Canadian-produced hour fantasy series borrowed the title, and nothing else, from the film series. The TV show told the tale of two young cousins who traveled around, trying to recover the hexed antiques that had been sold from their late uncle's shop; each of the sought-for items had caused, or would soon cause, evil to its owner. With Robey as Micki Foster; John D. LeMay (1987–1989) as Ryan Dallion; Steven Monarque (1989–1990) as Johnny Ventura, who replaced Ryan as Micki's sleuthing partner; and Chris Wiggins as Jack Marshak, a retired magician who sometimes helped the duo.

FRIDAYS ABC

11 APRIL 1980–22 OCTOBER 1982 This seventy-minute late-night comedy-variety series was broadcast, not surprisingly, on Friday nights. Originally criticized as a clone of NBC's Saturday Night Live, the show slowly acquired its own identity; after a two-and-a-half-year run, it was dropped from ABC's schedule as ABC News Nightline expanded from four nights a week to five. Fridays' resident company included Mark Blankfield, Maryedith Burrell, Melanie Chartoff, Larry David, Darrow Igus, Brandis Kemp, Bruce Mahler, Michael Richards, and John Roarke. Veteran comedy writer Jack Burns headed up the writing staff and also served as the announcer.

FRIENDS ABC

25 MARCH 1979–22 APRIL 1979 Wholesome hour miniseries about three suburban sixth graders. With Charles Aiken as Pete Richards; Jill Whelan as Nancy Wilks; Jarrod Johnson as Randy Summerfield; Andy Romano and Karen Morrow as Pete's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richards; Roger Robinson and Janet MacLachlan as Randy's parents, Warren and Jane Summerfield; Dennis Redfield as Nancy's divorced father, Mr. Wilks; Charles Lampkin as Randy's grandfather; Alicia Fleer as Cynthia, Pete's sixteen-year-old sister. A. J. Carothers created the series, and Aaron Spelling and Douglas S. Cramer were the executive producers.

FRIENDS NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1994– Created by David Crane and Marta Kauffman, this ensemble comedy was the most popular new sitcom of the 1994–1995 season, finishing eighth in the Nielsen ratings. Its central characters were six twenty-somethings who lived in New York and hung out at a neighborhood coffee bar, the Central Perk Cafe. Featured were Jennifer Aniston as waitress Rachel Green; Courteney Cox as her roommate, Monica Geller, an assistant chef; Lisa Kudrow as Phoebe Buffay (and occasionally as her twin sister Ursula, who originally appeared on Mad About You); Matt LeBlanc as aspiring actor Joey Tribbiani; Matthew Perry as Joey's roommate, Chandler Bing (their place was across the hall from Rachel and Monica's); and David Schwimmer as Monica's recently divorced brother, Ross Geller. Ross and Rachel became more than friends, though Ross also had another girlfirend (Julie, played by Heather Tom). He also became a father during the first season, as his ex-wife (who had left him for another woman) gave birth to their child.

The success of Friends spawned a host of similar sitcoms in the fall of 1995. See, for example, Can't Hurry Love, The Crew, The Drew Carey Show, First Time Out, Misery Loves Company, Partners, and The Single Guy.

FRIENDS AND LOVERS CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1974–4 JANUARY 1975 Set in Boston, this situation comedy starred Paul Sand as Robert Dreyfuss, a young man who wins a job as bass violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra (the show's official title was Paul Sand in Friends and Lovers). Also featured were Michael Pataki as his brother, Charlie Dreyfuss; Penny Marshall as Charlie's wife, Janice; Dick Wesson as Jack Reardon, orchestra manager; Steve Landesberg as Robert's friend, Fred Meyerbach, a violinist; and Craig Richard Nelson as Mason Woodruff, the young conductor. Henry Winkler guest-starred in the premiere episode. Like Bridget Loves Bernie, Friends and Lovers was scheduled between two blockbusters (All in the Family and The Mary Tyler Moore Show) and was canceled when it failed to win large enough ratings. Executive producers: James L. Brooks and Allan Burns. Produced by Steve Pritzker for MTM Enterprises.

FRIENDS OF MAN SYNDICATED
1974 Animals were the subject of this half-hour documentary series narrated by Glenn Ford. Executive producer: John Must. Produced by Tony Bond, Henning Jacobsen, and Rupert McNee.

FROM A BIRD'S EYE VIEW NBC
29 MARCH 1971–16 AUGUST 1971 This comedy, imported from England, centered around two stewardesses employed by International Airlines. With Millicent Martin as Millie Grover, the British one; Patte Finley as Maggie Ralston, the American one; Peter Jones as Mr. Clyde Beauchamp, their supervisor; and Robert Cawdron as Uncle Bert, Millie's uncle.

FROM HERE TO ETERNITY NBC
10 MARCH 1980–9 APRIL 1980; 3 AUGUST 1980–16 AUGUST 1980 A prime-time serial set in wartime Hawaii following the attack on Pearl Harbor, From Here to Eternity picked up where James Jones's novel left off. Principal players included William Devane as Sergeant Milt Warden; Barbara Hershey as Karen Holmes, who had an affair with Warden; Roy Thinnes as Major Dana Holmes, her husband; Don Johnson as Jeff Prewitt; Kim Basinger as prostitute Lorene Rogers; Lacey Neuhaus as Emily Austin; and Daniel Spielberg as Captain Ross. The hour series was introduced on NBC Movies for Television in 1979.

FROM JUMPSTREET PBS
1980–1981 A thirteen-week series on the history of black music, hosted by Oscar Brown, Jr.

FROM THESE ROOTS NBC
30 JUNE 1958–29 DECEMBER 1961 This daytime serial is fondly remembered by soap opera fans as a high quality show; it was also the spawning ground for a number of performers who went on to play major roles in other soaps. Created by Frank Provo, the series was produced by Paul Lammers and directed by Don Wallace. The cast included: Rod Henrickson and Joseph Macauley as Ben Fraser, editor of the Strathfield Record; Ann Flood as Liz Fraser, his daughter, a fiction writer; Helen Shields as his daughter, Emily Fraser Benson; Frank Marth as Ben Fraser, Jr.; Julie Bovasso and Tresa Hughes as Rose Corelli Fraser, his wife; Len Wayland and Tom Shirley as Dr. Buck Weaver; Billie Lou Watt as Maggie Barker Weaver, his wife; Robert Mandan as playwright David Allen, who married Liz Fraser; Barbara Berjer as Lynn Franklin; Audra Lindley as Laura Tompkins; Millette Alexander as Gloria Saxon; Henderson Forsythe as Jim Benson, Emily's husband; Craig Huebing as Tom Jennings; David Sanders as Bruce Crawford; and Vera Allen as Kass, Ben Sr.'s maid. The serial wrapped up its 915 episodes by tying up its loose ends happily.

THE FRONT PAGE CBS
29 SEPTEMBER 1949–26 JANUARY 1950 Franklin Heller directed this Thursday-night series, which was based on the film of the same title. John Daly starred as editor Walter Burns; Richard Boone also appeared as a regular. One week after the show's cancellation, Daly and Heller moved on to a new game show created by Mark Goodson and Bill Todman called What's My Line?

FRONT PAGE FOX
26 JUNE 1993–26 APRIL 1994 Prime time weekly investigative series, with five young reporters: Ron Reagan, Josh Mankiewicz, Andria Hall, Tony Harris, and Vicki Liviakis.

FRONT PAGE DETECTIVE DUMONT

16 MARCH 1951–19 SEPTEMBER 1952; 16 OCTOOBER 1953–13 NOVEMBER 1953 Edmund Lowe starred as reporter David Chase in this half-hour series. Paula Drew costarred as his girlfriend, a fashion designer, and Pamela Duncan played his secretary, Dorabelle. Jerry Fairbanks produced the show, which was filmed in Los Angeles.

FRONT ROW CENTER DUMONT

FRONT ROW CENTER CBS

1 JUNE 1955–21 SEPTEMBER 1955; 8 JANUARY 1956–22 APRIL 1956 This dramatic anthology hour, produced and directed by Fletcher Markle, alternated with The U.S. Steel Hour during the summer of 1955, then reappeared on Sunday afternoons early in 1956. Presentations included: "Dinner at Eight," with Mary Astor, Everett Sloane, Pat O'Brien, and Mary Beth Hughes (1 June); "Ah, Wilderness!" with Leon Ames and Lillian Hellman (15 June); and "The Human Touch," with Lisa Kirk (15 April).

FRONTIER NBC

25 SEPTEMBER 1955–9 SEPTEMBER 1956 Worthington Miner produced this half-hour western anthology series in which gunplay was deemphasized. Walter Coy served as narrator, and starred in occasional episodes; the stories were said to have been based on fact.

FRONTIER CIRCUS CBS

5 OCTOBER 1961–20 SEPTEMBER 1962 The T & T Circus provided the backdrop for this hour-long western, which featured Chill Wills as Colonel Casey Thompson and John Derek as Ben Travis, co-owners of the circus, and Richard Jaeckel as their scout, Tony Gentry.

FRONTIER DOCTOR SYNDICATED

1958 Rex Allen, star of countless "B" western movies, starred as Dr. Bill Baxter, a frontier physician in the Arizona Territory.

FRONTIER JUSTICE CBS

14 JULY 1958–29 SEPTEMBER 1958; 6 JULY 1959–21 SEPTEMBER 1959 This series of rebroadcasts of Zane Grey Theater episodes was seen as a summer replacement for December Bride in 1958 and for Make Room for Daddy in 1959. Lew Ayres hosted in 1958, Melvyn Douglas in 1959.

FRONTIERS OF FAITH NBC

7 OCTOBER 1951–19 JULY 1970 This long-running religious series was sponsored by the National Council of Churches. For many years it shared a time slot with two other religious programs: The Catholic Hour (later known as Guideline) and The Eternal Light.

FRONTLINE PBS

17 JANUARY 1983– Jessica Savitch first hosted this hour series of independently produced documentaries. The premiere telecast, "An Unauthorized History of the NFL," which examined gambling in professional football, attracted much controversy and criticism, but most of the other presentations—including programs on abortion clinics, Soviet émigrés, and life in the poorer neighborhoods of Washington, D.C.—were solid. Savitch was to have hosted a second season of Frontline but was killed in an automobile accident in the fall of 1983. Judy Woodruff (who, like Savitch, had also worked for NBC News) was selected to replace her. A small sample of the programs offered over the years would include: "Crisis in Central America" (9–12 April 1985); "Memories of the Camps" (7 May 1985); "AIDS: A National Inquiry" (a live two-hour broadcast, 25 March 1986); "Holy War, Holy Terror" (3 June 1986);

"Praise the Lord" (26 January 1988, which replaced a 1987 program on TV evangelists that was shelved); "Guns, Drugs and the CIA" (17 May 1988); "The Real Life of Ronald Reagan" (18 January 1989); "The Noriega Connection" (30 January 1990); "High Crimes and Misdemeanors" (23 April 1991), hosted by Bill Moyers; "Innocence Lost" (7 May 1991), a two-hour program questioning allegations of child abuse at a North Carolina day care center (a follow-up report was televised in July 1993); "The Secret File on J. Edgar Hoover" (9 February 1993); "Who Was Lee Harvey Oswald?" (16 November 1993); and "Does TV Kill?" (10 January 1995), an examination of violence on television.

FROSTY FROLICS ABC

19 SEPTEMBER 1951–10 OCTOBER 1951 This four-week series appears to have been the first ice revue series on television; it was produced and directed by Klaus Landsberg. The idea was later employed on such series as Music on Ice and Ice Palace, and to a limited extent on Donny and Marie.

THE FRUGAL GOURMET PBS

1983– On this half-hour series chef Jeff Smith emphasizes the efficient preparation and use of food. The show ran locally in Tacoma, Washington, from 1973 to 1977 before going national (from Chicago) six years later.

FUDGE ABC

14 JANUARY 1995– Live-action Saturday morning sitcom for kids, based on the series of books by Judy Blume. With Luke Tarsitano as Farley Drexel "Fudge" Hatcher, a four-year-old who lived with his family in a Manhattan apartment; Jake Richardson as his older brother, Peter, from whose point of view the stories were told; Eve Plumb as their mother, Ann; Forrest Witt as their father, Warren; Nassira Nicola as Sheila, the girl who lived next door; Alex Burrall as Peter's best friend, Jimmy; and Rob Monroe as Henry, the building superintendent. The TV series was introduced by a prime-time made-for-TV movie, "Fudge-A-Mania," on 7 January.

THE FUGITIVE ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1963–29 AUGUST 1967 Quinn Martin produced this popular adventure series, which starred David Janssen as Dr. Richard Kimble and Barry Morse as Lieutenant Philip Gerard. Wrongly convicted for the murder of his wife and sentenced to death, Kimble escaped from custody in a train wreck while being transported to prison. He spent the next four years searching for the mysterious one-armed man whom he had seen running from the house the night his wife was murdered. Complicating his search was the fact that he was being relentlessly (if unsuccessfully) pursued by Lieutenant Gerard. The series climaxed in a two-parter shown after the summer reruns in 1967. After learning that the one-armed man had been captured in Los Angeles, Kimble surrendered. Shortly thereafter, the one-armed man escaped from custody; Kimble prevailed upon Gerard to let him track the man down. Kimble found him in a deserted amusement park and chased him to the top of a water tower; there, the one-armed man confessed to the killing just as he was about to throw Kimble from the tower. At that moment, Gerard arrived below and, apparently convinced of Kimble's innocence, shot the one-armed man. The final episode (29 August 1967) was the highest-rated single television program ever broadcast, and would not be surpassed in the ratings until 1976. Also featured on the series were Bill Raisch as Fred Johnson, the one-armed man, and (in the openings and in flashbacks) Diane Brewster as Helen Kimble. William Conrad served as narrator. A popular theatrical film based on the series was released in 1993, starring Harrison Ford as Kimble and Tommy Lee Jones as Gerard (his first name was now Sam). David Janssen's mother, Berniece Janssen, appeared in a courtroom scene as an extra. Capitalizing on the film's popularity, NBC dusted off three hours from the original series, rerunning the sixth episode (which showed Helen Kimble's murder) on 18 August 1993 and the two-part finale on 19 and 21 August; the latter telecast won its timeslot.

FULL CIRCLE CBS

27 June 1960–10 March 1961 Bill Barrett wrote this little-known daytime serial, which featured Robert Fortier as Gary Donovan, a romantic drifter, and Dyan Cannon as Lisa Crowder, the young widow with whom he got involved. Also featured were Bill Lundmark as songwriter David Talton; Amzie Strickland as Beth Perce; Jean Byron as Dr. Kit Aldrich; and Byron Foulger as Carter Talton.

FULL HOUSE ABC

22 September 1987–29 August 1995 Half-hour sitcom about a widowed San Francisco sportscaster who enlisted his best friend and his brother-in-law to move in and help him raise the kids. With Bob Saget as widower Danny Tanner; Dave Coulier as his friend, standup comic Joey Gladstone; John Stamos as his brother-in-law, exterminator (and part-time rocker) Jesse Katsopolous (the character was originally named Jesse Cochran, but Jesse decided to change his last name after his Greek grandparents visited); Candace Cameron as eldest daughter D. J. (Donna Jo); Jodie Sweetin as middle daughter Stephanie; twins Mary-Kate and Ashley Fuller Olsen as baby Michelle; and Andrea Barber as D.J.'s pal, Kimmy Gibler. In the fall of 1988 Danny became the cohost of a local talk show, and Jesse landed a job writing commercial jingles. Lori Loughlin joined the cast as Danny's cohost, Rebecca Donaldson, whom Jesse fell for. Rebecca and Jesse were married in February 1991. In the fall of 1991 Jesse and Rebecca had twin sons, Nicholas and Alexander; they were played first by Daniel and Kevin Renteria, later by Dylan and Blake Tuomy-Wilhoit. Gail Edwards was featured from 1991 to late 1993 as Vicky, Danny's girlfriend; the two made plans to marry, but did not go through with it. Scott Weinger played D. J.'s boyfriend, Steve Hale, from 1992 to 1994. Jeff Franklin created the series.

THE FUN FACTORY NBC

14 June 1976–1 October 1976 Bobby Van hosted this daytime show, which combined audience-participation games with songs and sketches performed by the regulars: Jane Nelson, Betty Thomas, Deborah Harmon, Doug Steckler, and Dick Blasucci. Executive producers: Ed Fishman and Randall Freer. Produced by David Fishman.

FUN FOR THE MONEY ABC

17 June 1949–9 December 1949 Johnny Olson hosted this Chicago-based game show on which teams of women and men competed against each other. James Saphier produced the half-hour series, and Ed Skotch directed it.

FUN HOUSE (FOX'S FUN HOUSE) SYNDICATED/FOX

1989–1990 (SYNDICATED); 8 September 1990–13 April 1991 (FOX) This kids' game show began life as a five-day-a-week syndicated series; after one season it shifted to Fox's new Saturday morning lineup. J. D. Roth was the emcee of both versions, on which kids performed various physical stunts.

THE FUNKY PHANTOM ABC

11 September 1971–1 September 1973 Saturday-morning cartoon show about three kids—April, Augie, and Skip—and their pal Jonathan Muddlemore, a two-hundred-year-old chap who had locked himself in a grandfather clock in 1776.

FUNNY BONERS NBC

27 November 1954–9 July 1955 A game show for children, which was seen on Saturday mornings and hosted by ventriloquist Jimmy Weldon and his dummy duck, Webster Webfoot. Broadcast from Hollywood.

FUNNY FACE CBS

18 September 1971–11 December 1971 This half-hour sitcom starred Sandy Duncan as Sandy Stockton, a student teacher who also did commercials for an ad agency. Also featured were Valorie Armstrong as her friend and neighbor, Alice McCraven, and (in the first few episodes only) Henry Beckman and Kathleen Freeman as Pat and Kate Harwell, Sandy's landlords. Production of the series was discontinued in 1971 when Duncan required eye surgery; she returned to television in 1972 in a slightly different format. See The Sandy Duncan Show.

FUNNY MANNS SYNDICATED

1960 Cliff Norton hosted this series of silent film comedy shorts. Between segments, Norton appeared as any one of several "Mann" characters, such as Mail Mann, Police Mann, or Trash Mann.

FUNNY PEOPLE (GEORGE SCHLATTER'S FUNNY PEOPLE) NBC

27 JULY 1988–7 SEPTEMBER 1988 Comedy was the subject of this hour variety series, which blended standup routines, visits with comics, and reports on humorous goings-on around the country. Among the hosts were Leeza Gibbons, Blake Clark, Scott Blakeman, and Rita Rudner; Dave Spector was a regular contributor. George Schlatter, the creator of the series, was the father of the seminal Laugh-In series twenty years earlier and of Real People a decade earlier.

THE FUNNY SIDE NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1971–7 DECEMBER 1971 On this hour-long comedy series, a repertory company of five couples explored the funny side of a particular subject each week. Gene Kelly hosted most of the episodes. The players included: Burt Mustin and Queenie Smith as the old couple; Dick Clair and Jenna McMahon as the sophisticated couple; John Amos and Teresa Graves as the black couple; Warren Berlinger and Pat Finley as the blue-collar couple; and Michael Lembeck and Cindy Williams as the young couple. Bill Persky and Sam Denoff were the producers.

FUNNY YOU SHOULD ASK ABC

28 OCTOBER 1968–27 JUNE 1969 Lloyd Thaxton hosted this daytime game show on which contestants tried to match answers with the celebrities who had supplied them.

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF ELLERY QUEEN

See ELLERY QUEEN

FURY NBC

15 OCTOBER 1955–3 SEPTEMBER 1966 This popular show about a boy and his horse was a Saturday staple for several seasons. Bobby Diamond starred as Joey Newton, a city orphan who was taken into custody after a street fight and was permitted to live on a ranch owned by a man who had recently lost his wife and children; Peter Graves costarred as Jim Newton, the rancher who eventually adopted Joey. Also featured were William Fawcett as Pete, the chief hand at the Broken Wheel Ranch; Roger Mobley as Joey's friend, Packy; and Jimmy Baird as Joey's friend, Pee Wee (Rodney Jenkins). Fury, the black horse given to Joey by Jim, was owned and trained by Ralph McCutcheon. There were 114 episodes filmed between 1955 and 1960 and rerun by the network until 1966. The series was syndicated under the title of Brave Stallion.

FUTURE COP ABC

5 MARCH 1977–6 AUGUST 1977 An irregularly scheduled crime show, Future Cop starred Ernest Borgnine as Officer Joe Cleaver and John Amos as his partner, Officer Bill Bundy. The two veterans were assigned to break in a rookie officer, a robot supposedly programmed to be the perfect cop. The android, Officer Haven, was played by Michael Shannon. Anthony Wilson and Gary Damsker were the executive producers of the hour series.

G.E. THEATER

See GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER

G.E. TRUE CBS

30 SEPTEMBER 1962–22 SEPTEMBER 1963 Jack Webb served as host and narrator of this half-hour anthology series; the episodes were based on stories from True magazine. Sponsored by General Electric, the show occupied the same Sunday slot that General Electric Theater held down for many seasons.

G. I. JOE: A GREAT AMERICAN HERO SYNDICATED

1985; 1990–1992 Five-day-a-week cartoon series based on the line of action figures produced by Hasbro Toys. Introduced in 1964, the toy character was named by a Hasbro executive after watching the 1945 movie "The Story of G.I. Joe." Production was halted in 1978, and resumed in 1982 with a smaller figure. Production was again suspended in mid-1994.

THE GABBY HAYES SHOW NBC/ABC

11 DECEMBER 1950–1 JANUARY 1954 (NBC); 12 MAY 1956–14 JULY 1956 (ABC) George "Gabby" Hayes, the grizzled character actor who appeared in countless western films, showed clips from the old westerns on both his series. The first was a fifteen-minute show that immediately preceded Howdy Doody weekdays; the second was a half-hour show seen on Saturday mornings.

GABRIELLE SYNDICATED

1995–1996 Hour daytime talk show, hosted by Gabrielle Carteris. A regular on Beverly Hills 90210 for the previous five seasons, Carteris tested the talk show waters during the spring of 1995 with a series of ten syndicated talk specials.

GABRIEL'S FIRE ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1990–22 AUGUST 1991 James Earl Jones starred in this hour dramatic series as Gabriel Bird, a former police officer who was convicted of killing his white partner in 1969 and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Twenty years later, Bird met a high-powered criminal attorney who was investigating the death of a fellow inmate; she took an interest in Bird's case, and managed to get him freed from prison. Bird agreed to become her investigator. Laila Robbins costarred as the attorney, Victoria Heller. Also featured were Dylan Walsh as Louis Kline, Victoria's assistant; Madge Sinclair as Bird's old friend, Empress Josephine Austin, who now ran a soul food restaurant; Brian Grant as Jamil Duke, son of the inmate whose death Heller was investigating; and Chelcie Ross (fall 1990) as police captain Jack O'Neil, brother of the cop allegedly killed by Bird, who was determined to send Bird back to prison. Jones and Sinclair took their roles into a lighter series in the fall of 1991: see Pros & Cons.

GADABOUT GADDIS SYNDICATED

1950–1965 Roscoe Vernon, better known as Gadabout Gaddis, hosted this long-running series about fishing.

THE GALLOPING GOURMET SYNDICATED

1968–1971 Graham Kerr, with a glass of wine in hand, presided over this freewheeling half hour on which gourmet dishes sometimes came out right and sometimes didn't. The show was produced by Treena Kerr (his wife) at CJOH-TV, Ottawa. In the 1970s the Kerrs reportedly found religion and gave up wine, even for cooking. In 1990 Kerr returned with a new half-hour series, Graham Kerr, which emphasized low-fat, low-cholesterol cooking.

GAMBIT CBS

4 SEPTEMBER 1972–10 DECEMBER 1976

LAS VEGAS GAMBIT NBC

27 OCTOBER 1980–27 NOVEMBER 1980 Couples played blackjack with oversize cards on this daytime game show, both versions of which were hosted by Wink Martindale. Elaine Stewart dealt the cards on the CBS version, Beverly Malden on the NBC version; the latter program was taped at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas. Merrill Heatter and Bob Quigley were the executive producers.

GAMBLE ON LOVE DUMONT

16 JULY 1954–20 AUGUST 1954 This prime-time quiz show for married couples was originally hosted by Denise Darcel. Ernie Kovacs took over early in August, and shortly thereafter, the show's title and format were changed: see Time Will Tell.

THE GAME GAME SYNDICATED

1969 Jim McKrell hosted this game show on which contestants tested their knowledge of psychology against a panel of three celebrities.

GAMES PEOPLE PLAY NBC

21 AUGUST 1980–25 DECEMBER 1980 This hour program was hastily concocted in the face of the 1980 actors' strike—so-called "reality shows" like these were not affected by the work stoppage. Bryant Gumbel (who would later move to the Today show) was the host of the hour series, which examined America at play; most of the contests, however, were staged specifically for the program. Viewers could thus watch such exciting events as belly-bucking, jeep racing, and the "Toughest Bouncer" contest. The latter event was won by Chicago's Mr. T, who went on to greater fame in movies (Rocky III) and television (The A Team). Assisting Gumbel with his reporting duties were Cyndy Garvey, Johnny Bench, Mike Adamle, Donna de Varona, Arte Johnson, Ian Woolridge, and announcer Gary Owens. The show left the air after the actors' strike was settled, but was rerun during the summer of 1981.

GANGBUSTERS NBC

20 MARCH 1952–25 DECEMBER 1952 A crime anthology series, Gangbusters was created by Phillips Lord and enjoyed a far longer run on radio (1935–1957) than it did on TV. The stories were based on fact, and the show featured interviews with law enforcement officials. The half-hour show alternated with Dragnet on Thursdays. Reruns, together with a few new programs, were syndicated under the title Captured and were hosted by Chester Morris.

THE GANGSTER CHRONICLES: AN AMERICAN STORY NBC

12 FEBRUARY 1981–8 MAY 1981 Described by the network as "a fact-based dramatization of the development of organized crime in America," Gangster Chronicles was presumably inspired by Francis Ford Coppola's Godfather movies, which had proven popular in theaters and on television. The series spanned the first three dozen years of the twentieth century. Two of its three main characters—Salvatore "Lucky" Luciano (played by Michael Nouri) and Benny "Bugsy" Siegel (Joe Penny)—were based on real persons, while the third—Michael Lasker (Brian Benben) was described as a "composite." Also featured were Kathleen Lloyd as Stella Siegel, Bugsy's wife; Chad Redding as Joy Osler, Lucky's mistress; Madeline Stowe as Ruth Lasker, Mike's wife; Allan Arbus as Goodman; Richard Castellano as Joe "the Boss" Masseria; Joseph Mascolo as Maranzano; and Markie Post as prostitute Chris Brandon. E. G. Marshall narrated the series, which was supplied by Universal TV.

GARFIELD AND FRIENDS CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1988–7 OCTOBER 1995 Garfield, the lazy feline gourmand created by cartoonist Jim Davis in 1978, headlined the first of several prime-time animated specials in 1982. It was not until 1988, however, that he made his debut on CBS's Saturday morning lineup, appearing in various domestic adventures with his owner, Jon Arbuckle, and Arbuckle's hapless canine pet, Odie. It was no coincidence that Garfield's voice sounded like that of Carlton the Doorman on Rhoda: both were supplied by Lorenzo Music. The series also featured "U. S. Acres" cartoons, based on another Davis comic strip featuring various barnyard animals such as Orson Pig, Wade the Duck, Roy Rooster, Bo Sheep, Booker the Chick, and Sheldon the Egg. Garfield and Friends began as a half-hour show, expanding to an hour in the fall of 1989. In the fall of 1994 it was separated into two half hours.

GARRISON'S GORILLAS ABC

5 SEPTEMBER 1967–17 SEPTEMBER 1968 This World War II drama was inspired by the film The Dirty Dozen. It starred Ron Harper as Lieutenant Craig Garrison, an Army officer who put together a squad of four men, all of whom were serving time in federal prisons; the men were promised pardons in exchange for their cooperation. With Chris Cary as Goniff, a pickpocket; Rudy Solari as Casino, a thief; Brendon Boone as Chief, a knife-wielding Indian; and Cesare Danova as Actor, a con man. Executive producer: Selig J. Seligman. Produced by Richard Caffey. The series was one of the first American programs purchased by the People's Republic of China for broadcast there; TV Guide reported in 1981, however, that Garrison's Gorillas had been canceled in China because of its "adverse effects" on Chinese youth.

GARROWAY AT LARGE NBC

18 JUNE 1949–24 JUNE 1951 This prime-time half-hour musical variety series, broadcast live from Chicago, introduced Dave Garroway to national television audiences. Other regulars included Jack Haskell, Cliff Norton, Connie Russell, Betty Chappel, Jimmy Russell, and Aura Vainio. The show's trademarks were its spare sets (necessitated by a low budget) and humorous endings (such as Garroway announcing that the show was broadcast from Chicago, "the friendliest city in the world," then turning around to show a knife stuck in his back). Ted Mills produced the series, and Charlie Andrews wrote it. Garroway's theme song, "Sentimental Journey," was later used on the Today show.

THE GARRY MOORE SHOW CBS

26 JUNE 1950–27 JUNE 1958; 30 SEPTEMBER 1958–14 JUNE 1964; 11 SEPTEMBER 1966–8 JANUARY 1967

THE GARRY MOORE EVENING SHOW CBS

18 OCTOBER 1951–27 DECEMBER 1951 Before coming to television in 1950, Garry Moore had worked on several radio shows, including Club Matinee, Take It Or Leave It, and The Jimmy Durante-Garry Moore Show. It was on Club Matinee that he first teamed up with Durward Kirby, who would be his sidekick for many years; it was also on Club Matinee that a contest to choose Garry Moore's stage name was held (until then he was known by his real name, Thomas Garrison Morfit).

The first of his several television series began in June 1950; it was originally telecast five evenings per week but moved to weekday afternoons in October. Moore again hosted an evening show in the fall of 1951; lasting only a few weeks, it alternated biweekly with The Burns and Allen Show. The daytime show, however, proved durable: It lasted eight years, blending songs and chatter in a low-key, straightforward manner. Moore was neither a singer nor a comedian, but rather a relaxed and congenial host who surrounded himself with a crew of talented performers. In addition to sidekick Kirby, regulars on the daytime show included singers Ken Carson (who had worked with Moore on the Durante-Moore Show) and Denise Lor (whom Moore had spotted on Broadway Open House). Comedians were regularly featured; among the funny people who made some of their earliest appearances on the show were Don Adams, Kaye Ballard, Wally Cox, George Gobel, Milt Kamen, Don Knotts, Roger Price and his "Droodles" cartoons, Jonathan Winters, and the comedy team of Mickey Ross and Bernie West (Ross and West were later two of the producers of All in the Family). Other young performers who appeared on the show included singers Leslie Uggams and Peter Marshall (with his then partner, Tommy Farrell), and a twelve-year-old blonde named Tuesday Weld. Another newcomer was, of course, Carol Burnett, who first appeared on the daytime show in the fall of 1956 and later became a regular on Moore's prime-time series. One of the most notable guests to appear was Frank Lloyd Wright, who, at the age eighty-seven, did two shows in 1956.

Not all of Moore's guests were human: Naturalists Ivan Sanderson and Lorraine D'Essen frequently brought unusual animals to the program. The home audience also had the opportunity to "participate" in the show from time to time. In a contest held in 1954, one lucky Ohio family won Durward Kirby for a weekend. On another 1954 broadcast, Moore asked viewers to send one member of the studio audience (a Michigan housewife) a nickel. Within two days the woman had received 48,000 letters, and it was reported that she eventually received more than $12,000 in nickels.

In 1958, Moore announced that he had grown "tired" of the daytime grind and would leave the show. Moore's last regular appearance was on 16 May; Dick Van Dyke and Durward Kirby cohosted the final six weeks. It is small wonder that Moore was tired: In addition to hosting more than 2,000 shows, he had also been hosting I've Got a Secret for six years. Apparently, a summer's rest did him a world of good, for he returned to television that fall to host a prime-time variety series. That show held down a Tuesday-night slot for six seasons. Regulars included Durward Kirby, Ken Carson, Denise Lor, Carol Burnett (1959–62), and Marion Lorne; a regular feature each week was a musical salute to "That Wonderful Year 19—." Moore grew tired of that series (and of I've Got a Secret, which he had continued to host) in 1964, and briefly retired from show business.

In the fall of 1966 he returned to host a Sunday-night variety series which fared poorly against NBC's Bonanza. Moore's regulars included Durward Kirby, John Byner, Jackie Vernon, Pete Barbutti, and Patsy Elliott.

Moore's daytime series was produced by Herb Sanford and directed for many seasons by Clarence Schimmel. Among the show's writers were Bill Demling, Vinnie Bogert, Marsha Durant, Harold Flender, Chuck Horner, Hank Miles, Charlie Slocum, Aaron Ruben, Roland Scott, and Allan Sherman. Moore's 1958–1964 series was produced by Joe Hamilton and Bob Banner, and the executive producer of the 1966 series was Sylvester "Pat" Weaver.

THE GARY COLEMAN SHOW NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1982–10 SEPTEMBER 1983 Gary Coleman, star of NBC's prime-time hit Diff'rent Strokes, was also the star of this Saturday-morning cartoon show. The half-hour series was based on Coleman's made-for-TV movie "The Kid with the Broken Halo," and featured Coleman as Andy LeBeau, an apprentice angel who was dispatched back to Earth to earn his wings by helping others.

GAVILAN NBC

26 OCTOBER 1982–28 DECEMBER 1982 Robert Urich starred in this hour adventure series as Robert Gavilan, an ex-CIA agent who became an oceanographer but still accepted assignments from his former employers. Featured were Patrick Macnee as actor Milo Bentley, Gavilan's housemate, and Kate Reid as Marion "Jaws" Jaworski, dean of the DeWitt Institute of Oceanography. Gavilan was the first announced cancellation of the 1982–1983 season.

GAY NINETIES REVUE ABC

11 AUGUST 1948–14 JANUARY 1949 This musical variety series recreated the early days of vaudeville. It was hosted by eighty-one-year-old Joe Howard, a trouper whose career actually went back to the 1890s; Howard had previously hosted the show on radio.

THE GAYELORD HAUSER SHOW ABC

31 OCTOBER 1951–25 APRIL 1952 Health and nutrition were the subjects discussed on this daytime show hosted by Gayelord Hauser; it was seen Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

GEMINI MAN NBC

23 SEPTEMBER 1976–28 OCTOBER 1976 This hour-long adventure series featured a think-tank employee who could become invisible for up to fifteen minutes a day. With Ben Murphy as Sam Casey; Katherine Crawford as Dr. Abby Lawrence; and William Sylvester as Leonard Driscoll, director of Intersect, the think tank. Produced by Harve Bennett, the show was little more than a rewarmed version of The Invisible Man, a 1975 NBC series that folded after eleven episodes.

THE GENE AUTRY SHOW CBS

23 JULY 1950–7 AUGUST 1956 One of the first western film stars to begin filming a series especially for television, Gene Autry formed his own production company (Flying A Productions) and made 104 half-hour episodes. He played himself; his sidekick was Pat Buttram. Autry was not a lawman, but often assisted the men with the badges in bringing outlaws to justice. His series proved so successful that it led to a pair of spinoffs: One featured TV's first female western hero (Annie Oakley), and the other featured Autry's horse (The Adventures of Champion).

GENERAL ELECTRIC GUEST HOUSE

GENERAL ELECTRIC SUMMER ORIGINALS ABC

3 JULY 1956–18 SEPTEMBER 1956 Half-hour filmed anthology series. Vivian Blaine starred in the premiere, a musical comedy titled "It's Sunny Again."

GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER CBS

1 FEBRUARY 1953–16 SEPTEMBER 1962 This popular half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen on Sunday nights; Ronald Reagan hosted the show from 1954 to 1962. Among the major stars who made their television dramatic debuts on the series were Joseph Cotten ("The High Green Wall," 3 October 1954), Alan Ladd ("Committed," 5 December 1954), Fred MacMurray ("Bachelor's Pride," 20 February 1955), James Stewart ("The Windmill," 24 April 1955), Myrna Loy ("It Gives Me Great Pleasure," 3 April 1955), Bette Davis ("With Malice Toward None," 10 March 1957), Anne Baxter ("Bitter Choice," 21 April 1957), Tony Curtis ("Cornada," 10 November 1957), Fred Astaire ("Imp on a Cobweb Leash," 1 December 1957), Sammy Davis, Jr. ("Auf Wiedersehen," 5 October 1958), Peggy Lee ("So Deadly, So Evil," 13 March 1960), and Gene Tierney ("Journey to a Wedding," 27 November 1960). Other notable appearances included those by Joan Crawford ("The Road to Edinburgh," 31 October 1954), Harry Belafonte ("Winner by Decision," 6 November 1955), Rosalind Russell ("The Night Goes On," 18 March 1956), Ernie Kovacs ("The World's Greatest Quarterback," 19 October 1958), Harpo and Chico Marx ("The Incredible Jewel Robbery," 8 March 1959), Groucho Marx ("The Holdout," 14 January 1962), and Nancy Davis Reagan, who appeared with her husband in "A Turkey for the President" (23 November 1958), in which the Reagans played an American Indian couple.

GENERAL HOSPITAL ABC

1 APRIL 1963– One of daytime television's biggest success stories, General Hospital was created by Doris and Frank Hursley. It began as a half-hour show (and premiered the same day as another medically oriented serial, The Doctors), then expanded twice: to forty-five minutes on 26 July 1976 and to sixty minutes on 16 January 1978. Under the stewardship of Gloria Monty, who took over as producer in the late 1970s, ratings climbed steadily. By 1980 General Hospital had become TV's top-rated soap opera, and one of its episodes—the November 1981 wedding of Luke and Laura (Anthony Geary and Genie Francis), with Helena Cassadine (Elizabeth Taylor) lurking in the background—attracted the largest audience ever to watch a daytime dramatic series. Ratings began to dip after Genie Francis's departure (she returned briefly in 1983) and after a fling with some absurd story lines—such as an attempt by a villain to freeze Port Charles, General Hospital's hometown—that were more appropriate to Batman than to a daytime serial. The show quickly dropped the sci-fi stuff and went back to more conventional plots in a successful effort to retain its audience. The show was TV's top-rated daytime drama from 1979 through 1987.

With the death in May 1996 of John Beradino (a former major-league baseball player) who played Steve Hardy, director of medicine at General Hospital, the show lost its last original cast member. Emily McLaughlin played nurse Jessie Brewer, his close friend and confidante, from April 1963 until her death in 1991. Lucille Wall joined the series in July 1963 as head nurse Lucille March (she left in 1976). Rachel Ames came in 1964, as Lucille's sister, nurse Audrey March, who married Steve Hardy (they were later divorced and remarried). Another long-time cast member was Peter Hansen, who replaced Ross Elliott in 1965 as lawyer Lee Baldwin and remained for thirty years. Other principal players over the years have included: Roy Thinnes, Rick Falk, Robert Hogan, Craig Huebing, and Martin West as Jessie's husband, Dr. Phil Brewer (Phil was thought to have been killed in a car crash, but surfaced later under the name of Harold Williamson; Phil was finally murdered in 1974); Carolyn Craig as Phil's girlfriend, Cynthia Allison; K. T. Stevens as Steve Hardy's onetime romantic interest, Peggy Mercer; Allison Hayes as Priscilla Longworth, who was also interested in Steve; Patricia Breslin and Elizabeth MacRae as widowed nurse Meg Bentley, who married Lee Baldwin, and later suffered a nervous breakdown and died; Adrienne Hayes and Indus Arthur as Meg's stepdaughter, Brooke Clinton, who was murdered; Dean Harens as Noll Clinton, Brooke's husband; Paul Savior and Don Chastain as Dr. Tom Baldwin, brother of Lee Baldwin; Barry Atwater as Dr. John Prentice, who married Jessie Brewer and was later murdered; Catherine Ferrar and Jennifer Billingsley as his daughter (and murderer), Polly Prentice, who was killed in the car crash that also involved Phil Brewer; Ed Platt as Dr. Miller (Platt returned to the show several years later to play another role, Wyatt Chamberlain); Peggy McCay as nurse Iris Fairchild; Shelby Hiatt as nurse Jane Harland; Ray Girardin as Howie Dawson, who married Jane; Maxine Stuart and Phyllis Hill as Howie's mother, Mrs. Dawson; Julie Adams as Howie's girlfriend, Denise Wilton; Jim McKrell as Denise's boyfriend, Bruce Andrews; Kim Hamilton as Dr. Tracy Adams; Robin Blake as nurse Judy Clampett; Adolph Caesar as Douglas Burke, a blind patient who fell for Judy (his eyesight was subsequently restored); Paul Carr and Craig Huebing as psychiatrist Dr. Peter Taylor, who was married briefly to Jessie Brewer (their marriage was annulled when Phil Brewer returned to Port Charles); Valerie Starrett and Brooke Bundy as Diana Maynard, Peter Taylor's next wife; Sharon DeBord as nurse Sharon McGillis; Peter Kilman as Dr. Henry Pinkham, who married Sharon; Susan Bernard as student nurse Beverly Cleveland, who had an affair with Howie Dawson; Tom Brown as Al Weeks of the hospital maintenance staff, who married head nurse Lucille March in 1972; Doug Lambert and Craig Curtis as Al's son, Eddie Weeks; Jana Taylor as Eddie's girlfriend, Angie Costello; Anne Helm as nurse Mary Briggs; Tom Simcox as Mary's husband, Wade Collins, an ex-con; Denise Alexander (who came to General Hospital in 1973 after several years on Days of Our Lives) as Dr. Lesley Williams; Don Matheson as Cameron Faulkner, who married Lesley; Stacy Baldwin and Genie (Ann) Francis as Lesley's illegitimate daughter, Laura Vining; Judy Lewis as Laura's foster mother, Barbara Vining; Jonathan Carter as Laura's foster father, Jason Vining; Deanna Lund as Cameron Faulkner's secretary, Peggy Lowell; Anne Collings as Florence Gray, a patient of Lesley's; Howard Sherman and Eric Server as her husband, Gordon Gray; James Sikking as Dr. James Hobart; Judith McConnell as nurse Augusta McLeod, killer of Phil Brewer; Barry Coe and Rod McCary as Dr. Joel Stratton; Linda Cooper as nurse Linda Cooper (a rare instance in which the actress and the rôle share the same name); Jenny Sherman as Sally Grimes; Augusta Dabney as Caroline Chandler; Ted Eccles as Caroline's son, Bobby Chandler; Kimberly Beck and Marla Pennington as nurse Samantha Livingston, who married Bobby; Michelle Conaway as Beth Maynard, sister of Diana Maynard Taylor; Daniel Black as Dr. Kyle Bradley, Beth's boyfriend; Victoria Shaw as Kira Faulkner; Tony Campo, Don Clarke, Johnny Jensen, and Kin Shriner as Scotty Baldwin, son of the late Meg Baldwin; John Gabriel and James Westmoreland as newspaper reporter Teddy Holmes; Anne Wyndham as Jessie Brewer's niece and ward, Carol Murray; Mark Hamill as Jessie's nephew and ward, Kent Murray; Monica Gayle as Jessie's niece, Kate Marshall; George Chandler as Walter Douglas; Georgia Schmidt as Amy Douglas; Kevin Matthews as Dr. Duncan Stewart; Maida Stevens as Mrs. Andrews; Virginia Ann Lee as Mai Lin, a visiting dancer from the People's Republic of China; Nathan Jung as Won Chu; George Chiang as Ling Wang; Ivan Bonar as Chase Murdock; Betty Ann Rees as Margaret Colson; Jennifer Peters as Martha Taylor; Mark Travis as Felix Buchanan; Mark Miller as Randy Washburn; Louise Fitch as Mrs. Taylor; William Mims as Gus Wheeler; Don Hammer as Lieutenant Adams; Laura Campbell as Pat Lambert; Joseph DiSante as Dr. Gerald Henderson; Richard Eastham as Mr. Livingston; and Burt Douglas as Mac.

Other additions to the cast have included: Richard Dean Anderson as Dr. Jeff Webber; Jerry Ayres as David Hamilton, who was killed by Laura (Laura's mother confessed to protect her daughter); Susan Brown as Dr. Gail Adamson, who married Lee Baldwin; George E. Carey and William Bryant as Lamont Corbin; Steve Carlson as Dr. Gary Lansing; Angela Cheyne as Dorrie Fleming; David Comfort, Bradley Green, David Walker, David Wallace, and Matthew Ashford as Tommy Baldwin Hardy; Stuart Damon as Alan Quartermaine; Jane Elliot as Tracy Quartermaine; David Lewis and John Ingle as Edward Quartermaine; Anna Lee as Lila Quartermaine; Dennis Dinster as Mike Mallon; Camila Ashland and Lieux Dressler as Alice Grant; Gerald Gordon as Dr. Mark Dante; Michael Gregory and Chris Robinson as Dr. Rick Webber, who married Lesley Williams; Brett Halsey as Dr. Adam Streeter; Janice Heiden as Lisa Holbrook, a split personality; Bobbi Jordan as Terri Arnett; Georganne LaPiere (sister of Cher), Mary O'Brien and Robin Mattson as Heather Grant Webber, who accidentally overdosed on LSD; Maria Perschy as Maria Schuller; Patsy Rahn and Leslie Charleson as Dr. Monica Bard, who married Jeff Webber; William Schreiner as Darren Blythe; Anna Stuart, Brenda Scott, and Donna Bacalla as Dr. Gina Dante; Maggie Sullivan as Katie Corbin, Lamont's wife; Richard Venture as Herbert Behrman; Lee Warrick as Mary Ellen Dante; Lesley Woods as Edna Hadley; Jackie Zeman as Barbara (Bobbi) Spencer; Todd Davis as Dr. Bryan Phillips; Jay Gerber as Jim Richardson; Bob Hastings as police chief Burt Ramsey; Gail Rae Carlson as Susan Moore; Frank Maxwell as hospital administrator Dan Rooney; Richard Sarradet as Howard Lansing; Joan Tompkins as Mrs. Maynard; Christopher Stafford Nelson as Chris; Joyce Jameson as Colleen Middleton; Craig Littler as Dr. Todd Levine; Susan O'Hanlon and Susan Pratt as Ann Logan; Chris Pennock as Mitch Williams; and David Mendenhall as Mike Webber.

In 1978 Anthony Geary joined the cast as Luke Spencer, Bobbi's brother. Geary soon became one of daytime TV's most popular actors, and Luke's romance with Laura one of its most popular story lines. Geary accurately described Luke as an "antihero." Shortly after arriving in Port Charles, Luke forced himself on Laura, who eventually dropped her husband, Scotty Baldwin, and ran off with Luke. After their return to town, Luke turned a boat into a nightclub, got into trouble with gangsters, and finally married Laura in November 1981. Shortly afterward, Laura was lost in a boating accident and was presumed drowned (it would later be learned that she had been kidnapped). Luke, too, was presumed to have been killed in an avalanche, but miraculously survived. Eventually he became the mayor of Port Charles; in the fall of 1983 he was reunited with Laura.

Later comings and goings have included those of: Tristan Rogers as Robert Scorpio, an ex-secret agent who became Luke's friend; Sharon Wyatt as actress Tiffany Hill, who fell for Scorpio; Emma Samms as Holly Sutton, who became Luke's new love interest after Laura's first departure, but who eventually married Scorpio; Demi Moore as reporter Jackie Templeton; Janine Turner as Jackie's sister, Laura Templeton; Miles McNamara as boxer Johnny Morrissey; Leonard Stone as Johnny's manager, Packy Moore; Eddie Ryder as cabbie Slick Jones; Chuck Wagner as Randall Thompson; Merrie Lynn Ross as Emma Lutz; John Stamos as Blackie Parrish; George Gaynes and Mitchell Ryan as gangster Frank Smith; Richard Caine as Smith's associate, Bill Watson; Peter Miller as Lieutenant Stoddard; Warren Reed as Greg Talmidge; Wayne Sherman as Don Carr; Renee Anderson as Alexandria Quartermaine; Eric Kroh, Abraham Geary, Justin Whalin, Christopher Nelson, Gerald Hopkins, and Sean Kanan as Alan Quartermaine, Jr.; Milton Selzer as Pop Snyder; Dawn Jeffory as Jo Anne Eden; Philip Tanzini as Jeremy Hewitt Logan, adopted son of Ann Logan; Bianca Ferguson as Claudia Johnson, who married Bryan Phillips; Sarah Simmons as Zelda Bernstein; Lisa Marie as Jennifer Smith; Antony Ponzini and Michael Baselon as Dr. Tony Perelli; Robert Betzel as P. J. Taylor; Norma Connolly as Ruby Anderson, a one-time madam who became a nurses' aide; Jeff Donnell as Stella Fields; Louise Hoven as Beverly DeFreest; Vanessa Brown as Mrs. DeFreest; Cari Ann Warder and Shell Kepler as Amy Vining, adopted daughter of Rick and Lesley Webber; Frank Parker as Paddy Kelly; Douglas Sheehan as Joe Kelly; exercise guru Richard Simmons as himself; rock and roller Rick Springfield as Dr. Noah Drake; Rick Moses as Jefferson Smith "Hutch" Hutchins, a hit man who stalked Luke and Laura; Christopher Morley as Max, another hit man who stalked Luke and Laura (Max also disguised himself as Sally, a hit woman); John Colicos as evil Mikos Cassadine, who plotted to freeze Port Charles, among other dastardly deeds; Elizabeth Taylor as his wife, Helena Cassadine, who arranged to have Laura kidnapped; Andre Landzaat as Tony Cassadine; Thaao Penghlis as Victor Cassadine; Sam Behrens as Jake Meyer; Loanne Bishop as Rose Kelly, stepmother of Joe Kelly; Mark Roberts as Charles Sutton; Jeanna Michaels as Constance Atkins (also known as Constance Townley), Scorpio's former love; Billie Hayes as O'Riley, a spy; Melinda Cordell as Natalie Dearborn; Ron Hajek as Derek; Eileen Dietz as Sarah; Joe Lambie as Russian pianist Gregory Malko; Roberta Leighton as Shirley Pickett, a friend of Luke's; Steve Bond as Jimmy Lee Holt; Brian Patrick Clarke as Dr. Grant Putnam/Grant Andrews; Brioni Farrel as Martha; Lisa Figus as Georgia; Booth Colman as Hector Jerrold; David Groh as D. Gloria Monty, who had guided the show as executive producer for ten years, left in 1987, and was succeeded by H. Wesley Kenney; Kenney was in turn succeeded by Joseph Hardy late in 1989. Gloria Monty returned in late 1990 as executive producer, and was succeeded in early 1992 by Wendy Riche. Among the many head writers have been Theodore and Mathilde Ferro, Frank and Doris Hursley (the show's creators), Bridget and Jerome Dobson, Richard and Suzanne Holland, Eileen and Robert Mason Pollack, Irving and Tex Elman, Douglas Marland, Pat Falken Smith, Robert J. Shaw, Joyce and John William Corrington, Anne Howard Bailey, Smith and Norma Monty, Maralyn Thoma, Norma Monty (again), Bill Levinson, and Claire Labine.

THE GENERATION GAP ABC

7 FEBRUARY 1969–23 MAY 1969 A team of three adults faced a team of three juveniles on this convoluted prime-time game show; each team had to predict whether the other team would be able to answer questions about the opposite generation. Dennis Wholey first hosted the series and was replaced by Jack Barry.

GENERATIONS NBC

27 MARCH 1989–25 JANUARY 1991 Created by Sally Sussman, Generations was the first daytime serial in which one of the two major families was black. The series was set in Chicago, and explored the relationships between the Marshalls and the Whitmores. The cast included Lynn Hamilton as Vivian Potter, who many years earlier had been a maid for the Whitmores; Joan Pringle as her daughter, Ruth Marshall; Taurean Blacque and James Reynolds as Ruth's husband, Henry Marshall, owner of a chain of ice cream shops; Sharon Brown and Debbi Morgan as Chantal Marshall, an attorney; Jonelle Allen as Doreen Jackson; Kristoff St. John as college student Adam Marshall; Patricia Crowley as Rebecca Whitmore, matriarch of that clan; Gail Ramsey as Laura Whitmore McCallum; Gerard Prendergast as J. D. Whitmore; Kelly Rutherford as Sam Whitmore; Andrew Masset as ad executive Trevor McCallum; Barbara Rhoades and Linda Gibboney as Jessica Gardner; Tony Addabbo as Jason Gardner; George Deloy as Rob Donnelly; Rick Fitts as Martin Jackson; Nancy Sorel as Monique McCallum; Myles Thoroughgood as Wally; Christopher Duncan as Adam's pal, Gordon Williams; Tom Hermann as Cory McCallum; George Duke as Johnny, owner of a local club; Ronald Allen as Lloyd Bradfield; Mark Goodman as Wolf; Amy Yasbeck as Carla; John J. Dalesandro as Mr. Trask, Monique's boss; Bernie White and Dean Devlin as Chris Mendoza; Bruce Gray as Philip Webb, Rebecca's boss; Ron Marquette and David Ciminello as Mitch; Marla Adams as Helen Mullin; Robin Dearden as Kate Wilson; Vivica A. Fox as Maya; Victor Gardell as Sidney; Rick Lohman as Joel Resnick; Antony Ponzini as Corelli; Richard Roundtree as Dr. Daniel Reubens; George Shannon as Jordan Hale; Robert Torti as Kyle Masters; Stacey Nelkin as Christy Russell; Ron Harper as Peter Whitmore; Gina Gallego as Melina; Butch Hartman as Sean Masters; Randy Brooks as Eric Royal; Paul Carr as Alex Hawkins; Ian Ogilvy as Reginald Hewitt; Robert Gentry as Jordan Hale; and Dorothy Lyman as Rebecca Whitmore. Following Generations' cancellation by NBC, its 470 episodes were purchased by BET Cable Network.

The title Generations had previously been used in another serial. CBS's ill-fated 1981 late-night soap opera, Behind the Screen, used a soap-within-a-soap format; Generations was the name of the fictional serial on which many of the characters worked.

GENTLE BEN CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1967–31 AUGUST 1969 The adventures of a boy and his pet bear (Ben). With Clint Howard as young Mark Wedloe; Dennis Weaver as his father, Tom Wedloe, a game warden in the Florida Everglades; Beth Brickell as his mother, Ellen Wedloe; Jack Morley as Tom's friend, Spencer; and Angelo Rutherford (1968–1969) as Mark's friend, Willie. Ben, the bear, was played by Bruno and trained by Monty Cox. Ivan Tors produced the series; it was filmed on location in Florida.

GEORGE ABC

5 NOVEMBER 1993–19 JANUARY 1994 Half-hour sitcom starring semi-retired boxer George Foreman as retired boxer George Foster, who decided to lend a helping hand to the kids at his wife's middle school. Sheryl Lee Ralph costarred as his wife, Maggie Foster, a guidance counselor. Also featured were Lauren Robinson as George and Maggie's daughter, Virginia (nicknamed Vee); Tony T. Johnson as George and Maggie's son, George Jr. (nicknamed Bubba); Anne Haney as Juanita; Larry Gilliard, Jr., as Lathan; Doniell Spencer as Shasta; and Cleandre Norman as Daniel.

THE GEORGE & ALANA SHOW SYNDICATED

1995–1996 A divorced couple—George Hamilton and Alana Stewart—cohosted this daytime hour talk/celebrity interview show.

See THE BURNS AND ALLEN SHOW

GEORGE BURNS COMEDY WEEK CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1985–25 DECEMBER 1985 Venerable George Burns became the oldest person ever to host a television show when he agreed to emcee this half-hour comedy anthology series: he turned ninety less than a month after the program's cancellation. One of the programs, "The Couch," directed by Steve Martin and starring Harvey Korman and Valerie Perrine (with Carrie Fisher and Bronson Pinchot in smaller roles), so impressed network executives at a screening that they ordered a series based on it: see Leo & Liz in Beverly Hills.

THE GEORGE BURNS SHOW NBC

21 OCTOBER 1958–14 APRIL 1959 After Gracie Allen retired from show business, George Burns continued the situation comedy, this time on NBC. He continued to play himself, though he now cast himself as a television producer. Most of the old gang from The Burns and Allen Show remained: Bea Benaderet as Blanche Morton, his secretary; Larry Keating as Harry Morton, his accountant; Ronnie Burns (as himself); and Harry Von Zell as his announcer, always eager to land a dramatic role.

THE GEORGE CARLIN SHOW FOX

16 JANUARY 1994–28 AUGUST 1994; 16 OCTOBER 1994–1 JANUARY 1995; 2 JULY 1995–3 SEPTEMBER 1995 Half-hour sitcom set mostly at The Moylan Tavern, a neighborhood watering hole in New York, and starring George Carlin as grumpy George O'Grady, a cabbie. Also with Alex Rocco as Broadway Harry Rosetti, a bookie; Paige French as waitress Sydney Paris; Anthony Starke as bartender Jack Donahue; Christopher Rich as plastic surgeon Neal Beck; Susan Sullivan as George's sometime lady friend, Kathleen Rachowski, who owned a pet shop; and Matt Landers as Larry Pinkerton. After a seven-month run in 1994, the series returned to Fox's Sunday night schedule as a replacement for Wild Oats.

THE GEORGE GOBEL SHOW NBC/CBS

2 OCTOBER 1954–10 MARCH 1959 (NBC); 11 OCTOBER 1959–5 JUNE 1960 (CBS) A casual, folksy, down-home comedian, George Gobel hosted a half-hour comedy-variety series on Saturday nights beginning in 1954; regulars included singer Peggy King and Jeff Donnell, who played his wife, Alice, in many sketches. In the fall of 1957, he moved to Tuesday nights, where he hosted a biweekly hour-long series that alternated with The Eddie Fisher Show; Fisher was the "permanent guest star" on the Gobel shows, and Gobel reciprocated on the Fisher broadcasts. Gobel's other regulars included Jeff Donnell (1957–1958), Phyllis Avery (1958–1959, who replaced Donnell as Alice), Shirley Harmer, and the Johnny Mann Singers. The telecast of 21 October 1958 was presented in stereo; one audio channel was carried on the regular TV signal, while the other was broadcast simultaneously on selected radio stations throughout the country. In the fall of 1959 Gobel moved to CBS, where he hosted a half-hour variety series that alternated with The Jack Benny Program on Sundays; regulars there included Joe Flynn, Anita Bryant, and Harry Von Zell. Gobel's theme song, "Gobelues," was composed by his longtime bandleader, John Scott Trotter.

THE GEORGE HAMILTON IV SHOW ABC

13 APRIL 1959–29 MAY 1959 Country and western singer George Hamilton IV ("A Rose and a Baby Ruth") hosted this half-hour musical series, which was seen weekdays at noon. Originating from Washington, D.C., it featured Roy Clark and Mary Klick.

THE GEORGE JESSEL SHOW ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1953–11 APRIL 1954 One of several major stars signed up by ABC in 1953, George Jessel, America's "Toastmaster General," hosted a half-hour variety series on Sunday evenings. Hal Sawyer was also featured on the show that was produced by Mannie Manheim. Making one of his earliest television appearances, Buddy Hackett guest-starred on the premiere.

THE GEORGE MICHAEL SPORTS MACHINE SYNDICATED

1984– Sunday night sports wrapup, hosted by sportscaster George Michael. The program began in Washington, D. C., in 1980 as a local show, George Michael's Sports Final.

GEORGE OF THE JUNGLE ABC

9 SEPTEMBER 1967–5 SEPTEMBER 1970 Jay Ward created this fairly sophisticated Saturday-morning cartoon show. Segments included: "George of the Jungle," with George, a clumsy Tarzan type, Ape, an erudite gorilla, and Shep, George's trusty elephant; "Super Chicken," the story of Henry Cabot Henhouse III, an ordinary fowl who turned into Super Chicken after a swig of Super Sauce, and his pal, Fred the lion; and "Tom Slick," an auto racer who always played fair. Reruns of the series resurfaced briefly on ABC in the early fall of 1995.

3 JULY 1951–11 OCTOBER 1953 An early public affairs series, produced at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

GEORGIA GIBBS' MILLION RECORD SHOW NBC

1 JULY 1957–2 SEPTEMBER 1957 "Her Nibs," Georgia Gibbs, hosted this musical series on which million-sellers were performed. The fifteen-minute show was seen Mondays preceding the news.

THE GERALD McBOING-BOING SHOW CBS

16 DECEMBER 1956–10 MARCH 1957; 30 MAY 1958–3 OCTOBER 1958 Gerald McBoing-Boing, the star of several U.P.A. cartoon shorts who was familiar to moviegoers, first came to television late in 1956 in a Sunday-afternoon slot. The lad spoke only in sounds, not words; the voice of Bill Goodwin was employed to interpret McBoing-Boing's utterings. Also featured were two other cartoon segments: "The Twirliger Twins" and "Dusty of the Circus." When the show was rerun in a Friday-night slot during the summer of 1958, it became one of television's first prime-time cartoon series, antedating The Flintstones by two seasons.

GERALDO SYNDICATED

1987– An hour daytime talk show hosted by former ABC correspondent Geraldo Rivera. Like those of his main competitors (Oprah Winfrey, Phil Donahue, and Sally Jessy Raphael), Rivera's show featured a studio audience and was centered on a single topic each day. Generally considered somewhat harder edged than the others, Geraldo's most infamous program was no doubt the 1988 show in which the host's nose was broken in a fight that erupted between black activist Roy Innis and a group of white supremacists. Another program was taped at a topless donut shop in Colorado. By January 1990, even the host had had enough; "I'm embarrassing myself," Rivera told TV Guide, promising to be "more prudent in my topic selection." Whether he recalled the remark is questionable, however. A sample of topics aired during May 1995 included "Girls Who Will Commit Crimes for Their Men," "Family of Prostitutes," "Bisexuality," "Ménages à Trois," and "Couples Who Detest Each Other."

Rivera, who had been a regular on ABC's 20/20, left the network after protesting the decision to axe a 20/20 segment on the personal life of Marilyn Monroe. On 21 April 1986 he hosted a live syndicated program, "The Mystery of Al Capone's Vaults." Although nothing of value was uncovered on the show, it became the highest-rated syndicated special in history and eventually led to the development of his talk show. Early in 1991 it was announced that Geraldo would be dubbed into Russian and would become the first American daytime television series to be regularly televised in the Soviet Union. In the fall of 1991 Rivera embarked upon a second daily syndicated series: see Now It Can Be Told.

GET A LIFE FOX

23 SEPTEMBER 1990–14 JUNE 1992 Half-hour sitcom starring Chris Elliott as Chris Peterson, a guy who never grew up; at thirty years of age, he lived above his parents' garage and was still employed as a paperboy. Also featured were Bob Elliott (Chris's real-life father and half of the famed comedy duo Bob and Ray) as his bathrobed father, Fred; Elinor Donahue as his mother, Gladys; Sam Robards (1990–1991) as Chris's best friend from childhood, Larry Potter, now an executive; Robin Riker as Larry's un-understanding wife, Sharon; and Taylor Fry and Brady Bluhm as their two kids, Amy and Bobby Potter. In the fall of 1991 Chris moved out of folks' garage and into someone else's. Brian Doyle-Murray played his new landlord, short-tempered Gus Borden.

THE GET ALONG GANG CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1984–28 JUNE 1986 The central characters of this Saturday-morning cartoon show were six animal pals—Zipper, Portia, Woolma, Dotty, Montgomery, and Bingo—who lived together in a caboose.

GET CHRISTIE LOVE! ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1974–18 JULY 1975 Laugh-In alumna Teresa Graves starred as TV's first black policewoman, Christie Love, in this hour-long crime show. The series was originally produced by Paul Mason and featured Charles Cioffi as her boss, Lieutenant Matt Reardon of the Special Investigations Unit of the Los Angeles Police Department; Dennis Rucker as Lieutenant Steve Belmont; and Andy Romano as Lieutenant Joe Caruso. In January some changes were made: Glen A. Larson and Ron Satlof replaced Mason as producers, and Cioffi and Romano were dropped from the cast. Joining the series were Jack Kelly as her new boss, Captain Arthur P. Ryan; Michael Pataki as Officer Pete Gallagher; and Scott Peters as Officer Valencia. In one episode (aired 5 February), six members of the Laugh-In crew guest-starred: Arte Johnson, Henry Gibson, Jo Anne Worley, Judy Carne, Johnny Brown, and Gary Owens.

GET IT TOGETHER ABC

3 JANUARY 1970–5 SEPTEMBER 1970 This half-hour rock music show was usually seen on Saturday mornings. It was hosted by Cass Elliott (formerly of The Mamas and the Papas) and Sam Riddle.

GET SET, GO! SYNDICATED

1958 Half-hour variety show, with Chuck Richardson and Sue Ane Langdon.

GET SMART NBC/CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1965–13 SEPTEMBER 1969 (NBC); 26 SEPTEMBER 1969–11 SEPTEMBER 1970 (CBS) Mel Brooks and Leonard Stern created this spoof of spy shows, one of few successful sitcoms (138 episodes) not centered around a family. It starred Don Adams as Maxwell Smart, Agent 86 for CONTROL, a Washington-based counterintelligence agency. An inept secret agent, Smart could barely operate the telephone implanted in his shoe; nevertheless, he and his cohorts usually succeeded in thwarting the operations of KAOS, an organization dedicated to evil. Barbara Feldon, a former winner on The $64,000 Question, costarred as Smart's partner, Agent 99 (she used the name Susan Hilton in one episode), an intelligent and resourceful agent. In the fall of 1968, she and Smart became engaged and were married on 16 November; the Smarts had twins during the 1969–1970 season. Character actor Edward Platt played their boss, known simply as The Chief. Also featured from time to time were Robert Karvelas as Agent Larraby; Dick Gautier as Hymie, a robot; and Dave Ketchum as Agent 13. Co-creator Leonard Stern also served as executive producer. Don Adams again played Smart in a 1980 film, The Nude Bomb. The film (which was a bomb in the theaters) was televised by NBC on 23 May 1982 under the title "The Return of Maxwell Smart." Adams later supplied the voice of a similarly inept cartoon character, Inspector Gadget (see also that title). On 26 February 1989 ABC aired a TV-movie, "Get Smart, Again," with Adams, Feldon, Karvelas, Gautier, and Ketchum. A new version of the series surfaced briefly in 1995: see below.

GET SMART FOX

8 JANUARY 1995–19 FEBRUARY 1995 The short-lived revival of the 1965–1970 sitcom reunited Don Adams and Barbara Feldon. Adams's Maxwell Smart had now become the Chief of CONTROL, and Feldon's 99 had become a Congresswoman. Andy Dick costarred as their bumbling son, Zach, who had just been promoted by his dad from research to full agent status. Elaine Hendrix played Agent 66, his talented partner, and Markus Redmond was featured as Duane, the lab man.

GET THE MESSAGE ABC

31 MARCH 1964–25 DECEMBER 1964 Frank Buxton hosted this Goodson-Todman daytime game show on which contestants, each teamed with two celebrities, tried to identify a secret word or phrase from clues supplied by the celebs.

GETTING BY ABC/NBC

5 MARCH 1993–21 MAY 1993 (ABC); 21 SEPTEMBER 1993–12 FEBRUARY 1994 (NBC); 28 MAY 1994–18 JUNE 1994 (NBC) Half-hour sitcom about a pair of Chicago social workers, one black with two sons and one white with two daughters, who decided to save money by sharing a house. With Cindy Williams as Cathy Hale, who was separated from her husband; Telma Hopkins as Dolores Nixon, who was widowed; Nicki Vannice as Cathy's teenager, Nikki; Ashleigh Blair Sterling as Cathy's nine-year-old, Julie; Merlin Santana as Dolores's fifteen-year-old, Marcus; and Deon Richmond as Dolores's fourteen-year-old, Darren. Telma Hopkins had previously appeared in Family Matters, which was created by the same duo: William Bickley and Michael Warren.

GETTING IN TOUCH SYNDICATED

1987 Psychiatrist David Viscott conducted actual counseling sessions with patients and also interviewed celebrities about psychological topics on this half-hour daily series.

GETTING TOGETHER ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1971–8 JANUARY 1972 This half-hour sitcom about a couple of young songwriters featured onetime teen idol Bobby Sherman as Bobby Conway; Wes Stern as his partner Lionel Poindexter; Pat Carroll as their landlady, Rita Simon; Jack Burns as Rita's boyfriend, Rudy Colchek, a cop; and Susan Neher as Jenny, Bobby's kid sister.

THE GHOST AND MRS. MUIR NBC/ABC

21 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1969 (NBC); 18 SEPTEMBER 1969–18 SEPTEMBER 1970 (ABC) This half-hour sitcom starred Hope Lange as Carolyn Muir, a recently widowed writer who moved with her two children to the town of Schooner Bay in New England and settled into Gull Cottage, a house that turned out to be haunted by the ghost of an old ship captain; Edward Mulhare as Captain Daniel Gregg, the ghost who proceeded to look out for the best interests of the Muirs after his initial protests; Charles Nelson Reilly as Claymore Gregg, the Captain's mortal nephew; Harlen Carraher as Jonathan Muir, Carolyn's son; Kellie Flanagan as Candy Muir, Carolyn's daughter; Reta Shaw as Martha Grant, their housekeeper; Guy Raymond as Peavey, Martha's friend; and Scruffy, the family dog. Produced by Howard Leeds for 20th Century-Fox TV, the series was based on the 1947 film which starred Rex Harrison and Gene Tierney.

THE GHOST BUSTERS CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1975–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 This live-action Saturday-morning series starred Larry Storch as Eddie Spenser and Forrest Tucker as Kong, the "ghost busters" who fought the ghosts of historical villains. Also featured was Bob Burns as Tracy, their gorilla. Created by Mark Richards. Executive producers: Lou Scheimer and Norm Prescott. Produced and directed by Norman Abbott. See also Ghostbusters.

GHOST STORY NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1972–22 DECEMBER 1972 This anthology of supernatural tales was hosted by Sebastian Cabot, who appeared as Winston Essex, a wealthy gentleman who owned and operated the Mansfield House, his former mansion that had been turned into a hotel. When Cabot departed in 1972, the series continued under the title Circle of Fear.

GHOSTBUSTERS SYNDICATED

1986–1987 Despite its title, this animated series from Filmation was not based on the 1984 motion picture, but rather on the 1975–1976 live-action TV series The Ghost Busters (see above). The two lead characters, Jake and Eddie, assisted by Tracy the gorilla, Jessica the reporter, and Futura the sorceress, battled ghosts from fairy tales as well as present-day phantoms. See also The Real Ghostbusters.

GHOSTWRITER PBS

4 OCTOBER 1992– This hour children's series was aimed at 7-to-10-year-olds, and was intended to spark their interest in reading and writing. It featured a multi-ethnic cast of youngsters who became involved in solving mysteries; they were assisted by a spirit known as Ghostwriter, who provided them with written clues, often on a computer screen. The cast included Sheldon Turnipseed, Blaze Berdahl, David Lopez, Tram-Anh Tran, Mayteana Morales (1992–1993), Lateaka Vinson, William Hernandez, and Melissa Gonzalez (1994– ).

THE GIANT STEP (TAKE A GIANT STEP) CBS

7 NOVEMBER 1956–29 MAY 1957 Bert Parks hosted this prime-time game show for young people.

GIBBSVILLE NBC

11 NOVEMBER 1976–30 DECEMBER 1976 This little noticed hour-long dramatic series was based on John O'Hara's short stories about Gibbsville, a Pennsylvania mining town. The action—what there was of it—took place during the 1940s. Featured were Gig Young as reporter Ray Whitehead; John Savage as young reporter Jim Malloy; Biff McGuire as Jim's father, Dr. Malloy; Peggy McCay as Jim's mother, Mrs. Malloy; and Bert Remsen as Mr. Pell. The series was originally on NBC's 1976 fall schedule but was displaced at the last minute. It finally surfaced in November, replacing Gemini Man in NBC's reshuffled Thursday lineup. David Gerber was the executive producer.

GIDEON OLIVER ABC

20 FEBRUARY 1989–2 SEPTEMBER 1989 One segment of The ABC Monday Mystery Movie, this one starred Louis Gossett, Jr., as Gideon Oliver, an anthropology professor at Columbia University who used his knowledge of other cultures to solve baffling crimes, and featured Shari Headley as his daughter and assistant, Zina. Gideon Oliver was the only segment of the Mystery Movie not renewed for the 1989–1990 season; only five episodes were made.

GIDGET ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1965–1 SEPTEMBER 1966 Based on the film series, this sitcom starred Sally Field as California teenager Frances "Gidget" Lawrence. Also featured were Don Porter as her father, Russell Lawrence, a widower; Betty Connor as her older sister, Anne; Peter Deuel as Anne's husband, John Cooper, a psychologist; and Lynette Winter as Gidget's friend, Larue. Richard Dreyfuss was seen occasionally as Norman Durfner, one of Gidget's pals at Westside High. The half-hour show was a Screen Gems production. In 1986 a new version surfaced, featuring an adult Gidget: see The New Gidget.

GIGANTOR SYNDICATED

1966 Produced in Japan, this cartoon series featured a huge robot (Gigantor) who was controlled by twelve-year-old Jimmy Sparks. New episodes were produced in 1993 and televised on the Sci-Fi Channel.

THE GILLETTE CAVALCADE OF SPORTS NBC

4 SEPTEMBER 1948–24 JUNE 1960 NBC's Friday-night boxing telecast was sponsored by Gillette for most of its run, and the ringside commentary was usually provided by Jimmy Powers. In the early years the fights were broadcast from St. Nicholas Arena in New York, but from the mid-1950s the matches were telecast from anywhere in the country. If the featured fight failed to go the full distance, the remainder of the hour was filled with features, of variable lengths, such as Greatest Fights of the Century, Great Moments in Sports, or Red Barber's Corner. Summer broadcasts usually consisted of filmed bouts.

GILLIGAN'S ISLAND CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1964–4 SEPTEMBER 1967 Situation comedy about seven people left stranded on an uncharted isle in the Pacific after their boat, the Minnow, ran aground in a storm. With Bob Denver as Gilligan, the inept first mate; Alan Hale, Jr., as The Skipper (Jonas Grumby); Jim Backus as billionaire Thurston Howell III; Natalie Schafer as his wife, Lovey Howell; Tina Louise as movie star Ginger Grant; Russell Johnson as The Professor (Roy Hinkley); and Dawn Wells as farm girl Mary Ann Summers. Created and produced by Sherwood Schwartz, the show was generally criticized as inane, but its 98 episodes have proven extremely popular in syndication, especially among young viewers. In 1974 a cartoon version appeared: see The New Adventures of Gilligan. Most of the cast was reassembled for three made-for-TV-movies, all broadcast on NBC: "Rescue from Gilligan's Island" (1978); "The Castaways on Gilligan's Island" (1979); and "The Harlem Globetrotters on Gilligan's Island" (1981). In 1982 a second cartoon series appeared (see Gilligan's Planet). Superstation WTBS aired the never-before broadcast pilot of Gilligan's Island on 16 October 1992.

GILLIGAN'S PLANET CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1982–3 SEPTEMBER 1983 The second Saturday cartoon series based on Gilligan's Island (The New Adventures of Gilligan was the first), this one found the castaways stuck on a distant planet, trying to get back to Earth.

GIMME A BREAK! NBC

29 OCTOBER 1981–12 MAY 1987 Nell Carter starred in this half-hour sitcom as Nell Harper, housekeeper for a crusty but lovable cop and his three daughters (in flashbacks, it was established that Nell had agreed to take the job as a favor to her old friend, the cop's dying wife). Dolph Sweet costarred (until his death in 1985) as Carl Kanisky, the chief of police in Glenlawn, California. Other regulars included: Kari Michaelsen as Katie, the eldest daughter; Lauri Hendler as the middle daughter, Julie; Lara Jill Miller as the youngest daughter, Samantha; Alvernette Jiminez (1981–1982) as Nell's ditsy friend, Angie; and Howard Morton as Carl's dimwitted subordinate, Officer Ralph Simpson. In 1982 John Hoyt joined the cast as Carl's equally crusty father, Stanley Kanisky; Jane Dulo was seen during the 1982–1983 season as Carl's mother, Mildred. Pete Schrum was seen occasionally as Carl's brother, mortician Ed Kanisky. In 1983 young Joey Lawrence was added as Joey Donovan, a six-year-old orphan who came to live with the Kaniskys. Telma Hopkins signed on in 1984 as Nell's childhood friend, Dr. Addy Wilson, now an educator (the addition of Hopkins, a former member of Tony Orlando and Dawn, made it easy to incorporate musical numbers into the series, taking advantage of Nell Carter's considerable talents). In the fall of 1985, with Dolph Sweet having died, the Kanisky household also came to grips with Carl's death. By that time middle daughter Julie had married Jonathan Maxwell (played by Jonathan Silverman), and the two newlyweds had moved into the Kanisky house. Major changes occurred in the fall of 1986: Katie had moved to San Francisco; Julie, Jonathan, and their baby, Nell, had moved to San Jose; and Samantha headed off to Littlefield College in New Jersey. When Addy Wilson landed a job in New York, Nell and Joey decided to join her there, as did Grandpa Stanley; Nell landed a job at a publishing house. They were joined by Joey's little brother, Matthew (played by Joey Lawrence's real-life brother, Matthew Lawrence). Other new regulars included Paul Sand as building manager Marty; Rosetta LeNoire as Maybelle Harper, Nell's mother; and Rosie O'Donnell as Maggie O'Brien. In a rare prime-time event, the episode of 23 February 1985 was broadcast live. Mort Lachman and Sy Rosen were the creators of the series.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN (FOR YOUR PLEASURE) (THE KYLE MacDONNELL SHOW) NBC

15 APRIL 1948–10 SEPTEMBER 1949 Singer Kyle MacDonnell appeared frequently in television's early days, and hosted several series. Her first show was originally seen on Thursdays, and was titled For Your Pleasure; by the summer of 1948, however, it had shifted to Wednesdays, and in September it was retitled Girl About Town; the twenty-minute series moved to Sundays in February 1949. That summer the show expanded to thirty minutes, moved to Saturday nights, and again assumed the title For Your Pleasure.

28 SEPTEMBER 1957–29 MARCH 1958 Singer Gisele MacKenzie left Your Hit Parade in 1957 to host this half-hour musical variety series, which was produced by Jack Benny's J & M Productions.

GIVE AND TAKE CBS

20 MARCH 1952–12 JUNE 1952 This unheralded game show, not to be confused with CBS's 1975 show, Give-N-Take, was seen on Thursday afternoons for thirteen weeks. Jack Carney produced the question-and-answer program, which is notable chiefly because it was the first network TV show in which Bill Cullen, who cohosted it with John Reed King, appeared regularly.

GIVE-N-TAKE CBS

8 SEPTEMBER 1975–28 NOVEMBER 1975 This half-hour daytime game show was the successor to Spin-Off. Four contestants competed for a top prize of $5,000 on the series that was hosted by Jim Lange and produced by Bill Carruthers and Joel Stein.

GLADIATORS 2000 SYNDICATED

1994– A junior version of the popular syndicated series American Gladiators, this one involved two teams, each comprised of a boy and a girl and coached by one of the American Gladiators regulars, in physical challenges and in quizzes on health and nutrition. Ryan Sechrist and Maria Santos cohosted.

GLADYS KNIGHT AND THE PIPS NBC

10 JULY 1975–31 JULY 1975 This four-week summer variety series was hosted by recording group Gladys Knight and the Pips (Edward Patten, William Guest, and Merald "Bubba" Knight, Gladys's brother). The group got together in the 1950s and began making records in 1961, although their first big hit was not until 1967 ("I Heard It Through the Grapevine"). Bob Henry produced the series.

GLAMOUR GIRL NBC

6 JULY 1953–8 JANUARY 1954 Harry Babbitt hosted this daytime audience-participation show; each day four women from the studio audience told why they wanted to be the day's "Glamour Girl"; the winner was given a twenty-four-hour beauty treatment, an assortment of gifts, and a vacation trip. Jack McCoy was the executive producer.

THE GLEN CAMPBELL GOODTIME HOUR CBS

29 JANUARY 1969–13 JUNE 1972

THE SUMMER BROTHERS SMOTHERS SHOW CBS

23 JUNE 1968–8 SEPTEMBER 1968 Glen Campbell came to Hollywood from Arkansas in the early 1960s and for several years made his living as a guitarist on recording sessions; in 1965 he toured briefly as a guitarist with the Beach Boys. In 1967 he began appearing regularly on The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour, and in 1968 he hosted their summer replacement series, The Summer Brothers Smothers Show. Regulars on that show included Pat Paulsen, Leigh French, singer John Hartford (composer of "Gentle on My Mind," one of Campbell's biggest records), the Louis DaPron dancers, the Jimmy Joyce singers, the Nelson Riddle orchestra, and announcer Bill Thompson. In 1969 he returned to TV as host of The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour; his regulars included Pat Paulsen (1969–1970), Jack Burns (1969–1970), John Hartford, Jerry Reed, Larry McNeeley, the Mike Curb Congregation (1971–1972), the Ray Charles Singers, the Ron Poindexter dancers, the Marty Paich orchestra, and announcer Eddie Mayehoff. Among the show's writers was comedian Steve Martin.

GLENCANNON SYNDICATED

1959 This comedy-adventure series was set in the Caribbean and starred Thomas Mitchell as Captain Colin Glencannon, skipper of a freighter, The Inchcliffe Castle, and Patrick Allen as Bos'n Hughes. Based on the stories by Guy Gilpatric, the series was produced in England by Gross-Krasne, Ltd.

GLENN MILLER TIME CBS

10 JULY 1961–11 SEPTEMBER 1961 Vocalist Johnny Desmond and bandleader Ray McKinley (who was the drummer in Glenn Miller's orchestra) cohosted this live, half-hour musical series, which sought to recreate the Big Band Era of the 1940s. Also featured were singers Patty Clark and the Castle Sisters. The show was a summer replacement for Hennesey.

THE GLENN REEVES SHOW SYNDICATED

1966 Country and western singer Glenn Reeves hosted this half-hour musical series.

GLITTER ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1984–25 DECEMBER 1984; 13 DECEMBER 1985–27 DECEMBER 1985 An hour dramatic series set at the offices of Glitter, a trendy magazine. The cast included Arthur Hill as Charles Hardwick, the publisher; David Birney as reporter Sam Dillon; Morgan Brittany as reporter Kate Simpson, Hardwick's daughter; Christopher Mayer as reporter Pete Bozak; Dianne Kay as reporter Jennifer Douglas; Timothy Patrick Murphy as Chip, the gofer; Tracy Nelson as Angela, the receptionist; Arte Johnson as photographer Clive Richlin; Barbara Sharma as Shelley Sealy; and Millie Slavin as Ellen, Hardwick's secretary. The series began as an uneven mix of comedy (including office romances) and drama; producer Duane Poole described the early episodes as "schizophrenic," and promised a harder edge to subsequent stories. The changes were to no avail, as Glitter finished 94th out of 97 series in the prime-time seasonal Nielsens and was yanked on Christmas night. Seven previously unaired episodes were later seen in a late-night slot on ABC a year later.

GLOBAL ZOBEL SYNDICATED

1961 Myron Zobel hosted this half-hour travelogue.

GLORIA CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1982–10 APRIL 1983; 29 JUNE 1983–21 SEPTEMBER 1983 Sally Struthers, who had played Archie Bunker's daughter on All in the Family from 1971 to 1978, returned to that role four years later. In this sequel, Gloria Stivic, now divorced, landed in upstate New York with her young son and found a job as a veterinarian's assistant. Also featured were Burgess Meredith as the crusty vet, Dr. Willard Adams; Jo de Winter as Willard's partner, Dr. Maggie Lawrence; Lou Richards as Clark Uhley, Gloria's fellow assistant; and Christian Jacobs as Gloria's son, Joey Stivic.

THE GLORIA SWANSON SHOW
(CROWN THEATRE WITH GLORIA SWANSON) SYNDICATED

1954 This half-hour dramatic anthology series, hosted by (and occasionally starring) Gloria Swanson, was produced by Bing Crosby Enterprises.

GLORY DAYS FOX

25 JULY 1990–27 SEPTEMBER 1990 This hour dramatic series traced the lives of four friends who had recently graduated from high school. It featured Spike Alexander as Dave Rutecki, a rookie cop; Evan Mirand as Fopiano, a fraternity pledge; Nicholas Kallsen as Peter "T-Bone" Trigg, a rock-and-roll fan; Brad Pitt as Walker Lovejoy, a college dropout and aspiring newspaper writer; Robert Costanzo as Rutecki's boss, Lieutenant V. T. Krantz; Beth Broderick as Lovejoy's editor, Sheila Jackson; Frederick Coffin as Lovejoy's father, Jim; and Sam Jenkins as Lovejoy's girlfriend, Sherry Jensen.

GLYNIS CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1963–18 DECEMBER 1963 This sitcom was one of the early fatalities of the 1963–1964 season. It starred Glynis Johns as Glynis Granville, a novelist and amateur detective; Keith Andes as her husband, Keith Granville; George Mathews as Chick Rogers, a retired policeman who occasionally assisted Glynis.

GO (GO-U.S.A.) NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 Go, the TV series with the shortest title (until NBC's V in 1984), was aimed at children. It began in 1973 as a series that explored occupations; in 1975 its title was lengthened (to Go-U.S.A.) and its emphasis was shifted to America's bicentennial observance. The Saturday series' executive producer was George A. Heinemann.

GO! NBC

3 OCTOBER 1983–20 JANUARY 1984 The second TV series with this short title was a daytime game show on which two five-member teams sought to identify a word or a phrase from clues supplied by team members. Kevin O'Connell was the host.

GO LUCKY CBS

15 JULY 1951–2 SEPTEMBER 1951 Jan Murray hosted this game show, a summer replacement for This Is Show Business, on which guest celebrities acted out charades for contestants.

THE GODZILLA POWER HOUR NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1978–5 SEPTEMBER 1981 A Saturday-morning cartoon series from Hanna-Barbera Productions, The Godzilla Power Hour began as a sixty-minute show featuring segments of "Godzilla" (who was now a friendly monster from the depths of the ocean who helped out his friends, a group of research scientists stationed aboard the Calico) and "Jana of the Jungle" (a female Tarzan). In November of 1978 the show expanded to ninety minutes and was retitled Godzilla Super 90, adding on segments of Jonny Quest, another Hanna-Barbera series. In the fall of 1979 the series was reduced to thirty minutes and titled The Godzilla Show; it later became The Godzilla Globetrotters Hour. During the 1979–1980 and 1980–1981 seasons, Godzilla headlined two Saturday-morning series simultaneously. The Godzilla Show, a half-hour program, ran during both seasons; it was coupled with The Godzilla/ Globetrotters Adventure Hour in 1979–1980, with The Godzilla/Dynomutt Hour, from September to November 1980, and with The Godzilla/Hong Kong Phooey Hour, from November 1980 to May 1981.

THE GO-GO GLOBETROTTERS

See THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS

THE GO-GO GOPHERS CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1969 This Saturday-morning cartoon series was set in the old West and featured two gophers who tried to fight off the advances of Kit Coyote of the Cavalry.

GOING BANANAS NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1984–1 DECEMBER 1984 Live-action Saturday morning series about an orangutan (Roxanna) and her two human pals, James (played by Tim Topper) and his sister Louise (Emily Moultrie).

GOING MY WAY ABC

3 OCTOBER 1962–11 SEPTEMBER 1963 Based on the 1944 film, this situation comedy starred Gene Kelly as Father Charles O'Malley, a priest assigned to St. Dominic's Parish in Manhattan; Leo G. Carroll as Father Fitzgibbon, the parish pastor; Dick York as Tom Colwell, the progressive director of the local community center; and Nydia Westman as Mrs. Featherstone.

GOING PLACES ABC

3 JUNE 1956–26 AUGUST 1956 This weekend variety series was broadcast each week from a different city in Florida. Jack Gregson hosted the first few shows and was replaced by Merv Griffin.

GOING PLACES ABC

21 SEPTEMBER 1990–8 MARCH 1991; 31 MAY 1991–5 JULY 1991 Mindless sitcom about four young staffers on a fictional TV series who shared a house. With Alan Ruck as Charlie Davis; Jerry Levine as his brother, Jack Davis; Hallie Todd as Kate Griffin; Heather Locklear as Alex Burton; Holland Taylor as Dawn St. Claire, who produced the series, a Candid Camera-type show titled Here's Looking at You for National Studios, and who also owned the house where the four lived; and Staci Keanan as their teenage neighbor, Lindsay Bowen. In January 1991 Here's Looking at You was canceled, and the four found work on a new National Studios series, The Dick Roberts Show. Holland Taylor ceased appearing as a regular, and three new regulars were added: Steve Vinovich as Dick Roberts, the insufferable talk-show host; Philip Charles MacKenzie as Dick's long-suffering producer, Arnie Ross; and J. D. Daniels as Kate's eight-year-old nephew, Nick.

GOING TO EXTREMES ABC

1 SEPTEMBER 1992–27 JANUARY 1993 Filmed on location in Jamaica, this hour dramatic series was set at a medical school on the Caribbean island of Jantique. The cast included Roy Dotrice as Dr. Henry Croft, the school's founder; Carl Lumbly as the dean, Dr. Michael Norris, an American-educated Jantique native; June Chadwick as internal medicine professor Dr. Alice Davis; Charles Keating as anatomy instructor Dr. Jack Van De Weghe; Erika Alexander as student Cheryl Carter; Camilo Gallardo as Australian student Kim Selby; Joanna Going as student Kathleen McDermott; Daniel Jenkins as student Alex Lauren; Andrew Lauer as student Charlie Moran; and Robert Duncan McNeill as second-year-student Colin Mitford. Joshua Brand, John Falsey, and Frank South created the series.

THE GOLDBERGS CBS/NBC/DUMONT/SYNDICATED

17 JANUARY 1949–18 JUNE 1951 (CBS); 4 FEBRUARY 1952–14 JULY 1952; 3 JULY 1953–25 SEPTEMBER 1953 (NBC); 13 APRIL 1954–19 OCTOBER 1954 (DUMONT); 1954–1955 (SYNDICATED) Created by Gertrude Berg in 1929, the hit radio show became one of TV's first popular sitcoms. In addition to writing and producing the show, Gertrude Berg also starred as Molly Goldberg, the lovable Jewish mother who lived with her family at 1038 East Tremont Avenue in the Bronx. Philip Loeb first played her husband, Jake, a tailor, but was blacklisted during the "Red Scare" of the early 1950s (Loeb committed suicide in 1955); Harold J. Stone took over the role in 1952, and Robert H. Harris (who had previously played Jake's partner, Mendel) played the part from 1953 through 1955. Also featured were Arlene McQuade as their daughter Rosalie; Larry Robinson (1949–1952) and Tom Taylor (1953–1955) as their son Sammy; Eli Mintz (1949–1952 and 1954–1955) and Menasha Skulnik (1953) as Uncle David, Molly's brother. From 1949 to 1951 the show was seen on Monday nights. In 1952 it was seen Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings in a fifteen-minute format. In 1953 it reverted to a half-hour format. The 1954–1955 syndicated version was also a half-hour series; the Goldbergs, however, had left the Bronx and moved to Haverville, a suburban community. Arnold Stang was featured in the latter version as Seymour, Jake's shipping clerk.

THE GOLDDIGGERS NBC/SYNDICATED

20 JUNE 1968–5 SEPTEMBER 1968; 17 JULY 1969–11 SEPTEMBER 1969; 16 JULY 1970–10 SEPTEMBER 1970 (NBC); 1971 (SYNDICATED) The Golddiggers were a group of attractive young women put together by producer Greg Garrison. Their show was a summer replacement for The Dean Martin Show in 1968, 1969, and 1970; in 1971 they hosted a syndicated series. The show was entitled Dean Martin Presents the Golddiggers in 1968 and 1969. The 1968 show was set in the 1930s, and regulars included cohosts Frank Sinatra, Jr., and Joey Heatherton, and Paul Lynde, Barbara Heller, Stanley Myron Handelman, Stu Gilliam, The Times Square Two, Skiles and Henderson, and the Les Brown Orchestra. In 1969 the series was hosted by Lou Rawls, Gail Martin (Dean's daughter), and Paul Lynde; other regulars included Stanley Myron Handelman, Tommy Tune, Albert Brooks, Danny Lockin, Allison McKay, Darleen Carr, and Fiore and Eldridge. The 1970 series was taped in England and titled The Golddiggers in London; regulars included Charles Nelson Reilly (the host), Marty Feldman, Tommy Tune, and Julian Chagrin. The 1971 series was entitled simply The Golddiggers and featured Charles Nelson Reilly, Jackie Vernon, Barbara Heller, and Alice Ghostley; unlike the summer series, it was only a half hour in length. The composition of the ten-to-twelve member Golddiggers troupe changed from time to time. In 1970 the group consisted of Pauline Antony, Wanda Bailey, Jackie Chidsey, Paula Cinko, Rosetta Cox, Michelle della Fave, Tara Leigh, Susan Lund, Micki McGlone, and Patricia Mickey. A year later, only Chidsey and Lund remained: New arrivals included Jimmi Cannon, Loyita Chapel, Lee Crawford, Liz Kelley, Francie Mendenhall, Nancy Reichert, and Janice Whitby.

THE GOLDEN GIRLS NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1985–12 SEPTEMBER 1992 The most popular new series of the 1985–1986 season, The Golden Girls was the first successful modern sitcom in which all of the stars were female. Even more surprising was that all were well over age fifty. Its central characters were four mature women living together in Miami: Bea Arthur as teacher Dorothy Zbornak, a divorcée; Betty White as the naive grief counselor Rose Nylund; Rue McClanahan as sex-obsessed museum worker Blanche Devereaux, who owned the house where the four ladies lived; and Estelle Getty as Dorothy's acid-tongued mother, Sophia Petrillo, who moved in after her retirement home burned down. Unlike most of TV's earlier "older ladies," the Golden Girls characters never abandoned their hopes for romance and their interest in sex. On the final first-run episode (9 May 1992), Dorothy married Blanche's Uncle Lucas (played by Leslie Nielsen). The other three golden girls carried on with a new series on a new network: see The Golden Palace.

Created by Susan Harris, The Golden Girls finished in Nielsen's top ten in each of its first five seasons.

THE GOLDEN PALACE CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1992–6 AUGUST 1993 Three of the principals of The Golden Girls carried on for another season, on a new network, in this sequel series. Here, they were the new owners of a South Miami Beach hotel, The Golden Palace. Featured were Betty White as Rose Nylund; Rue McClanahan as Blanche Devereaux; Estelle Getty as Sophia Petrillo; Don Cheadle as Roland, the hotel manager; Billy L. Sullivan as Oliver, Roland's foster son; and Cheech Marin as Chuy Castillos, the chef.

GOLDEN WINDOWS NBC

5 JULY 1954–8 APRIL 1955 This fifteen-minute afternoon serial told the story of a young woman who left Capstan Island, Maine, to pursue a singing career in New York. Along the way she became involved with a man who was in trouble with the law. Featured were Leila Martin as Julie Goodwin; Herb Patterson as her boyfriend, Tom Anderson; Eric Dressler as her father, Charles Goodwin; Grant Sullivan as John Brandon; Millicent Brower as Ellen, Tom's former fiancée; Joe DeSantis as Carl Grant; Phillip Pine as Paul; Frank Hammerton as vocal teacher Joseph Kindler; Barbara Cook as Hazel; Vicki Cummings as Jane Talbert; and E. A. Krumschmidt as Streicher.

GOLDEN YEARS (STEPHEN KING'S GOLDEN YEARS) CBS

16 JULY 1991–22 AUGUST 1991 Stephen King created this continuing series about a seventy-year-old janitor, injured in a lab explosion, who found himself growing younger. With Keith Szarabajka as the not-so-senior citizen, Harlan Williams; Frances Sternhagen as his wife, Gina; Felicity Huffman as Terry Spann, the security director at the lab, a government research facility called Falco Plains; Ed Lauter as General Louis Crewes; R. D. Call as Jude Andrews, an intelligence agent pursuing Williams; and Bill Raymond as Dr. Richard Todhunter, the scientist whose experiments caused Williams's predicament. King himself appeared in the fourth of the seven episodes as a bus driver.

GOMER PYLE, U.S.M.C. CBS
25 SEPTEMBER 1964–19 SEPTEMBER 1969 This military sitcom was a spinoff from The Andy Griffith Show. It starred Jim Nabors as Gomer Pyle, the naive and trusting gas pump jockey from Mayberry, North Carolina, who decided to join the Marines. Assigned to Camp Henderson in California, he served a five-year enlistment as a private. Also featured were Frank Sutton as the irascible Sergeant Vince Carter, his platoon leader; Forrest Compton as Colonel Gray, the commanding officer; Ronnie Schell as his buddy, Private Duke Slater; Ted Bessell (1964–1966) as pal Frankie Lombardi, also a private; Ray Stuart as Corporal Boyle, Carter's aide; Allan Melvin (1967–1969) as Sergeant Hacker; and Elizabeth MacRae (1967–1969) as Gomer's girlfriend, Lou Ann Poovie, an aspiring singer. Executive producers: Aaron Ruben and Sheldon Leonard. 150 episodes were produced.

THE GONG SHOW NBC/SYNDICATED
14 JUNE 1976–21 JULY 1978 (NBC); 1976–1980 (SYNDICATED); 1988 (SYNDICATED) This popular game show took Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour one step further: A panel of three celebrities judged unusual amateur (and professional) talent acts, and any member of the panel could, by banging a large gong, terminate any act before completion. Completed acts were then rated on a one-to-ten scale, and the winning act received a cash award—$516.32 on the day show, $712.05 (or sometimes $1,000) on the syndicated version. The show was a magnet for unusual acts: nose-whistlers, sink players, and singing dogs were all commonplace. Chuck Barris, who created the show with coproducer Chris Bearde, chose to host the festivities (John Barbour, later of Real People, was to have been the host, but was replaced before the premiere). It was the first time in front of the microphone for Barris, the man responsible for The Dating Game, The Newlywed Game, and How's Your Mother-in-Law (before that, he'd written "Palisades Park" for singer Freddy Cannon). The syndicated version was hosted for one season by Gary Owens before Barris assumed those chores as well. Among the celebrities who frequented the panel were Jaye P. Morgan, Rex Reed, Arte Johnson, Michele Lee, and Jamie Farr. Siv Aberg kept score. Don Bleu hosted the short-lived 1988 version.

GOOBER AND THE GHOST CHASERS ABC
8 SEPTEMBER 1973–31 AUGUST 1975 On this weekend cartoon show a dog who could become invisible teamed up with some magazine staffers to chase ghosts. Some of the voices were supplied by Paul Winchell (as Goober, the dog), Ronnie Schell, and several members of The Partridge Family: Susan Dey, Danny Bonaduce, Brian Forster, and Suzanne Crough. Iwao Takamoto produced the series for Hanna-Barbera Productions, Inc. The second season consisted entirely of reruns.

GOOD ADVICE CBS
2 APRIL 1993–7 MAY 1993; 23 MAY 1994–10 AUGUST 1994 Disappointing sitcom about a marriage counselor and a divorce lawyer who shared an office suite. With Shelley Long as the counselor, Susan De Ruzza; Treat Williams as the lawyer, Jack Harold; George Wyner as chiropractor Artie Cohen, who also shared the offices; Estelle Harris as Artie's mother, Ronnie, the receptionist; Chris McDonald (1993) as Susan's husband, Joey De Ruzza; Ross Malinger as their young son, Michael; and Lightfield Lewis as the office boy, Sean. When the series returned in 1994, Harris and McDonald were gone from the cast (it was explained that Susan had kicked her husband out), and two new cast members were added: Henriette Mantel as Henriette, Susan's housekeeper; and Teri Garr as Susan's sister, Paige, who became the new receptionist. Norma Safford Vela and Danny Jacobson created the series.

GOOD AND EVIL ABC
25 SEPTEMBER 1991–30 OCTOBER 1991 Susan Harris created this continuing sitcom, much like her groundbreaking effort, Soap. Its central characters were two sisters living in Seattle, one good and one bad. The cast included Teri Garr as bitchy businesswoman Denise Sandler; Margaret Whitton as the saintly Genny, a widowed biochemist; Marian Seldes as their mother, Charlotte; Brooke Theiss as Genny's daughter, Caroline, who had been mute since her father's death (she broke her silence on the final telecast); Marius Weyers as Denise's long-lost husband, recently thawed out after being frozen in a glacier on Mount Everest; Mark Blankfield as George, a blind psychiatrist who lusted for Genny; Lane Davies as Dr. Eric Haan, Genny's suitor; Lane Smith as Harlan Shell, Charlotte's suitor; Mary Gillis as Mary, Denise's secretary; Seth Green as David, Denise's teenage son; Sherman Howard as Roger, Denise's corporate assistant; and William Shockley as Sonny.

GOOD COMPANY ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1967–21 DECEMBER 1967 Noted trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey (whose clients have included Dr. Sam Sheppard, Patty Hearst, and O.J. Simpson) hosted this series in which celebrities were interviewed at their homes. Its resemblance to Person to Person may have been more than coincidental: John Aaron produced both series.

GOOD GRIEF FOX

30 SEPTEMBER 1990–17 MARCH 1991 Half-hour sitcom set at the Sincerity Mortuary, run by two brothers-in-law. With Howie Mandel as brash Ernie Lapidus, who had recently joined the sixty-year-old family business; Joel Brooks as his staid partner, Warren Pepper; Wendy Schaal as Ernie's wife, and Warren's sister, Debbie; Sheldon Feldner as Raoul, Ernie's eccentric assistant; and Tom Poston as Ringo Prowley, an old friend of Ernie's late father who showed up hoping Ernie would give him a job. Stu Silver created the series.

THE GOOD GUYS CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1968–23 JANUARY 1970 This low-key sitcom was one of the few shows of the 1960s filmed before a live audience. It starred Herb Edelman as Bert Gramus and Bob Denver as Rufus Butterworth, two childhood friends who buy a diner (Bert's Place) together (Rufus also drove a cab part-time), and Joyce Van Patten as Claudia Gramus, Bert's wife. Also featured was Ron Masak as Andy, their friend and patron. The half-hour show was produced by David Susskind's Talent Associates.

GOOD HEAVENS ABC

29 FEBRUARY 1976–26 JUNE 1976 This irregularly scheduled situation comedy starred Carl Reiner as Mr. Angel, a representative from the afterlife who returns to Earth to grant wishes to deserving people. Created by Bernard Slade, the series was produced by Austin Kalish and Irma Kalish. Carl Reiner also served as executive producer.

THE GOOD LIFE NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1971–8 JANUARY 1972 In this sitcom a middle-class couple decided to hire themselves out as a butler and maid to a wealthy family. With Larry Hagman as Albert Miller; Donna Mills as Jane Miller, his wife; David Wayne as their wealthy employer, Charles Dutton; Hermione Baddeley as Grace Dutton, Charles's sister; and Danny Goldman as Nick, Charles's son.

THE GOOD LIFE NBC

3 JANUARY 1994–12 APRIL 1994 Another in the string of 90s sitcoms starring standup comics, this one cast John Caponera as a warehouse manager named John Bowman. John had a wife, kids, and some zany coworkers at the warehouse. Also on hand were Eve Gordon as his wife, Maureen; Shay Astar as teen daughter Melissa; Jake Patellis as teen son Paul; Justin Berfield as subteen son Bob; Drew Carey (also a standup comic) as coworker Drew; and Monty Hoffman as coworker Tommy. Carey received his own series in the fall of 1995: See The Drew Carey Show.

GOOD MORNING AMERICA ABC

3 NOVEMBER 1975– The first program to compete seriously against NBC's Today show, Good Morning America is a revamped version of A.M. America, ABC's first early-morning effort. Its format is similar to Today's—a two-hour blend of news, interviews, and features—but GMA's basic set is a living room rather than a newsroom. David Hartman (who had been a regular on The Virginian, The Bold Ones, and Lucas Tanner) was the show's host from 1975 to 1987. His first cohost was actress Nancy Dussault, who left in April 1977. She was succeeded by Sandy Hill, who held the position for three years. Joan Lunden was named Hill's permanent replacement in August of 1980. GMA has also featured a number of regular contributors over the years; this group has included columnists Jack Anderson, Erma Bombeck, and Rona Barrett, former New York mayor John Lindsay, comedian Jonathan Winters, ABC newsman Geraldo Rivera, editor Helen Gurley Brown, former Olympian Bruce Jenner and his wife, Chrystie, and physicians Dr. Timothy Johnson and Dr. Lendon Smith. Charles Gibson succeeded Hartman as cohost in February 1987.

Good Morning America's ratings climbed slowly but steadily. During the week of 4 May 1979 it overtook Today for the first time; three months later it repeated the success. By early 1982 GMA had begun to pull ahead of Today consistently. In July of that year ABC inaugurated an even earlier newscast (see ABC World News This Morning). The Lunden-Gibson partnership proved to be both successful and durable, as GMA's ratings generally stayed ahead of Today's through the mid-1990s. On 3 January 1993 GMA launched a Sunday edition. The one-hour Good Morning America/Sunday was originally cohosted by Dana King and Bill Ritter. King left at the end of 1993, and Ritter was succeeded by cohosts Willow Bay and Antonio Mora in March 1994.

GOOD MORNING WORLD CBS

5 SEPTEMBER 1967–17 SEPTEMBER 1968 This sitcom was the first to be set at a radio station. It starred Joby Baker as Dave Lewis and Ronnie Schell as Larry Clarke, two Los Angeles disc jockeys who cohosted an early-morning show ("The Lewis and Clarke Show"). Also featured were Julie Parrish as Linda Lewis, Dave's wife; Billy DeWolfe as station manager Roland B. Hutton, Jr.; Goldie Hawn as Sandy, a neighbor of the Lewises who was interested in Larry. The series was developed by the team responsible for The Dick Van Dyke Show: Carl Reiner, Sheldon Leonard, Bill Persky, and Sam Denoff.

GOOD SPORTS CBS

10 JANUARY 1991–13 JULY 1991 Half-hour sitcom starring Farrah Fawcett and Ryan O'Neal (who lived together in real life) as Gayle Roberts and "Downtown" Bobby Tannen. Roberts, an ex-model turned sportscaster, suddenly found herself teamed up on the air with Tannen, a dimwitted, down-and-out former football star who, twenty years earlier, had spent a passionate weekend with her but now only barely remembered their tryst. Also featured were Lane Smith as Rappaport, the folksy owner of Rappaport Broadcasting System, parent company of the All-Sports Cable Network for whom Gayle and Bobby worked; Brian Doyle-Murray as Mack MacKinney, their producer; Cleavant Derricks as Jeff Musberger; Paul Feig as Leash, the gofer; Christine Dunford as Missy; and Lois Smith as Mrs. Tannen, Bobby's mother. Alan Zweibel created the series; Al Green sang the theme.

GOOD TIME HARRY NBC

19 JULY 1980–13 SEPTEMBER 1980 Half-hour sitcom starring Ted Bessell as swinging bachelor Harry Jenkins, who returned to his job as a sportswriter for the San Francisco Herald. With Eugene Roche as Jimmy Hughes, the sports editor; Marcia Strassman as fellow sportswriter Carol Younger; Ruth Manning as Sally, Harry's secretary; Jesse Wells as Billie, a cocktail waitress; Richard Karron as Lenny, Harry's favorite bartender; and Barry Gordon as Harry's neighbor Stan.

GOOD TIMES CBS

8 FEBRUARY 1974–3 JANUARY 1979; 23 MAY 1979–1 AUGUST 1979 Good Times was the first spinoff of a spinoff: it was descended from All in the Family by way of Maude. Set in Chicago, it told the story of a lower-class black family— an often-unemployed father and a mother trying hard to make ends meet, both hoping to build a better future for their three children. The show starred Esther Rolle (1974–1977) as Florida Evans, formerly the maid on Maude; John Amos (1974–1976) as James, her husband; Jimmie Walker as J. J. (James, Jr.), their jive-talking eldest son; BernNadette Stanis as Thelma, their teenage daughter; Ralph Carter as Michael, their serious-minded younger son; Ja'net DuBois as their friend and neighbor, Willona Woods; Johnny Brown as Mr. Bookman, the much-despised building janitor. Amos left the series at the end of the 1975–1976 season; in the 1976 fall premiere it was explained that he had found work in Mississippi but had been killed in an auto accident. Later that season Moses Gunn joined the cast as Carl Dixon, Florida's new romantic interest. When Esther Rolle decided to leave the series as production began for the 1977–1978 season, it was explained that she and Carl had gotten married and had gone to Arizona for Carl's health; the three children remained in Chicago to take care of themselves (with a little help from Willona); Janet Jackson joined the cast as Penny, a battered child who was adopted by Willona. In the fall of 1978 Esther Rolle returned to the show, and Ben Powers joined the cast as former football star Keith Anderson, who married Thelma. Good Times was created by Eric Monte and Michael Evans (of The Jeffersons); 133 episodes were televised. Executive producers included Norman Lear (1974–1975), Allan Manings (1975–1976), Austin and Irma Kalish (1976–1978), and Norman Paul (1978–1979). Producers included Allan Manings (1974–1975), Jack Elinson and Norman Paul (1975–1976), Gordon Mitchell and Lloyd Turner (1976–1978), and Sid Dorfman (1978–1979). The series' theme was written by Marilyn and Alan Bergman and Dave Grusin.

GOODNIGHT BEANTOWN CBS

3 APRIL 1983–1 MAY 1983; 28 AUGUST 1983–15 JANUARY 1984; 22 JULY 1984–2 SEPTEMBER 1984 Half-hour sitcom about a pair of news anchorpeople at a Boston TV station. With Bill Bixby as Matt Cassidy, who had been the sole anchor at WYN, channel 11; Mariette Hartley as Jennifer Barnes, who came to Boston to be Matt's coanchor, and who ended up living across the hall from him in the same apartment building; Tracey Gold as Susan, Jennifer's daughter; George Coe (spring 1983) as the news director, Dick Novak; Louis Giambalvo (spring 1983) as Gus; Gary Bayer (spring 1983) as Jake; G. W. Bailey (fall 1983–1984) as Albert, the new news director; Jim Staahl (fall 1983–1984) as sportscaster Frank Fletcher; and Stephanie Faracy (fall 1983–1984) as reporter Valerie Wood.

GOODTIME GIRLS ABC

22 JANUARY 1980–12 FEBRUARY 1980; 12 APRIL 1980–26 APRIL 1980; 1 AUGUST 1980–29 AUGUST 1980 Wartime Washington, D.C., was the setting for this half-hour sitcom about four young women who shared an attic room in a boardinghouse in 1942. Featured were Annie Potts as Edith Bedelmyer; Lorna Patterson as Betty Crandall; Francine Tacker as photographer Camille Rittenhouse; Georgia Engel as war bride Loretta Smoot; Marcia Lewis as the landlady, Irma Coolidge; Merwin Goldsmith as her husband, George Coolidge, the landlord; Adrian Zmed as cabbie Frankie Malardo, who also lived in the house; and Peter Scolari (summer 1980) as Benny Loman. Leonora Thuna, Thomas L. Miller and Robert Boyett created the show.

GOODYEAR PLAYHOUSE NBC

14 OCTOBER 1951–22 SEPTEMBER 1957 Produced by Fred Coe, Goodyear Playhouse was an hour-long dramatic anthology series which, together with several other high-quality shows, comprised television's so-called "Golden Age," an era of original teleplays, usually broadcast live. Goodyear Playhouse came to the air in 1951 and shared a Sunday slot first with Philco Television Playhouse (until 1955), then with The Alcoa Hour. During the 1956–1957 season, Goodyear and Alcoa also alternated with The Dinah Shore Show and The Bob Hope Show. Among the many noteworthy presentations were: "October Story," with Julie Harris and Leslie Nielsen (14 October 1951); "Raymond Schindler, Case One," with Rod Steiger (20 January 1952, his first major TV role); Paddy Chayefsky's "Marty," with Rod Steiger and Nancy Marchand (directed by Delbert Mann, 24 May 1953); "Catch a Falling Star," with Susan Strasberg (28 June 1953, her first major TV role); "The Huntress," with Judy Holliday (14 February 1954, a rare TV appearance); "Guilty Is the Stranger," with Paul Newman (26 September 1954); "The Chivington Raid," with Steve McQueen (27 March 1955); Gore Vidal's "Visit to a Small Planet," with Cyril Ritchard and Dick York (8 May 1955); Paddy Chayefsky's "The Catered Affair," with Thelma Ritter (22 May 1955); Robert Anderson's "All Summer Long," with Raymond Massey and William Shatner (in his first major TV role, 28 October 1956). After this series left the air in 1957, Goodyear sponsored another anthology series: see Goodyear Theatre. See also Philco Television Playhouse.

GOODYEAR THEATRE NBC

14 OCTOBER 1957–12 SEPTEMBER 1960 This half-hour filmed dramatic anthology series alternated with Alcoa Theatre; both were produced by Four Star Films. Jack Lemmon appeared in four shows during the 1957–1958 season: "Lost and Found," 14 October; "Voice in the Fog," 11 November; "The Victim," 6 January; and "Disappearance," 9 June.

GOOF TROOP ABC/SYNDICATED

12 SEPTEMBER 1992–11 SEPTEMBER 1993 (ABC); 1991– (SYNDICATED) Disney's classic cartoon dog had become a father on this half-hour animated program: Goofy was raising his son, Max, in the town of Spoonerville. The series premiered simultaneously in 1991 on ABC's Saturday morning schedule and in weekday syndication, with different episodes on each version. In 1992 it became part of Disney Afternoon, a two-hour cartoon block.

THE GORDON ELLIOTT SHOW SYNDICATED

1994– Hour daytime talk show hosted by Gordon Elliott, a six-foot-seven Australian.

THE GORDON MacRAE SHOW NBC

5 MARCH 1956–27 AUGUST 1956 Musical comedy star Gordon MacRae hosted this fifteen-minute musical show, broadcast Monday before the evening news; a vocal group known as The Cheerleaders backed him up.

GOVERNMENT STORY SYNDICATED

1969 A series of forty half-hour documentaries which examined various aspects of the United States Government. Stephen Horn hosted the series, which was produced by Group W. Paul Long and E. G. Marshall supplied the narration.

THE GOVERNOR AND J.J. CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1969–30 DECEMBER 1970 This half-hour sitcom starred Dan Dailey as Governor William Drinkwater, a widower, and Julie Sommars as his daughter, J. J. (Jennifer Jo), who served as his official hostess when she was not working at the zoo. Also featured were James Callahan as Drinkwater's press secretary, George Callison; Neva Patterson as his personal secretary, Maggie McLeod; Nora Marlowe as Sarah, the housekeeper; and Guv, the basset hound. The series was one of the few sixties sitcoms filmed before a live audience.

GRACE UNDER FIRE ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1993– An immediate hit, this sitcom starred standup comic Brett Butler as Grace Kelly, a single mom raising three youngsters and working in an oil refinery in Victory, Missouri. Also featured were Jon Paul Steuer as her older son, Quentin (Noah Sagan played the role in the premiere); Kaitlin Cullum as her daughter, Libby; twins Dylan and Cole Sprouse as her baby son, Patrick; Julie White as Nadine Swoboda, Grace's high school pal and next-door neighbor; Casey Sander as Wade, Nadine's current husband (her fourth); Dave Thomas as Russell Norton, a dull pharmacist whose relationship with Grace never quite kindled; Walter Olkewicz as Grace's co-worker, Dougie; Dave Florek as co-worker Vic; Charles Hallahan (1993–1994) as Bill, the foreman; and Paul Dooley (1994– ) as John, the foreman. Valri Bromfield appeared occasionally as Grace's sister, Faith. In the fall of 1995 Tom Poston became a regular as Russell's father, Floyd, and Alan Autry appeared as Rick, an executive who became interested in Grace. Chuck Lorre created the series, and served briefly as its executive producer; he departed in the middle of the first season after "creative differences" with Butler. The series finished sixth in the Nielsen ratings during its first season (narrowly nosed out by These Friends of Mine as the year's most popular new series), and rose to fourth during its second season. In 1995 it became the first American-made sitcom to be telecast regularly in Russia.

GRADY NBC

4 DECEMBER 1975–4 MARCH 1976 In this spinoff from Sanford and Son, Whitman Mayo starred as Grady Wilson, who left the Sanfords' Los Angeles neighborhood to move in with his daughter and son-in-law in Santa Monica. With Carol Cole as Ellie Marshall, his daughter; Joe Morton as her husband, Hal, a schoolteacher; Rosanne Katon as Laurie, their daughter; and Haywood Nelson as Haywood, their son. Executive producers: Saul Turteltaub and Bernie Orenstein. Produced by Howard Leeds and Jerry Ross for Bud Yorkin Productions.

GRAND NBC

18 JANUARY 1990–12 APRIL 1990; 12 JULY 1990–27 DECEMBER 1990 Half-hour sitcom set in the small town of Grand, Pennsylvania. With John Randolph as Harris Weldon, owner of the local piano factory, Grand's chief employer; Michael McKean (to April 1990) as Tom Smithson; Bonnie Hunt as Tom's wife, and Harris's niece, Carol Anne; Pamela Reed as Janice Pasetti, who lived in a trailer and cleaned homes for a living; Sara Rue as Janice's teenage daughter, Edda; John Neville as Harris's trusty servant, Desmond; Jackey Vinson as Tom's son (by a prior marriage), Dylan; Andrew Lauer as local cop Wayne Kasmurski; and Joel Murray as Harris's gadabout son, Norris. Michael Leeson created the series, which was scheduled Thursdays at 9:30 P.M., following Cheers. Ratings were consistently disappointing, and it was abruptly pulled from NBC's schedule before its three-episode finale had concluded.

GRAND CHANCE ROUNDUP CBS

17 FEBRUARY 1951–4 AUGUST 1951 A talent contest for young people, Grand Chance Roundup was set at a Western ranch, though it was broadcast Saturday mornings from Philadelphia. Gene Crane and Richard Caulk cohosted the show, and Thomas Freebairn-Smith produced it.

THE GRAND JURY SYNDICATED

1959 This half-hour crime show starred Lyle Bettger as Harry Driscoll and Harold J. Stone as John Kennedy, two grand jury investigators.

THE GRAND OLE OPRY (STARS OF THE GRAND OLE OPRY) SYNDICATED/ABC

1955–1957 (SYNDICATED); 15 OCTOBER 1955–15 SEPTEMBER 1956 (ABC) This country-and-western musical series was filmed at Opryland in Nashville; the show began on radio in 1925 and is still broadcast on WSM every Saturday night. The ABC version was broadcast as a once-a-month replacement for Ozark Jubilee.

GRAND SLAM CBS

27 JANUARY 1990–14 MARCH 1990 Short-lived hour adventure series about two rival bounty hunters in San Diego who decided to join forces. Featured were Paul Rodriguez as Pedro Gomez; John Schneider as his new partner, Dennis "Hardball" Bakelenekoff; Larry Gelman as Irv Schlosser; and Abel Franco as Al Ramirez. The series premiered in the treasured time slot immediately after the 1990 Super Bowl telecast, and ranked 15th for the week. Audiences fled in droves by the following week, as the series fell to 68th place, and never recovered.

GRANDPA GOES TO WASHINGTON NBC

7 SEPTEMBER 1978–16 JANUARY 1979 An hour-long comedy-drama about a recently retired college professor who was asked to run for the United States Senate, did so, and won. With Jack Albertson as the irascible but principled new Senator, Josephus (Joe) Kelley; Larry Linville as his son, Kevin Kelley, a two-star general at the Pentagon with whose family Joe moved in; Sue Ane Langdon as Kevin's wife, Rosie Kelley, a health-food fanatic; Michele Tobin as their daughter, Cathleen; Sparky Marcus as their son, Kevin Jr.; and Madge Sinclair as Madge, Joe's secretary. The show was produced by Paramount TV.

GRAPEVINE CBS

15 JUNE 1992–27 JULY 1992 Sex was the subject of this sitcom whose central characters were three young adults living in Miami. With Jonathan Penner as David, a restaurateur; Lynn Clark as David's girlfriend, Susan, a cruise line executive; and Steven Eckholdt as David's brother, Thumper, a sportscaster. Created by David Frankel, the series was shot in a pseudo-documentary style using inserts in which the characters commented on the action.

GRAVEDALE HIGH NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1990–7 SEPTEMBER 1991 This half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show was officially titled Rick Moranis in Gravedale High. Moranis provided the voice of lead character Mr. Schneider, the new teacher of a class of young monsters: Sid, Cleofatra, J. P., Blanche, Frankentyke, Vinnie Stoker, Gill Waterman, and Duzer. Ms. Crone was the headmistress.

THE GRAY GHOST SYNDICATED

1957 This Civil War series starred Tod Andrews as Major John Mosby, a daring Confederate soldier. The character was based on fact: John Mosby was a young lawyer who joined the Forty-Third Battalion of the First Virginia Cavalry and organized an effective guerilla unit. Created and produced by Lindsley Parsons, the series was distributed by CBS Film Sales.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE CBS

27 SEPTEMBER 1963–18 SEPTEMBER 1964 Van Heflin hosted this American historical anthology series, which was produced by John Houseman.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DREAM MACHINE PBS

6 JANUARY 1971–9 FEBRUARY 1972 This unusual, and often irreverent, magazine series incorporated a little bit of everything: interviews, short filmed segments, satirical features, and musical numbers. Regular contributors included Marshall Efron, Andrew Rooney, Nicholas von Hoffman, Ken Shapiro and Chevy Chase (the two heads who pantomimed to music at the beginning of each show), and author Studs Terkel (who was usually seen conversing with a few folks at a Chicago bar). A. H. Perlmutter and Jack Willis were the executive producers of the show, which was first seen in a ninety-minute format; in the fall of 1971 it was trimmed to sixty minutes.

GREAT CIRCUSES OF THE WORLD ABC

26 FEBRUARY 1989–16 APRIL 1989 Mary Hart hosted this series, which, as its title suggests, was taped on location at various circuses all over the world. A similar series had aired in prime time a quarter century earlier: see International Showtime.

THE GREAT DEFENDER FOX

5 MARCH 1995; 10 JULY 1995–31 JULY 1995 A member of the small fraternity of TV series to be canceled after just one showing (though it would later be briefly revived), The Great Defender told the story of Lou Frischetti, a streetsmart Boston lawyer who advertised his services on television (with a vocal group singing "The Great Defender" to the tune of "The Great Pretender") before being asked to join a snooty Beacon Hill law firm. The cast included Michael Rispoli as Lou Frischetti; Peter Krause as Crosby Caulfield, a young associate at the firm; Kelly Rutherford as Lou's investigator, Frankie Collet; Rhoda Gemignani as Lou's mother, Pearl, who ran the office out of her son's apartment and who accompanied him to his new job; Richard Kiley as Jason DeWitt, senior partner at Osbourne, Merritt and DeWitt, and Caulfield's grandfather; and Carlos Sanz as assistant district attorney Jerry Perez. Although set in Boston, the series was filmed in Toronto. Following a disastrously low-rated premiere the series was placed on hiatus.

GREAT ESCAPES NBC

27 AUGUST 1993–15 OCTOBER 1993 Umbrella title for two Friday night miniseries: "Trade Winds," a six-hour romantic saga set on the Caribbean island of St. Martin, with Michael Michele as Maxine Philips and Michael McLafferty as Ocean Sommers, two young people from rival families who fell in love (the sixth hour was preempted by the network); and "The Secrets of Lake Success," a four-hour potboiler about the quarreling heirs of pharmaceutical magnate Stuart Atkins III (played by Brian Keith), with Liz Vassey as daughter Suzy, Ryan Phillipe as son Stew, and Valerie Perrine as Honey Potts Atkins, their mother.

GREAT GHOST TALES NBC

6 JULY 1961–21 SEPTEMBER 1961 Frank Gallop hosted this half-hour color anthology series, which appears to have been the last live dramatic series on commercial television. Richard Thomas (of The Waltons) made one of his earliest TV appearances on 24 August in Saki's "Sredni Vashtar," costarring with Judith Evelyn.

THE GREAT GILDERSLEEVE SYNDICATED

1955 Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve was created by Harold Peary on radio's Fibber McGee and Molly. In 1941, the bombastic politician won his own series; this was one of radio's first spinoffs. Peary played the role until 1950 when Willard Waterman took over. When the series came to television in 1955, Waterman continued to play the role of Gildersleeve, the water commissioner of Summerfield. Also featured were Stephanie Griffin as his niece (and ward), Marjorie Forrester; Ronald Keith as his nephew (and ward), Leroy Forrester; Lillian Randolph as their housekeeper, Birdie Lee Coggins (she had originated the role on radio); Willis Bouchey as Mayor Terwilliger, Gildy's boss; Forrest Lewis as Mr. Peavey, the town druggist; Barbara Stuart as Bessie, Gildy's secretary; and Shirley Mitchell as Leila Ransom.

GREAT MYSTERIES SYNDICATED

1973 An undistinguished half-hour anthology series.

GREAT PERFORMANCES PBS

1974– Classical music and dance programs are the primary components of this series produced by Jac Venza at New York's WNET, but some dramatic presentations are also included, such as "Jennie: Lady Randolph Churchill," a seven-parter starring Lee Remick and written by Julian Mitchell. By far the most popular (and most highly acclaimed) presentation was Brideshead Revisited, an eleven-part adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's novel chronicling a young man's involvement with an aristocratic British family during the 1920s and 1930s. Featured were Jeremy Irons as Charles Ryder (from whose point of view the story was told); Anthony Andrews as his friend, Sebastian Flyte; Laurence Olivier as Lord Marchmain, Sebastian's father; Claire Bloom as Lady Marchmain, Sebastian's mother; Diana Quick as Julia, Sebastian's sister; John Gielgud as Edward Ryder; and Nickolas Grace as Anthony Blanche. The program was produced in England (with exteriors filmed at Castle Howard in Yorkshire) by Granada Television. Waugh's novel was adapted by John Mortimer. The series premiered on Great Performances 18 January 1982 and was subsequently rerun.

Other notable performances have included "Big Blonde," with Sally Kellerman, an adaptation of Dorothy Parker's story (30 November 1980); "Judy Garland: The Concert Years" (22 March 1985); "Irving Berlin's America," with Diana Ross, Willie Nelson, and others (7 March 1986); "The Ebony Tower," with Laurence Olivier and Roger Rees (6 February 1987); "Monsignor Quixote," with Alec Guinness and Leo McKern (13 February 1987); John O'Hara's "Natica Jackson," with Michelle Pfeiffer and Brian Kerwin (6 November 1987); "The Mikado," directed by Jonathan Miller (28 October 1988); "Baryshnikov Dances Balanchine" (13 January 1989); and "Mozart in Salzburg" (9 March 1990); "Hamlet," with Kevin Kline (2 November 1990); "The Marriage of Figaro," directed by Peter Sellars (14 December 1990); Paul McCartney's "Liverpool Oratorio," with Kiri Te Kanawa and Jerry Hadley (30 October 1991); "Suddenly Last Summer," with Maggie Smith and Natasha Richardson (6 January 1993); "The Mother," by Paddy Chayefsky, with Anne Bancroft, Anne Meara, and Joan Cusack (24 October 1994; the original version of Chayefsky's story aired on Philco Television Playhouse in 1954); and "The Music of Kurt Weill: September Songs" (25 January 1995).

GREAT ROADS OF AMERICA SYNDICATED
1973 Andy Griffith narrated this half-hour documentary series, which focused on American highways and byways.

GREAT SCOTT! FOX
4 OCTOBER 1992–29 NOVEMBER 1992 Half-hour sitcom about a suburban teenager with an overactive imagination. The stories were laced with Scott's fantasies as he coped with the crises of adolescence. With Tobey Maguire as Taft High School student Scott Melrod; Nancy Lenehan as his mother, Beverly; Ray Baker as his father, Walt; Sarah Koskoff as his sister, Nina; and Kevin Connolly as his friend, Larry. The Sunday night series perished quickly opposite CBS's 60 Minutes and ABC's Life Goes On.

THE GREAT SPACE COASTER SYNDICATED
1981–1986 A half-hour series of songs and stories for children, presented by three humans and several life-sized animal figures. With Emily Bindiger as Francine; Chris Gifford as Danny; Ray Stephens as Roy; Kevin J. Clash as Goriddle Gorilla; John Lovelady as Knock Knock the bird and Edison the Elephant; Jim Martin as Gary Gnu and M.T. Promises.

THE GREAT TALENT HUNT

THE GREAT WAR SYNDICATED
1964 Michael Redgrave narrated this documentary of World War II.

GREAT WEEKEND SYNDICATED
1988 Weekend magazine series cohosted by Bob Goen and Dale Harimoto.

THE GREATEST AMERICAN HERO ABC
18 MARCH 1981–27 MAY 1981; 26 AUGUST 1981–19 NOVEMBER 1982; 6 JANUARY 1983–3 FEBRUARY 1983 Stephen J. Cannell created this tongue-in-cheek fantasy series about a high school teacher who encountered an alien spacecraft in the California desert and was given a red suit, which, when worn, endowed him with superhuman powers. Unfortunately, he immediately lost the instruction book which had come with it, and was forced to learn his new powers of flight, invisibility, and X-ray vision through trial and error. William Katt (the son of Bill Williams and Barbara Hale of Kit Carson and Perry Mason, respectively) starred as the teacher, Ralph Hinkley. Robert Culp costarred as Bill Maxwell, a zealous FBI agent who had observed the alien encounter and who persuaded Ralph to use his powers on Maxwell's cases. Connie Sellecca also costarred as attorney Pam Davidson, Ralph's girlfriend (they were married in January 1983). Brandon Williams appeared in the spring 1981 episodes as Kevin, the young son of the divorced Hinkley, and Simone Griffeth was seen occasionally as his ex-wife, Alicia. Also featured during the first season were four of Hinkley's students at Whitney High: Michael Pare as Tony; Faye Grant as Rhonda Harris; Don Cervantes as Rodriguez; and Jesse D. Goins as Cyler.

Less than two weeks after the show's premiere, John Hinckley attempted to assassinate President Reagan (the former host of Death Valley Days and General Electric Theater). Shortly afterward, ABC announced that in episodes yet to be filmed, Katt's character would be known simply as "Mr. H." In the one or two shows that had been filmed but not yet televised, references to "Hinkley" were overdubbed "Hanley." When the series returned to the air in August 1981, however, Hinkley's surname had been restored.

The Greatest American Hero's opening theme, "Believe It or Not," was composed by Mike Post and Stephen Geyer, and sung by Joey Scarbury; it was released as a record in the summer of 1981 and became a number-one hit. Reruns of the series were seen on ABC during the summer of 1984.

THE GREATEST GIFT NBC

30 AUGUST 1954–1 JULY 1955 Broadcast live from Philadelphia, this daytime serial was one of the first to center around physicians. It starred Phillip Foster as Dr. Phil Stone, who had returned to his home town of Ridgeton after the Korean War to take over the practice of his late uncle; and Anne Burr as Dr. Eve Allen (apparently TV's first woman doctor), Phil's romantic interest. Also featured were Janet Ward (as Eve's sister, Fran), Gene Peterson (as Ned), Henry Barnard, Joe Draper, Marion Russell, and Jack Klugman.

THE GREATEST MAN ON EARTH ABC

3 DECEMBER 1952–19 FEBRUARY 1953 Ted Brown hosted this prime-time game show on which five male contestants competed; each man had been "nominated" by a woman, who was also present on stage. The game consisted of several rounds, in which the men went on a scavenger hunt, played charades, or tried to fashion a dress from a few yards of material. One contestant was eliminated after each round, and the man who remained was crowned "The Greatest Man on Earth." The half-hour series was produced by Walt Framer.

THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1963–8 SEPTEMBER 1964 This hour-long adventure series was based on Cecil B. DeMille's 1952 film. The TV version starred Jack Palance as Johnny Slate, the circus boss, and Stu Erwin as Otto King, the business manager. Among the guest stars who appeared were Brenda Vaccaro (in "Don't Look Down, Don't Look Back," 8 October, her first major TV role), Ruby Keeler (in "The Show Must Go On—To Orange City," 28 January, a rare TV appearance), and Buster Keaton (in "You're All Right, Ivy," 28 April, also a rare TV appearance). Stanley Colbert produced the series.

GREATEST SPORTS LEGENDS SYNDICATED

1973–1983 Athletes are the subject of this film and interview series, hosted by Paul Hornung (1973–1976), Reggie Jackson (1976–1977), Tom Seaver (1977–1979), George Plimpton (1979–1981), Ken Howard (1981–1982), and Jayne Kennedy (1982–1983). Produced by Berl Rotfeld, the program was originally headquartered in Philadelphia, but later moved to the La Costa Resort at Carlsbad, California.

GREEN ACRES CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1965–7 SEPTEMBER 1971 The format of this situation comedy, another of the several CBS "rural" shows, was the converse of The Beverly Hillbillies: A wealthy couple left the big city to live in the hinterlands. Like Petticoat Junction, Green Acres was set in Hooterville, and many members of the Junction cast occasionally appeared on Acres as well. Principals included: Eddie Albert as Oliver Douglas, a New York lawyer who had always longed for the country life; Eva Gabor as his fashionable wife, Lisa Douglas, who reluctantly agreed to accompany him; Pat

Buttram as Mr. Haney, a fast-talking local who tried to sell the Douglases everything; Tom Lester as Eb Dawson, the Douglases' handyman; Frank Cady as storekeeper Sam Drucker; Alvy Moore as Hank Kimball, the local agricultural agent; Hank Patterson as pig farmer Fred Ziffel, owner of Arnold Ziffel, the smartest pig in town (Arnold was really owned and trained by Frank Inn); Sid Melton as carpenter Alf Monroe; and Mary Grace Canfield as Alf's sister, and partner in the business, Ralph Monroe. Jay Sommers produced the show. Most of the cast was reassembled for a TV-movie sequel, "Return to Green Acres," broadcast on CBS 18 May 1990.

THE GREEN HORNET ABC

9 SEPTEMBER 1966–14 JULY 1967 Created by George Trendle, The Green Hornet first appeared on radio in 1936. His secret identity was that of Britt Reid, editor and publisher of the Daily Sentinel; as the masked Green Hornet, he was a dedicated crimefighter. He was also the grandnephew of the Lone Ranger (Trendle also created that masked crimefighter). Reid's secret identity was known only by three people: Kato, his houseboy; Lenore Case, his secretary; and Frank Scanlon, the district attorney. On television Van Williams starred as Britt Reid/The Green Hornet. Also featured were Bruce Lee (later star of countless martial arts films) as Kato; Wende Wagner as Lenore Case (Casey); Walter Brooke as Frank Scanlon; and Lloyd Gough as Mike Axford, a former cop who is now the paper's police reporter. The series, which tried to capitalize on the popularity of Batman (another masked crimefighter), was produced by Richard Bluel.

GRIFF ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1973–5 JANUARY 1974 This lackluster crime show starred Lorne Greene (late of Bonanza) as Wade Griffin, a former cop who became a private eye. With Ben Murphy as his young partner, Mike Murdock; Vic Tayback as Captain Barney Marcus of the Los Angeles Police Department; and Patricia Stich as Gracie Newcombe, Griff and Mike's secretary.

GRIMMY

See MOTHER GOOSE AND GRIMM

GRINDL NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1963–13 SEPTEMBER 1964 Imogene Coca starred as Grindl, a housemaid employed by Mrs. Foster's Domestic Agency, in this half-hour sitcom. James Millhollin was featured as Mr. Anson Foster, her boss at the agency.

THE GROOVIE GOOLIES CBS/ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1971–17 SEPTEMBER 1972 (CBS); 25 OCTOBER 1975–5 SEPTEMBER 1976 (ABC) This weekend cartoon series featured a bunch of musical monsters who resided in Horrible Hall. Executive producers: Lou Scheimer and Norm Prescott. The Goolies had first appeared during the 1970–1971 season on Sabrina and the Groovie Goolies (see also Sabrina, the Teenage Witch).

GROUP ONE MEDICAL SYNDICATED

1988–1989 On this unusual half-hour daily series, real patients with real medical problems consulted real physicians—on camera. Former CBS News president Van Gordon Sauter produced the show for MGM Television.

GROWING PAINS ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1985–27 AUGUST 1992 A durable half-hour family sitcom, with Alan Thicke as psychiatrist Jason Seaver, who shifted his practice to his Long Island home in order to spend more time with his family; Joanna Kerns as his wife, Maggie, who went to work as a newspaper reporter; Kirk Cameron as their elder son, Mike; Tracey Gold as their daughter, Carol; and Jeremy Miller as younger son Ben. As the series started Mike and Carol were high school students. In the fall of 1988 Mike entered junior college, where he became interested in acting, and moved into a room over the Seavers' garage; in the fall of 1989 Carol, who had hoped to attend Columbia, took a job with a publishing company. Meanwhile, Mom had been busy, too; Maggie became a TV reporter in the fall of 1987, and in October 1988 gave birth to a baby girl, Chrissy. Soon afterward Julie McCullough joined the cast as Julie, the nanny who fell in love with Mike; the 1988–1989 season ended with Mike's proposal of marriage, but the two decided not to get married. Other regulars included Josh Koenig as Mike's buddy Richard "Boner" Stabone; K. C. Martel as Mike's buddy Eddie; Chelsea Noble (spring 1990–1992) as Mike's new girlfriend, Kate McDonnell; and Bill Kirchenbauer (1987–1988) as Coach Lubbock, who was spun off into his own series (see Just the Ten of Us). By the fall of 1990 Mike had moved from home to New York City to study acting, and Carol was enrolled at Columbia. Ashley Johnson joined the cast as youngster Chrissy, replacing Kristen and Kelsey Dohring. For the series's final season, Mike moved back home, into an apartment above the garage. He brought back with him Luke Brower (Leonardo DiCaprio), a homeless 15-year-old he had befriended. Tracey Gold, who had become severely anorexic, was suspended from the show; it was explained that her character, Carol, had gone to study in London.

THE GROWING PAYNES DUMONT

20 OCTOBER 1948–3 AUGUST 1949 This early domestic sitcom starred Elaine Stritch and Ed Holmes, and featured David Anderson as their son.

THE GRUDGE MATCH SYNDICATED

1991 The People's Court met American Gladiators on this one. People with disputes faced off against each other in a series of three one-minute rounds, using a choice of "weapons" such as oversize boxing gloves, paint, or food. The audience then determined the winner. Steve Albert and pro wrestler Jesse "the Body" Ventura were the commentators, Paula McClure interviewed the combatants, and Michael Buffer was the ring announcer.

THE GUIDING LIGHT CBS

30 JUNE 1952– The Guiding Light began on radio in 1937 and came to television fifteen years later; it was the only radio serial to make a really successful transition to the new medium. Created by Irna Phillips, it went through several changes of leading characters and locations before settling down in the late 1940s to concentrate on the Bauer family, a close-knit German-American family who settled in the town of Springfield. Agnes Nixon (who later created One Life to Live and All My Children) succeeded Irna Phillips as head writer when Phillips left the show to create As the World Turns. Jerome and Bridget Dobson, who had written for General Hospital, were the head writers during much of the 1970s; Pamela Long Hammer (later known as Pamela Long after her divorce from Guiding Light cast member Charles Jay Hammer) was head writer during much of the 1980s. David Lesan was the original producer of the TV incarnation of the series, but was soon succeeded by Lucy Rittenberg, who held the job for more than twenty years. Allen Potter later became the executive producer, as did Gail Kobe. Joe Willmore later became executive producer, and was succeeded by Robert Calhoun in 1989.

The Guiding Light and Search for Tomorrow were the last television serials to expand from fifteen to thirty minutes a day (both did so in September 1968); The Guiding Light expanded to a full hour on 7 November 1977. In 1978 it officially dropped the word The from its title. When Search for Tomorrow left the air at the end of 1986, Guiding Light took its place as TV's longest-running daytime drama. The show celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in broadcasting in mid-1987. It marked its fortieth anniversary on television with a prime time special on 12 June 1992. Guiding Light won Emmys as outstanding daytime drama series in 1979–1980 and in 1981–1982. Through the 1980s its ratings placed it near the middle of the daytime pack.

As the action began in 1952, the central characters were the several members of the Bauer clan, and the cast in the early years included: Theo Goetz as Fred (Papa) Bauer, a widower with three grown children (Goetz played the role from 1949 until his death in 1973); Lyle Sudrow (1952–1959) and Ed Bryce (1959–1969) as his son, Bill Bauer, who was believed killed in an air crash (he showed up again in 1979); Charita Bauer as Bill's wife, Bertha (Charita Bauer was the only member of the original television cast still on the show in 1984; following her death in 1985, cast member Jerry ver Dorn delivered an on-the-air tribute to her); Jone Allison (1952) and Ellen Demming as Papa's daughter, Meta (Bauer) (White) Roberts; Helen Wagner and Lisa Howard as Papa's daughter, Trudy, who moved away to New York with her husband shortly after the TV series began; Ron Walken (later known as Christopher Walken), Michael Allen, Paul Prokop, Gary Pillar, Bob Pickering, and Don Stewart as lawyer Michael Bauer, son of Bill and Bertha; Pat Collins, Bob Gentry, Mart Hulswit, Richard van Vleet, and Peter Simon as Dr. Ed Bauer, son of Bill and Bertha; Herb Nelson as Joe Roberts, Meta Bauer's second husband; Les Damon, Barnard Hughes, Sydney Walker, and William Roerick as Dr. Bruce Banning, Meta's third husband; Susan Douglas as Kathy Roberts Lang, Joe Roberts's daughter by a prior marriage, who was killed in a car crash in 1958; James Lipton

THE GUINNESS GAME — SYNDICATED

1979 An unusual game show on which three contestants tried to predict whether a challenger would succeed in an endeavor to break one of the records listed in The Guinness Book of World Records. Don Galloway hosted the half-hour show. See also The Spectacular World of Guinness Records.

GULF PLAYHOUSE — NBC

3 OCTOBER 1952–26 DECEMBER 1952 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen on Friday nights.

THE GULF ROAD SHOW — NBC

2 SEPTEMBER 1948–30 JUNE 1949 This half-hour variety show was hosted for most of its run by Bob Smith, who was better known as the emcee of Howdy Doody; Dan Seymour also hosted the series for several weeks in 1949.

GULLIVER (THE ADVENTURES OF GULLIVER) — ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1968–5 SEPTEMBER 1970 The adventures of Gary Gulliver, son of Lemuel Gulliver (the Gulliver), were chronicled in this Saturday-morning cartoon show; searching for his father, Gary sailed to Lilliput and there befriended the little people.

THE GUMBY SHOW — NBC/SYNDICATED

16 MARCH 1957–16 NOVEMBER 1957 (NBC); 1966 (SYNDICATED); 1988 (SYNDICATED) This kids' show was spun off from Howdy Doody: Gumby was first introduced on that show in 1956. Gumby and his horse, Pokey, were movable clay figures; their adventures, like those of Davey and Goliath, were filmed via the process of "pixillation"—shooting a few frames at a time, moving the figures slightly, and shooting a few more frames. The Gumby Show was first hosted by Bobby Nicholson, who had played both Clarabell and Cornelius Cobb on Howdy Doody, and later by Pinky Lee. Art Clokey created the series. The network was seen on Saturday mornings; two sets of new episodes were produced for syndication, one in 1966, the other in 1988.

THE GUMMI BEARS NBC
14 SEPTEMBER 1985–2 SEPTEMBER 1989
DISNEY'S GUMMI BEARS/WINNIE THE POOH HOUR ABC
9 SEPTEMBER 1989–1 SEPTEMBER 1990 The first network Saturday-morning cartoon series from Disney studios featured the Gummi Bears, a sextet of bears who tried to protect their human friends in the kingdom of Dunwyn, Princess Calla and Cavin the page, from evil forces. After a four-year run on NBC, the series switched to ABC, where it merged with another Disney cartoon show, The New Adventures of Winnie the Pooh, in a single hour program (see also that title). See also Disney Afternoon.

GUN SHY CBS
15 MARCH 1983–19 APRIL 1983 Half-hour comedy-western based on the Disney Studios' Apple Dumpling Gang films. Set in Quake City, California, the show featured Barry Van Dyke (son of Dick Van Dyke) as Russell Donovan, a gambler saddled with two kids he won in a card game; Keith Mitchell and Adam Rich as Clovis, one of the two kids; Bridgette Anderson as Celia, the other kid; Geoffrey Lewis as Amos, one of the lamebrained townspeople; Tim Thomerson as Theodore, a buddy of Amos's; Henry Jones as Homer McCoy, Quake City's barber and sheriff; and Pat McCormick as Mound.

GUNG HO ABC
5 DECEMBER 1986–6 FEBRUARY 1986; 6 JUNE 1987–27 JUNE 1987 Culture clash was the theme of this short-lived sitcom, based on the 1986 motion picture. ABC executives were so excited about the movie that they ordered the TV series pilot before the motion picture had even been released. Gung Ho was set in Hadleyville, Pa., where a Japanese automobile manufacturer had reopened a closed American plant. Featured were Gedde Watanabe as Kaz Kazuhiro, the manager; Scott Bakula as Hunt Stevenson, labor-management liaison; Sab Shimono as Saito, Kaz's assistant; Patti Yasutake as Kaz's wife, Umeki; Emily K. Kuroda as Saito's wife, Yukiko; Stephen Lee as Buster; Clint Howard as Googie; Rodney Kageyama as Ito; Heidi Banks as Randi; and Scott Atari as Kenji. Watanabe, Shimono, and Howard had all appeared in the film. Gung Ho is perhaps notable for having the largest number of Asian actors as regulars of any American TV series. The producers also retained a Japanese-American consulting firm to help ensure that the characterizations were not offensive to Asians or Asian-Americans.

GUNS OF PARADISE
See PARADISE

THE GUNS OF WILL SONNETT ABC
8 SEPTEMBER 1967–15 SEPTEMBER 1969 This half-hour western starred Walter Brennan as Will Sonnett, a former Cavalry scout who raised his grandson after the boy's father, Jim Sonnett, ran off and became a gunfighter. Dack Rambo costarred as the grandson, Jeff Sonnett, who now wants to find his father. Together, Will and Jeff roamed the West looking for Jim. Jason Evers appeared occasionally as the wayward Jim. Fifty episodes were produced, all under the supervision of Aaron Spelling.

GUNSLINGER CBS
9 FEBRUARY 1961–14 SEPTEMBER 1961 This hour-long western, a midseason replacement for The Witness, starred Tony Young as Cord, an agent for the U.S. Cavalry whose cover was that of a dangerous gunslinger. Also featured were Preston Foster as Captain Zachary Wingate, commanding officer of the post to which Cord was assigned, Fort Scott in New Mexico Territory; John Pickard as Sergeant Major Murdock; Midge Ware as Amber (Amby) Hollister; Charles Gray as Pico McGuire; and Dee Pollock as Billy. Produced by Charles M. Warren.

GUNSMOKE CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1955–1 SEPTEMBER 1975 Not only was Gunsmoke television's longest-running western, it was also television's longest-running prime-time series with continuing characters. The show began on radio in 1952, with William Conrad (later TV's Cannon) as Marshal Matt Dillon, tough lawman of Dodge City, Kansas; the show's producer, Norman Macdonnell, saw Dillon as a fallible antihero, and the show has been described as one of radio's most violent westerns. By 1955 Macdonnell and his associates John Meston and Charles Marquis Warren had decided to bring the show to television. John Wayne was offered the starring role but turned it down; he recommended a tall, relatively unknown actor for the part—James Arness. Arness, brother of Peter Graves (who began co-starring in Fury that season), had appeared in several movies, perhaps most notably in the title role of The Thing in 1950. Arness was hired, and three other performers were selected to fill out the cast: Amanda Blake as Kitty Russell, owner of the Long Branch saloon, whose relationship with Dillon was close, though never precisely delineated; Dennis Weaver as Chester B. Goode, Dillon's gimpy-legged deputy; and Milburn Stone as Doc Adams (his first name was Galen), the town's crusty but trusty physician. Stone remained with the show for its entire run (except when sidelined by a heart attack), Blake for nineteen seasons. The show began in 1955 as a half-hour series; John Wayne introduced the premiere episode, explaining to viewers that they were about to see a new kind of western.

The opening sequence that season featured Matt Dillon standing in "Boot Hill," Dodge City's graveyard, where he briefly introduced each episode. In 1956, a new opening sequence was shot, which featured Dillon and an unidentified badman squaring off in Dodge's Main Street (Dillon managed to outdraw the outlaw). The sequence was reshot over the years in part to reflect the expansion of Dodge City. By the 1970s, the gunfight sequence had been replaced by a new opening that featured shots of Dillon riding across the plains.

Gunsmoke became the number-one-rated series in its third season (1957–1958) and remained in that position for four seasons. In the fall of 1961 it expanded from a half hour to an hour, and its ratings declined over the next six years. The first changes in the cast were also made during the early 1960s. Dennis Weaver had made it clear by 1962 that he intended to leave the show; he made two pilots for new series, neither of which sold, and twice returned to Gunsmoke. In 1964, his third pilot—Kentucky Jones—sold, and he left the show for good that year. Ken Curtis was added that fall as Festus Haggen, a backwoodsman who became the new deputy and who provided the comic relief formerly supplied by Chester (Curtis, who had sung with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra at one time, had appeared as Festus in one or two episodes before becoming a regular).

Meanwhile, the producers had decided to add a fifth central character—a rugged male—in 1962. The role was first filled by Burt Reynolds as Quint Asper, a half-breed blacksmith; Reynolds lasted three seasons. In 1965, Roger Ewing joined the cast as Thad Greenwood, a young townsman; he left after two seasons. In the fall of 1967, Buck Taylor (son of character actor Dub Taylor) was added as gunsmith Newly O'Brian; Taylor, who first played a killer in a two-part episode, stayed with the show. A number of other people were occasionally seen as Dodge City's townsfolk. This group included: James Nusser as Louie Pheeters, the town drunk; Dabbs Greer (1956–1964) as Wilbur Jonas, a storekeeper; Charles Seel as Barney, the telegraph agent; Hank Patterson as Hank, the stableman; Howard Culver as Howie, the hotel clerk at the Dodge House; Sarah Selby (1962–1975) as Ma Smalley, boardinghouse owner; Woody Chamblis as Mr. Lathrop, a storekeeper; Roy Roberts as Mr. Bodkin, the banker; Tom Brown as rancher Ed O'Connor; Ted Jordan (1964–1975) as Nathan Burke, the freight agent; Charles Wagenheim as Halligan, another rancher; John Harper as Percy Crump, the undertaker. Glenn Strange also appeared for many seasons as Sam, the bartender at the Long Branch.

Norman Macdonnell produced the series from 1955 until 1964, when differences with the show's other principals—including Arness—led to his departure. Arness gradually acquired more and more influence over the show, although the degree of his dominance is hard to ascertain because Arness almost never spoke to the press and loathed publicity; it is known, however, that the show's production schedule was arranged so that Arness rarely had to work more than three days a week. Macdonnell was succeeded as producer by Philip Leacock, who was in turn succeeded by John Mantley in 1967.

Gunsmoke's ratings had smoldered considerably by the end of the 1966–1967 season, and CBS programmers had decided to cancel it. CBS President William Paley interceded, however, and the decision was made to change its time slot from Saturday to Monday; that decision proved to be a wise one, for Gunsmoke zoomed back into Nielsen's top ten in 1967–1968, and remained there for six seasons. In all, 233 half-hour episodes were filmed, and more than 400 hour segments were made (the series was broadcast in color beginning with the 1966–1967 season); from 1961 to 1964, reruns of the half-hour shows were broadcast Tuesdays on CBS (and were titled Marshal Dillon), while the hour version ran Saturdays. Two made-for-TV movie sequels appeared in the late 1980s: in "Gunsmoke: Return to Dodge" (26 September 1987, with Arness, Blake, and Buck Taylor), Dillon had become a Colorado trapper and Miss Kitty had moved to New Orleans; in "Gunsmoke: The Last Apache" (18 March 1990, with only Arness from the old cast), Dillon learned he had fathered a daughter many years earlier. Three more made-for-TV movies, all starring Arness, aired between 1992 and 1994.

THE GUY LOMBARDO SHOW SYNDICATED

1954 Half-hour musical series with Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians.

GUY LOMBARDO'S DIAMOND JUBILEE CBS

6 MARCH 1956–12 JUNE 1956 In addition to hosting New Year's Eve festivities for decades, Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians were also featured on this half-hour musical series, which replaced Meet Millie in 1956; Lombardo's brothers—Carmen, Lebert, and Victor—joined him on the show. One of the regular features was the "Song of Your Life" contest, in which viewers were invited to write, describing how a particular song had affected their lives. Winning contestants appeared on the show and, in addition to winning $1,000, heard the orchestra play their song.

THE GUY MITCHELL SHOW ABC

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME NBC/CBS/PBS/ABC

and Tammy Grimes (14 December 1973); "Brief Encounter," with Richard Burton and Sophia Loren (12 November 1974); "Caesar and Cleopatra," with Alec Guinness and Genevieve Bujold (1 February 1976); "Beauty and the Beast," with George C. Scott and Trish Van Devere (3 December 1976); "The Last Hurrah," with Carroll O'Connor (16 November 1977); "Return Engagement," with Elizabeth Taylor (17 November 1978). Another important television event which was sponsored by Hallmark Cards (though it was not part of the Hallmark Hall of Fame series) was the premiere of Gian-Carlo Menotti's Christmas opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," 24 December 1951. Hallmark Hall of Fame presentations were televised exclusively by NBC from 1952 to 1978; in 1979, however, Hallmark Cards stated that its subsequent presentations would be broadcast by other networks. Among these presentations were: "Mister Lincoln," a one-man show with Roy Dotrice (PBS, 9 February 1981); "Casey Stengel," with Charles Durning (PBS, 6 May 1981); "Witness for the Prosecution," with Ralph Richardson, Diana Rigg, Beau Bridges, and Deborah Kerr (CBS, 4 December 1982); John Steinbeck's "The Winter of Our Discontent," with Donald Sutherland, E. G. Marshall, Richard Masur, Teri Garr, and Tuesday Weld (CBS, 6 December 1983); "Promise," with James Garner and James Woods (CBS, 14 December 1986); "The Secret Garden," with Gennie James and Jadrien Steele (CBS, 30 November 1987); "Foxfire," with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy (CBS, 13 December 1987); "April Morning," with Tommy Lee Jones, Rip Torn, and Chad Lowe (CBS, 25 April 1988); "My Name Is Bill W.," with James Garner and James Woods (ABC, 30 April 1989); "Sarah, Plain and Tall," with Glenn Close and Christopher Walken (CBS, 3 February 1991); "O, Pioneers!" (CBS, 2 February 1992), with Jessica Lange; "Skylark" (CBS, 7 February 1993), a sequel to "Sarah, Plain and Tall," with Glenn Close and Christopher Walken; "To Dance with the White Dog" (CBS, 5 December 1993), with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy (the top-rated TV-movie of the 1993–1994 season); "Breathing Lessons" (CBS, 6 February 1994), with James Garner and Joanne Woodward; and "The Piano Lesson" (CBS, 5 February 1995), with Charles S. Dutton, Carl Gordon, and Alfre Woodard.

THE HALLS OF IVY CBS

HANGIN' WITH MR. COOPER ABC
22 SEPTEMBER 1992– Standup comic Mark Curry headlined this sitcom as Mark Cooper, a substitute teacher in the Oakland, California, school system. During the first season Cooper shared a house with two single women: his childhood friend Robin (played by Dawnn Lewis), a music teacher, and her friend Vanessa (played by Holly Robinson, later known as Holly Robinson Peete), on whom Mark had a crush. By the fall of 1993 Robin had moved out (and Dawnn Lewis left the series), and Mark and Vanessa acquired two new housemates: Mark's cousin Geneva (played by Saundra Quarterman) and her daughter, Nicole (played by Raven-Symone). Nell Carter also joined the cast as P.J., principal of the school where Mark taught. Also featured were Marquise Wilson as Tyler, a neighborhood boy, and Omar Gooding as wisecracking Earvin Rodman, one of Mark's students. Hangin' with Mr. Cooper finished its first season tied with The Jackie Thomas Show for fourteenth place in the seasonal ratings, the highest-rated new series of the year.

HANGING IN CBS
8 AUGUST 1979–29 AUGUST 1979 Four-week summer sitcom set at Braddock University, a Southern college. With Bill Macy as Lou Harper, the new president; Dennis Burkley as Sam Diggs, the hefty dean of admissions; Barbara Rhoades as Maggie Gallagher, the dean of faculty; and Nedra Volz as Pinky Nolan, Harper's saucy housekeeper. The half-hour show was a reworked version of Mr. Dugan, a sitcom from Norman Lear's T.A.T. Communications about a black Congressman, which Lear had decided not to air.

HANK NBC
17 SEPTEMBER 1965–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 Dick Kallman starred as Hank Dearborn, a youngster who was forced to quit school when his parents died, leaving him to care for his kid sister; Hank got a job running an ice cream truck near the campus of Western State University and tried to sneak into college classes and other official activities. Also featured were Howard St. John as Dr. Lewis Royal, the registrar, Hank's nemesis; Lloyd Corrigan as Professor McKillup; Linda Foster as Doris Royal, Hank's girlfriend, the registrar's daughter; Katie Sweet as Tina, Hank's sister; Dabbs Greer as the athletic coach, Ossie Weiss; and Dorothy Nuemann as Miss Mittleman.

THE HANK McCUNE SHOW NBC/SYNDICATED

Bryan, Frank Nelson, Sara Berner, Charles Maxwell, and Tammy Kiper. Written by Mort Lachman and Cy Rose, the show had been seen locally in New York in 1949. The syndicated version featured McCune, Hanley Stafford, and Florence Bates.

THE HANNA-BARBERA HAPPY HOUR NBC

18 APRIL 1978–4 MAY 1978 This hour-long, prime-time variety series from Hanna-Barbera Productions, the prolific supplier of animated series, was similar in format to The Muppet Show. It was hosted by two puppets, Honey and Sis, and featured celebrity guest stars. The life-sized puppets were operated from behind by wands, and through the use of the chroma-key process, the puppets' images were superimposed upon appropriate backgrounds. Joseph Barbera was the executive producer.

HAPPENING '68 ABC

6 JANUARY 1968–20 SEPTEMBER 1969 A Saturday-afternoon rock music show, hosted by Mark Lindsay and Paul Revere and the Raiders. The show was known simply as Happening in 1969. See also It's Happening.

HAPPY NBC

8 JUNE 1960–28 SEPTEMBER 1960; 13 JANUARY 1961–8 SEPTEMBER 1961 This trivial sitcom borrowed one idea from The Peoples' Choice—instead of a dog who could think out loud, this one featured a baby who could think out loud. With Ronnie Burns as Chris Day, manager of a Palm Springs motel; Yvonne Lime as his wife, Sally; twins David and Steven Born as Happy (Christopher Hapgood Day), their gifted child; Lloyd Corrigan as Uncle Charlie, Sally's uncle; Doris Packer as Clara Mason, a woman who pursued Charlie; Burt Metcalfe as their friend, Joe Brigham; and Wanda Shannon as Joe's wife, Terry. Leone Ledoux supplied the voice of Happy. The idea of a talking infant was revived in the popular 1989 film, Look Who's Talking, for which Bruce Willis did the voiceover.

HAPPY DAYS CBS

24 JUNE 1970–27 AUGUST 1970 An hour of nostalgia, hosted by Louis Nye, with Chuck McCann, Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding), and assorted bandleaders from the 1930s.

HAPPY DAYS ABC

15 JANUARY 1974–12 JULY 1984 A sitcom set in the nostalgic 1950s, Happy Days was one of the cornerstones of ABC's dramatic rise to the top of the ratings heap during the mid-1970s. After a season and a half of unspectacular ratings, Happy Days cracked Nielsen's Top Ten in its third season (1975–1976); a year later it climbed to the very top and engendered a spinoff, Laverne and Shirley, which also fared well. By the 1983–1984 season, Happy Days was the oldest prime-time sitcom then on the air.

Happy Days was created by Garry Marshall, a veteran comedy writer who had worked on The Dick Van Dyke Show and The Lucy Show, and who had produced The Odd Couple. Marshall produced a pilot for ABC in 1971, titled "New Family in Town." The network was not interested, and the pilot later surfaced as a segment of Love, American Style. Aired 25 February 1972, it was titled "Love and the Happy Day," and featured Ron Howard, Marion Ross, Harold Gould, and Susan Neher as a 1950s family getting their first TV set. In the meantime, however, film director George Lucas had seen the pilot, and used it as the inspiration for his tremendously popular film American Graffiti. After the success of the movie ABC's interest in Garry Marshall's pilot was rekindled.

Happy Days was set in Milwaukee in the late 1950s. Its central family was the Cunninghams: Ron Howard (1974–1980) as typical teenager Richie, who attended Jefferson High and worried about girls; Tom Bosley as his father, Howard, who owned a hardware store; Marion Ross as his mother, Marion; Erin Moran (1974–1982; 1983–1984) as his little sister, Joanie; and Gavan O'Herlihy (spring 1974) and Randolph Roberts (fall 1974) as his jockish older brother, Chuck (the character was written out by 1975). Richie had three close friends: Anson Williams as Warren "Potsie" Webber, his best friend; Donny Most (1974–1980) as loudmouth Ralph Malph; and Henry Winkler as Arthur "Fonzie" Fonzarelli, the leather-jacketed, motorcycle-riding epitome of "cool," an expert on cars and girls.

Fonzie was originally intended to be a minor character, but proved to be extremely popular with the audience (especially with the studio audience, which Happy Days began to utilize in the fall of 1974). Noting Fonzie's popularity, ABC programming chief Fred Silverman, newly arrived from CBS, shrewdly decided to emphasize the role; in 1975 Fonzie moved into the apartment above the Cunninghams' garage. This plot device enabled him to retain his cherished independence but also to become involved in almost any situation with the Cunninghams. Garry Marshall noted that Fonzie was to have been named "Marscharelli," which was Marshall's real name, but that he compromised on the issue with his partner, Bob Brunner. Marshall also observed that if ABC had had its way in 1974, Fonzie might not have been so recognizable. The network had decreed that Fonzie should wear a cloth jacket rather than the "threatening" leather one. Marshall suggested a compromise, which was accepted—that Fonzie be permitted to wear the leather jacket when he rode or worked on his motorcycle. Marshall then gradually cut back on the use of the motorcycle, while keeping Fonzie in the leather jacket.

Between 1974 and 1977, other regulars included: Misty Rowe (fall 1974–1975) as Wendy, a waitress at Arnold's, the local hangout; Pat Morita (1975–1976; 1982–1983) as Arnold (Mitsuo Takahashi), the proprietor; and Al Molinaro (1976–1982; 1983–1984) as Al DelVecchio, the new proprietor of Arnold's.

In the fall of 1977 Richie, Potsie, and Ralph all began college at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee (Garry Marshall was insistent that the Happy Days characters evolve as the show continued). Joining the cast that season were Scott Baio (1977–1982; 1983–1984) as Fonzie's enterprising young cousin, Charles "Chachi" Arcola, who became Joanie's boyfriend; and Lynda Goodfriend (1977–1982) as Richie's girlfriend, Lori Beth Allen.

In the summer of 1980 Ron Howard announced that he had signed a contract with NBC, and abruptly left Happy Days; Donny Most also left the series in 1980. On the show it was arranged that Richie and Ralph had joined the Army; in May of 1981 Richie (then stationed in Greenland) married Lori Beth (in Milwaukee) by proxy. Their baby, Richie, Jr., was born in the fall of 1981. Meanwhile, Fonzie had become a teacher of auto mechanics at good old Jefferson High. Joining the cast were Ted McGinley (1980–1984) as Marion's Yale-educated nephew, Roger Phillips, who became Jefferson's new basketball coach and English teacher; and Cathy Silvers (1980–1983), daughter of comedian Phil Silvers, as Joanie's boy-crazy girlfriend, Jenny Piccalo.

In the fall of 1982 Fonzie (who by this time had become a managing partner in Arnold's) found himself falling in love with a divorcée. Linda Purl appeared during the 1982–1983 season as the divorcée, Ashley Pfister; Purl had appeared in six 1974 episodes as Richie's girlfriend, Gloria. Also appearing during the 1982–1983 season were Heather O'Rourke as Ashley's young daughter, Heather; and Crystal Bernard as Howard's niece, K. C., who lived with the Cunninghams. One reason for this addition was that Joanie Cunningham was not at home, having moved to her own spinoff, Joanie Loves Chachi.

By the fall of 1983, in what would be Happy Days's final season, Fonzie had become the dean of boys, and Roger the principal, at George S. Patton Vocational High. Joanie and Chachi, whose spinoff had flopped, came back to Milwaukee, and plans were made for their wedding. Also returning were Richie and Ralph, who showed up in a special two-part episode.

In addition to Laverne and Shirley and Joanie Loves Chachi, Happy Days spawned a Saturday-morning cartoon show, The Fonz and the Happy Days Gang. Also, the 1978 sitcom Mork and Mindy was based on an episode of Happy Days. Most of the gang showed up for a series retrospective, "Happy Days Reunion," which was seen on ABC 3 March 1992.

HAPPY FELTON'S SPOTLIGHT CLUB NBC

4 DECEMBER 1954–26 FEBRUARY 1955 Seen on Saturday mornings, this half-hour audience participation show for children was hosted by Happy Felton.

HARBOR COMMAND SYNDICATED

1957 A half-hour adventure series from Ziv TV, starring Wendell Corey as Captain Ralph Baxter of the United States Coast Guard Harbor Police Command.

HARBOURMASTER (ADVENTURE AT SCOTT ISLAND) CBS/ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1957–26 DECEMBER 1957 (CBS); 5 JANUARY 1958–29 JUNE 1958 (ABC) Set in New England, Harbourmaster was dropped by CBS in midseason; ABC then picked up the program, airing it under the title Adventure at Scott Island. With Barry Sullivan as Captain David Scott, the harbormaster, who ran a boat repair business on Scott Island, a tightly knit island community settled by his forebears; Paul Burke as Jeff Kittredge, Scott's partner; Nina Wilcox as Anna Morrison, proprietor of the Dolphin restaurant; Michael Keene as Cap'n Dan, a local oldtimer; and Evan Elliott as Danny, Cap'n Dan's grandson. Suzanne Pleshette made her TV debut in one episode, "Night Rescue," aired 5 December. Exteriors were filmed at Rockport, Mass.

HARD COPY CBS

25 JANUARY 1987–3 JULY 1987 The Morning Post, a big-city newspaper, was the setting for this dramatic series. With Michael Murphy as reporter Andy Omart; Dean Devlin as rookie reporter David Delvalle; Wendy Crewson as city wire-service reporter Blake Calisher; E. Erich Anderson as Lieutenant Packer; Fionnula Flanagan as Lieutenant Guyla Cook; Jeffrey Kramer as John Freed; Charles Cooper as William Boot; and Jim McDonnell as TV anchorman Larry Coverson.

HARD COPY SYNDICATED

1989– A thirty-minute daily investigative series, hosted by Allan Frio and Terry Murphy. Barry Nolan succeeded Frio in 1991. One of several "tabloid" series of the late 1980s and 1990s, Hard Copy was distributed by Paramount Television. In the fall of 1994 it was reported that the series had assigned thirty staffers to cover the O. J. Simpson murder case. A weekend edition of the series focused on showbiz topics. Known as HCTV, it was hosted by Diane Dimond.

HARD TIME ON PLANET EARTH CBS

1 MARCH 1989–5 JULY 1989 Hour sci-fi series starring Martin Kove as Jesse, an alien warrior sentenced by an intergalactic tribunal to exile on Earth; he was accompanied by his parole officer, an orb-shaped "correctional unit" named Control, who decided that Jesse should settle in Los Angeles, where he would blend in "as quietly as possible." Danny Mann provided the voice of Control (Charles Fleischer supplied it in the pilot).

HARDBALL NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1989–1 DECEMBER 1989; 20 APRIL 1990–29 JUNE 1990 On this hour crime show the old cop/young cop theme was again explored. With John Ashton as Charlie Battles, almost forty-five; Richard Tyson as his newly assigned partner, Joe "Kaz" Kaczierowski, a long-haired, motorcycle-riding, mid-twentyish cop; and Sean McCann as the boss, Captain Briggs. Hardball left the air in December 1989 for

"retooling." When it returned in April it was advertised as "faster, wilder [and] sexier," but the only discernible difference was that Tyson's hair was somewhat shorter.

HARDBALL FOX
4 SEPTEMBER 1994–23 OCTOBER 1994 The Pioneers, a hapless baseball team, were the central characters in this short-lived sitcom. With Rose Marie as Mitzi Balzer, the Pioneers' crusty owner; Dann Florek as the newly hired manager, Ernest "Happy" Talbot; Bruce Greenwood as pitcher Dave Logan; Mike Starr as catcher Mike Widmer; Joe Rogan as Frank Valente, the $6 million per year centerfielder; Alexandra Wentworth as Lee Emory, the team's p. r. director; Phill Lewis as Arnold Nixon; Steve Hytner as Brad Coolidge, the general manager; Chris Browning as pitcher Lloyd Macomb; Eddie Velez as Diego Escobar; Charles Cyphers as Chuck; and Christopher B. Duncan as Palmer.

HARDCASTLE AND McCORMICK ABC
18 SEPTEMBER 1983–23 JULY 1986 Stephen J. Cannell (who created The Greatest American Hero and The A Team, among other shows) created this hour series with Patrick Hasburgh. It starred Brian Keith as Milton C. Hardcastle, a newly retired judge; known on the bench as "Hardcase" because of his tough attitude toward lawbreakers, Hardcastle decided to go after, and bring to justice, criminals who managed to evade the judicial system (such as those whose cases were thrown out of court on legal technicalities). To accomplish this goal, Hardcastle arranged to have his last defendant released in his custody; the pair then teamed up on Hardcastle's quest. Daniel Hugh-Kelly costarred as the defendant, ex-con Mark "Skid" McCormick, whose driving skills were legendary, and whose feelings about teaming up with the judge were mixed. Mary Jackson was also featured in early episodes as Sara, housekeeper for the widowed Hardcastle. John Hancock was seen during the 1984–1985 season as Lieutenant Michael Delaney, Hardcastle's police contact; Joe Santos filled a similar role the following season as Lieutenant Frank Harper. Sixty-seven episodes were produced. This is not the first series to feature a judge named Hardcastle. Such a character was a regular on the 1977 series Rosetti and Ryan.

THE HARDY BOYS ABC
6 SEPTEMBER 1969–5 SEPTEMBER 1970; 2 JANUARY 1971–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 In this Saturday-morning cartoon series, Franklin W. Dixon's youthful sleuths were part of a rock group known as the Hardy Boys.

THE HARDY BOYS/NANCY DREW MYSTERIES ABC
30 JANUARY 1977–21 JANUARY 1979 The Hardy Boys Mysteries and The Nancy Drew Mysteries started out as two separate series, alternating biweekly in the same time slot. Early in 1978 the casts merged for the remainder of the season, and in the fall of 1978 The Hardy Boys Mysteries continued on alone. Both the Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew were created in 1927 by Edward Stratemeyer, using the pen names Franklin W. Dixon for the Hardy Boys stories and Carolyn Keene for the Nancy Drew stories; his daughter, Harriet Stratemeyer Adams, continued writing the books after his death. The Hardy Boys cast included: Parker Stevenson as Frank Hardy; Shaun Cassidy (brother of David Cassidy of The Partridge Family) as Joe Hardy; Edmund Gilbert as their father, Fenton Hardy, a private eye; Edith Atwater (to September 1978) as Aunt Gertrude; Lisa Eilbacher (to September 1978) as the boys' friend, Callie Shaw; and Gary Springer (to September 1978) as Chet Morton. The Nancy Drew cast included Pamela Sue Martin and Janet Louise Johnson as Nancy Drew (Martin had balked at the idea of merging the two shows and was replaced when the decision to merge was final); William Schallert as Nancy's father, Carson Drew, a criminal lawyer; George O'Hanlon as Ned Nickerson; and Jean Rasey as George Fayne. Glen A. Larson was the executive producer for Glen A. Larson Productions in association with Universal Television.

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS CBS/NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 (CBS); 4 FEBRUARY 1978–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 (NBC) The world famous basketball tricksters came to Saturday-morning television in a Hanna-Barbera cartoon series. Scatman Crothers provided the voice for the Globetrotters star, Meadowlark Lemon. In 1978 reruns were shown on NBC under the title The Go-Go Globetrotters, a two-hour program which also included segments of CB Bears, The Herculoids, and Space Ghost. See also The Super Globetrotters.

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS POPCORN MACHINE CBS

7 SEPTEMBER 1974–5 SEPTEMBER 1976 The Harlem Globetrotters again came to weekend television, this time in a live-action format. Several members of the team were featured: Meadowlark Lemon, Curley Neal, Geese Ausbie, Tex Harrison, Bobby Joe Mason, Marques Haynes, John Smith, Theodis Lee, and Nate Brown. Also featured were young Rodney Allen Rippy and Avery Schreiber (as Mister Evil). Executive producers: Frank Peppiatt and John Aylesworth. Produced by Norman Baer.

HARPER VALLEY P.T.A. (HARPER VALLEY) NBC

16 JANUARY 1981–14 AUGUST 1982 Tom T. Hall's song about small-town hypocrisy, recorded in 1968 by Jeannie C. Riley, was a big hit; a decade later it was the inspiration for a film which starred Barbara (I Dream of Jeannie) Eden. When the film was first broadcast on television (24 February 1980) its ratings were impressive, and the network ordered a sitcom based on the movie; the series was originally planned as a sixty-minute sitcom, but was trimmed to thirty minutes before its 1981 premiere. Barbara Eden repeated her film role as widow Stella Johnson, a rugged individualist who served on the P.T.A. (Parent-Teacher Association) of the stuffy Ohio town. Also featured were Jenn Thompson as Stella's teenage daughter, Dee; Fannie Flagg as Stella's friend and ally, beautician Cassie Bowman; Anne Francine as snobbish Flora Simpson Reilly, head of the P.T.A.; Bridget Hanley as Flora's equally snobbish daughter, Wanda Reilly Taylor, also a P.T.A. member; Rod McCary as lawyer Bobby Taylor, Wanda's husband; Suzi Dean as Scarlett, their teenage daughter; and George Gobel as Mayor Otis Harper. During the spring of 1981 the other members of the P.T.A. included Vic Dunlop as George Kelly; Mari Gorman as Vivian Washburn; Gary Allen as Norman Clayton; Edie McClurg as Willamae Jones, its secretary; and Robert Gray as Cliff Willoughby. When the series returned in the fall of 1981, the P.T.A. storyline was dropped (as were the last five cast members) and the show was retitled Harper Valley. Mills Watson joined the cast as Stella's Uncle Buster.

HARRIGAN AND SON ABC

14 OCTOBER 1960–29 SEPTEMBER 1961 Situation comedy about two lawyers, father and son. With Pat O'Brien as Jim Harrigan; Roger Perry as Jim Harrigan, Jr.; Georgine Darcy as Gypsy, Jim Sr.'s secretary; Helen Kleeb as Miss Claridge, Jim Jr.'s secretary.

HARRIS AGAINST THE WORLD NBC

5 OCTOBER 1964–4 JANUARY 1965 Part Two of NBC's 90 Bristol Court, Harris Against the World was sandwiched between Tom, Dick and Mary and Karen: only Karen survived the midseason purge. Harris featured Jack Klugman as Alan Harris, a businessman constantly battling life's frustrations; Patricia Barry as Kate Harris, his wife; David Macklin as Billy, their son; Claire Wilcox as Dee Dee, their daughter; Fay DeWitt as Helen Miller, their friend; Sheldon Allman as Norm, Helen's husband; and Guy Raymond as Cliff Murdock, the building handyman.

HARRIS & COMPANY NBC

15 MARCH 1979–5 APRIL 1979 Four-episode dramatic miniseries about a contemporary black family. With Bernie Casey as Mike Harris, a widower who, with his five kids, moved from Detroit to Los Angeles; David Hubbard as son David; Lia Jackson as daughter J.P.; Renee Brown as daughter Liz; Eddie Singleton as son Tommy; Dain

Turner as son Richard Allen; Stu Gilliam as Uncle Charlie; and Carol Tillery Banks as Charlie's wife, Angie. Scheduled on Thursdays opposite ABC's Mork & Mindy and CBS's The Waltons, Harris & Company attracted a minuscule audience. It was replaced by two equally unsuccessful shows, Highcliffe Manor and Whodunnit?

HARRY ABC

4 MARCH 1987–25 MARCH 1987 Ninth Street Community General Hospital was the setting for this short-lived sitcom. With Alan Arkin as Harry Porschak, who worked in the purchasing department; Holland Taylor as Nurse Ida Duckett; Thom Bray as expediter Lawrence Pendleton; Matt Craven as Bobby Kratz; Barbara Dana (Arkin's wife in real life) as psychiatrist Dr. Sandy Clifton; Kurt Knudson as hospital administrator Wyatt Lockhart; and Richard Lewis as Richard Breskin.

HARRY AND THE HENDERSONS SYNDICATED

1990–1992 Half-hour sitcom, based on the 1987 movie, about a suburban family who took in a Bigfoot-like creature and named the gentle giant Harry. With Kevin Peter Hall (who died in April 1991) and Dawan Scott as Harry; Bruce Davison as George Henderson; Molly Cheek as Nancy Henderson; Zachary Bostrom as their son, Ernie; Carol-Ann Plante as their daughter, Sarah; Gigi Rice (1990–1991) as next-door neighbor Samantha Glick, a television personality; Cassie Cole (1990–1991) as Samantha's daughter, Tiffany; David Coburn (1990–1991) as biologist Walter Potter; Noah Blake (1991–1992) as Nancy's brother, Bret Douglas, who moved in with the Hendersons; and Courtney Peldon (1991–1992) as Darcy Paine, who was crazy about Ernie Henderson.

HARRY O ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1974–12 AUGUST 1976 This crime show starred David Janssen as Harry Orwell, a cop who became a private eye after he was shot in the back. Orwell was a low-paid, low-key private eye who often had to take the bus to pursue criminals when his car was laid up and rarely got the better of the bad guy in a fight. Also featured were Henry Darrow (1974–January 1975) as Detective Manny Quinlan of the San Diego police; Anthony Zerbe (January 1975–1976) as Lieutenant K. C. Trench of the Los Angeles police; Paul Tulley (1975–1976) as Sergeant Don Roberts. In the middle of the first season Orwell moved from San Diego to Los Angeles. The first pilot for the series was shown 11 March 1973. Created by Howard Rodman. Executive producer: Jerry Thorpe. Producer: E. Thompson (for Warner Brothers).

HARRY'S GIRLS NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1963–3 JANUARY 1964 This situation comedy about an American vaudeville act touring Europe was filmed in southern France. With Larry Blyden as Harry Burns; Dawn Nickerson as Lois; Susan Silo as Rusty; and Diahn Williams as Terry. It was replaced in midseason by That Was the Week That Was.

HART TO HART ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1979–31 JULY 1984 Breezy hour adventure series, starring Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers as Jonathan and Jennifer Hart, husband-and-wife amateur sleuths in their spare time. (Professionally, Jonathan ran a conglomerate and Jennifer was an author.) Also featured was Lionel Stander as Max, their chauffeur and aide. Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg were the executive producers; the show enjoyed a 112-episode run. Wagner, Powers, and Stander returned to their roles for a series of three made-for-TV films telecast on NBC during the 1993–1994 season.

THE HARTMANS (THE HARTMANS AT HOME) NBC

27 FEBRUARY 1949–22 MAY 1949 This Sunday-night sitcom starred Grace and Paul Hartman as themselves.

HARTS OF THE WEST CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1993–29 JANUARY 1994; 4 JUNE 1994–18 JUNE 1994 Beau Bridges starred in this hour comedy-drama as Dave Hart, an underwear salesman who, after a heart attack scare, quit his job and headed to the part of America he loved: the West. As his family struggled to adapt to life in the middle of nowhere—Sholo, Nevada—Dave tried to revive the defunct Flying Tumbleweed Dude Ranch. The rest of the cast included: Harley Jane Kozak as Dave's understanding wife, Alison Hart; Meghann Haldeman as their teen daughter, L'Amour; Sean Murray as their son Zane; Nathan Watt as their son John "Duke" Wayne; Saginaw Grant as Augie, Sholo's savvy Native American storekeeper; O-Lan Jones as Rose McLaughlin, the waitress; Sterling Macer, Jr., as lawyer and would-be cowboy Marcus St. Cloud; Stephen Root as R. O. Moon, the sheriff; Talisa Soto as Augie's granddaughter, Cassie Velasquez; Dennis Fimple as Garral; and Lloyd Bridges as flinty old cowpoke Jake Terrel, who had worked on the Flying Tumbleweed and took Dave under his wing.

THE HARVEY KORMAN SHOW ABC

4 APRIL 1978–3 AUGUST 1978 After a onetime telecast on 31 January 1978, The Harvey Korman Show began its regular schedule in April. Harvey Korman, who had been featured on The Carol Burnett Show for ten years, starred in the the half-hour sitcom as actor Harvey Kavanaugh. Also featured were Christine Lahti as his daughter, Maggie, an employee of the Friendly Community Bank; Barry Van Dyke as Maggie's boyfriend and coworker, Stuart Stafford; Milton Selzer as Jake, Harvey's agent. Hal Dresner was the executive producer of the series, and Don Van Atta produced it.

THE HAT SQUAD CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1992–23 JANUARY 1993 Implausible hour crime show about a three-man squad of modern-day vigilantes who sported fedoras while tracking their quarry; the three had been orphaned as children and had been raised by an ex-cop. With James Tolkan as Mike "Rags" Ragland, the ex-cop; Nestor Serrano as Rafael Martinez; Billy Warlock as Matt Mathesson; and Don Michael Paul as Buddy Capatosa. The inspiration for the series may have been an L.A.P.D. unit of the 1940s whose members wore fedoras. Stephen J. Cannell created the series.

THE HATHAWAYS ABC

6 OCTOBER 1961–31 AUGUST 1962 Situation comedy about a couple who agree to take in a family of performing chimps. With Jack Weston as real estate agent Walter Hathaway; Peggy Cass as his wife, Eleanor; Harvey Lembeck as the chimps' agent, Jerry Roper; and the Marquis Chimps. The half-hour show was a Screen Gems production.

HAVE A HEART DUMONT

3 MAY 1955–14 JUNE 1955 John Reed King hosted this prime-time game show on which two four-member teams, each from a different city or town, competed; all winnings were awarded to charity.

HAVE FAITH ABC

18 APRIL 1989–23 JULY 1989 Half-hour sitcom about four Chicago priests. With Joel Higgins as Monsignor Mac Mackenzie; Frank Hamilton as Father Tuttle; Ron Carey as Father Vincent Paglia; and Stephen Furst as Father Gabriel Podmaninsky.

HAVE GUN WILL TRAVEL CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1957–21 SEPTEMBER 1963 This half-hour western starred Richard Boone as Paladin, a loner who was based at the Hotel Carlton in San Francisco; his professional services—as detective, bodyguard, courier, or whatever—were available to those who requested them. Paladin's business card, which bore the image of a chess knight, read: "Have Gun, Will Travel. Wire Paladin, San Francisco." Kam Tong was also featured as Paladin's servant, Hey Boy, except during the fall of 1959

(when Tong costarred in Mr. Garlund) and during the 1960–1961 season, when Lisa Lu was featured as Hey Girl. Boone exercised considerable control over the show; in 1961 TV Guide reported that Boone not only had directed several episodes but also exercised script and casting approval. Whatever the case, Boone's judgments seem to have been right, for the show was a solid hit, ranking in Nielsen's top five during each of its first four seasons. The show was extremely popular and was widely syndicated during the 1960s; in 1974, however, a federal magistrate ruled that a Rhode Island radio performer, Victor De Costa, had actually created the character in the 1940s and was entitled to an accounting of the profits realized from the show.

HAVING BABIES (JULIE FARR, M.D.) ABC

7 MARCH 1978–18 APRIL 1978 Having Babies was introduced as an hour-long series after three made-for-TV movies had been telecast; midway through its limited run the show's title was changed to Julie Farr, M.D. as the emphasis shifted from specialized to generalized medical drama. Featured were Susan Sullivan as obstetrician Dr. Julie Farr; Mitchell Ryan as surgeon Dr. Blake Simmons; Dennis Howard as intern Dr. Ron Danvers; and Beverly Todd as Kelly. A few additional episodes were televised during the summer of 1979.

HAWAII FIVE-O CBS

26 SEPTEMBER 1968–26 APRIL 1980 TV's longest-running crime show embodied the right mixture of scenery (it was filmed entirely on location) and action. Created by Leonard Freeman (who served as executive producer until his death in 1973), it starred Jack Lord as Steve McGarrett, the no-nonsense head of Five-O, a special investigative unit directly responsible to the governor of Hawaii. Almost all the stories were straight-ahead crime dramas; McGarrett's personal life was rarely explored beyond the fact that he was a bachelor who enjoyed sailing. Among those featured were James MacArthur (1968–1979) as Danny ("Dano") Williams, McGarrett's number-one assistant; Kam Fong as Chin Ho Kelly, who was killed off at the end of the 1977–1978 season; Zulu (1968–1972) as Kono; Richard Denning (appearing occasionally) as The Governor (Keith Jameson); Maggi Parker (1968–1969) as May, Steve's secretary; Peggy Ryan (1969–1976) as Jenny Sherman, Steve's secretary; Al Eben as Doc Bergman, the pathologist; Harry Endo as lab expert Che Fong; Al Harrington (1972–1977) as Ben Kokua; Herman Wedemeyer (1972–1980) as Duke Lakela; Douglas Mossman (1974–1975) as Frank Kemana; and Glenn Cannon (1976–1978) as Attorney General John Manicote. Also appearing occasionally was Khigh Dhiegh as Wo Fat, a mysterious Oriental criminal who was McGarrett's archenemy. In the fall of 1979 three new regulars were added: Bill Smith as James (Kimo) Carew; Sharon Farrell as Lori Wilson; and Moe Keale as Tom (Truck) Kealoha. In the final first-run episode (5 April 1980), McGarrett finally apprehended his archenemy, Wo Fat. Following producer Freeman's death, Bill Finnegan and Bob Sweeney took over as producers; they were replaced in 1975 by Philip Leacock and Richard Newton, who were in turn succeeded by Douglas Green and B. W. Sandefur. It was no secret, however, that Jack Lord was actively involved in most aspects of the show's production.

HAWAIIAN EYE ABC

7 OCTOBER 1959–10 SEPTEMBER 1963 Set in Honolulu, this Warner Brothers detective show was cast in the same mold as 77 Sunset Strip, the first of Warners' private eye shows. Hawaiian Eye originally featured Anthony Eisley as Tracy Steele, a former Honolulu cop; Robert Conrad as Thomas Jefferson (Tom) Lopaka, his partner in Hawaiian Eye; Connie Stevens as Cricket Blake, singer at the Shell Bar of the nearby Hawaiian Village Hotel (Cricket usually sang one or two songs in most episodes); Poncie Ponce as Kazuo Kim (Kim), a cabbie; Mel Prestidge as Lieutenant Quon of the Honolulu police. In 1961, Grant Williams joined the cast as Gregg Mackenzie, Tracy and Tom's new partner. Eisley left the series in 1962; for the final season Troy Donahue (late of Surfside 6) was added as Phil Barton, social director of the hotel, and Doug Mossman joined the cast as Moke. Sharp-eyed viewers could have noted Chad Everett in his TV debut ("The Kahuna Curtain," 9 November 1960) and an early appearance by Jack Nicholson ("Total Eclipse," 21 February 1962). William T. Orr was the executive producer of the series.

HAWAIIAN HEAT ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1984–21 DECEMBER 1984 The fall 1984 season saw two new crime shows set in exotic American locales; only one of them—Miami Vice—succeeded, while this one fell by the wayside after thirteen weeks. It starred Robert Ginty and Jeff McCracken as Mac Riley and Andy Senkowski, two Chicago cops who left the Windy City for Hawaii after Mac's father (also a cop) was convicted of taking a bribe. Also featured were Mako as their new boss, Major Oshira of the Honolulu Police Department; Branscombe Richmond as Harker; and Tracy Scoggins as helicopter pilot Irene Gorley, who was usually seen with a macaw perched on her shoulder.

HAWK ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1966–29 DECEMBER 1966 An hour-long crime show starring Burt Reynolds as Detective Lieutenant John Hawk, an Iroquois Indian police officer assigned to the New York City district attorney's office. Also featured were Wayne Grice as Detective Carter, his sometime partner; Leon Janney as Gorten, a newsdealer who doubled as Hawk's street source. Reruns were shown on NBC during the summer of 1976.

HAWKEYE (HAWKEYE AND THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS) SYNDICATED

1957 Produced in Canada, this adventure series was based loosely on James Fenimore Cooper's book. With John Hart as Hawkeye, a white trapper and scout; Lon Chaney, Jr., as Chingachgook, a Mohican, Hawkeye's blood brother.

HAWKEYE SYNDICATED

1994–1995 The second TV version of the literary classic starred Lee Horsley as Hawkeye; Lynda Carter as Elizabeth Shields, who was searching for her husband, William, who had been abducted by the Huron Indians; Rodney A. Grant as Chingachgook; Garwin Sanford as Captain Taylor Shields, William's brother and Elizabeth's former suitor. Michael Berry appeared occasionally as William. The hour series was filmed in British Columbia.

HAWKINS CBS

2 OCTOBER 1973–3 SEPTEMBER 1974 James Stewart starred as Billy Jim Hawkins, a plain ol' country lawyer from Beauville, West Virginia, in this hour-long crime show. Veteran character actor Strother Martin costarred as his cousin, R. J. Hawkins, who occasionally did some investigating for Billy Jim. Though the format of the show seemed ideally suited for Stewart's talents (unlike his first series, The Jimmy Stewart Show), the series failed to catch on. The show was produced by Arena Productions in association with M-G-M TV.

HAWKINS FALLS NBC

Nighttime: 17 JUNE 1950–19 AUGUST 1950; Daytime: 2 APRIL 1951–1 JULY 1955 The official title of this serial, in its early days, was Hawkins Falls, Pop. 6200. The evening version was broadcast from Chicago and was seen Saturdays; the following spring it began a daytime run which lasted four years. It told of life in a small town (exterior sequences were filmed at Woodstock, Illinois). The cast included: Bernadine Flynn as Lona Drewer Carey; Michael Golda as Dr. Floyd Carey, the man she married; Win Stracke as Laif Flaigle; Ros Twohey as Millie Flaigle; Helen Bernie as Betty Sawtel; Russ Reed as Spec Bassett; and Elmira Roessler as Elmira Cleebe. The show was seen locally in Chicago in 1946.

HAYWIRE FOX

1 SEPTEMBER 1990–26 JANUARY 1991 Intended as a companion program to Fox's Totally Hidden Video, Haywire featured skits, stunts, Candid Camera–type scenes, parodies of television series, and new dialog added to clips from old films. The show was emceed by a guest host most weeks, assisted by a gang of regulars which included

David Jackson, Eric Lyons, David Nathan, Nathanal Peterson, Raymond Pounds, Michelle Rudy, Danial Sawyer, Pat Cashman, and Darrel Suto.

HAZEL NBC/CBS

28 SEPTEMBER 1961–9 SEPTEMBER 1965 (NBC); 13 SEPTEMBER 1965–5 SEPTEMBER 1966 (CBS) One of the few successful TV series based on a comic strip, Hazel came to television in 1961, about nineteen years after her creation by Ted Key (the cartoons were published in The Saturday Evening Post). Shirley Booth, a stage actress who had done little television previously, starred as Hazel Burke, a domestic with a penchant for getting involved in other people's business. For the first four years of the series, Hazel was employed by the George Baxter family. Appearing as the Baxters were Don Defore as George Baxter, a lawyer; Whitney Blake as his wife, Dorothy Baxter; and Bobby Buntrock as their son, Harold. Occasionally appearing were Cathy Lewis as George's sister, Deirdre Thompson; Robert P. Lieb as Harry Thompson, Deirdre's henpecked husband; Maudie Prickett as Hazel's friend Rosie, also a domestic; Howard Smith as Harvey Griffin, one of George's clients; Norma Varden as next-door neighbor Harriet Johnson; and Donald Foster as Harriet's husband, Herbert Johnson. When the series shifted networks in 1965, Hazel was given new employers—the Steve (younger brother of George) Baxter family. It was explained that George Baxter had been sent to Saudi Arabia on business, and Dorothy had gone with him, but that young Harold had stayed in town to finish school. Defore and Blake, as well as most of the semiregulars, left the cast, though Buntrock remained. Added to the cast were Ray Fulmer as Steve Baxter, a real estate agent; Lynn Borden as Barbara Baxter, his wife; and Julia Benjamin as Susie, their daughter (Harold, their nephew, lived with them while his parents were away). Also added were Mala Powers as Mona Williams, a friend of Barbara's; Ann Jillian as Millie, Steve's secretary. The series, which cracked Nielsen's top ten in its first season, was produced by James Fonda for Screen Gems.

THE HAZEL BISHOP SHOW

See THE FREDDY MARTIN SHOW

THE HAZEL SCOTT SHOW DUMONT

3 JULY 1950–29 SEPTEMBER 1950 Pianist Hazel Scott hosted this fifteen-minute musical series, which was seen Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. It was the first network series hosted by a black woman.

HE & SHE CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1967–18 SEPTEMBER 1968 This unsuccessful sitcom brought together a talented group of players: Richard Benjamin as Dick Hollister, a cartoonist, the creator of "Jetman"; Paula Prentiss (who was married to Benjamin) as Paula Hollister, Dick's wife, who worked for Travelers' Aid in New York; Hamilton Camp as Andrew Hummel, the superintendent of their apartment building; Jack Cassidy as Oscar North, the actor who played Dick's "Jetman" on TV; Kenneth Mars as the Hollisters' neighbor, Harry, a fireman; and Harold Gould as Norman Nugent, Dick's boss. Though the series was scheduled in a good time slot (9:30 Wednesdays, following The Beverly Hillbillies and Green Acres), audiences seemed to stay away in droves. Created by Leonard Stern, the half-hour show was produced by Talent Associates.

HE SAID, SHE SAID SYNDICATED

1969 Developed by Mark Goodson and Bill Todman, this game show featured celebrity couples. Husbands and wives were separated, and one set of spouses was asked a question. The object of the game was for the other set of spouses to determine which answers had been given by their respective mates. Joe Garagiola hosted the series.

HEAD OF THE CLASS ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1986–15 JANUARY 1991; 28 MAY 1991–25 JUNE 1991 Half-hour sitcom starring Howard Hesseman (1986–1990) as Charlie Moore, a substitute teacher at New York's Millard Fillmore High School who was hired to take over the IHP (Individual Honors Program) class. Moore soon realized that, although his charges were brainy, they needed a lot of lessons about life itself. Also featured were William G. Schilling as the meddling principal, Dr. Harold Samuels, who wanted to make sure that the IHP kids would win the city's Academic Olympics contests; Jeannetta Arnette as assistant principal Bernadette Meara; Leslie Bega (1986–1989) as the grade-obsessed Maria Borges, who transferred to a performing arts high school; Dan Frischman as prototypical nerd Arvid Engen; Robin Givens as preppy Darlene Merriman; Khrystyne Haje as literary Simone Foster; Jory Husain (1986–1989) as Indian student Jawarhalal Shoudhury; Tony O'Dell as preppy Alan Pinkard; Brian Robbins as intelligent hood Eric Mardian; Kimberly Russell as artistic Sarah Nevins; Dan Schneider as hefty science jock Dennis Blunden; Tannis Vallely (1986–1989) as twelve-year-old prodigy Janice Lazorotto, who entered Harvard after three years; Rain Pryor (1988–1991) as T. J.; Michael DeLorenzo (1989–1991) as Alex Torres, a transfer from an all-boys school; Lara Piper (1989–1991) as Viki Amory; De'Voreaux White (1989–1991) as artistic Aristotle McKenzie; and Jonathan Ke Quan (spring 1990–1991) as new Asian student Jasper Kwong.

Howard Hesseman left the show after four seasons (it was explained that his character had landed an acting job). Scottish-born comedian Billy Connolly succeeded him as the new teacher, Billy MacGregor. Head of the Class had been scheduled as a "backup" series for 1990–1991, meaning that it would be available to replace a faltering fall series, but it was hastily added to ABC's fall 1990 schedule to replace the problem-beset new series Baby Talk. After Head of the Class left the air for good, Connolly returned as MacGregor in the 1992 sitcom Billy.

In 1988 Head of the Class became the first American prime-time series to film an episode in the Soviet Union; the one-hour program aired 2 November. The series was created by Michael Elias and Rich Eustis; Elias had actually served as a substitute teacher in the New York City school system while struggling to make it as an actor.

HEADLINE CHASERS SYNDICATED

1985 Daily game show, hosted by Wink Martindale, on which contestants tried to fill in the missing words in various hypothetical news headlines.

HEADLINE CLEWS

See BROADWAY TO HOLLYWOOD

HEADLINERS WITH DAVID FROST NBC

31 MAY 1978–5 JULY 1978 David Frost was the host and the executive producer of this hour-long interview series; almost all of the segments were taped, though the introductions and other material were presented live. Frost's guests on the premiere included John Travolta, the Bee Gees, and former CIA director Richard Helms.

HEADMASTER CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1970–1 JANUARY 1971 Andy Griffith returned to television in this low-key comedy-drama. He played Andy Thompson, headmaster of a coeducational prep school in California. Also featured were Claudette Nevins as his wife, Margaret Thompson, who also taught there; Jerry Van Dyke as athletic coach Jerry Brownell; and Parker Fennelly as Mr. Purdy, the custodian. Aaron Ruben produced the series; the format was scrapped in midseason, and the show was retitled. See The New Andy Griffith Show. Headmaster's theme, "Only a Man," was sung by a then little-known vocalist named Linda Ronstadt.

HEALTH AND THE MIND WITH BILL MOYERS PBS

HEART OF THE CITY ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1986–10 JANUARY 1987; 4 JUNE 1987–2 JULY 1987 This hour crime show focused on the home life as well as the professional life of its main character. Robert Desiderio starred as Los Angeles police detective Wes Kennedy, who was suddenly left to care for his two teenagers after his wife was murdered; Kennedy moved to the night shift in order to spend more time with his kids. Also featured were Jonathan Ward as fifteen-year-old Kevin; Christina Applegate (who would achieve greater fame in Married . . .With Children) as fourteen-year-old Robin; Dick Anthony Williams as watch commander Ed Van Duzer; Kario Salem as Detective Rick Arno; Branscombe Richmond as Sergeant Luke Halui; and Robert Alan Browne as Detective Stanley.

THE HEART OF THE DRAGON PBS

6 MAY 1985–20 JULY 1985 A twelve-part look at twenty-two centuries of Chinese culture. The British-produced series was narrated by Anthony Quayle.

HEARTBEAT ABC

23 MARCH 1988–21 APRIL 1988; 3 JANUARY 1989–6 APRIL 1989 Two female physicians established the Women's Medical Arts Clinic in this hour medical show. With Kate Mulgrew as cofounder Dr. Joanne Springsteen, a gynecologist; Laura Johnson as cofounder Dr. Eve Autrey, a surgeon; Gail Strickland as Marilyn McGrath, a nurse-practitioner who was gay; Ben Masters as Dr. Leo Rosetti, a pediatrician; Ray Baker as psychiatrist Dr. Stan Gorshalk; Lynn Whitfield as obstetrician-gynecologist Dr. Cory Banks; Darrell Larson as fertility specialist Dr. Paul Jared; and Claudette Sutherland as receptionist Robin Flowers. Following a six-episode trial run in the spring of 1988, the series returned early in 1989 for another thirteen weeks. At that time Mulgrew's character had been renamed Dr. Joanne Holloran, and Laura Johnson's, Dr. Eve Calvert. Carmen Argenziano joined the cast as the new shrink, Dr. Nathan Solt, replacing Ray Baker.

HEARTLAND CBS

20 MARCH 1989–31 JULY 1989 CBS's second comedy of the 1988–1989 season to be set in Nebraska (see also First Impressions), Heartland told the story of a family trying to hang on to their farm. Featured were Richard Gilliland as Tom Stafford; Kathleen Layman as his wife, Casey Stafford; Brian Keith as her crusty dad, B. L. McCutcheon; Jason Kristopher as teen son Johnny; Devin Ratray as younger son Gus; and Daisy Keith as daughter Kim.

HEARTS AFIRE CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1992–1 FEBRUARY 1995 Linda Bloodworth-Thomason created this sitcom, which was set in Washington, D. C., during its first season. It starred John Ritter as John Hartman, a senatorial chief of staff and single parent, and Markie Post as Georgiann Lahti, who was hired by Hartman as the senator's press secretary and moved into Hartman's house, where a romance between the two began. Also in the cast were Justin Burnette as John's son Elliott; Clark Duke as John's son Ben; Billy Bob Thornton as senatorial aide Billy Bob Davis; Wendie Jo Sperber (1992–1993) as Billy B ob's wife, Mavis Davis, also a senatorial aide (Billy Bob and Mavis were having marital troubles); Doren Fein as their young daughter, Carson Lee; Beth Broderick (1992–1993) as the ditzy but stunning receptionist, Didi Starr; Adam Carl (1992–1993) as Adam; George Gaynes (1992–1993) as the addled senator, Strobe Smithers; and Beah Richards (1992–1993) as Miss Lula, Georgiann's childhood nanny, who also moved into John's house and helped care for the kids. Occasionally featured was Ed Asner as Georgiann's father, George. The relationship between Hartman and Lahti blossomed, and the two were married in February 1993. In the fall of 1993 the setting shifted from Washington to John's hometown, somewhere in the South, where John and Georgiann settled and bought a newspaper. Burnette, Duke, Thornton, and Fein also made the move, and several new faces were seen: Conchata Ferrell as their friend Madeleine; Beth Broderick (in a new role) as Didi's sister, Lee Ann Folsom; Mark Harelik as Lee Ann's loud and rich husband, Reed Folsom; and Leslie Jordan as Lonnie Garr. Broderick and Harelik departed after the 1993–1994 season, and J. Skylar Testa replaced Justin Burnette as Elliott in the fall of 1994.

HEARTS ARE WILD CBS

10 JANUARY 1992–13 MARCH 1992 Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas was the setting of this hour dramatic series; most episodes focused on the lives of the resort's guests, few of whom ever seemed to lose at the gaming tables. The regulars were David Beecroft as owner Jack Thorpe; Catherine Mary Stewart as the guest relations director, Kyle Hubbard; and Jon Polito as the casino manager, Leon "Pepe" Pepperman. Eric Roth created the series.

HEATHCLIFF AND DINGBAT ABC

4 OCTOBER 1980–5 SEPTEMBER 1981

HEATHCLIFF AND MARMADUKE ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1981–18 SEPTEMBER 1982 This Saturday-morning cartoon series consisted of segments featuring Heathcliff, a cat, and Dingbat, a dog who also happened to be a vampire. After a season Heathcliff hooked up with Marmaduke, the oversized Great Dane of comic strip fame.

HEAVEN FOR BETSY CBS

30 SEPTEMBER 1952–25 DECEMBER 1952 This fifteen-minute sitcom was seen on Tuesdays and Thursdays following the network news. It starred Jack Lemmon and Cynthia Stone (Lemmon's wife at the time) as newlyweds Pete and Betsy Bell. Lemmon and Stone previously played newlyweds on a 1951–1952 daytime series, The Frances Langford-Don Ameche Show.

HEAVEN HELP US SYNDICATED

1994 Hour dramatic series from Spelling Entertainment in which a honeymooning couple killed in a plane crash became apprentice angels, and were sent back to Earth to help persons in need. With John Schneider and Melinda Clarke as Doug and Lexy Monroe, and Ricardo Montalban as their angelic guide, Mr. Shepherd.

HEC RAMSEY NBC

8 OCTOBER 1972–25 AUGUST 1974 This segment of The NBC Sunday Mystery Movie starred Richard Boone as Hec Ramsey, a deputy police officer in New Prospect, Oklahoma, at the turn of the century; a former gunslinger, Ramsey now used modern scientific methods to solve cases. Also featured were Rick Lenz as the young police chief, Oliver B. Stamp; Harry Morgan as Doc Coogan, New Prospect's ad hoc physician. Douglas Benton produced the series for Jack Webb's Mark VII Productions.

HECKLE AND JECKLE SYNDICATED/CBS/NBC

1955 (SYNDICATED); 14 OCTOBER 1956–24 SEPTEMBER 1960 (CBS); 25 SEPTEMBER 1965–3 SEPTEMBER 1966 (CBS); 6 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 (NBC) Heckle and Jeckle, a pair of fast-talking magpies were created by Paul Terry and starred in hundreds of theatrical cartoons before coming to television in 1955. Other Terrytoon characters who appeared on the durable TV show were Gandy Goose, Dinky Duck, Little Roquefort, and The Terry Bears. See also The New Adventures of Mighty Mouse and Heckle and Jeckle.

THE HECTOR HEATHCOTE SHOW NBC

5 OCTOBER 1963–25 SEPTEMBER 1965 Saturday-morning cartoon series about a scientist and his time machine. Assisting Heathcote were Hashimoto, a judo-trained mouse, and Sidney, an elephant.

HEE HAW CBS/SYNDICATED

15 JUNE 1969–7 SEPTEMBER 1969; 17 DECEMBER 1969–13 JULY 1971 (CBS); 1971–1992 (SYNDICATED) Best described as the country-and-western version of Laugh-In, Hee Haw was a fast-paced mixture of songs, skits, blackouts, and corny jokes. It began as a summer series and attracted decent enough ratings to warrant its return that winter. Though it was blasted by the critics, there was no doubt that it had wide appeal; it ranked a respectable sixteenth when CBS canceled it in 1971 along with rest of the network's rural shows (The Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, and The Jim Nabors Show). A syndicated version of the show appeared that fall and soon was carried by more stations than when it ran on CBS; by 1977 it was the nation's number-one-rated non-network show.

From the beginning, the show was taped in Nashville, first at the studios of WLAC-TV, later at WTVF. The show was taped in assembly-line style during periods lasting several weeks. The segments were then cut, edited, and spliced together to comprise the hour-long programs. The show was the brainchild of two Canadians, Frank Peppiatt and John Aylesworth, who served as its executive producers (Sam Lovullo was the producer). The series was cohosted by Buck Owens and Roy Clark (by the late 1980s, Owens and Clark appeared only occasionally, having made room for various guest hosts). A large stable of regular performers was featured, including Louis M. ("Grandpa") Jones, Junior Samples, Jeannine Riley, Lulu Roman, David Akeman ("Stringbean"), Sherry Miles, Lisa Todd, Minnie Pearl, Gordie Tapp, Diana Scott, Cathy Baker, unicyclist Zella Lehr, The Hagers, and Barbi Benton. In later years the nucleus of regulars included Jones, Samples, The Hagers, Roman, Todd, Pearl, Archie Campbell, Roni Stoneham, George Lindsey, Gunilla Hutton, Harry Cole, Don Harron (as Charlie Farquharson), Misty Rowe, Gailard Sartain, Mackenzie Colt, Irlene Mandrell, Dub Taylor, and Jeff Smith.

THE HEE HAW HONEYS SYNDICATED

1978–1979 A half-hour sitcom set at Honey's Club, a small restaurant in Nashville, this series was spun off from Hee Haw. With Kenny Price and Lulu Roman as the proprietors, Kenny and Lulu Honey; Misty Rowe and Kathie Lee Johnson as their daughters, Misty and Kathie, who waited on tables and also sang there; and Gailard Sartain as their son, Willy Billy, the cook. A regular feature of the show was the appearance of guest stars from the world of country-and-western music, who stopped by to sing a number or two at the club. Sam Lovullo was the executive producer.

THE HEIGHTS FOX

27 AUGUST 1992–26 NOVEMBER 1992 Another unsuccessful series about a rock band (see also Catwalk and Dreams). With Shawn Thompson as J.T. Banks, the lead singer; Cheryl Pollak as Rita, the sax player; Charlotte Ross as Hope, the guitarist; Alex Desert as Stan Lee, the bassist; Zachary Throne as Lenny, the keyboardist; Ken Garito as Dizzy, the drummer; James Walters as Alex; Ray Aranha as Stan's dad, Mike Lee, who owned a pool hall; and Tasia Valenza as Jodie Abramowitz, Dizzy's girlfriend. Although the TV series was a flop, the show's theme, "How Do You Talk to an Angel?" became a number one record.

THE HELEN O'CONNELL SHOW NBC

29 MAY 1957–6 SEPTEMBER 1957 Helen O'Connell, who sang with several big bands during the 1940s, hosted this fifteen-minute series, which was seen Wednesdays and Fridays before the evening news.

THE HELEN REDDY SHOW NBC

28 JUNE 1973–16 AUGUST 1973 Australian-born singer Helen Reddy, who won a Grammy for "I Am Woman," hosted this variety hour, a summer replacement for The Flip Wilson Show. Carolyn Raskin produced the series.

HELL TOWN NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1985–25 DECEMBER 1985 After his cop show Baretta left the air in 1978, Robert Blake starred in three Joe Dancer TV-movies and played Jimmy Hoffa in the TV-movie "Blood Feud." He then came up with the idea of playing a priest in a tough East Los Angeles parish. He fought hard to get a pilot film made, and, once made, to get it scheduled; eventually, NBC accommodated him, and the Hell Town pilot was aired 6 March 1985, opposite Dynasty on ABC. When it turned out that the film had scored NBC's highest rating of the season in that time slot, the series was ordered. It starred Blake as Father Noah "Hardstep" Rivers, who had become a priest after spending time in prison, and vowed to keep his parish (St. Dominic's) clean (Rivers was nicknamed Hardstep because he had been abandoned as an infant on a hard step in a rainstorm). An assortment of odd characters was on hand to help out Fr. Hardstep: Whitman Mayo as pool-playing One Ball; Jeff Corey as atheist attorney Lawyer Sam; Natalie Cole as Mother Maggie; Vonetta McGee as Sister Indigo; Isabel Grandin as Sister Angel Cakes; Rhonda Dodson as Sister Daisy; Tony Longo as Stump; Zitto Karzann as Crazy Horse; and Eddie Quillan as Poco Loco. The sixteen episodes were filmed mostly on location; Blake insisted on using real street people as extras.

HELLO KITTY'S FURRY TALE THEATER CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1987–10 SEPTEMBER 1988 Adaptations of nursery rhymes and children's stories were presented on this Saturday-morning cartoon show; all the parts were played by cartoon cats.

HELLO, LARRY NBC

26 JANUARY 1979–30 APRIL 1980 Half-hour sitcom about a radio talk-show host who moved from Los Angeles to Portland, Oregon, with his two teenage daughters following the breakup of his marriage. With McLean Stevenson as Larry Alder; Donna Wilkes (spring 1979) and Krista Errickson (fall 1979–1980) as daughter Diane; Kim Richards as daughter Ruthie; Joanna Gleason as Morgan Winslow, Larry's producer; and George Memmoli as Earl, Larry's corpulent engineer. In the fall of 1979 Meadowlark Lemon, formerly of the Harlem Globetrotters, joined the cast (as himself), and John Femia was added as Tommy. It is no coincidence that Hello, Larry bore more than a passing resemblance to One Day at a Time, for Larry's executive producers—Dick Bensfield and Perry Grant (for Norman Lear's TAT Communications)—had also worked on One Day at a Time. From time to time efforts were made to shore up Larry's ratings by cross-pollinating it with Diff'rent Strokes; Strokes's Philip Drummond, it turned out, was an old Army buddy of Larry's, facilitating the appearances of the cast members on each other's series.

HELP! IT'S THE HAIR BEAR BUNCH CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1971–2 SEPTEMBER 1972; 9 SEPTEMBER 1973–31 AUGUST 1974 Saturday-morning cartoon show from Hanna-Barbera about a bunch of bears living in a zoo, where they tried to improve their living conditions. Reruns were syndicated under the title The Yo Yo Bears.

HE-MAN AND THE MASTERS OF THE UNIVERSE SYNDICATED

1983 Half-hour cartoon series produced by Filmation and underwritten by Mattel Toys. The central characters were He-Man and his alter ego, Prince Adam of Eternia. See also She-Ra: Princess of Power.

HENNESEY CBS

28 SEPTEMBER 1959–17 SEPTEMBER 1962 Situation comedy about a Navy doctor stationed in San Diego. With Jackie Cooper as Lieutenant Charles "Chick" Hennesey;

Abby Dalton as his girlfriend, Nurse Martha Hale; Roscoe Karns as his commanding officer, Captain Walter Shafer; James Komack as Navy dentist Harvey Spencer Blair III; and Henry Kulky as Max Bronsky, an orderly who read Spinoza. In the fall of 1961 promotions were handed out: Hennesey became a lieutenant commander, Hale a lieutenant, Shafer an admiral, and Bronsky a chief petty officer. Hennesey and Hale also got married that season. Don McGuire wrote and coproduced the series with Jackie Cooper. Hennesey was one of the very few sitcoms of its time that did not employ a laugh track.

THE HENNY AND ROCKY SHOW ABC

1 JUNE 1955–31 AUGUST 1955 The Henny and Rocky Show was a series of variable length—it was designed to fill out the rest of the hour if and when ABC's Wednesday-night boxing matches ran short. Comedian Henny Youngman and boxer-actor Rocky Graziano cohosted the show, which also featured singer Marion Colby.

HENRY FONDA PRESENTS THE STAR AND THE STORY SYNDICATED

1955 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by Henry Fonda.

THE HENRY MORGAN SHOW ABC/NBC

18 APRIL 1948–16 MAY 1948 (ABC); 13 MARCH 1949–22 APRIL 1949 (NBC); 26 JANUARY 1951–15 JUNE 1951 (NBC) Though comedian Henry Morgan is remembered today mainly as a panelist on game shows such as I've Got a Secret, he hosted several shows in television's early days. His 1948 show, titled On the Corner, was seen Sunday nights on the ABC network (though it was carried by the DuMont affiliate in New York). In 1949 he moved to NBC, where he was first given a half hour on Sunday nights; that slot was soon shifted to a fifteen-minute slot on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, before disappearing altogether in April of that year. Early in 1951 he tried a second series for NBC, a Friday-night half hour called Henry Morgan's Great Talent Hunt. A forerunner of The Gong Show, the series featured people with unusual talents; assisting Morgan were Arnold Stang and Kaye Ballard. In April 1951 the talent format was scrapped, and Morgan hosted a half-hour comedy-variety show for a few more weeks, which featured Arnold Stang, Pert Kelton, and Art Carney. The principal reason that all of Morgan's series were short-lived was his apparently incurable habit of ridiculing his sponsors; TV Guide reported that one advertiser, Life Savers, dropped its sponsorship after one week, following Morgan's tongue-in-cheek accusation that the company was cheating the public by drilling holes in its product.

HERB SHRINER TIME ABC

11 OCTOBER 1951–3 APRIL 1952

THE HERB SHRINER SHOW CBS

2 OCTOBER 1956–4 DECEMBER 1956 Indiana comedian Herb Shriner was first seen on television in 1949, when he hosted a thrice-weekly five-minute show on CBS. In 1951 he hosted his first prime-time variety series, seen Thursdays over ABC. He then hosted a game show, Two for The Money, before trying a second variety series in 1956 on CBS.

HERBIE, THE LOVE BUG CBS

17 MARCH 1982–14 APRIL 1982 This hour comedy series was derived from the Disney films about Herbie, a Volkswagen with a mind of its own. In addition to the car, the series featured Dean Jones as Jim Douglas, owner of the Famous Driving School; Patricia Harty as Susan MacLane, a divorcée whom Herbie was trying to match Jim up with; Larry Linville as Susan's stuffy boyfriend, Randy Bigelow; Claudia Wells as Susan's daughter, Julie; Nicky Katt as Susan's son Matthew; Douglas Emerson as Susan's son Robbie; and Richard Paul as Bo Phillips, one of Jim's employees. The series was produced by Kevin Corcoran, who had appeared in several Disney films as a child.

HERCULES—THE LEGENDARY JOURNEYS SYNDICATED

1995– Greek mythology has rarely been the basis of a TV series. This one starred Kevin Sorbo as the half-god, half-human Hercules, whose prodigious strength established him as the Superman of the Hellenistic age. Joining him during the first season was Lucy Lawless as Xena, who got her own spinoff series in the fall of 1995: See also Xena: Warrior Princess. Anthony Quinn occasionally appeared as Zeus. Filmed in New Zealand, the hour series followed several made-for-TV movies which had been telecast in 1994.

THE HERCULOIDS CBS

9 SEPTEMBER 1967–6 SEPTEMBER 1969 Saturday-morning cartoon show from Hanna-Barbera featuring several super-powered characters—Zok the dragon, Tundro the Tremendous, Iago, and Gloop and Gleep—who lived on the planet Quasar in another galaxy.

HERE AND NOW NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1992–2 JANUARY 1993 Shortly after The Cosby Show left the air, Malcolm-Jamal Warner returned to star in this sitcom. Here he played Alexander "A.J." James, a graduate student who worked with youngsters at the Manhattan Youth Center in New York. Also featured were Charles Brown as Uncle Sydney (who was not really A.J.'s uncle, but a friend of A.J.'s father), a hotel doorman with whom A.J. lived; Rachael Crawford as Sydney's daughter, Danielle; Daryl "Chill" Mitchell as A.J.'s friend T, who also worked at the Center; Brenda Pressley (premiere episode) and S. Epatha Merkerson as the Center's director, Claudia St. Marth; Pee Wee Love as Randall; Michael Alexander Jackson as Malik; Shaun Weiss as William; Amir Williams as Everett; Afi McClendon as Shonna; and Victoria Williams as Rahina.

HERE COME THE BRIDES ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1968–18 SEPTEMBER 1970 Based on the film Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, this Screen Gems sitcom was set at a Washington logging camp in the 1870s, where the men arranged to import 100 available women from New Bedford, Massachusetts. With Robert Brown as Jason Bolt, unofficial leader of the camp; David Soul as Joshua Bolt, his brother; Bobby Sherman as Jeremy Bolt, their younger brother; Mark Lenard as Aaron Stempel, operator of the local sawmill; Henry Beckman as Clancey, the boat captain; Joan Blondell as Lottie Hatfield, proprietor of the camp saloon; Bridget Hanley as Candy Pruitt, an eligible bride; Susan Tolsky as Biddie Cloom; Mitzi Hoag as Essie, the schoolteacher; Hoke Howell as Ben Jenkins; Bo Svenson as Big Swede, camp foreman; Eric Chase (1969–1970) as Christopher, Candy's little brother; and Patti Cohoon (1969–1970) as Molly, Candy's little sister.

HERE COME THE DOUBLE-DECKERS ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–17 SEPTEMBER 1972 A British import about a group of youngsters who lived in a reconverted double-decker bus, this half-hour series was seen on weekend mornings. With Michael Auderson as Brains; Gillian Bailey as Billie; Bruce Clark as Sticks; Peter Firth as Scooper; Brinsley Forde as Spring; Debbie Russ as Tiger; and Douglas Simmonds as Doughnut. Also appearing was Melvyn Hayes as their grownup pal, Albert.

HERE COMES THE GRUMP NBC

6 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 Saturday-morning cartoon series reminiscent of The Wizard of Oz. Here, a boy (Terry) and his dog (Bib) found themselves in a fantasy land and were commissioned by Princess Dawn to find a magic key secreted by The Grump.

HERE WE GO AGAIN ABC

20 JANUARY 1973–23 JUNE 1973 This situation comedy about divorce failed to make a dent in the ratings of its CBS competitor, All in the Family. With Larry Hagman as

Richard Evans, a divorced architect who remarried; Diane Baker as Susan Standish, the divorcée whom he married; Dick Gautier as Jerry Standish, Susan's ex, a restaurateur who lived nearby; Nita Talbot as Judy Evans, Richard's ex, who edited a movie magazine; Chris Beaumont as Jeff, Richard and Judy's teenage son (he lived with Judy after the divorce); Leslie Graves and Kim Richards as Cindy and Jan, Jerry and Susan's young daughters (they lived with Richard and Susan). Created by Bob Kaufman; produced by Steve Pritzker for Metromedia.

HERE'S BARBARA SYNDICATED

1969 Barbara Coleman hosted this Washington-based half-hour talk show.

HERE'S BOOMER NBC

14 MARCH 1980–14 AUGUST 1982 A remake of The Littlest Hobo, this half-hour comedy-drama told the story of Boomer, a lovable mutt who helped out people in distress. Plans were announced to have Boomer (the sole regular on the show) voice his thoughts (as had Cleo the dog on The People's Choice), but were abandoned after a single attempt in late 1980. Here's Boomer was developed by Dan Balluck and A. C. Lyles. Boomer was owned and trained by Ray Berwick.

HERE'S EDIE ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1963–19 MARCH 1964 This half-hour variety series alternated with The Sid Caesar Show on Thursdays. It was hosted by singer-comedienne Edie Adams, widow of Ernie Kovacs. Don Chastain was also featured on the show.

HERE'S HOLLYWOOD NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1960–28 DECEMBER 1962 Celebrity interviews comprised this daytime half-hour show, cohosted by Dean Miller and Jo-ann Jordan; Helen O'Connell later replaced Jordan.

HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU

See THE RICHARD WILLIS SHOW

HERE'S LUCY CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1968–2 SEPTEMBER 1974 Here's Lucy was the direct successor to The Lucy Show, with a slight change in format. It starred Lucille Ball as Lucille Carter, a secretary at her brother-in-law's employment agency; Gale Gordon as Harrison Carter, her brother-in-law and boss, head of the Unique Employment Agency; Lucie Arnaz as her daughter, Kim; Desi Arnaz, Jr. (1968–1971) as her son, Craig; Mary Jane Croft as Mary Jane Lewis, Lucy's friend. Many prominent stars appeared on the series, including Johnny Carson (1 December 1969), Ann-Margret (2 February 1970), Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor (14 September 1970), Flip Wilson (13 September 1971 and 6 March 1972), Ginger Rogers (8 November 1971), David Frost (29 November 1971), and Joe Namath (9 October 1972).

HERITAGE: CIVILIZATION AND THE JEWS PBS

1 OCTOBER 1984–19 NOVEMBER 1984 A nine-week documentary series on Jewish history and culture, hosted by Abba Eban. The series won a prestigious Peabody Award in 1984.

THE HERMAN HICKMAN SHOW NBC

3 OCTOBER 1952–27 MARCH 1953 Fifteen-minute Friday-night sports show hosted by Herman Hickman, who had formerly coached football at Yale.

HERMAN'S HEAD FOX

8 SEPTEMBER 1991–16 JUNE 1994 Half-hour sitcom with an interesting premise: the audience got to see what was happening inside the protagonist's brain as the four sides of his personality battled one another for control. With William Ragsdale as Herman Brooks, a young man who moved to New York and found work as a magazine researcher; Ken Hudson Campbell as Animal, the lusty slob who personified

Herman's baser desires; Rick Lawless as Wimp, who tried to imbue Herman with guilt and apprehension; Peter MacKenzie as Genius, the sensible side of Herman; Molly Hagan as Angel, Herman's altruistic aspect; Hank Azaria as Jay Nichols, Herman's skirt-chasing coworker; Jane Sibbett as icy coworker Heddy Newman; Jason Bernard as Herman's formidable boss, Paul Bracken; and Yeardley Smith (who is perhaps better recognized as the voice of Lisa on The Simpsons) as Bracken's secretary, Louise Fitzer. Julia Campbell appeared occasionally during the second season as Herman's girlfriend, Elizabeth.

THE HERO NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1966–5 JANUARY 1967 An early casualty of the 1966–1967 season, The Hero featured a series-within-a-series format. It starred Richard Mulligan as Sam Garret, star of "Jed Clayton—U.S. Marshal," a hit western, but a clumsy bloke offscreen. Also featured were Mariette Hartley as his wife, Ruth Garret; Bobby Horan as their son, Paul; Victor French as neighbor Fred Gilman; Joey Baio as Fred's son, Burton; and Marc London as Dewey. Leonard Stern created the series and served as its executive producer; Jay Sandrich produced it for Talent Associates.

HE'S THE MAYOR ABC

10 JANUARY 1986–21 MARCH 1986 Winston Moss and Bob Peete created this sitcom about a twenty-five-year-old black man who was elected mayor of a large city. With Kevin Hooks as Mayor Carl Burke; Al Fann as his father, Alvin Burke, a city hall janitor; David Graf as city council president Harlan Nash; Wesley Thompson as Carl's cousin and chauffeur, Wardell Halsey; Mari Gorman as Carl's secretary, Paula Hendricks; Stanley Brock as neighbor Ivan Bronski; and Pat Corley as Police Chief Walter Padget.

HEY, JEANNIE CBS

8 SEPTEMBER 1956–4 MAY 1957 Half-hour sitcom about a Scotswoman who emigrated to New York City. With Jeannie Carson as Jeannie MacLennan; Allen Jenkins as her sponsor, Al Murray, a Brooklyn cabbie; and Jane Dulo as Liz Murray, Al's sister. After arriving in New York, Jeannie moved in with Al and Liz and got a job as a waitress in a donut shop.

HEY LANDLORD NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1966–14 MAY 1967 Half-hour sitcom about two young bachelors who own an apartment building. With Will Hutchins as Woody Banner, a would-be writer; Sandy Baron as Chuck Hookstratten, a would-be comic; Pamela Rodgers as tenant Timothy Morgan, a weather forecaster; Michael Constantine as tenant Jack Ellenhorn, a photographer; and Ann Morgan Guilbert as tenant Mrs. Henderson, a fussbudget. Produced by Lee Rich.

HEY MULLIGAN

See THE MICKEY ROONEY SHOW

HEY, VERN, IT'S ERNEST! CBS/FAM

17 SEPTEMBER 1988–2 SEPTEMBER 1989 (CBS); 5 SEPTEMBER 1992–27 MARCH 1994 (FAM) Half-hour live-action Saturday-morning kids' show, starring Jim Varney as Ernest P. Worrell. Varney had created the inept hayseed character for a series of soft drink commercials, and played him in a 1987 movie, Ernest Goes to Camp (two other films followed). Varney also played other characters on the series, including Dr. Otto, a crazed scientist. Mark Goldman and Denice Hicks were also featured. The "Vern" character was the camera, whom Ernest addressed when introducing his various escapades.

HI HONEY, I'M HOME ABC/NICK

19 JULY 1991–23 AUGUST 1991 (ABC); 21 JULY 1991–8 NOVEMBER 1992 (NICK) The first sitcom to be introduced simultaneously on network and cable television, this series's central characters were the Nielsen family. The Nielsens had been the stars of an old sitcom, "Hi Honey, I'm Home"; after its cancellation they had been moved by the SRP (Sitcom Relocation Program) from peaceful Springfield in TV-land to New Jersey to await the return of their series to the airwaves. Recognized by the kid next door, they confided their secret to him. The cast included Charlotte Booker as perfect housewife and mother Honey Nielsen; Stephen Bradbury as her husband, Lloyd Nielsen; Julie Benz as their teen daughter, Babs; Danny Gura as preteen son Chuckie; Pete Benson as Mike Duff, the next-door teen who had been a fan of their show; Eric Kushnick as his nasty little brother, Sidney "Skunk" Duff; and Susan Cella as their divorced mother, Elaine. When modern life became too much for the Nielsens to cope with, they could activate their Turnerizer, a device which turned things into black and white. Sitcom stars of the 1950s and 1960s regularly appeared as guests on the series, which ran for two full seasons on Nickelodeon.

HIDDEN FACES NBC

30 DECEMBER 1968–27 JUNE 1969 Short-lived daytime serial which NBC scheduled opposite CBS's As the World Turns. Soap opera buffs generally agree that it was well written and well acted, but that failure was inevitable against such strong competition. With Conrad Fowkes as lawyer Arthur Adams; Gretchen Walther as Dr. Katherine Walker, a surgeon who left medicine after accidentally killing a patient during an operation, and who eventually fell in love with Adams. Also featured were Stephen Joyce, Rita Gam, Tony LoBianco, and Nat Polen.

THE HIGH CHAPARRAL NBC

10 SEPTEMBER 1967–10 SEPTEMBER 1971 This fairly successful western was produced by David Dortort, who also produced Bonanza. Like Bonanza, The High Chaparral was a "property" western: the two central families—the Cannons and the Montoyas—were both large landowners in the Arizona Territory. With Leif Erickson as John Cannon, owner of the High Chapparal Ranch; Linda Cristal as his wife, Victoria Cannon, daughter of the Montoyas; Cameron Mitchell as Buck Cannon, John's brother; Mark Slade as Blue Cannon, John's son and Victoria's stepson; Frank Silvera (1967–1970) as Don Sebastian Montoya, owner of the Montoya Ranch and father of Victoria Cannon; Gilbert Roland (1970–1971) as his brother, Don Domingo de Montoya; and Henry Darrow as Manolito, Don Sebastian's son. The several ranch hands on the two ranches included Bob Hoy as Joe, Roberto Conteras as Pedro, Rudy Ramos as Wind, and Rodolfo Acosta as Vasquero. Ninety-eight episodes were produced.

HIGH FINANCE CBS

7 JULY 1956–15 DECEMBER 1956 The top prize was $75,000 on this prime-time current events quiz show, hosted by Dennis James. In September 1956 former boxing champ Joe Louis and his wife Rose appeared, trying to earn money to defray a hefty federal tax bill.

HIGH HOPES SYNDICATED

1978 A half-hour serial set in the small college town of Cambridge. With Bruce Gray as family counselor Neal Chapman; Marianne McIsaac as Jessie Chapman, his possessive daughter; Nuala Fitzgerald as Paula Myles, sister of Neal's ex-wife; Barbara Kyle as Trudy Bowen, hostess of a local talk show; Colin Fox as Walter Telford; Gina Dick as Amy Sperry; Jayne Eastwood as Louise Bates; Jan Muszinski as Dr. Dan Gerard; Vivian Reis as Norma Stewart; Michael Tait as Michael Stewart; Gordon Thompson as Mike Stewart, Jr.; Deborah Turnbull as Mrs. Telford; Candace O'Connor as Helen; and Doris Petrie as Meg Chapman, Neal's mother. Taped in Toronto, the series was written by Winnifred Wolfe and Mort Forer. Dick Cox was the executive producer.

HIGH LOW QUIZ NBC

4 JULY 1957–12 SEPTEMBER 1957 Contestants battled a panel of experts on this prime-time game show, a summer replacement for The (Tennessee Ernie) Ford Show, hosted by Jack Barry. Contestants earned money by matching answers with either the expert with the most correct answers or the expert with the fewest correct answers.

HIGH MOUNTAIN RANGERS CBS

2 JANUARY 1988–9 JULY 1988 Robert Conrad returned to TV in his ninth series, bringing two of his sons with him (his daughter Joan served as the executive producer). The elder Conrad played Jesse Hawkes, founder of the High Mountain Rangers, an elite rescue squad in the Sierra Nevadas; Christian Conrad played Jesse's older son, Matt, who now ran the squad; Shane Conrad was Jesse's younger son, Cody, who lived with his father (now semiretired) in a nearby mountain cabin. Also featured were Tony Acierto as ranger Frank Avila; Russell Todd as ranger Cutler; Eric Eugene Williams as ranger Hart; P. A. Christian as ranger Robin Kelly; Timothy Erwin (husband of Joan Conrad) as new ranger Izzy Flowers; Med Flory as Sheriff McBride; and Robyn Peterson as Jesse's estranged wife, Jackie. Following the cancellation of High Mountain Rangers, the Conrads stayed in character and headed off to still another series: see Jesse Hawkes. The pilot for High Mountain Rangers was televised 19 April 1987. Conrad dusted off the concept for a similar series in 1995: see High Sierra Search and Rescue.

HIGH PERFORMANCE ABC

2 MARCH 1983–23 MARCH 1983 An hour crime show about a team of crack security agents, based at High Performance, an ultramodern training school for security people. With Mitchell Ryan as Brennan Flannery, H.P.'s founder; Lisa Hartman as his daughter, martial arts expert Kate Flannery; Jack Scalia as Blue Stratton; Rick Edwards as skilled driver Shane Adams; and Jason Bernard as computer ace Fletch. Scalia, who had costarred in The Devlin Connection a few months earlier, became one of the few TV performers to appear in two flop series in a single season.

HIGH RISK CBS

4 OCTOBER 1988–15 NOVEMBER 1988 Wayne Rogers hosted this hour "reality show," which profiled persons who took risks, either at work or at play: wingwalkers, roller coaster testers, and paraplegic water skiers might all be seen on a typical program. The short-term series was ordered into production because of the 1988 writers' strike, which delayed the production of many fiction-format series.

HIGH ROAD (JOHN GUNTHER'S HIGH ROAD) ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1959–1 OCTOBER 1960 Prime-time travelogue, hosted by John Gunther.

HIGH ROAD TO DANGER SYNDICATED

1958 Steve Brodie narrated this half-hour series of films about modern-day adventurers.

HIGH ROLLERS NBC/SYNDICATED

1 JULY 1974–11 JUNE 1976 (NBC); 1975 (SYNDICATED); 24 APRIL 1978–20 JUNE 1980 (NBC); 1987 (SYNDICATED) By answering questions correctly, contestants on this game show earned the chance to acquire prizes in accordance with the roll of a pair of giant dice. Alex Trebek hosted the show, which began as a daytime series on NBC; Ruta Lee rolled the dice on the network version, while Elaine Stewart handled the chore on the 1975 syndicated version. When the series returned to NBC's daytime schedule in 1978, it was titled The New High Rollers. Wink Martindale hosted the 1987 syndicated version, assisted by Crystal Owens and K. C. Winkler. Merrill Heatter and Bob Quigley were the executive producers.

HIGH SIERRA SEARCH AND RESCUE NBC

11 JUNE 1995–26 JULY 1995 Robert Conrad starred as Tooter Campbell, a helicopter pilot who led a volunteer rescue team in Bear Lake, California, nestled in California's Sierra Nevada Mountains. Also on hand were Dee Wallace Stone as Morgan Duffy, owner of the general store; LaVelda Fann as Lisa Peterson, who ran a gas station; Alistair MacDougall as the eligible young sheriff, Ty Cooper; Ramon Franco as schoolteacher Enrique Cruz; Brittney Powell as Kaja Wilson, who worked in Morgan's store; and Jason Lewis as ski instructor Flynn Norstedt. The pilot for the series was a two-hour TV-movie, "Search and Rescue," televised on NBC 27 March 1994. The series, Conrad's eleventh, was remarkably similar to High Mountain Rangers, Conrad's ninth, which also centered on a rescue unit in the Sierras.

HIGH SOCIETY CBS

30 OCTOBER 1995–26 FEBRUARY 1996 Sitcom inspired by the cult British comedy series Absolutely Fabulous. High Society starred Jean Smart as narcissistic novelist Ellie Walker and Mary McDonnell as her best friend and publisher, Dott Emerson; both women spent much of their time smoking and drinking. Also on board were Faith Prince as Val, a hopelessly square college chum of Dott's whose marriage was on the rocks and who (to Ellie's chagrin) moved into Dott's Manhattan apartment; David Rasche as Peter, who held the minority interest in Dott's publishing company; Luigi Amodeo as Dott's trendy assistant, Stephano; Dan O'Donahue as Dott's seventeen-year-old son, Brendan; and Jayne Meadows as Dott's mother, Mrs. Morgan.

HIGHLANDER: THE SERIES SYNDICATED

1992– Based on the 1986 motion picture Highlander and its sequels, the TV version starred Adrian Paul as Duncan MacLeod, a 400-year-old Scotsman who was one of a small number of Immortals living on Earth. Not all the Immortals were good, however, and they battled among themselves, killing one another by ritual beheading. Ultimately, only one Immortal would be left alive, and if it were an evil being the world would know "an eternity of darkness." Also featured were Alexandra Vandernoot (1992–1994) as MacLeod's girlfriend, Tessa Noel, who ran an antique shop with him and was killed off during the second season; Stan Kirsch (1992–1993; 1994– ) as Richie Ryan, a youngster who discovered that he too was an Immortal; Jim Byrnes (1993– ) as Joe Dawson, one of a group of mortals known as the Watchers, who tracked the Immortals; and Lisa Howard (1994– ) as MacLeod's new love interest, surgeon Anne Lindsey. The hour series was filmed in the Pacific Northwest and in France.

HIGHCLIFFE MANOR NBC

12 APRIL 1979–3 MAY 1979 Comedy melodrama set at a mysterious island, the headquarters of the Blacke Foundation, a research outfit. With Shelley Fabares as Helen Blacke, widow of the foundation's founder; Stephen McHattie as Reverend Glenville; Eugenie Ross-Leming as Frances; Gerald Gordon as Dr. Felix Morger; Audrey Landers as Wendy, secretary to the late Berkeley Blacke; Jenny O'Hara as Rebecca, the housekeeper; Christian Marlowe as Bram Shelley; David Byrd as Dr. Lester; Luis Avalos as Dr. Sanchez; Ernie Hudson as Smythe, valet to the late Mr. Blacke; Harold Sakata as Cheng. Robert Blees created the half-hour series.

HIGHWAY PATROL SYNDICATED

1955–1959 Very popular crime show produced by Ziv TV, depicting the work of the Highway Patrol, a law enforcement agency analogous to the State Police. Broderick Crawford starred as Captain Dan Matthews, the gravel-voiced chief who seemed to spend most of his time barking "10–4! 10–4!" over the police radio. Narrator: Art Gilmore. The Highway Patrol theme was composed by Ray Llewellyn. The show should not be confused with the similarly-titled 1993 documentary series, Real Stories of the Highway Patrol.

HIGHWAY TO HEAVEN NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1984–29 JUNE 1988 Michael Landon starred in his third successful prime-time series, this time as Jonathan Smith, an angel who was sent back to Earth to help people. Victor French (who had worked on Landon's previous series, Little House on the Prairie) played Smith's terrestrial sidekick, Mark Gordon, an ex-cop. Few people expected the series to do well, given its lack of car chases and beautiful women; NBC, desperate to find a "family" show for 8:00 on Wednesday, opposite ABC's popular hit, The Fall Guy, bought Landon's concept, though not without misgivings. To everyone's surprise, Highway knocked Fall Guy out of Nielsen's Top Twenty and into another time slot. The series was seen weekly until June 1988; a few additional shows were broadcast sporadically during the 1988–1989 season, however.

THE HIGHWAYMAN NBC

4 MARCH 1988–6 MAY 1988 This Friday-night hour adventure series was aimed principally at the kids. Its real star was a massive eighteen-wheeler truck armed with various high-tech devices, piloted by two men who worked under the auspices of the government: The Highwayman (played by Sam Jones) and his Australian sidekick, Jetto (played by Jacko). In the background were the boss, Ms. Tania Winthrop (Jane Badler) and the mechanic, D. C. Montana (Tim Russ). The pilot for the series was telecast 20 September 1987, and featured Jones, G. Gordon Liddy, Jimmy Smits (of L. A. Law) and wrestler "Rowdy" Roddy Piper.

THE HILARIOUS HOUSE OF FRIGHTENSTEIN SYNDICATED

1975 Videotaped children's series hosted by Billy Van.

HILL STREET BLUES NBC

15 JANUARY 1981–19 MAY 1987 Not just another crime show, Hill Street Blues stood apart from the pack for several reasons: its large cast of interesting characters, its skillful blending of humor with tragedy, and its cinematically realistic look.

The series was germinated in 1980, when Fred Silverman, then president of NBC Television, approached two producers from MTM Enterprises, Michael Kozoll and Steven Bochco. Silverman suggested that they consider doing a cop show that would emphasize the personal lives and relationships of the characters. Kozoll and Bochco agreed to the proposal, but only on the condition that they be given complete artistic control over the development of the show; somewhat to their surprise, NBC acceded. Kozoll and Bochco proceeded to cast the series with a group of actors who were experienced but who, for the most part, were hardly household names. They also decided that Hill Street would indeed emphasize its characters rather than its cases—not all crimes would be solved in a single episode, and some would never be solved at all.

Hill Street was set in a decaying area of a large (but unnamed) American city. The grim reality of life in an urban ghetto was frequently offset by unexpected humor. A realistic look was achieved through the use of such techniques as underlit interiors, crowded frames, and background noise. Mike Post's poignant theme music also helped set the series' tone.

The ensemble cast included: Daniel J. Travanti as Captain Frank Furillo, the dedicated and responsible commanding officer of the Hill Street Station; Veronica Hamel as coolly professional public defender Joyce Davenport, who dated Furillo (they were married in March of 1983; Davenport worked briefly as a prosecutor during the 1984–1985 season, but soon returned to defense work); Michael Conrad (who died in November 1983) as the polysyllabic Sergeant Phil Esterhaus, the officer who gave the daily briefing at roll call ("let's be careful out there!"); Bruce Weitz as scruffy Detective Mick Belker, who sometimes resorted to biting the felons he apprehended; James B. Sikking as reactionary Lieutenant Howard Hunter, head of the precinct SWAT team; Joe Spano as compassionate detective Henry Goldblume; Taurean Blacque as streetwise plainclothes detective Neal Washington; Kiel Martin as Washington's hedonistic partner, Johnny (J.D.) LaRue; Rene Enriquez (1981–1986) as sensitive Lieutenant Ray Calletano, the precinct's Hispanic officer; Michael Warren as level-headed Officer Bobby Hill; Charles Haid as Hill's partner, Officer Andy Renko, an urban cowboy; Betty Thomas as Officer Lucy Bates, a woman trying to do her job as a cop (Bates was promoted to sergeant, and succeeded Esterhaus in 1984); Ed Marinaro (fall 1981–1986) as her partner, Officer Joe Coffey; Barbara Bosson (1981–1986) as Fay Furillo, Frank's crisis-laden ex-wife; Barbara Babcock (1981–1982) as Grace Gardener, Esterhaus's ravenously passionate lover; Robert Hirschfeld as desk officer Leo Schnitz; Jon Cypher as Fletcher Daniels, the politically ambitious chief of police; Trinidad Silva as Jesus Martinez, leader of the Diablos, one of the local gangs; George Wyner (1982–1987) as prosecutor Irwin

Bernstein; Lisa Sutton (1983–1987) as Officer Robin Tataglia, who married Belker; Ken Olin (spring 1984–1985) as Detective Harry Garibaldi; Mimi Kuzyk (1984–1985) as Detective Patsy Mayo; Robert Prosky (1984–1987) as Sergeant Stan Jablonski, who took over the morning roll call from Bates; Debi Richter (spring 1984–1987) as Daryl Ann Renko, Andy's wife (Richter and Haid were also married in real life as were Barbara Bosson and Steven Bochco); Dennis Franz (1985–1987) as street-smart Lieutenant Norman Buntz (Franz had previously guest starred as Detective Sal Benedetto, who had been killed); Peter Jurasik (1985–1987) as seedy Sid "the Snitch" Thurston, Buntz's main contact; Robert Clohessy (1986–1987) as Officer Pat Flaherty; and Megan Gallagher (1986–1987) as Officer Tina Russo. Several members of the Hill Street cast had previously appeared on the 1979 cop show Paris, which Steven Bochco had created and produced for MTM Enterprises (which also supplied Hill Street): Mike Warren had been a regular on Paris, and Barbara Babcock, Taurean Blacque, Michael Conrad, James B. Sikking, and Bruce Weitz had all made guest appearances. Also, Conrad and Charles Haid had been regulars on Delvecchio, a 1976 cop show.

Hill Street premiered to rave reviews from the critics but to meager ratings. Several time-slot changes throughout the spring of 1981 did nothing to attract more viewers. Nevertheless, NBC decided to renew the series for the 1981–1982 season. The decision paid off, as Hill Street won eight Emmys (a single-season record for a series) and a Peabody Award in 1981. During its second season, Hill Street began to attract a larger audience, which, if not huge by industry standards, was loyal and enthusiastic. After a respectable seven-season run the series called it quits. Franz and Jurasik, as Buntz and Sid the Snitch, turned up in the fall of 1987 on the ill-fated Beverly Hills Buntz.

HIPPODROME CBS

5 JULY 1966–6 SEPTEMBER 1966 European circus acts were presented on this hour-long series; guest hosts included Woody Allen, Eddie Albert, Trini Lopez, and Tony Randall, among others. This Tuesday-night series should not be confused with Continental Showcase, another European circus show aired by CBS that summer on Saturdays.

HIRAM HOLLIDAY (THE ADVENTURES OF HIRAM HOLLIDAY) NBC

3 OCTOBER 1956–27 FEBRUARY 1957 Half-hour filmed sitcom based on the short stories by Paul Gallico. Wally Cox (formerly of Mr. Peepers) starred as Hiram Holliday, a newspaper proofreader who was rewarded with a trip around the world by his employer when he corrected an error in an article, thereby preventing a lawsuit against the paper. Also featured was Ainslie Pryor as his companion, Joel Smith, a reporter sent along with Holliday. Most of the stories involved cases of mistaken identity, or the innocent involvement of mild-mannered Holliday in international intrigue. Sharp-eyed viewers may have noticed a beardless Sebastian Cabot, who appeared in four episodes as M. Cerveaux, "The Brain of the Underworld."

HIS & HERS CBS

5 MARCH 1990–23 APRIL 1990; 2 JULY 1990–22 AUGUST 1990 Half-hour sitcom about a pair of newlywed marriage counselors who practiced together. With Martin Mull as Dr. Doug Lambert; Stephanie Faracy as his wife, Dr. Reggie Hewitt; Richard Kline as Doug's pal, lawyer Jeff Spector; Lisa Picotte as Mandy, Doug and Reggie's receptionist; Blake Soper as Doug's laconic teenage son, Noah, who lived with the newlyweds; and Blair Tefkin as Doug's teenage daughter, who lived with his ex-wife. Patricia Jones and Donald Reiker were the creators.

THE HISTORY OF ROCK 'N' ROLL SYNDICATED

1995 This ten-part documentary series on the evolution of rock and roll music was narrated by Gary Busey. See also Rock & Roll.

HIT MAN NBC

3 JANUARY 1983–1 APRIL 1983 Peter Tomarken hosted this complicated daytime game show, on which three contestants competed for the chance to take on the preceding day's champion. After the first round, a quiz based on a photo feature, the low-scoring contestant was eliminated; the remaining two players then faced the champion, and each was given a prescribed number of "hit men." Whenever a question was answered, one of the players lost a "hit man"—the last player left thus became the winner, and had the chance to play a special round for a top prize of $10,000.

THE HITCHHIKER HBO/USA

23 NOVEMBER 1983–21 DECEMBER 1988 (HBO); 6 JANUARY 1989–28 MARCH 1993 (USA) An often lurid anthology series of suspense tales, laced with graphic violence and (on the HBO episodes) female nudity. Nicholas Campbell and Page Fletcher appeared as the Hitchhiker, who introduced the episodes and provided commentary.

THE HOGAN FAMILY NBC/CBS

1 MARCH 1986–18 JUNE 1990 (NBC); 15 SEPTEMBER 1990–1 DECEMBER 1990 (CBS); 10 JULY 1991–20 JULY 1991 (CBS) This durable sitcom began life in 1986 as Valerie, starring Valerie Harper as Valerie Hogan, a mother coping with three boys while her airplane pilot husband was frequently out of town. After the 1986–1987 season Harper was fired as the result of a contract dispute, and the show carried on as Valerie's Family for one season before changing its title again, to The Hogan Family, in June 1988. Aside from Harper, the remainder of the cast has remained fairly stable: Josh Taylor as pilot Michael Hogan; Jason Bateman as eldest son David; Danny Ponce and Jeremy Licht as fraternal twins Willie and Mark; and Sandy Duncan (1987–1991) as Michael's divorced sister, school counselor Sandy Hogan, who moved into her brother's household to help raise the boys (it was explained that sister-in-law Valerie had died). Also featured were Edie McClurg as neighbor Patty Poole; Christine Ebersole (1986) as Valerie's pal Barbara Goodwin; Steve Witting as David's pal Burt Weems; and (occasionally) Willard Scott (of the Today show) as Patty's husband, Peter. In the fall of 1988 son David started college at Northwestern, but continued to live at home; by 1989 he had become active in the school's communications department. Lisa Rinna joined the cast early in 1990 as Annie, David's girlfriend. John Hillerman was featured during the 1990–1991 season as Michael and Sandy's father, Lloyd. The series is believed to be the first sitcom in which the word "condom" was used; the subject was discussed in a February 1987 episode, "Bad Timing."

After four and a half seasons on NBC, The Hogan Family switched to CBS in the fall of 1990. See also City.

HOGAN'S HEROES CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1965–4 JULY 1971 Set during World War II, this popular sitcom proved that a prisoner-of-war camp was as good a site as any for laughs. Featured were Bob Crane as Colonel Robert Hogan, the ranking American officer at Stalag 13, a German POW camp; Werner Klemperer as Colonel Wilhelm Klink, its inept commandant; John Banner as Sergeant Hans Schultz, Klink's chief aide; Robert Clary as Corporal Louis LeBeau, a French prisoner; Richard Dawson as Corporal Peter Newkirk, a British prisoner; Ivan Dixon (1965–1970) as Corporal James Kinchloe; Larry Hovis as Sergeant Andrew Carter; Kenneth Washington (1970–1971) as Corporal Richard Baker; Cynthia Lynn (1965–1966) as Klink's secretary, Helga; and Sigrid Valdis (1966–1970) as Klink's secretary, Hilda. Bernard Fein and Albert S. Ruddy created the series, and Ed Feldman produced it, for Bing Crosby Productions; there were 168 episodes. Ironically, John Banner, who played the Nazi Schultz, was actually Jewish, and Robert Clary, who played the imprisoned LeBeau, had been interned in Nazi concentration camps as a child.

HOLD 'ER NEWT ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1950–13 OCTOBER 1950; 26 JANUARY 1952–17 MAY 1952 A puppet show for kids, Hold 'Er Newt was first broadcast locally in June 1950 over WENR-TV in Chicago. In the fall of 1950 it enjoyed a brief Monday-through-Friday network run, and in 1952 it surfaced again on the network's Saturday morning schedule. Don Tennant wrote the show and provided the voice of Newton Figg, who ran a general store in a small town, Figg Center.

HOLD IT PLEASE CBS

8 MAY 1949–22 MAY 1949 Short-lived prime-time game show incorporating both charades and telephone calls to home viewers. The charades were performed by a panel of celebrities, which included Cloris Leachman, Mort Marshall, Bill McGraw, Max Showalter, and Evelyn Ward. Viewers who were telephoned could win a prize if they were able to identify a celebrity's picture which was partially covered. The series was hosted by Gil Fates, who was later the executive producer of several Goodson-Todman game shows, including What's My Line? and To Tell the Truth.

HOLD THAT NOTE NBC

22 JANUARY 1957–2 APRIL 1957 Bert Parks hosted this Tuesday-night musical quiz show, a midseason replacement for Parks's previous game show, Break the $250,000 Bank.

HOLIDAY HANDBOOK ABC

4 APRIL 1958–20 JUNE 1958 Half-hour travelogue.

HOLIDAY HOTEL ABC

23 MARCH 1950–28 JUNE 1951 A musical revue set at the Holiday Hotel in New York. Edward Everett Horton was the first host of the series and was succeeded by Don Ameche (both appeared as the hotel manager). Other regulars included Bill Harrington, Betty Brewer, June Graham, Don Sadler, Bob Dixon, the Bernie Green Orchestra, and the Charles Tate Dancers. See also Don Ameche Playhouse.

HOLIDAY LODGE CBS

27 JUNE 1961–8 OCTOBER 1961 This summer replacement for The Jack Benny Program starred a pair of Canadian comics, Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, as Johnny Miller and Frank Boone, recreation directors at the Holiday Lodge, somewhere in New York's Catskills. Also featured were Maureen Arthur as Dorothy Jackson, the desk clerk; Justice Watson as J. W. Harrington, the boss; and Charles Smith as Woodrow, the bellhop.

HOLLYWOOD JUNIOR CIRCUS NBC/ABC

25 MARCH 1951–1 JULY 1951 (NBC); 8 SEPTEMBER 1951–19 JANUARY 1952 (ABC) This circus show for kids was broadcast from Chicago, not Hollywood; the series was seen Sunday afternoons on NBC and Saturday mornings on ABC. Paul Barnes was the ringmaster. Produced by Bill Hyer; directed by George Byrne.

HOLLYWOOD OFF BEAT SYNDICATED/DUMONT/CBS

1952 (SYNDICATED); 7 NOVEMBER 1952–30 JANUARY 1953 (DUMONT); 16 JUNE 1953–11 AUGUST 1953 (CBS) Half-hour crime show starring Melvyn Douglas as Steve Randall, a former World War II intelligence agent who became a private eye after he was wrongfully disbarred from the practice of law. Marion Parsonnet produced and directed the series, which was also titled Steve Randall.

HOLLYWOOD OPENING NIGHT CBS/NBC

13 JULY 1951–28 MARCH 1952 (CBS); 6 OCTOBER 1952–23 MARCH 1953 (NBC) Half-hour dramatic anthology series. Among the stars who made their TV dramatic debuts on this West Coast series were Dorothy Lamour ("The Singing Years," 24 November 1952), Ethel Barrymore ("Mysterious Ways," 8 December 1952), and Gloria Swanson ("The Pattern," 16 February 1953).

THE HOLLYWOOD PALACE ABC

4 JANUARY 1964–7 FEBRUARY 1970 This hour-long variety series was a midseason replacement for The Jerry Lewis Show. The show was videotaped at the El Capitan Theater in Los Angeles, which was renamed The Hollywood Palace. Each week a different guest host introduced several acts. Bing Crosby hosted the premiere telecast; his guests included Bob Newhart, Bobby Van, Nancy Wilson, Mickey Rooney, and Gary Crosby. Other notable guest appearances included those by the Rolling Stones (in their first American TV appearance, 13 June 1964; Dean Martin hosted the show), Groucho Marx and Margaret Dumont (in her last TV appearance, 17 April 1965), and Fred Astaire and Rudolf Nureyev (2 October 1965). Executive producer: Nick Vanoff. Producer: Bill Harbach. Director: Grey Lockwood. Music: the Mitchell Ayres Orchestra (the show's theme was "Put on a Happy Face"). Raquel Welch was featured as the holder of the cards introducing the acts. Two series retrospectives were aired on ABC during the 1992–1993 season.

HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW SYNDICATED

1955 Conrad Nagel hosted this series on which previews of recently released motion pictures were shown.

HOLLYWOOD SCREEN TEST ABC

15 AUGUST 1948–18 MAY 1953 One of the first shows on the ABC network, Hollywood Screen Test offered young performers the chance to further their careers by appearing in dramatic stories with well-known stars. Neil Hamilton hosted the series during most of its run; Hurd Hatfield hosted during the 1950–1951 season. The show premiered on 15 April 1948 in Philadelphia.

THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES NBC/SYNDICATED

17 OCTOBER 1966–20 JUNE 1980 (NBC); 1972–1980; 1986–1989 (SYNDICATED) Durable game show featuring two contestants and a panel of nine celebrities. The contestants played tic-tac-toe, earning their *X*s and *O*s by stating whether a given celebrity had correctly answered a question (the celebrities were seated in a three-tiered box). Regular panelists over the years included Paul Lynde (occupant of the center square), Rose Marie, Cliff Arquette (as Charley Weaver), Wally Cox, John Davidson, George Gobel, and many others. The daytime version of the series began in 1966; a nighttime network version was seen in the spring of 1968 and the summer of 1969, and the syndicated version (televised evenings in most markets) premiered in 1972. Executive producers: Merrill Heatter and Bob Quigley. Announcer: Kenny Williams. The program reappeared on NBC in 1983 (see The Match Game/Hollywood Squares Hour). Peter Marshall hosted all the incarnations of the show between 1966 and 1983. In 1986 a new version was produced, which remained in production for three years. Hosted by John Davidson, it originally sported Joan Rivers in the center square; Shadoe Stevens took over the center spot in 1988.

HOME NBC
1 MARCH 1954–9 AUGUST 1957 Styled as a "women's magazine of the air," Home was an ambitious weekday series developed by Sylvester "Pat" Weaver and intended to be a logical extension of NBC's early-morning show, Today. It was also one of the first NBC programs to be broadcast in color (though not every day). Arlene Francis hosted the series, and, in keeping with Home's magazine format, was billed as editor in chief. In 1955 the group of contributing "editors" included Natalie Cole (fashion and beauty), Katherine Kinne (food), Will Peigelbeck (gardening and home repair), Dr. Ashley Montagu (family affairs), Dorsey Connors (Chicago editor), Esther von Waggoner Tutty (Washington editor), Dr. Leona Baumgartner (health), and Nancyanne Graham (home decorating). At other times the group included Eve Hunter (fashion and beauty), Poppy Cannon (food), Dr. Rose Franzblau (family affairs), and Sydney Smith (home decorating). Also appearing were announcer and sidekick Hugh Downs and singer Johnny Johnston. By 1956 a regular feature of the series, entitled "Hometown U.S.A.," was presented once each week and featured a remote pickup from the town so designated. At that time Fred Freed had become the show's supervising writer or "managing editor." See also The Arlene Francis Show; The Home Show.

HOME AGAIN WITH BOB VILA SYNDICATED
1990– After his involuntary departure from PBS's This Old House, Bob Vila became the host of this series on home remodeling and renovation. The half-hour series was later retitled Bob Vila's Home Again.

THE HOME COURT NBC
30 SEPTEMBER 1995– Unimaginative sitcom about a Chicago family court judge who was a single mom and attempted to preside over her four children. With Pamela Reed as Judge Sydney J. Solomon; Breckin Meyer as eldest son Mike, who recently quit college and returned home; Meghann Haldeman as daughter Neal; Robert Hy Gorman as middle son Marshall, who spent most of his time at his computer, surfing on the Internet; Phillip Van Dyke as youngest son Ellis, who had Attention Deficit Disorder; Charles Rocket as Sydney's goofy colleague, Judge Gil Fitzpatrick; and Meagen Fay as Sydney's worldly sister, Greer.

HOME FIRES NBC
24 JUNE 1992–18 JULY 1992 Bruce Paltrow, Tom Fontana, and John Tinker created this half-hour family sitcom, each episode of which began with a therapy session. With Michael Brandon as Ted Kramer; Kate Burton as Anne Kramer; Nicole Eggert as their eighteen-year-old, Libby; Jarrad Paul as their fourteen-year-old, Jessie; Alice Hirson as Nana, Anne's mother; and Norman Lloyd as the therapist.

HOME FREE ABC
31 MARCH 1993–28 APRIL 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a single mother and her kids who moved back in with mom. With Marian Mercer as Grace Bailey; Diana Canova as Grace's newly divorced daughter, Vanessa; Matthew Perry as Grace's son, Matthew, a reporter; Anndi McAfee as Vanessa's daughter, Abby; Scott McAfee as Vanessa's son, Lucas; Dan Schneider as Matthew's coworker, Walter Peters; Alan Oppenheimer as the editor, Mr. Brookstone; and Brooke Theiss as Laura, the photographer.

HOME IMPROVEMENT ABC
17 SEPTEMBER 1991– The most popular new show of the 1991–1992 season, Home Improvement was another of the many sitcoms which starred a standup comic. Tim Allen starred as Tim Taylor, a husband and father of three boys who hosted Tool Time, a home improvement program on a Detroit TV station. Taylor's solution to home repair problems was a simple one: "More power!" He believed that a souped-up appliance was always superior to a regular model, and that the biggest tools were meant to serve even the smallest jobs. At home Taylor fancied himself an expert on the sexes also, but in reality he didn't understand women; fortunately, his wife understood him. The rest of the cast included Patricia Richardson as Jill Taylor, Tim's wife, the one who really ran the house (she also worked part-time); Zachery Ty Bryan as eldest son Brad; Jonathan Taylor Thomas as middle son Randy; Taran Smith as youngest son Mark; Earl Hindman as Wilson, the wise next-door neighbor who offered sage advice to Tim on the battle between the sexes (in a clever gimmick, Wilson's full face was never seen; he was usually seen obscured by the stockade fence which separated his yard from the Taylors'; Wilson's first name was revealed also to be Wilson in a 1995 episode); Richard Karn as flannel-shirted Al Borland, Tim's burly assistant on Tool Time, the one who actually knew how to make home improvements but who was usually overshadowed by Taylor; Pamela Anderson (1991–1993) as Lisa, the "Tool Time Girl," who added glamor (and little else) to Taylor's show; and Debbe Dunning (1993– ) as Heidi, the new "Tool Time Girl." Charlie Robinson was added in the fall of 1995 as Tim's new boss, Bud Harper. Home Improvement made innovative use of optical wipes, using computer techniques to create humorous transitions between scenes.

The Taylor character was based on Tim Allen's standup comedy. After serving a brief federal prison sentence following a drug conviction in the 1970s, Allen resumed his comedy career. He began incorporating comments on men's passion for tools and motors into his routine. In 1989 Michael Eisner, head of Disney Studios, saw Allen's act and signed him. Allen headlined a Showtime comedy special, "Men Are Pigs," in 1990, and Home Improvement followed a year later. The series ended its first season at fifth place in the Nielsen ratings; it rose to third the following season, and to first place in 1993–1994. Reruns of the show were sold to local stations for broadcast in the fall of 1995; in an unusual programming move, the producers announced that some new episodes would be televised first among the rerun packages before airing on ABC.

HOME RUN DERBY SYNDICATED

1959–1961 Mark Scott hosted this half-hour filmed athletic contest. Each week two big league ballplayers competed head-to-head to see who could hit more home runs. Reruns of the series were resurrected briefly in the late 1980s by the ESPN cable network.

THE HOME SHOPPING GAME SHOW SYNDICATED

15 JUNE 1987–11 SEPTEMBER 1987 Bob Goen was the host of this short-lived attempt to combine a game show with the popular pastime of home shopping; viewers could participate by dialing an 800 number.

THE HOME SHOW ABC

18 JANUARY 1988–8 APRIL 1994 The title of NBC's pioneering daytime show was resurrected thirty years later for this daytime magazine-talk show. Originally a half-hour series, it expanded to a full hour as of 16 January 1989, when Ryan's Hope left ABC's lineup. Sandy Hill and Robb Weller were the original hosts; Weller later became the sole host. Gary Collins (who had hosted the similar Hour Magazine) succeeded Weller late in 1989, and in April 1990 Dana Fleming was named Collins's cohost. Like the old NBC show, the new version featured various "experts" who contributed regularly on such topics as home decorating, health, fitness, and the arts. Fleming was succeeded by Beth Ruyak in 1991, who was in turn succeeded by Sarah Purcell a year later. Cohosts Purcell and Collins received an unexpected scare on a September 1993 program, when a physician demonstrating immunizations accidentally used the same syringe on both of them.

HOMEFRONT ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1991–17 SEPTEMBER 1992; 9 MARCH 1993–26 APRIL 1993 Critically acclaimed hour dramatic series set in the town of River Run, Ohio, at the end of World War II. The continuing stories focused on the town's returning soldiers and their efforts to readjust to life at home. The large cast included Ken Jenkins as factory owner Mike Sloan, Sr.; Mimi Kennedy as his wife, Ruth Sloan; Giuliana

Santini as their daughter-in-law, Gina, the Italian war bride of their son who had been killed; Wendy Phillips as Ann Metcalf, who contracted polio; David Newsom as her son, Hank Metcalf; Kyle Chandler as Hank's younger brother, Jeff; Alexandra Wilson as Sarah Brewer, Hank's girlfriend, who had flirted with Jeff while Hank was overseas (Hank eventually married Sarah); Tammy Lauren as Ginger Szabo, Jeff's new girlfriend; Jessica Steen as Linda Metcalf, Hank and Jeff's sister; Harry O'Reilly as Charlie Hailey; Sammi Davis-Voss as his English war bride, Caroline Hailey; Sterling Macer, Jr., as black veteran Robert Davis; Dick Anthony Williams as his father, Abe Davis, the Sloan family's chauffeur; Hattie Winston as his mother, Gloria Davis, the Sloan family's maid; Montrose Hagins as Grandmother Davis; John Slattery as Al Kahn, who married Ann Metcalf; Robert Duncan McNeill as Bill Caswell; Kelly Rutherford as barmaid Judy Owen; John DiSanti as Sam; William G. Schilling (1993) as Barzizza, a sportswriter; and Jack Knight (1993) as Nadolski, a reporter.

HOMER BELL SYNDICATED

1955 Half-hour comedy-western, starring Gene Lockhart as Judge Homer Bell of Spring City. Also featured were Jane Moultrie as Maude, the housekeeper, and Mary Lee Dearring as Casey Bell, Homer's daughter.

HOMEROOM ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1989–17 DECEMBER 1989 A black cast was featured in this half-hour sitcom. With Darryl Sivad as Darryl Harper, fourth-grade teacher at an inner-city school; Penny Johnson as his wife, Virginia, a med student; Bill Cobbs as Virginia's dad (and the Harpers' landlord), Phil Drexler, a bus supervisor; Trent Cameron as Sam; Jahary Bennett as Devon; Billy Dee Willis as Donald; Claude Brooks as Anthony; and Daphne Lyn Jones as Lisa.

HOMETIME PBS

1987– Half-hour weekly show on home renovation and repair, cohosted by Dean Johnson with JoAnne Liebeler (1987–1991), Susanne Egli (1991–1993), and Robin Hartl (1993– ).

HOMETOWN CBS

22 AUGUST 1985–15 OCTOBER 1985 The 1983 film The Big Chill was the inspiration for this hour dramatic series about the lives of seven adults, all of whom had been college chums. With Jane Kaczmarek as Mary Newell Abbott, a former dancer; Franc Luz as bookstore owner Ben Abbott (Mary and Ben were married on the first episode, after living together for thirteen years); Andrew Rubin as rock star Christopher Springer; Margaret Whitton as Barbara Donnelly, an alcoholic divorcée just back from New York; John Bedford-Lloyd as college professor Peter Kinkaid; Christine Estabrook as Dr. Jane Parnell, a political scientist; Daniel Stern as Joey Nathan, a cook; Mickey Viso as Joey's son Dylan; Donna Vivino as Ben and Mary's daughter Tess; and Erin Leigh Peck as their daughter Jennifer. Like The Big Chill, Hometown also used original versions of 1960s pop music hits as background music. Created by Julie and Dinah Kirgo, the show suffered a steep ratings decline after its August premiere and vanished after eight weeks.

HOMEWOOD PBS

7 OCTOBER 1970–6 JANUARY 1971 Thirteen-week musical series, hosted by Charles Champlin.

HOMICIDE: LIFE ON THE STREET NBC

31 JANUARY 1993–31 MARCH 1993; 6 JANUARY 1994–27 JANUARY 1994; 14 OCTOBER 1994– Set in Baltimore, this gritty hour crime show was based on reporter David Simon's book, Homicide: A Year on the Killing Streets. It marked the first foray into television for film director Barry Levinson, who served as executive producer with Tom Fontana. Filmed largely on location, the show relied heavily on handheld camera work. The cast included Ned Beatty (1993–1995) as Detective Stanley Bolander;

Richard Belzer as Detective John Munch; Yaphet Kotto as the boss, Lieutenant Al Giardello; Melissa Leo as Detective Kay Howard; Daniel Baldwin (1993–1995) as Detective Beau Felton; Andre Braugher as Detective Frank Pembleton; Clark Johnson as Detective Meldrick Lewis; Jon Polito (1993–1994) as Detective Steve Crosetti; Kyle Secor as rookie Detective Tim Bayliss; and Isabella Hofmann (1994– ) as Lieutenant Megan Russert. Reed Diamond was added in the fall of 1995 as Detective Mike Kellerman, and Harlee McBride appeared as assistant medical examiner Alyssa Dyer.

HONDO ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1967–29 DECEMBER 1967 This Friday-night hour-long western perished opposite NBC's Star Trek. Set in the Arizona Territory in 1869, it starred Ralph Taeger as Hondo Lane, an agent for the U.S. Army; Noah Beery, Jr., as Buffalo Baker, his sidekick; Gary Clarke as Captain Richards, Hondo's commanding officer; Kathie Browne as Angie Dow, a widow (Hondo killed her husband); Buddy Foster as Johnny, Angie's young son; and Michael Pate as Vittoro, an Apache chief. Based on the 1953 film starring John Wayne, the television series was produced by Andrew Fenady.

HONESTLY, CELESTE! CBS

10 OCTOBER 1954–5 DECEMBER 1954 This half-hour sitcom was one of the first casualties of the 1954–1955 season. It starred Celeste Holm as Celeste Anders, a journalism teacher from a Midwestern college who decided to get a job as a reporter with a New York newspaper. Also featured were Scott McKay as her friend, Bob Wallace; Geoffrey Lumb as Bob's father, Mr. Wallace, editor of the paper; Mary Finney as Mary, Mr. Wallace's secretary; and Mike Kellin as Celeste's friend, Marty Gordon, an ex-gangster. When it became apparent early in the fall that the show was in trouble, a young writer named Norman Lear was called in to help out, but his efforts proved unsuccessful. One of the people Lear succeeded was another young writer, Larry Gelbart, who would later develop *M*A*S*H* for television.

HONEY WEST ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1965–2 SEPTEMBER 1966 Half-hour crime show starring Anne Francis as Honey West, a private eye who took over the business after her father's death. Also featured were John Ericson as her assistant, Sam Bolt; Irene Hervey as her Aunt Meg; and Bruce, her pet ocelot. Francis first appeared as Honey West in an episode of Burke's Law aired 21 April 1965. The series was produced by Four Star Films.

THE HONEYMOON RACE ABC

17 JULY 1967–1 DECEMBER 1967 Bill Malone hosted this daytime game show, produced in Florida, in which three couples went on a scavenger hunt in a supermarket. The show was a revamped version of Supermarket Sweep (see also that title).

THE HONEYMOONERS

See THE JACKIE GLEASON SHOW

HONG KONG ABC

28 SEPTEMBER 1960–20 SEPTEMBER 1961 A 20th Century-Fox adventure series set in the Far East. With Rod Taylor as Glenn Evans, an American journalist based in Hong Kong; Lloyd Bochner as Neil Campbell, Hong Kong's chief of police; Jerald Jann as Ling, Glenn's houseboy; Jack Kruschen as Tully, owner of The Golden Dragon, where Glenn hung out. In January 1961 Mai Tai Sing (who in real life was co-owner of a San Francisco lounge) joined the cast as Ching Mei, hostess at The Golden Dragon. Twenty-six episodes were filmed.

HONG KONG PHOOEY ABC/NBC

7 SEPTEMBER 1974–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 (ABC); 4 FEBRUARY 1978–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 (NBC); 8 SEPTEMBER 1979–3 NOVEMBER 1979 (NBC); 23 MAY 1981–5 SEPTEMBER 1981

(NBC) Hanna-Barbera cartoon series about a crime-fighting dog, Penrod Pooch, whose secret identity was that of Hong Kong Phooey. The voice of the lead character was supplied by Scatman Crothers. The series' second season on ABC consisted entirely of reruns, and reruns were again shown when the show popped up on NBC. Reruns were also seen on The Godzilla/Hong Kong Phooey Hour from November 1980 to May 1981.

HOOPERMAN ABC

23 SEPTEMBER 1987–22 MARCH 1989; 14 JUNE 1989–6 SEPTEMBER 1989 Half-hour dramedy from Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher about a San Francisco cop who owned an apartment building and a dog, Bijoux, both of which he had inherited from his landlady who was murdered in the first episode. With John Ritter as Detective Harry Hooperman; Barbara Bosson (who was married to Bochco in real life) as Captain C. Z. Stern; Clarence Felder as Inspector Bobo Pritzger; Felton Perry as Inspector Clarence McNeil; Joseph Gian as gay cop Rick Silardi; Sydney Walsh as Officer Mo DeMott, who constantly tried to seduce Silardi; Alix Elias as dispatcher Betty Bushkin; and Debrah Farentino as Susan Smith, the handyperson at Hooperman's apartment building with whom he had a relationship. In the fall of 1988 Susan became pregnant by Hooperman, but left town (and the series) after a miscarriage. Dan Lauria was occasionally seen as Lou Stern, C. Z.'s ex-husband. Bijoux, a Jack Russell terrier, was played by Britches.

HOOTENANNY ABC

6 APRIL 1963–12 SEPTEMBER 1964 Jack Linkletter hosted television's first folk music series, broadcast from a different college campus each week. Most of the "folk" music featured was of the commercial type, such as that of the Limeliters and the Chad Mitchell Trio; more controversial folk artists, such as Bob Dylan or Joan Baez, did not appear. According to Pete Seeger's book, The Incompleat Folksinger, the word "hootenanny" was coined by Woody Guthrie sometime in the 1940s.

HOPALONG CASSIDY NBC/SYNDICATED

24 JUNE 1949–23 DECEMBER 1951 (NBC); 1952–1954 (SYNDICATED) William Boyd first starred as Hopalong Cassidy, a western hero who dressed in black and rode a white horse, in sixty-six movie features filmed between 1935 and 1948. Boyd himself acquired the television rights to the films and edited the features into thirty- and sixty-minute segments; thus, he was in a position to offer a readily available source of action programming to the rapidly expanding postwar television station market. The films proved so popular that Boyd filmed an additional fifty-two episodes especially for TV in 1951–1952. Veteran character actor Edgar Buchanan costarred in these as Hoppy's sidekick, Red Connors.

HOPE & GLORIA NBC

9 MARCH 1995– A Kate & Allie for the mid-1990s, Hope & Gloria told the story of two neighbors in a Pittsburgh apartment building who became friends. With Cynthia Stevenson as newly separated Hope Davidson, the mild-mannered producer of a local TV talk show; Jessica Lundy as Gloria Utz, a brassy hairdresser divorced twice from the same man (and now working on the TV show, thanks to Hope); Enrico Colantoni as Gloria's first and second ex, Louis Utz; Alan Thicke as Dennis Dupree, thickheaded host of Hope's TV show; Robert Garrova as Sonny, son of Louis and Gloria; and JoNell Kennedy as Sheryl, another staffer on the TV show.

HOPPITY HOOPER ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1964–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 Cartoon series with a frog (Hoppity Hooper), a bear (Fillmore), and a fox (Uncle Waldo).

THE HORACE HEIDT SHOW CBS

2 OCTOBER 1950–24 SEPTEMBER 1951 Bandleader Horace Heidt, who hosted several radio programs featuring talented amateurs and young professionals, brought the same concept to television in this Monday-night variety series. Heidt returned in 1955 to host another series: see Show Wagon.

HORIZONS ABC

2 DECEMBER 1951–30 DECEMBER 1951; 18 MAY 1952–29 JUNE 1952; 12 DECEMBER 1954–6 MARCH 1955 The 1951 and 1952 editions of Horizons were half-hour lectures on selected topics; each lecture was titled "The Future of..." The 1954–1955 version of Horizons was a fifteen-minute series which focused on medicine. See also Medical Horizons.

HOT CITY SYNDICATED

1978 Los Angeles-based disco dance show, hosted by Shadoe Stevens, with celebrity guest hosts. Ed Warren was the executive producer of the hour series, Kip Walton the producer and director.

HOT COUNTRY NIGHTS NBC

24 NOVEMBER 1991–8 MARCH 1992 Prime time country music show from Dick Clark Productions, with no regular host.

HOT DOG NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 A highly acclaimed Saturday show for kids which explained how things are made; Jonathan Winters, Woody Allen, and Jo Anne Worley did the explaining. Created by Frank Buxton, Hot Dog had Lee Mendelson as executive producer. The show won a Peabody Award in 1971.

HOT FUDGE SHOW SYNDICATED

1976–1980 Educational series for children featuring puppets and live actors. Produced by Barry Hurd and Bob Elnicky; distributed by Lexington Broadcast Services.

HOT HERO SANDWICH NBC

10 NOVEMBER 1979–5 APRIL 1980 Hour variety series for children, broadcast at noon on Saturdays; interviews, sketches, and musical selections were the principal components of the show. Regulars include Paul O'Keefe, Denny Dillon, Matt McCoy, Jarett SmithWrick, L. Michael Craig, Nan-Lynn Nelson, and Vicky Dawson. Bruce Hart and Carole Hart created the show and are its executive producers.

HOT HITVIDEO SYNDICATED

1984–1985 One of several prepackaged series that presented contemporary rock videos.

HOT L BALTIMORE ABC

24 JANUARY 1975–6 JUNE 1975 The first Norman Lear series that ABC picked up was an unsuccessful one. Based on the play by Lanford Wilson, it was set in a rundown hotel and featured an assortment of seedy characters: Conchata Ferrell as April Green, hooker with a heart of gold; Jeannie Linero as Suzy Marta Rocket, hooker with a heart of silver; James Cromwell as Bill Lewis, the desk clerk; Richard Masur as Clifford Ainsley, the manager; Al Freeman, Jr., as Charles Bingham; Lee Bergere as George, an apparent homosexual; Henry Calvert as Gordon, his roommate; Gloria LeRoy as Millie, a waitress; Stan Gottlieb as Mr. Morse, a mean old man; Robin Wilson as Jackie; and Charlotte Rae as Mrs. Bellotti. Executive producer: Rod Parker. Producers: Ron Clark and Gene Marcione.

HOT OFF THE WIRE

See THE JIM BACKUS SHOW

HOT POTATO NBC

23 JANUARY 1984–29 JUNE 1984 Another of the many daytime game shows hosted by Bill Cullen, this one was similar in format to Family Feud. It featured two teams of three, each competing to name the most popular responses to a question previously asked of a group of people.

HOT PURSUIT NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1984–28 DECEMBER 1984 This hour adventure series could perhaps have been dubbed Mr. and Mrs. Fugitive. It starred Kerrie Keane and Eric Pierpoint as auto engineer Kate Wyler and her husband, veterinarian Jim Wyler. Kate was designing a new auto for her employer, Victor Modrian; jealous of the attention Victor was lavishing on Kate, Victor's wife Estelle (played by Dina Merrill) killed him, but hired a double of Kate (also played by Kerrie Keane) in order to frame Kate. Jim freed Kate on her way to prison, and together they searched for the imposter, while being pursued by Estelle's henchman, Alec Shaw (Mike Preston). Having lost an eye in a fight with Jim, Alec had his own reason to track the Wylers down. He never succeeded, however, nor did Jim and Kate find the imposter. Hot Pursuit was pulled in midseason and was NBC's lowest-rated prime-time series of the 1984–1985 season.

THE HOT SEAT ABC

18 APRIL 1952–29 DECEMBER 1952 Stuart Scheftel interviewed newsmakers on this half-hour series. James A. Farley and Harold Stassen were Scheftel's guests on the fall premiere.

THE HOT SEAT ABC

12 JULY 1976–22 OCTOBER 1976 Jim Peck hosted this daytime game show, which involved a type of lie detector. Two married couples competed; one spouse was hooked up to a machine that measured chemical changes in the skin as he or she responded to questions. The other spouse tried to predict the nature of the forthcoming response. Developed by Merrill Heatter and Bob Quigley, the show's executive producer was Robert Noah.

HOT SHOTS CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1986–23 DECEMBER 1986; 29 JULY 1987–9 SEPTEMBER 1987 Another of the Canadian-produced shows that dotted CBS's late-night schedule, Hot Shots chronicled the adventures of two reporters for Crime World magazine. With Dorothy Parke as Amanda Reed; Booth Savage as Jason West; Paul Burke as former police commissioner Nicholas Broderick, now the publisher; Heather Smith as Cleo, Broderick's secretary; Clark Johnson as researcher Al Pendleton; and Mung Ling as the receptionist.

HOT STREAK ABC

6 JANUARY 1986–4 APRIL 1986 On this daytime game show, two teams attempted to communicate secret words to each other for a top prize that could reach $60,000. Bruce Forsythe was the host.

HOT WHEELS ABC

6 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 Saturday-morning cartoon show about a group of teenage racers who, it was emphasized, were "responsible" young drivers.

HOTEL ABC

21 SEPTEMBER 1983–6 AUGUST 1988 One of the early hits of the 1983–1984 season, Hotel was essentially a land-based Love Boat, with the stories of several guests at San Francisco's opulent St. Gregory Hotel threaded together each week. Bette Davis had been signed to play her first TV series role, owner Laura Trent, but, because of illness, appeared only in the premiere. Anne Baxter (who, ironically, costarred with Davis in the 1950 film All About Eve) took over as her sister-in-law, Victoria Cabot, who ran the St. Gregory in her absence. James Brolin played Peter McDermott, the manager; Connie Sellecca was Christine Francis, the assistant manager, who gradually became romantically involved with McDermott. Other regulars included Shea Farrell (1983–1986) as Mark Danning, director of guest relations; Nathan Cook as ex-con Billy Griffin, chief of security; Heidi Bohay (1983–1987) as desk clerk Megan Kendall; Michael Spound (1983–1987) as her new husband, bellhop Dave Kendall (Bohay and Spound themselves were married in 1988); and Shari Belafonte-Harper (daughter of Harry Belafonte) as Julie Gillette, manager of hotel information. Anne Baxter died in December 1985; as a tribute, a portrait of her character was hung in the St. Gregory lobby. It was revealed that Victoria Cabot left a 51% share of the hotel to McDermott, who named Christine Francis manager and Megan Kendall assistant manager, and 49% to Cabot's family. Stories on the 1986–1987 focused on the resulting power struggle, and featured Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., (fall 1986) as Charles Cabot, and Michelle Phillips (fall 1986) as Elizabeth Bradshaw Cabot, the new concierge. Three new regulars joined for the series' final season in the fall of 1987: Valerie Landsburg as desk clerk Cheryl Dolan; Susan Walters as desk clerk Ryan Thomas; and Ty Miller as bellhop Eric Lloyd. The series was based on Arthur Hailey's popular novel, which had been made into a movie in 1967. Aaron Spelling and Douglas S. Cramer were the executive producers of the series; Henry Mancini composed the theme. Exteriors were filmed at San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

HOTEL BROADWAY DUMONT

20 JANUARY 1949–17 MARCH 1949 Half-hour variety series hosted by Jeri Blanchard, produced and directed by Harvey Marlowe.

HOTEL COSMOPOLITAN CBS

19 AUGUST 1957–11 APRIL 1958 This daytime serial replaced Valiant Lady. Set in a New York hotel (The Cosmopolitan), it presented episodic, rather than continuing, dramas. Donald Woods (appearing as himself) hosted the series.

HOTEL DE PAREE CBS

2 OCTOBER 1959–23 SEPTEMBER 1960 In this unlikely titled western, Earl Holliman starred as Sundance, a man recently released from prison who became a partner in a hotel in Georgetown, Colorado. The principal gimmick in the show involved Sundance's hat: the hatband was decorated with shiny oval discs that Sundance could use to temporarily blind his adversaries. Also featured were Jeanette Nolan as Annette Devereaux, his partner in the hotel; Judi Meredith as Monique Devereaux, her niece and Sundance's romantic interest; and Strother Martin as Sundance's pal, Aaron.

HOTEL MALIBU CBS

4 AUGUST 1994–8 SEPTEMBER 1994 Hour continuing drama about a family-owned hotel. The cast included Joanna Cassidy as Ellie Mayfield, the widowed owner of the hotel; Cheryl Pollak as her daughter, Stevie, who returned home after quitting her job; John Dye as Ellie's son, Jack, who was plotting to sell the property; Harry O'Reilly as bartender Harry Radzimski; Romy Whitehall as Nancy, Harry's scheming sister; Jennifer Lopez as new bartender Melinda Lopez; and Pepe Serna as Melinda's strict father, Sal. See also Second Chances.

HOTHOUSE ABC

30 JUNE 1988–25 AUGUST 1988 An hour dramatic series set at the Garrison Medical Center, a New England psychiatric clinic nicknamed the "Hothouse." The cast included Josef Sommer as Dr. Sam Garrison, head of the facility; Tony Soper as his son, Matt; Alexis Smith as Lily Shannon, Sam's ex-wife; Susan Diol as Claudia, Matt's wife; Art Malik as Dr. Ved Lahari; Michael Learned as Dr. Marie Teller; Ann-Sara Matthews as Abby; Michael Jeter as Art; and Katherine Borowitz as Sam's daughter, Dr. Issy Schrader. Jay Presson Allen created the series, which came and went with little fanfare; ABC, reportedly dissatisfied with the show after two pilots and five episodes, decided to run it Thursdays at 10 P.M., opposite NBC's L. A. Law.

THE HOUNDCATS NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1972–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Saturday-morning cartoon show about a cat-and-dog team of secret agents.

HOUR MAGAZINE SYNDICATED

1980–1988 This hour informational series was cohosted by Gary Collins and Pat Mitchell during its first two seasons, by Collins and Bonnie Strauss until 1985, and thereafter by Collins and celebrity guest hosts.

HOUR OF POWER SYNDICATED

1970– Religious series videotaped at the Garden Grove Community Church in California. Four ministers originally appeared: Raymond Beckering, Calvin Rynbrandt, Robert H. Schuller, and Kenneth Van Wyk. Schuller eventually took over as the sole minister, and the show was broadcast from his opulent Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove.

THE HOUR OF ST. FRANCIS SYNDICATED

1961 Half-hour religious show that featured dramatizations of moral questions. It was produced in Los Angeles by four Franciscan fathers: Fr. Hugh Noonan, Fr. Edward Henriques, Fr. Terence Cronin, and Fr. Carl Holtsnider.

HOUSE CALLS CBS

17 DECEMBER 1979–13 SEPTEMBER 1982 Kensington General Hospital was the site of this half-hour sitcom, with Wayne Rogers as Dr. Charley Michaels, a free-spirited physician; Lynn Redgrave (1979–1981) as Ann Anderson, the new assistant administrator, with whom Charley became involved; David Wayne as Dr. Amos Wetherby, the semi-senile chief of surgery; Ray Buktenica as Dr. Norman Solomon; Aneta Corsaut as Head Nurse Bradley; Deedy Peters as dotty Mrs. Phipps, the "gray lady" volunteer; and Mark L. Taylor as Conrad Peckler, Kensington's humorless administrator. Lynn Redgrave appeared in the first eight episodes of the 1981–1982 season, during which Charley proposed to Ann (all eight programs were filmed before a 1981 writers' strike). Redgrave then locked horns with House Calls's producers. The principal dispute was about money, but a minor squabble erupted over Redgrave's desire to breastfeed her baby on the set. In any event, Redgrave was dropped from the show (she showed up in another sitcom, Teachers Only, later that season). Sharon Gless replaced her, as assistant administrator Jane Jeffreys, on 4 January 1982.

HOUSE OF BUGGIN' FOX

8 JANUARY 1995–26 FEBRUARY 1995; 9 APRIL 1995–23 APRIL 1995 Short-lived half-hour comedy sketch show, starring Latin comedian John Leguizamo, with Jorge Luis Abreu, Waleska Coindet, Tammi Cubilette, Yelba Osorio, Sixto Ramos, and Luis Guzman. Leguizamo had previously turned his one-man stage show into a comedy special, "Spic-O-Rama," broadcast 15 May 1993 on HBO.

THE HOUSE ON HIGH STREET NBC

28 SEPTEMBER 1959–5 FEBRUARY 1960 One of the first daytime serials to be videotaped, The House on High Street presented three- to five-part stories about divorce and juvenile delinquency, ostensibly based on actual case histories. Continuity was provided by Philip Abbott, who played caseworker John Collier. Produced in New York, the series was directed by Lela Swift and written under the supervision of Jim Elward.

HOW DO YOU RATE CBS

31 MARCH 1958–26 JUNE 1958 Tom Reddy hosted this daytime game show on which a male and a female contestant competed against each other in tests of intelligence and problem solving. A machine called an "Aptigraph" was also used during the contest. The show was seen Monday through Thursday; on Friday the hour-long Garry Moore Show took over the time slot.

HOW THE WEST WAS WON ABC

12 FEBRUARY 1978–23 APRIL 1979 This ambitious western, based loosely on the 1962 M-G-M film, began as a made-for-TV movie entitled The Macahans, which was aired 19 January 1976. In 1977 a six-hour sequel, entitled How the West Was Won, was broadcast, and in 1978 twenty more hours were presented. The series told the saga of the Macahan clan, several generations of hardy pioneers. Principal players in the 1978 edition included James Arness as Zeb Macahan, former Cavalry scout; Bruce Boxleitner as Luke Macahan, his nephew, an army deserter; Kathryn Holcomb as Laura Macahan; Fionnula Flanagan as Molly Culhane, sister of Zeb's late wife; William Kirby Cullen as Jed Macahan; and Vicki Schreck as Jessie Macahan. John Mantley, who had previously worked with Arness as Gunsmoke's last executive producer, was executive producer of The Macahans and How the West Was Won. The 1978 series was produced by John G. Stephens and directed by Vincent and Bernard McEveety.

HOW TO CBS

12 JULY 1951–27 AUGUST 1951 A satire on panel shows, How To was hosted by humorist Roger Price. The panel—Anita Martell, Stanley Andrews, and Leonard Stern—suggested unusual solutions to problems posed by contestants. Dick Linkroum and Larry Berns produced the half-hour prime-time show.

HOW TO MARRY A MILLIONAIRE SYNDICATED

1958–1959 Situation comedy based on the 1953 film (which had starred Marilyn Monroe, Betty Grable, and Lauren Bacall) about three New York career girls, each looking for a wealthy and eligible man. The TV version starred Barbara Eden as Loco Jones, a model; Merry Anders as Michelle (Mike) Page, a secretary; Lori Nelson (1958) as Greta Lindquist, secretary to a stockbroker; and Lisa Gaye (1959) as Gwen Laurel, also a secretary. Produced by 20th Century-Fox.

HOW TO SURVIVE A MARRIAGE NBC

7 JANUARY 1974–18 APRIL 1975 This fairly controversial daytime serial stressed the problems of coping with divorce and widowhood. It premiered with a ninety-minute episode which featured an explicit bedroom scene between a husband and his mistress. Principal players included: Jennifer Harmon as Chris Kirby, whose marriage was on the rocks; Michael Landrum and Ken Kercheval as Larry Kirby, her philandering husband; Lynn Lowry as Sandra Henderson, Larry's mistress; Rosemary Prinz as Dr. Julie Franklin, a liberated psychiatrist who advised many of the other characters; Fran Brill as Fran Bachman, who became a widow; Allan Miller as her husband, David Bachman; Joan Copeland as Monica Courtland; Peter Brandon as Terry Courtland; Steve Elmore and Berkeley Harris as lawyer Peter Willis; Tricia O'Neil as Joan Willis; Suzanne Davidson as Lori Kirby; Paul Vincent as Dr. Charles Maynard; Armand Assante as Johnny McGhee; and Lauren White as Maria McGhee. The series was created by Anne Howard Bailey, though NBC daytime programming chief Lin Bolen also helped formulate it. Allen Potter was the first producer; he was succeeded by Peter Andrews.

HOW'D THEY DO THAT? CBS

10 MARCH 1993–12 MAY 1993 Pat O'Brien and Dorothy Lucey cohosted this light non-fiction prime-time series which resembled such older reality shows as NBC's Real People. The series featured a studio audience and presented short segments on interesting persons and other topics. Following its departure from CBS's schedule in May 1993, the series popped up sporadically to fill holes in the network lineup.

HOWDY DOODY NBC/SYNDICATED

27 DECEMBER 1947–30 SEPTEMBER 1960 (NBC); 1976 (SYNDICATED) Television's first popular kids' show premiered late in 1947 and exited thirteen years—and 2,343 performances—later. It was brought to TV by Bob Smith, a onetime singer who began hosting a kids' radio show, Triple B Ranch, in New York in 1945. One of the characters Smith created on that show, Elmer, regularly introduced himself with the phrase, "Well, howdy doody!" The character was popular with Smith's young listeners, and when Smith convinced NBC to introduce a puppet show on television, the newly created marionette was named Howdy Doody. The original puppet, crafted by Frank Paris, bore little resemblance to the freckled, plaid-shirted Howdy that most viewers fondly recall. The first Howdy, together with his maker, departed from the show after only a few weeks when puppeteer Paris became enmeshed in contractual difficulties with NBC. Some months later a new Howdy, designed by two artists who had worked at Walt Disney Studios, appeared; it was explained that Howdy, who was then running for the office of president of All the Boys and Girls (1948 was, after all, a Presidential election year), had undergone "plastic" surgery.

At first Howdy and his friends were seen only once a week for an hour; the show was then titled Puppet Playhouse. After experimenting with a thrice-weekly format, the show was seen Mondays through Fridays for a half hour beginning 15 August 1948. From the outset the show was set in Doodyville, a circus town populated by an assortment of puppets and people (the circus setting obviously enabled characters to come and go with relative ease). Each day an audience of children sat in the bleachers, an area known as the "Peanut Gallery." A typical day's activities might have included a silent film short, a song or two, some chitchat, and a running story involving the citizens of Doodyville. By 1948 Bob Smith, who had previously been called "Mr. Smith" by the other characters, became known as "Buffalo Bob"; he was so named by the Sycapoose Indians, a friendly tribe which lived near town (in real life, Smith had been born in Buffalo; N.Y.). Buffalo Bob's principal assistant, and sometime nemesis, was a voiceless clown named Clarabell, who honked a horn attached to his belt and carried a seltzer bottle. Clarabell was first played by Bob Keeshan, an NBC staffer whose jobs included handing props to Buffalo Bob; it was decided that since Keeshan appeared on camera, he should be costumed, and thus the Clarabell character was created. For a short time Keeshan also played Oscar, a professorial chap; when Keeshan left the series in 1953 to host his own local show (in 1955 he returned to network TV as Captain Kangaroo), he was replaced by Bobby Nicholson. Nicholson later switched roles to play Cornelius Cobb, Doodyville's storekeeper, and Lew Anderson took over as Clarabell. Other humans included: Chief Thunderthud, an Indian chief who frequently shouted "Kowabunga!" (played by Bill LeCornec); Princess Summerfall Winterspring, a beautiful Indian princess (the character first appeared as a puppet), played by Judy Tyler (who died in an auto accident in 1957) and briefly by Linda Marsh; Bison Bill, who filled in for Buffalo Bob when the latter was ill or on vacation, played by Ted Brown; and Ugly Sam, a wrestler, played by Dayton Allen.

Howdy Doody, of course, was the star puppet, but he had many wooden costars: Phineas T. Bluster, the misanthropic mayor of Doodyville who instigated most of the sinister plots on the show; Dilly Dally, a lame-brained carpenter who was usually duped by Mr. Bluster into doing his dirty work; Flub-a-Dub, a creature made up of parts of eight different animals; Captain Scuttlebutt, a salty seaman who piloted an old scow; John J. Fadoozle, a private eye; Don José Bluster and Hector Hamhock Bluster, Phineas's triplet brothers; Double Doody, Howdy's twin brother; and Heidi Doody, Howdy's sister. Voices were provided by Bob Smith (who prerecorded Howdy's voice and thus could sing duets with the puppet), Dayton Allen (Mr. Bluster), Bill LeCornec (Dilly Dally), and Alan Swift, among others.

The series continued to run five days a week until 1 June 1956. On 16 June 1956, it moved to Saturdays, where it remained for another four years. During that time other characters were added, including the puppet Sandra, a witch. The filmed adventures of Gumby, a movable clay figure, were also incorporated; in 1957 Gumby was given his own series (see The Gumby Show). Howdy Doody was one of the first regularly scheduled NBC shows to be shown in color; experimental broadcasts were conducted in the summer of 1953, and regular color-casting began 12 September 1955. Robert Muir was the producer of the series; Edward Kean wrote most of the shows between 1947 and 1955, and also wrote the lyrics to "It's Howdy Doody Time" and Clarabell's theme song. Rufus Rose was the chief puppeteer, assisted by Rhoda Mann and Dayton Allen. At the end of the final telecast, Clarabell sadly broke his series-long silence to say, "Goodbye, kids."

In 1970 Buffalo Bob toured the nostalgia circuit, appearing at colleges and universities. In 1976 he returned to host a new version of Howdy Doody, which failed to catch on with the children of the 1970s the way its predecessor had with another generation of youngsters almost thirty years earlier. The 1976 version also featured Bill LeCornec (who now played Nicholson Muir) and Marilyn Patch (as Happy Harmony). In November 1987 a two-hour syndicated special was telecast to celebrate Howdy's fortieth birthday.

HOWIE — CBS

1 JULY 1992–22 JULY 1992 Four-week prime time potpourri of standup comedy and sketches starring Howie Mandel, and taped at the Celebrity Theater in Anaheim, California.

HOW'S YOUR MOTHER-IN-LAW? — ABC

4 DECEMBER 1967–1 MARCH 1968 Chuck Barris created this daytime game show which featured three contestants—each of whom was a mother-in-law—and a panel of three comedians, each of whom joked about his or her mother-in-law; at the end of the show the panel tried to decide which of the contestants was the "best" mother-in-law. Wink Martindale presided over the festivities.

THE HUCKLEBERRY HOUND SHOW SYNDICATED

1958–1962 One of the first television cartoon series developed by William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, the founders of Hanna-Barbera Productions, Huckleberry Hound featured a lovable mutt who would try anything once. In addition to the title character, other segments included "Yogi Bear," the smarter-than-average Ursine-American who lived in Jellystone Park, and "Pixie and Dixie," a pair of mice pursued by the luckless feline Mr. Jinx. After Yogi Bear got his own series, a new segment was added: "Hokey Wolf," the adventures of a scheming lupine. The success of this series led to the creation of dozens of cartoon characters by Hanna-Barbera, the best known of which include Yogi Bear, Quickdraw McGraw, and the Flintstones. In 1960 Huckleberry Hound became the first TV cartoon series to win an Emmy Award.

THE HUDSON BROTHERS RAZZLE DAZZLE SHOW CBS

7 SEPTEMBER 1974–30 AUGUST 1975 After hosting their own prime-time summer series, the Hudson Brothers—Bill (the eldest), Mark, and Brett (the youngest)—next turned up as hosts of a live-action Saturday-morning show for kids. Joining them were Ted Zeigler, Billy Van, Peter Cullen, and Rod Hull. Produced by Chris Bearde and Allan Blye.

THE HUDSON BROTHERS SHOW CBS

31 JULY 1974–28 AUGUST 1974 This five-week variety series was a summer replacement for The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour; it was hosted by three musical brothers from Oregon—Bill, Mark, and Brett Hudson. Also featured were Ronny Graham, Gary Owens, Ron Hull, and Stephanie Edwards. Sonny and Cher's producers, Chris Bearde and Allan Blye, also produced this show.

HUDSON STREET ABC

19 SEPTEMBER 1995–17 FEBRUARY 1996 Half-hour sitcom in which a divorced Hoboken cop started a romance with a liberal newspaper reporter. With Tony Danza as the cop, Tony Canetti (Danza had previously played characters named Tony in Taxi and Who's the Boss); Lori Loughlin as the reporter, Melanie Clifford, who had recently been assigned the police beat; Jerry Adler as Tony's boss, Lieutenant Al Teischer; Christine Dunford as Officer Kirby McIntire; Tom Gallop as Officer Regelski; Jeffrey Anderson-Gunter as Winston, the Jamaican waiter at the restaurant frequented by Tony and Melanie, who subsequently became an undercover cop; Frankie J. Galasso as Mickey, Tony's son; and Shareen Mitchell as Tony's ex-wife, Lucy. Loughlin left the series in midseason.

HULK HOGAN'S ROCK 'N' WRESTLING! CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1985–13 JUNE 1987 Pro wrestler Hulk Hogan appeared in live and animated form on this hour Saturday morning show. In addition to the cartoons, the series featured live-action "comedic" wrestling segments.

HULL HIGH NBC

20 AUGUST 1990–14 OCTOBER 1990; 23 DECEMBER 1990–30 DECEMBER 1990 One of 1990's two musical series (Cop Rock was the other), this one was set at Cordell Hull High School. The cast included Nancy Valen as the curvaceous new English teacher, Donna Breedlove; Will Lyman as teacher John Deerborn; Mark Ballou as Mark Fuller; Cheryl Pollak as Camilla; Harold Pruett as new student Cody Rome; Kristin Dattilo as D. J.; Marty Belafsky as Louis Plumb; Gary Grubbs as Mr. Brawley; George Martin as the principal, Emery Dobosh; and Marshall Bell as Mr. Fancher. Trey Parker, Carl Anthony Payne, Bryan Anthony, and Phillip DeMarks appeared as the singing and dancing Hull High Devils. The series was directed by Kenny Ortega, who had choreographed the film Dirty Dancing. Stanley Clarke composed the original score.

HULLABALOO NBC

12 JANUARY 1965–29 AUGUST 1966 The relative success of ABC's Shindig prompted NBC to introduce its own rock-and-roll series in midseason. During the spring and summer of 1965, it was an hour-long show; in the fall it moved from Tuesday to Monday and was cut to a half hour. A different guest host was featured each week, together with several acts; a regular feature during the spring of 1965 was a filmed segment (in black and white, unlike the rest of the show) hosted by Brian Epstein, manager of the Beatles, who usually introduced a British act. Movement was supplied by the Hullabaloo Dancers, the best known of which was Lada Edmund, Jr. Gary Smith produced the series; David Winters was the choreographer. Additional music was supplied by the Peter Matz Orchestra.

THE HUMAN FACTOR CBS

16 APRIL 1992–28 MAY 1992 On this hour dramatic series a group of medical students learned about the intangible "human factor" in a course taught by a wise physician. With John Mahoney as sage Doctor Alec McMurtry; Kurt Deutsch as Matt Robbin; Eriq LaSalle as Michael Stoven; Melinda McGraw as Rebecca Travis; Matthew Ryan as Joe Murphy; Loryn Locklin as Gwen Byrne; and Larry Joshua as Dr. Binder.

THE HUMAN JUNGLE SYNDICATED

1964 This British import starred Herbert Lom as a psychiatrist, Dr. Roger Corder, and featured Michael Johnson as his assistant, Davis.

HUMAN TARGET ABC

20 JULY 1992–29 AUGUST 1992 Fanciful hour crime show starring Rick Springfield as Christopher Chance, a former Special Forces agent who became the "human target": he traded places with persons whose lives were in danger in order to capture their would-be killers. Chance used a high-tech airplane known as Blackwing in his work. Assisting him were Kirk Baltz as Philo Marsden; SaMi Chester as Jeff Carlyle; and Signy Coleman as Libby Page.

THE HUNTER CBS/NBC

3 JULY 1952–24 SEPTEMBER 1952 (CBS); 26 SEPTEMBER 1954–26 DECEMBER 1954 (NBC) Half-hour Cold War spy series. Barry Nelson starred as Bart Adams, American undercover agent, in the CBS version, and Keith Larsen played the role in the NBC version two years later. Filmed in New York, the series was produced by Ed Montagne and directed by Oscar Rudolph.

HUNTER CBS

18 FEBRUARY 1977–27 MAY 1977 A pallid adventure series which replaced Executive Suite. With James Franciscus as James Hunter, a man who ran a bookstore before being selected to be a member of a special team of government operatives; Linda Evans as Marty Shaw, his frequent partner; and Ralph Bellamy as Mr. Baker, his seldom-seen boss. Created by William Blinn.

HUNTER NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1984–30 AUGUST 1991 The third series of this title was a cop show from Stephen J. Cannell Productions. Originally scheduled on Fridays opposite CBS's Dallas, it performed poorly and barely escaped cancellation. After a switch to a Saturday time slot ratings began to improve; a change of producers and other refinements helped solidify Hunter's success. The series starred former pro footballer Fred Dryer and Stepfanie Kramer as Sergeant Rick Hunter and Sergeant Dee Dee McCall, partners at the Los Angeles Police Department; originally, Hunter was a tough, unorthodox cop who was the son of a mobster, and McCall, nicknamed "The Brass Cupcake," was his equally tough compatriot. During the first season, they worked mainly in gritty downtown L.A. For the second season, however, under new executive producer Roy Huggins (for whom Stephen Cannell had worked on The Rockford Files), the gangster backstory was abandoned, the setting was moved "uptown," and the relationship between Hunter and McCall was broadened; both became less tough. After six seasons, Kramer announced her decision to leave the series in 1990, in part to pursue a musical career; in a two-part finale at the end of the season, McCall married and left the force. Darlanne Flugel, as Officer Joanne Malinski, became Hunter's new partner in the fall of 1990, as Hunter transferred to the Metro Division. Malinski was killed off in midseason, and Lauren Lane and Courtney Barilla joined the cast as Sergeant Chris Novak and her young daughter, Allison.

Other regulars included Arthur Rosenberg (fall 1984) as the boss, Captain Lester Cain; John Amos (1984–1985) as the next boss, Captain Dolan; Bruce Davison (1985–1986) as boss Captain Wyler; Charles Hallahan (1986–1991) as boss Captain Charlie Devane; James Whitmore, Jr., (1984–1986) as Sergeant Bernie Terwilliger; and Garrett Morris (1986–1991) as streetwise informant Sporty James. Dryer and Hallahan reprised their roles in a made-for-TV movie, "The Return of Hunter" (NBC, 30 April 1995).

HUSBANDS, WIVES & LOVERS CBS

10 MARCH 1978–30 JUNE 1978 Southern California was the setting for this hour-long comedy series about five contemporary couples. The series had a continuing story line, which began with the announcement by one of the couples (the Willises) of their impending separation. Featured were Cynthia Harris as Paula Zuckerman; Stephen Pearlman as her husband, Murray Zuckerman, a traveling salesman; Lynne Marie Stewart as Joy Bellini; Eddie Barth as her formerly married husband, Harry Bellini, a sanitation removal magnate; Ron Rifkin as Ron Willis, a dentist; Jesse Welles as his wife, Helene Willis; Charles Siebert as lawyer Dixon Fielding; Claudette Nevins as his wife, Courtney Fielding; Mark Lonow as Harry's younger brother, Lennie Bellini; and Randee Heller as Rita, the woman who lived with Lennie and managed "Lennie's Denim Boutique" with him. Hal Dresner was the executive producer, and Don Van Atta the producer for 20th Century-Fox Television.

I AM THE LAW SYNDICATED

1953 Low-budget cop show, starring George Raft (who usually played gangsters in the movies) as Lieutenant George Kirby of the New York Police Department. Executive producer: Pat Costello (brother of Lou Costello). Produced and directed by Jean Yarborough.

I BELIEVE IN MIRACLES SYNDICATED

1966–1976 Half-hour religious program hosted by faith healer Kathryn Kuhlman. Most of the guests were persons who had been cured by Kuhlman. Singer Jimmy McDonald was also a regular.

I COVER TIMES SQUARE ABC

5 OCTOBER 1950–11 JANUARY 1951 Half-hour crime show, starring Harold Huber as newspaper columnist Johnny Warren.

I DREAM OF JEANNIE NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1965–1 SEPTEMBER 1970 Half-hour sitcom about an Air Force astronaut who, after a crash landing on an uninhabited island, uncorked a bottle and thereby released a beautiful genie named Jeannie. Though popular during its original run and later in syndication, the show was sexist when judged by current standards—Jeannie was always the "slave," and the astronaut the "master." The series starred Barbara Eden as Jeannie (and, occasionally, as Jeannie's mischievous sister); Larry Hagman as Captain (later Major) Tony Nelson, the lucky astronaut; Bill Daily as Captain Roger Healey, Tony's friend, who also knew of Jeannie's existence and magical powers; Hayden Rorke as Colonel Alfred Bellows, a NASA psychiatrist; Emmaline Henry as his wife, Amanda Bellows; and Barton MacLane as General Martin Peterson. During the series' first three seasons, Jeannie and Tony apparently enjoyed a platonic relationship; in the fall of 1969 they were married. In a few of the later episodes Farrah Fawcett could be seen—these were among her first TV appearances. Sidney Sheldon was the creator and executive producer of the series for Screen Gems. The first season's episodes were filmed in black and white; the remainder of the 139 shows were broadcast in color. In 1973 a cartoon sequel appeared on Saturday mornings (see Jeannie), and in 1983 another prime-time sitcom was introduced with a genie as its central character (see Just Our Luck). A TV-movie sequel surfaced on 20 October 1985. "I Dream of Jeannie: Fifteen Years Later" reunited Barbara Eden and Bill Daily from the original cast; Wayne Rogers played Tony (it would have been incongruous for Larry Hagman, now famous as Dallas's J. R. Ewing, to have returned). For the first time ever, viewers were able to see Jeannie's navel, which had always been covered by high-waisted harem pants in the series. Eden and Daily teamed up for a second TV-movie, "I Still Dream of Jeannie," which ran on NBC 20 October 1991.

I HAD THREE WIVES CBS

14 AUGUST 1985–13 SEPTEMBER 1985 A light detective series about a private eye who enlisted the help of his three ex-wives on his cases. With Victor Garber as Jackson Beaudine; Maggie Cooper as ex number one, Mary Parker, an attorney; Shanna Reed as ex number two, Liz, a journalist; Teri Copley as ex number three, Sam, an actress and stuntwoman; David Faustino as Andrew Beaudine, son of Victor and Mary; and Luis Avalos as Lieutenant Gomez.

I LED THREE LIVES SYNDICATED

1953–1956 This well-known counterespionage series was based on the real-life adventures of Herbert A. Philbrick, who wrote a best-selling book about his life as a Boston advertising executive by day, as a member of the American Communist Party by night, and as an undercover agent for the FBI after hours. Richard Carlson starred as Philbrick, with Virginia Stefan as his wife, Ann.

I LOVE LUCY CBS

15 OCTOBER 1951–24 JUNE 1957

THE LUCY-DESI COMEDY HOUR CBS

Desi Arnaz emigrated to Miami from his native Cuba in 1933, the same year that Lucille Ball headed toward Hollywood after a luckless stay in New York. Arnaz drifted into music, landed a job with Xavier Cugat's orchestra, and led his own band before going to Hollywood in 1940 to repeat his stage role in the filmed version of Too Many Girls. He met Lucille Ball on the set of the film, and the two were married a few months later. Arnaz appeared in one or two more films before resuming his career as a bandleader, while Lucille Ball continued her film career. By the end of the decade she was starring in a radio sitcom, My Favorite Husband, opposite Richard Denning. Its sponsor wanted to take the show to television with the same cast, but Lucy wanted Desi to be her TV costar. The two decided to produce a pilot film, which was the beginning of the I Love Lucy series.

The film was made early in 1951. It was directed by Ralph Levy and written by Jess Oppenheimer (My Favorite Husband's head writer and producer), and Madelyn Pugh and Bob Carroll (My Favorite Husband's writers). Thought to have been lost, the pilot film surfaced forty years later in the hands of the widow of Pepito the clown, who had been featured in it; CBS broadcast it as part of a special program on 30 April 1990. In the film Lucy and Desi played Lucy and Larry Lopez; he was a bandleader, she a housewife who ended up on stage with her husband. There were no neighbors on the show. The script incorporated some of the vaudeville routines that the two had worked up during the preceding year. The Milton Biow advertising agency showed interest in the concept while Oppenheimer, Pugh, and Carroll began to refine it: Desi would now play Ricky Ricardo, a not-too-successful bandleader working in New York, and Lucy would be Lucy Ricardo, a talentless housewife ever hopeful of breaking into showbiz. The Ricardos would live in a small apartment on East 68th Street, above Fred and Ethel Mertz, their friends (and their landlords). Lucy had originally wanted Gale Gordon and Bea Benaderet, both of whom had been featured on My Favorite Husband, to play the Mertzes; Desi, however, decided to hire William Frawley, a sixty-four-year-old character actor with a reputation as a two-fisted drinker, after Frawley suggested himself for the part of Fred. Vivian Vance, a character actress with vaudeville, Broadway, and movie experience, was suggested for the Ethel part by Marc Daniels, who would direct the first season's shows. The casting was inspired; though Frawley cared little for Vance, the two seemed perfect as the down-to-earth Mertzes—Frawley as Ricky's irascible but loyal comrade in the battle of the sexes, and Vance as Lucy's frequent conspirator in her incessant attempts to get on stage.

The new concept for I Love Lucy was sold to a sponsor, Philip Morris, and was scheduled on CBS. As neither Lucy nor Desi was willing to relocate in New York and as CBS refused to permit the show to be televised live from Hollywood (because Eastern viewers would thus have to watch poor quality kinescopes of the broadcasts, as there were not yet any coast-to-coast transmission lines), it was decided that the show would be filmed; that way, audiences throughout the country would be assured of high quality reception. The show would be produced by Desilu, the production company that Lucy and Desi had formed in 1950; Jess Oppenheimer was named producer and head writer, Pugh and Carroll the writers. Several mammoth production problems were overcome during the summer of 1951: a soundstage was located, leased, and remodeled to accommodate a studio audience, and, under the guidance of cinematographer Karl Freund, the stage itself was redesigned and the four-camera filming system was developed. A more personal preproduction uncertainty was resolved on 17 July 1951, when Lucy gave birth to their first child, Lucie Arnaz. Filming of I Love Lucy began in September. I Love Lucy premiered on 15 October 1951, to overwhelmingly favorable reviews (the premiere episode, "The Girls Want to Go to a Nightclub," was not the first filmed). By the end of the season it was a smash; the American Research Bureau announced in April 1952 that it had become the first TV program to have been seen in 10 million homes. In May of that year the show made the cover of Time magazine. I Love Lucy ended its first season third in the seasonal Nielsen ratings.

Production of the second season's show began earlier than usual because Lucy discovered that she was again expecting a child. Desi and Jess Oppenheimer convinced the sponsor to incorporate Lucy's pregnancy into the I Love Lucy story line (though the subject of pregnancy had been treated on other TV shows, such as One Man's Family, this was the first time that a pregnant woman had played a mother-to-be). Seven of the season's episodes would deal with Lucy's pregnancy; at CBS's insistence, however, the word "pregnant" was forbidden, though the word "expecting" was deemed acceptable. The episode concerning the birth of the baby (to be filmed in November) would be shown on 19 January 1953, and it was decided that the Ricardos' child would be a boy. Arnaz explained that the decision was made mainly for the benefit of little Lucie Arnaz. Her parents felt that Lucie might have been confused if the Ricardos' first child was, like her, a little girl.

The story line proved immensely popular, as I Love Lucy became television's top-ranked show, toppling Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts. As luck would have it, the Ricardos' baby boy (Little Ricky) was born on TV the same day that Lucille Ball gave birth to a son, Desi Arnaz IV (he would later be known as Desi Arnaz, Jr.). News of the events dominated the headlines, crowding out other stories such as the inauguration of President Eisenhower. In April of 1953 young Desi graced the cover of the first issue of TV Guide.

I Love Lucy remained the number-one show during its third and fourth seasons, surviving a brief brouhaha in the fall of 1953 when Walter Winchell broadcast the news that in 1936 Lucy had publicly announced her intention to vote Communist (she explained that she had made the statement solely to please her grandfather, and was exonerated by the House Un-American Activities Committee). The episodes of the second, third, and fourth seasons were all directed by William Asher, who would later produce Bewitched. Two casting changes occured: twins Michael and Joseph Mayer played Little Ricky from the fall of 1953 until the spring of 1956, replacing twins Richard and Ronald Simmons, and Jerry Hausner, who had occasionally played Ricky's agent, Jerry, left after the 1953–1954 season.

The series broadened its story line for the fourth season, as Ricky Ricardo landed a part in a movie; twenty-seven episodes of the 1954–1955 season chronicled the Ricardos' and Mertzes' move West. This story line lent itself to the use of big-name guest stars, a device not previously employed on the show. Among the big names who appeared that season were: Tennessee Ernie Ford (who first appeared at the end of the third season, and returned 24 January 1955 as the Ricardos began their trip), William Holden (7 February), Hedda Hopper (14 March), Rock Hudson (25 April), Harpo Marx (9 May, featuring a superb "mirror" scene with Lucy), and Richard Widmark (30 May).

For its fifth season, I Love Lucy acquired a new sponsor (General Foods), a new director (James V. Kern), and a second pair of writers (Bob Schiller and Bob Weiskopf). The use of guest stars continued, starting with John Wayne (in his TV dramatic debut, 10 October 1955). Half-way through the season, the Ricardos and the Mertzes were on the move again, this time to Europe. In the ratings race, the show finally slipped to second place, behind The $64,000 Question.

Producer Jess Oppenheimer left after the fifth season, and the series' final season began with the Ricardos and the Mertzes back in New York, where Ricky now owned his own nitery. Keith Thibodeaux, a six-year-old drummer whose professional name was Richard Keith, joined the cast as Little Ricky, replacing the Mayer twins. Bob Hope appeared as a guest star (1 October 1956), followed by Orson Welles (15 October) and Elsa Lanchester (12 November). William Asher returned to direct the final thirteen episodes, which depicted the Ricardos' move to suburban Connecticut (Mary Jane Croft and Frank Nelson were seen as their New England neighbors, Betty and Ralph Ramsey). In the last episode of I Love Lucy, "The Ricardos Dedicate a Statue," Lucie and Desi Arnaz, Jr., made their only appearances on the show. During its last season I Love Lucy reclaimed its number-one ranking (I Love Lucy and The Andy Griffith Show have been the only TV series to cease production after finishing first in the ratings; however, The Andy Griffith Show continued, without Griffith, as Mayberry R.F.D.). A total of 180 half-hour episodes were produced, though only 179 were made available for syndication; in his book, The Story of I Love Lucy, Bart Andrews noted that the episode of 24 December 1956, in which Fred bought a Christmas tree for Little Ricky, had never been rebroadcast. After a thirty-three-year hiatus, CBS located a print and aired the "lost episode" on 18 December 1989; it had not been put in the syndication package because of its Christmas theme and because it included several flashbacks to previous episodes.

From 1957 to 1960, thirteen hour-long shows were filmed, which were shown as The Lucy-Desi Comedy Hour and The Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz Show. The first five were telecast as specials during the 1957–1958 season, and the others were broadcast during the Desilu Playhouse time slot. The first of these, "Lucy Takes a Cruise to Havana," ran seventy-five minutes, but Desi Arnaz persuaded the sponsor of the succeeding program, The U.S. Steel Hour, to permit a fifteen-minute incursion. The last of the thirteen, "Lucy Meets the Moustache," featured Ernie Kovacs and Edie Adams, and was televised 1 April 1960. It was especially poignant, not because it signified the end of the Ricardos and the Mertzes, but because it was filmed after Lucy and Desi had agreed to get divorced.

After their divorce Lucy became the head of Desilu Studios, buying out Desi's interest in 1962; in 1967 the operation was sold to Paramount. Desilu had expanded considerably from a one-show company since it was founded in 1950; Desilu produced many series during the 1950s and 1960s, including Our Miss Brooks, December Bride, Willy, Those Whiting Girls, It's Always Jan, The Whirlybirds, The Untouchables, Fair Exchange, and Glynis. Desi Arnaz made few TV appearances since 1960, though he was occasionally featured on The Mothers-in-Law, a sitcom he produced. Lucille Ball, who married Gary Morton in 1961, went on to star in a pair of similar sitcoms, The Lucy Show and Here's Lucy, which together lasted twelve seasons. (A fourth series, Life with Lucy, lasted only two months in 1986.) On 28 November 1976, CBS broadcast a two-hour tribute to her three shows, "CBS Salutes Lucy—The First 25 Years," which included a rare television appearance by CBS's chief executive, William Paley. Desi Arnaz died in 1986, Lucille Ball in 1989. On 10 February 1991, CBS aired a made-for-TV movie about the couple's life before I Love Lucy. "Lucy and Desi: Before the Laughter," with Frances Fisher and Maurice Benard, was hotly criticized by Lucie Arnaz and Desi Arnaz, Jr., as an inaccurate portrait of their parents' lives.

I MARRIED DORA ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1987–8 JANUARY 1988; 27 MAY 1988–19 AUGUST 1988 A witless sitcom about a single parent who married his Latin American housekeeper to save her from deportation. With Daniel Hugh-Kelly as architect Peter Farrell, whose wife had disappeared five years earlier in an airplane hijacking; Elizabeth Peña as the housekeeper, Dora Calderon; Juliette Lewis as Peter's daughter, Kate; Jason Horst as Peter's son, Will; Henry Jones as Peter's boss, Hughes Whitney Lennox; and Sanford Jensen as Peter's co-worker, Dolf Menninger. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the show was that it announced its own cancellation on the last first-run episode.

I MARRIED JOAN NBC

15 OCTOBER 1952–6 APRIL 1955 Domestic sitcom starring Joan Davis as Joan Stevens and Jim Backus as her husband, Judge Bradley Stevens. Also featured as the Stevens's friends and neighbors over the years were Hal Smith and Geraldine Carr as Charlie and Mabel; Dan Tobin and Sheila Bromley as Kerwin and Janet; Wally Brown and Sally Kelly as Wally and Sally; and Sandra Gould as Mildred Webster. Bing Crosby made a rare guest appearance on the show (25 February 1953), as did oldtime cowboy star Hoot Gibson (16 March 1955). The series was owned by Davis's production company and was produced by Dick Mack and directed by Hal Walker. Ninety-eight half-hour episodes were filmed.

I.N.N. NEWS SYNDICATED

1980–1990 A rarity in television, I.N.N. News was a nationally syndicated news broadcast; it gave independent local stations a chance to compete with the three network news broadcasts. Principal correspondents included Pat Harper, Bill Jorgensen, Steve Bausch, Brad Holbrook, Morton Dean, and Carl Rowan. In 1981 a midday edition was launched, coanchored by Marvin Scott and Claire Carter. I.N.N., which stood for Independent Network News, was headquartered at WPIX in New York. In 1987 the evening newscast was retitled USA Tonight.

I REMEMBER MAMA

I SEARCH FOR ADVENTURE SYNDICATED

1954 Another of the several documentary series produced and hosted by John D. Craig, this half-hour series featured films taken by modern-day adventurers.

I SPY SYNDICATED

1956 The first of the two series by this title was an anthology of spy dramas, historical and modern, hosted by Raymond Massey (who appeared as Anton the Spymaster).

I SPY NBC

15 September 1965–2 September 1968 The second series which bore this title told the story of two American undercover agents who traveled around the world on various assignments. More significantly, it was the first noncomedy series to star a black actor—Bill Cosby, who played Alexander Scott (better known as Scotty), a Temple graduate, a Rhodes Scholar, and a spy whose cover was that of the trainer of a tennis pro. Cosby's white costar was Robert Culp, who played Kelly Robinson, a Princeton-educated secret agent who masqueraded as the tennis pro. Filmed largely on location all over the world, I Spy was produced by Sheldon Leonard, Mort Fine, and David Friedkin. The two stars were reunited in a 1994 TV-movie, "I Spy Returns" (3 February, CBS).

I WITNESS VIDEO NBC

23 February 1992–19 August 1994 I Witness Video presented videos of actual crimes, calamities, and other catastrophes, usually taken by amateurs. The premiere telecast generated a storm of controversy for its footage of two killings: a Texas constable's murder by three gunmen (taped by a camera mounted in his car), and a Denver criminal suspect's killing during a police chase (taped by a helicopter pilot). Patrick VanHorn hosted the program from 1992 until the fall of 1993, when John Forsythe took over.

THE ICE PALACE CBS

23 May 1971–25 July 1971 A variety hour with guest hosts, guest acts, and a group of talented skaters which included Billy Chappell, Linda Carbonetto, Tim Wood, and the Bob Turk Ice Dancers.

ICHABOD AND ME CBS

26 September 1961–18 September 1962 Low-key sitcom created by Joe Connelly and Bob Mosher. With Robert Sterling as Bob Major, a New Yorker who purchased a New England newspaper and moved to Phippsboro with his son; George Chandler as Ichabod Adams, the man from whom Major bought the paper; Jimmy Mathers (younger brother of Leave It to Beaver's Jerry Mathers) as Benjie, Bob's young son; Christine White as Abigail Adams, Ichabod's daughter, Bob's girlfriend; Reta Shaw as Livvy, Bob's housekeeper; and Guy Raymond as Martin, a typically taciturn New England townsman. The pilot for the series, entitled "Adams' Apples," was shown on General Electric Theater 24 April 1960.

I'D LIKE TO SEE NBC

5 November 1948–29 March 1949 Host Ray Morgan introduced film shorts on subjects suggested by home viewers on this Tuesday-night half-hour series.

IDENTIFY ABC

14 February 1949–9 May 1949 Bob Elson hosted this prime-time sports quiz show.

IF NOT FOR YOU CBS

18 September 1995–9 October 1995 Half-hour sitcom in which two people dumped their respective fiancés and fell in love with each other. With Elizabeth McGovern as Jessie Kent, who produced books on tape; Hank Azaria as recording studio owner Craig Schaeffer, who bumped into Jessie at a restaurant before meeting her at his studio; Debra Jo Rupp as Eileen Mott, who was employed by Craig to record the voices for canned announcements; Jim Turner as Cal, Craig's chief engineer; Reno Wilson as Bobby, a songwriter; Peter Krause as Jessie's fiancé, Elliot; and Jane Sibbett as Craig's fiancée, Melanie. Lifted from CBS's Monday schedule after four airings, If Not for You was the first casualty of the 1995–1996 season.

IF YOU HAD A MILLION

THE IGOR CASSINI SHOW DUMONT

25 OCTOBER 1953–28 FEBRUARY 1954 Columnist Igor Cassini (who wrote under the name of Cholly Knickerbocker) hosted this Sunday-night celebrity-interview series.

THE ILKA CHASE SHOW CBS

16 FEBRUARY 1950–10 AUGUST 1950 Fifteen-minute Thursday-night series hosted by fashionable Ilka Chase. It was also titled Glamour-Go-Round.

I'LL BET NBC

29 MARCH 1965–24 SEPTEMBER 1965 On this daytime game show hosted by Jack Narz, one spouse tried to predict whether the other spouse would be able to answer a question correctly. In 1971 a syndicated version of the show appeared under the title It's Your Bet (see that title).

I'LL BUY THAT CBS

15 JUNE 1953–17 DECEMBER 1953 Mike Wallace hosted this twice-weekly daytime game show on which studio contestants tried to identify items sent in by home viewers. A celebrity panel was on hand to assist the contestants.

I'LL FLY AWAY NBC

7 OCTOBER 1991–5 FEBRUARY 1993; 11 APRIL 1993 Highly acclaimed but little watched, this hour series was set in the South at the dawn of the civil rights movement in the early 1960s. With Sam Waterston as Forrest Bedford, the noble prosecutor of Bryland County (he became a United States Attorney a season later); Regina Taylor as his Negro housekeeper, Lily Harper (was it a coincidence that the name was close to that of Harper Lee, author of To Kill a Mockingbird?); Jeremy London as Forrest's older son, Nathan; Ashlee Levitch as his daughter, Francie; John Aaron Bennett as his younger son, John Morgan; Kathryn Harrold as lawyer Christina LeKatzis, a potential love interest for Forrest, whose wife had been institutionalized following a nervous breakdown; Bill Cobbs as Lily's father, Lewis; Zelda Harris as Lily's daughter, Adelaide; and Brad Sullivan as high school wrestling coach Zollicofer Weed. Joshua Brand and John Falsey created the series, which was filmed in Atlanta. Following its cancellation by NBC, the series' 38 episodes were purchased by PBS and were rerun during the 1993–1994 season. The reruns were prefaced by a 90-minute sequel featuring most of the cast (except for Jeremy London, who was then working on Angel Falls; his twin brother, Jason London, appeared as Nathan).

I'LL TAKE MANHATTAN CBS

1 MARCH 1987–4 MARCH 1987 Four-part adaptation of the Judith Krantz novel about a young woman who takes over the family's fashion magazine publishing business. With Valerie Bertinelli as Maxi Amberville; Barry Bostwick as her father, Zachary Amberville; Perry King as her uncle, Cutter Amberville; Jane Kaczmarek as Zachary's mistress, Nina Stern; Francesca Annis as Maxi's mother, Lily Amberville; and Jack Scalia as art director Rocco Cipriani, who married Maxi. The miniseries was filmed mostly in Toronto.

THE ILONA MASSEY SHOW DUMONT

1 NOVEMBER 1954–3 JANUARY 1955 Half-hour variety show, hosted by Hungarian-born actress Ilona Massey.

I'M A BIG GIRL NOW ABC

31 OCTOBER 1980–24 JULY 1981 Half-hour sitcom starring Danny Thomas as dentist Ben Douglas and Diana Canova as his daughter, Diana Cassidy; after learning that his wife had run off with his partner, Ben moved in with the recently divorced Diana and tried to restrain himself from meddling in her life. Also featured were Rori King as Becky, Diana's precocious seven-year-old; Sheree North as Edie McKendrick, Diana's boss at Cramer Research and Testing Group, a Washington think-tank; Michael Durrell as Walter Douglas, Diana's brother; Joan Welles as Polly, Walter's wife; Martin Short as Neal, one of Diana's co-workers; and Deborah Baltzell as Karen, another co-worker. Inexplicably, during the last few episodes of the series, Diana and her cohorts were all working for a newspaper rather than for the think-tank.

I'M DICKENS, HE'S FENSTER ABC

28 SEPTEMBER 1962–13 SEPTEMBER 1963 A pair of zany carpenters were the central characters in this sitcom. With John Astin as Harry Dickens; Marty Ingels as Arch Fenster; Emmaline Henry as Kate Dickens, Harry's wife; Dave Ketchum as Mel Warshaw, their occasional helper; Harry Beckman as Mulligan, another helper; Frank DeVol as Mr. Bannister, their boss; and Noam Pitlik as Bentley. Leonard Stern was the producer.

I'M TELLING NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1987–3 SEPTEMBER 1988 On this Saturday-morning kids' game show, teams of siblings were quizzed about each other; although most programs featured ordinary contestants, some shows pitted youthful stars of various NBC series, together with their real-life brothers and sisters, against each other. Laurie Faso emceed.

THE IMMORTAL ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1970–14 JANUARY 1971; 12 MAY 1971–8 SEPTEMBER 1971 An hour-long adventure series starring Chris George as Ben Richards, an automobile test driver who discovered that his blood contained certain miraculous antibodies that could make him live forever. Ben searched for his long-lost brother, Jason, in the hope that he, too, had the same kind of blood. Also featured were David Brian as Arthur Maitland, a rich old man who, having once refused a transfusion of Richards's blood, pursued Richards; Don Knight as Fletcher, the man Maitland hired to track Richards down. Tony Wilson was the executive producer of the series, which was based loosely on James Gunn's novel, The Immortals. Canceled in midseason, reruns were broadcast later in 1971, replacing The Johnny Cash Show.

THE IMOGENE COCA SHOW NBC

2 OCTOBER 1954–25 JUNE 1955 After several seasons as second banana to Sid Caesar on Your Show of Shows, Imogene Coca was given her own half-hour comedy show in 1954 (Sid Caesar having gone on to Caesar's Hour), which lasted a season. Regulars included David Burns, Billy DeWolfe, Ruth Donnelly, Hal March, and Bibi Osterwald.

IMUS, PLUS SYNDICATED

1978 Ninety-minute talk show hosted by New York disc jockey Don Imus. Henri Bollinger and Robert Yamin were the executive producers, Hal Parets the producer.

IN CONCERT ABC

7 JUNE 1991– ABC had televised rock concerts under the "In Concert" title during the mid-1970s as part of ABC's Wide World of Entertainment. The network brought back the idea in 1991 with this hour series, broadcast late on Fridays. Segments were taped on location. The show had no permanent host until early 1995, when Vanessa Marcil assumed the job.

IN LIVING COLOR FOX

15 APRIL 1990–25 AUGUST 1994 An innovative half-hour comedy series created by filmmaker Keenen Ivory Wayans (I'm Gonna Git You Sucka), inspired by Saturday Night Live and featuring a mostly black company of regulars performing various skits. Regulars included Wayans, his brother Damon Wayans, his sister Kim Wayans, James Carrey, Tommy Davidson, David Alan Grier, T'Keyah "Crystal" Keymah, Kelly Coffield, and Kim Coles (1990). The dancers were known as Keenen's Fly Girls. Another Wayans clan member, younger brother Shawn, appeared as S. W. 1, the show's deejay. Among the show's regularly featured bits were mirthless funmaker "Homey the Clown," the effeminate cohosts of "Men on Film," and "Hey Mon," the adventures of a hardworking West Indian family. Shawn Wayans joined the regular cast in the fall of 1991, and two new members were added: Jamie Foxx and Asian comic Steve Park. Another Wayans brother, Marlon Wayans, joined in 1992, as did Alexandra Wentworth. The Wayans clan abruptly left the series in the middle of the 1992–1993 season, following a dispute between Keenen Ivory Wayans and Fox over the latter's decision to air reruns of In Living Color to replace a canceled program; Wayans felt that the extra exposure diminished the value of the series in the syndication market. The series carried on for another full season, however, with Carrey, Davidson, Foxx, Grier, Neymah, and Wentworth, and newcomers Anne-Marie Johnson (formerly of In the Heat of the Night), Jay Leggett, Carol Rosenthal, and Marc Wilmore. Following the demise of the show, several of the regulars went on to have successful movie careers, including, most notably, Carrey (now going by Jim).

IN SEARCH OF SYNDICATED

1976–1982 Half-hour documentary series which explored strange phenomena, lost civilizations, and the like, narrated by Star Trek's Leonard Nimoy. Jim McGinn and Alan Landsburg were the executive producers, Robert L. Long the series producer.

IN SESSION SYNDICATED

1974 Musical series on which assorted rockers rapped and rocked. Phil Everly, the younger half of the Everly Brothers, hosted.

IN SPORT SYNDICATED

1989–1991 Half-hour weekly sports magazine show, cohosted by Ahmad Rashad and Robin Swoboda.

IN THE BEGINNING CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1978–18 OCTOBER 1978 Half-hour sitcom about a conservative Irish priest who was teamed up with a streetwise nun and assigned to open a storefront mission in a tough inner-city neighborhood. With McLean Stevenson as Father Daniel M. Cleary; Priscilla Lopez as his coworker, Sister Agnes; Priscilla Morrill as Sister Lillian; Olivia Barash as Willie; Bobby Ellerbee as Jerome Rockefeller; and Jack Dodson as Monsignor Barlow. Mort Lachman was the executive producer for Norman Lear's T.A.T. Communications.

IN THE FIRST PERSON CBS

29 JANUARY 1949–10 OCTOBER 1950 Fifteen-minute interview and commentary series hosted by journalist Quincy Howe.

IN THE HEAT OF THE NIGHT NBC/CBS

6 MARCH 1988–3 MAY 1988 (NBC); 26 JULY 1988–21 JULY 1992 (NBC); 28 OCTOBER 1992–4 MAY 1994 (CBS) Hour crime show based on the 1967 film about a white Mississippi police chief who teams up with a black detective from the north; in the TV version, set in the present time, there was no racial animosity between the two principal characters. The cast included Carroll O'Connor as Bill Gillespie, Chief of the Sparta, Mississippi, Police Department; Howard Rollins (1988–1993) as chief of detectives Virgil Tibbs, who was born in Sparta but had worked in Philadelphia; Alan Autry as Lieutenant Bubba Skinner; Anne-Marie Johnson (1988–1993) as Virgil's wife, Althea Tibbs; David Hart as Deputy Parker Williams; Hugh O'Connor (son of Carroll O'Connor) as Deputy Lonnie Jamison; Christian LeBlanc (1988–1989) as Deputy Junior Abernathy; Geoffrey Thorne (1988–1992) as Deputy Willson Sweet; and Crystal Fox (1989–1994) as dispatcher Lu Ann Corman. When Carroll O'Connor was sidelined because of heart surgery at the end of the 1988–1989 season, Joe

Don Baker filled in for him as Tom Dugan, a police captain who came out of retirement.

The spring 1988 episodes were filmed on location in Louisiana; production moved to Georgia in the fall of 1988. In the fall of 1992 the series switched networks, lasting another two seasons on CBS. Gillespie was voted out of office in the fall of 1993 and became sheriff, and Carl Weathers joined the cast as Sparta's new chief, Hampton Forbes. During the final season, Gillespie's romance with black city councilor Harriet DeLong (played by Denise Nicholas) heated up, and the two were married on the finale. Occasionally featured during the latter seasons were Dee Shaw as Sergeant Dee Sheppard; Harvey E. Lee, Jr., as Officer Ken Covey; and Mark Johnson as Officer Luke Everett. One or two two-hour In the Heat of the Night movies were telecast during the 1994–1995 season.

IN THE HOUSE NBC

10 APRIL 1995–15 MAY 1995; 10 JULY 1995– Half-hour sitcom about a divorced black woman with two kids. It starred Debbie Allen as Jackie Warren, who landed a job as a legal secretary and moved into a rented house, only to find that her landlord would be sharing their kitchen. With rapper LL Cool J as the landlord, Marion Hill, a pro football player sidelined by an injury whose own place was being renovated (he lived in the garage apartment and agreed to look after the kids while Jackie worked); Lisa Arrindell Anderson as Jackie's snooty boss, attorney Heather Comstock; Maia Campbell as Jackie's teen daughter, Tiffany; and Jeffery Wood as Jackie's precocious young son, Austin. John Amos appeared occasionally as Marion's trainer, Sam.

IN THE MORGAN MANNER ABC

1 MARCH 1950–23 JULY 1950 Bandleader Russ Morgan hosted his own half-hour musical variety series, which was usually seen Sunday afternoons. In the summer of 1956 Morgan hosted a second series: see The Russ Morgan Show.

IN THE PARK CBS

9 DECEMBER 1951–31 MAY 1953 This children's show was seen Sunday mornings. It was hosted by Bill Sears and his puppet friends: Calvin the Crow, Sir Geoffrey the Giraffe, Magnolia the Ostrich, and Albert the Chipmunk. Paul Ritts and Mary Holliday handled the puppets.

THE INA RAY HUTTON SHOW NBC

4 JULY 1956–5 SEPTEMBER 1956 No male guests or regulars appeared on this half-hour musical variety series, hosted by Ina Ray Hutton. Hutton, who put together her first "all-girl" band in 1935, assembled a new crew in the early 1950s for her local show in Los Angeles. Purex sponsored the show nationally for one summer. Some of Hutton's musicians included Mickey Anderson (clarinet), Deedie Ball (piano), Harriet Blackburn, Lois Cronin (trombone), Janie Davis, Peggy Fairbanks, Helen Hammond (trumpet), Evie Howeth, Margaret Rinker (drums), Helen Smith, Judy Van Euer, Zoe Ann Willy, and Helen Wooley.

INCH HIGH, PRIVATE EYE NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–31 AUGUST 1974 Saturday-morning cartoon series about a very small detective, Inch High, who was assisted by his niece, Lori, her boyfriend, Gator, and Braveheart the dog.

THE INCREDIBLE HULK CBS

10 MARCH 1978–13 NOVEMBER 1981; 5 MAY 1982–19 MAY 1982 After two popular made-for-TV movies, The Incredible Hulk was given a weekly spot in March 1978. The series, based on the Marvel Comics character, starred Bill Bixby as Dr. David Banner, a research scientist who was accidentally exposed to an overdose of gamma rays; as a result, Banner found himself transformed into a green-skinned, white-eyed behemoth (The Incredible Hulk) whenever he became enraged. Also featured were former Mr. America Lou Ferrigno as Banner's awesome but inarticulate alter ego, and Jack Colvin as Jack McGee, a reporter for the National Register who was out to expose the Hulk. Kenneth Johnson was the executive producer, and James D. Parriott and Chuck Bowman the producers, for Universal Television. A cartoon version of the character twice came to television: in 1966, as one segment of the syndicated Marvel Superheroes (see that title), and in 1982, as half of The Incredible Hulk and the Amazing Spider-Man (see Spiderman). Bixby and Ferrigno reprised their roles in three made-for-TV movies, all shown on NBC: "The Incredible Hulk Returns" (22 May 1988); "The Trial of the Incredible Hulk" (7 May 1989); and "The Death of the Incredible Hulk" (18 February 1990).

INCREDIBLE SUNDAY ABC

9 OCTOBER 1988–17 SEPTEMBER 1989 John Davidson, who had cohosted That's Incredible! earlier in the decade, hosted this second "incredible" series with Cristina Ferrare. Slated opposite 60 Minutes on CBS, the hour show focused on unusual people and events. Woody Fraser, who had produced That's Incredible!, was executive producer.

INDAY SYNDICATED

1985 Inday was the umbrella for four half-hour programs that were made available to local stations as a two-hour block or individually: a newscast, Inday News; a look at trends, What's Hot! What's Not?; a video adaptation of Us magazine, All About Us; and an interview show aimed at older viewers, It's a Great Life, cohosted by Robert and Rosemarie Stack.

INDUSTRY ON PARADE SYNDICATED

1950–1958 Long-running series of fifteen-minute films on American industry, produced by the National Association of Manufacturers. The series won a Peabody Award in 1954.

INFATUATION SYNDICATED

1992 Bob Eubanks hosted this half-hour weekly program on which guests were brought face to face with people who were, or had been, the objects of their infatuations, such as old flames and lost loves.

THE INFINITE VOYAGE PBS

1987–1992 A series of hour documentaries on scientific subjects.

INFORMATION PLEASE CBS

29 JUNE 1952–21 SEPTEMBER 1952 Created by Dan Golenpaul, Information Please ran on radio from 1938 to 1948; its television run was considerably shorter, replacing The Fred Waring Show for one summer. The format of the game show remained unchanged when it came to television: Viewers were invited to submit questions and won prizes if they succeeded in stumping the celebrity panel. Clifton Fadiman, the show's host on radio, continued as the moderator; permanent panelists included Franklin P. Adams, New York newspaper columnist, and John Kieran, sportswriter for The New York Times. Two guest celebrities completed the panel.

THE INNER FLAME

See PORTIA FACES LIFE

THE INNER SANCTUM SYNDICATED

1954 The Inner Sanctum, an anthology series of creepy tales, began on radio in 1941. Its trademark, on radio and television, was a squeaking door, the entrance to the "inner sanctum." Paul McGrath, who had hosted the show for several years on radio, was heard (but not seen) as the host, Mr. Raymond.

INNER SPACE SYNDICATED

1974 The underwater photography of Ron and Valerie Taylor was featured on this documentary series hosted by William Shatner.

THE INQUIRING MIND SYNDICATED

1965 An educational series produced at the University of Michigan; research work of Michigan scientists was examined. John Arthur Hanson hosted the program.

INSIDE AMERICA ABC

1989–1990 Half-hour daily informational show, hosted by Penny Daniels.

INSIDE STORY PBS

1981–1984 Hodding Carter III (a State Department spokesman during the Carter administration) hosted this half-hour series, which focused on journalism and the coverage of current events by the media.

INSIDE U.S.A. WITH CHEVROLET CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1949–16 MARCH 1950 This half-hour variety show, cohosted by Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy (his wife), was seen biweekly on Thursdays. It alternated first with Sugar Hill Times, then with Romance.

INSIDE VIDEO THIS WEEK SYNDICATED

1989–1990 Clips from newly released commercial videos—motion pictures, music videos, and informational programs—were showcased on this half-hour weekly series, cohosted by two former Entertainment Tonight reporters, Eric Burns and Paula McClure.

INSIDE WASHINGTON SYNDICATED

1988– This weekly news analysis program, hosted by Gordon Peterson, was the successor to Agronsky & Co. Regular panelists have included Carl Rowan, Elizabeth Drew, Strobe Talbott, James Kilpatrick, Hugh Sidey, and Charles Krauthammer. The series was also shown on many PBS stations.

THE INSIDERS ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1985–8 JANUARY 1986; 2 JUNE 1986–23 JUNE 1986 A Miami Vice clone, The Insiders were a pair of young investigative reporters—one white, one black—for Newspoint magazine. Featured were Nicholas Campbell as Nick Fox; Stoney Jackson as his partner, James Mackey (better known simply as Mackey), an ex-con; and Gail Strickland as their boss, Alice West. Like Miami Vice's Crockett and Tubbs, Nick and Mackey frequently went undercover and performed their exploits against a rock music soundtrack.

INSIGHT SYNDICATED

1961–1991 Widely syndicated religious program that presented modern-day morality lessons, often with well-known actors. Ellwood E. Kieser, a Paulist priest, was its host and executive producer.

INSPECTOR GADGET SYNDICATED

1983–1985 Inspector Gadget, the bumbling cartoon sleuth, was reminiscent of two earlier law enforcement officers: Inspector Clouseau of The Pink Panther films, and Maxwell Smart of Get Smart. Don Adams, who had played Smart, provided in early episodes the voice of Gadget, who was assisted in his investigations by his niece, Penny, and his dog, Brain; Gadget's usual nemesis was the evil Claw (a villain of the same name had also been featured on Get Smart). Adams also supplied the title voice for a network holiday animated feature, "Inspector Gadget Saves Christmas" (4 December 1992, NBC).

INSTANT RECALL SYNDICATED

1990–1991 Half-hour daily archival series that looked at events of the last fifty years. John Palmer was the host.

INTERFACE PBS

1969–1975 Half-hour public affairs series hosted and produced by Tony Batten for WETA-TV, Washington.

INTERNATIONAL DETECTIVE SYNDICATED

1959 Stories on this half-hour crime show were supposedly adapted from the files of the William J. Burns Agency. Arthur Fleming starred as Ken Franklin, a Burns Agent. Fleming later shortened his first name to Art and became famous as the host of Jeopardy. Filmed in England, the series was produced by Eddie Sutherland for Official Films.

INTERNATIONAL PLAYHOUSE DUMONT

30 MAY 1951–14 NOVEMBER 1951 Dramatic anthology series that presented short foreign films and other foreign-made dramatic stories.

INTERNATIONAL SHOWTIME NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1961–10 SEPTEMBER 1965 European circuses were showcased on this Friday-night series, hosted by Don Ameche. The idea was revived in 1989: see Great Circuses of the World.

INTERNATIONAL ZONE SYNDICATED

1962 Alistair Cooke hosted this half-hour informational series about the United Nations, produced by United Nations Television.

THE INTERNS CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1970–10 SEPTEMBER 1971 Based on the movie of the same title, The Interns was an undistinguished medical series about a group of young doctors and a crusty hospital director—all of whom worked at New North Hospital. With Broderick Crawford as Peter Goldstone, the director; Mike Farrell as Sam Marsh; Elaine Giftos as Bobbe Marsh, his wife (a nonphysician); Christopher Stone as Jim "Pooch" Hardin; Sandra Smith as Lydia Thorpe; Hal Frederick as Cal Baron; and Stephen Brooks as Greg Pettit.

INTERPOL CALLING SYNDICATED

1959 Charles Korvin starred as Inspector Duval of Interpol, an international law enforcement organization, in this British import. Jack Wrather produced the half-hour series in association with the J. Arthur Rank Organisation.

INTO THE NIGHT STARRING RICK DEES ABC

16 JULY 1990–14 NOVEMBER 1991 A midnight talk show, aimed at younger viewers, hosted by Los Angeles disc jockey Rick Dees. Billy Vera and the Beaters were the house band, Lisa Canning the announcer. Greg Binkley also appeared regularly in comedy bits, and Bob Perlow was the self-appointed "correspondent of chaos." Another regular feature was a group of four female senior citizens, known as "The Committee," who chatted with Dees on various topics in taped interviews. Dees departed in July 1991, and the show's title was shortened to Into the Night as guest hosts took over. The title was shortened again to Studio 59 in October 1991, and the series faded quietly away.

THE INVADERS ABC

10 JANUARY 1967–17 SEPTEMBER 1968 An imaginative adventure series about visitors from space. Roy Thinnes starred as David Vincent, an architect who, having taken a wrong turn on the highway, witnessed the landing of a spacecraft. Returning to the spot the following morning, he found no clues, but subsequent attempts on his life convinced him that somebody—or something—was after him. Gradually, Vincent learned that the Earth had indeed been visited by aliens, creatures capable of assuming human form; their native world was dying, and they were searching for new areas to colonize. Thereafter, Vincent spent most of his time trying to convince other people of the aliens' existence and trying to ferret out the aliens; some aliens were easy to spot because their little fingers were splayed, and all aliens when killed simply dematerialized into red dust. In December of 1967, Kent Smith joined the series as Edgar Scoville, another true believer. A total of forty-three episodes, all in color, were made. Executive producer: Quinn Martin. Creator: Larry Cohen. Producer: Alan A. Armer. A two-part TV-movie, "The Invaders," was aired on Fox 12 and 14 November 1995. Thinnes again played Vincent, but Scott Bakula starred as the principal alien-hunter. See also The X-Files.

THE INVESTIGATOR NBC

3 JUNE 1958–2 SEPTEMBER 1958 This live, color adventure series was a summer replacement for The George Gobel–Eddie Fisher Show. It starred Lonny Chapman as Jeff Prior, New York private eye, and Howard St. John as Lloyd Prior, his father, a former reporter.

THE INVESTIGATORS CBS

5 OCTOBER 1961–28 DECEMBER 1961 Insurance investigators were the central characters in this crime show. With James Franciscus as Russ Andrews; James Philbrook as Steve Banks; Mary Murphy as Maggie Peters; Al Austin as Bill Davis; and June Kenney as Polly, the secretary.

THE INVISIBLE MAN CBS

4 NOVEMBER 1958–27 JANUARY 1959 H. G. Wells's classic tale of a young scientist who accidentally ingested a formula which made him invisible was the basis of this British import. The scientist's name was Peter Brady, but the name of the actor who portrayed him (his voice was audible and his clothing was, of course, visible) was never disclosed. Also featured were Lisa Daniely as Diane, his sister; Deborah Watling as Sally, his niece; and Ernest Clark as Sir Charles, a member of the British Cabinet. Thirteen half-hour episodes were seen over CBS. Ralph Smart produced the show for Official Films in cooperation with CBS-TV.

THE INVISIBLE MAN NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1975–19 JANUARY 1976 The second TV version of H. G. Wells's story was made in America. It starred David McCallum as Dr. Daniel Westin, a research scientist for the Klae Corporation, a West Coast think-tank, who cooked up a formula that rendered him invisible. Westin was outfitted with a special plastic mask that was a replica of his old face; thus, McCallum was quite visible to viewers. Also featured were Melinda Fee as Kate Westin, his wife; Craig Stevens as Walter Carlson, his boss. Harve Bennett was the executive producer of the series, Leslie Stevens its producer. Though the show failed to catch on, NBC apparently thought there was merit in the concept, for they introduced the very similar Gemini Man the following season. Undaunted when the show was canceled in midseason, NBC brought on The Man from Atlantis in 1977; it, too, proved unsuccessful.

IRELAND: A TELEVISION HISTORY SYNDICATED

1982 Thirteen-part documentary series on the history of Ireland, written and narrated by Robert Kee. The show was carried by many PBS stations.

IRON HORSE ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1966–6 JANUARY 1968 This hour-long western focused on the construction of the Buffalo Pass & Scalplock Railroad. It featured Dale Robertson as Ben Calhoun, the owner; Gary Collins as Dave Tarrant, the engineer; Bob Random as Barnabas Rogers; Roger Torrey as Nils Torvald; and Ellen McRae (1966–1967) as Julie Parsons. Produced by Screen Gems.

IRONSIDE NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1967–16 JANUARY 1975 Raymond Burr returned to television one year after the demise of Perry Mason in another successful crime show. This time he played Robert T. Ironside, Chief of Detectives for the San Francisco Police Department, who was paralyzed from the waist down by a would-be assassin's bullet. Assisting him were Don Galloway as Lieutenant Ed Brown; Barbara Anderson (1967–1971) as Policewoman Eve Whitfield; Don Mitchell as Mark Sanger, Ironside's personal assistant, an ex-con attending law school; Gene Lyons as Commissioner Dennis Randall; Elizabeth Baur (1971–1975) as Officer Fran Belding; and Joan Pringle (1974–1975) as Diana Sanger, Mark's wife. Executive producer: Joel Rogosin. Burr, Anderson, Galloway, and Mitchell were reunited in a TV-movie, "The Return of Ironside" (4 May 1993, NBC).

ISIS CBS

6 SEPTEMBER 1975–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 Isis, a live-action Saturday-morning show, was introduced in 1975 as one half of The Shazam!/Isis Hour, where it remained for two seasons. When Shazam! left the air in 1977, Isis continued under the title The Secrets of Isis. The half-hour adventure series starred JoAnna Cameron as Andrea Thomas, a mild-mannered high school science teacher who learned the secrets of Isis, an Egyptian goddess, and could transform herself into the super-powered Isis. Also featured were Brian Cutler as schoolteacher Rick Mason and Joanna Pang as student Cindy Lee. Lou Scheimer and Norm Prescott were the executive producers of the series. See also Shazam!

ISLAND SON CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1989–29 MARCH 1990 Richard Chamberlain, who had starred as TV's Dr. Kildare in the early 1960s, returned as a TV physician in this hour medical show set in Hawaii. This time, he played Dr. Daniel Kulani, a holistic practitioner who worked at the Kamehameha Medical Center in Honolulu. Also appearing were Kwan Hi Lim and Betty Carvalho as his adoptive parents, Tutu and Nana Kulani; Ray Bumatai as his brother, James; Brynn Thayer as Maggie Judd, the hospital administrator; Clyde Kusatsu as Dr. Kenji Fushida; Timothy Carhart as resident Dr. Anthony Metzger; Carol Huston as Dr. Caitlin McGrath; Michael Adamschick as Dr. Paul Brody; and William McNamara as Daniel's teenage son, Sam.

THE ISLANDERS ABC

2 OCTOBER 1960–26 MARCH 1961 Intended as a companion series to Adventures in Paradise, this M-G-M adventure show was also set in the South Pacific. It starred William Reynolds and James Philbrook as Sandy Wade and Zack Malloy, co-owners of a one-plane airline service. Also featured were Diane Brewster as Willy Vandeveer, the office manager; Roy Wright as Shipwreck Callahan, an island personality; and Daria Massey as Naja. The series was replaced in midseason by The Asphalt Jungle.

ISSUES AND ANSWERS ABC

27 NOVEMBER 1960–8 NOVEMBER 1981 Newsmakers were interviewed by journalists on this public affairs program, ABC's counterpart of CBS's Face the Nation and NBC's venerable Meet the Press. In its earliest weeks the series was entitled ABC Press Conference. The series was produced by Peggy Whedon.

IT COULD BE YOU NBC

4 JUNE 1956–29 DECEMBER 1961 Bill Leyden hosted this audience participation show. A regular feature involved three members of the audience, one of whom would be reunited with a long-lost friend or loved one. Wendell Niles was the announcer on the series, which enjoyed a five-year daytime run and was also seen evenings during the summers of 1958 and 1961 and during the entire 1959–1960 season. Ralph Edwards created the show.

IT HAD TO BE YOU CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1993–15 OCTOBER 1993 Another short-lived sitcom, and another flop for Robert Urich, this one told the story of a haughty Boston publisher who met a widowed carpenter with three sons. It starred Faye Dunaway (in her TV series debut) as publisher Laura Scofield; Robert Urich as carpenter Mitch Quinn; Justin Whalin as oldest son David; Will Estes as middle son Christopher; Justin Jon Ross as youngest son Sebastian; and Robin Bartlett as Laura's assistant, Eve. It was axed after four episodes.

IT HAPPENED IN SPORTS NBC

3 JULY 1953–19 JANUARY 1954 Fifteen-minute sports documentary series.

IT IS WRITTEN SYNDICATED

1975–1986 Half-hour religious discussion show, hosted by George Vandeman and produced by the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

IT PAYS TO BE IGNORANT CBS/NBC/SYNDICATED

6 JUNE 1949–19 SEPTEMBER 1949 (CBS); 5 JULY 1951–27 SEPTEMBER 1951 (NBC); 1973 (SYNDICATED) It Pays to Be Ignorant was a spoof of game shows and was popular on radio during the 1940s. The celebrity panel tried to avoid answering such stumpers as "What beverage is made from tea leaves?" On television the show first surfaced as a summer replacement for Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts in 1949 and was seen in 1951 as a summer replacement for Groucho Marx's You Bet Your Life. The radio and television versions were hosted by Tom Howard, the father-in-law of the show's creator, Bob Howell. The panel, also carried over from radio, consisted of veteran troupers Harry McNaughton, Lulu McConnell, and George Shelton (Shelton and Howard had been partners in vaudeville). In 1973 a revamped syndicated version appeared, featuring host Joe Flynn and panelists Jo Anne Worley, Charles Nelson Reilly, and Billy Baxter.

IT PAYS TO BE MARRIED NBC

4 JULY 1955–28 OCTOBER 1955 Married couples competed for cash on this question-and-answer daytime game show, hosted by Bill Goodwin. It was replaced by Matinee Theater. Stefan Hatos (who later produced Let's Make a Deal with Monty Hall) created the show with Henry Hoople.

IT SEEMS LIKE YESTERDAY SYNDICATED

1953 Radio newscaster H. V. Kaltenborn narrated old newsreels on this documentary series.

IT TAKES A THIEF ABC

9 JANUARY 1968–14 SEPTEMBER 1970 Light adventure series starring Robert Wagner as Alexander Mundy, a suave thief who was released from prison on condition that he undertake certain sensitive missions requiring his skills for the government. Malachi Throne costarred as Noah Bain, chief of the S.I.A., the government agency which hired Mundy. Fred Astaire appeared occasionally as Alex's father, Alistair Mundy, a master thief. The show was produced by Universal TV.

IT TAKES TWO NBC

31 MARCH 1969–31 JULY 1970 Daytime game show hosted by Vin Scully, featuring three celebrities and their spouses. Questions that called for mathematical answers were asked. The object of the game was for selected members of the studio audience to determine which couple's answers came the closest to the correct answer.

IT TAKES TWO ABC

14 October 1982–1 September 1983 Half-hour sitcom starring Patty Duke Astin and Richard Crenna as Molly and Sam Quinn. Sam, a successful surgeon, was beginning to have second thoughts about his wife's emergence as a career woman—Molly had gone to law school after their kids had grown up and now worked as an assistant district attorney. Other regulars included Anthony Edwards as their teenage son, Andy; Helen Hunt as their teenage daughter, Lisa; Billie Bird as Mama, Molly's dotty mother; Della Reese as Judge Caroline Philips, a friend of Molly's; and Richard McKenzie as Walter, a psychiatrist colleague of Sam's.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR ABC

10 May 1971–30 August 1971 Mel Tormé hosted this nostalgic look at selected years from the twentieth century; each week a different year was highlighted through the use of film clips and songs.

IT'S A BUSINESS DUMONT

19 March 1952–21 May 1952 A situation comedy with a Tin Pan Alley setting, It's a Business starred Bob Haymes and Leo DeLyon as song publishers and Dorothy Loudon as their secretary. The half-hour series was produced by Paul Rosen, directed by Frank Bunetta, and written by Bob Weiskopf (who later produced Maude).

IT'S A GREAT LIFE NBC

7 September 1954–3 June 1956 Situation comedy about two ex-GI's who moved to California and took a furnished apartment. With William Bishop as Denny Davis; Michael O'Shea as Steve Connors; Frances Bavier as Mrs. Amy Morgan, their landlady; James Dunn as Amy's Uncle Earl; and Harry Harvey as Mr. Russell, a neighbor. The show was written and produced by Ray Singer and Dick Chevillat; it was syndicated under the title The Bachelors.

IT'S A HIT CBS

1 June 1957–21 September 1957 Happy Felton hosted this Saturday-morning quiz show for children. Each week two teams of youngsters competed; each squad was managed by a sports personality.

IT'S A LIVING ABC/SYNDICATED

30 October 1980–29 January 1981; 21 July 1981–4 August 1981 (ABC); 1985–1989 (SYNDICATED)

MAKING A LIVING ABC

24 October 1981–9 January 1982; 4 June 1982–10 September 1982 Half-hour sitcom about a group of waitresses working at a fancy Los Angeles restaurant. With Marian Mercer as Nancy Beebe, the martinet manager; Susan Sullivan (1980–1981) as Lois Adams, the experienced one; Wendy Schaal (1980–1981) as Vicki Allen, the innocent one; Ann Jillian as Cassie Cranston, the worldly one; Gail Edwards as Dot Higgins, an aspiring actress; Barrie Youngfellow as Jan Hoffmeyer, a student and mother; Paul Kreppel as obnoxious Sonny Mann, the pianist; Bert Remsen (1980–1981) as Mario, the chef. Louise Lasser joined the cast at the end of the first season, as waitress Maggie McBerney. For its second season, the show was retitled Making a Living, and Earl Boen was added as Dennis, the new chef. In 1985 the show, again titled It's a Living, resurfaced in first-run syndication. Mercer, Jillian, Edwards, Youngfellow, and Kreppel all returned from the network cast (Jillian left after the 1985–1986 season); new regulars included Richard Stahl as Howard Miller, the chef; Robyn Peterson as Frisco, the bartender; Crystal Bernard (1985–1989) as Amy Tompkins; and Sheryl Lee Ralph (1986–1989) as Ginger St. James. Nancy and Howard were married in 1987.

IT'S A MAN'S WORLD NBC

17 September 1962–28 January 1963 Half-hour sitcom about three male college students living together on a houseboat moored on the Ohio River. With Ted Bessell as Tom (Tom-Tom) DeWitt; Glenn Corbett as Wes Macauley; Randy Boone as Vern Hodges; Mike Burns as Howie, Wes's orphaned kid brother who also lived with them; Jan Norris as Irene; Kate Murtagh as Mrs. Dodson; Jeanine Cashell as Alma Jean; Ann Schuler as Nora; and Harry Harvey, Sr., as Mr. Stott, owner of the gas station where Wes worked.

IT'S A PROBLEM NBC

16 OCTOBER 1951–13 OCTOBER 1952 A daytime panel show, hosted by Ben Grauer. Each day a single topic relating to family life was discussed. Fannie Hurst and Helen Parkhurst were permanent panelists; in August of 1952 Parkhurst was succeeded by Alice Thompson, editor-publisher of Seventeen magazine. Broadcast live from New York, the half-hour series was originally titled What's Your Problem?.

IT'S A SMALL WORLD DUMONT

27 JUNE 1953–27 JULY 1953 Half-hour travelogue.

IT'S A WONDERFUL WORLD SYNDICATED

1963 Half-hour travelogue hosted by John Cameron Swayze.

IT'S ABOUT TIME ABC

4 MARCH 1954–25 MARCH 1954 Short-lived prime-time game show hosted by Dr. Bergen Evans. Studio contestants were quizzed on historical events.

IT'S ABOUT TIME CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1966–27 AUGUST 1967 This sitcom took its stars on a journey to the Stone Age and back again. It starred Frank Aletter as Captain Glenn McDivitt (Mac) and Jack Mullaney as Hector, two astronauts who broke through the time barrier and landed in a prehistoric world where they met and befriended a Stone Age family; in midseason they brought the family with them into the modern era. The Stone Agers included Imogene Coca as Shad; Joe E. Ross as Gronk, her mate; Pat Cardi as Breer, their son; Mary Grace as Mlor, their daughter; Cliff Norton as Boss, the unfriendly leader of the cave people; Kathleen Freeman as Mrs. Boss; Mike Mazurki as Clon, Boss's henchman. Frank Wilcox joined the cast in midseason as General Morley, Mac and Hector's commanding officer.

IT'S ACADEMIC SYNDICATED

1961–1966 A game show for high-schoolers, not unlike College Bowl. The show was essentially a franchised series, like Bozo the Clown or Romper Room; each participating station selected its own emcee and scheduled meets between local schools. Each week three four-member high school teams competed.

IT'S ALEC TEMPLETON TIME DUMONT

3 JUNE 1955–26 AUGUST 1955 Half-hour musical series hosted by Alec Templeton, the blind, British-born pianist who specialized in playing popular tunes in the style of classical composers.

IT'S ALWAYS JAN CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1955–30 JUNE 1956 Situation comedy about three New York career girls, presumably inspired by the film How to Marry a Millionaire. With Janis Paige as Jan Stewart, nightclub singer; Patricia Bright as Pat Murphy, a secretary; Merry Anders as Val Marlowe, a model; Jeri Lou James as Josie Stewart, Jan's daughter (Jan was a war widow); Arte Johnson as Stanley Schreiber, delivery boy for the local delicatessen; and Sid Melton as Harry Cooper, Jan's agent. Merry Anders went on to appear in the TV version of How to Marry a Millionaire.

IT'S ANYBODY'S GUESS NBC

13 JUNE 1977–30 SEPTEMBER 1977 Daytime game show hosted by Monty Hall. Two contestants tried to predict whether a panel of five members of the studio audience would supply a preselected answer to a particular question. If the contestant predicted correctly, he or she won one point; if the guess was incorrect, the contestant's opponent won the point. If one of the five panelists gave the preselected answer, he or she also won a prize. The show was a Stefan Hatos-Monty Hall Production. Jay Stewart, Hall's longtime sidekick on Let's Make a Deal, was the announcer.

IT'S FUN TO KNOW CBS

23 APRIL 1951–22 JUNE 1951 A Monday-through-Friday educational series for children, hosted by Dorothy Engel Clark. Mondays were devoted to history, Tuesdays to crafts, Wednesdays to science, Thursdays to drawing, and Fridays to dancing. The half-hour show was produced by Frederick Kugel.

IT'S GARRY SHANDLING'S SHOW SHOWTIME/FOX

10 SEPTEMBER 1986–8 JUNE 1990 (SHOWTIME); 6 MARCH 1988–18 MARCH 1990 (FOX) Standup comic Garry Shandling and former Saturday Night Live writer Alan Zweibel borrowed from one of TV's earliest sitcoms to create one of the freshest shows of the 1980s. Their inspiration was The Burns and Allen Show: The central character played himself as the star of the TV show, lived at home, and frequently addressed the audience directly. The latter device, known as "breaking the fourth wall," had been seldom utilized in series television since the demise of Burns and Allen in 1958, but Shandling used it as effectively as had Burns to comment on the plot, to update the story, or to interject a joke.

Shandling played himself, a standup comic and star of a TV show, which was telecast from his fictional Sherman Oaks condominium. Joining him were: Molly Cheek as his friend and neighbor, Nancy Bancroft; Michael Tucci as neighbor Pete Schumaker; Bernadette Birkett as Pete's wife, Jackie; Scott Nemes as their son, Grant; Paul Willson as condo manager Leonard Smith; and Barbara Cason as Garry's mother, Ruth Shandling. All of the characters knew they were on TV; some even complained onstage about not being featured in a particular episode. Guest stars also dropped by from time to time (usually playing themselves), including Red Buttons, Zsa Zsa Gabor, rock star Tom Petty, and Gilda Radner (29 April 1988, one of her last TV appearances). Some episodes involved the studio audience; others parodied TV shows such as Lassie and The Fugitive. One program was aired live on Showtime: an election special (8 November 1988), with Soul Train's Don Cornelius as guest political analyst. In the fall of 1989 Shandling acquired a regular girlfriend, Phoebe Bass (played by Jessica Harper); they were married on the show (with Bert Convy, Ned Beatty, and Connie Stevens in attendance) early in 1990.

The genesis of the series was a sketch on NBC's Michael Nesmith in Television Parts in which Shandling, on a date with Miss Maryland, narrated the event to the camera. The series was originally pitched to the commercial broadcast networks, but was rejected. The Showtime cable network, for which Shandling had done two well-received specials (1984's "Garry Shandling: Alone in Vegas" and 1986's "The Garry Shandling Show: 25th Anniversary Special"), then picked it up late in 1986. The Fox network began broadcasting the Showtime series in 1988, gradually shortening the gap between the Showtime and Fox telecasts; by early 1990, when Fox dropped the series, the episodes were aired only a month apart. Showtime continued to run new episodes (seventy-two were made in all) after Fox's cancellation.

IT'S HAPPENING ABC

15 JULY 1968–25 OCTOBER 1968 This short-lived daytime musical series replaced the short-lived game show, Wedding Party. It was hosted by Mark Lindsay and his band (Paul Revere and the Raiders), and featured guest appearances by rock stars. A weekend version also appeared: see Happening '68.

IT'S MAGIC CBS

31 JULY 1955–4 SEPTEMBER 1955 A summer replacement for Lassie, It's Magic featured guest prestidigitators each week. Paul Tripp (formerly of Mr. I. Magination) hosted the series.

IT'S NEWS TO ME CBS

2 JULY 1951–27 AUGUST 1954 The format of this prime-time game show was similar to that of Liars Club—contestants had to choose which of four celebrity panelists was telling the truth. The subject of the game was current events; after being shown a clue to a recent news story, three of the panelists suggested the wrong event, while one named the correct event associated with the clue. The show was seen sporadically for three years and was hosted at various times by newsmen John Daly, Walter Cronkite, and Quincy Howe.

IT'S NOT EASY ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1983–20 OCTOBER 1983 This domestic sitcom told the tale of a divorced couple who lived across the street from one another, in order to simplify the problems of child custody. Featured were Carlene Watkins as Sharon Townsend; Ken Howard as Jack Long, her ex-husband; Bert Convy as Neal Townsend, her current husband; Rachel Jacobs as Sharon and Jack's eleven-year-old daughter, Carol; Evan Cohen as Sharon and Jack's nine-year-old son, Johnny; Billy Jacoby as Matthew, Neal's son (by a former marriage); and Jayne Meadows as Jack's live-in mother, Ruth. It was not easy for It's Not Easy to survive; the half-hour series perished opposite Simon & Simon and Cheers; it was the first announced cancellation of the 1983–1984 season.

IT'S POLKA TIME ABC

13 JULY 1956–24 SEPTEMBER 1957 Polka music and dancing from Chicago, hosted by Bruno "Junior" Zielinski, with Stan Wolowic's Band, The Polka Chips (singers), Carolyn DeZurik, and the Kanal Siodmy Dancers.

IT'S PUNKY BREWSTER NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1985–5 SEPTEMBER 1987; 5 NOVEMBER 1988–2 SEPTEMBER 1989 Saturday-morning cartoon series based on the prime-time series Punky Brewster. The cartoon Punky traveled all over the world, accompanied by her gremlin-like friend, Glomer.

IT'S SHOWTIME AT THE APOLLO SYNDICATED

1987– Hour variety series, taped at Harlem's Apollo Theatre following its $15 million renovation. Over the years the series had employed both guest hosts and regular hosts. Among the latter were Rick Aviles (1987–1988), Sinbad (1989–1991), and Steve Harvey (1994– ). Regularly featured on the program were the "Amateur Night" segments, hosted by Kiki Shepard; legendary dancer Howard "Sandman" Sims made his entrance whenever unsuccessful amateur contestants were hissed off stage by the studio audience.

IT'S YOUR BET SYNDICATED

1970–1972 This game show was the descendant of I'll Bet; the show featured two celebrities and their spouses, and the object was for one spouse to predict whether the other would be able to answer a question correctly. The several hosts included Hal March (seldom seen on TV after the demise of The $64,000 Question), Tom Kennedy, Dick Gautier, and Lyle Waggoner.

IT'S YOUR BUSINESS SYNDICATED

1979– A series of half-hour debates on public-policy issues, originally moderated by Karna Small, and broadcast from Washington, D.C., under the auspices of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Small left the show late in 1980 to join President Reagan's press staff; she was succeeded by Meryl Comer.

IT'S YOUR MOVE NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1984–16 MARCH 1985; 1 JUNE 1985–10 AUGUST 1985 This half-hour sitcom was created for Jason Bateman (brother of Family Ties's Justine Bateman), who had been a regular on Silver Spoons. Here he played Matthew Burton, a teenaged con artist who lived in an apartment with his widowed mother. Caren Kaye played his patient mom, Eileen, a legal secretary who began to date a struggling writer, Norman Lamb (played by David Garrison), who had just moved into their building from Chicago; much to Matthew's chagrin, Norman proved to be every bit as crafty as Matthew. Also on hand were Tricia Cast as Julie Burton, Matthew's older sister; Adam Sadowski as Eli, Matthew's pal; and Ernie Sabella as Lou Donatelli, the building manager. After the cancellation of It's Your Move, Jason Bateman went on to greater fame in Valerie (later known as The Hogan Family).

IVAN THE TERRIBLE CBS

21 AUGUST 1976–18 SEPTEMBER 1976 Forgettable five-week summer sitcom about a group of nine Muscovites living in a small apartment. I'VE GOT A SECRET CBS/SYNDICATED

19 JUNE 1952–3 APRIL 1967 (CBS); 1972 (SYNDICATED); 15 JUNE 1976–6 JULY 1976 (CBS) On this popular prime-time game show the celebrity panelists tried to guess the guests' secrets. The guest whispered his secret to the host, and the secret was superimposed on the screen for the home audience. Top prize on the 1952–1967 network version was only $80 (and a carton of Winstons), so the show was played mainly for laughs; each week a celebrity guest also came on to try to stump the panel. Garry Moore hosted the show from 1952 until 1964, when he was succeeded by Steve Allen. Often seen on the celebrity panel were Bill Cullen, Betsy Palmer, Henry Morgan, Bess Myerson, Steve Allen, and Jayne Meadows. Steve Allen also hosted the 1972 syndicated version; Bill Cullen emceed the 1976 network version. The show was a Mark Goodson-Bill Todman Production. Allan Sherman, who created the show with Howard Merrill, was on the production staff from 1952 to 1956 and devised many of the celebrity "secrets" used on the show during that period; Sherman became more famous in 1963 with his hit record "My Son the Folk Singer." Gil Fates, who was the producer of Goodson-Todman's other popular game show, What's My Line?, served as executive producer. In his autobiography Fates recalled that the original set for Secret was a courtroom, but it proved to be so unworkable that it was burned after the 1952 premiere.

J. J. STARBUCK NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1987–27 FEBRUARY 1988; 28 JUNE 1988–17 AUGUST 1988 Dale Robertson had the title role in this unsuccessful hour adventure series from Stephen J. Cannell Productions. As Jerome Jeremiah Starbuck, homespun San Antonio billionaire and founder of Marklee Industries, he drove around the country in his vintage Lincoln Continental convertible helping out people in need. Jimmy Dean played Starbuck's executive assistant, Charlie Bullets (David Huddleston played the role in the premiere). Occasionally featured was Shawn Weatherly as Jill, J. J.'s niece. In February 1988 Ben Vereen joined the cast as Starbuck's sidekick, E. L. "Tenspeed" Turner; Vereen had played the same character in the 1980 Stephen J. Cannell series Tenspeed and Brown Shoe. Although the series was set in San Antonio, it was actually filmed in Vancouver.

JABBERJAW ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1976–3 SEPTEMBER 1978 Weekend cartoon series set in 2076 about a giant shark (Jabberjaw) who was the drummer for a rock group known as the Neptunes: Biff, Bubbles, Clam-Head, and Shelly. The creature was later featured on Yogi's Space Race: see Yogi Bear.

JACK AND MIKE ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1986–28 MAY 1987 A Yuppie Chicago couple was the centerpiece of this hour comedy-drama. Shelley Hack and Tom Mason starred as Jackie ("Jack") Shea, a syndicated columnist for the Chicago Mirror, and Mike Brennan, a successful restaurateur. Also on hand were Jacqueline Brookes as Nora Adler, Jackie's editor; Kevin Dunn as Anthony, another reporter; Holly Fulger as Carol, a waitress at Mike's newest eatery; Noelle Bou-sliman as Belinda; and Mills Watson as Max.

THE JACK BENNY PROGRAM CBS/NBC

28 OCTOBER 1950–15 SEPTEMBER 1964 (CBS); 25 SEPTEMBER 1964–10 SEPTEMBER 1965 (NBC) One of America's best-loved comedians, Jack Benny proved almost as durable on television as he had on radio. His half-hour show transcended the boundary between variety and situation comedy—some shows featured guest stars who sang or danced, and other shows consisted of just one sketch, performed by Benny and his company of regulars.

Benny entered television cautiously, testing the waters with four shows spread out during the 1950–1951 season; the following season he appeared six times, and gradually increased his appearances to twenty in 1954–1955, and to thirty-nine by 1960–1961. Benny succeeded in landing many top stars on his shows; guests during the first season included Ken Murray (28 October 1950), Frank Sinatra (28 January 1951), Claudette Colbert and Basil Rathbone (1 April 1951). A young comedian named Johnny Carson, newly arrived in Los Angeles, made one of his earliest national appearances in 1952. Marilyn Monroe and Humphrey Bogart made their TV debuts during the 1953–1954 season, and it is reported that Benny came close to signing the elusive Clark Gable for a guest shot.

From the beginning Benny relied heavily on a group of supporting players, many of whom had been with him for years on radio. The group included Eddie Anderson as his gravel-voiced valet, Rochester Van Jones; hefty Don Wilson as his announcer; singer Dennis Day; Mel Blanc (the voice of Bugs Bunny) as his violin teacher; Mary Livingstone (Benny's wife); and Frank Nelson as the man who said "Yeeeesssss!" Occasionally seen were Hy Averback, Bea Benaderet, Barry Gordon (as the boyhood Jack Benny), Sandra Gould, Burt Mustin (as the guard of Benny's vaults), Benny Rubin, Herb Vigran, and Dale White (as Don Wilson's son, Harlow).

For most of its run on CBS the show was seen on Sundays, alternating with This Is Show Business through January 1953; from February 1953 through 1957 it alternated with Ann Sothern's sitcom, Private Secretary. It then shared a slot with Bachelor Father for two seasons and with The George Gobel Show for one season. In the fall of 1960 it first appeared as a weekly series and moved to Tuesdays in 1962. When CBS dropped the show in 1964, NBC, the network that had lost Benny to CBS in 1949, picked it up and scheduled it on Fridays; the show did poorly and was canceled after one season. Thereafter Benny headlined several specials and frequently appeared on talk shows. The executive producer of his show (for the first several seasons) was Ralph Levy, and its producer was Hilliard Marks, Benny's brother-in-law. Principal writers included Sam Perrin, George Balzer, Hal Goldman, and Al Gordon.

THE JACK CARSON SHOW NBC

22 OCTOBER 1954–11 MARCH 1955 Comedian Jack Carson, who often hosted such variety hours as The Colgate Comedy Hour and All-Star Revue, also had his own half-hour series in 1954, which was scheduled as an occasional replacement for The Red Buttons Show on Fridays.

JACK CARTER AND COMPANY ABC

12 MARCH 1949–21 APRIL 1949 This half-hour variety show featured comedian Jack Carter, comedienne Elaine Stritch, Sonny King, and Rowena Rollin. Kenny Lyons was the producer and Sean Dillon the director.

THE JACK PAAR SHOW CBS

13 NOVEMBER 1953–2 JULY 1954; 17 JULY 1954–4 SEPTEMBER 1954; 4 JULY 1955–25 MAY 1956 Before succeeding Steve Allen as host of the Tonight show in 1957, Jack Paar had gained considerable experience as host of several daytime shows (he also emceed a quiz show, Bank on the Stars). The first of the daytime series was seen Friday mornings as a weekly replacement for Arthur Godfrey Time. It featured singers Edith Adams (later known as Edie Adams), Richard Hayes, and Jack Haskell, pianist José Melis (an old Army buddy of Paar's), and the Pupi Campo Orchestra. In July of 1954 he and his crew moved to a Saturday-evening slot, and in August Paar moved to an earlier time slot, succeeding Walter Cronkite as host of The Morning Show (see also that title), CBS's answer to the Today show. After a year on that show, Paar surfaced in an afternoon slot, hosting a Monday-through-Friday half hour. It featured Adams, Haskell, Melis, and announcer Hal Simms.

THE JACK PAAR SHOW (THE JACK PAAR PROGRAM) NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1962–10 SEPTEMBER 1965 After leaving the daily grind of the Tonight show in March, 1962, Jack Paar returned that fall as host of a Friday-night variety series. Frequent guests included British humorist Alexander King and American comedian Jonathan Winters; music was provided by the José Melis Orchestra. Paar's program was the first American variety show to present the Beatles—film clips of the foursome were shown on 3 January 1964, more than a month before the group's famous "debut" on The Ed Sullivan Show.

JACK PAAR TONITE ABC

8 JANUARY 1973–16 NOVEMBER 1973 Jack Paar returned to late night TV after an eleven-year absence on a one-week-per-month basis; his ninety-minute talk show was part of ABC's umbrella series, ABC's Wide World of Entertainment. Peggy Cass was Paar's announcer and sidekick. Freddie Prinze, the future star of Chico and the Man, made his TV debut on 18 October.

JACK THE RIPPER SYNDICATED

1974 This British miniseries was a fictional reopening of the series of murders that shocked London in the 1880s; two modern-day detectives, using the sophisticated techniques of twentieth-century criminology, tried to solve the crimes. Sebastian Cabot hosted the series, which featured Alan Stratford-Johns as Detective Chief Superintendent Barlow and Frank Windsor as Detective Chief Superintendent Watt.

THE JACKIE GLEASON SHOW (THE HONEYMOONERS) (JACKIE GLEASON AND HIS AMERICAN SCENE MAGAZINE) CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1952–22 JUNE 1957; 3 OCTOBER 1958–2 JANUARY 1959; 3 FEBRUARY 1961–24 MARCH 1961; 29 SEPTEMBER 1962–12 SEPTEMBER 1970 Jackie Gleason, television's rotund showman, was a fixture on CBS for most of two decades. His series-within-a-series, The Honeymooners, was one of TV's all-time classic comedies, and its syndicated reruns thrive today. With experience in vaudeville, Broadway, and films already under his considerable belt, Gleason entered television in 1949 in the first version of The Life of Riley (dropped by NBC after twenty-six weeks, it reappeared in 1953 with William Bendix). The following season he began to appear regularly on Cavalcade of Stars, a variety hour broadcast on the DuMont network. There Gleason introduced to television audiences many of the characters he had developed: the insufferably wealthy Reggie Van Gleason III, The Poor Soul, Joe the Bartender, Charley the Loudmouth, Rudy the Repairman, Pedro the Mexican, Stanley R. Sogg, Fenwick Babbit, Father and Son, The Ham, and Rum Dum. He also introduced a running sketch entitled "The Honeymooners," which was an immediate hit with viewers. Cavalcade of Stars soon became one of the most popular shows on the limited DuMont network, and Gleason attracted the attention of CBS. In 1952 he accepted CBS's offer to star in his own variety hour. The network originally planned to schedule Gleason either on Tuesdays opposite Milton Berle on NBC or on Saturdays opposite Sid Caesar's Your Show of Shows. Shortly before the start of the 1952 season, however, the network decided to put the show into an earlier slot on Saturdays, where it remained for the next five years. From 1952 until 1955, the show ran a full hour; each one started with a production number staged by the June Taylor Dancers, following which "The Great One" (Gleason) made his entrance. During his short monologue Gleason managed to interject some of his favorite phrases—"How sweet it is," "And away we go," or "A little traveling music, please."

The main event of the evening filled the second half hour—the Honeymooners sketch. These were usually done with little rehearsal (Gleason was well known as a quick study), but the chemistry among the players was strong enough to overcome any difficulty that might arise on stage. Gleason played Ralph Kramden, a New York bus driver living in a small apartment with his wife of fifteen years. Audrey Meadows costarred as his weary wife, Alice (the part was first played by Pert Kelton on Cavalcade of Stars). Art Carney, a comic and character actor with some television experience, provided the perfect foil for Kramden as Ralph's friend and upstairs neighbor, Ed Norton, a city sewer worker. Norton's apparent dimwittedness was balanced by a certain grace and imperturbability, and these qualities offset Kramden's impatience and hot temper. Joyce Randolph rounded out the foursome as Norton's doting wife, and Alice's best friend, Trixie Norton.

Almost all of the action took place on a sparsely furnished set: the Kramdens' living room contained little more than a bureau, table and chairs, sink, stove, and icebox. Rarely did additional characters appear (Joyce Randolph did not even appear in some sketches), and rarely were any needed; the timing and interaction of the regulars worked almost magically.

During the 1955–1956 season thirty-nine Honeymooners were filmed before a live audience. These thirty-nine half hours, produced at the rate of two a week, were scheduled Saturdays at 8:30. The show returned to an hour variety format (with a Honeymooners sketch) in the fall of 1956. The show finally left the air in June of 1957 (Gleason himself missed the last three shows). In the fall of 1958 he returned in a live half-hour series scheduled on Fridays. That effort, which also featured Buddy Hackett, vanished in midseason. Gleason was again seen Friday nights in 1961 as host of a game show, You're in the Picture. One of the biggest flops in TV history, the show was axed—by Gleason—after a single week. Gleason appeared the following week and apologized to viewers for "that bomb." Early in February the show was retitled The Jackie Gleason Show and continued for a few weeks as a half-hour talk show.

In the fall of 1962 Gleason was back to a Saturday slot, which he occupied for another eight seasons. From 1962 to 1966 it was called Jackie Gleason and His American Scene Magazine, and featured topical comedy sketches as well as musical numbers. One of Gleason's characters, Joe the Bartender, appeared regularly. Addressing the camera as his patron, ("Hiya, Mr. Dunahy!"), Joe told a few jokes before calling out the tipsy Crazy Guggenham from the back room. Guggenham, played by Frank Fontaine, traded quips with Joe and then sang a song. Sue Ane Langdon, later to costar in Arnie, was also featured regularly, and singer Wayne Newton made some of his earliest television appearances on the show.

In 1966 Gleason moved the operation to Miami Beach (where he could indulge in his favorite pastime, golf, all year round). The "magazine" concept was dropped, and the show was retitled The Jackie Gleason Show. For the first time in almost a decade, production of The Honeymooners was resumed. Gleason was reunited with Art Carney; Sheila MacRae and Jane Kean were added to play Alice and Trixie. Many of these later Honeymooners sketches ran a full hour, and the accent was now on music. Lyn Duddy and Jerry Bresler composed several original numbers a week for the show, many of which were performed by the Honeymooners crew. Jack Philbin was executive producer of the series, and Ronald Wayne produced it. Frank Bunetta was the director.

Gleason made few TV appearances since 1970, though some Honeymooners episodes were rerun on CBS during the winter of 1970–1971. On 2 February 1976, he was again reunited with Art Carney, Audrey Meadows, and Jane Kean in an ABC special, "The Honeymooners—The Second Honeymoon," celebrating the Kramdens' twenty-fifth television anniversary. The thirty-nine filmed Honeymooners episodes from the 1955–1956 season were among the most popular, and most exhaustively rerun, programs of all time. Early in 1985, to the delight of legions of Honeymooners fans, Gleason announced the "discovery" of scores of old Honeymooners sketches; the latter batch had been performed live between 1952 and 1957 and were of varying lengths. They were packaged into half hours; fifty programs were licensed first to the Showtime cable network and were subsequently made available in sydication (together with another twenty-five half hours). To promote the "new" shows, Gleason and Audrey Meadows hosted "The Honeymooners Reunion" on 13 May 1985 (NBC), introducing clips from these long-lost programs. The even older episodes, with Pert Kelton, finally resurfaced on television 26 May 1994, when The Disney Channel aired "The Honeymooners Really Lost Debut Episodes".

After Gleason's death in 1988, CBS televised a prime-time tribute, "Jackie Gleason: The Great One," on 17 September of that year.

THE JACKIE THOMAS SHOW ABC

1 DECEMBER 1992–30 MARCH 1993 Much-publicized, and ultimately unsuccessful, sitcom created for Tom Arnold, the onetime meatpacker and standup comic who was married to Roseanne (Barr) (Arnold) at the time. Employing the show-within-a-show format, it starred Arnold as Jackie Thomas, the thoughtless, egotistical star of a highly rated sitcom, "The Jackie Thomas Show" (in which Jackie played a butcher). Also featured were Dennis Boutsikaris as Jerry Harper, the newest in a succession of head writers for the show; Alison LaPlaca as Jerry's assistant, Laura Miller; Paul Feig as Bobby Wynn, the young writer; Michael Boatman as writer Grant Watson; Maryedith Burrell as writer Nancy Mincher-Bates; Martin Mull as Doug Talbot, the network liaison; Jeannetta Arnette as actress Sophie Ford, who played Jackie's wife; and Breckin Meyer as actor Chas Walker, who played Jackie's teenage son. The Jackie Thomas Show ranked 14th in the 1992–1993 prime time Nielsen ratings; except for Cheers, it was the highest rated series not to be renewed. Instead, Arnold (and costar LaPlaca) moved to CBS, where he headlined a second unsuccessful sitcom: see Tom.

JACKPOT NBC

7 JANUARY 1974–26 SEPTEMBER 1975 Daytime game show on which fifteen contestants, chosen from the studio audience, competed for a top prize of $50,000 by trying to answer riddles. Geoff Edwards was the host, and Bob Stewart was the executive producer.

JACKPOT BOWLING STARRING MILTON BERLE NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1960–13 MARCH 1961 Having signed a thirty-year contract with NBC in 1951, Milton Berle starred in two series after The Milton Berle Show left the air in 1956. The first was the Kraft Music Hall in 1958, and the second was this half-hour sports series, broadcast live from Legion Lanes in Hollywood. Each week competitors bowled in two nine-frame matches, with a cash bonus for hitting six consecutive strikes. Veteran sportscaster Chick Hearn handled the play by play, and Berle sandwiched comedy bits between frames. Produced by Buddy Arnold and directed by Dave Brown, the show was dropped after twenty-six weeks.

JACK'S PLACE ABC
26 MAY 1992–7 JULY 1992; 14 JANUARY 1993–11 FEBRUARY 1993; 8 JUNE 1993–13 JULY 1993 Hour dramatic series about an ex-musician who opened a restaurant. With Hal Linden as Jack Evans; Finola Hughes as waitress Chelsea Duffy; John Dye as bartender Greg Toback; and Amanda Peterson as Greg's girlfriend, Elodie.

THE JACKSON 5IVE ABC
11 SEPTEMBER 1971–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Saturday-morning cartoon series about the Jackson Five, a real-life rock group from Gary, Indiana, discovered in 1968 (legend has it by Diana Ross). The voices of the five Jackson brothers—Michael, Marlon, Jackie, Tito, and Jermaine—were used.

THE JACKSONS CBS
16 JUNE 1976–7 JULY 1976; 26 JANUARY 1977–9 MARCH 1977 The Jacksons, several of whom had previously been seen in cartoon form on TV, hosted a half-hour variety series which first appeared during the summer of 1976 and resurfaced briefly early in 1977. Eight of the nine Jackson children appeared on the show—brothers Michael, Marlon, Jackie, Tito, and Randy, and sisters Maureen (Rebie), La Toya, and Janet; brother Jermaine, an original member of The Jackson Five, had left the group previously to pursue a solo recording career. Additional regulars included Jim Samuels and Marty Cohen on the 1976 show, and Johnny Dark on the 1977 show. The Jacksons danced at least as well as they sang—choreography was handled by Anita Mann. Their father, Joe Jackson, was executive producer of the series with Richard Arons.

THE JACOBS BROTHERS SYNDICATED
1975 Religious music with a country flavor, performed by the Jacobs Brothers Quartet.

JACQUELINE SUSANN'S OPEN DOOR DUMONT
7 MAY 1951–18 JUNE 1951 Though Jacqueline Susann is best remembered for her novels, she also appeared frequently on television in its early days; she was married to producer Irving Mansfield and was a regular on The Morey Amsterdam Show in 1948. In 1951 she hosted her own show, Jacqueline Susann's Open Door, a late-night weekly program on which she interviewed celebrities and also introduced persons who were looking for jobs. George Scheck produced the series. In 1952 she was featured on a daytime game show, Your Surprise Store, and in 1953 she hosted a local talk show in New York.

JACQUES FRAY'S MUSIC ROOM ABC
19 FEBRUARY 1949–9 OCTOBER 1949 Sunday-night half-hour musical series, hosted by Jacques Fray.

JAG NBC
23 SEPTEMBER 1995– Hour dramatic series starring David James Elliott as Lt. Harmon Rabb, Jr., and Tracey Needham as Lt. Meg Austin, two lawyers assigned to the United States Navy Judge Advocate General's Office. The JAG lawyers were subject to assignment anywhere in the world. Andrea Parker played the role of Rabb's partner, Lt. Kate Pike, in the series' two-hour pilot episode, but was replaced by Needham thereafter.

JAKE AND THE FATMAN CBS
26 SEPTEMBER 1987–7 SEPTEMBER 1988; 15 MARCH 1989–22 AUGUST 1992 Hour crime show starring William Conrad as a portly prosecutor, Jason (J. L.) McCabe, and Joe Penny as his investigator, Jake Styles, with Alan Campbell as Derek Mitchell, a rookie D.A. who assisted McCabe. McCabe also had a pet bulldog, Max, who rather resembled him. During the 1987–1988 season the show was set in California and also featured Lu Leonard as Gertrude, McCabe's secretary. The show was renewed as a "backup" series for the following season. When it resurfaced in March 1989 production had moved to Hawaii; McCabe became a prosecutor in that state and brought Styles and Mitchell with him. Olga Russell joined the cast as McCabe's secretary, Lisbeth Berkeley-Smythe. Production was again shifted back to California in the fall of 1990.

JAMBO NBC

6 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 Saturday-morning series of animal films and stories, hosted and narrated by Marshall Thompson, formerly the star of Daktari; assisting Thompson was another Daktari alumna, Judy the chimp.

JAMES AT 15 (JAMES AT 16) NBC

27 OCTOBER 1977–27 JULY 1978 Family drama about a teenager who moved from Oregon to suburban Boston with his family. With Lance Kerwin as James Hunter; Linden Chiles as his father, Paul, a college professor; Lynn Carlin as his mother, Joan; David Hubbard as Sly (Ludwig Hazeltine), James's jive-talking black friend; Susan Myers as Marlene, James's intellectual friend; Kim Richards as James's sister, Sandy; and Deirdre Berthrong as James's sister Kathy. The show's first executive producers, Martin Manulis and Joe Hardy, were replaced in December 1977 by Ron Rubin. Its head writer, novelist Dan Wakefield, quit the show in a dispute with the network on the treatment of the show aired 9 February 1978 (on that date the title was changed to James at 16), in which young James had a love affair with a Swedish exchange student. NBC's Broadcast Standards department refused to allow the word responsible (Wakefield's carefully chosen euphemism for birth control) to be used.

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–30 AUGUST 1975 A Saturday-morning cartoon spinoff from I Dream of Jeannie; the animated Jeannie was discovered not by an astronaut, but by a high school student, Corey Anders. From Hanna-Barbera Productions.

THE JEFF FOXWORTHY SHOW ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1995– Standup comic Jeff Foxworthy, a Southerner whose act consisted of telling "Redneck" jokes, was given his own sitcom in 1995. He played Jeff Foxworthy, a down-to-earth Southern family man who lived in Bloomington, Indiana, where he ran a heating and air conditioning business. Also featured were Anita Barone as his wife, Karen, a nurse; Haley Joel Osment as their young son, Matt; Matt Clark as Walt Bacon, who worked for Jeff; Matt Borlenghi as Russ Francis, who also worked for Jeff; Sue Murphy as Karen's best friend and co-worker, Sandi; Steve Hytner as the Foxworthys' snooty neighbor, Craig Lesco; Dakin Matthews as Karen's father, Elliot; and Bibi Besch as Karen's mother, Lois.

JEFFERSON DRUM NBC

25 APRIL 1958–23 APRIL 1959 Half-hour western about a crusading newspaper editor. With Jeff Richards as Jefferson Drum, a man who headed for San Francisco after his wife was murdered and his newspaper destroyed in another town; on his way west Drum stopped in the town of Jubilee and decided to take over its paper when he learned that the former publisher had been murdered. Also featured were Eugene Martin as his young son, Joey; Cyril Delevanti as the old typesetter, Lucius Coin; and Robert J. Stevenson as Big Ed, Drum's friend. Jefferson Drum was one of the few dramatic series put together by game show producers Mark Goodson and Bill Todman.

THE JEFFERSONS CBS

18 JANUARY 1975–23 JULY 1985 In this spinoff from All in the Family, the Bunkers' black neighbors—the Jeffersons—moved from Queens to Manhattan's East Side. The half-hour sitcom starred Sherman Hemsley as George Jefferson, owner of a chain of successful cleaning stores, and a short-tempered, know-it-all bigot, and Isabel Sanford as Louise Jefferson, his tolerant and forgiving wife. Mike Evans played their son, Lionel, until September of 1975, when he was succeeded by Damon Evans (no relation); and Zara Cully played George's doting mother, Mama Jefferson, until her death early in 1978. Also featured were Franklin Cover and Roxie Roker as Tom and Helen Willis, the Jeffersons' neighbors (the Willises were the first racially mixed married couple to be featured on a prime-time series); Berlinda

Tolbert as Jenny Willis, their daughter; Paul Benedict (1975–1981; 1983–1985) as Harry Bentley, an eccentric neighbor employed as a United Nations translator; Marla Gibbs (1976–1985) as Florence Johnston, the Jeffersons' sassy maid; Ned Wertimer (1976–1985) as Ralph Hart, the obsequious doorman; Ernest Harden, Jr., (1977–1978) as Marcus Wilson, a young man employed at one of George's stores; and Jay Hammer (1978–1979) as Allan Willis, Tom's son. In December of 1976 Lionel and Jenny were married; though Damon Evans left the show in the fall of 1978, Berlinda Tolbert continued to appear. Mike Evans returned to play Lionel in the fall of 1979. Lionel and Jenny's baby, Jessica, was born in the spring of 1980. In the spring of 1981 Marla Gibbs starred in a short-lived spinoff, Checking In. Lionel and Jenny were separated in 1981, and Mike Evans no longer appeared as a regular. In 1984 Ebonie Smith joined the cast as their daughter, Jessica, now a school-age youngster. The Jeffersons was created by Don Nicholl, Michael Ross, and Bernie West, and developed by Norman Lear.

JEM SYNDICATED

1986–1987 Half-hour cartoon series based on the Hasbro doll line and underwritten by the toy company. The main character was a young woman named Jerica, who could transform herself into Jem, a super-powered rock star. Assisted by her back-up singers, the Holograms, Jem battled the Misfits, an evil rock group led by Pizzazz. Britta Phillips provided the voice of Jem, Ellen Bernfeld that of Pizzazz.

JENNIFER SLEPT HERE NBC

21 OCTOBER 1983–29 AUGUST 1984 This half-hour sitcom was reminiscent of Topper, the classic 1950s series. As in Topper, a family moved into a house that was still occupied by the ghost of its former owner; again as in Topper, the ghost could be seen and heard by only one member of the new family. Ann Jillian starred as the ghost, Jennifer Farrell, an actress who had died in her prime about five years previously; she revealed herself to a fourteen-year-old boy, Joey Elliot (played by John P. Navin, Jr.), and used her influence to help the lad through puberty; Brandon Maggart played Joey's father, George Elliot, the lawyer for Farrell's estate; Georgia Engel played Joey's mother, Susan Elliot; Mya Akerling played Joey's little sister, Marilyn; and Glenn Scarpelli (late of One Day at a Time) appeared as the next-door neighbor, Marc, a teenaged hustler.

JENNY JONES SYNDICATED

1991– Hour daytime talk show taped in Chicago and hosted by effervescent Jenny Jones, a former standup comic, former game show contestant, former backup singer for Wayne Newton, and former winner on Star Search. The show made headlines in March 1995 when, after the taping of a program on "secret admirers," one guest allegedly killed another. After learning—onstage—that his secret admirer was a man, Jonathan Schmitz allegedly drove to the house of the admirer, Scott Amedure, three days later and killed him. In a rare display of good taste, the producers opted not to televise the program. A sample of fare from April and May 1995 included topics such as "Exotic Dancers Quarrel," "Women Who Stick with Their Cheating Men," "Sexy Twins," "Aspiring Male Dancers," and "Overweight Mothers' Fashion Faux Pas."

JEOPARDY! NBC/SYNDICATED/ABC

30 MARCH 1964–3 JANUARY 1975 (NBC); 1974 (SYNDICATED); 2 OCTOBER 1978–2 MARCH 1979 (NBC); 1984– (SYNDICATED); 16 JUNE 1990–8 SEPTEMBER 1990 (ABC) This "answer and question" game show enjoyed a long daytime run on NBC. Art Fleming hosted the series, on which three contestants competed for cash by supplying the correct questions to answers uncovered on a board of thirty squares, containing five answers in each of six categories. At the end of the show ("Final Jeopardy"), contestants could wager up to all of their winnings on one answer. The series was developed by Merv Griffin and produced by his production company. The 1978 version of the series was similar to the earlier version; three contestants competed in the first round, but only two contestants moved on to the second round. The

"final jeopardy" round was also modified so that only one player participated. When the series returned in 1984, with Alex Trebek as host, it had reverted to its original format; by the end of the decade it had become one of the most popular first-run syndicated series. The 1990 network prime-time version titled Super Jeopardy! and also hosted by Trebek, was a twelve-week invitational tournament pitting big-money champions from the 1984–1990 syndication years. The grand prize winner took home $250,000.

JERICHO CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1966–19 JANUARY 1967 One of the lesser-known World War II dramas, Jericho featured a trio of Allied agents who usually worked behind German lines. With Don Francks as Franklin Shepard, an American who was an expert in psychological warfare; John Leyton as Nicholas Gage, a Britisher whose specialty was demolition; and Marino Mase as Jean-Gaston André, a Frenchman whose forte was munitions. Dan Melnick and Norman Felton produced the hour-long series.

THE JERRY COLONNA SHOW ABC

28 MAY 1951–17 NOVEMBER 1951 Half-hour variety series hosted by Jerry Colonna, a mustachioed comic who had worked with Bob Hope on the latter's radio series.

JERRY FALWELL SYNDICATED

1971– Evangelist Jerry Falwell, the founder and president of Moral Majority, hosts this half-hour religious program, usually taped at one of his revival meetings. Although the show has been shown on as many as 370 stations, it has had financial problems. The New York Times noted in 1980 that Falwell had asked his audience (by letter) for $5 million to sustain the show. In its early seasons the show was titled The Old-Time Gospel Hour. Falwell was untouched by the scandals that plagued other televangelists such as Jim Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart. Indeed, after resigning from The P.T.L. Club, Jim Bakker asked Falwell to take over the organization. Falwell examined the P.T.L. books, and Bakker was soon indicted.

THE JERRY LESTER SHOW ABC

28 SEPTEMBER 1953–14 MAY 1954 Jerry Lester, the comedian who had hosted Broadway Open House, later hosted his own daytime show. Also featured were singer and violinist Leon Belasco, and vocalists Lorenzo Fuller, Kathy Collin, and Ellie Russell. The hour-long show was produced by Vernon Becker and Milton Stanson.

THE JERRY LEWIS SHOW ABC/NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1963–21 DECEMBER 1963 (ABC); 12 SEPTEMBER 1967–27 MAY 1969 (NBC) After breaking up with partner Dean Martin in 1956, Jerry Lewis appeared little on TV for the next seven years, concentrating instead on films. In 1963 it was reported that he had signed a five-year, $35-million deal with ABC; that fall he hosted a live, two-hour variety-talk show, which proved to be an enormous failure. In 1967 he returned to host an hour-long variety show on NBC, which was somewhat more successful; Bob Finkel produced it.

THE JERRY REED WHEN YOU'RE HOT YOU'RE HOT HOUR CBS

20 JUNE 1972–25 JULY 1972 A summer replacement for The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, hosted by country-and-western singer Jerry Reed, whose record, "When You're Hot, You're Hot," was a hit a year earlier. Other regulars included John Twomey, Spencer Quinn, Cal Wilson, Norman Andrews, and eighty-three-year-old Merie Earle.

JERRY SPRINGER SYNDICATED

1992– Hour daytime talk show hosted by Jerry Springer, the former mayor of Cincinnati. Among the topics presented during April and May 1995 were "Strip Club Denizens," "Mate Swappers," "Pimps and Prostitutes," "Twins," and "Judge Ito Look-Alike."

JERRY VISITS SYNDICATED

1971–1973 Celebrities were interviewed in their homes by Jerry Dunphy on this half-hour talk show.

JESSE HAWKES CBS

26 APRIL 1989–27 MAY 1989 Three of the stars of the 1988 adventure series High Mountain Rangers left the high Sierras for San Francisco in this short-lived crime show. With Robert Conrad as Jesse Hawkes; Christian Conrad as his son Matt Hawkes; and Shane Conrad as his son Cody Hawkes.

THE JESSE JACKSON SHOW SYNDICATED/CNN

1990–1991 (SYNDICATED); 4 JANUARY 1992–25 SEPTEMBER 1993 (CNN) Politician Jesse Jackson was the host of a syndicated weekly, issue-oriented hour talk show. In 1992 he presided over a similar half-hour on CNN, Both Sides with Jesse Jackson.

JESSICA NOVAK CBS

5 NOVEMBER 1981–3 DECEMBER 1981 An early fatality of the 1981–1982 season, this hour dramatic series starred Helen Shaver as TV news reporter Jessica Novak, and featured David Spielberg as her boss, Maxwell Kenyon, the news director at KLA-TV in Los Angeles; Andrew Rubin as Phil Bonelli, her camera operator; Eric Kilpatrick as Ricky Duran, her sound recordist; and Nina Wilcox as Audrey Stiles, her editor.

JESSIE ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1984–13 NOVEMBER 1984 Only seven episodes of this ill-fated police show were broadcast. It starred Lindsay Wagner as Dr. Jessie Hayden, a psychiatrist assigned to a city police department, and featured Tony Lo Bianco as Lieutenant Alex Ascoli; Celeste Holm as her mother, Molly Hayden; James David Hinton as Phil; Renee Jones as Ellie; and Tom Nolan as Hubbell. Production of the series was temporarily halted at MGM/UA after four episodes had been produced, and a new production crew, headed by David Gerber, was brought in. Resuscitation efforts proved to be in vain, however.

JET JACKSON

See CAPTAIN MIDNIGHT

THE JETSONS ABC/CBS/NBC/SYNDICATED

Nighttime: 23 SEPTEMBER 1962–8 SEPTEMBER 1963 (ABC); Daytime: 21 SEPTEMBER 1963–18 APRIL 1964 (ABC); 26 SEPTEMBER 1964–18 SEPTEMBER 1965 (CBS); 2 OCTOBER 1965–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 (NBC); 13 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 (CBS); 11 SEPTEMBER 1971–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 (NBC); 3 FEBRUARY 1979–5 SEPTEMBER 1981 (NBC); 18 SEPTEMBER 1982–2 APRIL 1983 (NBC); 1985 (SYNDICATED); 1987 (SYNDICATED) This durable cartoon series was the Space Age counterpart of Hanna-Barbera's Stone Age smash, The Flintstones; the Jetsons—George, Jane, Judy, and Elroy—lived in the ultramodern world of the twenty-first century. The series was seen in prime time on ABC for one season and on Saturday mornings over all three networks for many seasons thereafter. The voices of the Jetsons were provided by the Hanna-Barbera regulars: George O'Hanlon as George, Penny Singleton as Jane, Janet Waldo as Judy, Daws Butler as Elroy, Don Messick as Astro, the family dog, and Mel Blanc as Cosmo Spacely, George's boss at Spacely Space Age Sprockets. In 1985 and in 1987 new episodes were produced to supplement the batch made twenty-three years previously; a new pet, Orbitty, joined the Jetsons.

In the summer of 1990 the space-age family made their motion picture debut in Jetsons: The Movie.

JEWELER'S SHOWCASE (YOUR JEWELER'S SHOWCASE) SYNDICATED

1952 This half-hour dramatic anthology series was sponsored by the International Silver Company and the Hamilton Watch Company.

JIGSAW ABC

21 SEPTEMBER 1972–11 AUGUST 1973 One segment of ABC's adventure trilogy, The Men, Jigsaw alternated with Assignment: Vienna and The Delphi Bureau. It starred James Wainwright as Lieutenant Frank Dain, an investigator for the California bureau of missing persons.

JIGSAW JOHN NBC

2 FEBRUARY 1976–13 SEPTEMBER 1976 Crime show based on the exploits of real-life police investigator John St. John. With Jack Warden as John St. John, Los Angeles cop; Alan Feinstein as Sam Donner, his partner; Pippa Scott as Maggie Hearn, John's friend, a schoolteacher; Marjorie Bennett as Mrs. Cooley; and James Hong as Frank Chen. The hour-long series was created by Al Martinez, and produced by Ronald Austin and James Buchanan.

THE JIM BACKUS SHOW (HOT OFF THE WIRE) SYNDICATED

1960 Situation comedy starring Jim Backus as John Michael (Mike) O'Toole, editor of a newspaper struggling to keep afloat; Nita Talbot as Dora, his gal Friday; and Bobs Watson as Sidney, the office boy.

JIM BOWIE (THE ADVENTURES OF JIM BOWIE) ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1956–29 AUGUST 1958 Half-hour western starring Scott Forbes as Jim Bowie, the nineteenth-century American adventurer who invented the knife that bears his name. Criticism of the frequent use of the knife on the series led to a cutback of violence on Jim Bowie. Though Forbes (who was British by birth) was the only regular on the show, he did not appear in all the episodes. Louis Edelman produced the series.

THE JIM HENSON HOUR NBC

14 APRIL 1989–30 JULY 1989 Puppeteer extraordinaire Jim Henson created this hour prime-time series, which consisted of two discrete half-hour segments: the first resembled The Muppet Show, presenting skits and songs featuring the Muppets and guest stars, while the second presented a story, with live actors, narrated by John Hurt.

JIM HENSON'S MUPPET BABIES

see MUPPET BABIES

THE JIM NABORS HOUR CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1969–20 MAY 1971 Hour-long variety series hosted by Jim Nabors, the singer-comedian who got his start on The Andy Griffith Show and later starred in a spinoff, Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C. Nabors brought with him a couple of his Gomer Pyle costars, Frank Sutton and Ronnie Schell. Also on hand were Karen Morrow and the Nabors Kids. Richard O. Linke was the executive producer.

THE JIM NABORS SHOW SYNDICATED

1978 Talk show hosted by Jim Nabors. Executive producers: Carolyn Raskin and Larry Thompson. Producers: Ken Harris and Charles Colarusso.

THE JIM STAFFORD SHOW ABC

30 JULY 1975–3 SEPTEMBER 1975 Six-week summer variety series starring Jim Stafford, a country singer who had had a minor hit with "My Girl Bill." Other regulars included Valerie Curtin, Tom Biener, Deborah Allen, Richard Stahl, Phil MacKenzie, Jeanne Sheffield, and Cyndi Wood. Executive producers: Phil Gernhard and Tony Scotti. Producers: Rich Eustis and Al Rogers.

JIM THOMAS OUTDOORS SYNDICATED

1976 A series for sportsmen, with emphasis on hunting and fishing, hosted by Jim Thomas.

THE JIMMIE RODGERS SHOW NBC/CBS

31 MARCH 1959–8 SEPTEMBER 1959 (NBC); 16 JUNE 1969–1 SEPTEMBER 1969 (CBS) Country and western singer Jimmie Rodgers ("Honeycomb" was his biggest hit, recorded in 1957) hosted two variety series. The first was a half-hour show, which featured Connie Francis, the Kirby Stone Four, The Clay Warnick Singers, and the Buddy Morrow Orchestra. The second, an hour-long series, was a summer replacement for The Carol Burnett Show, and featured Burnett regulars Vicki Lawrence and Lyle Waggoner, plus Don Crichton, Bill Fanning, Nancy Austin, the Burgundy Street Singers, and the Frank Comstock Orchestra.

JIMMY BRESLIN'S PEOPLE ABC

25 SEPTEMBER 1986–2 JANUARY 1987 Syndicated columnist Jimmy Breslin tried his hand at a late-night talk show, shown after Nightline two nights a week.

THE JIMMY DEAN SHOW CBS/ABC/SYNDICATED

Daytime: 8 APRIL 1957–26 JUNE 1959 (CBS); Nighttime: 22 JUNE 1957–14 SEPTEMBER 1957 (CBS); 19 SEPTEMBER 1963–1 APRIL 1966 (ABC); 1974 (SYNDICATED) Country and western singer Jimmy Dean first hosted a local show on WTOP-TV in Washington, D.C. He attracted network attention and was given a daytime spot in the spring of 1957—the early-morning show originated from Washington and was aired six days a week for part of its two-year run. During the summer of 1957 Dean hosted a Saturday-night variety show, returning to the daytime grind that fall. Assisting him were Jan Crockett, Mary Klick, Jo Davis, ventriloquist Alex Houston, the Texas Wildcats, the Country Lads, the Noteworthies, and the Joel Herron Orchestra. In 1963 Dean hosted a prime-time hour variety series on ABC, which lasted three seasons. Regulars included Karen Morrow, Molly Bee, Chuck McCann, the Chuck Cassey Singers, and Rowlf the Muppet, the first of the puppet creations of Jim Henson to be featured on national TV (Rowlf was operated by Jim Henson and Frank Oznowicz).

JIMMY DURANTE PRESENTS THE LENNON SISTERS HOUR ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1969–4 JULY 1970 Hour-long variety series starring seventy-six-year-old Jimmy Durante and the singing Lennon Sisters (Dianne, Janet, Kathy, and Peggy), who were featured on The Lawrence Welk Show for many years. Executive producer: Harold Cohen. Producers: Bernie Kukoff and Jeff Harris.

THE JIMMY DURANTE SHOW NBC

2 OCTOBER 1954–23 JUNE 1956 This half-hour variety show was seen on Saturday nights; during its first season it alternated with The Donald O'Connor Show. Joining "The Schnozz" were three of his longtime compatriots—Eddie Jackson, his former vaudeville partner (together with the late Lou Clayton), pianist Jules Buffano, and drummer Jack Roth. The show was set at the Club Durant, and also featured the Durante Girls.

JIMMY HUGHES, ROOKIE COP DUMONT

8 MAY 1953–3 JULY 1953 Half-hour crime show starring William Redfield as Jimmy Hughes, a young Korean War veteran who joined the New York police force, hoping to find the slayers of his father, also a cop. The cast also included Rusty Lane as Inspector Ferguson, Jimmy's mentor, and Wendy Drew as Jimmy's sister. Barry Shear directed the series.

THE JIMMY STEWART SHOW NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1971–27 AUGUST 1972 Situation comedy starring Jimmy Stewart as Jim Howard, professor of anthropology at Josiah Kessel College, a man caught in the generation gap. Also featured were Julie Adams as his wife, Martha Howard; Jonathan Daly as P. J. Howard, their twenty-nine-year-old son; Ellen Geer as Wendy, P. J.'s wife; Kirby Furlong as Jake, P. J. and Wendy's eight-year-old son; Dennis Larson as Teddy, Jim and Martha's eight-year-old son and Jake's uncle; and John McGiver as Luther Quince, a faculty colleague of Jim's. Like many other major film stars, Jimmy Stewart seemed unable to find the right vehicle for himself on TV; neither this show nor his second series—Hawkins—caught on with viewers. Warner Brothers produced the series.

JIMMY SWAGGART SYNDICATED

1977– Half-hour religious show hosted by evangelist Jimmy Swaggart and produced by the Jimmy Swaggart Evangelistic Association, first in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, later in New Orleans. Swaggart played a major role in the ouster of rival televangelist Jim Bakker and his P.T.L. Club. Earlier, Swaggart had forced Marvin Gorman, a local New Orleans TV evangelist, to resign his ministry after revealing Gorman's adultery. Gorman turned the tables on Swaggart early in 1988 by arranging to have photos taken of Swaggart and a New Orleans prostitute. A tearful Swaggart announced to his congregation in February, "I have sinned," and stepped down from his ministry. Three months later he returned, however, but by that time his TV show had lost many of its affiliates.

THE JO STAFFORD SHOW CBS/SYNDICATED

2 FEBRUARY 1954–28 JUNE 1955 (CBS); 1962 (SYNDICATED) Jo Stafford, whose recording career began in 1944 (her biggest hit was probably "You Belong to Me" in 1952), hosted a fifteen-minute musical show seen Tuesdays after the network news. She was backed up by the Starlighters, and music was provided by the orchestra led by her husband, Paul Weston. In 1962 she hosted a second musical series, taped in London, and distributed by ITC.

THE JOAN EDWARDS SHOW DUMONT

4 JULY 1950–24 OCTOBER 1950 A twice-weekly, fifteen-minute musical series hosted by Joan Edwards. Martin Goodman was the producer, Dick Sandwick the director.

THE JOAN RIVERS SHOW (THAT SHOW) SYNDICATED

1969 Half-hour talk show hosted by comedienne Joan Rivers; typically, each show featured a celebrity guest and someone with an unusual hobby or talent.

THE JOAN RIVERS SHOW SYNDICATED

1989–1993 Two and a half years after the demise of her late-night talk show on the Fox network, Joan Rivers returned to the airwaves as the host of an hour talk show, intended for morning time slots. As of 30 April 1990 the show was offered live to affiliated stations; Rivers's guest on the first live broadcast was fellow daytime talkmaster Phil Donahue. Following the demise of her talk show, Rivers tested the home-shopping arena: see Can We Shop?

JOANIE LOVES CHACHI ABC

23 MARCH 1982–13 APRIL 1982; 2 SEPTEMBER 1982–23 DECEMBER 1982; 17 MAY 1983–13 SEPTEMBER 1983 In this spinoff from Happy Days, Joanie Cunningham and her boyfriend, Charles "Chachi" Arcola, left Milwaukee for Chicago (where they would live with his mom and her new husband) and started a rock and roll band. Leaving Happy Days were Erin Moran as Joanie, and Scott Baio as Chachi; also leaving was Al Molinaro as Al Delvecchio, who married Chachi's mother, Louisa (played by Ellen Travolta), and opened an Italian restaurant with her in Chicago. Art Metrano costarred as Louisa's unsavory relative, Uncle Rico. Featured in Joanie and Chachi's band were Derrel Maury as Mario; Winifred Freedman as Annette; and Robert Peirce as Bingo, the drummer. Joanie Loves Chachi is a good example of the lack of correlation between a popular spring tryout and a popular full-season show. When the series was introduced for four weeks in the spring of 1982, it was immensely popular, finishing in a tie for fourth in the 1981–1982 seasonal Nielsens (it should be noted that its competition at that time was mainly reruns). When it returned in the fall of 1982, it flopped, ranking a dismal 68th in the 1982–1983 ratings, and was lifted from the network's schedule in December. Moran, Baio, and Molinaro returned to Happy Days the following season.

JOANNE CARSON'S V.I.P.'S SYNDICATED
1973 Half-hour talk show set in a kitchen, hosted by Joanne Carson, the second wife (and second ex-wife) of America's foremost talk show host, Johnny Carson.

JOE AND MABEL CBS
20 SEPTEMBER 1955–25 SEPTEMBER 1956 Half-hour filmed sitcom about a New York cabbie and his marriage-minded girlfriend. With Larry Blyden as Joe Sparton; Nita Talbot as Mabel Stooler, a manicurist; Luella Gear as Mrs. Stooler, Mabel's mother; Michael Mann as Sherman Stooler, Mabel's brother; and Shirl Conway as Dolly, a friend of Mabel's. Alex Gottlieb was producer and head writer of the show, which was directed by Ezra Stone (he'd played Henry Aldrich on radio) and packaged by David Susskind. The show was seen for only a few weeks during the fall of 1955, returning to the air 26 June 1956.

JOE AND SONS CBS
9 SEPTEMBER 1975–13 JANUARY 1976 The only TV series set in Hoboken, N.J., Joe and Sons was a situation comedy about a widower and his two sons. With Richard Castellano as Joe Vitale, who ran a screw press; Barry Miller as Mark, the older son; Jimmy Baio as Nick, the younger son; Jerry Stiller as Gus Duzik, Joe's buddy; Bobbi Jordan as Estelle, Joe's neighbor; and Florence Stanley as Josephine, Joe's sister. Executive producer: Douglas S. Cramer. Producers: Bernie Kukoff and Jeff Harris.

JOE AND VALERIE NBC
24 APRIL 1978–10 MAY 1978; 5 JANUARY 1979–19 JANUARY 1979 A half-hour sitcom, Joe and Valerie surfaced for two short runs. The 1978 version took its cue from the film Saturday Night Fever and featured disco sequences; the 1979 version abandoned the disco element and concentrated on the wedding plans of the two principals. With Paul Regina as Joe Pizo, a young Brooklynite; Char Fontane as Valerie Sweetzer, his dancing partner and fiancée; David Elliott as Joe's pal Paulie, a hearse driver; Bill Beyers (1978) and Lloyd Alann (1979) as Joe's friend Frank; Robert Costanzo as Joe's widowed father, Vince Pizo, a plumber; Pat Benson (1978) and Arlene Golonka (1979) as Valerie's divorced mother, Stella Sweetzer; and Donna Ponterotto as Valerie's friend, Thelma. Linda Hope (daughter of Bob Hope) was the executive producer.

JOE BASH ABC
28 MARCH 1986–10 MAY 1986 Danny Arnold's dark comedy about a cynical old cop bore little resemblance to his earlier police sitcom, Barney Miller. Here, Peter Boyle played Joe Bash, a streetwise cop from New York's 33rd Precinct who was nearing retirement when he was assigned an eager young partner, Willie Smith (played by Andrew Rubin).

JOE FORRESTER NBC
9 SEPTEMBER 1975–30 AUGUST 1976 An hour-long cop show which, like CBS's The Blue Knight, told the story of a veteran patrolman. With Lloyd Bridges as Officer Joe Forrester; Eddie Egan (a former New York cop) as Sergeant Bernie Vincent; Pat Crowley as Georgia Cameron, Joe's romantic interest; Dwan Smith as Jolene Jackson, one of Joe's street informants; and Taylor Lacher as Detective Will Carson. On 6 May 1975, the pilot for the series, "The Return of Joe Forrester," was shown on Police Story. David Gerber was executive producer of the series, which was produced by Mark Rodgers and James H. Brown.

JOE GARAGIOLA'S MEMORY GAME NBC
15 FEBRUARY 1971–30 JULY 1971 Daytime game show on which the five contestants were shown lists of questions and answers, and then quizzed by host Joe Garagiola.

THE JOE NAMATH SHOW SYNDICATED
1969 Short-lived talk show cohosted by Joe Namath (then quarterback for the New York Jets) and sportswriter Dick Schaap.

THE JOE PALOOKA STORY SYNDICATED

1954 Ham Fisher's cartoon pugilist came to life briefly on television in this low-budget syndicated series. It featured Joe Kirkwood, Jr., as Joe Palooka, the honest and upright, if not quick-witted, boxing champ; Cathy Downs as Ann Howe, his girlfriend; Sid Tomack and Luis Van Rooten as his manager, Knobby Walsh; and "Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom as his trainer, Clyde.

THE JOE PYNE SHOW SYNDICATED

1965–1967 Characterized by its host as a "fist-in-the-mouth" talk show, The Joe Pyne Show was a two-hour parade of eccentrics, crackpots, and controversial guests. Chain-smoking Joe Pyne delighted in insulting most of his guests, as well as members of the studio audience, who were given the chance to state their views at the outset of each show. Pyne began his show locally in Los Angeles on KTTV and attracted attention from the beginning. During the Watts riots of 1965, a black militant guested; Pyne opened his desk drawer to reveal a revolver, whereupon the guest drew back his coat to show that he, too, was armed. Another guest, wanted by the police, was arrested on camera. George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi Party, and Marguerite Oswald, mother of Lee Harvey Oswald, also appeared on the show. Robert Hayward was the producer. For a later version of the "fist-in-the-mouth" genre, see The Morton Downey, Jr., Show.

JOE'S LIFE ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1993–15 DECEMBER 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a laid-off defense worker who ran the household while his wife worked as a temp. With Peter Onorati as Joe Gennaro; Mary Page Keller as Sandy Gennaro; Spencer Klein as son Scott; Robert Hy Gorman as son Paul; Morgan Nagler as daughter Amy; George DiCenzo as Stan, Joe's brother, who ran a restaurant where Joe worked evenings; Mimi Kennedy as Stan's wife, Barb; Danny Masterson as Stan and Barb's teenage son, Leo; and Marshall Jones as Ray Wharton, who worked for Stan.

JOE'S WORLD NBC

28 JANUARY 1979–2 JANUARY 1980; 10 MAY 1980–26 JULY 1980 Ramon Bieri starred in this half-hour sitcom as Joe Wabash, the foreman of a union painting crew in Detroit. Also featured were K Callan as his wife, Katie Wabash; Christopher Knight as their son, Steve, one of Joe's crew; Melissa Sherman as teenage daughter Maggie; Michael Sharrett as son Jimmy; Missy Francis as daughter Linda; Ari Zeltzer as son Rick; Russ Banham as Brad, another crew member, who dated Maggie; and Misty Rowe as Judy, also a crew member.

JOEY AND DAD CBS

6 JULY 1975–27 JULY 1975 A four-week summer replacement for Cher, starring singer-dancer Joey Heatherton and her father, Ray Heatherton, who was better known to many New Yorkers as host of a 1950s kids' show, The Merry Mailman. Other regulars included Henny Youngman, Pat Paulsen, and Pat Proft. Executive producers: Allan Blye and Bob Einstein. Producers: Bob Arnott, Coslough Johnson, and Stan Jacobson.

THE JOEY BISHOP SHOW NBC/CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1961–5 SEPTEMBER 1964 (NBC); 27 SEPTEMBER 1964–7 SEPTEMBER 1965 (CBS) This situation comedy, produced by Danny Thomas's Bellmar Productions, changed both formats and networks during its four-year run. The pilot for the series, "Everything Happens to Me," was aired on Thomas's Make Room for Daddy on 27 March 1961. During the 1961–1962 season Joey played Joey Barnes, a publicist; he was unmarried. Also featured were Joe Flynn as Frank, his brother-in-law; Marlo Thomas (in her first continuing role) as Stella, Joey's sister, an aspiring actress; Virginia Vincent as his sister Betty; Warren Berlinger as his brother, Larry; Madge Blake as his mother, the widowed Mrs. Barnes; John Griggs as J. R. Willoughby, his boss; and Nancy Hadley as Barbara, Joey's girlfriend. A new format was adopted for the second season, and the show was retitled The New Joey Bishop Show. Bishop continued to play Joey Barnes, but Barnes was now a married man, employed as a nightclub comedian and host of a TV show. Gone were all the old regulars, and joining the cast were Abby Dalton as his wife, Ellie; Guy Marks (1962–1963) as his manager, Freddy; Corbett Monica (1963–1965) as Larry, his next manager; Joe Besser as Mr. Jillson, his landlord; and Mary Treen (1962–1965) as Hilda, the maid and nanny for Joey and Ellie's baby boy, Joey Jr. (played by Matthew David Smith). The second format lasted three seasons—two on NBC and one on CBS.

THE JOEY BISHOP SHOW ABC

17 APRIL 1967–26 DECEMBER 1969 Comedian Joey Bishop took over the host's chair on ABC's late night talk show in 1967; the chair had first been occupied by Les Crane (when the show was known as The Les Crane Show), and later by a succession of guest hosts (when it was called Nightlife). Though Bishop had had considerable experience as a talk show host, having substituted many times for NBC's Johnny Carson, he was unable to lure enough viewers away from the Tonight show; late in 1969 Bishop was succeeded by Dick Cavett. Bishop's sidekick for the two-and-a-half-year run was Regis Philbin, with music provided by Johnny Mann and His Merry Men.

THE JOHN BYNER COMEDY HOUR CBS

1 AUGUST 1972–29 AUGUST 1972 Five-week summer variety hour hosted by comedian John Byner, featuring Patti Deutsch, R. G. Brown, Linda Sublette, Gary Miller, and Dennis Flannigan.

THE JOHN DAVIDSON SHOW NBC/ABC

(THE KRAFT SUMMER MUSIC HALL)

6 JUNE 1966–29 AUGUST 1966 (NBC); 30 MAY 1969–5 SEPTEMBER 1969 (ABC); 24 MAY 1976–14 JUNE 1976 (NBC) Singer John Davidson has hosted three prime-time variety hours. The first was titled The Kraft Summer Music Hall and featured George Carlin, the Lively Set, the 5 King Cousins, and Jackie and Gayle. The latter two shows were both known as The John Davidson Show. The 1969 show was taped in London and featured Rich Little, Mireille Mathieu, and Amy McDonald. The 1976 show featured comedian Pete Barbutti; its executive producers were Alan Bernard and Dick Clark.

THE JOHN DAVIDSON SHOW SYNDICATED

1980–1982 Group W Broadcasting abruptly dropped Mike Douglas as the host of its syndicated talk show, The Mike Douglas Show, and replaced him with John Davidson, retitling the show, of course.

THE JOHN FORSYTHE SHOW NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1965–29 AUGUST 1966 The John Forsythe Show began as a situation comedy, starring John Forsythe as Major John Foster, an Air Force veteran who inherited the Foster School for Girls from his late Aunt Victoria. Also featured were Elsa Lanchester as Miss Culver, the principal; Ann B. Davis as Miss Wilson, the gym teacher; Guy Marks as Ed Robbins, John's aide, formerly a sergeant. The students included Pamelyn Ferdin as Pamela; Darleen Carr as Kathy; Page Forsythe (John's daughter) as Marcia; Brook Forsythe (also John's daughter) as Norma Jean; Peggy Lipton (later of Mod Squad) as Joanna; Tracy Stratford as Susan; and Sara Ballantine as Janice: In midseason that format was scrapped, and the show changed from a sitcom to a spy show. It was explained that Major Foster had been "recalled" to active duty and had become a secret agent; all the regulars except for John Forsythe and Guy Marks were dropped. Peter Kortner produced the series.

THE JOHN GARY SHOW CBS/SYNDICATED

22 JUNE 1966–7 SEPTEMBER 1966 (CBS); 1968 (SYNDICATED) The first of pop singer John Gary's variety hours was a summer replacement for The Danny Kaye Show and featured the Mitchell Ayres Orchestra, the Jimmy Joyce Singers, and the Jack Regas Dancers. The second show was a syndicated effort and featured Sammy Spear's Orchestra.

THE JOHN LARROQUETTE SHOW NBC

2 SEPTEMBER 1993– A year after completing nine seasons on Night Court, John Larroquette returned to star in his own sitcom. This time he played John Hemingway, a recovering alcoholic who landed a job as night manager of the Crossroads Bus Terminal in St. Louis, frequented by a motley assortment of people (Larroquette himself was also a recovering alcoholic). Also aboard were Liz Torres as Mahalia Sanchez, the assistant manager; Gigi Rice as Carly Watkins, the friendly hooker; Daryl "Chill" Mitchell as Dexter, the angry young black man who ran the snack bar; Chi McBride as Heavy Gene, the janitor; Lenny Clarke as Officer Hampton, the cop; Elizabeth Berridge as Hampton's partner, Officer Eggers; Bill Morey as Oscar, a demented homeless person who hung around the terminal; David Shawn Michaels (1993–1994) as Teddi, the transvestite; Glenn Shadix (1993–1994) as Walker, the cynical bartender who was pessimistic about John's ability to stay sober; and David Crosby (1993–1994) as Chester, John's AA sponsor. Occasionally featured were Donna Mills as Carol, one of John's ex-wives, and Omri Katz as Tony, John's son. The series was scheduled on Wednesdays opposite ABC's Roseanne during its first season, and scored reasonably well enough in the ratings to warrant renewal. Unfortunately, it faced even tougher competition during its second season opposite ABC's Home Improvement on Tuesdays. Alison LaPlaca joined the cast in the fall of 1994 as nurse Catherine Merrick, John's neighbor and love interest, and Carly quit the world's oldest profession to purchase the bus terminal's bar. In the fall of 1995 Mayim Bialik (late of Blossom) became a regular as John's daughter, Rachel, and the series acquired a lighter look when the crew moved from the night shift to the day shift.

JOHNNY B. ON THE LOOSE SYNDICATED

1991 Short-lived comedy-talk show from Chicago, hosted by disc jockey Jonathon Brandmeier.

JOHNNY BAGO CBS

25 JUNE 1993–6 AUGUST 1993 Lighthearted hour series about an ex-con framed for murder who jumped into a Winnebago camper and drove off, pursued by the mob and by his ex-wife, who was also his parole officer. It starred Peter Dobson as Johnny Tenuti (aka Johnny Bago) and Rose Abdoo as his pursuer, Beverly Florio. The series was aired during prime time on the dates shown above, and also on CBS's late-night schedule between 30 June and 18 August.

THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW CBS

30 JUNE 1955–29 MARCH 1956; 28 MAY 1956–28 SEPTEMBER 1956 Johnny Carson, who later became famous as the host of the Tonight show, also hosted two game shows (Earn Your Vacation and Who Do You Trust) as well as these two variety shows. The first show, a Thursday-night half-hour series, featured Jill Corey, Virginia Gibson, and Barbara Ruick. Broadcast from Hollywood, it went through several changes of directors and writers before expiring after thirty-nine weeks. Carson, aged thirty, then hosted a daytime half-hour show which replaced The Robert Q. Lewis Show. Also featured were Glenn Turnbull, Betty Holt, Tommy Leonetti, and the New Yorkers. Both programs showcased the young comedian's puckish style and frequently featured parodies of current films and commercials.

THE JOHNNY CASH SHOW ABC
7 JUNE 1969–27 SEPTEMBER 1969; 21 JANUARY 1970–5 MAY 1971

JOHNNY CASH AND FRIENDS CBS
29 AUGUST 1976–19 SEPTEMBER 1976 Both of Johnny Cash's variety series were taped at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. The first—The Johnny Cash Show—was introduced as a summer series and returned later as a midseason replacement. In addition to Cash it featured June Carter Cash (his wife), Carl Perkins, The Carter Family, the Statler Brothers, and the Tennessee Three. The second show—Johnny Cash and Friends—was a summer series and featured Cash, June Carter Cash, Steve Martin, Jim Varney, and Howard Mann. It was produced by Joseph Cates.

THE JOHNNY DUGAN SHOW NBC
19 MAY 1952–5 SEPTEMBER 1952 Daytime variety half-hour, broadcast from Hollywood, featuring singers Johnny Dugan, Barbara Logan, and Arch Presby.

THE JOHNNY JOHNSTON SHOW CBS
22 JANUARY 1951–9 FEBRUARY 1951 Short-lived, forty-five-minute daytime variety show with singers Johnny Johnston and Rosemary Clooney.

JOHNNY JUPITER DUMONT/ABC
21 MARCH 1953–13 JUNE 1953 (DUMONT); 5 SEPTEMBER 1953–29 MAY 1954 (ABC) On this imaginative kids' show an Earthling was able to communicate with the inhabitants of Jupiter. On the DuMont version, Vaughn Taylor starred as Ernest P. Duckweather, a television studio janitor who stumbled upon interplanetary TV. On the ABC version Wright King played Duckweather, who was then employed as a store clerk whose hobby was electronics. Jerry Coopersmith wrote and produced the series; Frank Bunetta directed. The Jupiterians were all puppets: Johnny Jupiter, B-12, and Major Domo, B-12's robot. Carl Harms was the puppeteer, and Gilbert Mack supplied the voices. Also featured on the latter version were Pat Peardon as Duckweather's girlfriend, and Cliff Hall as her father, Duckweather's boss.

JOHNNY MIDNIGHT SYNDICATED
1960 Standard crime show starring Edmond O'Brien as New York private eye, and ex-actor, Johnny Midnight. Also featured were Arthur Batanides as Sergeant Olivera; Barney Phillips as Lieutenant Geller; and Yuki Shimoda as Aki, Midnight's manservant. Jack Chertok produced the series.

JOHNNY OLSON'S RUMPUS ROOM DUMONT
17 JANUARY 1949–4 JULY 1952 Daytime variety and audience participation show hosted by Johnny Olson. Olson is better remembered as the announcer on numerous game shows, including What's My Line? and I've Got a Secret.

JOHNNY RINGO CBS
1 OCTOBER 1959–29 SEPTEMBER 1960 Half-hour western starring Don Durant as Johnny Ringo, an ex-gunslinger who became the sheriff of Velardi, Arizona. Ringo kept a lid on trouble with the help of his trusty firearm, a LeMat Special with two barrels—one fired six .45 caliber rounds, and the other held a shotgun shell. Durant himself wrote and sang the show's theme. Also featured were Mark Goddard as his young deputy, Cully; Karen Sharpe as Ringo's girlfriend, Laura Thomas; and Terence de Marney as oldtimer Case Thomas, Laura's father, owner of the general store (Sharpe and de Marney were dropped from the cast in March 1960). Aaron Spelling produced the series for Four Star Films.

JOHNS HOPKINS FILE 7 SYNDICATED

1956–1958 Lynn Poole, faculty member of Johns Hopkins University, hosted both of these public affairs shows, which were produced at WAAM-TV in Baltimore.

JOKEBOOK NBC

23 APRIL 1982–7 MAY 1982 A rare prime-time cartoon series, Jokebook consisted of several animated skits put together by Hanna-Barbera Studios. Among the regular segments were "The Nerd," "Eve and Adam," "WindUps," and "Treeman."

THE JOKER'S WILD CBS/SYNDICATED

4 SEPTEMBER 1972–13 JUNE 1975 (CBS); 1976–1986; 1990–1991 (SYNDICATED) Jack Barry originally hosted this game show on which two contestants took turns spinning devices that resembled slot machines for the chance to answer questions worth $50, $100, or $150. The first player to win $500 then had the chance to go for as much as $25,000. Barry's longtime partner, Dan Enright, was the executive producer of the series, which had a three-year daytime run on CBS before going into syndication. In 1980 a children's version appeared in syndication, titled Joker! Joker!! Joker!!! After Barry's death in May 1984, Bill Cullen took over as the host of The Joker's Wild. Pat Finn emceed the 1990 revival.

THE JON STEWART SHOW SYNDICATED

1994–1995 Hour daily talk show, intended for late-night time slots and hosted by Jon Stewart, with sidekick Howard Feller. Stewart had previously hosted two series on MTV: You Wrote It, You Watch It, and a talk show similar to this one, also titled The Jon Stewart Show.

THE JONATHAN WINTERS SHOW NBC/CBS

2 OCTOBER 1956–25 JUNE 1957 (NBC); 27 DECEMBER 1967–22 MAY 1969 (CBS) Jonathan Winters, an inventive and improvisational funny man, appeared on many variety shows during the early 1950s, including The Garry Moore Show and Tonight. In 1955 he was a regular on a summer variety series, And Here's the Show. In the fall of 1956 he was given his own fifteen-minute show on Tuesdays before the evening news; this was the first network entertainment series to use videotape regularly. Late in 1967 he returned as host of a Wednesday-night variety hour, which replaced Dundee and the Culhane. Joining him were Abby Dalton (who often played his wife in sketches), Cliff Arquette (as Charley Weaver), Pamela Rodgers, Alice Ghostley, and Paul Lynde. Winters later starred in a syndicated show: see The Wacky World of Jonathan Winters.

JONES & JURY SYNDICATED

1994–1995 Half-hour daily talk show hosted by Star Jones. The studio audience served as the show's "jury," voting on how best to settle disputes between the parties who appeared on the program.

JONNY QUEST (THE ADVENTURES OF JONNY QUEST) ABC/CBS/NBC

18 SEPTEMBER 1964–9 SEPTEMBER 1965 (ABC); 9 SEPTEMBER 1967–5 SEPTEMBER 1970 (CBS); 13 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 (ABC); 8 SEPTEMBER 1979–3 NOVEMBER 1979 (NBC); 12 APRIL 1980–6 SEPTEMBER 1981 (NBC) Hanna-Barbera cartoon series about a young boy—Jonny Quest—who accompanied his father, Dr. Benton Quest, a famous detective, on global adventures, along with pilot Race Bannon and Hadji. Tim Matheson provided the voice of Jonny; John Stephenson and, later, Don Messick, were the voice of Benton. Like several other Hanna-Barbera shows (The Jetsons, Top Cat, etc.), Jonny Quest was seen in prime time on ABC, and on weekend mornings over the other networks. The characters returned to television in an animated TV-movie, "Jonny's Golden Quest" (4 April 1993, USA).

JOSEPH CAMPBELL AND THE POWER OF MYTH PBS

1 JULY 1988–5 AUGUST 1988 Though public television is often criticized for its boring documentary fare, this remarkable six-hour series demonstrated that "talking heads" television can indeed be exciting. Here, in a series of discussions edited into one-hour segments, Bill Moyers explored the meaning of mythology and its relevance in modern society with scholar Joseph Campbell, who died shortly after the taping was completed.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF (THE FRED ALLEN SHOW) NBC

18 AUGUST 1953–11 MAY 1954 Prime-time game show that began with Fred Allen as host and featured a panel of three celebrities and three members of the studio audience which judged talent acts; during its early weeks it was also known as The Fred Allen Show. In January the format was changed as Dennis James took over the hosting duties: The panel rated songs, which were performed by Kitty Kallen and Bob Carroll and the Skylarks. The series was a Mark Goodson-Bill Todman Production.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF SYNDICATED

1994–1995 Attorney Bill Handel hosted this hour daily talk show. Its gimmick was that a "jury" was selected from the studio audience, and cast its votes on either side of the day's topic of discussion.

JUDGE ROY BEAN SYNDICATED

1956 Half-hour western set in Langtry, Texas, a town named for actress Lillie Langtry. Starring Edgar Buchanan as Judge Roy Bean, "the law west of the Pecos." With Jack Beutel as Jeff Taggert, his right-hand man; Jackie Loughery as Letty, his niece; and Russell Hayden as Steve, a Texas ranger. Judge Bean, a real-life character, was later the subject of a 1972 motion picture, The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean, starring Paul Newman.

THE JUDY GARLAND SHOW CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1963–29 MARCH 1964 CBS had high hopes for this musical hour, but backstage problems and competition from NBC's Bonanza (the number-two-rated show that season) combined to ensure its doom. Much was done to keep the star happy—Judy Garland's dressing room even had a yellow brick road painted on it. Taping began in June 1963 with George Schlatter as executive producer; network officials, however, were unhappy after watching previews of the first shows, and Schlatter was replaced after five hours had been completed (the shows were not broadcast in the order in which they had been taped). Norman Jewison, who had produced and directed many musical-comedy specials, became the new executive producer and Gary Smith the new producer. Mort Lindsey lasted through the entire season as musical director, but Mel Tormé, an old friend of Garland's who had been hired to do her vocal arrangements, left in the winter after Bobby Cole had been brought aboard. Despite the production problems, there were several noteworthy shows, including one that featured Ethel Merman and Barbra Streisand, another with Danny Kaye, one with Garland's two daughters (Lorna Luft and Liza Minnelli), and one or two solo concerts. Mel Tormé also appeared occasionally, and Jerry Van Dyke was featured as a regular.

THE JUDY LYNN SHOW SYNDICATED

1969–1971 Half-hour country-and-western music show, hosted by singer Judy Lynn.

JUDY SPLINTERS NBC

13 JUNE 1949–30 JUNE 1950 This weekday puppet show originated from Los Angeles, where it began locally in 1948. The puppeteer, Shirley Dinsdale, was TV's first Emmy winner.

JUKE-BOX SYNDICATED

1978–1980 Half-hour rock music show hosted first by Twiggy, the famous fashion model of the 1960s, and later by Britt Ekland.

JUKEBOX JURY ABC/SYNDICATED

13 SEPTEMBER 1953–28 MARCH 1954 (ABC); 1959 (SYNDICATED) Peter Potter hosted this game show on which a celebrity panel rated new records and predicted whether each recording would be a hit or a miss. For many years the show was seen locally in Los Angeles.

JULIA NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1968–25 MAY 1971 The first TV series since Beulah to star a black woman, Julia was a half-hour situation comedy about a widowed nurse trying to raise her young son. Diahann Carroll, a singer with motion picture experience, starred as Julia Baker; her husband, an Air Force pilot, had been killed in Vietnam, and she took a job as a nurse at an aerospace company in Los Angeles. Also featured were Marc Copage (who was six when the show began) as her son, Corey; Lloyd Nolan as Dr. Morton Chegley, her boss; Lurene Tuttle as Hannah Yarby, chief nurse at the plant; Michael Link as Earl J. Waggedorn, Corey's best friend; Betty Beaird as Marie Waggedorn, Earl's mom; Hank Brandt as Leonard Waggedorn, Earl's dad; Eddie Quillan as Eddie Edwards, a plant employee; Mary Wickes as Melba Chegley, Dr. Chegley's wife; Ned Glass as Julia's landlord, Sol Cooper; Alison Mills (1968–1969) as Carol Deering, a mother's helper who assisted Julia; Virginia Capers (1968–1969) as Mrs. Deering, Carol's mother; Paul Winfield (1969–1970) as Julia's occasional boyfriend, Paul Cameron; Fred Williamson (1970–1971) as Julia's boyfriend, Steve Bruce, a widower; Stephanie James as Kim, Steve's four-year-old daughter; Janear Hines (1970–1971) as babysitter Roberta; and Richard Steele (1970–1971) as Richard, a friend of Corey's. Produced by Hal Kanter for 20th Century-Fox.

JULIA CHILD & COMPANY PBS

1978–1979 Half-hour cooking show, hosted by Julia Child, the star of The French Chef.

JULIE ABC

JUST FRIENDS CBS
4 MARCH 1979–11 AUGUST 1979 Officially titled Stockard Channing in Just Friends, this half-hour sitcom starred Stockard Channing as Susan Hughes, a woman who left her husband in Boston to find a new life for herself in Los Angeles. Also featured were Mimi Kennedy as her sister, Victoria; Gerrit Graham as Leonard Scribner, her new neighbor; Lou Criscuolo as Milt D'Angelo, owner of the Beverly Hills Fountain of Youth Health Spa, where Susan got a job; Albert Insinnia as Angelo D'Angelo, Milt's son; and Sydney Goldsmith as Coral, a co-worker at the health spa. Executive producer: David Debin for Little Bear Productions. Though Just Friends left the air in August 1979, it remained in production as a potential midseason replacement. See also The Stockard Channing Show.

THE JUST GENERATION PBS
1 OCTOBER 1972–24 DECEMBER 1972 Thirteen-part informational series on the law, hosted by Howard Miller, with help from the Ace Trucking Company.

JUST IN TIME ABC
6 APRIL 1988–18 MAY 1988 A six-episode half-hour sitcom set at the offices of a magazine, West Coast Review, where the new editor and the top columnist found themselves at odds professionally, but attracted to each other personally. With Tim Matheson as editor Harry Stadlin; Patricia Kalember as political columnist Joanna Farrell; Kevin Scannell as sports columnist Jack Manning; Alan Blumenfeld as Steven Birnbaum, Harry's assistant; Ronnie Claire Edwards as secretary Carly Hightower; and Nada Despotovich as the rookie office assistant Isabel Miller. Fred Barron created the series. ABC would have better luck a year later with a sitcom set at a magazine: see Anything But Love.

JUST MEN! NBC

3 JANUARY 1983–1 APRIL 1983 Betty White hosted this daytime game show, on which two female contestants tried to win money by predicting the answers of a panel of seven male celebrities.

JUST OUR LUCK ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1983–27 DECEMBER 1983 In this half-hour sitcom a bumbling TV weather forecaster bought an old bottle at a flea market; when he got it home, the bottle opened and out popped Shabu, a black genie, unleashed after 196 years in the bottle. The cast included T. K. Carter as the hip genie, Shabu, who swore allegiance to the weatherman; Richard Gilliland as the KPOX-TV weatherman, Keith Burrows; Ellen Maxted as Keith's superior, program director Meagan Huxley; Rod McCary as Meagan's fiance, Nelson Marriott, manager of the station; Hamilton Camp as Professor Bob, another on-the-air personality; Leonard Simon as Jim Dexter, the news anchorman; and Richard Schaal as Keith's neighbor, Chuck. Lawrence Gordon and Charles Gordon created the series, which was assailed by many civil rights organizations for its characterization of a black as the thankful servant of a white. The N.A.A.C.P. announced in October that it had won some changes in the show's content, including the addition of Leonard Simon (a black) to the cast, the assignment of some scripts to black writers, the deletion of the words "master" and "servant" from the dialogue, and less "jive talk" from Shabu.

JUST THE TEN OF US ABC

26 APRIL 1988–17 MAY 1988; 23 SEPTEMBER 1988–26 JULY 1990 In this sitcom, spun off from Growing Pains, Bill Kirchenbauer starred as Coach Graham T. Lubbock, who, with his large family, left Long Island for Eureka, California, and a position at St. Augustine Academy for Boys. Also featured were Deborah Harmon as his wife, Elizabeth; Heather Langenkamp as daughter Marie; Brooke Theiss as daughter Wendy; Jamie Luner as daughter Cindy; Jo Ann Willette as daughter Constance; Heidi Zeigler as daughter Sherry; Matt Shakman as son Graham Jr.; Jeremy and Jason Korstjens as Toddler Harvey (Baby Melissa was the tenth Lubbock); and Frank Bonner as Father Hargis. By special arrangement, Lubbock was able to have his daughters attend the all-boys school. By the end of the 1988–1989 season the four oldest daughters had formed a singing group, the Lubbock Babes, who performed frequently on the show.

JUSTICE NBC

8 APRIL 1954–25 MARCH 1956 Half-hour dramatic series about lawyers for the Legal Aid Society of New York. With Dane Clark (1954–1955) and William Prince (1955–1956) as Richard Adams; and Gary Merrill (1954–1955) as Jason Tyler.

JUVENILE JURY NBC/CBS/SYNDICATED

3 APRIL 1947–28 SEPTEMBER 1953 (NBC); 11 OCTOBER 1953–14 SEPTEMBER 1954 (CBS); 2 JANUARY 1955–27 MARCH 1955 (NBC); 1970 (SYNDICATED) A panel of youngsters dispensed unrehearsed advice to questions sent in by viewers. Jack Barry, who created the series and brought it to radio in 1946, hosted the several television versions and produced it with his partner, Dan Enright. The duo later went into game shows, producing such programs as Twenty-One, Tic Tac Dough, and The Joker's Wild. Barry also hosted a popular children's show during the 1950s: see Winky Dink and You. In 1983 a new version of Juvenile Jury, with Nipsey Russell as host, was produced for the Black Entertainment Television cable service.

THE KAISER ALUMINUM HOUR NBC

3 JULY 1956–18 JUNE 1957 This hour-long dramatic anthology series alternated with Armstrong Circle Theater on Tuesdays and is one of the several dramatic shows which comprised TV's so-called "Golden Age." During its one-season run, it employed the directing talents of men such as Worthington Miner, Franklin Schaffner, Fielder Cook, and George Roy Hill. Notable presentations included: "The Army Game," with Paul Newman, Philip Abbott, and George Grizzard (3 July); a modern version of "Antigone," with Claude Rains and Marisa Pavan (11 September); Steven Gethers's "The Rag Jungle," with Paul Newman (20 November); and "The Deadly Silence," with Harry Guardino (21 May).

KALEIDOSCOPE SYNDICATED

1953 John Kieran hosted this fifteen-minute series of films about science and nature.

KALEIDOSCOPE NBC

2 NOVEMBER 1958–17 MAY 1959 This wide-ranging Sunday-afternoon series was described by the network as "an ambitious new experimental series." Some shows were produced by the NBC news department, others by the program department. Former Twenty-One winner Charles Van Doren hosted the series, which alternated biweekly with Omnibus.

THE KALLIKAKS NBC

3 AUGUST 1977–31 AUGUST 1977 Uninspired sitcom about a family which moved from Appalachia to California. With David Huddleston as J. T. Kallikak, gas station proprietor; Edie McClurg as Venus, his wife; Patrick J. Petersen as Junior, their son; Bonnie Ebsen as Bobbi Lou, their daughter, who worked at a nearby fried chicken stand; and Peter Palmer as Oscar, J. T.'s employee. Created by Roger Price and Stanley Ralph Ross, the series was produced by George Yanok.

THE KARATE KID NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1989–1 SEPTEMBER 1990 Half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show based on the trilogy of films about a youngster who learns the martial arts and self-confidence from a Japanese mentor. In the TV series, the boy, Daniel, and his mentor, Mr. Miyagi, were accompanied by a girl, Taki.

KAREN NBC

5 OCTOBER 1964–30 AUGUST 1965 Karen began as one segment of 90 Bristol Court, a troika of sitcoms all set at the same apartment complex. Karen's two cotenants—Harris Against the World and Tom, Dick and Mary—were both evicted by the network in midseason, and Karen continued alone for the remainder of the year. The show featured Debbie Watson as typical teenager Karen Scott; Richard Denning as her dad, Steve; Mary LaRoche as her mom, Barbara; Gina Gillespie as her little sister, Mimi; Bernadette Withers as her friend Janis; Trudi Ames as her friend Candy; Teddy Quinn as her friend Peter; and Murray MacLeod as her friend Spider. Guy Raymond, as Cliff Murdock, the building handyman, was featured in all three segments of 90 Bristol Court. Richard Dreyfuss, later to star in such colossal films as American Graffiti, Jaws, and Close Encounters of the Third Kind, was also featured occasionally as David, another of Karen's many friends. The Karen theme was sung by the Beach Boys.

KAREN ABC

30 JANUARY 1975–19 JUNE 1975 Topical sitcom, set in Washington, D.C. With Karen Valentine as Karen Angelo, a young lobbyist for Open America, a progressive citizens' lobby; Dena Dietrich as Dena Madison, one of her co-workers; Charles Lane as irascible Dale Busch, the head of Open America (Denver Pyle played Busch in the premiere episode); Will Seltzer as Adam Cooperman, the office boy; Aldine King as Karen's roommate, Cissy Peterson, an FBI agent; Oliver Clark as Jerry Siegel, a neighbor; Alix Elias as Cheryl Siegel, Jerry's wife; and Joseph Stern as Ernie Stone, a friend of Karen's. Executive producers: Gene Reynolds and Larry Gelbart (producers of *M*A*S*H*) for 20th Century-Fox.

KAREN'S SONG FOX

18 JULY 1987–12 SEPTEMBER 1987 Linda Marsh and Margie Peters created this half-hour sitcom about a divorced literary agent, nearing her fortieth birthday, who landed a new job with a publishing company, moved into a new condo, and fell in love with a man twelve years her junior. With Patty Duke as Karen Matthews; Lewis Smith as twenty-eight-year-old caterer Steven Forman; Teri Hatcher as her eighteen-year-old daughter, Laura; Lainie Kazan as Claire Steiner, Karen's best friend; Charles Levin as neighbor Michael Brand; and Granville Van Dusen as Karen's ex, Zach Matthews.

KATE & ALLIE CBS

19 MARCH 1984–7 MAY 1984; 27 AUGUST 1984–12 SEPTEMBER 1988; 11 DECEMBER 1988–11 SEPTEMBER 1989 A sitcom about two women who had been friends in high school and who, after their respective divorces, shared a Greenwich Village apartment with their children. Featured were Susan Saint James as Kate McArdle; Jane Curtin as Allie Lowell; Ari Meyers (1984–1988) as Kate's daughter, Emma; Allison Smith as Allie's daughter, Jennie; and Frederick Koehler as Allie's son, Chip. Occasionally appearing were John Heard and Harley Venton as Kate's ex, Max McArdle, and Paul Hecht as Allie's ex, Charles Lowell. Kate soon found an occasional boyfriend, plumber Ted Bartelo (played by Gregory Salata), and in December 1986 Allie met sportscaster Bob Barsky (played by Sam Freed, who had previously played two other roles on the show). After a lengthy courtship, Allie and Bob were married in 1988, and invited Kate to move in with them in their new condo. By that time, the two daughters, Emma and Jennie, had enrolled at Columbia University, and Kate and Allie had started a catering business together. Peter Onorati joined the cast in 1988 as Lou Corello, superintendent of the building where Kate and Allie and Bob (who now commuted to his job in Washington) lived.

The series was created by Sherry Koben, who got her inspiration while attending her tenth high school reunion, at which she encountered a large number of divorced women with children.

KATE LOVES A MYSTERY (MRS. COLUMBO) NBC

26 FEBRUARY 1979–29 MARCH 1979; 9 AUGUST 1979–6 SEPTEMBER 1979; 18 OCTOBER 1979–6 DECEMBER 1979 An hour crime show starring Kate Mulgrew as Kate Columbo, wife of Lieutenant Columbo (the character played by Peter Falk on Columbo; Columbo's wife was never seen on his series, and he was never seen on hers), a part-time reporter for the Weekly Advertiser and an amateur sleuth. The show premiered under the title Mrs. Columbo in February 1979, and underwent several changes of title between September and October. It was first changed to Kate Columbo, then to Kate the Detective, before Kate Loves a Mystery was selected just before the October return date. Also featured were Lili Haydn as Jenny, the Columbos' young daughter; Henry Jones as Mr. Alden, publisher of the newspaper; and Don Stroud (fall 1979) as Sergeant Varick. The series was produced by Universal TV.

KATE McSHANE CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1975–12 NOVEMBER 1975 An early fatality of the 1975–1976 season, Kate McShane perished opposite ABC's Starsky and Hutch. It starred Anne Meara as Kate McShane, a gutsy lawyer; Sean McClory as Pat McShane, her father, an ex-cop who worked as Kate's investigator; and Charles Haid as Edmond McShane, her brother, a Jesuit priest who doubled as a law professor. E. Jack Neuman, who created the series, was its executive producer; Robert Stambler and Robert Foster produced it. The pilot was televised 11 April 1975.

THE KATE SMITH HOUR NBC

25 SEPTEMBER 1950–18 JUNE 1954

THE KATE SMITH EVENING HOUR NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1951–11 JUNE 1952

THE KATE SMITH SHOW CBS

25 JANUARY 1960–18 JULY 1960 Kate Smith, the solid singer who was the butt of countless "fat" jokes throughout her show business career, hosted several radio programs from 1930 through 1951. Her first, and most successful, television program—The Kate Smith Hour—premiered in 1950 and ran four years in a late afternoon slot, Mondays through Fridays. Appearing with her was her long-time manager, Ted Collins, who also produced the show with Barry Wood. The show was usually divided into discrete fifteen-minute segments, the composition of which changed over the years. Typical segments included "The Cracker Barrel," in which guests were interviewed; "America Sings," in which Smith and her guests performed musical numbers; "The House in the Garden," a continuing drama which was an outgrowth of Fairmeadows, U.S.A. (see also that title); "The World of Mr. Sweeney," a continuing comedy which later became a separate series (see also that title); "Ethel and Albert," a domestic comedy which also became a separate series (see also that title); and "The Story Princess," with Alene Dalton narrating stories for children. Kate Smith also hosted two prime-time series. The first, entitled The Kate Smith Evening Hour, was seen on Wednesdays during the 1951–1952 season; like the daytime show, it was directed by Greg Garrison, who later produced The Dean Martin Show. In 1960 she hosted a half-hour variety series on CBS, which also featured the Harry Simeone Chorus. After that she made a few guest appearances. She attracted attention in 1976 when she sang "God Bless America" at the Philadelphia Flyers' ice hockey games.

THE KATHI NORRIS SHOW NBC

1 MAY 1950–9 OCTOBER 1951 Daytime talk show, primarily for women, hosted by Kathi Norris.

See COLLEGE OF MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE

KAY O'BRIEN CBS

25 SEPTEMBER 1986–13 NOVEMBER 1986 Life at New York's Manhattan General Hospital was depicted on this hour medical drama. With Patricia Kalember as Dr. Kay "Kayo" O'Brien, surgical resident; Brian Benben as Dr. Mark Doyle, her sexist rival; Keone Young as Dr. Michael Kwan; Lane Smith as Dr. Robert Moffitt, Kayo's mentor; Tony Soper as intern Cliff Margolis; Jan Rubes as Dr. Josef Wallach, chief of surgery; and Priscilla Lopez as E/R nurse Rosa Villanueva. Kay O'Brien was filmed in Toronto, partly at a real hospital. The series was briefly alluded to in NBC's rival medical drama, St. Elsewhere; in a fall 1986 episode, one St. Elsewhere physician mentioned to another that "O'Brien" had gone to New York, whereupon the other slyly retorted, "I'll bet she won't last thirteen weeks." He was right.

KAZ CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1978–19 AUGUST 1979 An hour crime show set in Los Angeles, starring Ron Leibman as Martin Kazinski, a lawyer who earned his degree the hard way—while serving time in prison. Also featured were Patrick O'Neal as Samuel Bennett, the successful attorney who agreed to hire Kaz; Mark Withers as Peter Colcourt, a junior partner at Bennett's firm; Edith Atwater as Mrs. Fogel, the firm's chief secretary; Linda Carlson as Kaz's friend, newspaper reporter Katie McKenna; Dick O'Neill as Malloy, Kaz's streetwise friend; Gloria LeRoy as Mary Parnell, owner of the Starting Gate, a nightspot where Kaz relaxed by playing the drums; and George Wyner as Frank Revko, an assistant district attorney. Ron Leibman and Don Carlos Dunaway created the series; Lee Rich and Marc Merson were the executive producers for Lorimar Productions.

THE KEANE BROTHERS SHOW CBS

12 AUGUST 1977–2 SEPTEMBER 1977 Four-week half-hour musical variety series, aimed principally at young viewers. Its hosts, brothers Tom and John Keane, aged thirteen and twelve, were reportedly the youngest people ever to host a prime-time series; both were talented musicians and singers. Also on hand were the Anita Mann Dancers. Pierre Cossette was the series' executive producer, Darryl Hickman its producer. The show was created by Woody Kling and developed by Don Kirshner with Norman Lear.

THE KEEFE BRASSELLE SHOW CBS

25 JUNE 1963–17 SEPTEMBER 1963 Keefe Brasselle hosted this variety hour, a summer replacement for The Garry Moore Show. Regulars included Ann B. Davis, French singer Noelle Adam, former boxer Rocky Graziano, the Bill Foster Dancers, and Charles Sanford's Orchestra. Brasselle later developed three series for CBS in 1964 (The Baileys of Balboa, The Cara Williams Show, and The Reporter) before retiring from show business.

KEEP IT IN THE FAMILY ABC

12 OCTOBER 1957–8 FEBRUARY 1958 Each week on this Saturday-night quiz show, two five-member families competed against each other. Keefe Brasselle was the first host but was succeeded by Bill Nimmo.

KEEP ON CRUISIN' CBS

9 JANUARY 1987–5 JUNE 1987 Another of CBS's sporadic attempts to devise a late-night Friday variety show, this one presented music and comedy from various Southern California locales. Rock-and-roller Stephen Bishop and comic Sinbad hosted until April, when comic Jimmy Aleck replaced Bishop.

KEEP ON TRUCKIN' ABC

12 JULY 1975–2 AUGUST 1975 Four-week summer comedy-variety series hosted by impressionist Fred Travalena and featuring a group of newcomers: Franklin Ajaye, Rhonda Bates, Kathrine Baumann, Jeannine Burnier, Didi Conn, Charles Fleischer, Wayland Flowers, Larry Ragland, Marion Ramsey, Rhilo, Jack Riley (he played Mr. Carlin on The Bob Newhart Show), Gailard Sartain, and Richard Lee Sung. Frank Peppiatt and John Aylesworth produced the series.

KEEP POSTED DUMONT

9 OCTOBER 1951–18 JANUARY 1954 Topical issues were debated on this half-hour public affairs program, which was developed by Lawrence Spivak and moderated by Martha Rountree. The show was titled Keep Posted for its first two seasons, when it was sponsored by the Saturday Evening Post magazine. In May of 1953, after the Post dropped its sponsorship, the show was retitled The Big Issue.

KEEP TALKING CBS/ABC

8 JULY 1958–24 JUNE 1959 (CBS); 29 OCTOBER 1959–3 MAY 1960 (ABC) This prime-time game show featured two teams of celebrities; each team was provided with a secret phrase that was supposed to be inserted into a dialogue improvised by the competitors. At the end of each round, each team tried to identify the secret phrase given to the opponents. Monty Hall was the first host of the series; he was succeeded late in 1958 by Carl Reiner, who was in turn succeeded by Merv Griffin when the show switched networks. Often seen on the celebrity panel were Morey Amsterdam, Joey Bishop, Peggy Cass, Pat Carroll, Ilka Chase, and Danny Dayton.

THE KELLY MONTEITH SHOW CBS

16 JUNE 1976–7 JULY 1976 Four-week half-hour variety series hosted by comedian Kelly Monteith, also featuring Nellie Bellflower and Harry Corden. Executive producer: Robert Tamplin. Producer: Ed Simmons.

KEN BERRY'S WOW ABC

15 JULY 1972–12 AUGUST 1972 Five-week summer variety hour showcasing the singing and dancing talents of Ken Berry, former star of Mayberry R.F.D. Other regulars included Teri Garr, Billy Van, Laura Lacey, Don Lane, Steve Martin, the New Seekers, the Jaime Rogers Dancers, and the Jimmy Dale Orchestra. Allan Blye and Chris Bearde, producers of The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour, created the show.

THE KEN MURRAY SHOW CBS

15 APRIL 1950–7 JUNE 1952; 8 FEBRUARY 1953–14 JUNE 1953 Vaudevillian Ken Murray hosted an hour-long variety show on Saturday nights for two seasons; early in 1953 he returned to host a half-hour show on Sundays, which alternated with The Alan Young Show. Also on hand were comedienne Laurie Anders ("Ah love the wide open spaces!"), Darla Hood (1950–1951, former star of the "Our Gang" comedies), Anita Gordon (1951–1952), Art Lund, Johnny Johnston, and the Glamourlovelies.

KENTUCKY JONES NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1964–11 SEPTEMBER 1965 Dennis Weaver left the Gunsmoke fold to star in this comedy-drama; he played Kentucky Jones, a widowed veterinarian who became the guardian of a ten-year-old Chinese orphan. Also featured were Ricky Der as his ward, Dwight Eisenhower (Ike) Wong; Harry Morgan as Seldom Jackson, a former jockey who assisted Dr. Jones on his ranch; Cherylene Lee as Annie Ng, Ike's friend; Arthur Wong as Mr. Ng, her father; Keye Luke as Mr. Wong, a friend of Dr. Jones; and Nancy Rennick as Miss Thorncroft, Ike's teacher.

KEY TO THE AGES DUMONT

KHAN! CBS

7 FEBRUARY 1975–28 FEBRUARY 1975 This hour-long crime show lasted only four weeks. It featured Khigh Dhiegh (who had played Wo Fat, Steve McGarrett's archenemy, on Hawaii Five-O) as Khan, a private detective in San Francisco's Chinatown; Vic Tayback as Lieutenant Gubbins of the San Francisco police; Irene Yah-Ling Sun as Khan's daughter, Anna, a biophysics student at San Francisco State; and Evan Kim as Kim, Khan's son. Laurence Heath produced the series.

KID GLOVES CBS

24 FEBRUARY 1951–18 AUGUST 1951 Broadcast from Philadelphia, Kid Gloves was a boxing show for very young boxers. Each week boys aged three and up fought each other in abbreviated three-round contests (each round lasted only thirty seconds). Bill Sears and John "Ox" Da Groza hosted the series, which was produced and directed by Alan Bergman.

KID 'N PLAY NBC

8 SEPTEMBER 1990–7 SEPTEMBER 1991 Black rap artists Kid 'n Play, who had been featured in the 1989 film House Party, were the central characters in this half-hour Saturday-morning cartoon show. The animated pair was assisted by Herbie, their manager, and three female dancers: Lela, Play's sister, Marika, and Downtown Patty. The duo (whose real names, Christopher Martin and Christopher Reid, were not divulged in the program credits) also appeared in taped wraparounds at the beginning and end of each show.

KID POWER ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1972–1 SEPTEMBER 1974 Cartoon series based on the comic strip Wee Pals. The show was seen Saturday mornings during the 1972–1973 season, and reruns were broadcast Sunday mornings during the 1973–1974 season.

THE KID SUPER POWER HOUR WITH SHAZAM NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1981–11 SEPTEMBER 1982 Live action and cartoons were combined in this Saturday morning children's show, hosted by a seven-member rock band. Each member of the band was also represented by a cartoon character. The rockers included John Berwick as Rex Ruthless; Jere Fields as Misty Magic; Jim Greenleaf as Weatherman; Christopher Hensel as Captain California; Maylo McCaslin as Dirty Trixie; Becky Perle as Gorgeous Gal; and Johnny Venocour as Punk Rock. The cartoon segments included "Hero High" and "Shazam." Arthur H. Nadel produced the series.

KIDD VIDEO NBC/CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1984–4 APRIL 1987 (NBC); 19 SEPTEMBER 1987–26 DECEMBER 1987 (CBS) This Saturday-morning kids' show was an imaginative blend of live action, cartoons, and rock videos. The story line centered around a four-piece rock band that was seized by the evil Master Blaster (assisted by the Copy Cats) and taken to the "flipside," where they became cartoon characters. The live performers included Gabriele Bennett as Carla; Robbie Rist as Whiz; Steve Alterman as Ash; and Bryan Scott as Kidd.

KIDS AND COMPANY DUMONT

1 SEPTEMBER 1951–1 JUNE 1952 Saturday-morning kids' show cohosted by Johnny Olson (who was also hosting Johnny Olson's Rumpus Room five days a week) and cartoonist Ham Fisher, creator of Joe Palooka.

THE KING FAMILY SHOW ABC
23 JANUARY 1965–8 JANUARY 1966; 12 MARCH 1969–10 SEPTEMBER 1969 This wholesome musical show featured the several dozen members of the King clan, none of whom was named King—all were descended from William King Driggs, who organized a family musical group in the 1930s. Three of his daughters—Maxine, Alyce, and Luise—later toured professionally as the King Sisters. After regrouping at a family reunion, the clan put on a show at Brigham Young University, which eventually led to an appearance on The Hollywood Palace and, later, to the first King Family Show, an hour-long series that replaced The Outer Limits early in 1965. The show was revived in 1969, this time in a half-hour version, to replace Turn-On; by that time thirty-six Kings appeared on camera, and one member—Tina Cole—was also a regular on My Three Sons.

KING KONG ABC
10 SEPTEMBER 1966–31 AUGUST 1969 Saturday-morning cartoon series in which the giant ape was friendly and battled evil together with Professor Bond and his children; reruns were shown on Sunday mornings during the 1968–1969 season. Another segment was "Tom of T.H.U.M.B.," the adventures of a miniature secret agent (Tom) who was employed by the Tiny Humans Underground Military Bureau.

KING LEONARDO NBC
15 OCTOBER 1960–28 SEPTEMBER 1963 Saturday-morning cartoon series about King Leonardo, beneficent leonine ruler of Bongoland, a peaceable African kingdom, and his pal, Odie Cologne, a skunk; together they battled two sinister villains, Biggy Rat and Itchy Brother. For part of its network run the show was titled King Leonardo and His Short Subjects, and in syndication it was known as The King and Odie.

KING OF DIAMONDS SYNDICATED

KING'S CROSSING ABC

16 JANUARY 1982–27 FEBRUARY 1982 This short-lived prime-time serial told the story of the Hollister family, who had returned to this small California town after a ten-year absence. The cast included: Mary Frann as Nan Hollister; Bradford Dillman as her alcoholic husband, Paul Hollister, a teacher and playwright; Linda Hamilton as their older daughter, Lauren, an accomplished pianist; Marilyn Jones as Carey, their younger daughter; Beatrice Straight as Nan's Aunt Louisa, who resented the Hollisters' return; Doran Clark as Cousin Jillian; and Daniel Zippi as Billy McCall, Louisa's horse trainer. The hour series was produced by Lorimar and bore a passing resemblance to two other Lorimar serials: Secrets of Midland Heights, its 1980 serial, which had featured Clark, Hamilton, and Zippi and was also set in a small town; and Falcon Crest, its 1981 serial in which a family had returned to its homestead against the wishes of a domineering matriarchal figure.

KING'S CROSSROADS ABC

10 OCTOBER 1951–5 OCTOBER 1952 Film shorts, hosted by Carl King.

KING'S ROW ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1955–17 JANUARY 1956 King's Row was one segment of Warner Brothers Presents, which with Casablanca and Cheyenne, heralded Warner Brothers' entry into TV series production; only Cheyenne survived the first season. King's Row, set in a town of that name at the turn of the century, starred twenty-eight-year-old Jack Kelly (later star of Maverick) as Dr. Parris Mitchell, a psychiatrist. Also featured were Victor Jory as his mentor, Dr. Tower; Robert Horton as Drake; and Nan Leslie as Randy. Only seven or eight episodes were aired.

KINGSTON: CONFIDENTIAL NBC

9 NOVEMBER 1949–23 JUNE 1950 Instrumental selections were played by the Kirby Stone Quintet on this fifteen-minute series that was seen several times a week at 7 P.M.

KIRK WB

23 AUGUST 1995– Half-hour sitcom starring Kirk Cameron as Kirk Hartman, a twenty-four-year-old who moved to New York City, hoping to find work as an illustrator. Instead, he got a job painting billboards and became the guardian of his three younger siblings (their parents had died sometime earlier, and the children's aunt had unexpectedly left town). Chelsea Noble, Cameron's wife, costarred as Kirk's romantic interest, Dr. Elizabeth Waters, an intern who lived in the apartment across the hall. Also featured were Louis Vanaria as Eddie, Kirk's former college roommate and current neighbor; Will Estes as Kirk's brother Corey; Taylor Fry as Kirk's sister, Phoebe; Courtland Mead as Kirk's brother Russell; and Debra Mooney as Sally the landlady.

KISSYFUR NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1986–5 SEPTEMBER 1987; 10 SEPTEMBER 1988–25 AUGUST 1990 Saturday-morning cartoon show about a young circus bear, Kissyfur, and his father, Gus, who settled in Paddlecab County, a swampy place where they made friends with the other residents; Gus operated a ferry boat. The program was introduced in 1985 as a series of specials.

KIT CARSON (THE ADVENTURES OF KIT CARSON) SYNDICATED

1951–1955 Bill Williams starred as Kit Carson, the famous scout, in this half-hour western from Revue Productions; Don Diamond costarred as his sidekick, El Toro. The series was directed by Richard Irving and Norman Lloyd.

KITTY FOYLE NBC

13 JANUARY 1958–27 JUNE 1958 Daytime serial about an Irish secretary from Philadelphia who fell for a wealthy fellow; the series started on radio in 1942. On TV Kathleen Murray starred as Kitty Foyle. Also featured were Judy Lewis (as her friend, Molly Scharf), Billy Redfield, Ralph Dunne (as Kitty's father), Ginger MacManus, Marie Worsham, Lee Bergere, and eleven-year-old Patty Duke. Both the radio and TV versions were derived from the story by Christopher Morley.

KLONDIKE NBC

10 OCTOBER 1960–13 FEBRUARY 1961 Low-budget adventure series set in Skagway, Alaska, during the Gold Rush of 1898. With Ralph Taeger as Mike Halliday, a young adventurer; Mari Blanchard as Kathy O'Hara, hotel owner; James Coburn as Jeff Durain, a fast-talking adventurer; and Joi Lansing as Goldie. In midseason the format was drastically changed—Taeger and Coburn were retained but were moved up to the twentieth century and south to Mexico: see Acapulco. William Conrad produced the series.

KNIGHT & DAYE NBC

8 JULY 1989–14 AUGUST 1989 Short-lived summer sitcom about a pair of former radio stars who were reunited on a San Diego radio show, and promptly continued their feuding. With Jack Warden as Hank Knight; Mason Adams as Everett Daye; Hope Lange as Gloria, Everett's wife; Julia Campbell as station manager Janet Glickman; and Lela Ivey as Ellie, Everett's daughter.

KNIGHT RIDER NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1982–8 AUGUST 1986 This hour adventure series starred David Hasselhoff (formerly of The Young and the Restless) as Michael Long, an undercover cop who was killed; brought back to life by a mysterious millionaire, Wilton Knight, he was given a new identity—Michael Knight—and a specially equipped automobile, a Pontiac Trans Am with a talking computer. Known as KITT (Knight Industries Two Thousand), the car helped Knight on his various missions—aiding the unfortunate, tracking down crooks, and so on. Also featured were Edward Mulhare as Devon Miles, aide to the now-deceased millionaire; Patricia McPherson (1982–1983; 1984–1986) as mechanic Bonnie Barstow; Rebecca Holden (1983–1984) as April Curtis; and William Daniels as the voice of KITT's computer. Peter Parros was added in 1985 as Reginald Cornelius III ("RC3"), who drove the specially equipped truck that hauled KITT from adventure to adventure. The series was originally scheduled on Fridays at 9:00 p.m. and was the first NBC program in several years to hold its own against CBS's Dallas. It was moved to a Sunday time slot in its second and third seasons, and back to Fridays in 1985. Ninety episodes were produced.

Hasselhoff returned to the controls in a TV-movie, "Knight Rider 2000" (19 May 1991, NBC); this time he piloted an even fancier vehicle, the Knight 4000.

KNIGHTWATCH ABC

10 NOVEMBER 1988–19 JANUARY 1989 The exploits of a community watch group, known as the Knights of the City, were chronicled on this hour crime show. The large cast included Benjamin Bratt as Tony Maldonado; Don Franklin as Calvin; Joshua Cadman as Condo; Ava Haddad as Casey; Calvin Levels as Burn; Ian Tracey as John O'Neill; Paris Vaughn as Leslie; Harley Kozak as Babs; Samantha Mathis as Jake; and Tim Guinee as Kurt. The low-rated series (116th out of 125 for the season) had the misfortune of premiering opposite the birth of Sondra's twins on NBC's juggernaut, The Cosby Show. Series regulars Bratt and Franklin were teamed up a year later on Nasty Boys.

KNOCKOUT NBC

3 OCTOBER 1977–21 APRIL 1978 Daytime game show hosted by Arte Johnson and featuring three contestants. The object of the game was to score the word "Knockout" by winning the eight letters one or two at a time. A player earned one letter by identifying the one item among four which did not belong with the others; the player could then earn additional letters by identifying the common feature of the items or by successfully challenging another player to do so. The winning contestant then played a bonus round for a top prize of $5,000. The show was a Ralph Edwards Production.

KNOTS LANDING CBS

27 DECEMBER 1979–13 MAY 1993 Second only to Gunsmoke as television's longest-running prime time dramatic series, Knots Landing was spun off from the hugely popular Dallas. As the hour serial unfolded, Gary Ewing, the middle brother of the Dallas Ewings, left Texas and bought a house on a cul-de-sac in Knots Landing, California. Featured were Ted Shackelford as Gary Ewing, an alcoholic; Joan Van Ark as his wife, Valene Ewing, who had remarried him; Michele Lee as their neighbor, Karen Fairgate; Don Murray (1979–1981) as Karen's husband, Sid Fairgate, owner of Knots Landing Motors (Sid was trapped in a car hurtling off a cliff at the end of the 1980–1981 season; when Don Murray demanded more money, Sid's accident was arranged to be fatal); Claudia Lonow (1979–1984) as their daughter, Diana; Pat Petersen (1979–1991) as their son Michael; Steve Shaw (1979–1987 and 1989–1990) as their son Eric; James Houghton (1979–1983) as neighbor Kenny Ward, a recording executive; Kim Lankford (1979–1983) as his wife, Ginger Ward; John Pleshette (1979–1983) as neighbor Richard Avery, an unscrupulous attorney; Constance McCashin (1979–1987) as his wife, Laura Avery; Donna Mills (1980–1989) as Sid Fairgate's sister, Abby Cunningham, a homewrecker who had affairs with most of the men and broke up the marriage of Gary and Valene; Bobby Jacoby (1980–1985) and Brian Greene (1986–1989) as Abby's son, Brian; Tonya Crowe as Abby's daughter, Olivia; Julie Harris (1981–1987) as Valene's mother, Lilimae Clements; Stephen Macht (1981–1983) as Joe Cooper; Lisa Hartman (1982–1983) as singer Ciji Dunne, who was murdered (Hartman returned the next season as Ciji's lookalike, waitress Cathy Geary); Michael Sabatino (1982–1983) as publicist Chip Roberts, Ciji's killer; Kevin Dobson (1982–1993) as attorney M. Patrick (Mack) MacKenzie, who married Karen Fairgate in January 1983; Douglas Sheehan (1983–1987) as Ben Gibson, who married Valene Ewing after her divorce from Gary; William Devane (1983–1993) as politician Gregory Sumner, who married Laura Avery; Danielle Brisebois (1983–1984) as his daughter, Mary-Frances; Alec Baldwin (1984–1985) as preacher Joshua Rush, Valene's half-brother; Howard Duff (1984–1985) as Paul Galveston, Greg Sumner's father; Ava Gardner (spring 1985, in a rare TV appearance) as Paul's widow, Ruth Galveston; Hunt Block (1985–1987) as senatorial candidate Peter Hollister, who was murdered; Leslie Hope (1985–1986) as Linda Martin; Teri Austin (1985–1989) as Jill Bennett; Nicollette Sheridan (1986–1993) as Mack's illegitimate daughter, Paige Matheson; Michelle Phillips (1987–1993) as Paige's mother, Anne Winston Matheson (a former member of the Mamas and the Papas, Phillips sang "Dedicated to the One I Love" to Kevin Dobson [Mack] on a March 1987 episode); Wendy Fulton (1986–1987) as Jean Hackney; Harry Townes (1986–1987) as Russell Winston; Red Buttons (1987–1988) as Al Baker; Lynne Moody (1988–1990) as Patricia Williams, a new resident of the cul-de-sac; Larry Riley (1988–1992) as her husband, Frank Williams; Kent Masters-King (1988–1992) as their daughter, Julie (the Williamses were participants in a federal witness relocation program); Peter Reckell (1988–1989) as Johnny Rourke; Sam Behrens (1989–1990) as Danny Waleska, who was briefly married to Valene; Paul Carafotes (1988–1989) as Harold Dyer, who married Olivia Cunningham; Melinda Culea (1989–1990) as Paula Vertosick; Robert Desiderio (1989–1990) as Ted Melcher; Betsy Palmer (1989–1990) as Virginia Bullock; Penny Peyser (1989–1990) as Amanda Michaels;

Lar Park-Lincoln (1989–1992) as Linda Fairgate; Kathleen Noone (1990–1993) as Greg's sister, Claudia Whittaker; Stacy Galina (1990–1993) as her daughter, Kate Whittaker (Galina had played her cousin, Mary-Frances, briefly during the previous season); Thomas Wilson Brown (1990–1992) as Jason Lochner; Guy Boyd (1990–1991) as Dick Lochner; Lance Guest (1990–1991) as photographer Steve Brewer; Tracy Reed (1990–1991) as Charlotte Anderson; Joseph Gian (1989–1993) as Tom Ryan; Lorenzo Caccialanza (1990–1993) as Nick Schillace; Felicity Waterman (1991–1993) as Vanessa Hunt; Boyd Kestner (1991–1992) as Alex Barth; Bruce Greenwood (1991–1992) as Pierce Lawton; Halle Berry (1991–1992) as Debbie; Stuart Pankin (1991–1992) as Benny; Mark Soper (1991–1992) as Joseph Barringer; Michelle Joyner (1991–1992) as Lynette; Marcia Cross (1991–1992) as Victoria; Maree Cheatham (1992–1993) as Mary Robeson, who was murdered; David James Elliott (1992–1993) as Bill; Tara Marchant (1992–1993) as Toni; Karen Ludwig (1992–1993) as Dr. Stren; Lance Slaughter (1992–1993) as Darryn Flint; and Daniel Gerroll (1992–1993) as Treadwell, a gangster. Claudia Lonow returned to the series briefly in the spring of 1993, and Donna Mills returned for Knots Landing's final episode on 13 May 1993. The two-hour finale was preceded by the "Knots Landing Block Party," a one-hour special on which cast members reminisced about the series.

David Jacobs created the durable series. Unlike most of the other prime-time serials, Knots Landing was not overpopulated with larger-than-life characters. It more closely resembled the daytime serials with its emphasis on generally believable storylines and development of three-dimensional characters.

KOBBS CORNER CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1948–15 JUNE 1949 Wednesday-night half-hour variety series set at a general store, run by host Hope Emerson. In its earliest weeks the show was titled Korn Kobblers.

KODIAK ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1974–11 OCTOBER 1974 One of the first casualties of the 1974–1975 season, Kodiak was clobbered in the ratings by Sanford and Son. It starred Clint Walker (seldom seen on TV since his days as Cheyenne) as Cal McKay, an Alaskan cop nicknamed "Kodiak." Also featured were Abner Biberman as Abraham Lincoln Imhook, his Eskimo partner; Maggie Blye as Mandy, the dispatcher. Stan Shpetner, who created the series with Anthony Lawrence, was the producer.

KOJAK CBS/ABC

24 OCTOBER 1973–15 APRIL 1978 (CBS); 4 NOVEMBER 1989–30 JUNE 1990 (ABC) An internationally popular crime show, Kojak starred Telly Savalas as Lieutenant Theo Kojak, a savvy but incorruptible cop assigned to Manhattan South. Savalas first played the role in a 1973 TV-movie, "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," written by Abby Mann; the movie was based on the Wylie-Hoffert murders, which occurred in 1963. Savalas, who had often played heavies before landing the Kojak role, first appeared on television in an episode of the Armstrong Circle Theater in 1959; before that he had worked as a producer at WABC in New York, and had also assisted casting directors in locating foreign-speaking performers. Though he had much television and film experience (including an Academy Award nomination as Best Supporting Actor in The Bird Man of Alcatraz), it was not until his role as the Tootsie Pop-sucking Kojak that he became a superstar. Other regulars on the series included Kevin Dobson as Detective Bobby Crocker, Kojak's earnest right-hand man; Dan Frazer as Detective Captain Frank McNeil, his weary boss; George Savalas (Telly's brother) as Detective Stavros (George was billed as Demosthenes—his middle name—during the first two seasons); Mark Russell as Detective Saperstein; Vince Conti as Detective Rizzo; and Borah Silver as Detective Prince. Matthew Rapf was the executive producer and Jack Laird the supervising producer for Universal Television. One hundred eighteen episodes were made.

Kojak returned to television in a TV-movie, "Kojak: The Belarus File," shown 16 February 1985 on CBS. It featured Telly Savalas, George Savalas, and Dan Frazer from the old cast. A second TV-movie, "Kojak: The Price of Justice," was televised 21 February 1987. In the fall of 1989 Kojak again returned to series television, this time as one segment of The ABC Saturday Mystery Movie. Kojak was now an inspector. Other regulars included Andre Braugher as Detective Blake; Kario Salem as unorthodox young cop Paco Montana; and Candace Savalas as Pamela. Kevin Dobson, who had costarred in the original series and was now a regular on Knots Landing, returned in one episode as Bobby Crocker, who had become a prosecutor.

KORG: 70,000 B.C. ABC
7 SEPTEMBER 1974–31 AUGUST 1975 Essentially a Neanderthal version of The Waltons, Korg: 70,000 B.C. was a live-action Saturday-morning show from Hanna-Barbera Productions about a Stone Age family of modest means. With Jim Malinda as Korg; Bill Ewing as Bok; Naomi Pollack as Mara; Christopher Man as Tane; Charles Morteo as Tor; and Janelle Pransky as Ree. Burgess Meredith narrated.

THE KRAFT MUSIC HALL NBC
8 OCTOBER 1958–20 MAY 1959; 13 SEPTEMBER 1967–12 MAY 1971 Kraft Foods sponsored this musical variety program. During the 1958–1959 season it was a half-hour show, hosted by Milton Berle. From 1959 until 1963 Kraft continued to sponsor musical variety shows, but they were known more commonly by other titles: see The Dave King Show and The Perry Como Show. The 1967 version of The Kraft Music Hall was an hour show, which lasted four seasons. It was hosted by a guest celebrity each week, except during the summer of 1969, when Tony Sandler and Ralph Young cohosted it; Judy Carne was also featured on that summer series. Don Ho hosted the show during the latter weeks of the summer of 1969.

KRAFT SUSPENSE THEATRE NBC
10 OCTOBER 1963–9 SEPTEMBER 1965 Hour-long mystery anthology series, sponsored by Kraft Foods. Katharine Ross made her TV dramatic debut in one episode, “Are There Any More Out There Like You?” (7 November 1963).

KRAFT TELEVISION THEATRE NBC/ABC
7 MAY 1947–1 OCTOBER 1958 (NBC); 15 OCTOBER 1953–6 JANUARY 1955 (ABC) Kraft Television Theatre best epitomizes television’s Golden Age, an era when live, often original dramas were the rule, not the exception. The principal reason for the growth of original drama on TV was the unavailability of most plays—the major motion picture studios owned the rights to most plays not in the public domain and steadfastly refused to permit those works to be aired over a potentially competitive medium. Thus, the path was open for young writers to submit original scripts to the producers of TV’s dramatic anthology series, and writers such as Rod Serling, Paddy Chayefsky, Reginald Rose, and Tad Mosel (to name only a few) immediately began to fill the void. Similarly, there was a need for directors, too; newcomers such as George Roy Hill, John Frankenheimer, and Fielder Cook (again, to name only a few) were soon directing telecasts regularly. Finally, there arose a need for talented performers—men and women who could learn their lines quickly, take direction, and perform their roles in a small, hot studio before an audience of machines and technicians. A small sample of the 650 plays presented on Kraft (summer reruns were unknown) indicates the large number of stars who appeared, many in their first starring role on television: “Double Door,” with John Baragrey (7 May 1947); “Feathers in a Gale,” with George Reeves (9 August 1950); “A Play for Mary,” with Bramwell Fletcher (23 May 1951); “Ben Franklin,” with Jocelyn Brando (30 May 1951); “The Easy Mark,” with Jack Lemmon (5 September 1951); “Six by Six,” with George Reeves (6 August 1952); “Duet,” with Jack Lemmon (28 January 1953); “Snooksie,” with Jack Lemmon (18 February 1953); “Double in Ivory,” with Beverly

Whitney and Lee Remick (in her first major TV appearance, 9 September 1953); "To Live in Peace," with Anne Bancroft (her first major TV role, 16 December 1953); "The Missing Years," with Mary Astor and Tony Perkins (their first major TV roles, 3 February 1954); "Alice in Wonderland," with Robin Morgan as Alice, accompanied by Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Art Carney (as The Mad Hatter), Ernest Truex (The White Knight), and Blanche Yurka (Queen of Hearts) (5 May 1954); "Romeo and Juliet," with Liam Sullivan and sixteen-year-old Susan Strasberg (9 June 1954); "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," with Edgar Bergen and Victor Jory (8 July 1954); "Strangers in Hiding," with Bradford Dillman (his first starring role, 29 December 1954); Rod Serling's "Patterns," with Ed Begley, Richard Kiley, and Everett Sloane (first telecast 12 January 1955, the drama was so highly acclaimed that it was repeated—live—four weeks later); "The Emperor Jones," with Ossie Davis, Everett Sloane, and Rex Ingram (23 February 1955); "The Diamond as Big as the Ritz," with Lee Remick, Elizabeth Montgomery, Signe Hasso, and George Macready (aired 28 September 1955, marking Kraft's five-hundredth broadcast); "A Profile in Courage," with James Whitmore (16 May 1956; the drama was introduced by then Senator John F. Kennedy, from whose book the story was adapted); "Flying Object at Three O'Clock High," with George Peppard (20 June 1956, his first major TV role); "The Singin' Idol," with Tommy Sands and Fred Clark (30 January 1957); "Night of the Plague," with Maggie Smith (20 March 1957, her first American TV role); "Drummer Man," with Sal Mineo (1 May 1957); "The Curly-Headed Kid," with Warren Beatty (26 June 1957, his first major TV role); "The Big Heist," with Patty Duke (her first major role, 13 November 1957); and "The Sea Is Boiling Hot," with Sessue Hayakawa and Earl Holliman (12 March 1958). Kraft Television Theatre was actually introduced briefly in New York in 1940; it came to network television in 1947, where it was seen on Wednesdays for eleven seasons on NBC; Kraft also sponsored a second hour, under the same title, over ABC for a season and a half on Thursdays beginning in 1953.

THE KREISLER BANDSTAND ABC

21 MARCH 1951–20 JUNE 1951 A half-hour musical series hosted by Fred Robbins and sponsored by the Jacques Kreisler Manufacturing Company, makers of watchbands. Benny Goodman's orchestra appeared on the premiere. Dick Gordon and George Foley produced the show, and Perry Lafferty directed it.

THE KROFFT SUPERSHOW ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1976–2 SEPTEMBER 1978

THE KROFFT SUPERSTAR HOUR NBC

9 SEPTEMBER 1978–28 OCTOBER 1978 The Krofft Supershow began as a ninety-minute program, but was trimmed to sixty minutes in December of 1976. It was hosted by a rock band assembled for the show, Kaptain Kool and the Kongs: Michael Lembeck as Kaptain Kool, Debbie Clinger as Superchick, Mickey McMell as Turkey, and Louise Duart as Nashville. The foursome introduced the several segments that comprised the series. During the 1976–1977 season the segments included: "Electra-Woman and Dynagirl," the adventures of two female reporters who could turn into superheroes, with Deidre Hall as Mara/Electra-Woman, Judy Strangis as Lori/Dynagirl, and Norman Alden as Frank; "Wonderbug," the adventures of a fantastic automobile, with John Anthony Bailey, David Levy, and Carol Anne Sefflinger; "Dr. Shrinker," the adventures of a group of miniaturized humans, with Jay Robinson as Dr. Shrinker, Billy Barty as Hugo, Ted Eccles, Jeff McKay, and Susan Lawrence; and "The Lost Saucer," a 1975–1976 series that was reedited for the Krofft show (the latter segment was dropped in December 1976). For the 1977–1978 season the "Wonderbug" segment was retained, and two new ones were added: "Magic Mongo," the adventures of an inept genie; and "Bigfoot and Wildboy," the adventures of an apelike creature and a human teenager. In the fall of 1978 The Krofft Superstar Hour appeared on NBC; the hour musical and variety show was hosted by the Bay City Rollers, a popular recording group from Scotland. Late in October that series left the air, though the Bay City Rollers continued in a show of their own: see The Bay City Rollers Show. The Krofft shows were produced by Sid and Marty Krofft, two brothers who started out as puppeteers, and who had previously produced several TV shows, including H. R. Pufnstuf, Lidsville, and Far Out Space Nuts.

THE KRYPTON FACTOR ABC

7 AUGUST 1981–4 SEPTEMBER 1981 Dick Clark hosted this prime-time game show, on which four contestants competed in arithmetical exercises, on an obstacle course, in a memory test, and in a general knowledge quiz. The winner earned $5,000, and the four weekly winners battled each other on the finale for a grand prize of $50,000.

THE KUDA BUX SHOW CBS

25 MARCH 1950–24 JUNE 1950 Saturday-night show starring Kuda Bux, the mysterious Hindu wizard who could perform wondrous feats while blindfolded. Also featured were Janet Tyler and announcer Rex Marshall.

KUKLA, FRAN AND OLLIE NBC/ABC/PBS

29 NOVEMBER 1948–13 JUNE 1954 (NBC); 6 SEPTEMBER 1954–30 AUGUST 1957 (ABC); 25 SEPTEMBER 1961–22 JUNE 1962 (NBC); 1969–1971 (PBS) A long-running children's series that was equally popular with adults, Kukla, Fran and Ollie featured the puppets of Burr Tillstrom and their human friend, Fran Allison. Tillstrom began creating his characters in the 1930s; one of the first puppets he crafted was Kukla (the Russian word for "doll"), a bald puppet with a big nose and a high voice. Before long an entire troupe of Kuklapolitans was in existence; the group included Ollie (short for Oliver J. Dragon), a kindly dragon with one tooth, Fletcher Rabbit, Cecil Bill, Buelah the Witch, Colonel Crackie, Madame Ooglepuss, Dolores Dragon, and many others. The Kuklapolitans appeared on television as early as 1939, and by 1947 they were regularly featured on local TV in Chicago. Late in 1948 Kukla, Fran and Ollie (Fran Allison, who continued to work with Don McNeill's Breakfast Club radio show, had been added) began over NBC's Midwest network; the show was first seen in the East on 12 January 1949, after the completion of New York-to-Chicago transmission lines. The show was seen daily for several seasons before switching to Sunday afternoons. From 1954 to 1957 it was again broadcast daily over ABC. In the fall of 1961 the puppets again appeared, this time in a five-minute daily show; the series, which did not include Fran Allison, was titled Burr Tillstrom's Kukla and Ollie. Finally, the show was revived (with Fran Allison) over educational television, where it ran for two seasons. Most of the shows were done without scripts, except for a number of fairly elaborate productions, such as a puppet version of "The Mikado." Tillstrom himself provided the voices of Kukla and Ollie. Beulah Zachary, after whom Buelah the Witch was named, produced the first NBC version and the ABC version of the show.

KUNG FU ABC

1 OCTOBER 1972–28 JUNE 1975 Highly stylized western starring David Carradine as Kwai Chang Caine, a soft-spoken drifter who eschewed violence, but when given no other choice utilized his prodigious talents in the martial arts. Caine, who was half Chinese, had studied to become a Shaolin priest in China but was forced to leave China after killing a man there. The series was notable for its use of slow motion, especially in fight sequences, and flashbacks showing the young Caine learning the discipline required by the martial arts. The flashback sequences featured Keye Luke as Master Po; Philip Ahn as Master Kan; and Radames Pera as the young Caine (known affectionately to Master Po as "Grasshopper"). The series was created by Ed Spielman and developed by Herman Miller, who produced it with Alex Beaton; Jerry Thorpe was executive producer. On 1 February 1986 a TV-movie sequel was broadcast on CBS. "Kung Fu: The Movie" featured David Carradine and Keye Luke from the series, and introduced Brandon Lee (son of the late martial arts film star Bruce Lee) as Caine's son. The pilot for the original series was televised 22 February 1972. In 1993 a sequel series appeared: see below.

KUNG FU: THE LEGEND CONTINUES SYNDICATED

1993– This sequel to Kung Fu again starred David Carradine as Kwai Chang Caine; this Caine, however, was the grandson of the original series' central character. The sequel was set in a large city during the present time, where Caine was reunited with his son, whom he thought had perished in a fire as a child. Also featured were Chris Potter as the son, Peter Caine, a cop; Robert Lansing (1993–1994) as Captain Paul Blaisdell; Kim Chan as The Ancient, a Shaolin priest who ran a local apothecary; William Dunlop as Frank Strenlich; and Nathaniel Moreau as the young Peter, who appeared in flashback sequences. Ernest Abuba was occasionally featured as Tan, a former Shaolin monk and enemy of the elder Caine who was now the city's crime boss. The hour series was filmed in Toronto.

KUP'S SHOW SYNDICATED/PBS

1962–1975 (SYNDICATED); 1975–1986 (PBS) Chicago newspaper columnist Irv Kupcinet was seen on local television as early as 1952; by 1958 he was host of an open-ended talk show in Chicago. It was trimmed to an hour when it went into national syndication in 1962; thirteen years later the show was picked up by PBS. Paul Frumkin produced the show for many seasons.

THE KWICKY KOALA SHOW CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1981–28 AUGUST 1982 This Hanna-Barbera Saturday morning cartoon show consisted of three cartoon segments. The title character, Kwicky Koala, had been created by veteran animator Tex Avery shortly before his death; Kwicky was a clever marsupial who was constantly pursued by Wilfred Wolf. Rounding out the half hour were "Dirty Dog," a mutt who, with his pal Ratso, battled Officer Bullhorn, and "Crazy Claws," a wildcat whose adversaries were Rawhide Clyde and his faithful canine companion, Bristletooth.

L.A. LAW NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1986–19 MAY 1994 A Los Angeles law firm was the setting of this hour dramatic series created by Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher. Bochco had developed Hill Street Blues while Fisher, herself an attorney, had produced Cagney and Lacey. The series used several of the stylistic devices popularized on Hill Street: an ensemble cast, a standard opening scene (the squad room at Hill Street, the conference room at L.A. Law), a theme and score by Mike Post, and multiple story lines, some of which carried over from week to week. The firm's cases ranged from the thought-provoking to the trivial, enabling the program to mix seriousness with humor. Refreshingly, L.A. Law's litigators, like those in real life, managed to lose a case from time to time.

The cast included: Richard Dysart as Leland McKenzie, senior partner of McKenzie, Brackman, Chaney & Kuzak; Alan Rachins as managing partner Douglas Brackman, Jr., whose father had founded the firm with McKenzie; Harry Hamlin (1986–1991) as litigation partner Michael Kuzak; Corbin Bernsen as domestic relations partner Arnie Becker; Jill Eikenberry as litigation partner Ann Kelsey; Michael Tucker as tax partner Stuart Markowitz; Jimmy Smits (1986–1991) as associate Victor Sifuentes, the firm's sole Hispanic attorney; Michele Greene (1986–1992) as associate Abby Perkins; Susan Dey (1986–1992) as assistant district attorney Grace Van Owen; and Susan Ruttan (1986–1993) as Becker's secretary, Roxanne Melman. The firm's fourth "name" partner, Chaney, was found dead, slumped over a law book in the opening scene of the first episode.

Relationships developed: Kuzak fell for Van Owen, they broke up, and got back together; Markowitz and Kelsey became serious, were married on 7 January 1988 (in real life Jill Eikenberry and Michael Tucker were already married), and, after unsuccessful efforts to adopt a child, had a son; Arnie Becker chased almost anyone in a skirt, including some of his own clients; Roxanne Melman, who carried a torch for Becker, was briefly married to Dave Meyer, a terminally boring direct mail entrepreneur (brilliantly played by Dann Florek).

The law firm changed, too. Blair Underwood joined the cast in 1987 as hotshot young associate Jonathan Rollins, the firm's first black lawyer. Larry Drake also joined as the mentally retarded office boy, Benny Stulwicz (Drake won an Emmy for his portrayal). After learning that she wasn't on the partnership track, Abby Perkins left the firm to open her own practice, but later returned. Arnie Becker had his name added to the firm's masthead as office politics reared its head in the 1989–1990 season. Diana Muldaur (1989–1991) came aboard that season as Rosalind Shays, a high-powered attorney who maneuvered herself into the top position at the firm, but who was forced to resign in a climactic power struggle headed up by McKenzie (she was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft in a March 1991 episode). Grace Van Owen left the D.A.'s office for a superior court judgeship during the 1989–1990 season, but was dissatisfied, and joined the firm after Shays's departure. Joining the cast during the 1990–1991 season were Amanda Donohoe (1990–1992) as attorney C. J. Lamb; John Spencer (1990–1994) as attorney Tommy Mullaney; and Cecil Hoffmann (1991–1992) as assistant district attorney Zoey Clemmons, Tommy's ex-wife.

More cast changes occurred during L.A. Law's last three seasons, as its ratings began to slide downward. Hamlin and Smits left in the spring of 1991, and five new lawyers were added during the 1991–1992 season: Michael Cumpsty (1991–1992) as Frank Kittredge; Conchata Ferrell (1991–1992) as brassy entertainment lawyer Susan Bloom; Tom Verica (1991–1992) as Billy Castroverti; Anthony DeSando (1991–1992) as Alex DePalma; and Sheila Kelley (1991–1993) as Gwen Taylor. In the fall of 1992 A Martinez joined the cast as Daniel Morales (Martinez had appeared in another role two seasons earlier, in which his character was executed), and Lisa Zane was added later that season as associate Melina Paros. William Finkelstein returned to the series as executive producer in the spring of 1993.

For the series' eighth and final season, long-time regulars Bernsen, Drake, Dysart, Eikenberry, Rachins, Spencer, Tucker, and Underwood all returned, as three new regulars were added. Two of them—Alan Rosenberg as Eli Levinson and Debi Mazar as secretary Denise Iannello—had appeared in the recently canceled ABC lawyer series Civil Wars (it was explained that Levinson was Stuart Markowitz's cousin). The third new regular was Alexandra Powers as Jane Halliday, who was one of TV's smallest minority groups, a deeply religious person.

Real life imitated art. Applications to law schools surged, and some ascribed the increase to the show's popularity. Late in 1987, cocreators Fisher and Bochco had a less-than-amiable parting of the ways, which resulted in Fisher's filing a $50 million lawsuit against her former partner; the case was settled in 1988.

LADIES BE SEATED ABC

22 APRIL 1949–17 JUNE 1949 This half-hour prime-time game show featured female contestants, who competed in dance contests and in question-and-answer segments. It was hosted by Tom Moore and Phil Patton, and produced by Greg Garrison and Phil Patton. A primordial incarnation of the show, with Johnny Olson hosting, was aired on ABC's Schenectady, N.Y., station in 1945.

LADIES BEFORE GENTLEMEN DUMONT

28 FEBRUARY 1951–2 MAY 1951 This prime-time panel show was the converse of Leave It to the Girls: Each week a panel of male celebrities confronted a lone female guest, whose task was to defend the feminine point of view on the subjects discussed. Ken Roberts hosted the series, and Henry Misrock produced it.

LADIES' CHOICE NBC

8 JUNE 1953–25 SEPTEMBER 1953 Johnny Dugan hosted this late-afternoon half-hour variety series, on which guest performers were selected by women's organizations.

LADIES' DATE DUMONT

13 OCTOBER 1952–31 JULY 1953 Bruce Mayer hosted this afternoon audience-participation and variety show. Mayer had hosted a similar program on local television in Detroit before moving to New York for a network tryout.

LADIES' MAN CBS

27 OCTOBER 1980–21 FEBRUARY 1981 Lawrence Pressman starred in this half-hour sitcom as Alan Thackeray, a divorced father who landed a job at Women's Life magazine, where he was the only male writer. Also featured were Louise Sorel as Elaine Holstein, the managing editor; Simone Griffeth as Gretchen, a researcher; Allison Argo as Susan, a writer; Betty Kennedy as Andrea, another writer; Karen Morrow as Alan's neighbor, Betty Brill; Natasha Ryan as Amy, Alan's eight-year-old daughter; and Herb Edelman as Reggie, the magazine's accountant.

LADY BLUE ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1985–25 JANUARY 1986 Jamie Rose starred in this hour crime show as Detective Katy Mahoney, a tough Chicago cop who toted a .357 Magnum and wasn't afraid to use it (some critics dubbed the character "Dirty Harriet," comparing her to Clint Eastwood's movie cop character Dirty Harry). Other regulars were Danny Aiello as her boss, Lieutenant Terry McNichols; Ron Dean as Sergeant Gianelli; and Bruce A. Young (who had played a Chicago cop on E/R) as Cassidy. The pilot for the series was telecast 15 April 1985. In November the National Coalition on Television Violence cited Lady Blue as the most violent program on the air, averaging fifty violent acts per hour.

LAMB CHOP'S PLAY-ALONG PBS

13 JANUARY 1992– Veteran kids' show personality Shari Lewis returned to entertain a new generation of youngsters in this daily half-hour show, assisted by her puppets Lamb Chop, Charlie Horse, and Hush Puppy.

THE LAMBS GAMBOL NBC

27 FEBRUARY 1949–22 MAY 1949 This half-hour variety series featured performances by members of the Lambs Club, a show business fraternal order, as well as by other guest stars. It was produced by Herb Leder and directed by Tom McDermott.

LAMP UNTO MY FEET CBS

21 NOVEMBER 1948–21 JANUARY 1979 This Sunday-morning religious program, one of TV's longest-running network shows, featured programs on cultural as well as religious themes. In its early years it was aimed at children and was produced by Isabelle Redman of CBS Public Affairs. It was later produced by Pamela Ilott for CBS News.

LANCELOT LINK, SECRET CHIMP ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1972 Saturday-morning filmed series about a group of simian secret agents; human voices were dubbed over. Lancelot Link was the principal primate, though a rock band known as the Evolution Revolution was also featured. Other regular characters included Mata Hairi, Darwin (the head of A.P.E.), Creto, Dr. Strangemind, Wang Fu, and the Baron (boss of C.H.U.M.P.). The series was shown in an hour format during its first season, and in a half-hour format during the second season.

LANCER CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1968–23 JUNE 1970 This hour-long western was an imitation of Bonanza. It starred Andrew Duggan as Murdoch Lancer, twice-widowed California rancher; James Stacy as Johnny Lancer, his hot-headed son; Wayne Maunder as Scott Lancer, his college-educated son, Johnny's half brother; Elizabeth Baur as Teresa O'Brien, Murdoch's ward (daughter of his late foreman); and Paul Brinegar as Jelly Hoskins, the current foreman. Samuel Peeples created the series, which was produced by Alan A. Armer for 20th Century-Fox. Reruns were broadcast during the summer of 1971.

LAND OF THE GIANTS ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1970 Science fiction series about a group of Earthlings aboard the Spindrift, on a flight from Los Angeles to London on June 12, 1983. The aircraft crash lands in a strange world where everything is a dozen times larger than on Earth, and the survivors found themselves hunted by giants. With Gary Conway as Captain Steve Burton; Don Marshall as copilot Dan Erickson; Deanna Lund as Valerie Scott; Don Matheson as the wealthy Mark Wilson; Heather Young as flight attendant Betty Hamilton; Kurt Kasznar as the unscrupulous Alexander Fitzhugh; Stefan Arngrim as youngster Barry Lockridge; and Kevin Hagen as Inspector Kobick, the giant in charge of apprehending the little people. Irwin Allen was executive producer of the series, which was reportedly budgeted at the then astronomical figure of $250,000 per episode.

LAND OF THE LOST NBC/CBS/ABC

7 SEPTEMBER 1974–20 NOVEMBER 1976 (NBC); 4 FEBRUARY 1978–2 SEPTEMBER 1978 (NBC); 22 JUNE 1985–28 DECEMBER 1985 (CBS); 20 JUNE 1987–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 (CBS); 7 SEPTEMBER 1991–3 SEPTEMBER 1994 (ABC) Innovative, live-action Saturday-morning show about a forest ranger and his two children who, caught in a time warp, found themselves in a prehistoric world. With Spencer Milligan as ranger Rick Marshall; Wesley Eure as Will, his son; Kathy Coleman as Holly, his daughter; Philip Paley as Cha-Ka, one of the Pakuni people, an apelike race discovered by the visitors; Sharon Baird and Joe Giamalva as other Pakunis; and Dave Greenwood, Bill Laimbeer, and John Lambert as Sleestacks, a race of reptilian creatures. Sid and Marty Krofft produced the series, which returned several times.

When the series returned in 1991, it was again seen Saturday mornings, but with a new cast and on a new network. This time three members of the Porter family ended up in a prehistoric world. The new cast included Timothy Bottoms as Tom Porter; Jennifer Drugan as daughter Annie; Robert Gavin as son Kevin; Ed Gale as Tasha, their pet reptile (Danny Mann provided Tasha's voice); Bobby Porter as Stink, a monkey-like creature who befriended them; and Shannon Day as Christa, a mysterious girl whom they met.

LAND'S END SYNDICATED

1995– Hour crime show filmed on location at Cabo San Lucas in Baja California. With Fred Dryer as Mike Land, a former Los Angeles cop who moved south and became a private eye; Geoffrey Lewis as Mike's partner in the business and lifelong friend, Willis P. Dunleevy; Pamela Bowen as Courtney Sanders, security manager at the Westin Hotel; and Tim Thomerson as Dave, who ran a local charter boat service.

LANIGAN'S RABBI NBC

30 JANUARY 1977–3 JULY 1977 This crime show surfaced irregularly in 1977. Based on Harry Kemelman's novel, Friday the Rabbi Slept Late, it featured Art Carney as Paul Lanigan, big city police chief; Bruce Solomon as Rabbi David Small, Lanigan's occasional partner and consultant; Janis Paige as Kate Lanigan, Paul's wife; Janet Margolin as Miriam Small, the Rabbi's wife; Barbara Carney as Bobbie Whittaker; and Robert Doyle as Osgood. The pilot for the series was telecast 17 June 1976. Leonard B. Stern was executive producer.

THE LANNY ROSS SHOW NBC

1 APRIL 1948–4 AUGUST 1949 Lanny Ross, who had been featured on such radio series as The Maxwell House Show Boat and Your Hit Parade, hosted one of television's first network variety shows. Sponsored by Swift, the half-hour series was also known as The Swift Show. Martha Logan and Sandra Gahle were also featured; Lee Cooley was the producer.

THE LARAINE DAY SHOW ABC
5 MAY 1951–18 AUGUST 1951

DAYDREAMING WITH LARAINE ABC
17 MAY 1951–19 JULY 1951 Laraine Day hosted two interview shows in 1951. The first, titled The Laraine Day Show, was a half-hour series broadcast on Saturday afternoons; it featured Ruth Woodner and the Bill Harrington Trio. The second series, Daydreaming with Laraine, was a fifteen-minute show aired on Thursday evenings; it featured interviews with sports personalities (at the time Day was married to Leo Durocher, then manager of the New York Giants baseball team). The Laraine Day Show was produced by Ted Kneeland, while Daydreaming with Laraine was produced by Ward Byron.

LARAMIE NBC
15 SEPTEMBER 1959–17 SEPTEMBER 1963 Hour-long western set in Laramie, Wyoming. With John Smith as Slim Sherman and Robert Fuller as Jess Harper, partners in a ranch who supplemented their income by operating a stagecoach station on the premises. Also featured were Hoagy Carmichael (1959–1960) as Jonesy, their chief ranch hand; Bobby Crawford, Jr. (older brother of The Rifleman's Johnny Crawford) as Andy Sherman, Slim's brother; Don Durant (1960–1963) as Gandy, a ranch hand; Arch Johnson (1960–1963) as Wellman, another ranch hand; Dennis Holmes (1961–1963) as Mike, a young orphan who moved in; and Spring Byington (1961–1963) as Daisy Cooper, the housekeeper.

LAREDO NBC
16 SEPTEMBER 1965–1 SEPTEMBER 1967 Light western about a group of Texas Rangers who spent as much time fighting among themselves as they did fighting desperadoes. With Neville Brand as Reese Bennett; Peter Brown (formerly of The Lawman) as Chad Cooper; William Smith as Joe Riley; Philip Carey as Captain Parmalee, their harried commanding officer; and Robert Wolders (1966–1967) as rookie ranger Erik Hunter. The series was produced by Universal TV.

THE LARRY KANE SHOW SYNDICATED
1971 Rock-and-roll performers guest starred on this hour program hosted by Philadelphia disc jockey Larry Kane.

THE LARRY KING SHOW (LARRY KING LIVE) SYNDICATED/CNN
13 MARCH 1983–10 JULY 1983 (SYNDICATED); 3 JUNE 1985– (CNN) Larry King, whose all-night radio talk show was nationally syndicated, tried to bring his show to television, but met with unspectacular results at first. The ninety-minute show was broadcast live on Sunday nights from Washington, D.C., and featured a telephone hookup that enabled viewers to talk directly to King and his guests. King's second television effort was far more successful: Larry King Live! premiered on CNN 3 June 1985; on this hour weeknight show, also broadcast from Washington, King interviewed newsmakers, authors, celebrities, and government officials. The show again featured a telephone line so that viewers could talk with King's guests. Larry King Live celebrated its tenth anniversary during the week of 5–9 June 1995 with an impressive array of guests: President Bill Clinton, singer Barbra Streisand, media mogul (and CNN owner) Ted Turner, PLO leader Yasir Arafat, and late-night talk show host David Letterman.

THE LARRY SANDERS SHOW HBO
15 AUGUST 1992– The world of the late-night talk show was the subject of this innovative sitcom created by Garry Shandling and Dennis Klein. Having served as frequent guest host on The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson and been considered as a possible successor to David Letterman on Late Night, Shandling was familiar with the territory. He played Larry Sanders, the self-obsessed, never-satisfied host of "The Larry Sanders Show," a popular late night talk show. Also featured were Jeffrey Tambor as his obsequious sidekick, Hank ("Hey now!") Kingsley; Rip Torn as his Machiavellian producer, Artie; Megan Gallagher (1992–1993) as his wife, Jeannie Sanders; Janeane Garofalo as Paula, the talent booker; Linda Doucett (1992–1995) as Darlene, Hank's assistant; Jeremy Piven (1992–1994) as the head writer, Jerry; Wallace Langham as Phil, the young writer; Penny Johnson as Beverly, Larry's assistant. As the second season unfolded in 1993, Jeannie had left Larry, and Larry's ex-wife had reappeared; Kathryn Harrold (1993–1994) joined the cast as Francine, the ex. Scott Thompson was added in 1995 as Hank's efficient assistant, Brian, a gay man. The talk-show segments were taped before a live studio audience, and featured real-life guests such as Roseanne, Sharon Stone, and Peter Falk. The behind-the-scenes scenes were aired without a laugh track and with plenty of four-letter words.

THE LARRY STORCH SHOW — CBS

11 JULY 1953–12 SEPTEMBER 1953 Larry Storch hosted this variety hour, which was a summer replacement for The Jackie Gleason Show. Like Gleason, Storch had earlier hosted Cavalcade of Stars on the DuMont network. He would become better known as corporal Agarn on F Troop.

LAS VEGAS GAMBIT

See GAMBIT

THE LAS VEGAS SHOW — SYNDICATED

1967 The Las Vegas Show, a nightly two-hour talkfest broadcast live from Las Vegas, premiered 1 May 1967, and was supposed to be the cornerstone of a "fourth network," The United Network. Hosted by Bill Dana, the show disappeared after a few weeks, together with the plans for the new network.

LASH OF THE WEST — ABC

4 JANUARY 1953–9 MAY 1953 Fifteen-minute series on which western star Lash LaRue demonstrated skills such as using the bullwhip (LaRue's trademark).

LASSIE — CBS/SYNDICATED

12 SEPTEMBER 1954–12 SEPTEMBER 1971 (CBS); 1971–1974 (SYNDICATED) Lassie, the daring and resourceful collie owned and trained by Rudd Weatherwax, had starred both in films and on radio before coming to TV in 1954. Over the next two decades the dog survived many changes in format and cast and never seemed to age; actually, over the years Lassie was played by at least six different dogs, all of them males, and other Lassies were used for special shots or difficult stunts. For her first three seasons Lassie lived on the Miller farm near the town of Calverton; the cast then included Tommy Rettig as Jeff Miller; Jan Clayton as Ellen Miller, his widowed mother; George Cleveland as Gramps (George Miller), Jeff's granddad; Donald Keeler (nephew of actress Ruby Keeler) as Jeff's best friend, Porky Brockway; and Paul Maxey as Matt Brockway, Porky's father. By 1957 young Rettig had outgrown the role—that fall the Millers suddenly moved to the city and entrusted Lassie to the care of a young orphan, recently adopted by a Calverton couple. The new cast included Jon Provost as Timmy Martin; Cloris Leachman as his mother, Ruth Martin; Jon Shepodd as Paul Martin, his father; and George Chandler as Uncle Petrie. Leachman and Shepodd lasted only one season as Timmy's parents; they were replaced in 1958 by June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly (again as Ruth and Paul Martin). Other regulars included Todd Ferrell as Boomer Bates, Timmy's pal; Andy Clyde as oldtimer Cully, also a friend of Timmy's. By 1964 the show's owners—The Wrather Corporation—had decided on another change; it was explained that the Martins had decided to move to Australia, and since dogs entering that country had to be quarantined for six months, Lassie would be better off with a new owner. Robert Bray stepped in as Corey Stewart, a forest ranger (Bray had actually been introduced in a five-parter during the 1963–1964 season to test audience reaction). Freed from the farm format, Lassie could now become involved in a wider variety of outdoor adventures. Bray departed in 1968, and Lassie hooked up with a pair of forest rangers (Jed Allan as Scott Turner, and Jack de Mave as Bob) for two seasons. Neither of the rangers was seen in every episode, as Lassie began to become a freelance trou-bleshooter. During the 1970–1971 and 1971–1972 seasons—the last on CBS and the first on syndication—there were no human regulars. For the final two years of syndication, Lassie returned to a farm (a ranch, actually), run by Keith Holden (played by Larry Wilcox). A cartoon version of the show was also seen during the 1973 and 1974 seasons: see Lassie's Rescue Rangers. The earlier versions of the series were syndicated under different titles: the episodes starring Tommy Rettig were titled Jeff's Collie, and those with Jon Provost were titled Timmy and Lassie. See also The New Lassie. A theatrical film appeared in 1994.

LASSIE'S RESCUE RANGERS ABC

8 SEPTEMBER 1973–31 AUGUST 1975 Ecology-oriented weekend cartoon series based, of course, on Lassie. The cartoon Lassie was the boss of a group of animals dedicated to saving the environment. Norm Prescott and Lou Scheimer produced the series.

LAST CALL SYNDICATED

1994–1995 Created by Brandon Tartikoff and intended for late-night time slots, this half-hour daily series began as a freewheeling discussion of topical events by a panel of five pundits: Terry McDonell (former editor of Esquire), Elvis Mitchell, Sue Ellicott (a correspondent for the London Sunday Times), Brianne Leary, and Tad Low. After a few weeks, Leary left the studio and was made the show's "road correspondent," reporting from various locations. After a few more weeks McDonell, Mitchell, and Low had departed. Joining Ellicott and guests in the studio was John "Stuttering John" Melendez, a veteran of Howard Stern's popular morning radio show. After a few more weeks the show was canceled.

LAST CHANCE GARAGE PBS

1982–1985 Half-hour instructional series on do-it-yourself auto repair, hosted by Brad Sears.

THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS

See HAWKEYE

LAST OF THE WILD (LORNE GREENE'S LAST OF THE WILD) SYNDICATED

1974 Half-hour documentaries about wildlife, narrated by Lorne Greene. From Ivan Tors Productions. See also Lorne Greene's New Wilderness.

THE LAST PRECINCT NBC

11 APRIL 1986–30 MAY 1986 Stephen Cannell's hour cop show was played mostly for laughs. It was set at the 56th Precinct in Los Angeles, where the malcontents and troublemakers from the city's other precincts were all transferred. The large cast included Adam West as Captain Rick Wright; Jonathan Perpich as Sergeant Price Pascall; Randi Brooks as Officer Mel Brubaker, a transsexual; Rick Ducommun as Officer "Raid" Raider; Ernie Hudson as Sergeant Night Train Lane; Lucy Lee Flippin as Officer Tina Starland; Vijay Amritraj as Alphabet, an "exchange" cop from India; Pete Willcox as The King, an Elvis impersonator; Keenan Wynn as Butch; Hank Rolike as Sundance; Wings Hauser as Lieutenant Hobbs of the L.A. Sheriff's Department; and Yana Nirvana as Sergeant Martha Haggerty, Hobbs's assistant. The pilot for the series was telecast 26 January 1986, immediately following Super Bowl XX; seven regular episodes were aired beginning in April.

THE LAST RESORT CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1979–17 MARCH 1980 Half-hour sitcom about a group of college kids working at a resort hotel. With Larry Breeding as Michael Lerner, premed student; Stephanie Faracy as Gail Collins, the pastry chef; Zane Lasky as Duane Kaminsky; Walter Olkewicz as Zach Comstock; John Fujioka as Kevin, the cook; Ray Underwood as rich kid Jeffrey Barron; Robert Costanzo as Murray, the maitre d'; and Dorothy Konrad as Mrs. Trilling, one of the guests. Gary David Goldberg created and produced the show, which got off to a slow start and was pulled from the schedule after three weeks; it returned in December.

THE LAST WORD CBS

6 JANUARY 1957–18 OCTOBER 1959 The English language was the topic of discussion on this Sunday-afternoon panel show. Each week a panel of three celebrities or authorities discussed questions submitted by viewers about the language. Fred Freed produced the highbrow half hour, and John Mason Brown was featured as a permanent panelist. Dr. Bergen Evans was the moderator.

THE LAST WORD ABC

26 OCTOBER 1982–22 APRIL 1983 An hour news analysis program, The Last Word was broadcast weeknights at midnight, immediately following ABC News Nightline. Greg Jackson and Phil Donahue were the cohosts. When Nightline was expanded to sixty minutes, The Last Word was dropped, though Jackson continued to host an interview show (see One on One).

THE LATE LATE SHOW WITH TOM SNYDER CBS

9 JANUARY 1995– CBS's entry into late-late night talk show programming was accomplished with Tom Snyder, who had inaugurated the concept as host of the Tomorrow show on NBC from 1973 to 1982. In 1982 Snyder's show had been replaced by Late Night with David Letterman, so it was only fitting that his 1995 show followed Letterman's at 12:35 A.M. The hour program, which dispensed with a studio audience, was broadcast from Los Angeles live to the East Coast, and was simulcast on radio to other time zones; it featured an 800 telephone number by which viewers and listeners could ask questions of Snyder's guests.

LATE NIGHT WITH CONAN O'BRIEN NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1993– The long search for a successor to David Letterman as host of NBC's post-Tonight show talk program began early in 1993, as soon as Letterman announced his upcoming move to CBS. NBC hired Saturday Night Live executive producer Lorne Michaels to oversee the new program, and to help find a replacement host. Saturday Night Live regular Dana Carvey had been under consideration, but he declined the offer, as did Garry Shandling. The search ended with Conan O'Brien. A tall young man with very little previous on-camera experience, O'Brien had been a writer for The Wilton North Report, Saturday Night Live and The Simpsons. After several test shows, and a summer of Letterman reruns, O'Brien took over on 13 September. Andy Richter was O'Brien's sidekick, and drummer Max Weinberg led the band.

LATE NIGHT WITH DAVID LETTERMAN NBC

1 FEBRUARY 1982–10 SEPTEMBER 1993 Comedian David Letterman hosted this late-night (12:30 A.M.) talk show, which replaced Tomorrow Coast to Coast. The series was originally aired Mondays through Thursdays, and expanded to Fridays on 12 June 1987. A native of Indianapolis, Letterman moved to Los Angeles in the mid-1970s to do standup comedy. He was a regular on two short-lived variety shows (The Starland Vocal Band Show and Mary, the 1978 debacle that starred Mary Tyler Moore). After guest-hosting for Johnny Carson on the Tonight show, he was given his own daytime show in 1980 (see The David Letterman Show). Although the daytime show lasted only four months, the network wisely kept Letterman under contract. The late-night show was launched in early 1982, with the blessing of Johnny Carson. Carson's production company did not own the new show, but wielded some influence over it. Letterman acceded to the Carson requests that the band be no larger than four pieces, and that the bandleader not sit with the host on stage. A request that Letterman perform no opening monologue was gradually ignored as the show became successful.

The show quickly attracted a loyal following, especially among the 18-to-34 age group, as Letterman's quick wit, irreverence, and unpredictability endeared him to his audience. The influence of older TV iconoclasts Ernie Kovacs and Steve Allen was evidenced by Letterman's willingness to stretch the boundaries of the traditional talk show. (Letterman's studio announcer, Bill Wendell, had worked with Kovacs). Over the years viewers were treated not only to offbeat guests, but also to elevator races, hidden cameras in other NBC offices, "top ten" lists, "stupid pet tricks," and even a guided tour of Letterman's eclectic record collection. On one show the studio camera made a complete 360-degree revolution during the hour (thus showing the host and his guests upside down for part of the broadcast); on another Letterman wore a Velcro suit and threw himself against a wall (he stuck). Letterman even did one show from his Connecticut home, waiting for the cable television installer to arrive. An especially memorable incident occurred on a 1986 program, as Letterman strode to the headquarters of NBC's new owner, General Electric, with a fruit basket for GE executives; he was rebuffed by the corporate security chief, who even refused to shake Letterman's hand. Letterman also hosted several annual prime-time anniversary shows, presenting highlights from the past year's programs.

Also featured on the show were musician Paul Shaffer (formerly of Saturday Night Live) and the World's Most Dangerous Band, the inimitable Calvert DeForest (better known as Larry "Bud" Melman), and show writer Chris Elliott (who appeared in various roles, including The Guy Who Lives Under the Seats; he is the son of Bob Elliott). Meg Parsont, a Simon & Schuster publicist, became a minor celebrity on the program; her office building was located directly across the street from the studio, and Letterman occasionally trained a camera through her high-rise office window as he telephoned her from the set.

In 1992 Letterman's future with NBC became cloudy after the network announced that Jay Leno would succeed Johnny Carson as host of the Tonight show. Letterman, who had long coveted an earlier time slot, eventually negotiated a lucrative deal with CBS, announced early in 1993, under which he would go head-to-head with Leno at 11:35 P.M. (see Late Show with David Letterman). Letterman continued to host his NBC show through September 1993 (the last first-run program aired on 25 June, with special musical guest Bruce Springsteen); in promoting the show during its last few months, NBC referred to it only as Late Night. Letterman's successor as host of Late Night was the relatively unknown Conan O'Brien (see Late Night with Conan O'Brien).

THE LATE SHOW STARRING JOAN RIVERS FOX

9 OCTOBER 1986–21 MAY 1987

THE LATE SHOW FOX

22 MAY 1987–10 DECEMBER 1987; 14 JANUARY 1988–14 OCTOBER 1988 Joan Rivers was the first performer signed to the fledgling Fox network, which had high hopes that a late-night talk show hosted by the quick-witted comedienne would prove to be an auspicious inaugural series. Alas, it was not to be, as Rivers's show was canceled after just seven months. Fox's choice of Rivers seemed to make sense; she had been "permanent guest host" of The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson since 1983, and that show's ratings had held their own (and sometimes improved) during her guest tenures. Fox executives scheduled a major press conference early in 1986 to announce her arrival; unfortunately, Rivers was unable to notify Johnny Carson beforehand of her new assignment, and the resulting flap upset her considerably.

Nevertheless, plans for The Late Show Starring Joan Rivers got underway. Edgar Rosenberg, Rivers's husband, and Bill Sammeth were the executive producers; a $2 million, 420-seat studio was built to Rivers's specifications; musician Mark Hudson was hired as bandleader. It was decided that the show would be broadcast live to the East Coast. Sammeth tried to attract guests who appealed to a younger audience than that of the Carson show. For the premiere telecast, which went out to ninety-five stations, he booked Cher, Elton John, David Lee Roth, and Pee-wee Herman. The initial ratings were encouraging, but by the end of October they had dropped sharply; Fox had promised advertisers a rating of 5, but the show was now averaging less than half of that, which meant that Fox would have to offer "makegoods," or subsequent free spots, to its sponsors.

Relations between Rivers's staff and network executives quickly deteriorated; there were constant battles over expenses, how many guests should be booked on each program, whether the stage crew should be fed, and even over a Pepsi machine installed at the studio. In February 1987 Fox effectively took control of the show, and coexecutive producer Rosenberg was made to feel unwelcome. Ratings remained low, and in April 1987 Fox announced that it was pulling the plug on the show. Rivers's last show aired 15 May 1987, followed by four nights of reruns. Edgar Rosenberg, who had been in poor health, committed suicide in August of that year, while on a business trip to Philadelphia.

After Rivers's departure, Fox briefly experimented with having a different guest host each night; that idea soon proved unworkable, and various celebrities then took longer turns. Among the brightest was a young black comic named Arsenio Hall, under whose stewardship ratings actually improved slightly. By that time, however, Fox was already committed to a replacement series, The Wilton North Report. When that disastrous show was axed after less than a month, back came reruns of The Late Show, including some programs which Rivers had hosted. A new version of The Late Show surfaced on 10 March 1988. Ross Shafer became its permanent host in April; Shafer had previously hosted a local talk show in Seattle, Almost Live with Ross Shafer, for four years. After six months Fox shelved the entire idea of a late-night talk show. Three months later Arsenio Hall, whom Fox probably could have signed earlier, premiered his hit syndicated talk show; see The Arsenio Hall Show. Fox again tried a late-night talk show—again unsuccessfully—in 1993: see The Chevy Chase Show.

LATE SHOW WITH DAVID LETTERMAN CBS

30 AUGUST 1993– After numerous attempts to compete with NBC's Tonight show (and later with ABC News Nightline), CBS finally succeeded in 1993 when David Letterman accepted its multi-multi-million dollar offer. As host of NBC's Late Night with David Letterman since 1982, Letterman already had years of experience in the late-night talk show format. He had hoped to be able to succeed Johnny Carson as host of the Tonight show, and was extremely disappointed when NBC announced in mid-1991 that Jay Leno would succeed Carson in May 1992. NBC hoped that Letterman would be content to remain in the Late Night spot; he wasn't.

In the fall of 1992 NBC gave Letterman permission to negotiate with other broadcasters, in exchange for Letterman's extending his contract with NBC through June of 1993. NBC also retained the right to match any offer made by a competitor. ABC, CBS, Fox, and several syndicators immediately expressed interest in Letterman's services. CBS and Fox soon emerged as the two most serious contenders; Letterman preferred the prestige and relative stability of a network over the vagaries of syndication, and ABC was not pursued because it could not promise Letterman an 11:30 P.M. time slot due to its commitment to ABC News Nightline. By December of 1992 CBS had made Letterman an extraordinary offer: a three-year deal with a base annual salary of $12.5 million (with another $2 million in bonuses if certain ratings marks were achieved), $82 million in production costs, and $7.2 million for several prime-time specials. More importantly, the deal gave Letterman ownership of the show and control over filling the 12:30 A.M. time slot following his show.

The next thirty days were difficult ones for NBC, CBS, David Letterman, and Jay Leno. NBC executives endlessly debated whether to keep or to dump Leno. In early January 1993 NBC made an oral offer to Letterman; it did not match CBS's, but it did promise him the Tonight show by May of 1994. Before receiving a definitive answer from Letterman the network withdrew the proposal, and Letterman accepted the CBS deal.

To accommodate the new show CBS refurbished the Ed Sullivan Theater in Manhattan (Letterman preferred that it be a chilly 58 degrees during tapings). Late Show with David Letterman premiered on 30 August 1993; Bill Murray, who had been the inaugural guest on Late Night in 1982, was the first guest on the new show. Letterman brought much of the old show with him, although NBC had threatened to preclude him from doing so. Bandleader Paul Shaffer came along, although the band was no longer known as the World's Most Dangerous Band, but rather the CBS Orchestra. The nightly "Top Ten" lists were also brought along, and were now introduced with fancier graphics (the feature proved so popular that it was syndicated to radio stations in mid-1994). Letterman himself now appeared in suits, rather than in blazers, and delivered longer monologues. In short, he succeeded in broadening the appeal of his show. Fortunately, some of the quirkiness of the old show remained. Mujibur Rahman and Sirajul Islam, two Bangladeshi immigrants who ran a nearby souvenir store, became semi-regulars on the show as Letterman sent camera crews into their shop and followed them on a cross-country journey. When the show was broadcast from London for a week in May 1995, novelist-in-hiding Salman Rushdie showed up to deliver one evening's Top Ten list to Letterman.

CBS's expensive gamble paid off handsomely, as Late Show with David Letterman enjoyed high ratings from the outset. Late Show became the first program in thirty-nine years to present a serious challenge to the Tonight show at 11:30 P.M. Letterman consistently outdrew Leno, especially in the demographically desirable group of young adult viewers, for the first two years. Leno's overall ratings, however, began to surpass Letterman's in late 1995.

THE LATE SUMMER, EARLY FALL BERT CONVY SHOW CBS

25 AUGUST 1976–15 SEPTEMBER 1976 Four-week half-hour summer variety series hosted by Bert Convy, with Henry Polic II, Sallie James, Lenny Schultz (as "The Bionic Chicken"), Marty Barris, and Donna Ponterotto. Executive producer: Howard Hinderstein.

LATER WITH BOB COSTAS NBC

22 AUGUST 1988–25 FEBRUARY 1994

LATER WITH GREG KINNEAR

28 FEBRUARY 1994– This half-hour talk show was designed to follow Late Night with David Letterman at 1:30 A.M., Mondays through Thursdays. The host was NBC's versatile sportscaster Bob Costas from 1988 to early 1994, when Greg Kinnear (of the E! channel's Talk Soup) took over.

LAUGH LINE NBC

16 APRIL 1959–11 JUNE 1959 On this Thursday-night game show hosted by Dick Van Dyke, celebrity panelists were required to supply captions to cartoons. Panelists over the several weeks included Dorothy Loudon, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Pat Harrington, Jr. (as Guido Panzini), Shelley Berman, Roger Price, and Orson Bean.

LAUGH TRAX SYNDICATED

1982 A half-hour series of rock music, interspersed with comedy sketches. Jim Staahl hosted the show, with assistance from Gail Matthius and Lucy Webb.

LAUGH-IN NBC

22 JANUARY 1968–14 MAY 1973 Hosted by the comedy duo of Dan Rowan and Dick Martin (the show's official title was Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In), Laugh-In was a fast-moving hour of sight gags, one-liners, short skits, and blackouts. The show was an immediate hit and did much to speed up the pace of TV comedy shows. It relied little on the talents of guest stars, though many celebrities made cameo appearances (including Richard Nixon, who uttered "Sock it to me?" in a 1968 show); instead, a large company of regulars, including many who were new to television, carried the show, and above all, kept it moving. The program seemed to operate on the premise that if enough gags could be crammed into an hour, only a small proportion needed to be genuinely funny for the show to succeed, and at the very least, the viewers could not complain of boredom. Thanks to Laugh-In, such phrases as "Ring my chimes," "Look that up in your Funk & Wagnall's," and "You bet your bippy" joined the American vocabulary, at least temporarily. Among the many regulars on the show were Dennis Allen, Chelsea Brown, Ruth Buzzi, Johnny Brown, Judy Carne, Ann Elder, Byron Gilliam, Henry Gibson, Richard Dawson, Teresa Graves, Larry Hovis, Arte Johnson, Goldie Hawn, Jeremy Lloyd, Gary Owens, Dave Madden, Lily Tomlin, Nancie Phillips, Pamela Rodgers, Alan Sues, Barbara Sharma, and Jo Anne Worley. In 1972 several new faces were added, including Patti Deutsch, Sarah Kennedy, Donna Jean Young, Jud Strunk, Brian Bessler, Todd Bass, Willie Tyler, and the Burbank Quickies. George Schlatter and Ed Friendly were the executive producers until 1971 when Paul Keyes succeeded them. In the fall of 1977 Laugh-In (minus hosts Rowan and Martin) returned to NBC as a series of specials, headlined by guest stars. A twenty-fifth anniversary retrospective aired on NBC 7 February 1993. Another special aired 14 February 1994.

LAUGHS FOR SALE ABC

20 OCTOBER 1963–22 DECEMBER 1963 On this half-hour series a panel of comedians performed material submitted by aspiring comedy writers, after which the material was discussed and evaluated. Hal March hosted the show, which was hastily scheduled to replace 100 Grand, a game show axed after only three weeks.

LAUREN HUTTON AND . . . SYNDICATED

1995– Host Lauren Hutton interviewed a single guest on each half-hour program of this five-day-a-week series.

LAURIE HILL ABC

30 SEPTEMBER 1992–28 OCTOBER 1992 Half-hour sitcom about a physician and her family. With DeLane Matthews as Dr. Laurie Hill; Robert Clohessy as her husband, Jeff, a writer; Eric Lloyd as their precocious five-year-old, Leo; Kurt Fuller as one of Laurie's medical partners, Dr. Spencer Kramer; Joseph Maher as the other partner, Dr. Walter Weisman; Ellen DeGeneres as Nancy, the nurse; and Doris Belack as Beverly, the receptionist. Neal Marlens and Carol Black created the series.

LAVERNE AND SHIRLEY ABC

27 JANUARY 1976–10 MAY 1983 Spun off from Happy Days, Laverne and Shirley was a rare example of a spinoff that proved as popular (and almost as durable) as the parent series. It was an instant hit, as its premiere topped the weekly ratings and the series finished second in the 1975–1976 annual ratings. Laverne and Shirley again placed second (this time to Happy Days) in the 1976–1977 race and finished first the following season (with Happy Days second). During the 1978–1979 season it again placed second.

Like Happy Days, Laverne and Shirley was set in Milwaukee during the late 1950s. Its emphasis was on physical comedy, and its two central characters were a pair of young women who worked together at a brewery and lived together in a basement apartment. It starred Penny Marshall (sister of co-creator Garry Marshall) as Laverne DeFazio and Cindy Williams as Shirley Feeney. Also featured were Phil Foster as Laverne's father, Frank DeFazio, owner of a local pizzeria; David L. Lander as Andrew "Squiggy" Squigman, their dimwitted friend and co-worker; Michael McKean as another friend and co-worker, Lenny Kowznovski, Squiggy's inseparable pal; Betty Garrett (fall 1976–1983) as the landlady, Edna Babish, who married Frank in 1979; and Eddie Mekka as macho Carmine Ragusa, Shirley's on-again, off-again boyfriend.

After a big drop in the ratings during the 1979–1980 season, Laverne and Shirley left Wisconsin for Southern California as the sixth season began. Frank and Edna went first, to open a new restaurant, Cowboy Bill's. Laverne and Shirley followed, as their assembly-line jobs at the brewery had been automated; they found an apartment in California and landed jobs at Bardwell's Department Store. Lenny, Squiggy, and Carmine also decided to head West. Joining the cast were Ed Marinaro (1980–1981) as Laverne and Shirley's apartment manager, Sonny St. Jacques, a part-time stuntman; and Leslie Easterbrook (1980–1983) as Rhonda Lee, a conceited but untalented model and actress.

Trouble erupted in the summer of 1982, as production got under way for what would be Laverne and Shirley's last season. Cindy Williams, who was pregnant, chafed at working fourteen-hour days and demanded that her hours be specified in writing. When her demands were not resolved to her satisfaction, she walked off the set and refused to continue working; she also filed suit against Paramount Studios, alleging that Paramount reneged on an agreement to let her work reduced hours. Williams did not return to work and consequently appeared in very few episodes of the 1982–1983 season; her character was married to a medic, Walter Meaney, at a veterans' hospital on 28 September 1982. Over the series' seven and a half seasons, 178 episodes were produced.

LAVERNE & SHIRLEY ABC

10 OCTOBER 1981–18 SEPTEMBER 1982 This Saturday-morning cartoon version of the prime-time sitcom found Laverne and Shirley in the Army. Sergeant Turnbuckle was their original drill sergeant, but he was succeeded by Sergeant Squealy. In the fall of 1982 the show was incorporated in The Mork & Mindy/ Laverne & Shirley/Fonz Hour.

THE LAW AND HARRY McGRAW CBS

27 SEPTEMBER 1987–10 FEBRUARY 1988 Jerry Orbach starred in this hour crime show as Harry McGraw, a semi-seedy private eye who worked in Boston. Across the hall from McGraw's rundown office were the law offices of Maginnis & Maginnis, now occupied by only one Magginis, the widowed, and very prim and proper, Ellie Maginnis (played by Barbara Babcock). Although they had little in common, the two hit it off. Other regulars included Juli Donald as Harry's niece and secretary, E. J. Brunson; Shea Farrell as Ellie's nephew, tax attorney Steve Lacey; Peter Haskell as assistant district attorney Tyler Chase, who also pursued Ellie; and Marty Davis as Cookie, the bartender at Harry's favorite watering hole, Gilhooley's. Orbach had originally played the character on Murder, She Wrote.

THE LAW AND MR. JONES ABC

7 OCTOBER 1960–22 SEPTEMBER 1961 Half-hour crime show starring James Whitmore as idealistic attorney Abraham Lincoln Jones. With Janet DeGore as his secretary, Marsha Spear; Conlan Carter as his law clerk, C. E. Carruthers. Sy Gomberg created and produced the series.

LAW & ORDER NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1990– Filmed on location in New York, this hour crime show borrowed its format from a 1963 ABC series, Arrest and Trial. On the first half of the show a team of detectives apprehended criminals, and on the second half a team of prosecutors attempted to convict them. With George Dzundza (1990–1991) as Det. Sgt. Max Greevey; Chris Noth (1990–1995) as his partner, Detective Mike Logan; Dann Florek (1990–1993) as their boss, Captain John Cragen; Michael Moriarty (1990–1994) as assistant district attorney Ben Stone; Richard Brooks (1990–1993) as assistant D.A. Paul Robinette; Steven Hill as the district attorney, Adam Schiff; Paul Sorvino (1991–1992) as Detective Phil Cerretta (Sorvino left the series after one season to study opera); Jerry Orbach (1992– ) as Detective Lennie Briscoe; Jill Hennessy as assistant district attorney Claire Kincaid; S. Epatha Merkerson as Lieutenant Anita Van Buren; and Sam Waterston (1994– ) as assistant district attorney Jack McCoy. Benjamin Bratt was added in the fall of 1995 as Detective Rey Curtis. Of the several actors' departures on the series, Michael Moriarty's was the noisiest; he left the series after complaining about Attorney General Janet Reno's criticism of TV violence. Labeling those who threatened censorship as "liberal fascists," he criticized NBC News for its failure to give him adequate time to air his views. Later in 1994 he announced on CNBC's Talk Live that he intended to run for President, but withdrew two days later.

THE LAW OF THE PLAINSMAN NBC

1 OCTOBER 1959–22 SEPTEMBER 1960 Michael Ansara, who had played an Indian on Broken Arrow, again played an Indian on this half-hour western. This time Ansara starred as Sam Buckheart, an Apache who (as a result of befriending a Cavalry officer as a youth) had been educated at Harvard. Buckheart returned to Santa Fe, New Mexico Territory, and became a deputy U.S. marshal there. Also featured were Dayton Lummis as his boss, Marshal Morrison; Robert Harland as fellow deputy Billy Lordan; Gina Gillespie as an orphan, Tess Logan, who was "adopted" by Sam; and Nora Marlowe as Martha, owner of the boarding house where Sam and Tess lived. Peter Packer produced the program. The pilot for the series was televised 17 February 1959 as an episode of The Rifleman, titled "The Indian."

THE LAWBREAKERS SYNDICATED
1963 Documentary series about real-life criminals, narrated by Lee Marvin.

THE LAWLESS YEARS NBC
16 APRIL 1959–3 SEPTEMBER 1959; 12 MAY 1961–22 SEPTEMBER 1961 The Lawless Years was the first crime show set in the 1920s, antedating The Untouchables by a half season. James Gregory starred as Barney Ruditsky, a New York police detective; Robert Karnes was featured as Max, his sidekick. Jack Chertok was the producer.

THE LAWMAN ABC
5 OCTOBER 1958–9 OCTOBER 1962 Half-hour western from Warner Brothers starring John Russell as Marshal Dan Troop of Laramie, Wyoming; Peter Brown as his deputy, Johnnie McKay; Bek Nelson (1958–1959) as Dru Lemp, owner of the Blue Bonnet Cafe; Barbara Long (1959) as Julie Tate, editor of the Laramie newspaper, and Peggie Castle (1959–1962) as Lily Merrill, proprietor of the Birdcage Saloon.

THE LAWRENCE WELK SHOW ABC/SYNDICATED
2 JULY 1955–4 SEPTEMBER 1971 (ABC); 1971–1982 (SYNDICATED)
LAWRENCE WELK'S TOP TUNES AND NEW TALENT ABC
8 OCTOBER 1956–2 JUNE 1958
THE PLYMOUTH SHOW STARRING LAWRENCE WELK (LAWRENCE WELK'S LITTLE BAND) ABC
10 SEPTEMBER 1958–27 MAY 1959 One of TV's most durable musical series, The Lawrence Welk Show presented middle-of-the-road music ("champagne music," in Welk's words) for almost three decades. It was also one of the few series to be aired on more stations in its syndicated form than when it ran on the ABC network. Welk, an accordionist and bandleader, kept the format simple and predictable—lots of music, a little dancing, and a few guest stars. Numbers were performed by the members of Welk's television family. That large group included the Lennon Sisters (Dianne, Peggy, Kathy, and Janet), Alice Lon, Norma Zimmer, Tanya Falan, Arthur Duncan, Joe Feeney, Guy Hovis, Jim Roberts, Ralna English, Larry Hooper, Jerry Burke, and former Mouseketeer Bobby Burgess. A fixture on ABC's Saturday-night schedule for sixteen seasons, the show was known as The Dodge Dancing Party in its first years. From 1956 to 1959 Welk was seen twice a week on ABC; Lawrence Welk's Top Tunes and New Talent ran on Monday nights for two seasons, and The Plymouth Show Starring Lawrence Welk—which featured a ten-piece orchestra comprised of children, known as Lawrence Welk's Little Band—was seen on Wednesdays during the 1958–1959 season.

THE LAZARUS SYNDROME ABC
4 SEPTEMBER 1979–16 OCTOBER 1979 Hour medical drama starring Louis Gossett, Jr., as Dr. Macarthur (Mac) St. Clair, a cardiologist and chief of staff at Webster Memorial Hospital; Ronald Hunter as Joe Hamill, an ex-reporter who became the hospital's administrator; Sheila Frazier as Gloria St. Clair, Mac's wife; and Peggy McCay as Stacy, Hamill's secretary. Created by William Blinn (who served as executive producer with Jerry Thorpe), the series was pulled from ABC's schedule in October 1979 for "retooling," and was set to return later in the season. The term "Lazarus syndrome" refers to the belief by patients that physicians are capable of solving all the patients' problems.

LAZER TAG ACADEMY NBC
13 SEPTEMBER 1986–5 SEPTEMBER 1987 Saturday-morning cartoon series about a teenager, Jamie Jaren, who traveled back in time from the year 3010 to the present day and battled the evil Silas Mayhem.

A LEAGUE OF THEIR OWN CBS

10 APRIL 1993–24 APRIL 1993; 13 AUGUST 1993 Half-hour sitcom derived from the hit movie about the Rockford Peaches, a team of female baseball players organized during World War II. With Sam McMurray as Jimmy Dugan, the manager; Carey Lowell as star player Dottie Hinson; Christine Elise as Dottie's sister, Kit Keller; Tracy Nelson as Evelyn; Megan Cavanagh as Marla Hooch; Tracy Reiner as Betty, a war widow; Wendy Makkena as Mae; Katie Rich as Doris; Matthew Howard as Stillwell, Evelyn's obnoxious son; Jon Lovitz as Ernie "Cappy" Capadino, a former scout who now worked for the league; and Garry Marshall as league president Walter Harvey. Cavanaugh, Reiner, Lovitz, and Marshall were reprising their movie roles. Introduced in April 1993, the series was placed on hiatus after just three outings; two additional episodes were shown 13 August.

LEAVE IT TO BEAVER CBS/ABC

4 OCTOBER 1957–17 SEPTEMBER 1958 (CBS); 2 OCTOBER 1958–12 SEPTEMBER 1963 (ABC) This family sitcom centered around the Cleaver family of Mayfield. With Hugh Beaumont as Ward Cleaver, an accountant and a patient, understanding father; Barbara Billingsley as June Cleaver, a well-dressed housewife and a patient, understanding mother; Tony Dow as their older son, Wally, an all-American kid; and Jerry Mathers as their younger son, Theodore, better known as The Beaver. In almost all of the 234 half-hours Beaver's well-intentioned efforts to do good managed to backfire, landing him in some kind of trouble; Mathers's cuteness (particularly in the early seasons) and his natural acting style helped distinguish the show from other 1950s family sitcoms. Also featured were Ken Osmond as Wally's crafty friend, Eddie Haskell, whose obsequious attitude toward Mr. and Mrs. Cleaver belied his contempt of them (and Beaver); Frank Bank as Wally's chunky friend, Clarence "Lumpy" Rutherford; Richard Deacon as Lumpy's father, Fred Rutherford, Ward's boss; Diane Brewster as Miss Canfield, Beaver's second-grade teacher at the Grant Avenue Elementary School; Sue Randall as Miss Landers, Beaver's third-grade teacher; Doris Packer as Mrs. Cornelia Rayburn, the school principal; Rusty Stevens as Larry Mondello, one of Beaver's friends; Madge Blake as Mrs. Mondello, Larry's mom; and Burt Mustin as Gus, the oldtimer at the fire station. Other friends of Beaver's over the years included Stanley Fafara as Whitey Whitney; Stephen Talbot as Gilbert Bates; Richard Correll as Richard Rickover; Tiger Fafara as Tooey; Buddy Hart as Chester; Jeri Weil as Judy Hensler, Beaver's nemesis at school; and Pamela Beaird as Mary Ellen Rogers, Wally's girlfriend. The series was created, written, and produced by Joe Connelly and Bob Mosher, who had written for Amos and Andy. (Richard Correll, who played Beaver's pal Richard in the latter seasons, was the son of Charles Correll, co-creator of Amos and Andy).

Leave It to Beaver remained popular in reruns after leaving the network in 1963; by the 1980s it had achieved cult status, perhaps because of its stereotypical depiction of American family life. On 19 March 1983 CBS televised a made-for-TV movie sequel, "Still the Beaver," in which Beaver returned to Mayfield with his two young sons after his wife left him. Several members of the original cast were reunited, including Jerry Mathers, Tony Dow, Barbara Billingsley (Hugh Beaumont had died a year earlier), Richard Deacon, Ken Osmond (who had left showbiz to become a police officer), Rusty Stevens, and Richard Correll. On 4 October 1987, cable superstation WTBS celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of the series' premiere by televising the 1957 pilot for the show, "It's a Small World," featuring Mathers, Billingsley, Casey Adams (as Ward), and Paul Sullivan (as Wally). See also The New Leave It to Beaver.

LEAVE IT TO LARRY CBS

14 OCTOBER 1952–23 DECEMBER 1952 Eddie Albert starred in this half-hour sitcom as Larry, a bumbling shoe salesman who worked in his father-in-law's store. Ed Begley appeared as his boss and father-in-law, and Katharine Bard was featured as his wife. Leo Solomon produced the series, and Mervyn Nelson and Allen Reisner directed it. The show was little noted and certainly little watched, for it was scheduled opposite Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater on Tuesdays.

LEAVE IT TO THE GIRLS NBC/ABC/SYNDICATED

27 APRIL 1949–30 DECEMBER 1951 (NBC); 3 OCTOBER 1953–27 MARCH 1954 (ABC); 1962–1963 (SYNDICATED) This early talk show began on radio in 1945. Each week a panel of female celebrities met to air the women's point of view on a certain subject (usually one of a romantic nature). Also on hand was a lone male guest, whose job it was to defend the men's point of view. Maggi McNellis hosted the show for most of its run, and Martha Rountree, who also produced Meet the Press, produced it. The syndicated version was a Monday-through-Friday program, also hosted by McNellis.

LEAVE IT TO THE WOMEN SYNDICATED

1981 Stephanie Edwards moderated this panel show, a modern reincarnation of the old panel show Leave It to the Girls, on which a panel of women grilled a male guest.

LEE TREVINO'S GOLF FOR SWINGERS SYNDICATED

1972 Half-hour game show on which celebrities played three holes with golf pro Lee Trevino.

LEEZA (JOHN & LEEZA) NBC

14 JUNE 1993– This hour daytime magazine show began life in 1993 as John & Leeza, when it was cohosted by Entertainment Tonight veterans John Tesh and Leeza Gibbons. Tesh left on 14 January 1994, and the show carried on thereafter as Leeza, with Gibbons as sole host.

THE LEFTOVER REVUE NBC

17 SEPTEMBER 1951–9 NOVEMBER 1951 Half-hour daytime variety series hosted by Wayne Howell.

LEG WORK CBS

3 OCTOBER 1987–7 NOVEMBER 1987 Margaret Colin, who had played Alex Harrigan, a Manhattan assistant district attorney in Foley Square in 1986, returned in this series as Claire McCarron, a former Manhattan assistant district attorney who had become a private eye. With her were Patrick James Clarke as her brother, Lieutenant Fred McCarron of the N.Y.P.D. public information office, and Frances McDormand as Willie Pipal, Claire's contact in the D.A.'s office. Only six episodes were shown; they were filmed on location in New York.

LEGEND UPN

18 APRIL 1995–22 AUGUST 1995 This hour western owed a tip of the cowboy hat to The Wild, Wild West. Richard Dean Anderson starred as Ernest Pratt, a dime novelist with a fondness for alcohol; Pratt, who had written a series of popular novels about a contemporary western hero named Nicodemus Legend, was sometimes forced by his publisher to make public appearances as Legend. He found himself in Sheridan, Colorado, where he hooked up with a scientist who was developing newfangled electric and mechanical devices which they put to use to catch bad guys. Also featured were John deLancie as the inventor, Janos Bartok; Mark Adair Ross as Bartok's Harvard-educated assistant, Ramos; and Jarrad Paul as Skeeter, a wild-haired young man who did odd jobs for Pratt and Bartok.

THE LEGEND OF CUSTER

See CUSTER

THE LEGEND OF JESSE JAMES ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1965–5 SEPTEMBER 1966 Jesse James, the notorious frontier outlaw, was portrayed as a nineteenth-century Robin Hood in this unsuccessful half-hour western; according to the series, Jesse and his brother Frank robbed trains only to repay local folks whose property had been confiscated by the railroad barons, who had even hassled their mother when she balked at turning over her ranch. The show featured Chris Jones as Jesse James; Allen Case as his brother, Frank; Ann Doran as their mother, Mrs. James; and Robert J. Wilke as Marshal Sam Corbett, the lawman who vainly pursued them. The series was produced by 20th Century-Fox TV.

THE LEGEND OF WILLIAM TELL
See WILLIAM TELL (1991)

LEGMEN NBC
20 JANUARY 1984–16 MARCH 1984 Hour crime show about two college students working their way through school as "legmen" for a private investigator. With Bruce Greenwood as Jack Gage; J. T. Terlesky as his roommate, David Taylor; and Don Calfa as their original employer, Oscar Armismendi, proprietor of the Tri-Star Bail Bonds Agency; Claude Akins succeeded him as their new boss, Tom Bannon.

LENNY CBS
10 SEPTEMBER 1990–3 OCTOBER 1990; 15 DECEMBER 1990–9 MARCH 1991 Half-hour sitcom about a blue-collar Irish Catholic Boston family. With Lenny Clarke (a standup comic from Boston) as Lenny Callahan; Lee Garlington as his wife, Shelly; Jenna Von Oy as their daughter Kelly, thirteen; Alexis Caldwell as their daughter Tracy, ten; the Hall Twins (pilot only) and the Farmer Twins as baby Elizabeth; Peter Dobson as Lenny's lazy brother, Eddie Callahan; Eugene Roche as their father, Pat; and Alice Drummond as their mother, Mary. The series' theme was sung by Dion.

LEO & LIZ IN BEVERLY HILLS CBS
25 APRIL 1986–6 JUNE 1986 Half-hour sitcom about an upscale couple from New Jersey who moved into Beverly Hills. With Harvey Korman as Leo Green; Valerie Perrine as Liz Green; Deborah Harmon as their new next-door neighbor, Diane Fedderson; Ken Kimmins as her husband, Jerry Fedderson; Sue Ball as Mitzi, Liz's daughter; Julie Payne as Lucille Trombly, the maid; Michael J. Pollard as Leonard, the houseman; and Peter Aykroyd as Bucky Winthrop, Mitzi's husband. The series was developed from "The Couch," a half-hour comedy which was presented on George Burns Comedy Week 16 October 1985.

LEROY JENKINS
See REVIVAL OF AMERICA CRUSADE

THE LES BROWN SHOW SYNDICATED
1993–1994 Short-lived hour daytime talk show, hosted by black motivational speaker Les Brown.

THE LES CRANE SHOW ABC
9 NOVEMBER 1964–5 MARCH 1965 ABC's first attempt at a late-night talk show was hosted by Les Crane; the show featured a "shotgun" microphone which enabled members of the studio audience to talk to Crane's guests. After four months the network decided to go with a series of guest hosts, and the show was retitled Nightlife.

THE LESLIE UGGAMS SHOW CBS
26 SEPTEMBER 1969–14 DECEMBER 1969 Leslie Uggams, who had previously been featured on Sing Along with Mitch, became the first black woman since Hazel Scott to host a network variety series. It fared poorly against NBC's Bonanza, as did most of the CBS shows scheduled in that time slot during the 1960s. Other regulars included Johnny Brown, Alison Mills, Lillian Hayman, and Lincoln Kilpatrick; a regular feature was "Sugar Hill," a running sketch about a poor black family. Saul Ilson and Ernest Chambers, who had previously produced The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour, produced the series.

LET THERE BE STARS ABC
16 OCTOBER 1949–27 NOVEMBER 1949 A half-hour revue from Hollywood, produced by Leighton Brill and William Trinz. Among the many regulars who appeared was a young singer-comedian named Peter Marshall, who would become the host of Hollywood Squares in 1966.

LET'S DANCE ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1954–16 OCTOBER 1954 Ballroom dancing was featured on this musical hour, broadcast live from both New York and Chicago, with music supplied by guest bands. Ralph Mooney hosted the New York portion, Art Mooney the Chicago segment.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL NBC/ABC/SYNDICATED

30 DECEMBER 1963–27 DECEMBER 1968 (NBC); 30 DECEMBER 1968–9 JULY 1976 (ABC); 1971–1976; 1980; 1984–1985 (SYNDICATED); 9 JULY 1990–11 JANUARY 1991 (NBC) One of TV's best-known game shows, Let's Make a Deal required no skill, no dexterity, and no knowledge of its contestants. Each day, thirty-one members of the studio audience (many of whom were dressed in ridiculous outfits) were selected to sit in the "trading area" up front; some of those people then had the chance to "make a deal" with "TV's big dealer," host Monty Hall. Theoretically, the traders were supposed to have brought something of their own to trade, but over the years even this requirement was virtually abandoned. If selected by Hall, each trader was presented with a choice—whether to take one prize or another. Sometimes one prize would be described fully while the other remained hidden inside a box or behind a door; sometimes neither prize would be described; sometimes cash (in stated or unstated amounts) would be offered against a merchandise prize; and sometimes one of the prizes would be worthless—they were known as "zonks." And there lay the show's appeal. A player could be given, for example, $1,000 in cash, trade the money for what proved to be a mink coat, and decide to trade the coat—only to end up with a wheelbarrow. At the end of each show the two players who had won the most were given the chance to trade their winnings for the day's "Big Deal." Each player selected one of three doors and won what was behind it; there were no "zonks" at this level, and the Big Deal, concealed behind one of the doors, was usually worth at least $10,000. Monty Hall, who developed and produced the show with his partner, Stefan Hatos, was the perfect host for the show. Monty kept the show moving while he treated the outrageously garbed and occasionally greedy contestants courteously; it is hard to imagine anyone else but Hall working the trading area as skillfully. Hall was assisted by announcer Jay Stewart and model Carol Merrill. More than 3,800 network shows were done over a thirteen-year span; at the final show, taped in Nevada shortly before Christmas 1976, there were no zonks. The short-lived 1980 version was produced in Vancouver for syndication. The series was produced again for syndication in 1984, again with Hall. In 1990 it returned to its original daytime home, NBC; produced at the Disney/MGM Studios in Florida, the newest incarnation was hosted by Bob Hilton.

LET'S PLAY POST OFFICE NBC

27 SEPTEMBER 1965–1 JULY 1966 Don Morrow hosted this daytime game show on which contestants tried to identify the "authors" of fictitious letters read aloud a line at a time.

LET'S SEE ABC

14 JULY 1955–1 SEPTEMBER 1955 John Reed King hosted this summertime panel show.

LET'S TAKE A TRIP CBS

17 APRIL 1955–23 FEBRUARY 1958 Sunday series for children on which Sonny Fox and two children paid visits to interesting places. Fox was assisted first by youngsters Pud Flanagan and Ginger MacManus; in 1957 they were succeeded by Joan Terrace and Jimmy Walsh. Jim Colligan succeeded Steve Fleischman as producer of the New York-based series.

A LETTER TO LORETTA
See THE LORETTA YOUNG SHOW

LETTERS TO LAUGH-IN NBC

29 SEPTEMBER 1969–26 DECEMBER 1969 This daytime game show was an unusual spinoff from Laugh-In. Host Gary Owens, the announcer of Laugh-In, presided over the program on which a panel of four guest celebrities read jokes submitted to Laugh-In by home viewers; judges from the studio audience then rated the jokes.

LEWIS & CLARK NBC

29 OCTOBER 1981–9 JANUARY 1982; 2 JULY 1982–30 JULY 1982 Gabe Kaplan created and starred in the half-hour sitcom as Stewart Lewis, a New Yorker who bought a saloon in Luckenbach, Texas, and headed there with his family. Also featured were Guich Koock as Roscoe Clark, the manager of the saloon (which Lewis renamed the Nassau County Cafe); Ilene Graff as Alicia Lewis, Stew's wife; Amy Linker as Kelly, their daughter; David Hollander as Keith, their son; Clifton James as regular customer Silas Jones; Wendy Holcombe as Wendy, the waitress; and Michael McManus as John.

LEWISOHN STADIUM CONCERT ABC

26 JUNE 1950–7 AUGUST 1950 A summer replacement for Robert Montgomery Presents featuring the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in concert with guest artists. Ben Grauer was the announcer.

LIARS CLUB SYNDICATED

1969; 1976–1977; 1988 Game show featuring two contestants, four celebrities, and a group of unusual objects. Three of the four celebrities suggested a false definition or description of the object, while the fourth described it correctly. The contestants tried to figure out who was telling the truth. Rod Serling hosted the 1969 version; Bill Armstrong was the first host of the mid-1970's version and was succeeded by Allen Ludden. Eric Boardman emceed the 1988 version, which featured four contestants. The show was a Ralph Andrews Production.

THE LIBERACE SHOW NBC/SYNDICATED/ABC/CBS

1 JULY 1952–28 AUGUST 1952 (NBC); 1953–1955 (SYNDICATED); 13 OCTOBER 1958–10 APRIL 1959 (ABC); 15 JULY 1969–16 SEPTEMBER 1969 (CBS) Liberace, the flamboyant pianist best remembered for his sequined wardrobe and the candelabra atop his instrument, hosted several television programs. The first was a fifteen-minute series which replaced The Dinah Shore Show on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the summer of 1952. It was well enough received so that Liberace decided to try a syndicated, half-hour show, which proved to be enormously popular; both of the early series also featured Liberace's brother, George, as violinist and orchestra leader. Illness forced him to curtail his schedule in 1955, but he returned to television in 1958 to host a half-hour daytime show on ABC; it featured Joan O'Brien, Erin O'Brien, Dick Roman, Steve Dunne, and the Gordon Robinson Orchestra. Liberace hosted a British series in 1960, and his 1969 summer series, shown in this country, was produced in London; the hour show featured Richard Wattis and Georgina Moon. Born Wladziu Valentino Liberace, he preferred to use just one name.

LIDSVILLE ABC

11 SEPTEMBER 1971–1 SEPTEMBER 1973 Sid and Marty Krofft were the executive producers of this Saturday-morning live-action kids' show. It starred Butch Patrick as Mark, a youngster who found himself in Lidsville, a mysterious world of hats. Also featured were Charles Nelson Reilly as the evil Whoo Doo, and Billie Hayes as the good Weenie the Genie.

LIE DETECTOR SYNDICATED

1983 Flamboyant attorney F. Lee Bailey hosted this half-hour program, on which persons underwent polygraph examinations to help prove that they were telling the truth about a matter in controversy. Polygraph expert Ed Gelb administered the examinations, the results of which suggested that some guests were telling the truth—such as President Reagan's barber, who swore that he did not dye the President's hair—and that others were not—such as Melvin Dummar, who claimed that reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes had left him a share of his estate.

THE LIEUTENANT NBC

14 SEPTEMBER 1963–5 SEPTEMBER 1964 Hour-long dramatic series set at Camp Pendleton in California. With Gary Lockwood as Lieutenant William Rice, U.S.M.C.; Robert Vaughn as his commanding officer, Captain Raymond Rambridge; Steve Franken as Lieutenant Sam Panosian; Carmen Phillips as Lily, Rambridge's secretary; Henry Beckman as Barker; Richard Anderson as Hiland; John Milford as Kagey; and Don Penny as Harris. Norman Felton was the executive producer of the series, which was created and produced by Gene Roddenberry, who later created Star Trek.

LIFE AND TIMES OF EDDIE ROBERTS SYNDICATED

1980 Half-hour comedy serial in the Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman vein. With Renny Temple as Eddie Roberts, a professor scrambling for tenure at Cranepool University; Udana Power as his wife, Dolores, an aspiring major-league ball player; Allison Balson as their young daughter, Chrissy; Stephen Parr as faculty colleague Tony Cranepool; Allen Case as Dean Knitzer; Joan Hotchkis as Lydia; Loyita Chapel as Vivian Blankett; Jon Lormer as Boggs; and Daryl Roach as Turner Lequatro. Ann and Ellis Marcus created and wrote the series.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF GRIZZLY ADAMS NBC

9 FEBRUARY 1977–26 JULY 1978 Set in the nineteenth century, The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams was an hour-long adventure series aimed principally at children. It starred Dan Haggerty as James (Grizzly) Adams; accused of a crime he never committed, Adams escaped to the northwest wilderness to live by himself, in harmony with nature. He fished, but did not hunt, and wore only cloth garments. His best friend was a large grizzly bear called Ben (played by a real bear known as Bozo). Adams also had one or two human acquaintances—Denver Pyle as Mad Jack, who also served as the show's narrator, and Don Shanks as Nakuma, Adams's Indian blood brother. Charles E. Sellier, Jr., was the executive producer of the series, which was produced by Leonard B. Kaufman and Jim Simmons. The TV show was based on the film of the same title, which had starred Haggerty and been produced by Sellier. The character returned in a made-for-TV movie "The Capture of Grizzly Adams," broadcast 21 February 1982 on NBC.

LIFE AROUND US SYNDICATED

1971 A series of half-hour documentaries on biology from Time-Life Films.

LIFE BEGINS AT EIGHTY NBC/ABC/DUMONT

13 JANUARY 1950–25 AUGUST 1950 (NBC); 3 OCTOBER 1950–10 MARCH 1952 (ABC); 21 MARCH 1952–24 JULY 1955 (DUMONT); 31 JULY 1955–25 FEBRUARY 1956 (ABC) Produced and hosted by Jack Barry, this panel show was the converse of Barry's previous effort, Juvenile Jury; a panel of octogenarians dispensed advice on topics submitted by viewers. Regular panelists included Fred Stein and Georgiana Carhart, who had also been featured on the radio version.

LIFE CHOICES SYNDICATED

1994– Half-hour weekly informational series on health, diet, and lifestyle issues, coanchored by Erie Chapman and Kathleen Sullivan.

LIFE GOES ON ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1989–29 AUGUST 1993 The first prime-time series to feature a regular with Down's syndrome, this hour family drama aired in the "family viewing hour," 7 P.M. on Sundays. With Bill Smitrovich as Drew Thacher; Patti LuPone as his working wife, Libby; Christopher Burke as their eighteen-year-old ninth grader with Down's syndrome, Charles "Corky" Thacher; Kellie Martin as their younger daughter, Becca, who was embarrased at being in the same grade as her brother; and Monique Lanier (1989–1990) as Paige, Drew's older daughter from a prior marriage. During the show's first season Drew quit his job as a construction foreman and opened a restaurant. David Byrd was later added as his chef, Hans. Occasionally featured were Ray Buktenica (1989–1992) as Libby's boss, Jerry Berkson; Tommy Puett (1989–1992) as Becca's sometime boyfriend, Tyler Benchfield, who was killed in an auto accident; Tanya Fenmore as Becca's friend, Maxie; and Al Ruscio and Penny Santon as Libby's parents, Sal and Teresa Giordano. As the show's second season unfolded, daughter Paige had moved out of the house (and Tracey Needham replaced Monique Lanier as Paige, who no longer appeared regularly), and Libby found herself pregnant at age forty-one. Libby's younger sister, Gina (played by Mary Page Keller) and her daughter, Zoe (Leigh Ann Orsi), arrived in midseason to help run the house. Keller and Orsi departed at the end of the 1990–1991 season. In the fall of 1991 the Thachers welcomed their baby, Nick, and Chad Lowe joined the cast as high school transfer student Jesse McKenna, who was HIV-positive and would develop AIDS by the spring of 1993; Jesse and Becca became very close friends. In the spring of 1992 Paige made plans to marry Kenny Stollmark, Jr. (played by Steven Eckholdt), and in the fall of 1992 Corky eloped with Amanda Swanson (played by Andrea Friedman, who also had Down's syndrome).

LIFE IS WORTH LIVING DUMONT

12 FEBRUARY 1952–26 APRIL 1955

MISSION TO THE WORLD ABC

13 OCTOBER 1955–8 APRIL 1957

THE BEST OF BISHOP SHEEN SYNDICATED

1958–1962 Life Is Worth Living and Mission to the World were the titles of the two network shows hosted by Bishop Fulton J. Sheen; they were among the few religious shows ever aired during prime time. Life is Worth Living was scheduled opposite Milton Berle's The Texaco Star Theater, but, unlike most of Berle's competition, managed to attract enough viewers to warrant its continuation. Frank Bunetta, who later directed The Jackie Gleason Show, directed Life Is Worth Living. Reruns of the network program, together with some newly-taped talks, were syndicated as The Best of Bishop Sheen.

THE LIFE OF LEONARDO DA VINCI CBS/PBS

13 AUGUST 1972–10 SEPTEMBER 1972 (CBS); 20 NOVEMBER 1974–18 DECEMBER 1974 (PBS) Five-part miniseries on the life of Leonardo Da Vinci. Produced by RAI, Italy's state-owned network, it starred Phillipe Leroy as Leonardo, Alberto Fiorini and Arduino Paolini as the younger Leonardo, and Bruno Cirino as Michelangelo. Giulio Bosetti served as the guide and narrator for the series, and Ben Gazzara introduced the episodes on PBS.

THE LIFE OF RILEY NBC

4 OCTOBER 1949–28 MARCH 1950; 2 JANUARY 1953–22 AUGUST 1958 This family sitcom began on radio in 1944 and twice came to television. More than any other comedy of the 1950s, it resembled All in the Family, as both shows centered around a blue-collar husband and father who frequently found life a bit too perplexing (or, as Riley put it, "What a revoltin' development this is!"). The first, and less well known, TV version starred Jackie Gleason as Chester A. Riley, a riveter at Stevenson Aircraft in Los Angeles; Rosemary DeCamp as his wife, Peg; Gloria Winters as their daughter, Babs; Lanny Rees as their son, Chester A. Riley, Jr. (Junior); Sid Tomack as Riley's friend and coworker, Jim Gillis; and John Brown as the neighborhood undertaker, Digby "Digger" O'Dell. The series was produced by Irving Brecher, Reuben Ship, and Alan Lipscot, and directed by Herbert I. Leeds. Though the show won an Emmy, it was dropped after twenty-six weeks. Early in 1953 it returned, however, and stayed for more than five years. The second version starred William Bendix (who had played the part on radio) as Chester A. Riley; Marjorie Reynolds as wife, Peg; Lugene Sanders as daughter Babs; Wesley Morgan as Junior; Tom D'Andrea as Gillis; Gloria Blondell as Gillis's wife, Honeybee; Gregory Marshall as Egbert Gillis, son of Jim and Honeybee; Henry Kulky as Riley's friend and coworker, dimwitted Otto Schmidlap; Emory Parnell as Riley's foreman, Hank Hawkins; and Sterling Holloway as Riley's eccentric friend, Waldo Binney, an amateur inventor. In the fall of 1955 the Gillises, who had lived in the Rileys' next-door cottage, were dropped from the series, as Tom D'Andrea had signed to appear in a new sitcom, The Soldiers. George O'Hanlon and Florence Sundstrom joined the cast as their new neighbors, Calvin and Belle Dudley. They in turn were dropped after the 1955–1956 season as D'Andrea and Blondell returned. Tom McKnight produced the second television version.

LIFE ON EARTH PBS

12 JANUARY 1982–6 APRIL 1982 Naturalist David Attenborough created and narrated this engrossing series on biology and evolution.

LIFE WITH BUSTER KEATON SYNDICATED

1951 Buster Keaton, star of many silent film comedies, filmed this half-hour series when he was in his late fifties; in most of the stories he appeared as a clerk in a sporting goods shop.

LIFE WITH ELIZABETH SYNDICATED

1953–1954 Domestic sitcom starring Betty White and Del Moore as newlyweds Elizabeth and Alvin White. Don Fedderson produced the series in association with Guild Films. Each program consisted of three short vignettes.

LIFE WITH FATHER CBS

22 NOVEMBER 1953–5 JULY 1955 Life with Father began as a series of essays by Clarence Day, Jr., which appeared in Harper's Magazine and later in The New Yorker. A best-selling book ensued, followed shortly by a tremendously successful Broadway play which ran for eight years; a motion picture was made in 1947. The TV version of the comedy was not especially popular, however. Set at the turn of the century, it starred Leon Ames as Clarence Day, Sr., a prosperous banker and an old-fashioned patriarch, and Lurene Tuttle as his wife, Vinnie. Eight actors played the four Day sons during the show's two-year run: Ralph Reed and Steven Terrell as eldest son, Clarence, Jr.; Freddie Leiston and Malcolm Cassell as second son, John; Ronald Keith, B. G. Norman, and Freddy Ridgeway as third son, Whitney; and Harvey Grant as youngest son, Harlan. Also featured was Dorothy Bernard (the only member of the cast who had been in the play) as Margaret, the maid. Ezra Stone, who had played Henry Aldrich on radio, produced the half-hour series. At the insistence of Mrs. Clarence Day, Jr., who served as a special consultant to the show, all of the members of the television Day family had to have red hair (as they had had in real life), even though the show was broadcast in black and white.

LIFE WITH LINKLETTER ABC/NBC

6 OCTOBER 1950–25 APRIL 1952 (ABC); 29 DECEMBER 1969–25 SEPTEMBER 1970 (NBC) Art Linkletter's first television series, Life with Linkletter, was a prime-time version of Art Linkletter's House Party, which began on radio in 1945 and came to TV in 1952; like House Party, it featured audience participation games and interviews with schoolchildren. It was produced by John Guedel and directed by Stuart Phelps. In 1969, after House Party had left the air, Linkletter and his son cohosted a daytime show on NBC, also entitled Life with Linkletter.

LIFE WITH LOUIE FOX

9 SEPTEMBER 1995– Saturday morning cartoon show based on the not-especially-happy childhood of comic Louie Anderson. Anderson's own adult voice provided the voice of eight-year-old Louie, who lived with his mom, dad, and little brother, Tommy. Anderson also appeared in filmed sequences to introduce each program.

LIFE WITH LUCY ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1986–15 NOVEMBER 1986 Lucille Ball's much-heralded return to weekly television proved to be a disaster. The half-hour sitcom was created by Madelyn Pugh Davis and Bob Carroll, Jr., two of the writers from I Love Lucy; Lucy's husband, Gary Morton, was executive producer, together with Aaron Spelling and Douglas S. Cramer. Spelling agreed to give Lucy total creative control, and ABC committed itself to twenty-two episodes. Unfortunately, the combination never jelled, and the series was lifted after only eight weeks. Lucy's physical comedy style just didn't work for a seventy-five-year-old woman.

The series was set in South Pasadena, where Lucille Ball played the recently widowed Lucy Barker, who moved in with her daughter's family; Lucy's late husband had left her half of the family hardware store. Gale Gordon (Ball's longtime comic foil) played her business partner, Curtis McGibbon, whose son was married to Lucy's daughter and who also lived in their household. Also appearing were Larry Anderson as Curtis's son, law student Ted McGibbon; Ann Dusenberry as Ted's wife (and Lucy's daughter), Margo McGibbon; Jenny Lewis as their daughter, Becky; Philip J. Amelio II as their son, Kevin; and Donovan Scott as Leonard Stoner, Lucy and Curtis's employee.

LIFE WITH LUIGI CBS

22 SEPTEMBER 1952–29 DECEMBER 1952; 9 APRIL 1953–4 JUNE 1953 This ethnic sitcom began on radio in 1948. Set in Chicago, it starred J. Carrol Naish as Luigi Basco, an Italian immigrant who opened a small antique store and hoped to become an American citizen; Alan Reed as Luigi's sponsor, Pasquale, proprietor of Pasquale's Spaghetti Palace; Jody Gilbert as Rosa, Pasquale's portly daughter, whom Pasquale hoped would marry Luigi; Mary Shipp as Miss Spalding, Luigi's night-school teacher; Ken Peters as Olson, one of Luigi's classmates; Joe Forte as Horowitz, another classmate; and Sig Ruman as Schultz, another classmate. Except for Sig Ruman, all the cast members had played the roles on radio. Dropped in midseason, the show reappeared briefly in the spring of 1953 with different principals: Vito Scotti as Luigi, Thomas Gomez as Pasquale, and Muriel Landers as Rosa. Produced by Cy Howard, the show was directed by Mac Benoff.

LIFELINE NBC

7 SEPTEMBER 1978–30 DECEMBER 1978 One of the most unusual prime-time shows of the decade, Lifeline was an hour documentary series about the medical profession. Each week the cameras followed a doctor around; much of the action took place in operating rooms. Thomas Moore and Robert Fuisz, M.D., were the executive producers, Jackson Beck the narrator. The series was rerun on PBS during the summer of 1983.

LIFE'S MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENTS ABC

2 AUGUST 1985–10 SEPTEMBER 1985 Like TV's Bloopers & Practical Jokes, this hour show presented outtakes from movies, television programs, and the like. Steve Allen presided over the hijinks, which were originally broadcast as occasional specials and were packaged together for a regular run during the summer of 1985.

LIFESTORIES NBC

20 AUGUST 1990–2 DECEMBER 1990 This hour medical anthology series presented its stories from the patients' point of view. The series was narrated by Robert Prosky, who was credited as the Storyteller.

LIFESTYLES OF THE RICH AND FAMOUS SYNDICATED/ABC

1984– (SYNDICATED); Daytime: 7 APRIL 1986–5 SEPTEMBER 1986 (ABC); Nighttime: 21 JULY 1986–19 SEPTEMBER 1986 (ABC) Visits to celebrity homes have long been a staple of television, dating back to Person to Person in the 1950s and Here's Hollywood in the early 1960s. Former Entertainment Tonight reporter Robin Leach revived the format in the 1980s with spectacular results. The emphasis was on glitz: the more ostentatious the star's home, the more Leach seemed to revel. The host's loud voice, and his incessant use of superlatives, were frequently lampooned on comedy shows. But the British-born Leach had the last laugh. His show, which began in syndication in 1984, was run on ABC during 1986 in both a daytime and a late-night slot, and was so successful that it spawned a pair of Leach-hosted spinoffs: see Fame, Fortune & Romance and Runaway with the Rich and Famous. In 1994 several changes occurred: Leach acquired a cohost, Shari Belafonte, and the show was retitled Lifestyles with Robin Leach and Shari Belafonte. Somewhat less attention was now paid to affluence and opulence, as the show focused more on persons with interesting lifestyles. Also appearing were Niki Taylor, Katie Wagner, and Mary Major.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION! NBC

4 JULY 1950–20 AUGUST 1950 Half-hour talent show, hosted by Walter Wolfe King.

LIGHTS OUT NBC

12 JULY 1949–29 SEPTEMBER 1952 This anthology series of thriller and suspense dramas ran for three years on television, considerably less than the twelve-year run enjoyed by the radio version under the supervision of Wyllis Cooper and, later, Arch Oboler. Jack LaRue was the first TV host; he was succeeded by Frank Gallop. A sampling of the half-hour presentations includes: "Faithful Heart," with Anne Francis (10 April 1950); "Beware this Woman," with Veronica Lake (4 December 1950); "The House of Dust," with Anthony Quinn and Nina Foch (5 February 1951); and "The Hollow Man," with William Bendix (29 September 1952).

LIKELY SUSPECTS FOX

11 SEPTEMBER 1992–29 JANUARY 1993 This half-hour series reached back through forty-five years of television for its inspiration. Like the old TV cop show The Plainclothesman, the "star" of Likely Suspects was the viewer, who was addressed as a rookie cop accompanying a veteran officer to the scene of the crime, shown the clues, introduced to the panoply of perpetrators, and asked to solve the mystery at the end of the episode. Sam McMurray costarred as the senior officer, Detective Lieutenant Marshak, and Jason Schombing appeared as Detective Harry Spinoza.

LILIAS, YOGA AND YOU PBS

1974–1977 Half-hour physical-and-mental exercise program, hosted by Lilias Folan and produced by WCET-TV, Cincinnati.

THE LILLI PALMER SHOW CBS

29 MARCH 1951–28 JUNE 1951 Lilli Palmer interviewed celebrities on this fifteen-minute show, seen Thursdays.

LILLI PALMER THEATRE SYNDICATED

1955–1956 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by actress Lilli Palmer.

LIME STREET ABC

21 SEPTEMBER 1985–26 OCTOBER 1985 This hour adventure series came to an unexpected, and tragic, end after just five episodes. It starred Robert Wagner as James Greyson "Grey" Culver, an investigator for the London Insurance Company who lived on a horse farm in Virginia with his two daughters. Featured were John Standing as Edward Wingate, Grey's London-based partner; Samantha Smith as Grey's daughter Elizabeth; Maia Brewton as Grey's daughter Margaret Ann; Julie Fulton as Grey's assistant in Washington, D.C., Celia Westfall; Anne Harvey as Evelyn, the housekeeper; and Lew Ayres as Henry Wade Culver, Grey's father. Young costar Samantha Smith had achieved fame not as an actress, but rather as the schoolgirl who wrote to Soviet leader Yuri Andropov urging peace and who had been invited to visit the U.S.S.R. Sadly, after four episodes of Lime Street had been filmed, Samantha and her father were killed in a plane crash on their way home to Maine. The producers decided not to recast her role, but to stop production of the series.

THE LINEUP CBS
1 OCTOBER 1954–20 JANUARY 1960 Crime show filmed partly on location in San Francisco and later syndicated under the title San Francisco Beat. With Warner Anderson as Lieutenant Ben Guthrie; Tom Tully as Inspector Matt Grebb; they were later joined by Marshall Reed as Inspector Fred Asher. In the fall of 1959 major changes took place. Tully and Reed left the series (though Tully returned for two episodes), which expanded to one hour, and four new regulars were added: Rachel Ames as policewoman Sandy McAllister; Tod Burton as Inspector Charlie Summers; William Leslie as Inspector Dan Delaney; and Skip Ward as Officer Pete Larkins. The series was a Desilu production.

LINUS THE LIONHEARTED CBS
26 SEPTEMBER 1964–3 SEPTEMBER 1966 Saturday-morning cartoon show set in Africa. Voices included those of Sheldon Leonard as Linus, the king; Carl Reiner as Sascha Grouse and Dinny Kangaroo; Jonathan Winters as The Giant; and Ed Graham (the series' producer) as The Mockingbird. Other characters included Rory Raccoon, So-Hi, Billie Bird, and Lovable Truly. The series was rerun by ABC on Sunday mornings between 1966 and 1969.

THE LION KING'S TIMON & PUMBAA
See TIMON & PUMBAA

LITTLE CLOWNS OF HAPPYTOWN ABC
26 SEPTEMBER 1987–16 JULY 1988 This Saturday-morning cartoon show was set in Itty Bitty City, a municipality in which all the residents were clowns. Norman Cousins was a consultant to the series, which tried to emphasize the importance of developing positive emotions.

LITTLE HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE NBC
11 SEPTEMBER 1974–20 SEPTEMBER 1982
LITTLE HOUSE: A NEW BEGINNING NBC
27 SEPTEMBER 1982–5 SEPTEMBER 1983 Laura Ingalls Wilder's Little House books formed the basis for this hour family drama set during the 1870s. One of NBC's few mainstays of the 1970s, Little House was under the almost total control of Michael Landon, who was not only the star and executive producer, but also a frequent writer and director. For its first four seasons, Little House was set in Walnut Grove, Minnesota. The cast included: Michael Landon as the father, farmer Charles Ingalls; Karen Grassle as the mother, Caroline Ingalls; Melissa Sue Anderson as their eldest daughter, Mary; Melissa Gilbert as their second daughter, Laura, from whose point of view the stories were told; twins Lindsay and Sidney Greenbush as the third daughter, Carrie (a fourth daughter, Grace, was born in 1977 and was played by twins Wendi and Brenda Turnbeaugh); Victor French (1974–1977; spring 1982–1983) as Isaiah Edwards; Bonnie Bartlett (1974–1977) as his wife, Grace Edwards; Richard Bull as storekeeper Nels Oleson; Katherine MacGregor as his haughty wife, Harriet Oleson; Jonathan Gilbert (1975–1983, Melissa Gilbert's real-life brother) as their son, Willie; Alison Arngrim (1974–1981) as their nasty daughter, Nellie; Charlotte Stewart (1974–1977) as Miss Beadle, the schoolteacher; Dabbs Greer as Reverend Robert

Alden; Ted Gehring (1975–1976) as banker Ebenezer Sprague; Kevin Hagen as Doc Baker; Tracie Savage as Laura's friend, Christy; Merlin Olsen (1977–1981) as Jonathan Garvey; Hersha Parady (1977–1980) as his wife, Alice; and Patrick Laborteaux (1977–1981) as their son, Andy.

At the end of the 1977–1978 season Mary, the eldest Ingalls daughter, went blind as the result of a progressive disease (the same incident occurred in Laura Ingalls Wilder's book). Linwood Boomer joined the cast as Mary's teacher, Adam Kendall, who was also blind (he later regained his sight). Mary accepted Adam's offer to help him teach at a school for blind children in the Dakota Territory. At the outset of the 1978–1979 season the entire Ingalls family then left Walnut Grove for Winoka, Dakota. By a strange coincidence the Oleson and Garvey families also decided to relocate in Winoka; later that season, by an equally strange coincidence, everyone decided to move back to good old Walnut Grove. Joining the cast in 1978 was Matthew Laborteaux (foster brother of Patrick) as Albert, a street urchin who was adopted by the Ingallses.

In the fall of 1979 two new cast members were added: Dean Butler as Almanzo Wilder, Laura's future husband; and Lucy Lee Flippin as Eliza Jane Wilder, a schoolteacher (Laura Ingalls was also teaching by this time). During the 1980–1981 season Laura and Almanzo were married, and Nellie Oleson also found a husband, Percival Dalton (played by Steve Tracy). More changes took place at the outset of the 1981–1982 season: Nellie and Percival had moved back East to New York, as had Mary and Adam (Adam, who had regained his sight, had become a lawyer). The Ingalls family adopted two more kids: Cassandra (played by Missy Francis) and James (Jason Bateman). The Olesons also adopted a child, Nancy (Allison Balson), who was as much of a brat as Nellie had been.

Little House underwent even more changes in its ninth, and final, season. Michael Landon ceased to appear regularly, though he continued to produce the series. The show's title was changed to Little House: A New Beginning, as Charles and Caroline Ingalls sold their farm to the Carter family and moved to Iowa with younger daughters Carrie and Grace; Laura and Almanzo remained in Walnut Grove and became the central characters. Victor French, who had played Isaiah Edwards from 1974 to 1977, returned at the end of the 1981–1982 season and stayed on. Other new regulars included: Stan Ivar as blacksmith John Carter; Pamela Roylance as his wife, Sarah Carter; Lindsay Kennedy as their son Jeb; David Friedman as their son Jason; Shannen Doherty as Jenny, Almanzo Wilder's niece, who came to live with Laura and Almanzo; and Leslie Landon (daughter of Michael Landon) as the new schoolteacher, Etta Plum.

Three two-hour specials were planned for the 1983–1984 season. The first of these, "Little House: Look Back to Yesterday," was broadcast 12 December 1983.

THE LITTLE MERMAID CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1992–2 SEPTEMBER 1995 This half-hour Saturday morning cartoon series from Disney Studios was intended to be a "prequel" to Disney's popular 1989 motion picture of the same title. Ariel, the daughter of King Triton, was a teen mermaid who embarked on adventures with her pals Sebastian and Flounder.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE (THE BRIAN KEITH SHOW) NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1972–30 AUGUST 1974 Forgettable sitcom about a pediatrician in Hawaii. With Brian Keith as Dr. Sean Jamison; Shelley Fabares as his daughter and partner, Dr. Anne Jamison; Victoria Young (Brian Keith's wife) as Puni, their nurse; Michael Gray as Ronnie Collins, a student doctor working with them; Stephen Hague as Alfred, a pesky neighborhood youngster; Sean Tyler Hall as Stewart, a friend of Alfred's; and Moe Keale as Officer O'Shaughnessy. In the fall of 1973 the title was changed from The Little People to The Brian Keith Show, and two new cast members were added: Nancy Kulp as Mrs. Millard Gruber, the landlady; Roger Bowen as Dr. Spencer Chaffee, an allergist. Bruce Johnson produced the series.

THE LITTLE RASCALS/RICHIE RICH SHOW ABC

10 September 1983–1 September 1984 On this half-hour cartoon series, segments of "Richie Rich," starring the world's wealthiest youngster and his pals, alternated with "The Little Rascals," an updated, animated version of the Hal Roach short films of the 1930s. Richie Rich had been introduced in 1980 on The Richie Rich/Scooby Doo Show (see also that title) and had joined forces with the Little Rascals in 1982 (see The Pac-Man/Little Rascals/Richie Rich Show).

THE LITTLE REVUE ABC

4 September 1949–11 December 1949; 17 March 1950–28 April 1950 Half-hour musical variety show, featuring Bill Sherry, Gloria Van, Nancy Evans, and Dick Larkin. The series was seen Sundays in 1949 and Fridays in 1950. It was one of the few variety shows of the era on which there was no studio audience.

LITTLE ROSEY ABC

8 September 1990–31 August 1991 Saturday-morning cartoon show inspired by the hit sitcom Roseanne. The animated program depicted the childhood adventures of Roseanne Barr, her pal Buddy, her sister Tess, and her brother Tater. Kathleen Laskey supplied the voice of the title character.

LITTLE SHOP FOX

7 September 1991–29 August 1992 Saturday morning cartoon show based on the musical stage and screen versions of the original 1960 horror-comedy film, Little Shop of Horrors. Here, a teenage Seymour Krelborn embarked upon adventures with Junior, the rap-talking carnivorous plant.

THE LITTLE SHOW NBC/ABC

27 June 1950–22 November 1951 (NCB); 3 April 1953–19 June 1953 (ABC) Fifteen-minute musical show hosted by John Conte; it was seen Tuesdays and Thursdays before the network news on NBC, Friday nights over ABC.

LITTLE VIC SYNDICATED

1977 Six-part miniseries about a horse (Little Vic) and the orphaned black teenager who trained and rode him. With Joey Green as Gilly Walker; the series was produced by Linda Marmelstein.

THE LITTLE WIZARDS ABC

26 September 1987–3 September 1988 Young Prince Dexter struggled to regain his throne from his evil uncle on this Saturday-morning cartoon show. The prince was aided by a trio of little wizards, Winkle, Boo, and Gump.

LITTLE WOMEN SYNDICATED

1972 Louisa May Alcott's classic book became a nine-part miniseries, televised as part of Family Classics Theatre. Produced in England, it featured Stephanie Bidmead as Mrs. March; Sara Craze as Beth; Angela Down as Jo; Janina Faye as Amy; and Jo Rowbottom as Meg.

LITTLE WOMEN NBC

8 February 1979–8 March 1979 Hour dramatic series which began where Louisa May Alcott's classic novel left off. With Jessica Harper as Jo March; Eve Plumb as Lissa; Ann Dusenberry as Amy; Susan Walden as Meg; Dorothy McGuire as Marmee; William Schallert as Reverend March; Richard Gilliland as Laurie; Virginia Gregg as Hannah; David Ackroyd as Friedrich Bhaer, Jo's fiancé; Mildred Natwick as Aunt March; and Robert Young as Mr. Laurence. Executive producer: David Victor for Universal TV. The series was intended as a sequel to a two-part adaptation of the novel which NBC had telecast 2 and 3 October 1978.

THE LITTLES ABC

10 SEPTEMBER 1983–6 SEPTEMBER 1986 The central characters in this Saturday-morning cartoon show were a group of six-inch-tall humanoids (they resembled people, except for their tails) who live in various places in a large city. Two of the Littles committed a major offense when they revealed the group's existence to teenager Henry Bigg, in the walls of whose house they dwelt. Bigg spent most of his time protecting the group from discovery by prodding scientists.

THE LITTLEST HOBO SYNDICATED

1963; 1982 This Canadian-produced series was one of few shows without a human regular. The Littlest Hobo was a German shepherd named London who wandered about and helped out people with problems.

LIVE! DICK CLARK PRESENTS CBS

14 SEPTEMBER 1988–22 OCTOBER 1988 Dick Clark hosted this hour variety show, which was hastily concocted to fill a gap in CBS's prime-time schedule caused by the 1988 writers' strike. The first three programs were televised live on Wednesdays; the remaining three were aired on tape on Saturdays.

LIVE LIKE A MILLIONAIRE CBS/ABC

5 JANUARY 1951–14 MARCH 1952 (CBS); 25 OCTOBER 1952–7 FEBRUARY 1953 (ABC) On this prime-time talent show all the acts were parents, who were introduced by their children. Jack McCoy and John Nelson hosted the series. Winning contestants earned the right to "live like a millionaire" only in a technical sense; in addition to merchandise prizes, they actually were awarded a week's worth of the interest on a million dollars, which amounted to less than $1000 at then prevailing interest rates.

LIVE SHOT UPN

29 AUGUST 1995–10 JANUARY 1996 The hectic news room at Los Angeles's channel 3 was the setting for this hour drama. With David Birney as pompous Harry Chandler Moore, co-anchor of the Re-Action News evening broadcast, and whose sobriquet was "The Beacon of Truth"; Rebecca Staab as the Harry's co-anchor, Sherry Beck; Sam Anderson as ultraconservative commentator Marvin Seaborn; Tom Byrd as sportscaster Lou Waller; Jeff Yagher as the newly named (and newly separated) news director, Alex Rydell; Michael Watson as video photographer Fast Eddie Santini; Hill Harper as soundman Tommy Greer; Eddie Velez as Ricardo Sandoval, anchor of the noon newscast and evening reporter; Bruce McGill as Joe Vitale, producer of the early evening newscast; Cheryl Pollak as Nancy Lockridge, producer of the late evening newscast; Antonia Jones as intern Peggy Trainor; Wanda De Jesus as reporter Liz Vega; David Coburn as assignment editor Rick Evers; Karen Austin as the station's new general manager, Helen Forbes; and Spencer Klein as Sean, Alex's young son.

LIVE WITH REGIS AND KATHIE LEE SYNDICATED

1989– Five-day-a-week hour magazine-talk show, made available live to local stations. Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford cohosted, although Philbin's wife, Joy Philbin, filled in for Gifford when the latter left to have a baby in the spring of 1990. Virtually alone among daytime talk shows of the 1990s, the series managed to hold a large audience without resorting to sensational or confrontational topics.

LIVE-IN CBS

20 MARCH 1989–5 JUNE 1989 Half-hour sitcom about a working couple who hired a beautiful live-in babysitter from Australia for their infant daughter, much to the delight of their two teenage sons. With Lisa Patrick as Lisa Wells, the live-in; Hugh Maguire as the father, Ed Matthews; Kimberly Farr as the mother, Sarah Matthews; Chris Young as elder son Danny; David Moscow as younger son Peter; and Lightfield Lewis as their pal Gator.

THE LIVELY ONES NBC

26 JULY 1962–13 SEPTEMBER 1962; 25 JULY 1963–12 SEPTEMBER 1963 Hosted by Vic Damone, this half-hour musical variety show was a summer replacement for Hazel for two seasons. Produced by Barry Shear, the show also featured Joan Staley and Shirley Yelm as Damone's "constant dates," Tiger and Charley, in 1962; Quinn O'Hara and Gloria Neil were Damone's 1963 dates, Smitty and Melvin. Music was provided by Jerry Fielding's orchestra. Many of the segments were taped on location at unusual sites throughout the country.

LIVING DOLLS ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1989–30 DECEMBER 1989 Half-hour sitcom about four teenage models in New York. With Michael Learned as Trish Carlin, who ran the modeling agency and was housemother to the girls; Leah Remini as Charlie; Alison Elliott as Martha; Deborah Tucker as Caroline; Halle Berry as Emily; David Moscow as Rick, Trish's teenage son; and Marion Ross as Trish's sister, Marion. The series had been spun off from Who's the Boss?

LIVING EASY WITH DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

See DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

THE LIVING PLANET: A PORTRAIT OF THE EARTH PBS

3 FEBRUARY 1985–21 APRIL 1985 On this twelve-part sequel to his 1982 series, Life on Earth, host David Attenborough examined the planet's ecosystems.

LIVING SINGLE FOX

22 AUGUST 1993– Half-hour sitcom about four black career women who shared a Brooklyn apartment. With Queen Latifah as Khadijah James, editor of Flavor magazine, a periodical aimed at black women; Kim Coles as her cousin and office manager, Synclaire James; Erika Alexander as divorce lawyer Max Shaw (who later moved into her own apartment); Kim Fields as Regine Hunter, who worked in a boutique; T. C. Carson as their neighbor, Kyle Barker, who became Max's boyfriend; John Henton as Overton Wakefield Jones, the building superintendent, who became Synclaire's boyfriend; and Cress Williams as Scooter, Khadijah's boyfriend.

THE LLOYD BRIDGES SHOW CBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1962–3 SEPTEMBER 1963 Half-hour dramatic anthology series hosted by former Sea Hunt star Lloyd Bridges, who portrayed writer Adam Shepherd from September until January. Each week Shepherd was transformed into the main character of the story. In January the show became a straightforward anthology series hosted by Bridges. His two sons, Beau and Jeff, appeared occasionally on the show. Aaron Spelling was the producer.

THE LLOYD THAXTON SHOW SYNDICATED

1964 An hour of rock music, hosted by disc jockey Lloyd Thaxton.

LOBO

See THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERIFF LOBO

LOCK UP SYNDICATED

1959–1960 Low-budget crime show from Ziv TV, with Macdonald Carey as defense attorney Herbert L. Maris and John Doucette as his legman, Weston. Olive Carey (no relation to Macdonald) was added for the second season of 39 episodes as the secretary, Casey, who was always trying to fix Herb up with a date. The series was based on the real-life Herbert L. Maris, a Philadelphia attorney who sought to free persons wrongly convicted of crimes.

LOGAN'S RUN CBS

16 SEPTEMBER 1977–16 JANUARY 1978 This science fiction series was based on the movie of the same title. It starred Gregory Harrison as Logan 5, a young man who chose to escape from the Domed City, a futuristic society in which life was pleasurable, but in which all inhabitants were "terminated" when they reached age thirty. Also featured were Heather Menzies as Jessica 6, a young woman who escaped with him; Donald Moffat as Rem, their android companion; and Randy Powell as Francis 7, the man sent to apprehend them (he was promised a seat on the secret council of elders, a group of persons who were permitted to live beyond thirty and who, unknown to the rest of the populace, actually ran the Domed City). Despite the enormous popularity of contemporaneous sci-fi films like Star Wars and Close Encounters of the Third Kind, Logan's Run ended in midseason after only a few episodes. Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts were the executive producers; Leonard Katzman was the producer.

LOIS & CLARK: THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1993– This hour prime-time series was much more lavish than the original TV incarnation of Superman, which had aired forty years earlier. It focused on the Man of Steel's early adult years in Metropolis, where, disguised as Clark Kent, he found work as a reporter; there he met fellow reporter Lois Lane, who only had eyes for Superman and spurned Clark's efforts at establishing a relationship. The cast included Dean Cain as Clark Kent/Superman; Teri Hatcher as Lois Lane; Michael Landes (1993–1994) and Justin Whalin (1994– ) as cub reporter Jimmy Olsen; Lane Smith as editor Perry White; Tracy Scoggins (1993–1994) as society columnist Catherine "Cat" Grant; and John Shea as archvillain Lex Luthor, who was thought to have been killed off at the end of the first season, but reappeared sporadically thereafter. Occasionally featured were K Callan and Eddie Jones as Superman's adoptive parents, Martha and Jonathan Kent. In a salute to the older version of the series, Phyllis Coates guest starred as Lois's mother, Ellen Lane, on 8 May 1994; Coates had been the original Lois in the first Superman series. The romantic aspect of the show received greater emphasis as the series progressed. By the end of the second season Lois had finally realized that Clark Kent was indeed Superman, and thus was not surprised when he finally revealed his true identity to her—and proposed marriage. They had fallen in love.

THE LONE RANGER ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1949–12 SEPTEMBER 1957 One of television's most popular westerns, The Lone Ranger was created for radio in 1933 by George W. Trendle. Clayton Moore starred in most of the 221 half hours as the Lone Ranger, though John Hart played the part in at least twenty-six episodes filmed between 1951 and 1953. Jay Silverheels costarred as Tonto, his faithful Indian companion. At least once each year the "original" episode was telecast, which explained the origins of the character. In brief, the Lone Ranger was really a Texas Ranger named John Reid, who was the only survivor of an ambush by Butch Cavendish's Hole in the Wall Gang. Nursed back to health by Tonto (coincidentally, the two had been childhood friends), he vowed to help bring justice to the West and donned a mask (originally, to fool the Cavendish gang). Armed with silver bullets, he shot only to wound, not to kill. In the later episodes Chuck Courtney was also featured as the Lone Ranger's nephew, Dan Reid; on his horse, Victor, he sometimes rode with his uncle (astride Silver) and Tonto (on Scout). Faithful viewers never seemed to mind that, wherever they traveled throughout the West, the Lone Ranger and Tonto always seemed to camp near the same set of rocks, "just outside of town." From their campground Tonto might venture into town, posing as an ignorant Redskin in order to overhear the bad guys, or the Lone Ranger might don one of his several disguises (which, of course, enabled him to shed his mask): The Oldtimer, a Swedish immigrant; José, a bandito; Don Pedro O'Sullivan, a Mexican Irishman; or "Professor" Horatio Tucker, seller of patent medicines. The show is still seen in syndication in many local areas. A cartoon version also appeared (see below). The Lone Ranger's classic introduction ("A fiery horse with the speed of light. . .") was read by announcer Fred Foy to the strains of Rossini's "William Tell Overture." Clayton Moore continued to make public appearances as the Lone Ranger for many years, but in 1979 Lone Ranger Television, Inc., a subsidiary of the Wrather Corporation, obtained a court injunction prohibiting Moore from wearing his mask in public. The Wrather Corporation had recently made a Lone Ranger feature film with an actor other than Moore. In 1985 Moore won back the right to wear the mask. The character reappeared on Saturday mornings in 1980 (see The Tarzan/Lone Ranger Adventure Hour).

THE LONE RANGER CBS

10 SEPTEMBER 1966–6 SEPTEMBER 1969 This cartoon version of the long-running western was seen on Saturday mornings for three seasons.

THE LONE WOLF (STREETS OF DANGER) SYNDICATED

1955 Half-hour adventure series starring Louis Hayward as Mike Lanyard (The Lone Wolf), globe-trotting private eye. Based on the stories by Louis Joseph Vance, the show had been featured on radio in 1948.

THE LONER CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1965–30 APRIL 1966 Created and produced by Rod Serling, this half-hour western starred Lloyd Bridges as William Colton, a Union soldier disillusioned by the Civil War who decided to head West after Appomattox and who helped out people along the way.

LONESOME DOVE CBS

5 FEBRUARY 1989–8 FEBRUARY 1989 This handsome, sprawling western, a four-part adaptation of Larry McMurtry's novel about a cattle drive, was by far the top-rated miniseries of the 1988–1989 season (and the highest-rated miniseries since North and South in 1985). Principal players included Robert Duvall as Augustus McCrae; Tommy Lee Jones as Woodrow Call; Robert Urich as Jake Spoon; Danny Glover as Joshua Deets; Diane Lane as Lorena Wood; Ricky Schroder as Newt Dobbs; Anjelica Huston as Clara Allen; and Frederic Forrest as Blue Duck. Simon Wincer directed. The miniseries won a Peabody Award in 1989. A three-part sequel, "Return to Lonesome Dove," aired on CBS 14, 16, and 18 November 1993. The seven-hour story starred Rick Schroder, Louis Gossett Jr., Jon Voight, Oliver Reed, William Petersen and Reese Witherspoon. A nationally syndicated weekly series surfaced in 1994: see below.

LONESOME DOVE: THE SERIES SYNDICATED

1994– The success of the 1989 miniseries Lonesome Dove and its sequel, Return to Lonesome Dove, led to this hour weekly series, which continued the story. The central character was Newt Call (formerly known as Newt Dobbs, he took his real father's last name after Woodrow Call acknowledged paternity), who settled in the small Montana town of Curtis Wells and soon found love. The cast included Scott Bairstow as Newt Call; Christianne Hirt as Hannah Peale, who married him; Paul Le Mat as her father, newspaper publisher Josiah Peale; Eric McCormack as Colonel Francis Clay Mosby, a former Confederate officer who became obsessed with Hannah; Diahann Carroll as Ida Grayson, a black woman who bought the local hotel and renamed it "The Lonesome Dove"; and Paul Johansson as Hannah's brother, Austin Peale. Each episode began with a scene set in 1925, as an unseen elderly man took a book from a shelf and began narrating the episode. The series was filmed on location in Alberta, and in its second season was entitled Lonesome Dove: The Outlaw Years.

LONG AGO & FAR AWAY PBS

1989–1991 James Earl Jones hosted this anthology series for children. Most of the stories were produced overseas; some were adaptations of children's classics, while others were original stories. Some were animated, others featured puppets, and a few employed real actors.

THE LONG HOT SUMMER ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1965–13 JULY 1966 After ABC introduced a successful prime-time serial—Peyton Place—in 1964, it followed suit a year later with The Long Hot Summer. The hour-long show was based on the film of the same title, which in turn was based on William Faulkner's The Hamlet. Set in the Southern town of Frenchman's Bend, it told the story of Ben Quick, a drifter who returned to the town and found it was run by one man, Will Varner; Quick fell in love with Varner's daughter and attempted to clear the good name of his late father, who was suspected of murder. Principal characters included: Roy Thinnes as Ben Quick; Edmond O'Brien (to January 1966) and Dan O'Herlihy (after January) as Will Varner; Nancy Malone as Clara Varner, Will's daughter; Lana Wood as Eula Varner, Clara's younger sister; Paul Geary as Jody Varner, their brother; Paul Bryar as Sheriff Harve Anders; John Kerr as Duane Galloway; Ruth Roman as Minnie, Will Varner's lady friend; Harold Gould as Bo Chamberlain; Wayne Rogers as Curley; Josie Lloyd as Agnes; Tish Sterling as Susan; Charles Lampkin as Andrew; Jason Wingreen as Dr. Clark; William Mims as Ruddabaw; and Warren Kemmerling as Lucas Taney. Frank Glicksman produced the series for 20th Century-Fox TV.

LONG JOHN SILVER SYNDICATED

1955 Robert Newton recreated the role of Long John Silver, goodhearted pirate, which he had first played in the 1950 film, Treasure Island. Set during the 1700s on the island of Porto Bello, the half-hour series was filmed in Sydney, Australia. Also featured were Kit Taylor as young Jim Hawkins, his unofficial ward; Connie Gilchrist as Purity, the proprietor of Long John's favorite pub.

LONGSTREET ABC

16 SEPTEMBER 1971–10 AUGUST 1972 This hour-long crime show starred James Franciscus as Michael Longstreet, a New Orleans insurance investigator who was blinded in an attempt on his life in which his wife was killed. Seeking no sympathy from anyone, Longstreet, with a little help from his friends and his seeing-eye dog, Pax, a white German shepherd, continued at his job, solving mysteries week after week. Also featured were Marlyn Mason as Nikki Bell, his Braille instructor and companion; Peter Mark Richman (formerly known as Mark Richman) as Duke Paige of the Great Pacific Casualty Company, Longstreet's employer; and Ann Doran as Mrs. Kingston, Longstreet's housekeeper. Stirling Silliphant was the executive producer for Paramount TV.

LOOK AT US SYNDICATED

1981 Half-hour magazine show, hosted by Richard Crenna.

LOOK HERE NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1957–4 MAY 1958 NBC correspondent Martin Agronsky interviewed newsmakers on this live public affairs program, aired Sunday afternoons. Agronsky's first guest was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

LOOK UP AND LIVE CBS

3 JANUARY 1954–21 JANUARY 1979 This long-running religious show was a Sunday-morning fixture for two dozen years. In the early years, the Reverend Lawrence McMaster frequently appeared, and Merv Griffin hosted the show briefly in 1955. In later years, however, there was no fixed format, since different religious and cultural themes were explored. Pamela Ilott, director of religious programming for CBS News, was executive producer.

THE LORENZO AND HENRIETTA MUSIC SHOW SYNDICATED

1976 Short-lived talk show cohosted by Lorenzo Music (producer and voice of Carlton on Rhoda) and his wife, Henrietta Music.

THE LORETTA YOUNG SHOW (A LETTER TO LORETTA) NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1953–10 SEPTEMBER 1961 Hosted by, and frequently starring, Loretta Young, this half-hour dramatic anthology series was seen Sunday nights at 10:00 p.m. It is probably best remembered for Young's fashions, and her swirling entrance through a door at the beginning of each episode. During its first season the show was titled A Letter to Loretta; Young read a letter supposedly written by a viewer which served as an introduction to the evening's presentation. In 1954 that device was dropped. It was reported in 1972 that Young had been awarded $559,000 in a suit against NBC for the network's violation of her contract in permitting syndicated reruns of the series to be shown with her outdated fashions and hairstyles. John Newland, who later hosted One Step Beyond, appeared many times, and also directed several shows.

LORNE GREENE'S NEW WILDERNESS SYNDICATED
1982–1986 Lorne Greene hosted this, his second series of half-hour nature films (see also Last of the Wild).

LOST CIVILIZATIONS NBC
25 JUNE 1995–3 SEPTEMBER 1995 Ten-week hour series, sponsored by Time-Life, about civilizations and cultures of the past. Sam Waterston hosted the series, which blended documentary film with dramatic reenactments.

LOST IN SPACE CBS
15 SEPTEMBER 1965–11 SEPTEMBER 1968 Science fiction series about the Space Family Robinson. Dispatched by the United States government in 1997 to colonize a planet in Alpha Centauri, the Robinsons' spacecraft was thrown hopelessly off course by a stowaway. With Guy Williams as Dr. John Robinson, astrophysicist; June Lockhart as Maureen Robinson, his wife; Marta Kristen as Judy, their elder daughter; Billy Mumy as Will, their son; Angela Cartwright as Penny, their younger daughter; Mark Goddard as Don West, the pilot; Jonathan Harris as the stowaway, Dr. Zachary Smith, an enemy agent who was to have sabotaged the craft on the launching pad; and Bob May as The Robot. Irwin Allen created the series and was also its executive producer; eighty-three hour episodes were filmed.

THE LOST SAUCER ABC
6 SEPTEMBER 1975–4 SEPTEMBER 1976 Live-action Saturday-morning show about two extraplanetary creatures who inadvertently pick up a boy and his babysitter while visiting Earth. With Ruth Buzzi as Fi; Jim Nabors as Fum; Alice Playten as Alice, the babysitter; and Jarrod Johnson as Jerry, the boy. Produced by Sid and Marty Krofft, the series was later shown as one segment of The Krofft Supershow.

LOTSA LUCK NBC
10 SEPTEMBER 1973–24 MAY 1974 Blue-collar sitcom based on the British series, On the Buses. With Dom DeLuise as Stanley Belmont, lost-and-found clerk for a New York bus company; Kathleen Freeman as his mother, Iris Belmont; Beverly Sanders as his sister, Olive Swan; Wynn Irwin as Olive's unemployed husband, Arthur Swan; and Jack Knight as the Belmonts' neighbor, Bummy Pfitzer, a bus driver. The show was created by three alumni of The Dick Van Dyke Show: Carl Reiner, Bill Persky, and Sam Denoff.

LOTTERY$ ABC
9 SEPTEMBER 1983–12 JULY 1984 This hour series closely resembled two earlier shows, The Millionaire and Sweepstakes, which focused on persons who won, or were given, large sums of money. Lottery$ dealt, logically enough, with the winners of the Intersweep Lottery, a big-money sweepstakes game. It starred Ben Murphy as Patrick Sean Flaherty, employed by the Intersweep Bank, whose job was to notify the winners and give them the proceeds; and Marshall Colt as Eric Rush, an IRS agent whose job was to make sure the winners paid all necessary federal taxes. Each episode of Lottery$ featured three stories; unlike The Millionaire, which followed the recipients after they had been given the cashier's check, Lottery$ focused more on finding the persons, verifying their tickets, and presenting the winnings (Lottery$'s episodes did close with a short epilogue, showing the winners "one year later"). Rick Rosner created the series.

LOU GRANT CBS

20 SEPTEMBER 1977–13 SEPTEMBER 1982 In this hour-long series Edward Asner continued to play the part he had created on The Mary Tyler Moore Show—Lou Grant, who, having lost his job at WJM in Minneapolis, moved to Los Angeles and got a new job as city editor of the Los Angeles Tribune. While it is not uncommon for characters to be spun off from one series to another, this appears to have been the first instance in which a character left a situation comedy to headline a dramatic series. Also featured were Mason Adams as managing editor Charlie Hume, an old friend of Lou's; Nancy Marchand as Margaret Pynchon, owner and publisher of the Tribune; Jack Bannon as Art Donovan, assistant city editor; Robert Walden as scrappy young reporter Joe Rossi; and Daryl Anderson as photographer Dennis (Animal) Price. In the earliest episodes Rebecca Balding appeared as another young reporter, Carla Mardigian, but she was replaced by Linda Kelsey as reporter Billie Newman, who maintained a rivalry with Rossi. Allen Williams joined the cast in 1978 as reporter Adam Wilson, and Emilio Delgado was added in 1980 as reporter Reuben Castillo. In the fall of 1981 Billie married Ted McCovey, a former baseball player.

Lou Grant tackled many controversial issues during its five-year run, including child abuse, gun control, survivalism, the plight of Vietnamese refugees, and even Mrs. Pynchon's stroke. It was canceled in 1982 as its ratings slipped, amid reports that the network had become uneasy about star Ed Asner's outspoken support of various liberal causes.

LOUIS RUKEYSER'S BUSINESS JOURNAL SYNDICATED

1981 Louis (Wall $treet Week) Rukeyser hosted this half-hour informational series on business and economic issues.

LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1969–11 JANUARY 1974; 23 DECEMBER 1985–15 AUGUST 1986 A rarity in television programming, Love, American Style was a comedy anthology series about love and romance; each week two or three stories of mixed lengths were televised, and short blackouts were aired between them. The group which performed the blackouts usually numbered about eight, and from time to time included Bill Callaway, Buzz Cooper, Phyllis Elizabeth Davis, Jaki DeMar, Mary Grover, James Hampton, Stuart Margolin, Lynne Marta, Barbara Minkus, Bernie Kopell, Tracy Reed, and Richard Williams. Arnold Margolin and Jim Parker were the show's executive producers for most of its run. Writers included Frank Buxton, Jerry Rannow, Greg Strangis, Ed Scharlach, and Doug Tibbles. The show was broadcast in an hour-long format except during the 1970–1971 season, when it was a half hour. Late in 1985 ABC revived the series (now titled New Love, American Style) for its daytime lineup.

LOVE AND MARRIAGE NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1959–25 JANUARY 1960 Featured in this half-hour sitcom were William Demarest as Bill Harris, owner of a music publishing company in shaky financial condition; Stubby Kaye as Stubby Wilson, his promo man; Kay Armen as Sophie, the secretary; Jeanne Bal as Pat Baker, Bill's daughter, who tried to bring new talent to the firm; Murray Hamilton as her husband, Steve Baker, a lawyer; Susan Reilly as their daughter, Susan; and Jeannie Lynn as their daughter, Jenny.

LOVE AND WAR CBS

21 SEPTEMBER 1992–1 FEBRUARY 1995; 18 AUGUST 1995 Half-hour sitcom set in New York, where a newly divorced woman, having lost her trendy restaurant in the divorce, impulsively purchased a corner bar. With Susan Dey (1992–1993) as Wallis "Wally" Porter, who stopped by the Blue Shamrock for a stiff drink after the divorce hearing and ended up buying the place; Jay Thomas as bar regular Jack Stein, an opinionated newspaper columnist who quickly became Wally's new love interest (wasting little time, the couple had slept together by the second episode); John Hancock (fall 1992) as Ike Johnson, the former owner of the bar who agreed to stay on; Joel Murray as bar regular Ray Litvak, a sanitation worker; Michael Nouri (1992–1993) as Kip Zakaris, Wally's ex; and Suzie Plakson as bar regular Mary Margaret "Meg" Tynan, a sportswriter. John Hancock died unexpectedly after a few episodes had been completed; after his death Charlie Robinson joined the cast as Ike's brother Abe; Joanna Gleason was added later in the first season as waitress Nadine Berkus. Susan Dey left the series after the initial season (it was explained that Wally had gone to Paris), and was replaced by Annie Potts as chef Dana Palladino, who became the new love interest for Jack. Created by Diane English, Love and War was the highest rated new series of the 1992–1993 season, ranking 13th for the year.

THE LOVE BOAT ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1977–5 SEPTEMBER 1986 One of the most popular new shows of the 1977–1978 season, The Love Boat followed the format of Love, American Style, featuring guest stars in comedy vignettes; unlike Love, American Style, the stories were intertwined rather than telecast consecutively. All the action took place aboard The Pacific Princess, a cruise ship. The ship's crew, who were the only regulars on the series, included Gavin MacLeod as Captain Merrill Stubing; Bernie Kopell as Doc (Adam Bricker), the ship's doctor; Fred Grandy as Burl (Gopher) Smith, assistant purser; Ted Lange as Isaac Washington, the bartender; and Lauren Tewes (1977–1984) as Julie McCoy, social director. In the fall of 1979 Jill Whelan was added as Vicki, Stubing's illegitimate daughter. Pat Klous joined the cast in the fall of 1984 as social director Judy McCoy, replacing Lauren Tewes, who candidly admitted that drug abuse led to her departure from the series; Tewes returned as guest star on the episode of 30 November 1985. Ted McGinley also signed on in 1984 as photographer Ashley Covington "Ace" Evans. In the fall of 1985 The Pacific Princess was upgraded to The Royal Princess, and the Love Boat Mermaids, a team of eight singer-dancers, were added. On 24 May 1986 Captain Stubing married Emily Haywood (played by Marion Ross). The Love Boat ended its nine-season regular run in September of that year, but returned in three two-hour specials broadcast during the 1986–1987 season. By that time, former regular Fred Grandy had been elected to Congress from Iowa. Several of the other regulars (MacLeod, Lange, Kopell, and Whelan) were reunited for "The Love Boat: A Valentine Voyage," which aired 12 February 1990 on CBS. Aaron Spelling and Douglas S. Cramer were the executive producers. Many episodes were directed by Richard Kinon, who succinctly described The Love Boat's format as "romance and pap."

LOVE CONNECTION SYNDICATED

1983–1993 Chuck Woolery hosted this updated version of The Dating Game, on which single people selected dates through videotaped interviews; after their initial date, the couple came back to the show and reported the outcome of their first encounter.

THE LOVE EXPERTS SYNDICATED

1978 A game show not unlike The Amateur's Guide to Love, this series featured a panel of four celebrities who gave advice to contestants on matters of love and romance. At the end of each show the panel selected the contestant who had posed the most interesting "love problem"; the lucky player then won a prize. Bill Cullen hosted the half-hour show.

LOVE IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1967–23 MARCH 1973 Another of the daytime serials developed by Irna Phillips, Love Is a Many Splendored Thing was intended to be a continuation of the 1955 film, which had starred William Holden and Jennifer Jones. Its central theme at first involved interracial romance; when the network insisted that that theme be dropped, Phillips quit. Under new writers, story lines veered toward political intrigue. Principal players included Nancy Hsueh as Mia Elliott, the daughter of an American father and an Asian mother who, as the series began, came to San Francisco to study medicine; Nicholas Pryor as Paul Bradley, Mia's first romantic interest; Robert Milli and Ron Hale as Dr. Jim Abbott, Mia's second romantic interest; Sam Wade, David Birney, Michael Hawkins, Vincent Cannon, and Tom Fuccello as Mark Elliott, Mia's cousin; Grace Albertson and Gloria Hoye as Mark's mother, Helen Elliott; Leslie Charleson and Bibi Besch as Iris Donnelly, Mark's girlfriend; Robert Burr and Albert Stratton as Lieutenant Tom Donnelly, Iris's brother; Shawn Campbell as Ricky Donnelly, Tom's son; Beverlee McKinsey as Martha Donnelly, Tom's estranged wife (who was also known as Julie Richards); Berkeley Harris as Jim Whitman, Martha's boyfriend; Donna Mills, Velekka Gray, and Barbara Stanger as Laura Donnelly, sister of Iris and Tom, who eventually married Mark Elliott; Judson Laire as Dr. Will Donnelly, father of Iris, Tom, and Laura; Ed Power and Brett Halsey as Spence Garrison, an aspiring politician who became involved with Iris; Susan Browning as Nancy Garrison, Spence's wife; Don Gantry as Senator Alfred E. Preston; John Carpenter as millionaire Walter Travis, Preston's backer; Leon Russom as Joe Taylor, a former employee of Travis; Andrea Marcovicci as Betsy Chernak, who married Joe Taylor; Vincent Baggetta as Dr. Peter Chernak, Betsy's brother; and Diana Douglas as Lily Chernak, widowed mother of Peter and Betsy, who eventually married Dr. Will Donnelly.

LOVE OF LIFE CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1951–1 FEBRUARY 1980 A durable daytime serial, Love of Life enjoyed a run of twenty-eight years. It was created by John Hess for The Biow Company but was sold to CBS in the early 1960s. Roy Winsor was its first executive producer, Charles Schenck its first producer. In recent years Darryl Hickman (a former child actor and brother of Dwayne Hickman) was the executive producer, with Jean Arley the producer. Larry Auerbach was the director from the beginning (though Jerry Evans and John Desmond codirected with him during the 1970s). Later head writers included Claire Labine and Paul Avila Mayer (who subsequently created Ryan's Hope), Margaret DePriest, Paul Schneider, and Gabrielle Upton.

Love of Life premiered as a fifteen-minute show and was then set in the town of Barrowsville. It was expanded to thirty minutes on 14 April 1958, and was trimmed to a twenty-five-minute format in 1962. Over the years, the action shifted away from Barrowsville to the nearby town of Rosehill. The story originally centered around two sisters—noble, long-suffering Vanessa Dale and amoral, opportunistic Margaret (Meg) Dale. After Meg was written out of the story in the late 1950s, the story lines diffused as younger characters were introduced; Meg was brought back, however, late in 1973 by then head writers Labine and Mayer. The large cast has included: Peggy McCay (1951–1955), Bonnie Bartlett (1955–1959), and Audrey Peters as Vanessa Dale; Jean McBride (1951–1956) and Tudi Wiggins (who joined the cast in 1973, when the role was revived after a seventeen-year absence) as Margaret Dale Harper Aleata; Jane Rose (1951–1956) and Joanna Roos (who took the role in 1968, when the character returned after a long absence) as Sarah Dale, mother of Van and Meg; Ed Jerome as Will Dale, father of Van and Meg; Paul Potter as Charles Harper, Meg's first husband; Dennis Parnell (1951–1957), Tommy White (1957–1958), Christopher Reeve (1968–1976), and Chandler Hill Harben (1976–1980) as Benno, the son of Meg and Charles Harper, who was known as "Beanie" in his youth and, when he returned to the show after some ten years, as "Ben"; Joe Allen, Jr., as Miles Pardee, an unsavory boyfriend of Meg's who was found murdered; Ronald Long as lawyer Evans Baker; Richard Coogan as lawyer Paul Raven, who married Van in 1954 and was reported killed in 1958 (actually, Paul lived, though he was stricken with amnesia: played by Robert Burr, he showed up in 1971 under the name of Matt Corby; he was later jailed and died); Bonnie Bartlett (1951) and Hildy Parks (1951–1956) as Van's roommate, Ellie Crown (Bartlett later played Van herself); Marie Kenney as Mrs. Rivers; Joanna Roos as Althea Raven, Paul's mother (Roos returned to the show as Sarah Dale); Virginia Robinson as Judith Lodge Raven, Paul's first wife; Steven Gethers as casino owner Hal Craig; Donald Symington as Jack Andrews, Meg's second husband; Lauren Gilbert as Tom Craythorne, Meg's third husband; Ann Loring as actress Tammy Forrest; Gene Peterson as Noel Penn; Ron Tomme (1959–1980) as Bruce Sterling, who married Van, divorced her, and married her again in 1972; Jimmy Bayer, Dan Ferrone (to 1966), Dennis Cooney (1966–1969), and John Fink (1969–1970) as Alan Sterling, Bruce's son by a former marriage; Nina Reader (to 1961), Lee Lawson (1961–1965), and Zina Bethune as Barbara Sterling, Bruce's daughter by a former marriage; Helene Dumas (1959–1977) as Vivian Carlson, mother of Bruce's former wife; Tom Shirley (1959–1961) and Jack Stamberger (1961–1970) as Henry Carlson, father of Bruce's former wife and head of a paper company; Ron Jackson as Dr. Tony Vento, Barbara Sterling's first husband; Kimetha Laurie as Cindy Craythorne, Tom Craythorne's daughter; Gene Pelligrini as Link Porter; Joan Copeland as Link's wife, Maggie Porter, and her twin, Kay Logan; John Straub as Guy Latimer; Paul Savior (1961–1966), Michael Ebert, Edward Moore, and Jerry Lacy (1971–1978) as his son, Rick Latimer, who became Barbara Sterling's second husband; Fred Stewart (1966–1971) and Charles White (1971–1973) as Alex Caldwell, who married Sarah Dale after Will Dale died; Eileen Letchworth as Sharon Ferris; Marie Masters as Hester Ferris, her daughter; Robert Alda as Jason Ferris, Sharon's husband; Stan Watt and Jonathan Moore as bookdealer Charles Lamont, next-door neighbor of Van and Bruce Sterling; Diane Rousseau as Diana Lamont, his wife (and ex-wife); Gene Bua as Bill Prentiss, son of Charles Lamont, who died in 1972 of a blood disease; Toni Bull as Tess Krakauer, Bill's wife; Frances Sternhagen and Jocelyn Brando as Mrs. Krakauer, Tess's mother; Alan York as Mickey Krakauer; Byron Sanders as John Randolph, who was married briefly to Tess and turned up murdered in 1970; Lawrence Weber as Richard Rollins, Randolph's killer; Renée Roy as Clair Bridgeman; Cathy Bacon as Sally Bridgeman, her daughter; Lincoln Kilpatrick as Joe Bond; Darlene Cotton as his wife, Rita Bond (the Bonds were the first black couple on Love of Life); Leonie Norton and Sally Stark as singer Kate Swanson; Drew Snyder as Dr. Dan Phillips, who married Kate and was later killed in a crash; Keith Charles as Kate's next husband, Dr. Ted Chandler, who ran a sex clinic; Michael Glaser and Tony LoBianco as Dr. Joe Corelli (Glaser, later known as Paul Michael Glaser, starred in Starsky and Hutch); Paul McGrath as Larry Andrews; Roy Scheider, Ben Piazza, and Roy Shuman as Jonas Falk; Bonnie Bedelia as Sandy Porter; Jessica Walter as Julia Moreno; David Rounds as Philip Holden; John Gabriel and George Kane as Link Morrison; Nancy Marchand as Vinnie Phillips; Douglass Watson as Lloyd Phillips; Polly Rowles as Helen Hunt; Shirley Blanc as Dr. Lederer; David Sabin as Dr. Peck; Carl Betz as Collie Jordan; Shari Freels as Daisy Allen; Ja'net DuBois as Loretta Allen; Joe Silver as Larry Prince; Brian Brownlee as Jack Bendarik; Phil Sterling as Dr. Westheimer; Cindy Grover as Stacy Corby, daughter of Matt Corby (Matt was really Van's long-lost husband, Paul Raven); Don Warfield and Ray Wise as Jamie Rollins, a lawyer who married Diana Lamont; Deborah Courtney (1973–1977) and Roxanne Gregory (1977–1978) as Caroline (Cal) Aleata, daughter of Meg Dale Aleata; Charles Baxter as Jeff Hart, the corrupt mayor of Rosehill who married Meg Dale Aleata after her return; Brian Farrell as David Hart, his son; Elizabeth Kemp as Betsy Crawford, who married Ben Harper after his return; Birgitta Tolksdorf (1974–1980) as Arlene Lovett, Ben's previous wife; Peg Murray as Carrie Lovett, her mother; Leon B. Stevens as Dr. Kreisinger; Nancy MacKay and Season Hubley as nurse Candy Lowe; Richard Cox as Bobby Mackey, who tried to defraud Tess and was murdered; Richard McKenzie as Walter Morgan, Bobby's partner and killer; Michael Fairman as Phil Waterman; Ed Crowley as Howie Howells; John Aniston as Edouard Aleata; Pamela Lincoln as Felicia Fleming, who married Charles Lamont (in real life, Pamela Lincoln was married to Love of Life's executive producer, Darryl Hickman); David Carlton Stambaugh as Hank Latimer, son of Rick and Barbara Latimer; Oren Jay, Raymond Cass, and Trip Randall as Johnny Prentiss, son of Bill and Tess Prentiss; Romola Robb Allrud as Linda Crawford; Kenneth McMillan as James Crawford; Chris Chase as Connie Loomis; Earle Hyman as Dr. Paul Bryson; Marsha Mason as Judith Cole; Natalie Schafer as Augusta Rolland; Geraldine Brooks as Arden Delecort; Renne Jarrett as Eileen McCallion; Stephen Elliott as Paul Ailey; Bert Convy as Gene Hamilton; Lloyd Battista as Roy Slater; Peter Brouwer as Joe Cusack; Michael Allinson as Ian Russell; Amy Gibson as Lynn Henderson; Velekka Gray as Mia Marriott; Ron Harper as Andrew Marriott; Richard Council as Michael Blake; Corinne Neuchateau as Mary Owens; Elaine Grove as Wendy Hayes; Sherry Rooney as Dory Patton; Danielle Cusson as Susie Ryker; Robert McCone as Danny Ryker; Michael Kennedy as Kevin Patten; Jessica Rooney as Kirsten Patten; Jack Marks as Leon Matthews; Donald Warfield (again) as Bert; Martin Zurla as T. J. Brogger; Gretchen Walther as Faith Manning; Elizabeth Stack as Cherie Manning; Ted Leplat as Elliott Lang; Chris Marlowe as Andrew Marriott, Jr.; Richard Fasciano as Dr. Paul Graham; Peter Gatto as Tony Alphonso; Ann Spangler McCarthy as Bambi Brewster; Margo McKenna as Elizabeth Lang; Shepperd Strudwick as Timothy McCauley; Jake Turner as Zachary Bly; Richard K. Weber and Mark Pinter as Dr. Tom Crawford.

In addition, according to Ron Lackmann's book, TV Soap Opera Almanac, other roles have been played by such notables as Martin Balsam, Warren Beatty, Damon Evans, Peter Falk, and Anne Jackson.

LOVE ON A ROOFTOP ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1966–31 AUGUST 1967 Domestic sitcom about two newlyweds who moved into a tiny top-floor apartment in San Francisco. With Judy Carne as Julie Willis, an art student; Peter Deuel (he later shortened his last name to Duel) as her husband, Dave Willis, an architect; Rich Little as their neighbor, Stan Parker; Barbara Bostock as Carol Parker, Stan's wife; Herb Voland as Julie's father, Fred Hammond, owner of a string of used car lots; Edith Atwater as Julie's mother, Phyllis Hammond; and Lillian Adams as the Willises' landlady, Mrs. Lewis. E. W. Swackhamer produced and directed the series, which was rerun on ABC during the summer of 1971.

THE LOVE REPORT ABC

2 APRIL 1984–6 APRIL 1984; 18 JUNE 1984–27 JULY 1984 Chuck Henry and Tawny Schneider cohosted this daytime magazine series which purported to focus on love, sexuality, and romance. Celebrity interviews as well as documentary segments were featured.

LOVE, SIDNEY NBC

28 OCTOBER 1981–25 DECEMBER 1982; 28 MARCH 1983–29 AUGUST 1983 Tony Randall starred in this sitcom as lonely Sidney Shorr, a commercial artist who decided to share his New York apartment with a struggling actress and her young daughter. Also featured were Swoosie Kurtz as actress Laurie Morgan, who soon landed the role of Gloria Trinnell on the soap opera "As Thus We Are"; and Kaleena Kiff as Patti, Laurie's daughter. The series was produced in New York for most of its first season, but the cast was forced to head West in 1982 when Sesame Street preempted their New York facilities. Joining the show in the fall of 1982 were Chip Zien as ad executive Jason Stoller, for whom Sidney did assignments; and Barbara Bryne as Mrs. Gaffney, the wife of the building superintendent. Love, Sidney was derived from the 1981 made-for-TV movie "Sidney Shorr" (which had starred Randall, Kiff, and Lorna Patterson), with one significant difference: in the movie Sidney had been homosexual, but in the series (according to the network, if not to the show's writers) he was not.

LOVE STORIES SYNDICATED

1991 Daytime soap star Kristian Alfonso hosted this half-hour series about relationships. Each program focused on two couples who had fallen in love and had gone to the brink of breakup; each partner was separately interviewed, and excerpts of the interviews were telecast. At the end of the program Alfonso revealed which one of the two couples had gotten back together.

Like Capitol, CBS's 1982 soap, Loving was introduced in prime time; a two-hour movie version was telecast on 26 June 1983, the day before the daytime premiere. The series never achieved ratings success; after the demise of Santa Barbara in early 1993, Loving was consistently the lowest rated of the ten network daytime soaps. In late 1995 the series underwent a radical change. Eight major characters were written out; six of them were dispatched by a serial killer, who then killed herself. Most of the survivors relocated from sleepy Corinth to New York, where Morgan Fairchild joined the cast as media baroness Sydney Chase, and Loving was reborn as The City 13 November 1995.

LUCAN — ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1977–4 DECEMBER 1978 An irregularly scheduled adventure series starring Kevin Brophy as Lucan, a boy who had lived with wolves in the woods of Minnesota until he was ten, and who, as a teenager, searched for his real identity. Also featured were John Randolph as Dr. Hoagland, a research scientist at the university to which the boy had been taken for study, and from which he escaped, and Don Gordon as Prentiss, a modern-day bounty hunter hired by the university to find the boy.

LUCAS TANNER — NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1974–20 AUGUST 1975 Family drama starring David Hartman as Lucas Tanner, a sportswriter who decided to become a schoolteacher after his wife and son were killed in an automobile accident; Tanner managed to find a position in the English department at Harry S. Truman Memorial High School in Webster Groves, Missouri. Also featured were Rosemary Murphy (to January 1975) as Mrs. Margaret Blumenthal, the principal; John Randolph (from January 1975) as John Hamilton, the new principal; Robbie Rist as Glendon, the youngster who lived next door to Tanner; Alan Abelew as Jaytee, one of Tanner's students; Trish Soodik as Cindy, another student; Kimberly Beck as Terry, a student; and Michael Dwight-Smith as Wally, a student. THE LUCY SHOW CBS

1 OCTOBER 1962–16 SEPTEMBER 1968 Lucille Ball returned to the air, without her ex-husband Desi Arnaz, in this half-hour sitcom. She remained on the air for the next twelve seasons (the last six were as star of Here's Lucy). On The Lucy Show she played Lucy Carmichael, a recently widowed bank secretary. Originally she worked at the First National Bank in Danfield, Connecticut, and the show also featured Vivian Vance (her crony from I Love Lucy) as her pal and cotenant, Vivian Bagley; Jimmy Garrett as Lucy's son, Jerry; Candy Moore as Lucy's daughter, Chris; Ralph Hart as Vivian's son, Sherman; Dick Martin as Lucy's friend, Harry; and Charles Lane as cantankerous Mr. Barnsdahl, Lucy's boss. In the fall of 1963 Gale Gordon replaced Lane as Lucy's new, but equally cantankerous, boss, Theodore J. Mooney. In the fall of 1965 all the supporting players (except for Gordon) were dropped, and the new format found Lucy as a bank secretary in San Francisco. Joining the cast were Roy Roberts as bank president Harrison Cheever, and Mary Jane Croft as Lucy's friend, Mary Jane Lewis.

LUX PLAYHOUSE CBS

3 OCTOBER 1958–18 SEPTEMBER 1959 This half-hour dramatic anthology series shared a time slot with Schlitz Playhouse of Stars for one season.

THE LUX SHOW STARRING ROSEMARY CLOONEY NBC

26 SEPTEMBER 1957–19 JUNE 1958 After sponsoring a dramatic series for seven seasons, the makers of Lux detergent decided to sponsor a musical variety show. Pop singer Rosemary Clooney, who had previously hosted her own syndicated show, headlined the half hour, which also featured the Modernaires and the Frank DeVol Orchestra. Rosemary Clooney's theme song was "Tenderly," composed by Lloyd Gross.

LUX VIDEO THEATRE CBS/NBC

2 OCTOBER 1950–24 JUNE 1954 (CBS); 26 AUGUST 1954–12 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC) This dramatic anthology series was the television counterpart of Lux Radio Theatre, the popular radio anthology series which began in 1934. During the 1954–1955 season it was hosted by James Mason, who was succeeded by Otto Kruger and Gordon MacRae. Notable guest appearances included those by Robert Stack (in "Inside Story," one of his earliest TV roles, 18 June 1951), Peter Lorre ("The Taste," his first major TV role, 31 March 1952), Grace Kelly ("A Message for Janice," 29 September 1952), Edward G. Robinson ("Witness for the Prosecution," his TV dramatic debut, 17 September 1953), Barbara Rush ("Gavin's Darling," her first major role, 22 April 1954), James Arness ("The Chase," his first major TV role, 30 December 1954), and Esther Williams ("The Armed Venus," a rare TV appearance, 23 May 1957). The show was seen in a half-hour format on CBS, and in a one-hour format on NBC.

M.A.N.T.I.S. FOX

26 AUGUST 1994–3 MARCH 1995 Hour adventure series about a black superhero, starring Carl Lumbly as Dr. Miles Hawkins. Paralyzed as a result of a shooting, Hawkins developed a artificial exo-skeleton known as MANTIS (Mechanically Augmented Neurotransmitter Interactive System) which, when worn, made him extremely strong. Also featured were Roger Rees as John Stonebrake, Hawkins's former college roommate and scientific partner; Christopher Gartin as Taylor Savidge, a young bicycle messenger who joined forces with them; Gayln Görg as Lieutenant Leora Maxwell of the Port Columbia Police Department; and Lorena Gale as Lynette, Hawkins's housekeeper. Created by Sam Raimi and Sam Hamm, the character was introduced in a made-for-TV movie, also titled "M.A.N.T.I.S.," telecast on Fox 24 January 1994.

M*A*S*H CBS

17 SEPTEMBER 1972–19 SEPTEMBER 1983 One of television's most popular programs, *M*A*S*H* was based on Robert Altman's 1970 film (which in turn was based on Richard Hooker's novel). It was set at the 4077th M*A*S*H (Mobile Army Surgical Hospital) Unit, located just a few miles from the front lines in wartime Korea. Although the Korean War lasted only three years, *M*A*S*H* lasted eleven.

The cast included: Alan Alda as Captain Benjamin Franklin (Hawkeye) Pierce, a surgeon from Crabapple Cove, Maine, whose disdain for Army rules and regulations was matched by his skill with a scalpel, his quick wit, and his compassion; Wayne Rogers (1972–1975) as Captain John F. X. (Trapper John) McIntire, Hawkeye's tentmate, who was also a skilled surgeon and was every bit as rambunctious as Pierce; McLean Stevenson (1972–1975) as Lieutenant Colonel Henry Blake, the easygoing commanding officer who preferred to avoid exercising authority; Loretta Swit as Major Margaret (Hot Lips) Houlihan, the misunderstood commanding officer of the nurses; Larry Linville (1972–1977) as Major Frank Burns, a by-the-book zealot who was the butt of many Pierce-McIntire practical jokes; Gary Burghoff (1972–1979) as Corporal Walter (Radar) O'Reilly, the naive but efficient company clerk; William Christopher as Father Francis Mulcahy, the kindly chaplain; and Jamie Farr as Corporal Max Klinger, an enlisted man desperate to get out of the Army. Of that group only Burghoff had been featured in the movie. In the earliest episodes a few other regulars were also featured, but most had been phased out by the end of the first season: Tim Brown (who had also appeared in the movie) as Spearchucker Jones, a football star who was also a doctor; Odessa Cleveland as Lieutenant Ginger Ballis, a nurse; Karen Philipp as Lieutenant Maggie Dish, a nurse; Patrick Adiarte as Ho Jon, Trapper and Hawkeye's houseboy; John Orchard as Ugly John; and G. Wood as General Hammond.

*M*A*S*H* premiered in a Sunday time slot, and barely escaped cancellation after its first season. In the fall of 1973, however, it was moved to Saturday night, where it inherited one of the best time slots in television history, the 8:30 "hammock" between two established CBS sitcoms, All in the Family and The Mary Tyler Moore Show. There it zoomed to fourth in the 1973–1974 seasonal ratings, and remained a Top Ten show for all but one of the next nine seasons.

At the end of the third season McLean Stevenson and Wayne Rogers left the show. Stevenson's character, Colonel Blake, was killed in a plane crash on the final episode of the 1974–1975 season. In the fall of 1975 two new regulars were added: Harry Morgan as Colonel Sherman Potter, the new commanding officer, a surprisingly tolerant career man (Morgan had previously guested on *M*A*S*H* as a demented general); and Mike Farrell as Captain B. J. Hunnicutt, Trapper's replacement, who turned out to be another gifted surgeon who loved practical jokes. At the end of the 1976–1977 season Major Houlihan, who had had a not-so-secret affair with Major Burns for the past five seasons, finally got married—to Lieutenant Colonel Donald Penobscot (played by Beeson Carroll), who was stationed at headquarters (they were later divorced). Larry Linville, who played Burns, left in 1977 and was succeeded by David Ogden Stiers as Major Charles Emerson Winchester, a stuffy but skillful Boston-bred surgeon. Gary Burghoff left at the beginning of the 1979–1980 season; his character, Radar, was succeeded as company clerk by Corporal Klinger (by this time, Klinger had resigned himself to staying in the Army; he no longer wore dresses in an effort to have himself classified as psychologically unfit).

Other regulars (in smaller roles) included: Allan Arbus as Dr. Sidney Freedman, a psychiatrist; Loudon Wainwright III (1974–1975) as Captain Calvin Spaulding; Kellye Nakahara as Lieutenant Kellye Nakahara, a nurse; Jeff Maxwell (1976–1983) as Igor Straminsky, the cook; Johnny Haymer (1977–1979) as Sergeant Zale; and G. W. Bailey (1980–1983) as Sergeant Luther Rizzo.

During its eleven seasons *M*A*S*H* was able to experiment in some of its episodes. Among the most memorable of these were a "documentary," filmed in black and white, in which an American television reporter (Clete Roberts) interviewed the crew; a "first person" story, in which the camera was a wounded soldier; and a "real time" episode, in which all the action took place in just thirty minutes. Alan Alda also became increasingly involved with the series, writing and directing a number of episodes (he is the only person to have won Emmys for acting, writing, and directing). He took over as the principal creative force after the departure of Gene Reynolds and Larry Gelbart, who had produced the show during its first few seasons; Burt Metcalfe produced the show during the latter seasons.

Wisely, the people behind *M*A*S*H* decided to end the series while it was still popular. The final first-run episode, a two-and-a-half-hour special titled "Goodbye, Farewell and Amen" (28 February 1983), was the most widely watched television program of all time. It posted a 60.3 rating and a 77 share (meaning that 77 percent of all people watching TV were tuned to *M*A*S*H*). In its eleven seasons and 251 episodes, *M*A*S*H* succeeded in depicting the horror and futility of war. CBS aired a series retrospective, "Memories of M*A*S*H," on 25 November 1991. See also AfterMASH.

M.A.S.K. SYNDICATED

1985 Another of the many cartoon sci-fi series based on toys, M.A.S.K. stood for Mobil Armored Strike Kommand, a line of action figures produced by Kenner Toys.

THE M & M CANDY CARNIVAL CBS

6 JANUARY 1952–28 JUNE 1953 Gene Crane hosted this Sunday-afternoon talent contest, broadcast from Philadelphia and sponsored by the manufacturers of M & M candy. In 1954 Crane returned as host of a similar program: see Contest Carnival.

M-G-M PARADE ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1955–2 MAY 1956 ABC, which had succeeded in persuading Disney and Warner Brothers to produce TV series by 1955 (see Warner Brothers Presents), also succeeded in landing a second major film studio—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. George Murphy hosted the half-hour series that presented clips from vintage films, biographies of stars, and previews of upcoming motion pictures.

M SQUAD NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1957–13 SEPTEMBER 1960 Half-hour crime show starring Lee Marvin (who also owned a 50 percent interest in the show) as Lieutenant Frank Ballinger, a Chicago plainclothesman assigned to M Squad, a unit that mainly investigated homicides. Paul Newlan was also featured as his superior, Captain Grey. Burt Reynolds played one of his first major TV roles in one episode, "The Teacher," aired 2 January 1959. The M Squad theme was composed by Count Basie.

MTV UNPLUGGED MTV

21 JANUARY 1990– A semi-regular musical series, MTV Unplugged gave rock artists the opportunity to perform before a small studio audience and without the tons of electronic equipment ordinarily required for a rock concert. Some artists performed using only acoustic equipment, while others appeared with stripped-down, low-wattage electric gear. The results were generally impressive, as the musicality of the performer was the focus of each event. Among the many artists featured on the show have been Paul McCartney, Eric Clapton, Sting, Mariah Carey, Nirvana, Elton John, Bruce Springsteen, Tony Bennett, and Hole. Jules Shear hosted the first few broadcasts.

M. V. P. SYNDICATED

1971 Sports-oriented talk show hosted by Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench, who was named the National League's M.V.P. (Most Valuable Player) in 1972.

THE MAC DAVIS SHOW NBC

11 JULY 1974–29 AUGUST 1974; 19 DECEMBER 1974–22 MAY 1975; 18 MARCH 1976–17 JUNE 1976 Singer Mac Davis hosted three hour variety shows. The first one was a summer replacement for The Flip Wilson Show; the second one was activated to replace Sierra late in 1974. Sandy Gallin was its executive producer, and Arnie Rosen and Bob Ellison produced it. Davis's third show appeared in the spring of the following season, with Gary Smith and Dwight Hemion as executive producers, and Mike Post and Steve Binder as producers. Regulars included mimes Shields and Yarnell, who later hosted their own variety series (see also Shields and Yarnell).

MacGRUDER AND LOUD ABC

20 JANUARY 1985–30 APRIL 1985; 11 JUNE 1985–3 SEPTEMBER 1985 Aaron Spelling and Douglas Cramer produced this hour crime show in which the two principal cops—MacGruder and Loud—were partners both on and off duty; unfortunately, marriage was against department policy, so MacGrudger and Loud tried to hide that fact. Featured were John Getz as Officer Malcolm MacGruder; Kathryn Harrold as Officer Jenny Loud; Ted Ross as Detective Don Debbin; Frank McCarthy as Sergeant Bob Myhrum; Lee De Broux as Sergeant Hansen; and Gail Grate as Naomi, Malcolm and Jenny's friend. The officers worked for an unnamed big city police force; their shoulder patches read "L.S.P.D." The series premiered on ABC immediately following the network's telecast of Super Bowl XIX before settling into a Tuesday night slot.

MacGYVER ABC

29 SEPTEMBER 1985–8 AUGUST 1992 Hour adventure series starring Richard Dean Anderson as MacGyver, a resourceful agent for the Phoenix Foundation, an organization that undertook various secret missions for the government and others. MacGyver carried no weapons, preferring to use whatever materials he had on hand to solve whatever problems he might encounter. Also on hand were Dana Elcar as Peter Thornton, his boss; Bruce McGill (1987–1989) as fellow agent Jack Dalton; and Elyssa Davalos (1987–1989) as lawyer Nikki Carpenter. The series was created by Henry Winkler and John Rich. In the pilot episode, MacGyver was referred to as "Stace" and "Bud" by his grandfather, but Winkler and Rich subsequently decided to omit any references to the character's first name until 1991, when it was revealed (during a dream) to be Angus. Production moved from Hollywood to Vancouver in the fall of 1987. By 1991 Elcar had begun to lose his sight because of glaucoma; his character, Peter Thornton, also began to suffer vision difficulties. Michael Des Barres appeared in a few later episodes as MacGyver's archenemy, Murdoc. Following the series's cancellation, MacGyver showed up in two 1994 TV-movies on ABC: "MacGyver: Lost Treasure of Atlantis" (14 May) and "MacGyver: Trail to Doomsday" (24 November).

THE MacKENZIES OF PARADISE COVE ABC

27 MARCH 1979–18 MAY 1979 Irregularly scheduled hour series about five orphans who hooked up with an adventurer in Hawaii. With Clu Gulager as Cuda Webber, the orphans' adopted guardian; Lory Walsh as Bridget MacKenzie; Shawn Stevens as Kevin MacKenzie, her twin brother; Sean Marshall as Michael MacKenzie; Randi Kiger as Celia MacKenzie; Keith Mitchell as Timothy MacKenzie; Harry Chang as Barney, a friend of Cuda's; Moe Keale as Big Ben, another pal of Cuda's. Jerry Thorpe and William Blinn were the producers.

MACKENZIE'S RAIDERS SYNDICATED
1958 Half-hour western starring Richard Carlson as Colonel Ranald Mackenzie, a cavalry officer who headed an outfit that operated along the Mexican border during the 1870s.

THE MacNEIL-LEHRER REPORT PBS
5 JANUARY 1976–2 SEPTEMBER 1983
THE MacNEIL-LEHRER NEWSHOUR PBS
5 SEPTEMBER 1983– PBS's nightly news analysis series began in 1975 as The Robert MacNeil Report, a local program in New York. Its host was Robert MacNeil, a native Canadian who had worked for CBC (the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation), BBC, NBC, and the Reuters News Agency. In the fall of 1976 MacNeil was joined by Jim Lehrer, who had worked as a reporter at the PBS station in Dallas (MacNeil and Lehrer had previously teamed up to cover the 1973 Senate Watergate hearings for PBS). The MacNeil-Lehrer Report covered a single topic each night and was widely praised for its depth and objectivity. The half-hour program was televised each weeknight; MacNeil was based in New York, Lehrer in Washington. Early in 1978 Charlayne Hunter-Gault was added as a third reporter, and former NBC newswoman Judy Woodruff joined the staff in August 1983.

In the fall of 1983 the program was expanded to an hour and was transformed into a newscast, TV's first regularly scheduled daily hour news show. A fifth correspondent was added at that time: Kwame Holman, who reported from Denver. By the end of the decade, Holman had left and Hunter-Gault had become chiefly a field reporter. Woodruff was the principal backup anchor, and Roger Mudd also appeared regularly. By the mid-1990s Woodruff and Mudd had departed, and Hunter-Gault remained as national correspondent; a number of other reporters were regular contributors. In early 1995 Robert MacNeil announced his decision to retire later in the year. Following his departure in October 1995, the program carried on as The Newshour with Jim Lehrer.

MAD ABOUT YOU NBC
23 SEPTEMBER 1992– Standup comic Paul Reiser was co-creator, co-executive producer (with Danny Jacobson), and costar of this sitcom about a young married couple. Reiser played Paul Buchman, and Helen Hunt played his wife, Jamie Buchman. As the series got underway, Paul and Jamie were newlyweds living in a downtown Manhattan apartment with their dog, Murray; Paul was a documentary filmmaker who later went to work for a cable television network, Jamie a public relations executive (she later quit her job, went back to school, and worked freelance before opening her own firm). A large cast of regulars and semiregulars were also on hand, including Tommy Hinkley (1992–1993) as Paul's friend Selby; Anne Ramsay as Jamie's younger sister, Lisa; Leila Kenzle as Jamie's friend and later business partner Fran; Richard Kind (1992–1993) as Fran's husband (and subsequent ex-husband) Mark; John Pankow as Paul's divorced cousin Ira, who ran the family sporting goods store; Jerry Adler as Wicker, the building superintendent; Judy Geeson as Maggie Conway, the Buchmans' snooty British neighbor; Paxton Whitehead and Jim Piddock as Maggie's husband, Hal; Nancy Dussault and Penny Fuller as Jamie's mother, Theresa; Paul Dooley and John Karlen as Jamie's father; Louis Zorich as Paul's father, Burt; Cynthia Harris as Paul's mother, Sylvia; Lisa Kudrow (1993– ) as Ursula, the ditzy waitress at the Buchmans' favorite restaurant (in 1994 Kudrow became a regular on NBC's new sitcom, Friends; her character was Ursula's twin sister); Steven Wright (1993) as Warren, Paul's laconic camera operator; Anne Bobby (1994– ) as Jamie's childhood pal, Susannah; and Meg Wyllie as Aunt Lolly. The series finished in a mediocre 59th place after its first season, but was renewed.

During its second season it rose to a respectable 31st place finish, and achieved genuine hit status during its third season, finishing in eleventh place.

MAD MOVIES WITH THE L.A. CONNECTION SYNDICATED

1985 Old movies and TV shows were shown with a twist on this comedy series—new dialogue was dubbed by the L.A. Connection, a comedy troupe. A similar format had been attempted in 1963: see Fractured Flickers.

MAD TV FOX

14 OCTOBER 1995– An hour comedy sketch show inspired by Mad magazine and broadcast at 11 P.M. on Saturdays to compete with NBC's Saturday Night Live. The series' cast included Bryan Callan, David Herman, Orlando Jones, Phil Lamarr, Artie Lange, Mary Scheer, Nicole Sullivan, and Debra Wilson. In addition to the sketches, the show featured animated segments based on Mad's venerable Don Martin and "Spy vs. Spy" cartoons.

MADAME'S PLACE SYNDICATED

1982 Wayland Flowers's garrulous puppet, Madame, headlined this half-hour comedy series. The puppet played herself, the host of a TV talk show. The human regulars included Johnny Haymer (as Madame's butler, Walter Pinkerton), Judy Landers (as her niece, Sara Joy), and Susan Tolsky.

MADE IN AMERICA CBS

5 APRIL 1964–3 MAY 1964 Robert Maxwell hosted this prime-time game show on which a celebrity panel tried to figure out the identities of guests, all of whom were self-made millionaires. The short-lived series replaced half of The Judy Garland Show and was in turn replaced by reruns of Brenner.

MADIGAN NBC

20 SEPTEMBER 1972–22 AUGUST 1973 This ninety-minute crime show was one segment of The NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie and alternated with Banacek and Cool Million. It starred Richard Widmark, a major film star whose television appearances have been extremely infrequent, as Sergeant Dan Madigan, a typically tough New York cop. Dean Hargrove and Roland Kibbee produced the series for Universal Television.

MADMAN OF THE PEOPLE NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1994–26 JANUARY 1995; 10 JUNE 1995–24 JUNE 1995 Dabney Coleman, who had played irascible characters in previous short-lived sitcoms such as Buffalo Bill, The 'Slap' Maxwell Story, and Drexell's Class, did it again in this one. Here he played irascible Jack "Madman" Buckner, the outspoken columnist for Your Times magazine, whose daughter was named the magazine's new publisher. Joining him were Cynthia Gibb as Meg, his daughter and new boss; Concetta Tomei as Delia, his wife; John Ales as Dylan, his lazy son; Ashley Gardner as Caroline, Jack and Delia's other daughter; and Robert Pierce as Caroline's husband, Kenny, who ran a kennel. Added during the season were Craig Bierko as B. J., a reporter for the magazine who became Meg's boyfriend, and Amy Aquino as Sasha, Jack's assistant. Madman of the People was the highest-rated show of the 1994–1995 season to be canceled; although it ranked twelfth for the season, its performance was considered a disappointment because it had been scheduled in a highly favorable time slot on Thursdays.

MAGGIE ABC

24 OCTOBER 1981–14 NOVEMBER 1981; 30 APRIL 1982–21 MAY 1982 Syndicated columnist Erma Bombeck created this sitcom about domestic life. Featured were Miriam Flynn as housewife Maggie Weston; James Hampton as her husband, Len Weston; Billy Jacoby as their twelve-year-old son, Mark; Christian Jacobs as their eight-year-old son, Bruce (the Westons also had a sixteen-year-old son, L. J., who was never seen); Doris Roberts as Maggie's friend and neighbor, Loretta, a beautician; Margaret Impert as her friend, Chris, a manicurist; and Judith-Marie Bergan as insufferable Buffy Croft, a realtor. Maggie was the first new show of the 1981–1982 season to leave the air, although it returned five months later for a short run.

MAGGIE AND THE BEAUTIFUL MACHINE PBS

1972–1975 Half-hour exercise program hosted by Maggie Lettwin. The show was seen locally on WGBH-TV, Boston, for three seasons before going network in 1972.

MAGGIE BRIGGS CBS

4 MARCH 1984–15 APRIL 1984 Suzanne Pleshette had star billing in this half-hour sitcom, the full title of which was Suzanne Pleshette Is Maggie Briggs. Pleshette played a veteran newspaperwoman for the New York Examiner who was suddenly forced to write for the paper's new "Modern Living" section. Also on hand were Kenneth McMillan as Maggie's crony, Walter Holden; John Getz as Geoff Bennett, the new editor of the Modern Living section; Stephen Lee as food critic Sherman Milslagle; and Shera Danese as Maggie's best friend, Connie Piscopoli, a lingerie model.

MAGGI'S PRIVATE WIRE NBC

MAGIC CIRCUS SYNDICATED

1972 An hour of magic, sponsored by Pillsbury, starring Mark Wilson, Nani Darnell, and Rebo the Clown. The trio had previously been featured on Wilson's network magic show, The Magic Land of Allakazam.

THE MAGIC CLOWN NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1949–27 JUNE 1954 This fifteen-minute kids' show was seen on Sunday mornings and starred a magician known as Zovella. The series was written and produced by Al Garry.

THE MAGIC COTTAGE DUMONT

18 JULY 1949–12 SEPTEMBER 1952 Pat Meikle hosted this Monday-through-Friday kids' show.

THE MAGIC EYE SYNDICATED

1959 Scientific topics were explored on this educational show for children.

THE MAGIC LAND OF ALLAKAZAM CBS/ABC

1 OCTOBER 1960–22 SEPTEMBER 1962 (CBS); 29 SEPTEMBER 1962–28 DECEMBER 1963 (ABC); 25 APRIL 1964–12 DECEMBER 1964 (ABC) Magician Mark Wilson hosted this Saturday kids' show, which blended magic tricks and illusions with a fantasy story line. Wilson's wife, Nani Darnell, and their son Mike, who was seven when the show began, were also featured, as were Rebo the Clown (played by Bev Bergeron) and the King of Allakazam (played by Bob Towner). Wilson himself was the executive producer of the series, and Dan Whitman was its producer. Many of the principals later appeared in Wilson's 1972 syndicated show, Magic Circus.

MAGIC MIDWAY NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1962–16 MARCH 1963 Claude Kirchner, who had hosted Super Circus for several years during the 1950s, returned as ringmaster of this Saturday-morning circus show for children. Also featured were Bonnie Lee and Lou Stein. The show was sponsored by Marx Toys.

THE MAGIC OF MARK WILSON SYNDICATED

1978 Half-hour magic show, with illusionist Mark Wilson (formerly host of The Magic Land of Allakazam), Nani Darnell, and Greg Wilson, Mark's son.

THE MAGIC RANCH ABC

30 SEPTEMBER 1961–17 DECEMBER 1961 Don Alan hosted this Saturday-morning kids' show, which was set at a dude ranch. Alan's guests included not only professional magicians, but also talented junior illusionists. George B. Anderson produced the series that was telecast from Chicago.

THE MAGIC SCHOOL BUS PBS

11 SEPTEMBER 1994– The first fully animated series produced by PBS, The Magic School Bus was based on the books written by Joanna Cole and illustrated by Bruce Degen. Each week on the show, an elementary school science teacher, Ms. Frizzle, led her class aboard the Magic School Bus. The vehicle could miniaturize, enabling Ms. Frizzle to show her class the world of nature and science from a different perspective. Lily Tomlin provided the voice of Ms. Frizzle, and Little Richard performed the series theme song.

THE MAGIC SLATE NBC

2 JUNE 1950–25 AUGUST 1950; 21 JANUARY 1951–24 JUNE 1951 Plays for children were presented on this half-hour series shown on alternate Fridays in 1950, and alternate Sunday afternoons in 1951.

THE MAGICIAN NBC

2 OCTOBER 1973–20 MAY 1974 Bill Bixby starred in this nonviolent crime show as Anthony Blake, a wealthy nightclub magician who used his talents offstage to solve crimes. Also featured were Keene Curtis as Max Pomeroy, his manager; Todd Crespi as Dennis, Max's young son; and Jim Watkins as Jerry Anderson, pilot of Blake's full-size jet plane. Bixby, who performed his own tricks on the show, was coached by illusionist Mark Wilson (star of The Magic Land of Allakazam). The series was produced by Paramount TV.

THE MAGILLA GORILLA SHOW SYNDICATED/ABC

1964–1965 (SYNDICATED); 1 JANUARY 1966–2 SEPTEMBER 1967 (ABC) Principal characters on this half-hour cartoon show from Hanna-Barbera Productions were Magilla Gorilla, an enormous ape who lived in Peebles' Pet Shop, Mr. Peebles, and Ogee, a little girl. Additional segments included "Ricochet Rabbit and Droopalong Coyote," "Mushmouse and Punkin' Puss," and "Breezly and Sneezly," a polar bear and seal duo.

MAGNAVOX THEATER CBS

15 SEPTEMBER 1950–15 DECEMBER 1950 Friday-night hour-long dramatic anthology series.

THE MAGNIFICENT MARBLE MACHINE NBC

7 JULY 1975–11 JUNE 1976 A daytime game show that tried to capitalize on the pinball-machine craze. Art James hosted the show on which celebrity-and-contestant pairs played a word game with the winning pair earning the opportunity to play a giant pinball machine for prizes. In January 1976 the format was changed to include only celebrity players. Robert Noah was executive producer of the series for Heatter-Quigley Productions.

MAGNUM, P.I. CBS

11 DECEMBER 1980–12 SEPTEMBER 1988 This hour crime show starred rugged Tom Selleck as Thomas Sullivan Magnum, a Vietnam veteran who left the Navy and became a private investigator in Hawaii; hired by a wealthy mystery writer, Robin Masters, to test the security systems at Masters's estate, Magnum gained entry to the property and was rewarded by being invited to live in the guest house (Masters himself was seldom at home and never seen on camera; Orson Welles supplied Masters's voice from 1981 to 1985). Other cast members included Jonathan Hillerman as Masters's stuffy major domo, Jonathan Quayle Higgins III, a former sergeant major in the British Army who barely tolerated Magnum's presence and his informal style and who tended Masters's two Dobermans, Zeus and Apollo; Roger E. Mosley as Magnum's Navy buddy, T. C. (the initials stood for Theodore Calvin), who now ran a helicopter charter service, Island Hoppers; and Larry Manetti as another Navy buddy, Orville "Rick" Wright, proprietor of the King Kamehameha Club. Occasionally featured over the years were Jeff MacKay as Navy buddy Mac Reynolds; Gillian Dobb (1982–1988) as Agatha Chumley, a British woman who was wild about Higgins; Jean Bruce Scott (1982–1984; 1986–1988) as Navy Lieutenant Maggie Poole; Kwan Hi Lim as police lieutenant Tanaka; Kathleen Lloyd (1983–1988) as assistant district attorney Carol Baldwin; and Elisha Cook, Jr., as "Ice Pick," a shady character.

At the end of the 1986–1987 season Magnum was shot, apparently killed, and ascended into heaven. To the producers' surprise, the series was renewed for an eighth season, so it was explained in the fall 1987 opener that Magnum had only dreamed his demise. A final "finale" was telecast 1 May 1988, in which Magnum decided to rejoin the Navy and it was suggested that Higgins was really Robin Masters.

Although the series was able to land many guest stars, including Frank Sinatra (who played a retired New York cop in a February 1987 episode), it was never able to land Jack Lord, who had starred in Hawaii Five-O for twelve years (and whose character, Steve McGarrett, was often referred to on the show).

Magnum's powerful hard-rock musical theme, used in all but the earliest episodes, was composed by Mike Post and Pete Carpenter.

THE MAIL STORY ABC

7 OCTOBER 1954–30 DECEMBER 1954 Half-hour dramatic anthology series about the United States Post Office. Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield introduced the premiere telecast. The show was also seen under the title Handle with Care.

THE MAIN EVENT SYNDICATED

1961 Former heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano introduced film clips of classic fights and interviewed boxing greats on this half-hour sports series.

MAJOR ADAMS

See WAGON TRAIN

MAJOR DAD CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1989–13 SEPTEMBER 1993 Half-hour sitcom about a widowed liberal reporter from a small-town paper who interviewed a gung-ho, spit-and-polish Marine, and married him. With Gerald McRaney as the Marine, Major J. D. "Mac" MacGillis; Shanna Reed as the reporter, Polly Cooper; Marisa Ryan as her daughter Elizabeth, thirteen; Nicole Dubuc as daughter Robin, eleven; Chelsea Hertford as daughter Casey, six; Matt Mulhern as Lieutenant Gene Holowachuk, Mac's aide; Marlon Archey (1989–1990) as Sergeant Byron James; and Whitney Kershaw (1989–1990) as Mac's secretary, Merilee. In the fall of 1990 Mac and family moved to a new post, Camp Hollister in Virginia, where Mac became staff secretary to General Marcus Craig (played by Jon Cypher). Also added to the cast were Beverly Archer as Gunnery Sergeant Alva "Gunny" Bricker; and Chance Michael Corbitt as the general's grandson, Jeffrey. Vice President Dan Quayle appeared in a November 1990 episode commemorating the 215th anniversary of the Marine Corps. The series took note of the events in the Persian Gulf during its second season; the episode of 4 February 1991 involved Mac's request for a transfer to Saudi Arabia after he learned of the outbreak of war.

MAJOR DEL CONWAY OF THE FLYING TIGERS DUMONT

14 APRIL 1951–26 MAY 1951; 29 JULY 1951–2 MARCH 1952 Eric Fleming first starred as Major Del Conway, an American agent whose cover was that of a pilot for the Flying Tigers Airline. When the show returned in July 1951, Ed Peck was the new Major Conway. Bern Hoffman was also featured in the half-hour series. In real life, the Flying Tigers Airline was a cargo airline founded by General Claire L. Chennault during the late 1940s.

MAJORITY RULES ABC

2 SEPTEMBER 1949–30 JULY 1950 Hosted by Ed Prentiss, this prime-time game show featured a panel of three contestants. When the panel was asked a question, at least two panelists had to agree on an answer.

MAKE A FACE ABC

2 OCTOBER 1961–30 MARCH 1962; 29 SEPTEMBER 1962–22 DECEMBER 1962 Bob Clayton hosted this game show on which contestants were required to assemble pictures of famous persons; the pictures had been cut up and placed on moving belts in front of the contestants. Art Baer produced the series, which was first seen Mondays through Fridays; in the fall of 1962 a children's version was seen Saturdays.

MAKE A WISH ABC

12 SEPTEMBER 1971–5 SEPTEMBER 1976 Tom Chapin hosted this highly acclaimed Sunday-morning educational series for children. During the early seasons two themes were explored each week through songs, films, and interviews. During the final season the nation's bicentennial observance was emphasized, and songs were provided by Harry Chapin (Tom's brother). Lester Cooper was the executive producer, director, and head writer of the series.

MAKE ME LAUGH ABC/SYNDICATED

20 MARCH 1958–12 JUNE 1958 (ABC); 1979 (SYNDICATED) Robert Q. Lewis hosted the network version of this unusual game show on which contestants earned money by keeping a straight face. Each week three comedians were on hand, each of whom was given one minute to try to break up the contestant; a contestant won one dollar for each second of non-smiling. Johnny Stearns produced and directed the prime-time series, and Renny Peterson escorted the contestants. TV Guide reported in 1958 that some comedians were reluctant to appear on the show because they felt their popularity might suffer if the contestants succeeded in remaining stonefaced. Twenty-one years later a syndicated version of Make Me Laugh surfaced, with Bobby Van as host.

MAKE MINE MUSIC CBS

13 DECEMBER 1948–19 MAY 1949 Carole Coleman, Bill Skipper, and Larry Douglas were featured on this fifteen-minute musical show, which was seen after the network news on certain weeknights.

MAKE ROOM FOR DADDY (THE DANNY THOMAS SHOW) ABC/CBS

29 SEPTEMBER 1953–18 JULY 1957 (ABC); 7 OCTOBER 1957–14 SEPTEMBER 1964 (CBS) One of the few situation comedies to last more than a decade, Make Room for Daddy starred Danny Thomas, a nightclub singer and comedian, as Danny Williams, a nightclub singer and comedian. During the show's first three seasons, Danny was married and had two children. Jean Hagen played his wife, Margaret, with Sherry Jackson as eleven-year-old Terry and Rusty Hamer as seven-year-old Rusty. Also featured were Amanda Randolph as Louise, the housekeeper; Horace McMahon (1953–1954) as Danny's agent, Phil Arnold; Jesse White (1954–1957) as his agent, Jesse Leeds; Sid Melton as Charlie Halper, owner of the Copa Club; Ben Lessy as Ben, Danny's pianist; Mary Wickes as Liz O'Neal, Danny's publicist; Hans Conried as Uncle Tonoose, Danny's wacky Lebanese relation; and Nan Bryant (1955–1956) as Danny's mother-in-law. Jean Hagen left the series at the end of the 1955–1956 season, and in the fall of 1956 the title was changed to The Danny Thomas Show. Danny was a widower during the 1956–1957 season, but in the spring of 1957 Marjorie Lord was introduced as Kathy O'Hara, a widowed nurse who came to take care of Rusty when he contracted the measles; Danny and Kathy were married at the end of the season. Lelani Sorenson was also introduced as Patty, Kathy's six-year-old daughter. When the show switched networks in the fall of 1957, Angela Cartwright had been added as Kathy's daughter Linda, replacing Lelani Sorenson. Also joining the cast were Sheldon Leonard as Phil Arnold, Danny's agent; Pat Harrington, Jr., as Pat Hannigan, Terry's boyfriend and eventual husband; and Pat Carroll (1961–1964) as

Bunny Halper, Charlie's wife. In 1960 Penney Parker replaced Sherry Jackson as daughter Terry. Many of the principals were reunited in two specials aired in 1967 and 1969, and in 1970 the crew reappeared in a new sitcom: see Make Room for Granddaddy. The show's original title, Make Room for Daddy, was inspired by the actual goings-on in Danny Thomas's household. As explained in a 1954 TV Guide feature, whenever Thomas was on the road, one of his daughters (Margaret, later known as Marlo, or Teresa) moved in to the master bedroom with his wife, Rosemary. When he came back home, Rosemary reminded the girl to leave, explaining that "We must make room for daddy."

MAKE ROOM FOR GRANDDADDY — ABC

23 SEPTEMBER 1970–2 SEPTEMBER 1971 A sequel to Make Room for Daddy, this half-hour sitcom again featured Danny Thomas as Danny Williams, who had become a grandfather sometime between the two series. Many of the old Make Room for Daddy troupe were also on hand: Marjorie Lord as Danny's wife, Kathy; Rusty Hamer as Rusty, now a med student; Angela Cartwright as Linda, now at boarding school; Sid Melton as Charlie Halper, now Danny's agent; and Hans Conried as the still-wacky Uncle Tonoose. Sherry Jackson was seen in the premiere episode as Danny's older daughter, Terry Johnson, who wanted to leave her young son with Danny and Kathy while she visited her serviceman-husband in Japan. Other regulars included Michael Hughes as Michael, Terry's son; Rosey Grier as Rosey Robbins, Danny's pianist; and Stanley Myron Handelman as Henry, the elevator operator in Danny's apartment building. Jana Taylor was occasionally featured as Rusty's wife, Susan. Richard Crenna, former star of The Real McCoys, produced the show.

MAKE THAT SPARE — ABC

15 OCTOBER 1960–11 SEPTEMBER 1964 A bowling series of variable length, Make That Spare was seen immediately following The Fight of the Week; Make That Spare filled out the hour time slot and began whenever the boxing match ended. Johnny Johnston hosted the series except during the 1961–1962 season, when Win Elliott took over. After a twenty-four-year hiatus, Make That Spare returned to ABC for a one-shot telecast on 12 March 1988, with Chris Schenkel and Nelson Burton, Jr., immediately preceding the network's long-running Saturday afternoon Pro Bowlers' Tour.

MAKE THE CONNECTION — NBC

7 JULY 1955–29 SEPTEMBER 1955 Mark Goodson and Bill Todman produced this prime-time game show on which a celebrity panel tried to figure out how the lives of two contestants had crossed. Jim McKay, in his first network appearance, hosted the series in its early weeks; he was succeeded by Gene Rayburn. The celebrity panelists were Betty White, Gene Glavan, Eddie Bracken, and a guest celebrity.

MAKE YOUR OWN KIND OF MUSIC — NBC

20 JULY 1971–7 SEPTEMBER 1971 This summer variety hour was hosted by the Carpenters—sister Karen and brother Richard—and also featured trumpeter Al Hirt, singer Mark Lindsay (formerly of Paul Revere and the Raiders), comics (Tom) Patchett and (Jay) Tarses (who later became the executive producers of The Bob Newhart Show) and the New Doodletown Pipers.

MAKIN' IT — ABC

1 FEBRUARY 1979–16 MARCH 1979 Half-hour sitcom with a disco flavor, set in Passaic, New Jersey. With David Naughton as college student Billy Manucci; Greg Antonacci as his older brother, Tony Manucci, star dancer at the Inferno, Passaic's hottest disco; Ellen Travolta as their mother, Dorothy Manucci; Lou Antonio as their father, Joseph Manucci; Denise Miller as their younger sister, Tina Manucci; Rebecca Balding as Corky Crandall, Billy's girlfriend, a receptionist at the William Morris Agency; Ralph Seymour as Billy's pal, Kingfish; Gary Prendergast as Billy's pal, Bernard; Wendy Hoffman as Suzanne, Bernard's girlfriend; Diane Robin as Felice, Kingfish's girlfriend; and Jennifer Perrito as Ivy, a waitress at the ice cream store where Billy worked part time. The show was created by Mark Rothman, Lowell Ganz and Garry Marshall.

MAKING A LIVING
See IT'S A LIVING

THE MAKING OF A CONTINENT PBS
3 NOVEMBER 1986–8 DECEMBER 1986 A six-part study of North American geology. The series grew out of a two-part documentary broadcast in November 1983.

MAKING THE GRADE CBS
5 APRIL 1982–10 MAY 1982 Half-hour sitcom set at Franklin High School in St. Louis. With James Naughton as Harry Barnes, the compassionate dean of boys; Graham Jarvis as bureaucrat Jack Felspar, the assistant principal; Steven Peterman as Jeffrey Kelton, a new substitute teacher; George Wendt as gym teacher Gus Bertoya; Alley Mills as Sara, the drama teacher; Philip Charles MacKenzie as chemistry teacher Dave Wasserman; and Zane Lasky as Anton Zemetkis. Gary David Goldberg created the series and was its executive producer.

MAKING THINGS GROW PBS
1970–1975 Half-hour series for indoor and outdoor gardeners, hosted by Thalassa Cruso and produced at WGBH-TV, Boston.

MALIBU RUN CBS
1 MARCH 1961–27 SEPTEMBER 1961 Produced by Ivan Tors, Malibu Run was a revamped version of The Aquanauts. It starred Jeremy Slate as Larry Lahr and Ron Ely as Mike Madison; both had been featured in The Aquanauts, but on Malibu Run they seemed to spend a little more time on land trying to solve crimes.

MALIBU U. ABC
21 JULY 1967–1 SEPTEMBER 1967 Rick Nelson hosted this half-hour summer musical series; Nelson was the "dean" of a "college" located on the beach at Malibu. Other regulars included Australian singer Robie Porter and the Bob Banas Dancers.

MAMA CBS
1 JULY 1949–27 JULY 1956; 16 DECEMBER 1956–17 MARCH 1957 One of TV's first popular sitcoms, Mama was based on John Van Druten's play, I Remember Mama, which was in turn derived from Kathryn Forbes's book, Mama's Bank Account. The series told the story of the Hansens, a closely knit Norwegian family living on San Francisco's Steiner Street in 1917. Featured were Peggy Wood as Marta (Mama) Hansen; Judson Laire as Lars (Papa) Hansen, a carpenter; Rosemary Rice as elder daughter Katrin, whose off-screen voice introduced each episode; Dick Van Patten as son Nels; Iris Mann (1949–1950) and Robin Morgan (1950–1956) as younger daughter Dagmar; Ruth Gates as Aunt Jenny, Mama's older sister; Malcolm Keen as Uncle Chris; Carl Frank as Uncle Gunnar; Alice Frost as Aunt Trina, Mama's younger sister; Patty McCormack (1953–1956) as Ingeborg; and Kevin Coughlin (1954–1957) as T. R. Ryan. From 1949 through the summer of 1956, the show was done live. After its cancellation in 1956, public demand prompted CBS to revive the series that winter. The second version was filmed and lasted only thirteen weeks. By that time daughter Katrin had become a secretary, and son Nels had become a medical student. Toni Campbell joined the cast as daughter Dagmar, replacing Robin Morgan (who had been featured on The Quiz Kids and later became active in the women's movement). The half-hour series was originally produced and directed by Ralph Nelson and was later produced by Carol Irwin.

MAMA MALONE CBS
7 MARCH 1984–21 JULY 1984 Originally produced for the 1982–1983 season, Mama Malone remained on the CBS shelf for a year and a half. The half-hour sitcom starred Lila Kaye as Renata Malone, the Italian widow of an Irish cop who hosted a cooking show over cable TV from her Brooklyn apartment. Also featured were Randee Heller as her daughter, Connie Karamacopolous, a waitress; Evan Richards as Frankie, Connie's son; Don Amendolia as Mama's brother, Dino Forresti, a lounge singer; Richard Yñiguez as Father Jose Silva, the new local priest; Ralph Manza as Padre Guardino, the old priest; Sam Anderson as Stanley; and Raymond Singer as the floor director of the cooking show.

MAMA'S BOY NBC

19 SEPTEMBER 1987–6 AUGUST 1988 Mama's Boy, together with Beverly Hills Buntz, was intended by NBC as a "designated hitter" series, to be shown once a month until a suitable place emerged for it on the network's schedule. The show's premiere telecast ranked fourth for the week, but network executives were not impressed with previews of the next five episodes. The series' cancellation was announced in October, and the remaining programs were aired sporadically during the remainder of the season. Bruce Weitz (late of Hill Street Blues) starred as Manhattan newspaper columnist Jake McCaskey, whose widowed mother moved in with him. Nancy Walker played his meddlesome mom, Molly, and Dan Hedaya was Jake's friend Mickey.

MAMA'S FAMILY NBC

22 JANUARY 1983–4 JUNE 1983; 11 AUGUST 1983–15 SEPTEMBER 1984; 1 JUNE 1985–17 AUGUST 1985 (NBC); 1986–1990 (SYNDICATED) This half-hour sitcom was essentially an expanded version of the sketches that had been regularly featured on The Carol Burnett Show in the mid-1970s. Set in the Southern hamlet of Raytown, it starred Vicki Lawrence (who was in her early thirties) as Thelma Harper, a cantankerous, crotchety old lady who always found something to complain about. Also featured were Ken Berry as her son, Vint, a recently divorced locksmith who moved back in with her; Eric Brown as Vint's teenage son, Buzz; Karin Argoud as Vint's teenage daughter, Sonia; Dorothy Lyman as their neighbor, Naomi Oates, who fell for Vint and later married him; Rue McClanahan as Thelma's sister, Fran, who wrote for the Raytown paper; Betty White as Ellen, Thelma's daughter; and Harvey Korman as urbane Alistair Quince, who introduced each episode. Korman also appeared occasionally as Ed, Thelma's long-suffering son-in-law, and Carol Burnett sometimes appeared as Ed's wife (and Thelma's daughter), Eunice. The series returned in syndication in 1986, with Lawrence, Lyman, and Berry from the old cast. Two new regulars were added: Alan Payser as Bubba Higgins, son of Ed and Eunice, who moved in with Thelma; and Beverly Archer as next-door neighbor Iola Boylen, who lusted for Vint.

MAN AGAINST CRIME CBS/DUMONT/NBC

7 OCTOBER 1949–2 OCTOBER 1953 (CBS); 11 OCTOBER 1953–4 APRIL 1954 (DUMONT); 18 OCTOBER 1953–4 JULY 1954 (NBC); 1 JULY 1956–26 AUGUST 1956 (NBC) Ralph Bellamy originally starred in this half-hour crime show as Mike Barnett, a New York City private eye who didn't use a gun. When Bellamy took a vacation during the summer of 1951, Robert Preston filled in for him, playing Mike's brother, Pat. During the 1953–1954 season both NBC and DuMont carried the series. In 1956 NBC briefly revived the series as a live summer replacement for The Loretta Young Show. This version starred Frank Lovejoy as Mike Barnett, who was no longer unarmed. The Bellamy episodes were widely syndicated under the title Follow That Man. Larry Klee created the series.

THE MAN AND THE CHALLENGE NBC

12 SEPTEMBER 1959–3 SEPTEMBER 1960 Ivan Tors produced this half-hour adventure series, starring George Nader as Dr. Glenn Barton, a research scientist for the Institute of Human Factors, an agency that conducted experiments designed to measure human endurance.

THE MAN AND THE CITY ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1971–5 JANUARY 1972 An unsuccessful hour-long dramatic series that starred Anthony Quinn as Thomas Jefferson Alcala, a widower, mayor of a Southwestern city. Also featured were Mike Farrell as Andy Hays, his aide, and Mala Powers as Marian Crane, his secretary. The show was produced by Universal TV.

THE MAN BEHIND THE BADGE CBS/SYNDICATED

11 OCTOBER 1953–3 OCTOBER 1954 (CBS); 1955 (SYNDICATED) The stories on this half-hour anthology series were based on the exploits of real-life law enforcement officers. The CBS version, hosted by Norman Rose, was broadcast live. Another thirty-nine episodes were produced on film in 1955 for first-run syndication, with Charles Bickford hosting. Jerry Robinson was the producer.

A MAN CALLED HAWK ABC

28 JANUARY 1989–6 MAY 1989; 1 JULY 1989–31 AUGUST 1989 In this violent hour crime show, spun off from Spenser: For Hire, Avery Brooks starred as Spenser's mysterious associate, Hawk, who moved from Boston back to his hometown, Washington, D.C., where he became a one-man truth-and-justice squad. Moses Gunn was occasionally featured as Old Man, a streetwise acquaintance of Hawk's.

A MAN CALLED SHENANDOAH ABC

13 SEPTEMBER 1965–5 SEPTEMBER 1966 Robert Horton starred in this half-hour western as an amnesiac who called himself Shenandoah. Nursed back to health after having been shot, Shenandoah wandered around the West trying to get his head together. E. Jack Neuman created the series and was its executive producer; Fred Freiberger produced it for M-G-M TV.

A MAN CALLED SLOANE NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1979–22 DECEMBER 1979 Hour adventure series starring Robert Conrad as counterintelligence agent Thomas Remington Sloane III, an employee of UNIT. With Ji-Tu Cumbuka as his aide, Torque, who was conveniently equipped with a metal right hand; Dan O'Herlihy as The Director; Karen Purcill as Kelly, another UNIT employee; and Michele Carey as the voice of Effie, the UNIT computer. Cliff Gould created the show for QM Productions.

THE MAN CALLED X SYNDICATED

1956 Barry Sullivan starred as Ken Thurston, a globe-trotting United States intelligence agent whose code name was "X." The series, which began on radio in 1944, was produced and directed by Eddie Davis. Ladislas Farago, a real-life intelligence agent and successful author, was technical supervisor.

THE MAN FROM ATLANTIS NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1977–2 MAY 1978 Apparently undaunted by the failure of The Invisible Man in 1975 and the failure of Gemini Man in 1976, NBC made a third attempt to introduce an hour-long adventure series featuring a man with super-human powers; like its predecessors, The Man from Atlantis sank in midseason, though it resurfaced briefly later in 1978. It starred Patrick Duffy as Mark Harris, an unusual fellow who was apparently a survivor of the lost continent of Atlantis. Equipped with webbed hands and feet, and with the ability to breathe underwater, Harris worked with the Foundation for Oceanic Research. Also featured were Belinda J. Montgomery as Dr. Elizabeth Merrill, a Foundation scientist; Alan Fudge as C. W. Crawford, another Foundation employee; and Victor Buono as Mr. Schubert, the archvillain whose schemes were thwarted by Harris. As Harris, Patrick Duffy wore latex webbing and full-eye green contact lenses in order to look authentically Atlantean. Herbert F. Solow was the executive producer of the series, and Herman Miller the producer. After its undistinguished network run in this country, The Man from Atlantis became the first American television series to be purchased by the People's Republic of China.

THE MAN FROM BLACKHAWK ABC

9 OCTOBER 1959–23 SEPTEMBER 1960 Robert Rockwell (formerly of Our Miss Brooks) starred in this half-hour western as Sam Logan, an investigator for the Blackhawk Insurance Company, which was headquartered in Chicago.

MAN FROM INTERPOL NBC

30 JANUARY 1960–22 OCTOBER 1960 Filmed in Europe, this half-hour crime show starred Richard Wyler as Anthony Smith, a special agent assigned to Interpol, the international police organization. John Longden was also featured as Superintendent Mercer. Edward and Harry Danziger produced the series, which was a midseason replacement for It Could Be You.

THE MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E. NBC

22 SEPTEMBER 1964–15 JANUARY 1968 This lighthearted hour-long spy show was inspired by the James Bond stories. Bond's creator, Ian Fleming, had been consulted by Norman Felton, the series' executive producer, and had agreed to let Felton use the name of a character who had appeared in Goldfinger (Fleming had little else to do with the show, as he died of a heart attack in 1964). The character, Napoleon Solo, was an underworld chieftain who had been killed off in the book, but on television Solo was a stalwart secret agent. Robert Vaughn starred as Napoleon Solo, and David McCallum costarred as his partner, Illya Kuryakin; Leo G. Carroll rounded out the cast as Alexander Waverly, head of U.N.C.L.E. (the United Network Command for Law and Enforcement), an international crime-fighting organization based in New York. Most of the episodes were titled "The ——— Affair," and the recurring theme of the stories was that the U.N.C.L.E. agents required the help of an ordinary citizen each week. A spinoff, The Girl from U.N.C.L.E., was introduced in 1966 and lasted one season (see also that title). Though The Man from U.N.C.L.E. lasted four seasons and is widely remembered today, it is surprising to note that it cracked Nielsen's Top Twenty only in its second season. It should also be noted that the show was scheduled in a different time slot each autumn. A total of 132 episodes were filmed. Vaughn and McCallum were reunited in their roles in a made-for-TV movie "The Return of the Man from U.N.C.L.E," broadcast 5 April 1983 on CBS.

MAN IN A SUITCASE ABC

3 MAY 1968–20 SEPTEMBER 1968 Filmed in England, this hour-long adventure show starred Richard Bradford as John McGill, an American adventurer for hire.

THE MAN IN THE FAMILY ABC

19 JUNE 1991–31 JULY 1991 Half-hour sitcom about a man who moved from Las Vegas back home to Brooklyn to manage the family business, Carmine's Deli, after his father's death. With Ray Sharkey as the son, Sal Bavasso; Anne De Salvo as his divorced sister, Annie; Leah Remini as his younger sister, Tina; Billy L. Sullivan as Annie's son, Robby; Louis Guss as Uncle Bennie; Don Stark as Cha Cha, Sal's nerdy pal; and Julie Bovasso as Sal's mom, Angie Bavasso.

MAN OF THE PEOPLE NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1991–26 OCTOBER 1991; 6 DECEMBER 1991 James Garner starred in this half-hour sitcom as Jim Doyle, who was appointed 7th District Councilman in the city of Long View, California, after the death of his wife, who had held the seat. It featured Corinne Bohrer as Constance Leroy, Jim's assistant; Kate Mulgrew as Lisbeth Chardin, the scheming mayor who had appointed Jim; Taylor Nichols as Richard Lawrence; George Wyner as Art Lurie; and Romy Walthall as Rita, Jim's secretary.

MAN OF THE WEEK CBS

26 AUGUST 1951–10 OCTOBER 1954 On this Sunday-afternoon public affairs program a different male guest was interviewed each week. Vice President Alben W. Barkley was the guest on the premiere. The series was the antecedent of CBS's long-running interview show, Face the Nation.

MAN OF THE WORLD SYNDICATED

1962 Produced in England and distributed by ITC, Man of the World was an adventure series, starring Craig Stevens (late of Peter Gunn) as Michael Strait, an American freelance writer.

THE MAN WHO NEVER WAS ABC

7 September 1966–4 January 1967 Half-hour spy show about a secret agent who masqueraded through Europe under the identity of a multimillionaire. Robert Lansing starred as Peter Murphy, an American agent who had escaped from East Berlin with the East German authorities hot on his trail. Murphy stumbled onto the estate of wealthy Mark Wainwright, who turned out to be Murphy's exact double. When Wainwright was killed by the East Germans, Murphy, with the cooperation of Wainwright's widow, assumed his identity. Also featured were Dana Wynter as Eva Wainwright, Mark's widow; Alex Davion as Roger Berry, Mark's suspicious half-brother; Murray Hamilton as Jack Forbes, Murphy's commanding officer; and Paul Stewart as Grant, another American agent. The series was filmed on location; John Newland was the executive producer.

MAN WITH A CAMERA ABC

10 October 1958–29 February 1960 Essentially an updated version of Casey, Crime Photographer, this half-hour crime show starred Charles Bronson as Mike Kovac, a freelance photographer who helped the cops solve crimes. James Flavin was also featured as Lieutenant Donovan, Kovac's contact on the New York City police force.

MAN WITHOUT A GUN SYNDICATED

1959 Half-hour western from 20th Century-Fox, starring Rex Reason as crusading newspaper editor Adam MacLean, a man hoping to prove the supremacy of the pen over the sword in the Old West. Also on hand was Mort Mills as Marshal Frank Tallman, in case things got out of hand. Created by Peter Packer, the series was set in Yellowstone, Dakota Territory.

MANAGING OUR MIRACLES: HEALTH CARE IN AMERICA PBS

30 September 1986–2 December 1986 A ten-week series of panel discussions on medical ethics, moderated by Fred W. Friendly.

THE MANCINI GENERATION SYNDICATED

1972 Half-hour musical show with Henry Mancini and his orchestra. A gifted composer and arranger, Mancini wrote the theme to Peter Gunn and to films such as The Pink Panther and Breakfast at Tiffany's.

MANCUSO F.B.I. NBC

13 October 1989–18 May 1990 Robert Loggia starred in this hour crime show as Nick Mancuso, a career F.B.I. agent who was asked by the President not to retire; Loggia had first played the role in the 1988 miniseries Favorite Son. Also featured were Randi Brazen as his secretary, Jean St. John; Lindsay Frost as Department of Justice lawyer Kristen Carter, Mancuso's sometime colleague; Frederic Lehne as his young boss, Eddie McMasters; and Charles Siebert as Dr. Paul Summers. Drew Pillsbury appeared occasionally as Jean's ex-husband, Matt, who was later murdered. NBC reran the series during the summer of 1993.

MANHATTAN HONEYMOON ABC

22 February 1954–30 April 1954 Neva Patterson hosted this daytime game show on which the winning couple was awarded a trip to New York.

MANHATTAN SHOWCASE CBS

28 February 1949–16 June 1949 This fifteen-minute talent show was hosted by Johnny Downs and Helen Gallagher, and featured the music of the Tony Mottola Trio. The thrice-weekly show had previously been known as Places, Please, when it was hosted by Barry Wood (see also that title).

MANHATTAN SPOTLIGHT DUMONT

17 January 1949–20 April 1951 Fifteen-minute Monday-through-Friday interview show hosted by Charles Tranum.

THE MANHATTAN TRANSFER CBS

The foursome consisted of Alan Paul, Janis Siegel, Tim Hauser, and Laurel Masse. Archie Hahn was also featured on the series.

MANHUNT SYNDICATED

1959 Half-hour crime show with Victor Jory as Lieutenant Howard Finucane of the San Diego Police Department and Patrick McVey as police reporter Ben Andrews. The show was a Screen Gems production.

THE MANHUNTER CBS

11 September 1974–9 April 1975 Hour-long crime show set in Idaho during the 1930s, with Ken Howard as Dave Barrett, amateur crime-fighter and non-amateur farmer. Also seen were Hilary Thompson as Elizabeth Barrett, his sister; Robert Hogan as Sheriff Paul Tate; Ford Rainey as James Barrett, Dave's father; and Claudia Bryar as Mary Barrett, Dave's mother. Quinn Martin was the executive producer.

MANIMAL NBC

30 September 1983–31 December 1983 In this fanciful hour crime show, an animal behaviorist possessed the power to transform himself at will into any species of animal; electing to use his power for noble purposes, he signed on as a consultant to a special investigative unit of the New York Police Department. Featured were Simon MacCorkindale as the scientist, Professor Jonathan Chase, who had learned "the secrets that divide man from animal" from his late father; Melody Anderson as Detective Brooke McKenzie, who knew of Chase's extraordinary ability; Glynn Turman (in the pilot only) and Michael D. Roberts as Chase's assistant, Tyrone C. Earl; and Reni Santoni as Lieutenant Nick Rivera, head of the investigative unit. Glen Larson and Donald Boyle created the series, and William Conrad provided the narration.

MANN & MACHINE NBC

5 April 1992–14 July 1992 Hour crime show, set in Los Angeles, about a male cop who was teamed up with a crime-fighting female robot. Featured were Yancy Butler as the robot, Sergeant Eve Edison; David Andrews as her partner, Detective Bobby Mann; and S. Epatha Merkerson as the boss, Lieutenant Claghorn.

MANNIX CBS

16 September 1967–27 August 1975 This popular hour-long crime show starred Mike Connors as Joe Mannix, Los Angeles private eye. During the first season Mannix worked for Intertect, an ultramodern, computerized organization, and Joe Campanella was featured as Lew Wickersham, his boss. As the second season began, however, Mannix had left Intertect and set up his own shop at 17 Paseo Verdes in West Los Angeles. Gail Fisher joined the cast as Peggy Fair, his black secretary. Occasionally featured were Robert Reed as Lieutenant Adam Tobias and Ward Wood as Lieutenant Art Malcolm. Bruce Geller was the executive producer for Paramount TV.

MAN'S HERITAGE SYNDICATED

1956 Raymond Massey recited Bible stories on this half-hour series.

MANTRAP SYNDICATED

1971 A reworking of the 1950s panel show Leave It to the Girls, Mantrap featured a panel of three female celebrities who grilled a male guest each week. Al Hamel was the moderator of the series and frequent panelists included Chelsea Brown, Selma Diamond, Margot Kidder, Phyllis Kirk, Sue Lyon, Meredith MacRae, Jaye P. Morgan, Jan Sterling, Jacqueline Susann, and Carol Wayne.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS CBS

With John McGiver as Walter Burnley, manager of the complaint department; Russell Collins as store manager Owen Sharp; Elinor Donahue as Burnley's daughter, Joan Randall; Mark Goddard as Bob, Joan's husband; Elena Verdugo as store worker Lynn Hall; Mickey Manners as employee Joe Foley; Jesslyn Fax as employee Wilma Fritter; Richard Collier as Harry; Arte Johnson as Virgil Slamm; and Jerome Cowan as store owner J. L. Fox.

MAPLE TOWN SYNDICATED

1987 The cartoon adventures of the animal residents of Maple Town were depicted on this half-hour series. Each cartoon was introduced by Mrs. Maple (played by Janice Adams).

MARBLEHEAD MANOR SYNDICATED

1987 Half-hour sitcom that focused on the antics of the household staff at Marblehead Manor, an estate owned by the Stonehills. With Paxton Whitehead as Alfred Dudley, the butler; Phil Morris as Jerry Stockton, the chauffeur; Rodney Scott as Jerry's brother, Dwayne, the handyman; Dyana Ortelli as Lupe, the cook; Humberto Ortiz as Elvis, Lupe's young son (Ortiz was Ortelli's son in real life as well); Michael Richards as Rick, the gardener; Bob Fraser as Randolph Stonehill; and Linda Thorson as Hilary Stonehill, his wife.

THE MARCH OF TIME THROUGH THE YEARS ABC

23 FEBRUARY 1951–27 AUGUST 1951; 8 OCTOBER 1952–10 DECEMBER 1952 March of Time, which ran on radio from 1931 to 1945, was revived for television in 1951. John Daly hosted the series that year, introducing not only vintage newsreels and other documentary film footage, but also live guests. Westbrook Van Voorhis, who had narrated the show through most of its radio run, was the host in 1952. Arthur Tourtellot and Dick Krolik produced the half-hour series, and Fred Feldkamp directed it.

MARCO POLO NBC

16 MAY 1982–19 MAY 1982 This ten-hour miniseries about the thirteenth-century Italian traveler was produced by RAI, the Italian television network. Directed by Giuliano Montaldo, it was filmed in four countries (Italy, Morocco, Mongolia, and China), utilizing 217 scenes, 180 speaking parts, and some 5,000 extras. Principal players included: Ken Marshall as Marco Polo, who accompanied his father and uncle on a trip across Asia and who became a favorite of Kubla Khan; Denholm Elliott as Marco's father, Niccolo Polo; Tony Vogel as Marco's uncle, Matteo Polo; John Gielgud as The Doge; Burt Lancaster as Teobaldo Visconti/Pope Gregory X; Ying Ruocheng as Kubla Khan; Beulah Quo as Chabi; Junichi Ishida as Chinkin; Tony Lo Bianco as Brother Nicholas; Leonard Nimoy as Achmet; James Hong as Phags-Pa; and Kathryn Dowling as Monica. Ennio Morricone composed the score.

MARCUS WELBY, M.D. ABC

23 SEPTEMBER 1969–11 MAY 1976 A popular medical show, starring Robert Young as Dr. Marcus Welby, Southern California's kindliest physician. Welby, whose very name ("well-be") suggested good health, had offices at his house in Santa Monica and also became associated with the Family Practice Center at Lang Memorial Hospital. Also featured were James Brolin as Dr. Steven Kiley, Welby's young associate who made his house calls by motorcycle; Elena Verdugo as Consuelo Lopez, their receptionist and nurse; Sharon Gless (1974–1975) as Kathleen Faverty, a nurse; and Pamela Hensley (1975–1976) as Janet Blake, the hospital public relations director who married Kiley in October 1975. David Victor was executive producer of the series for Universal. In its second year (1970–1971) Marcus Welby became the first ABC series to top the seasonal Nielsen ratings. On 16 May 1984 ABC telecast a made-for-TV movie "The Return of Marcus Welby, M.D.," which featured Young and Verdugo. A second TV-movie, "Marcus Welby, M.D.: A Holiday Affair," with Young, surfaced on NBC 19 December 1988.

THE MARGE AND GOWER CHAMPION SHOW NBC

31 MARCH 1957–9 JUNE 1957 Marge and Gower Champion, a popular husband-and-wife dance team during the 1950s, played themselves in this half-hour sitcom, which blended song and dance into a story line. Also featured were Jack Whiting as Marge's father, the couple's agent; drummer Buddy Rich as Cozy, a drummer; and Peg LaCentra as Amanda, a singer.

MARGE AND JEFF DUMONT

21 SEPTEMBER 1953–24 SEPTEMBER 1954 This fifteen-minute domestic sitcom was seen weekday evenings at 7:15. It starred Marge Greene and Jess Cain as Manhattan newlyweds Marge and Jeff Green. Marge Greene also wrote the series, which was produced by Ernest Walling and directed by Leonard Valenta.

MARGIE ABC

12 OCTOBER 1961–31 AUGUST 1962 One of the three series set in the 1920s or 1930s that ran on ABC during the 1961–1962 season (the other two were The Roaring Twenties and The Untouchables), Margie was a half-hour sitcom about a teenage girl growing up in New England. With Cynthia Pepper as Margie Clayton, student at Madison High; Dave Willock as her father, banker Harvey Clayton; Wesley Tackitt as her mother, Nora Clayton; Hollis Irving as Aunt Phoebe; Billy Hummert and Johnny Bangert as her brother, Cornell; Tommy Ivo as her boyfriend, Heywood Botts; Dick Gering as her occasional boyfriend, Johnny Green; and Penney Parker as her best friend, Maybelle Jackson.

MARIAH ABC

1 APRIL 1987–13 MAY 1987 Although a couple of sitcoms had been set at prisons (e.g., On the Rocks, Stir Crazy), Mariah was the first network dramatic series to be set at a correctional facility. Included in the ensemble cast were Philip Baker Hall as James Malone, superintendent of Mariah State Penitentiary; John Getz as deputy superintendent Ned Sheffield; Tovah Feldshuh as psychiatrist Deena Hertz; Kathleen Layman as Brandis Lasalle, a wealthy woman from Mariah village who volunteered at the prison; Wanda De Jesus as Officer Leda Cervantes; Renee Lippin as Mrs. Linda Grincato, who taught the female inmates; William Allan Young as chaplain Howard Bouchard; and Chris Wiggins as Father Timothy Quinlan. Seven episodes were shown.

MARIE NBC

12 DECEMBER 1980–26 SEPTEMBER 1981 Wholesome Marie Osmond, who had previously cohosted Donny and Marie with her brother, headlined her own variety series. The hour show was intermittently scheduled in several different time slots during its nine-month run.

MARILU SYNDICATED

1994–1995 Hour daytime talk show hosted by actress Marilu Henner.

THE MARILYN McCOO & BILLY DAVIS, JR. SHOW CBS

15 JUNE 1977–20 JULY 1977 Six-week summer variety series hosted by singers Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis, Jr. Both McCoo and Davis, who were married to each other, had sung with the Fifth Dimension. Dick Broder was the executive producer.

MARINE BOY SYNDICATED

1966 Japanese-produced cartoon series about Marine Boy, a diminutive agent for the Ocean Patrol who helped save the world from sea monsters.

MARK SABER ABC/NBC

5 OCTOBER 1951–30 JUNE 1954 (ABC); 16 MARCH 1957–23 SEPTEMBER 1961 (NBC) Mark Saber was the central character in two quite different series. In the first series, Tom Conway starred as Inspector Mark Saber of the New York City Homicide Squad, and James Burke costarred as Sergeant Tim Maloney. Produced by Roland Reed Productions, the half-hour filmed series was shown under several titles during its three-year run, including Mark Saber Mystery Theatre, Inspector Mark Saber, and Homicide Squad. The second Mark Saber series was produced in England by Edward J. Danziger and Harry Lee Danziger, and starred a one-armed actor, Donald Gray, as Mark Saber; in this version Saber was a former chief inspector at Scotland Yard who had become a private detective. Also featured were Michael Balfour as Barney O'Keefe; Diana Decker as Stephanie Ames; Colin Tapley as Inspector Parker; Neil McCallum as Pete Paulson; Garry Thorne as Eddie Wells; and Robert Arden as Bob Page. The series ran for four years in a Saturday-afternoon slot on NBC under the title Detective's Diary, and also surfaced in prime-time slots on NBC between 1957 and 1960. (It should be noted that the final episodes of Detective's Diary were reruns of Man from Interpol, starring Richard Wyler.)

MARK WALBERG SYNDICATED

1995–1996 Hour daytime talk show hosted by Mark Walberg (who should not be confused with Mark Wahlberg, better known as pop/rap star Marky Mark).

MARKER UPN

17 JANUARY 1995–16 AUGUST 1995 Hour dramatic series starring Richard Grieco as Richard DeMorra, a New Jersey man who went to Hawaii to attend the funeral of his estranged father. Upon his arrival he learned that his father had had the unusual sideline of giving special tokens, or "markers," to persons who were in need of help, and had told the recipients to redeem the markers when the need arose. Richard decided to remain in Hawaii, to the consternation of his father's widow, to honor his father's practice. Also featured were Gates McFadden as Kimba, Richard's father' s widow; Andy Bumatai as Danny "Pipeline" Kahala, a local man who became Richard's friend; Keone Young as Moch, a trusted confidante of the father's. Nicolas Ramos appeared in flashback sequences as the young Richard. Stephen J. Cannell created the series, which was filmed on location.

MARKHAM CBS

2 MAY 1959–22 SEPTEMBER 1960 Half-hour crime show starring Ray Milland as Roy Markham, a combination lawyer and private eye, with Simon Scott as John Riggs, his boss. Joe Sistrom and Warren Duff were the producers.

MARLO AND THE MAGIC MOVIE MACHINE SYNDICATED

1977–1979 Kids' show hosted by Laurie Faso as Marlo, operator of the Magic Movie Machine, a talking computer that could be programmed to show old newsreels and film shorts as well as baby pictures of celebrities. Taped at WFSB-TV in Hartford, the show was first seen in an hour-long format, but was later trimmed to a half hour. Mert Koplin provided the voice of the Machine.

THE MARRIAGE NBC

1 JULY 1954–19 AUGUST 1954 One of the first prime-time programs broadcast in color, The Marriage was a half-hour comedy-drama starring Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy (who were husband and wife in real life) as Ben and Liz Marriott. Ben was a lawyer, and he and Liz lived in New York with their two children, Emily (played by Susan Strasberg and Natalie Trundy) and Pete (Malcolm Broderick). William Redfield also appeared as Emily's boyfriend, Bobby Logan.

MARRIED PEOPLE ABC

18 SEPTEMBER 1990–11 SEPTEMBER 1991 Half-hour sitcom about three married couples who lived in a Manhattan brownstone. With Ray Aranha and Barbara Montgomery as Nick and Olivia Williams, the long-married owners (the house was located in Harlem, but the neighborhood had been renamed Central Park North in order to attract upscale tenants); Jay Thomas and Bess Armstrong as the second-floor tenants, yuppies Russell and Elizabeth Myers, a writer and lawyer, respectively; and Megan Gallivan and Chris Young as the top-floor occupants, newlyweds Cindy and Allen Campbell, a waitress and Columbia student. Robert Sternin and Prudence Fraser created the series.

MARRIED: THE FIRST YEAR CBS

28 FEBRUARY 1979–21 MARCH 1979 Hour dramatic series about the trials and tribulations of a young married couple. With Leigh McCloskey as Billy Baker; Cindy Grover as his wife, Joanna Huffman; K Callan as Cathy; Claudette Nevins as Barbara; Christine Belford as Aunt Emily; Stepfanie Kramer as Sharon; Gigi Vorgan as Cookie; Stephen Manley as Donny; Jennifer McAllister as Millie; and Stanley Grover as Bert.

MARRIED . . . WITH CHILDREN FOX

5 APRIL 1987– After a slow start, this delightfully raunchy sitcom became the most popular series on the Fox network. It was developed by Ron Leavitt and Michael Moye, who had written for The Jeffersons, and who were given the green light from Fox to create a series that would not be mistaken for any of the standard sitcom fare offered by ABC, CBS, or NBC. Leavitt and Moye happily obliged; as Leavitt said to Alex Ben Block, author of Outfoxed, "We'd always hated the typical family on television. It just makes us sick, basically." Their creation resembled a sexually charged version of the old radio comedy The Bickersons more than it did any TV sitcom. The two stars were Ed O'Neill and Katey Sagal, as Al and Peg Bundy (Leavitt and Moye chose the name Bundy after one of their favorite pro wrestlers, King Kong Bundy). Al was a hapless Chicago shoe salesman with bad breath, armpit stains, and smelly feet. Peg wore lots of spandex and teased hair, and loathed housework and cooking. Most of their home life was spent making wisecracks about their sex life (or lack thereof). The rest of the cast included Christina Applegate as their teenage daughter Kelly, a sexy airhead; David Faustino as their teenage son Bud, a budding young con man; and David Garrison and Amanda Bearse as wholesome next-door neighbors Steve and Marcy Rhoades, who became separated during the 1988–1989 season (it was explained that Steve left home to be a park ranger after losing his job; the plot device was developed to permit David Garrison to appear in a play). Ted McGinley joined the cast early in 1991 as Marcy's new husband, Jefferson D'Arcy. Ritch Shydner appeared occasionally during the early weeks as Al's horny coworker, Luke Ventura. The Bundy family pet was a shaggy dog named Buck.

Married . . . with Children's ratings grew steadily on Sunday nights, and actually improved during the 1988 writers' strike as audiences left the big three networks to sample other program offerings. Nevertheless, Fox refused to air the fall 1988 premiere episode, originally titled "A Period Piece," in which the Bundys and the Rhoadses went camping together and all three women started their menstrual periods; after many changes, it ran later in the season, in a later time slot, under the title "The Camping Show." Another episode later that season, in which Al and Peg were videotaped having sex at a sleazy motel, was killed and has never been televised. The episode of 27 November 1988 was the first Fox show to achieve a Nielsen rating in double digits—a perfect 10. Ratings received another unexpected boost later that season, when Michigan housewife Terry Rakolta (incensed by the 15 January 1989 show, in which Peg shopped for a new bra) tried to organize an advertiser boycott to protest the show's offensiveness; the result was that even more people tuned in to see what all the fuss was about.

In the fall of 1991 both Peg and Marcy were pregnant; in real life, Katey Sagal was pregnant, too. Unfortunately Sagal suffered a miscarriage late in the pregnancy; the producers extricated the characters from the situation by turning their pregnancies into a dream of Peg's. A new character was added in the fall of 1992, as Shane Sweet appeared in several episodes as Seven, the young son of Peg's cousins who came to live with the Bundys; the effort was unsuccessful, and the character was quietly dropped in 1993. Bud, finally out of school, landed a job at the state registry of motor vehicles. In the fall of 1995 Buck the dog died (the real-life canine who played him simply retired), and was reincarnated as Lucky, a cocker spaniel. By 1994 Married . . . with Children was the longest currently running sitcom on network TV; the series celebrated its 200th episode in February 1995.

MARSHA WARFIELD NBC

26 MARCH 1990–25 JANUARY 1991 Half-hour daytime talk show, hosted by Night Court regular and former standup comic, Marsha Warfield. The set resembled the interior of an apartment.

THE MARSHAL ABC

31 JANUARY 1995–25 DECEMBER 1995 Hour crime show starring Jeff Fahey as Deputy U.S. Marshal Winston MacBride, a modern-day law enforcement officer whose specialty was tracking down fugitives.

MARSHAL DILLON

See GUNSMOKE

THE MARSHAL OF GUNSIGHT PASS ABC

12 MARCH 1950–30 SEPTEMBER 1950 Half-hour western for children starring Russell Hayden.

THE MARSHALL CHRONICLES ABC

4 APRIL 1990–2 MAY 1990 This half-hour sitcom could have been subtitled "Woody Allen Goes to High School." Its central character was a New York City teenager who resembled a young Allen, trying to get through high school and sharing his observations with the camera. The cast included twenty-four-year-old Joshua Rifkind (who was actually from Beverly Hills) as seventeen-year-old Marshall Brightman; Gabriel Bologna as Johnny, the class thug; Bradley Gregg as Sean, Marshall's best friend; Nile Lanning as Melissa, the girl of Marshall's dreams, who, inexplicably, dated Johnny; Meredith Scott Lynn as the hyper Leslie; Jennifer Salt as Cynthia, Marshall's level-headed mom; and Steven Anderson as Mike, Marshall's soft-spoken dad, a doctor. Richard Rosenstock created the series. After the series' limited run during the spring of 1990, a final episode was broadcast 22 July.

MARSHALL EFRON'S ILLUSTRATED, SIMPLIFIED AND PAINLESS SUNDAY SCHOOL CBS

9 DECEMBER 1973–28 AUGUST 1977 Marshall Efron, formerly a regular on PBS's The Great American Dream Machine, hosted a multipart religious series for young children, which CBS broadcast on Sunday mornings from time to time between 1973 and 1977. Pamela Ilott was the executive producer, Ted Holmes the director.

THE MARSHALL PLAN IN ACTION ABC

23 JULY 1950–30 DECEMBER 1951 One of the first documentary series filmed especially for television, The Marshall Plan in Action was filmed largely in Europe, showing the results of the $12 billion postwar reconstruction program developed by Secretary of State George C. Marshall. The series was developed by Robert Saudek, who would later help develop Omnibus for the Ford Foundation.

MARSUPILAMI CBS

18 SEPTEMBER 1993–27 AUGUST 1994 Introduced a season earlier on Disney's Raw Toonage, Marsupilami headlined his own series in 1993. Each program contained two episodes featuring Marsupilami, a spotted yellow creature with a long tail, and one episode (on alternate weeks) of Sebastian the Crab or Shnookums and Meat, a cat and dog duo.

THE MARTHA RAYE SHOW NBC

20 MARCH 1954–29 MAY 1956 Comedienne Martha Raye began appearing regularly on television in 1951 as occasional host of All-Star Revue. By the fall of 1953, when All-Star Revue had become a once-a-month replacement for Sid Caesar's Your Show of Shows, Raye was its regular host; in March of 1954 that show's title was officially changed to The Martha Raye Show. During the 1954– 1955 and 1955–1956 seasons, her show was seen Tuesday nights as a monthly replacement for The Milton Berle Show. Raye's sidekick on most of the shows was former boxer Rocky Graziano.

MARTHA STEWART LIVING TELEVISION SYNDICATED

1993– Half-hour weekly informational series hosted by Martha Stewart, offering tips on such topics as gardening, cooking, housekeeping, decoration, and home renovation. Stewart's highly successful 1982 book, Entertaining, led to a veritable cottage industry of books, home videos, and a magazine, also entitled Martha Stewart Living.

THE MARTHA WRIGHT SHOW

See THE PACKARD SHOWROOM

MARTIN FOX

27 AUGUST 1992– Half-hour sitcom with a mostly black cast, starring standup comic Martin Lawrence as Martin Payne, host of a talk show on Detroit radio station WZUP, with Tisha Campbell as his girlfriend, Gina Waters; Carl Anthony Payne as his pal Cole; Thomas Mikal Ford as his pal Tommy; Tichina Arnold as Pam, who was Tommy's girlfriend, Gina's friend, and the butt of many of Martin's jokes; Jonathan Gries (1992–1994) as station engineer Sean McDermott; Garrett Morris (1992–1994) as station manager Stan Kemrite; and LaWanda Page (1992–1994) as Evelyn. Lawrence also appeared from time to time in two other roles: as his mother and as Sheneneh, a dimwitted female neighbor. In the fall of 1994 Martin moved from local radio to local TV to host a talk show. Martin and Gina were married in the spring of 1995.

MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION PBS

1971–1976 Half-hour nightly news analysis program hosted by Martin Agronsky, produced at WETA-TV, Washington, D.C. See also Agronsky & Co.

THE MARTIN BLOCK SHOW ABC

17 SEPTEMBER 1956–31 DECEMBER 1957 A half-hour daytime variety series, hosted by New York disc jockey Martin Block.

MARTIN KANE, PRIVATE EYE NBC/SYNDICATED

1 SEPTEMBER 1949–17 JUNE 1954 (NBC); 1958 (SYNDICATED) One of the first fictional detectives to move from radio to television, Martin Kane was played by four actors on the latter medium. William Gargan was the first Martin Kane, a tough private eye who worked in New York; Gargan had been a private investigator before turning to show business and had played the role on radio. After two seasons Gargan had decided to become a producer and left the series. Lloyd Nolan took over the role on 30 August 1951, and played it for one season; Lee Tracy succeeded him in 1952. During its first four seasons the show was done live, and the commercial—for a cigarette manufacturer—was worked into the story: Kane, for example, would stop at his favorite newsstand (it was usually operated by Horace McMahon) and ask for the sponsor's brand. In the fall of 1953, a filmed version of the series, entitled The New Adventures of Martin Kane, appeared, with Mark Stevens in the title role; the show was filmed in Europe and lasted a single season. In 1958 Gargan again played Kane in a second series filmed in Europe (from United Artists), entitled The Return of Martin Kane.

THE MARTIN SHORT SHOW NBC

15 SEPTEMBER 1994–27 SEPTEMBER 1994 This troubled program was bounced after only three telecasts. Using a show-within-a-show format, the sitcom starred Martin Short as Martin Short, a family man who was also the star of a TV comedy show. Also featured were Jan Hooks as Meg Harper Short, wife of the sitcom Martin and costar of his comedy show; Andrea Martin as Alice Manoogian, the other costar of the comedy show; Noley Thornton and Zack Duhame as Caroline and Charlie, the sitcom children of Martin and Meg; and Brian Doyle-Murray as Gary, the comedy show makeup artist. Short and Hooks later appeared in the season on a ninety-minute pastiche of sketches, "The Show Formerly Known as the Martin Short Show," which aired 20 May 1995 in the Saturday Night Live time slot.

THE MARTY FELDMAN COMEDY MACHINE ABC

12 APRIL 1972–23 AUGUST 1972 Segments of this comedy show were taped in England and edited into half hours for American viewing. Marty Feldman, pop-eyed British comedian, was the host and star of the series. Animations were done by Terry Gilliam of Monty Python's Flying Circus.

MARTY ROBBINS' SPOTLIGHT SYNDICATED

1977 Taped in Nashville, this half-hour series was essentially a version of This Is Your Life for stars of country music. Singer Marty Robbins hosted the show.

MARVEL SUPERHEROES SYNDICATED

1966 Five characters from the Marvel comic books made the transition to television in this crudely drawn, low-budget cartoon series. Each half-hour program featured an adventure starring one of the five superheroes: Captain America, The Incredible Hulk, Iron Man, Mighty Thor, or Sub-Mariner. One of them, of course, would later come to prime-time TV (see The Incredible Hulk).

MARY CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1978–8 OCTOBER 1978 An hour variety show starring Mary Tyler Moore, Mary opened to lackluster ratings and dismal reviews, and was abruptly pulled off the air after only three showings (several more shows had already been taped, but were never broadcast). Also featured on the series were Dick Shawn, Jim Hampton, Judy Kahan, Michael Keaton, Swoosie Kurtz, and David Letterman; Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses were the producers for MTM Enterprises. Following the show's cancellation, a new producer (Perry Lafferty) was brought in, and a new Mary Tyler Moore series was introduced in midseason: see The Mary Tyler Moore Hour.

MARY CBS

11 DECEMBER 1985–8 APRIL 1986 Another of Mary Tyler Moore's unsuccessful efforts to find a suitable TV vehicle after the demise of her 1970–1977 sitcom. In this one she starred as Mary Brenner, who lost her job at Woman's Digest when the publication folded, and landed a new job as the consumer helpline columnist at the Chicago Eagle, a tabloid newspaper. Also aboard were James Farentino as managing editor Frank DeMarco; John Astin as theater critic Ed La Salle; Katey Sagal as chain-smoking Jo Tucker, author of the "Mainline Chicago" column; David Byrd as Vincent Tully, the legally blind copy editor; Carlene Watkins as Mary's neighbor, city planner Susan Wilcox; and James Tolkan as Susan's fiancé, mobster Lester Mintz. Ken Levine and David Isaacs created the series.

THE MARY HARTLINE CHILDREN'S SHOW ABC

12 FEBRUARY 1951–15 JUNE 1951 Mary Hartline, who was also seen on Super Circus, hosted this half-hour kids' show, which was seen Monday through Friday at 5 P.M.

MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN SYNDICATED

1976–1977 Developed by Norman Lear, this half-hour serial was part parody and part soap opera. Set in Fernwood, Ohio, the first season began with a mass murder and culminated with the heroine's crackup on a television talk show. Louise Lasser starred as Mary Hartman, the pigtailed, gingham-frocked Ohio housewife who lived in a world where television commercials were as meaningful as personal experiences, and who tried to remain calm while her daughter was held hostage by a mass murderer, her husband was impotent, her father disappeared, and her best friend was paralyzed. Other principals included Greg Mullavey as her husband, Tom Hartman, an assembly-line worker whose emotional development was arrested during adolescence; Dody Goodman as Martha Shumway, Mary's addled mother; Philip Bruns as George Shumway, Mary's father; Debralee Scott as Cathy Shumway, Mary's active younger sister; Claudia Lamb as Heather Hartman, Tom and Mary's sullen daughter; Victor Kilian as Mary's grandfather, Raymond Larkin, the "Fernwood Flasher"; Bruce Solomon as Sergeant Dennis Foley, the Fernwood cop who eventually convinced Mary to have an affair with him; Mary Kay Place as Mary's best friend, Loretta Haggers, an aspiring country-and-western singer; Graham Jarvis as Charlie Haggers, Loretta's husband and Tom's co-worker; Sparky Marcus as eight-year-old Jimmy Joe Jeeter, a child evangelist who was electrocuted when a TV set fell into his bathtub; Dabney Coleman as Merle Jeeter, Jimmy Joe's father; and Marian Mercer as Wanda Rittenhouse, wife of a Fernwood politician. After 325 episodes Louise Lasser decided to leave the show; after a summer hiatus (during which Fernwood 2-Night, a TV talk show spoof, was telecast), production resumed with most of the other principals under the title Forever Fernwood. Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman was created by Gail Parent, Ann Marcus, Jerry Adelman, and Daniel Gregory Browne.

MARY KAY AND JOHNNY DUMONT/NBC/CBS

18 NOVEMBER 1947–24 AUGUST 1948 (DUMONT); 10 OCTOBER 1948–13 FEBRUARY 1949 (NBC); 23 FEBRUARY 1949–1 JUNE 1949 (CBS); 13 JUNE 1949–11 MARCH 1950 (NBC) One of TV's first domestic sitcoms, Mary Kay and Johnny starred Mary Kay and Johnny Stearns as themselves. Broadcast live from Philadelphia, and later from New York, the series was shown in a fifteen-minute weekly format on the DuMont network, and then in a half-hour weekly format except during the summer of 1949, when it was seen for fifteen minutes five nights a week.

THE MARY MARGARET McBRIDE SHOW NBC

21 SEPTEMBER 1948–14 DECEMBER 1948 One of radio's best-known female interviewers and saleswomen, Mary Margaret McBride also hosted her own half-hour television interview show for thirteen weeks.

THE MARY TYLER MOORE HOUR CBS

4 MARCH 1979–6 MAY 1979 An hour comedy-variety series which surfaced in midseason, following the demise of Mary Tyler Moore's ill-fated fall effort, Mary. In the new show Mary Tyler Moore starred as Mary McKinnon, star of her own variety show. Also featured were Michael Keaton as Kenneth Christy, the studio gofer; Michael Lombard as Mary's producer, Harry Sinclair; Ron Rifkin as her director, Artie Miller; and Joyce Van Patten as Mary's secretary and assistant, Iris Chapman. Perry Lafferty produced the series for MTM Enterprises.

THE MARY TYLER MOORE SHOW CBS

19 SEPTEMBER 1970–3 SEPTEMBER 1977 This highly successful sitcom starred Mary Tyler Moore, who was well known to television audiences as Laura Petrie on The Dick Van Dyke Show. Here she played Mary Richards, a single woman of thirty or so who settled in Minneapolis after calling it quits with her boyfriend (as originally conceived, Mary was to have been a divorcée, but this idea was abandoned). Mary landed a job as associate producer of the evening news at WJM-TV, Channel 12, Minneapolis's lowest-rated station, and found herself a small apartment. In most of the 168 episodes Mary Richards was the center of the storm, the calm, level-headed professional with whom an assortment of zany characters (all played by gifted performers) interacted. That group originally included Edward Asner (whose previous TV roles had largely been limited to heavies) as gruff Lou Grant, Mary's boss, the producer of the news show; Gavin MacLeod as Murray Slaughter, the quick-witted news writer; Ted Knight as Ted Baxter, the dense and self-centered anchorman; Valerie Harper (1970–1974) as Mary's upstairs neighbor, Rhoda Morgenstern, a window dresser; and Cloris Leachman as Mary's high-strung landlady, Phyllis Lindstrom. Occasionally featured were John Amos (1970–1973) as Gordy Howard, the weatherman; Lisa Gerritsen (1970–1974) as Phyllis's daughter, Bess; Nancy Walker (1970–1974) as Rhoda's undersized but overbearing mother, Ida Morgenstern; and Harold Gould (1970–1974) as Rhoda's father, Martin Morgenstern. In the fall of 1973 Georgia Engel joined the cast as Georgette Franklin, Ted Baxter's naive girlfriend; in the fall of 1975 she and Ted were married, and in the fall of 1976 they had a baby, Mary Lou. In the fall of 1974 Betty White was added as Sue Ann Nivens, the man-hungry "Happy Homemaker" of Channel 12; Sheree North was also seen occasionally that season as Charlene McGuire, Lou Grant's girlfriend (Lou's wife had left him earlier). In the fall of 1975 Mary Richards moved from her old apartment to a high rise; her former landlady had left for San Francisco and a show of her own.

In its seven-year run The Mary Tyler Moore Show spawned two spinoffs, Rhoda and Phyllis, and when production ceased in 1977, many of the remaining regulars found work that fall in new series: Betty White and Georgia Engel on The Betty White Show, Edward Asner on Lou Grant, and Gavin MacLeod as the skipper of The Love Boat. All of those series, except for The Love Boat, were produced by MTM Enterprises, the production company established by Mary Tyler Moore and her husband, Grant Tinker. James L. Brooks and Allan Burns were the executive producers of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, Ed. Weinberger and Stan Daniels the producers. The show's theme song, "Love Is All Around," was composed and sung by Sonny Curtis. On 18 February 1991 CBS aired a ninety-minute retrospective of the series.

In 1993 Entertainment Weekly ranked The Mary Tyler Moore Show Number One in its list of the "101 most important prime-time TV shows of the past."

MASADA ABC

5 APRIL 1981–8 APRIL 1981 The story of the siege of Masada by the Roman Tenth Legion in 72–73 A.D. was told in this four-part, eight-hour miniseries. Principal players included: Peter Strauss as Eleazar ben Yair, leader of the Jewish Zealots, who ultimately convinced his compatriots to commit mass suicide rather than face capture; Peter O'Toole as Eleazar's adversary, Cornelius Flavius Silva, commander of the Roman legions; Richard Pierson as Ephraim, a Zealot; David Opatoshu as Shimon, a rabbi; Denis Quilley as Quadratus; Anthony Quayle as Gallus; Barbara Carrera as Sheva, Silva's concubine; Giulia Pagano as Miriam; David Warner as Falco; and Timothy West as the Roman emperor, Vespasian. Based on the novel The Antagonists by Ernest K. Gann, the series was written by Joel Oliansky and directed by Boris Sagal. Although the program did well in the ratings when it was originally televised, its reruns were a disaster—Variety noted that ABC's weekly rating for the week of 9 July 1983 (when the Masada reruns anchored its prime-time lineup) was the lowest in "modern television history."

THE MASK ABC

10 JANUARY 1954–16 MAY 1954 An hour-long crime show starring Gary Merrill and William Prince as brothers Walter and Peter Guilfoyle, attorneys at law. Paul Newman guest starred in one episode, "The Party Night," 11 April. Both Merrill and Prince were again featured as attorneys in Justice, an NBC series.

THE MASK CBS

12 AUGUST 1995– Saturday morning cartoon show based on the hit movie which had starred Jim Carrey (Carrey, however, had nothing to do with the TV series). The central character was Stanley Ipkiss, who became extra-human whenever he donned an eleventh-century mask. Assisted by his friend Peggy, Stanley battled the evil Pretorius.

MASKED RIDER FOX

16 SEPTEMBER 1995– Live-action Saturday morning hour series about a prince who left his home planet and fled to Earth, where he was taken in by a multi-ethnic American family and began protecting the planet from an evil invader. With T. J. Roberts as the prince, Dex, whose home planet, Edenoi, was threatened and who could transform himself into the super-human Masked Rider; David Stenstrom as Hal Stuart, the father of Dex's Earth family; Candace Camille Bender as Hal's Asian-American wife, Barbara; Rheannon J. Slover as their adopted Caucasian daughter, Molly; Ashton McArn II as their adopted African-American son, Albee; Ken Ring as Dex's uncle, the evil Count Dregon; Jennifer Tung as Dregon's chief henchperson, Nefaria; Libby Letlow as Patsy, Molly's classmate at Leawood High School; and Matt Bates as Herbie. Dex was accompanied to Earth by a fuzzy pet named Ferbus, which had to be hidden from Hal Stuart who was allergic to fur.

THE MASLAND AT HOME SHOW CBS/ABC

14 SEPTEMBER 1949–7 JUNE 1950 (CBS); 30 AUGUST 1951–21 FEBRUARY 1952 (ABC) Masland Carpets sponsored this fifteen-minute musical series, which featured vocalist Earl Wrightson and the Norman Paris Trio. It was seen Wednesdays after the news on CBS and Thursday nights over ABC.

MASQUERADE ABC

15 DECEMBER 1983–27 APRIL 1984 This hour adventure series mixed elements of Mission: Impossible with The Man from U.N.C.L.E. It starred Rod Taylor as Lavender, an agent of NIA (the National Intelligence Agency); Lavender's bright idea was for the NIA to employ American tourists to assist in its operations abroad. Lavender reasoned that these "ordinary Americans" would be eager to serve their country, would be unknown to foreign agents, and could perform specific tasks for the Agency without costly training. Also accompanying Lavender on his capers were a pair of rookie agents—Greg Evigan as Danny and Kirstie Alley as Casey.

MASQUERADE PARTY NBC/CBS/ABC/SYNDICATED

14 JULY 1952–25 AUGUST 1952 (NBC); 22 JUNE 1953–14 SEPTEMBER 1953 (CBS); 21 JUNE 1954–27 SEPTEMBER 1954 (CBS); 29 SEPTEMBER 1954–29 DECEMBER 1956 (ABC); 6 MARCH 1957–4 SEPTEMBER 1957 (NBC); 4 AUGUST 1958–15 SEPTEMBER 1958 (CBS); 2 OCTOBER 1958–24 SEPTEMBER 1959 (NBC); 26 OCTOBER 1959–18 JANUARY 1960 (CBS); 29 JANUARY 1960–23 SEPTEMBER 1960 (NBC); 1974 (SYNDICATED) This durable game show was seen throughout the 1950s, most frequently as a summer replacement. The object of the game was for a panel of celebrities to guess the identity of guest celebrities, who always appeared in elaborate costumes and heavy makeup. The show had several hosts through the years, including Bud Collyer (1952), Douglas Edwards (1953), Peter Donald (1954–1956), Eddie Bracken (1957), Robert Q. Lewis (1958), and Bert Parks (the 1958–1959 and 1960 NBC shows). After a fourteen-year absence Masquerade Party reappeared briefly as a syndicated offering in 1974; Stefan Hatos and Monty Hall were the executive producers, Richard Dawson was the host, and the celebrity panel included Bill Bixby, Nipsey Russell, and Lee Meriwether. On the syndicated version two members of the studio audience were also given the chance to guess the identity of the mystery guests.

THE MASTER NBC

20 JANUARY 1984–31 AUGUST 1984 Veteran character actor Lee Van Cleef, perhaps best known as the star of several Italian western films (and as the villain in hundreds of TV westerns), starred in this hour adventure series as a martial arts expert known simply as The Master (or, to outsiders, as John Peter McAlister). Searching for his daughter and pursued by members of the ninja, The Master teamed up with a young drifter and agreed to instruct him in the martial arts. Timothy Van Patten costarred as the protegé, Max Keller; also featured was Sho Kusugi as Okasa, The Master's chief pursuer.

MASTERPIECE PLAYHOUSE NBC

23 JULY 1950–3 SEPTEMBER 1950 A summer replacement for Philco Television Playhouse, Masterpiece Playhouse presented hour-long versions of well-known dramatic works such as "Hedda Gabler," with Jessica Tandy and Walter Abel (23 July); "Richard III," with William Windom and Blanche Yurka (30 July); "Six Characters in Search of an Author," with Joseph Schildkraut and Betty Field (13 August); and "Uncle Vanya," with Walter Abel, Eva Gabor, and Boris Karloff (3 September).

MASTERPIECE THEATRE PBS

10 JANUARY 1971– Masterpiece Theatre has been one of public television's most popular dramatic anthology series; most of its presentations have been multipart serializations, adapted from literary works or from original screenplays. Funded by a grant from Mobil Oil, the show was hosted by Alistair Cooke through November 1992. Russell Baker took over as host in October 1993. Virtually all of the presentations are produced in Great Britain, most of them by the BBC. During the first season presentations included: "The First Churchills," a twelve-part adaptation of Sir Winston Churchill's Marlborough, His Life and Times, with John Neville, Susan Hampshire, John Westbrook, James Villiers, and Moira Redmond; Henry James's "The Spoils of Poynton," a four-parter with Pauline Jameson, Ian Ogilvy, and Diane Fletcher; Dostoevsky's "The Possessed," in six parts, with Keith Bell, Rosalie Crutchley, Joseph O'Conor, and Anne Stallybrass; a four-part adaptation of Balzac's "Pere Goriot," with Andrew Keir, David Dundas, Michael Goodliffe, and June Ritchie.

Seven offerings were telecast during the 1971–1972 season: Thomas Hardy's "Jude the Obscure," in six parts, with Robert Powell, Fiona Walker, Alex Marshall, and Daphne Heard; a two-part adaptation of Dostoevsky's "The Gambler," with Dame Edith Evans; Tolstoy's "Resurrection," in four parts, with Alan Dobie, Bridget Turner, and Clifford Parrish; a one-part, two-hour telecast of Stella Gibson's "Cold Comfort Farm," with Sarah Badel, Alistair Sim, and Rosalie Crutchley; "The Six Wives of Henry VIII," a repeat of the six-part miniseries originally broadcast on CBS (see also that title); "Elizabeth R," a six-parter starring Glenda Jackson as Queen Elizabeth I; an eight-part adaptation of James Fenimore Cooper's "The Last of the Mohicans," with Andrew Crawford, Kenneth Ives, Patricia Maynard, Richard Warwick, and Philip Madoc.

Six novels were serialized during the 1972–1973 season: Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," in five parts, with Susan Hampshire, Dyson Lovell, Barbara Cooper, and John Moffatt; Balzac's "Cousin Bette," in five parts, with Margaret Tyzack, Colin Baker, Thorley Walters and Helen Mirren; Wilkie Collins's "The Moonstone," in five parts, with Vivien Heilbron, Robin Ellis, Martin Jarvis, and Peter Sallis; Thomas Hughes's "Tom Brown's Schooldays," in five parts, with Simon Turner, Anthony Murphy, Gerald Flood, John Paul, and Valerie Holliman; Aldous Huxley's "Point Counter Point," in five parts, with Lyndon Brook, Tristam Jellinek, Valerie Gearon, and David Graham; Henry James's "The Golden Bowl," in six parts, with Barry Morse, Jill Townsend, Daniel Massey, and Gayle Hunnicutt.

During the 1973–1974 season five dramas were introduced, including "Upstairs Downstairs," the longest-running and most popular drama in the Masterpiece Theatre repertoire. The season's first four presentations included: Dorothy Sayers's "Clouds of Witness," in five parts, with Ian Carmichael, Glyn Houston, and Rachel Herbert; N. J. Crisp's "The Man Who Was Hunting Himself," in three parts, with Donald Burton, Carol Austin, David Savile, and Conrad Phillips; Sayers's "The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club," in four parts, with Ian Carmichael, Derek Newark, and John Quentin; and a one-shot presentation of H. E. Bates's "The Little Farm," with Bryan Marshall, Barbara Ewing, and Michael Elphick. On 6 January 1974 the first of the season's thirteen episodes of "Upstairs Downstairs" premiered. Created by Jean Marsh and Eileen Atkins, the series was produced by London Weekend Television. It told the story of the members of a wealthy London family and their several servants; between 1974 and 1977 some fifty-five episodes were telecast on Masterpiece Theatre, spanning the first three decades of the twentieth century (ten earlier episodes, covering the late 1890s, were never shown in America). Principal players included: David Langton as Richard Bellamy, head of the clan, member of Parliament; Simon Williams as his son, James; Meg Wynn Owen as Hazel, James's wife; Lesley-Anne Down as Georgina Worsley, Richard Bellamy's ward; Gordon Jackson as Hudson, the dutiful butler; Jean Marsh as Rose, the maid; Angela Baddeley as Mrs. Bridges, the cook; Christopher Beeny as Edward, the footman; Jenny Tomasin as Ruby, the scullery maid; and Jacqueline Tong as Daisy, the maid.

On the fifth season of Masterpiece Theatre (1974–1975) five selections were presented: Dorothy Sayers's "Murder Must Advertise," in four parts, with Ian Carmichael, Rachel Herbert, Mark Eden, and Bridget Armstrong; thirteen more episodes of "Upstairs Downstairs"; "Country Matters," a miniseries of four one-episode playlets; a six-part miniseries, "Vienna 1900: Games with Love and Death," in which five stories by Arthur Schnitzler were adapted; Dorothy Sayers's "The Nine Tailors," in four parts, with Ian Carmichael, Glyn Houston, Donald Eccles, and Keith Drinkel.

Another five presentations made up the 1975–1976 season: the six-part "Shoulder to Shoulder," with Sian Phillips, Patricia Quinn, Angela Down, and Georgia Brown; "Notorious Woman," a seven-part dramatization of the life of George Sand, with Rosemary Harris and George Chakiris; another thirteen episodes of "Upstairs Downstairs"; a three-part adaptation of Somerset Maugham's "Cakes and Ale," with Judy Cornwell, Michael Hordern, and Mike Pratt; a six-part adaptation of Lewis Grassic Gibbon's "Sunset Song," with Vivien Heilbron, Andrew Keir, Edith Macarthur, and James Grant.

Presentations in the 1976–1977 season included: Gustave Flaubert's "Madame Bovary," in four parts, with Francesca Annis and Tom Conti; Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley," in six parts, with Stanley Baker, Sian Phillips, and Nerys Hughes; Dorothy Sayers's "Five Red Herrings," in four parts, with Ian Carmichael, Glyn Houston, John Junkin, and Ian Ireland; the final sixteen episodes of "Upstairs Downstairs"; the sixteen-part "Poldark," adapted from Winston Graham's novels, with Robin Ellis, Clive Francis, Norma Streader, and Angharad Rees.

The 1977–1978 season began early (28 August) with the ten-part "Dickens of London," from Yorkshire Television, with Roy Dotrice, Diana Coupland, Karen Dotrice, and Richard Leech. Later presentations included: the thirteen-part "I, Claudius," adapted from Robert Graves's historical novels, with Derek Jacobi, Sian Phillips, Brian Blessed, and John Paul; a ten-part adaptation of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," with Nicola Pagett, Stuart Wilson, Davyd Harries, and Robert Swan; and Dickens's "Our Mutual Friend," with Andrew Ray, Jack Wild, Lesley Dunlop, and Duncan Lamont.

The 1978–1979 season led off with a seven-part adaptation of Thomas Hardy's "The Mayor of Casterbridge," with Alan Bates. Subsequent presentations included fifteen segments of "The Duchess of Duke Street," with Gemma Jones; "Country Matters," in four parts, with Meg Owens; and thirteen episodes of "Lillie," starring Francesca Annis as actress Lillie Langtry.

Scheduled for the 1979–1980 season were: "Kean," a two-parter with Anthony Hopkins as actor Edmund Kean; twelve episodes of "Love for Lydia," starring Mel Martin; "Prince Regent"; fifteen more episodes of "The Duchess of Duke Street"; "Disraeli, Portrait of a Romantic"; and "Lillie."

Only four new productions were televised during the 1980–1981 season: a five-part adaptation of Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice, adapted by Fay Weldon, with David Rintoul and Elizabeth Garvie; "Testament of Youth," a five-part adaptation of British feminist Vera Brittain's autobiography, starring Cheryl Campbell; "Danger UXB," a thirteen-part dramatization of a World War II bomb squad in London, starring Anthony Andrews; and Emile Zola's "Thérèse Raquin," in three parts, starring Kate Nelligan.

The 1981–1982 season led off with the very popular "A Town Like Alice," a six-part story set in Malaya during World War II. Following "Alice" were: a rerun of "Edward & Mrs. Simpson" (see that title); "The Flame Trees of Thika," a seven-parter set in Africa, with Hayley Mills; "I Remember Nelson," a four-part biography of the British admiral, with Kenneth Colley and Geraldine James; "Love in a Cold Climate," an eight-part adaptation of Nancy Mitford's novel about the British aristocracy; and "Flickers," a rare comedy (in six installments) about the early days of the British film industry.

The 1982–1983 season presented "To Serve Them All My Days," a thirteen-part adaptation of R. F. Delderfield's novel of life at an English boys' school; "The Good Soldier," a rare one-parter; "Winston Churchill: The Wilderness Years," an eight-part look at Churchill's life from 1929 to 1939, starring Robert Hardy; two more one-parters, "On Approval" and "Drake's Venture"; another comedy, "Private Schulz," starring Michael Elphick as a would-be counterfeiter; and a seven-part adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's "Sons and Lovers."

Scheduled for the 1983–1984 season were: "Pictures," a seven-parter about a British film starlet of the 1920s; "The Citadel," a ten-week story of a London doctor, starring Ben Cross; "The Irish R.M.," a comedy in six parts with Peter Bowles; "The Tale of Beatrix Potter," a two-part biography of the children's writer; and "Nancy Astor," the eight-part story of Great Britain's first female M.P., with Lisa Harrow.

The 1984–1985 season led off with a seven-part adaptation of Anthony Trollope's "Barchester Chronicles," with Donald Pleasence, Angela Pleasence, Janet Maw, and David Gwillim; next came the highly acclaimed fourteen-part "The Jewel in the Crown," adapted from Paul Scott's The Raj Quartet, with Peggy Ashcroft, Susan Wooldridge, Art Malik, and Tim Piggott-Smith; an anthology of five single plays, shown under the umbrella title "All for Love"; and, lastly, C. P. Snow's "Strangers and Brothers," in seven installments, with Shaughan Seymour, Sheila Ruskin, Martyn Jacobs, and Carmen du Sautoy.

Presented during the 1985–1986 season were: "The Last Place on Earth," a six-part dramatization of the Scott and Amundsen efforts to reach the South Pole, with Martin Shaw, Sverre Anker Ousdal, Max von Sydow, and Susan Wooldridge; Dickens's "Bleak House," in eight parts, with Denholm Elliott, Diana Rigg, Philip Franks, and Lucy Hornak; "Lord Mountbatten: The Last Viceroy," in six parts, with Nicol Williamson and Janet Suzman; a fifteenth-anniversary retrospective; "By the Sword Divided," a nine-parter set in seventeenth-century England, with Julian Glover, Lucy Aston, and Sharon Mughan; and a six-part sequel to "The Irish R. M." with Peter Bowles.

Seven new presentations graced the 1986–1987 season: John Mortimer's "Paradise Postponed," in eleven parts, with Michael Hordern, Peter Egan, David Threlfall, and Annette Crosbie; "Goodbye Mr. Chips," in three parts, starring Roy Marsden; J. B. Priestley's "Lost Empires," in seven segments, with Colin Firth and John Castle; Ben Kingsley in "Silas Marner"; five Noel Coward stories, telecast under the umbrella title "Star Quality"; "The Death of the Heart," with Jojo Cole; and "Love Song," a two-parter with Michael Kitchen and Diana Hardcastle.

The following season brought "The Bretts," and eight-parter set in the theater during the 1920s, with Barbara Murray and Norman Rodway; Jane Austen's comedy, "Northanger Abbey," with Katharine Schlesinger; a five-part adaptation of Warwick Deeping's "Sorrell and Son," with Richard Pasco and Paul Critchley; "Fortunes of War," in seven parts, adapted from Olivia Manning's trilogies set during World War II, with Kenneth Branagh and Emma Thompson; "Day after the Fair," based on Thomas Hardy's short story, with Hannah Gordon; and a five-part staging of "David Copperfield," with David Dexter, Francesca Hall, and Jenny McCracken.

The 1988–1989 season brought John le Carre's seven-part "A Perfect Spy," with Peter Egan and Ray McAnally; "Heaven on Earth," a CBC-BBC coproduction with Huw Davies, Sian Leisa Davies, and Amos Crawley; "A Wreath of Roses," with Joanna McCallum and Trevor Eve; "A Very British Coup," in two parts, with Ray McAnally; the three-part "All Passion Spent," with Wendy Hiller; "Talking Heads: Bed Among the Lentils," starring Maggie Smith; "Christabel," in four parts, with Elizabeth Hurley and Stephen Dillon; the six-part "The Charmer," with Nigel Havers; and six new episodes of "The Bretts."

Televised in 1989–1990 were: "And a Nightingale Sang," with Joan Plowright, Tom Watt, Phyllis Logan, and John Woodvine; "Precious Bane," a two-parter with Janet McTeer and Clive Owen set in the nineteenth century; "Glory Enough for All," in two parts, with R. H. Thomson and Robert Wisden as the discoverers of insulin; a four-part adapatation of Dickens's "A Tale of Two Cities," with Jean-Pierre Aumont, Serena Gordon, and John Mills; "The Yellow Wallpaper," with Julia Watson and Stephen Dillon; the ten-part "After the War," with Adrian Lukis, Serena Gordon, and Anton Rodgers; "The Real Charlotte," in three parts, with Jeananne Crowley and Joanna Roth; "The Dressmaker," a two-hour play with Joan Plowright, Billie Whitelaw, Tim Ransom, and Jane Horrocks; a modern thriller, "Traffik," a five-part look at the narcotics business, with Bill Paterson, Tilo Pruckner, Fritz Muller-Scherz, and Peter Lakenmacher; and a rare first-run summer presentation, "Piece of Cake," a six-parter about the RAF in WWII, with Tim Woodward and Tom Burlinson.

The 1990–1991 season led off with "The Heat of the Day," an adaptation by Harold Pinter of the Elizabeth Bowen novel, with Patricia Hodge, Michael York, Michael Gambon, and Grant Parsons; it was followed by "The Ginger Tree," a four-parter set in Asia with Samantha Bond, Adrian Rawlins, and Daisuke Ryu; "Jeeves and Wooster," a five-parter based on the P. G. Wodehouse stories, with Stephen Fry and Hugh Laurie; the four-part "House of Cards"; a fond look back at the highlights of Masterpiece Theatre's first twenty seasons; and John Mortimer's four-part "Summer's Lease," with John Gielgud, Susan Fleetwood, and Michael Pennington.

The 1991–1992 season began with "A Matter of Quality," a two-part spy drama, with Denholm Elliott (as George Smiley) and Glenda Jackson. It continued with "Sleepers," a four-part spy drama with Warren Clarke and Nigel Havers; "She's Been Away," a 1989 theatrical film starring Peggy Ashcroft; "Parnell and the Englishwoman," in four parts, with Trevor Eve (as Irish nationalist Charles Stewart Parnell) and Francesca Annis; "Titmuss Regained," a three-part sequel to the 1986 presentation "Paradise Postponed"; a two-part adaptation of Eliot's "Adam Bede," with Iain Glen, Patsy Kensit, and James Wilby; Ibsen's "A Doll's House," with Juliet Stevenson; "Clarissa," a three-part adaptation of Samuel Richardson's 1748 novel, with Sarah Wickham and Sean Bean; "A Perfect Hero," in four parts, with Nigel Havers as an RAF pilot; and the three-part "Portrait of a Marriage," with Janet McTeer (as Vita Sackville-West), David Haig, and Cathryn Harrison.

Twelve presentations comprised the 1992–1993 season: "A Question of Attribution," with James Fox; "The Best of Friends," with John Gielgud, Patrick McGoohan, and Wendy Hiller; "Memento Mori," in two parts, with Maggie Smith and Michael Hordern; "The Secret Agent," in three parts, with David Suchet (at the conclusion of which Alistair Cooke bid farewell after twenty-one years as host); additional "Jeeves and Wooster" stories; "The Countess Alice," with Wendy Hiller; "The Blackheath Poisonings," in three parts, with Judy Parfitt and James Faulkner; "Hedda Gabler," with Fiona Shaw and Stephen Rea; "The Black Velvet Gown," in two parts, with Bob Peck and Janet McTeer; the three-part "Calling the Shots," with Lynn Redgrave; and the six-part "Doctor Finlay," with David Rintoul.

The 1993–1994 season introduced Russell Baker as host, who in turn introduced "Selected Exits," with Anthony Hopkins; more "Jeeves and Wooster" stories; "Where Angels Fear to Tread," a 1991 motion picture based on the E. M. Forster novel; "Sharpe's Rifles" and "Sharpe's Eagle," each in two parts, with Sean Bean as a nineteenth-century military officer; "To Play the King," in four parts, a sequel to 1991's "House of Cards"; "Body and Soul," in four parts, with Kristin Scott Thomas; a six-part adaptation of Eliot's "Middlemarch," with Juliet Aubrey and Patrick Malahide; "A Foreign Field," a 1993 motion picture with Alec Guinness and Lauren Bacall; and "The Best Intentions," a three-parter written by Ingmar Bergman and directed by Bille August.

The 1994–1995 season included "The Blue Boy," starring Emma Thompson, Adrain Dunbar, and Joanna Roth; "The Rector's Wife," in three parts, with Lindsay Duncan; "Dandelion Dead," a two-parter based on an actual crime, with Michael Kitchen and Sarah Miles; "Doctor Finlay II," in six parts, with David Rintoul; "Impromptu," a 1991 motion picture with Judy Davis and Hugh Grant (as George Sand and Fredric Chopin); still more of "Jeeves and Wooster"; "The Cinder Path," in three parts, with Lloyd Owen; "Charles Dickens' 'Martin Chuzzlewit,' " in five parts, starring Paul Scofield; Dickens' "Hard Times," with Alan Bates and Bob Peck; "Much Ado About Nothing," the 1993 film starring Kenneth Branagh and Emma Thompson; and three more "Sharpe" tales, with Sean Bean.

MASTERS OF MAGIC

CBS

16 FEBRUARY 1949–11 MAY 1949 One of TV's first magic shows, Masters of Magic was a fifteen-minute show seen on Wednesdays after the network news. Originally titled Now You See It, the show was emceed by Andre Baruch and produced by Sherman H. Dreyer Productions.

THE MATCH GAME

NBC/CBS/SYNDICATED/ABC

31 DECEMBER 1962–20 SEPTEMBER 1969 (NBC); 2 JULY 1973–20 APRIL 1979 (CBS); 1975–1981 (SYNDICATED); 1985 (SYNDICATED); 16 JULY 1990–29 MARCH 1992 (ABC) Most of the incarnations of this Goodson-Todman game show have been hosted by Gene Rayburn. On the NBC version, entitled simply The Match Game, two three-member teams, each consisting of a celebrity and two contestants, competed; the object of the game was to fill in the blank in a sentence read by the host, and contestants who matched answers with their teammates won money. On the CBS version, which added the last two digits of the year to the title (Match Game '73, etc.), and on the syndicated version (titled Match Game PM), two contestants played with a panel of six celebrities, and contestants won points for each celebrity whose answer matched theirs. The ABC daytime revival was hosted by Ross Shafer and featured Charles Nelson Reilly as a permanent panelist. See also The Match Game/Hollywood Squares Hour.

THE MATCH GAME/HOLLYWOOD SQUARES HOUR

NBC

31 OCTOBER 1983–27 JULY 1984 Television history was made on this hour daytime series, the first program to combine two game shows into a single package. For the first half hour, three contestants played The Match Game; the two top scorers then competed at The Hollywood Squares during the second half hour. Gene Rayburn hosted the Match Game portion, Jon Bauman (formerly of Sha Na Na) the Hollywood Squares segment. Rayburn was also a regular panelist on the Hollywood Squares portion, while Bauman reciprocated on the Match Game component.

MATINEE IN NEW YORK

NBC

9 JUNE 1952–5 SEPTEMBER 1952 A summer replacement for The Kate Smith Hour, this daytime variety program featured Robin Chandler and Bill Goodwin. A regular feature was a game-show segment, "Winner Take All," hosted by Bill Cullen. See also Winner Take All.

MATINEE THEATER

NBC

31 OCTOBER 1955–27 JUNE 1958 John Conte hosted this ambitious anthology series—each weekday afternoon a new drama was presented live and in color. Some 7,000 actors were used in some 650 productions, but the series never attracted large audiences. Albert McCleery was the producer.

MATLOCK

NBC/ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1986–11 SEPTEMBER 1992 (NBC); 5 NOVEMBER 1992–7 SEPTEMBER 1995 (ABC) Hour crime show starring Andy Griffith as Benjamin Matlock, an Atlanta-based criminal defense attorney whose down-home folksiness masked his wily courtroom manner. With Linda Purl (1986–1987) as his daughter (and junior partner), Charlene Matlock; Kene Holliday (1986–1989) as his investigator, Tyler Hudson; Nancy Stafford (1987–1992) as new junior partner Michelle Thomas; Kari Lizer (1987–1988) as office manager Cassie Phillips (Lizer had actually played other roles on two episodes during the first season); Julie Sommars (1987–1992) as assistant district attorney (and Matlock's sometime romantic interest) Julie Marsh; and Clarence Gilyard, Jr. (1989–1993) as investigator Conrad McMasters. Don Knotts, Griffith's costar in the old Andy Griffith Show, joined up in the fall of 1988 as Matlock's neighbor, Les "Ace" Calhoun. An unusual gimmick was employed in the 16 February 1988 episode: viewers could call in on a 900 telephone number to pick the guilty party. The producers had filmed three different endings, in which Matlock announced the name of a different suspect. Thus it was possible that a different killer could have been chosen in different time zones. Dropped by NBC in 1992, Matlock moved to ABC that fall. The first ABC presentation was a two-hour movie, and the series found a weekly berth in January 1993. Griffith and Gilyard remained as regulars, and three new cast members were added: Brynn Thayer as Matlock's daughter, Leanne, also an attorney; Warren Frost as Billy Lewis, an old friend of Ben's; and Daniel Roebuck as Ben's son, Cliff, a young attorney. Gilyard left at the end of the 1992–1993 season, Thayer at the end of the 1993–1994 season. Matlock was scheduled as a backup series for the 1994–1995 season, and was pressed into service in October, replacing the short-lived McKenna. Carol Huston joined for the ninth and final season as Matlock's new investigator, Jerri Stone. The series came about after NBC Entertainment chief Brandon Tartikoff spotted Griffith as the prosecuting attorney in the 1984 miniseries Fatal Vision. Tartikoff suggested the possibility of a series to producer Fred Silverman (for whom Tartikoff had previously worked at ABC and NBC). A pilot film, "Diary of a Perfect Murder," was produced, which aired 3 March 1986 on NBC.

THE MATT DENNIS SHOW NBC

27 JUNE 1955–29 AUGUST 1955 Pianist Matt Dennis hosted this fifteen-minute summer musical series.

MATT HELM ABC

20 SEPTEMBER 1975–3 JANUARY 1976 Uninspired hour-long crime show, starring Tony Franciosa as Matt Helm, a high-living former government agent who became a private detective in Los Angeles. Also featured were Laraine Stephens as his friend, Claire Kronski, a lawyer; Gene Evans as Sergeant Hanrahan of the L.A. police; and Jeff Donnell (seldom seen on TV since her days on The George Gobel Show) as Ethel, operator of Helm's answering service. Charles FitzSimmons and Ken Pettus produced the series. The character was created by Donald Hamilton and played by Dean Martin in several films during the 1960s.

MATT HOUSTON ABC

26 SEPTEMBER 1982–19 JULY 1985 Lee Horsley starred in this hour crime show as Matt Houston, an incredibly wealthy Texan who dabbled in crime-solving while in California supervising offshore drilling projects undertaken by his oil company. Featured during the first season were Pamela Hensley as lawyer C. J. Parsons, Matt's close friend; John Aprea as Lieutenant Vince Novelli of the Los Angeles Police Department; Dennis Fimple as Bo, one of Houston's ranch hands; Paul Brinegar as Lamar, another ranch hand; and Penny Santon as Mrs. Novelli, Vince's mother. For the show's second season, it was decided that Houston would forgo his many business interests and would concentrate instead on detective work. All of the regulars except for Horsley and Hensley were dropped, and Lincoln Kilpatrick joined the cast as Lieutenant Hoyt. Buddy Ebsen joined the cast for the series' final season as Matt's uncle, Roy Houston, a retired p.i. who helped out his nephew; Ebsen, of course, is better known for another TV detective role, Barnaby Jones.

MATT LINCOLN ABC

24 SEPTEMBER 1970–14 JANUARY 1971 Vincent Edwards, who had played a neurosurgeon on Ben Casey, returned to television as Matt Lincoln, a community psychiatrist, in this forgettable hour series. Also featured were Chelsea Brown as Tag, Michael Larrain as Kevin, June Harding as Ann, and Felton Perry as Jimmy.

MATTY'S FUNDAY FUNNIES ABC

11 OCTOBER 1959–30 DECEMBER 1961 A half-hour cartoon series sponsored by Mattel Toys, Matty's Funday Funnies was seen on Sunday afternoons during the 1959–1960 season, and on Friday nights during the 1960–1961 season. The cartoons were from Harvey Films, and segments included "Casper the Friendly Ghost," "Little Audrey," and "Baby Huey." Hosting the show were two animated characters known as Matty and Sisterbelle. In the fall of 1961 the series shifted to early Saturday evenings, and early in 1962 a new set of cartoons was introduced: see Time for Beany.

MAUDE CBS

12 SEPTEMBER 1972–29 APRIL 1978 First introduced on All in the Family as Edith Bunker's cousin, Maude Findlay proved herself every bit as vocal and opinionated—on the liberal side—as her reactionary in-law. Beatrice Arthur starred as Maude Findlay, a loud, liberal, middle-aged woman living with her fourth husband in suburban Tuckahoe. Also featured were Bill Macy as Walter Findlay, her current husband, owner of Findlay's Friendly Appliances; Adrienne Barbeau as Carol Traynor, Maude's divorced daughter (by one of her previous marriages), who lived with the Findlays; Conrad Bain as their conservative neighbor, Dr. Arthur Harmon; Rue McClanahan (1973–1978) as Arthur's wife, Vivian Harmon, Maude's best friend; Brian Morrison (1972–1977) and Kraig Metzinger (1977–1978) as Philip, Carol's son; Esther Rolle (1972–1974) as Florida Evans, Maude's black maid; and John Amos (1972–1974) as James Evans, Florida's husband. Rolle and Amos left the series in January of 1974 to star in their own series, Good Times. Hermione Baddeley then joined the cast as Mrs. Nell Naugatuck, an English maid. J. Pat O'Malley was added in 1975 as gravedigger Bert Beasley, who courted Mrs. Naugatuck (a widow) and married her in 1977. In the fall of 1977, Marlene Warfield joined the series as Maude's third maid, Victoria Butterfield, a Caribbean native. Created by Norman Lear, the series fared well, cracking Nielsen's Top Ten in each of its first four seasons. But ratings had slipped drastically by the 1977–1978 season, and in March of 1978 Beatrice Arthur announced she would be leaving the show. Rod Parker, who produced the show for several seasons, became executive producer in 1975, succeeding Norman Lear. In 1977 Parker was coexecutive producer with Hal Cooper, and Charlie Hauck was the producer. The show's theme, "And Then There's Maude," composed by Marilyn Bergman, Alan Bergman, and Dave Grusin, was sung by Donny Hathaway. One hundred forty-one episodes were produced.

MAURICE WOODRUFF PREDICTS SYNDICATED

1969 Hour-long talk show hosted by seer Maurice Woodruff.

THE MAURY POVICH SHOW SYNDICATED

1991– Successful hour daytime talk show, hosted by Maury Povich. The son of a Washington, D. C., sportswriter, Povich had previously anchored the tabloid investigative series, A Current Affair. Among the topics covered during April and May 1995 were "Men Who Flirt with Teenage Girls," "Phone Sex," "Female Impersonators," "Mothers Who Dislike Their Daughters," and "Sexy Bartenders."

MAVERICK ABC

22 SEPTEMBER 1957–8 JULY 1962 This popular hour-long western originally starred James Garner as Bret Maverick, an unconventional western hero who preferred chicanery to combat and a card table to a covered wagon. Garner was to have been the only star, but when it became obvious to the show's executives after a few weeks that production was hopelessly behind schedule, a second Maverick was introduced: Jack Kelly as Bret's equally devious brother, Bart Maverick. Kelly first appeared on 10 November 1957, and starred in about one third of that season's episodes (the Kelly episodes were produced by a separate production crew). By 1960 Kelly and Garner were featured more or less equally, and in some episodes they appeared together. Garner left the series after the 1960–1961 season, and Kelly starred in virtually all of the final season's shows. Occasionally featured were Roger Moore (1960–1962) as Beau Maverick, their English cousin; Robert Colbert (1961–1962) as brother Brent Maverick; and Diane Brewster as their friend, Samantha Crawford, an accomplished swindler in her own right. Maverick is best remembered for its light touch, and for its parodies of other westerns, such as "Gunshy," a lampoon of Gunsmoke, and "Three Queens Full," a takeoff on Bonanza. William L. Stewart produced the series for Warner Brothers. See also Bret Maverick; Young Maverick.

In 1994 a theatrical movie based on the series was produced, starring Mel Gibson as Bret Maverick; James Garner costarred as lawman Zane Cooper.

MAX HEADROOM CINEMAX

1 AUGUST 1986–19 DECEMBER 1986; 23 JULY 1987–9 OCTOBER 1987 One of television's most innovative creations, Max Headroom came to American TV screens in two formats. Both starred Canadian actor Matt Frewer in the title role; through the use of makeup and elaborate production techniques, Max Headroom was made to appear as a computer-generated image. The character was originally created on England's Channel 4 to host a music video show, sometimes interrupting the video clips with irreverent commentary. By 1985 Headroom had begun to interview celebrities as well. As interest in the character grew, a one-hour special was produced, which explained Headroom's background. Titled "Rebus: The Max Headroom Story," it served as the foundation for the science fiction series subsequently broadcast on ABC (see below).

Cinemax aired "Rebus" in 1985 and picked up the British series in the fall of 1986. The 1987 version of the talk show was produced in New York, and was titled Original Max Headroom to differentiate it from the ABC sci-fi series, which was airing simultaneously.

MAX HEADROOM ABC

31 MARCH 1987–5 MAY 1987; 14 AUGUST 1987–16 OCTOBER 1987 An imaginative sci-fi series, the second series titled Max Headroom was set sometime in the future, in a world where TV sets couldn't be turned off, where fierce competition existed among a host of television networks, and where ratings (which were available on a second-by-second basis) ruled supreme. Matt Frewer starred as Edison Carter, a reporter for Network 23 who was almost killed in a motorcycle accident; while Carter fought for his life, the network's youthful research chief, Bryce Lynch (played by Chris Young) managed to create Carter's computerized alter ego, Max Headroom (named for the last words Carter saw, on a warning sign just before his accident). Carter recovered, and roamed about the postmodern city; among the stories he investigated was a hush-hush plan among the networks to compress commercials into ultra-short spots known as "blipverts." Max, meanwhile, could show up on TV screens as he chose, insulting viewers at will. Other regulars included Amanda Pays as Theora Jones, Carter's assistant; Jeffrey Tambor as Murray, the news producer; George Coe as Ben Cheviot, president of Network 23; and William Morgan Sheppard as heavily ear-ringed Blank Reg, who ran an underground TV channel.

MAX MONROE: LOOSE CANNON CBS

5 JANUARY 1990–26 JANUARY 1990; 5 APRIL 1990–19 APRIL 1990 Short-lived crime show, with former disc jockey and game show panelist Shadoe Stevens as Max Monroe, a hip, wisecracking, chess-playing L.A. cop; Bruce A. Young as his black partner, Charlie; and Arnetia Walker as Charlie's wife, Loretta. Dean Hargrove and Joel Steiger created the series.

MAYA NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1967–10 FEBRUARY 1968 Hour-long adventure series about an American boy searching for his missing father, a big game hunter, in the jungles of India. With Jay North as Terry Bowen; Sajid Khan as Raji, a native lad who joined up with Terry; and Maya, Raji's pet elephant. Frank King was executive producer of the series, which was filmed entirely on location.

MAYBE THIS TIME ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1995–17 FEBRUARY 1996 Trite sitcom about three generations of women living together. With Marie Osmond as divorcee Julia Wallace; Betty White as her mother, Shirley, who ran a coffee store with her daughter; Ashley Johnson as Julia's eleven-year-old daughter, Gracie; Amy Hill as Kay Ohara, who owned a nearby pawn shop; and Craig Ferguson as the cook, Logan, a Scotsman.

MAYBERRY, R.F.D. CBS

23 SEPTEMBER 1968–6 SEPTEMBER 1971 This half-hour sitcom was the direct successor of The Andy Griffith Show. With Ken Berry as Sam Jones, farmer and town councillor in Mayberry, North Carolina; Buddy Foster as his son, Mike; Frances Bavier (1968–1970) as Aunt Bee Taylor, their housekeeper; Alice Ghostley (1970–1971) as Alice, the housekeeper; Arlene Golonka as Millie Swanson, girlfriend of widower Sam; George Lindsey as Goober Pyle, slow-witted gas pump jockey; Paul Hartman as Emmett Clark, owner of the town repair shop; Mary Lansing as Martha Clark, Emmett's wife; and Jack Dodson as Howard Sprague, the county clerk. Andy Griffith and Richard O. Linke were the executive producers of the series; seventy-eight episodes were made.

MAYOR OF HOLLYWOOD NBC

29 JUNE 1952–18 SEPTEMBER 1952 Walter O'Keefe interviewed celebrity guests in Hollywood on this twice-weekly half-hour summer series.

MAYOR OF THE TOWN SYNDICATED

1954 Thomas Mitchell starred as Mayor Russell of Springdale in this short-lived television version of the series that ran on radio from 1942 to 1949. Also featured were Kathleen Freeman as his housekeeper, Marilly, and David Saber as his ward, Butch.

McCLAIN'S LAW NBC

20 NOVEMBER 1981–24 AUGUST 1982 After twenty years on Gunsmoke (and one or two on How the West Was Won), James Arness returned as Jim McClain, a retired cop who returned to the San Pedro (California) police force after the murder of a friend. Marshall Colt costarred as his new partner, Harry Gates, whose modern approach to police work irritated the no-nonsense McClain. Also featured were George DiCenzo as their boss, Lieutenant DeNisco; Conchata Ferrell as McClain's friend Vangie, who ran a bar; and Carl Franklin as Cross. The hour series was created by Eric Bercovici.

McCLOUD NBC

16 SEPTEMBER 1970–28 AUGUST 1977 This crime show began in 1970 as one segment of NBC's Four-In-One. In the fall of 1971 it expanded from an hour to ninety minutes and was featured as one segment of The NBC Mystery Movie on Wednesdays. The following year it moved to Sunday, as one segment of The NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, where it remained for the next five years; some features were two hours, others ninety minutes. Dennis Weaver starred as Sam McCloud, a deputy marshal from Taos, New Mexico, on assignment in New York to learn sophisticated crimefighting techniques. Also featured were J. D. Cannon as the Chief of Detectives, Peter B. Clifford; Terry Carter as Sergeant Joe Broadhurst; Ken Lynch as gravel-voiced Sergeant Grover; and Diana Muldaur as Chris Coughlin, McCloud's female friend. The pilot for the series, "McCloud: Who Killed Miss U.S.A.?" was televised 17 February 1970. Glen A. Larson was executive producer of the series for Universal Television. Weaver returned to the role in a TV-movie, "The Return of Sam McCloud," broadcast on CBS 12 NOVEMBER 1989, also featuring J. D. Cannon; by then, McCloud had become a U.S. senator.

McCOY NBC

5 OCTOBER 1975–28 MARCH 1976 One segment of The NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, McCoy shared a slot with McCloud, Columbo, and McMillan and Wife. Created by Roland Kibbee and Dean Hargrove, it starred Tony Curtis as McCoy, a con artist with a heart of gold, and Roscoe Lee Browne as his associate, Gideon Gibbs.

McDUFF, THE TALKING DOG NBC

11 SEPTEMBER 1976–20 NOVEMBER 1976 Abysmal live-action Saturday-morning series about a ghostly English sheepdog (McDuff) and a veterinarian, the only person who could see or communicate with him. The human roles were played by Walter Willison as veterinarian Calvin Campbell; Gordon Jump as next-door neighbor Amos Ferguson; Monty Margetts as Mrs. Osgood, Calvin's nurse and housekeeper; Johnnie Collins III as Ferguson's nephew, Squeaky; and Michelle Stacy as Kimmy.

The voice of McDuff was supplied by Jack Lester. William Raynor and Myles Wilder created, produced, and wrote the half-hour series.

McHALE'S NAVY ABC

11 OCTOBER 1962–30 AUGUST 1966 This popular service sitcom was set on a South Pacific island during World War II for its first three seasons. It featured Ernest Borgnine as Lieutenant Commander Quinton McHale, skipper of PT73 and commanding officer of a squadron of goof-offs, gamblers, and nincompoops; Joe Flynn as blustery Captain Wallace Binghamton, McHale's meddlesome superior; Tim Conway as Ensign Chuck Parker, the bumbling klutz whom Binghamton assigned to the squadron in the vain hope that he could whip it into shape. The rest of the crew included Carl Ballantine as Lester Gruber; Gary Vinson as "Christy" Christopher; Bob Hastings as Lieutenant Carpenter, Binghamton's aide; Billy Sands as "Tinker" Bell; Gavin MacLeod (1962–1964) as Happy Haines; Edson Stroll as Virgil Edwards; John Wright as Willy Moss; and Yoshio Yoda as Fuji, a Japanese POW who served as the squadron's cook. Occasionally seen were Roy Roberts as Admiral Rogers; Jacques Aubuchon as Tali Urulu, the local chieftain; Jane Dulo (1962–1964) as Nurse Molly Turner. At the outset of the fourth season Binghamton, McHale and company (including Fuji) were transferred to Italy and assigned to duty near the town of Voltafiore. Joining the cast were Henry Beckman as Colonel Harrigan; Simon Scott as General Bronson; Jay Novello as Mayor Lugatto; and Dick Wilson as Dino Barone, one of the locals. One of TV's longer-lasting military comedies, with 130 episodes, McHale's Navy is still widely seen in syndication.

McKEEVER AND THE COLONEL NBC

23 SEPTEMBER 1962–16 JUNE 1963 Half-hour sitcom set at Westfield Academy, a boys' military school. With Scott Lane as Cadet Gary McKeever, a fun-loving youngster; Allyn Joslyn as Colonel Harvey T. Blackwell, the head of the academy; Jackie Coogan as Sergeant Barnes; Elisabeth Fraser as Mrs. Warner, the academy dietician; Johnny Eimen as Monk, one of McKeever's pals; and Keith Taylor as Tubby, another of McKeever's pals. R. Allen Saffian and Harvey Bullock created the series, and Billy Friedberg produced it.

McKENNA ABC

15 SEPTEMBER 1994–29 SEPTEMBER 1994; 13 JULY 1995–20 JULY 1995 An early fatality of the 1994 fall season, McKenna was lifted after just three telecasts (though it returned for two more the next July). It told the short saga of the McKenna family, who ran McKenna Wilderness Outfitters in Bend, Oregon. The cast included Chad Everett as the patriarch, Jack McKenna; Eric Close as the rebellious son, Brick, a stock car mechanic who came home after the death of his brother, Guy (Brick also narrated the series); Shawn Huff as Guy's widow, Leigh; Vanessa Shaw (premiere episode) and Jennifer Love Hewitt as daughter Cassidy; Jacob Loyst as Leigh's young son, Harry; Ashlee Lauren as Leigh's young daughter, Rose; Rick Peters as local cop Dale Goodwin; and Jack Kehler as townsman Walter Maddock.

THE McLEAN STEVENSON SHOW NBC

1 DECEMBER 1976–9 MARCH 1977 Half-hour sitcom with McLean Stevenson as Max Ferguson, a Chicago hardware dealer; Barbara Stuart as Peggy Ferguson, his wife; Steve Nevil as Chris, their live-at-home son in his twenties; Ayn Ruymen as Janet, their recently divorced daughter; David Hollander as Janet's son David; Jason Whitney as Janet's son Jason; Madge West as Grandma ("Gram"); Andrew Parks as Allan; and Sandra Kerns as Susan. Monty Hall was the executive producer of the series, and Paul Williams composed the show's theme music.

THE McLAUGHLIN GROUP SYNDICATED

1982– Faced paced half-hour weekly news analysis show, with a distinctly conservative viewpoint. John McLaughlin created the show and serves as its producer and moderator. His stable of regular analysts has included Robert Novak, Patrick Buchanan, Morton Kondracke, Jack Germond, Fred Barnes, and Christopher Matthews. The series is shown on many public television stations.

McMILLAN AND WIFE NBC

29 SEPTEMBER 1971–21 AUGUST 1977 McMillan and Wife premiered in 1971 as one segment of The NBC Mystery Movie on Wednesdays. In 1972 it moved to Sundays and was featured as one segment of The NBC Sunday Mystery Movie for the next five years. It starred Rock Hudson in his first dramatic role on television as Stewart McMillan, Commissioner of Police in San Francisco. Susan Saint James costarred as his wife, Sally McMillan, who usually became involved in her husband's cases. Also featured during the first five seasons were John Schuck as Sergeant Charles Enright, McMillan's chief aide, and Nancy Walker as Mildred, the McMillans' housekeeper. At the end of the 1975–1976 season St. James, Schuck, and Walker all left the series (Schuck to star in Holmes and Yoyo, Walker to star in The Nancy Walker Show). For the final season, the title was shortened to McMillan, and McMillan was now a widower. Martha Raye joined the cast as Agatha, McMillan's new housekeeper, and Richard Gilliland was featured as his aide, Sergeant DiMaggio. The pilot for the series, "Once upon a Dead Man," was telecast 17 September 1971. Leonard B. Stern was executive producer of the series for Universal Television.

ME AND MAXX NBC

ME AND THE CHIMP CBS

13 JANUARY 1972–18 MAY 1972 One of the most dismal failures of the 1971–1972 season, Me and the Chimp somehow limped through nineteen weeks before its well-deserved cancellation. Created by Garry Marshall and Tom Miller (who later worked together on Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley), it told the story of a dentist who was persuaded by his two children to take in a runaway chimpanzee. With Ted Bessell as dentist Mike Reynolds; Anita Gillette as his wife, Liz; Scott Kolden as their son, Scott; and Kami Cotler (who landed a role on The Waltons a few months later) as their daughter, Kitty. Buttons, the chimp, was played by a three-and-a-half-year-old primate named Jackie.

MEATBALLS AND SPAGHETTI CBS

MEDIA PROBES PBS

1982 A series of eight half-hour programs, each of which examined a different facet of modern communications. Among the hosts were John Cameron Swayze (for the segment on television news), Cheryl Tiegs (on photography), Ruth Warrick (on soap operas), and Bill Blass (on design).

MEDIC NBC

13 SEPTEMBER 1954–19 NOVEMBER 1956 One of TV's first medical anthology shows, Medic was created by James Moser (who later worked on Ben Casey) and produced by Worthington Miner (who formerly produced Studio One). As Dr. Konrad Styner, Richard Boone hosted the series and starred in many of the stories. Filmed in cooperation with the Los Angeles County Medical Association, Medic presented both historical and contemporary medical dramas; it was the first television series to show the birth of a baby (26 September and 3 October 1955). Among the guest stars who played some of their earliest TV roles on the show were Dennis Hopper ("Boy in the Storm," 3 January 1955), John Saxon ("Walk with Lions," 12 September 1955), and Robert Vaughn ("Black Friday," 21 November 1955).

MEDICAL CENTER CBS

24 SEPTEMBER 1969–6 SEPTEMBER 1976 Hardy hour-long medical drama, with James Daly as Dr. Paul Lochner, chief of staff at the University Medical Center in Los Angeles; Chad Everett as Dr. Joe Gannon, his young colleague, a skilled surgeon and accurate diagnostician.
